Let us have no more of such "good old times."

One of the most remarkable articles in the September Review of Reviews is entitled "Strikes and their Remedies," and it discusses modes of conciliation and arbitration based upon an exhaustive report prepared by the Royal Commission on Strikes of New South Wales, Australia. The article will be found an exceedingly timely one, for it has been prepared with direct reference to the great American strikes of the present season. In the "Progress of the World" the editor of the Review of Reviews continues his last month's advocacy of official, and, to some extent, compulsory arbitration in labor disputes. The "Progress of the World" further deals with American and British politics, and many other current topics, and is illustrated with excellent portraits of the five American members of the international silver conference, as lately appointed by President Harrison, and various other portraits, maps and diagrams.

Alcohol Saps the Strength.

Without doubt men who drink no spirits hold out better and do their work better than those who drink. Armies made of men of the former class march better, hold up longer under fatigue, enjoy better health, can bear exposure better, and consequently are free from drunkenness, suffer little from disease and crime. It lessens the power of resistance in exposure to great cold and becomes dangerous to use it. It may excite for a time, but is always followed by great depression. This has been clearly demonstrated in arctic explorations. In exposure to great heat the evidence is equally conclusive against its use. The array of testimony is indisputable.—Medical Brief.

What England Pays for Drink.

Some one has been analyzing the English drink bill for 1891, which amounted to over $700,000,000. Its weight in sovereigns—1,106 tons—would load six trains of thirty-five wagons. Its acreage, sovereigns laid edge to edge, would cover a road 30 feet wide and 4½ miles long. Its length, the sovereigns standing on edge face to face, would form a cable 131 miles in length. Its time to count, without ceasing (Sundays excepted), one sovereign per second, would be 5¼ years. Its amount for each letter in the Bible of England over $15. Its amount per head of the population would be over $200.

White Drunkards and Black Heathen.

The hardened and besotted class in Christian countries are really more hopeless than the heathen. General Booth, who has recently visited many foreign lands, says: "The white barbarian is a worse customer than the black one. As regards morals the Zulus and Maoris are ahead of many classes in European countries, one virtue being that they do not get drunk unless civilized nations force drink upon them."—Cumberland Presbyterian.

The Earliest Lighthouses.

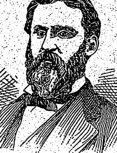
Fire towers at the entrances to ports were established in the earliest historic times. Bonfires were built on top of them at night.—Washington Star.

A WISE SELECTION.

Hon. Lorenzo Crounse, Who Will Be Nebraska's Next Governor.

The Republican party of the state of Nebraska made an exceptionally wise selection when it chose Hon. Lorenzo Crounse as its gubernatorial candidate.

Mr. Crounse was born in Schoharie county, N. Y., Jan. 27, 1834. He received an academic education, studied law, and removed to Montgomery county, N. Y., in 1855, and commenced the practice of his profession. At the outbreak of the war, in 1861, he raised a battery of artillery and entered the army as a captain. He was wounded and after a year's service resigned his commission. In 1865 he removed to Nebraska territory, and a year later became a member of the Nebraska territorial legislature and assisted in forming the present state constitution. He was elected associate justice of the supreme court and entered upon his duties in 1867, when the territory was admitted into the sisterhood of the Union as a state. At the end of his term he was elected a representative of the Forty-third congress and re-elected to the Forty-fourth congress. When Mr. Batcheller resigned his post as assistant secretary of the United States treasury to go to Portugal as minister from this country, President Harrison appointed Mr. Crounse to succeed him.



LORENZO CROUNSE.

WHAT SAY YE, VETERANS?

For Which of These Candidates Will You Cast Your Vote?

Aside from the tariff, silver and the so called force bill nothing arouses more interest among politicians than a comparison of the personnel of the Republican and Democratic nominees. There is a striking contrast in their records during the civil war, which it is well that every ex-soldier in the country should know. Contrasted, these records run about as follows:

CLEVELAND.	HARRISON.
War Record—None. Hired a substitute.	War Record—Gallant soldier. Rose from second lieutenant to brigadier general. Courageously participated in many battles, etc.
STEVENSON.	REID.
War Record—None. Knight of the Golden Circle.	War Record—Was a war correspondent at the front, risking his life in the discharge of his duty.
CLEVELAND'S ADMINISTRATION.	HARRISON'S ADMINISTRATION.
Vetoed between 800 and 900 pension bills.	Pensions granted to over 400,000 old soldiers. Pension vetoes, none.

The contrast is altogether in favor of the Republican candidates and should be made on every stump and called to the attention of every voter throughout the land. When in the Chicago convention Bourke Cockran in his famous speech asserted that no ex-soldier would vote for Mr. Cleveland, General Sickles, one of the heroes of Gettysburg, arose in his place and, waving his crutch in the air, shouted, "Never! never!" The old veteran in that heartfelt cry voiced the feelings of every one of his surviving comrades. Many of the shrewdest politicians in both parties believe that Mr. Cleveland's pension vetoes had quite as much to do with his defeat as did his celebrated tariff message. It is important therefore that his record in this respect be not forgotten. It is a record that he and his party managers do not now like to dwell upon, but they should be compelled to face the issue.—Philadelphia North American.

Free Trade Against Protection.

The Republican party welcomes the issue as made by the Democratic candidate. It is well assured that the people of the United States cannot ignore the record of prosperity which thirty years of protection have made, and that they will not accept Gladstone's advice to go to farming and leave all manufacturing to Great Britain. The issue might as well be tried now as at any time, and Mr. Cleveland has made it impossible to evade or obscure it. It is free trade against protection, and the result cannot be in doubt.—San Francisco Evening Post.

Support Harrison.

Because in voting for him you will be voting for yourself. It will be a vote to protect labor and capital. It will be a vote for the home, the school house and the church. It will be a vote against foreign economic ideas and principles. It will be a vote against the rising tide of anarchy. It will be a vote for all that is American in the line of national development. It will be a vote for law, order, prosperity. It will be a vote against crazy cranks who are striving to destroy the best government the world has ever seen.—New York Recorder.

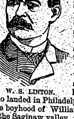
England Wants Cleveland to Win.

The Liverpool Journal of Commerce says that "the Democrats in the States may rest assured that if English sympathy could carry the election of Grover Cleveland in November, the White House would be theirs." This is the sort of talk the Democracy doesn't like. There will be lots of it in the next few months, though. England, for manifest reasons, wants the Democratic party to win, and the United States, for equally obvious reasons, won't allow it to win.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A SURE WINNER.

W. S. Linton, Republican Nominee in the Eighth Michigan District.

The Republicans of the Eighth Michigan district have determined to win this year and have accordingly nominated Hon. W. S. Linton for congress.



W. S. LINTON.

William S. Linton was born at St. Clair, Mich., Feb. 4, 1856, and is consequently a natural product of the Wolverine State, and one of which she is justly proud. He comes of old English stock, being a lineal descendant of John Linton, who afterward became the warm friend and admirer of William Penn, and who landed in Philadelphia Nov. 8, 1692. The boyhood of William S. was passed in the Saginaw valley. His educational advantages were confined to the city schools. While yet in his teens he began life as a clerk in a general store. His father having extended his lumbering operations to Farwell, young Linton was placed in charge of the large sawmill there. Mr. Linton next entered the employ of the late Thomas Nester, and engaged in shipping lumber from Alger, Bay county. While at Alger he held his first political position, being twice unanimously elected to the office of supervisor, thus commencing when twenty-two years of age a political career that has been uniformly successful. In 1879 he returned to Saginaw and entered into the partnership known under the title of Aaron Linton & Sons, lumber manufacturers.

In 1883 he was elected alderman of the Seventh ward and was the youngest alderman on the list. Then in 1886 he was chosen as representative to the legislature, being the only successful candidate upon the Republican ticket in the city at that election. He performed good service there, and during the rather exciting session of the legislature his record was a most honorable one. Mr. Linton's political party fully recognizes his ability, and the Republican convention of 1890 gave him the nomination for lieutenant governor. The Democratic success of that fall of course involved the defeat of the Republican state candidates, but Mr. Linton had the honor of running many thousands of votes ahead of his ticket.

Mr. Linton was elected mayor of consolidated Saginaw in the spring of 1892. This in a city where the Democratic party for years has rolled up great majorities is a splendid testimonial of the esteem in which he is held as a man and a citizen.

A Senseless Bugaboo.

Mississippi is the single state in which the negro element is numerically stronger than the white population and is increasing more rapidly in proportion to existing numbers. These simple facts cannot too well be kept in mind during the next few months, for we shall undoubtedly hear much before November of the danger of the burial of white civilization in the south under a rising flood of negro population. This bugaboo will be used to the utmost as an excuse for the deviltry by which the colored vote is suppressed and millions of native born Americans are denied the exercise of their highest natural rights. It is well to understand that this sort of talk is nearly all fraudulent and empty buncombe.—Cleveland Leader.

"When (Democratic) Rogues Fall Out."

The queer condition of politics in Alabama promises to solve the negro problem forever. The race is nearly equally divided as between the two Democratic factions, and the stand they have taken shows that they will never again be controlled by any party or clique, but will think and vote as they choose. The leaders declare that they will do their own thinking and that no party owns them. They claim to be equally interested with their white neighbors in good government and are receiving more consideration at the hands of their former masters than ever before.—Roanoke Herald.

The Baseless Democratic Howl.

The Republican platform this year does not call for a revival of this so called force bill. The Democratic howl is without a basis or warrant. But even if the Republican party were again calling for the Lodge bill it would not be committing any crime or wrong, as Mr. Cleveland would have the country believe. It would merely be demanding justice for a people whom the constitution has promised to protect, and who are still year after year robbed and defrauded of their rights by ruffians and murderers in the service of the Democratic party.—Kansas City Journal.

A Queer Minded Free Trader.

The man who believes that the repeal of the McKinley tariff and the adoption of a free trade policy would put an end to strikes and riots has a queer mind. Such a policy would inevitably result in the closing of many industrial establishments and the heavy reduction of wages in others. There would be a hundred men for every job. There would be industrial paralysis and keen distress among the working people. Poverty and despair would cause strikes, revolts, create riots and the very pillars of our national fabric would be seriously shaken.—Altoona (Pa.) Tribune.

Grover's Absurdly Pompous Egotism.

We all admit that Grover is a good sort of a man for a Mugwump, but he is absurdly pompous in his manner and stupid in his egotism for one of his contracted, narrow gauged ideas of statesmanship. All he knows is free trade, and his fame as a free trader is not due in any degree to originality in presenting the time honored issue or in the invention of measures or arguments, but entirely to his stubborn attachment to the idea that has fastened itself upon him.—Topeka (Kan.) Capital.

WOMAN'S WORLD.

A SIMPLE APPETIZING METHOD OF PRESERVING FRUIT.

The Girls Who Wear Suspenders—A Daring Girl Rider—The Seaside Bang—The Summer Beauty—A Defense of the Trailing Gown—A Massachusetts Law.

With the preserving season upon us, a few words on jam and jelly making may be of interest to a good many people, especially to those who have the care of invalids. With the increased attention bestowed on sanitary matters, the question of diet has grown immensely in importance, and the regulation of the sickroom food is now looked on as scarcely second to the system of medicine to be followed. Now no question has been more fiercely debated than the wholesomeness of sugar. Without going the length of some enthusiasts, who look on sugar as only one degree removed from poison, there are undoubtedly cases in which its use is most deleterious, and to such sufferers the recently introduced sweetening agent, saccharin, is of primary importance.

Saccharin has been adapted to culinary use in many ways, but up till quite lately there did not seem to be any method of utilizing it for the production of those jams and jellies which are such welcome additions to the breakfast table of daily life or the sickroom. Now as nothing is more depressing to invalids than the perpetual restrictions in small things which remind them incessantly of their invalid condition, so anything that assimilates their manner of life, in diet especially, to that of their surroundings must be of value. Acting on this idea some experiments have been made that fully display the use of saccharin, in the preservation of fruits at all events, and from this to jam making is but a step.

The process is a simple one, and can with a little care be carried out in any kitchen. The method of proceeding is as follows: From four gallons of water take a quart, boil it, adding to it gradually, a little at a time, 1¼ ounces of saccharin, and when this is thoroughly dissolved return the quart of sweetened water to the remainder of the four gallons of water. The usual fruit preserving bottles are then filled about an inch or so deep with this sweetened liquid and the fruit of whatever kind dropped in till the bottles are filled right up to the shoulder.

These bottles are then filled up with the rest of the sweetened water; the corks are driven in and covered over in the usual way, to insure their contents being perfectly airtight; the bottles are then set in a large pan, with water within a bare half inch of the top of the bottles; this water is then heated to a temperature of 180 degs. Fahr., and kept at this heat for about 2½ hours, when the pan, with the bottles, is lifted off the fire, and the water, fruit, etc., allowed to cool together for an hour and a half. The bottles are then taken out of the water, allowed to stand till next day, when they are put away, care being taken to pack them lying on their sides.

Fruit thus preserved is ready for immediate use if necessary, or keeps as well as fruit preserved in the usual manner; indeed it is said to be superior to the latter both in appearance and flavor, the liquid in which it is preserved being especially good.—London Queen.

The Girls Who Wear Suspenders.

The girl with suspenders is becoming so prevalent on the thoroughfares of this city that when one meets a young woman who doesn't wear them he is apt to wonder why she has left them at home. He will even turn around and look after the girl in amazement unable to conjecture why she is not in line with the great majority, who heretofore have bordered dangerously on the domain of man's wearing apparel by donning shirts and collars, but who never before have come quite so near toward "wearing the trousers." It is useless to resent the innovation, for it has been truly said that when a woman will she will, and when she won't she won't. At present she will wear suspenders and she won't listen to you when you tell her that she is encroaching on your rights. The only hope for relief is that, as in many other matters, her fancy will weary of suspenders, which have their drawbacks, what with breaking and buttons coming off, and that she will discard them of her own sweet will.

The strangest part is that she seems to be wearing them simply for the fun of it, for they don't seem to hold up anything and always look slack, as though there was no weight upon them. It is also remarkable that it is not the women who are calling for the emancipation of their sex who are wearing suspenders; it is not those women who would like to go out and hustle for a living while you stay at home and take care of the baby; it is not those persistent lobbyists who haunt the legislature while their bill providing for women voting is being politely and courteously killed. On the contrary, it seems to be the sweet faced maidens of our towns who have adopted them; dainty, girlish creatures who play the piano or the typewriter and read Browning; who cling wistfully and with submissive tenderness to masculine strength; who are the tender vines that twine around the oak. They seem to be wearing suspenders in a spirit of defiance, for as they walk airily down the avenue swinging their arms their faces are lighted up with a saucy smile, as though saying: "Well, how do you like it? Do they look becoming?"—Detroit Free Press.

A Daring Girl Rider.

There is a rider in this part of Texas who is greatly out of the ordinary, and whose riding is the comment of even this section, where good riding is the rule and not the exception.

The rider is a girl, "Broncho Kate." She is the daughter of a cattleman and has been all her life on the plains with the cowboys, and could ride a horse when she was three years old. She is the idol of every cattleman on the range, and when Kate wants a horse there is not a man in the country but would walk if she would only take his animal.

Kate Chapman is but sixteen years old, but she is undoubtedly the most fearless rider in the world. She never hesitates an instant about getting on the wildest and most vicious animal on the range, and it makes no difference to her whether it has ever had a saddle on or not. Her latest escapade was to ride and break in a mustang which had the reputation of being a man killer. This animal is especially vicious, and not only throws its rider, but goes after him when he is down and strikes and bites him, trying to kill him.

Kate had been wanting to ride this broncho for some time, but every one on the range opposed it and did all in his power to prevent it. The girl was not to be baffled, however, and catching the horse in a corral she saddled him. She then blindfolded him, and in this condition forced him out on the open prairie and mounted him. The brute stood perfectly still until she lifted the blindfold, and then began a terrible battle, in which the girl finally came out victor and rode the horse at will wherever she pleased.—Mabeetee Cor. Philadelphia Press.

The Seaside Bang.

"Seaside bangs," said the sign, "two dollars."

"What are the bangs?" asked a reporter, looking into a case of fluffy looking appendages in a store in West Twenty-third street.

"When a lady goes in bathing," said the clerk, "she naturally gets her hair all out of shape. She hates to appear among her friends looking like a fright, so she claps on a bit of artificial tuft in front, nicely curled—the seaside bang."

"And it is always in curl?"

"It is. The seaside bang will deceive the wariest husband. It is a great seller. No girl who goes to the surf can afford to be without them. When she comes out of the water, and while she is lolling around in the sand, her maid slips her the false front; she turns to the wild waves, quickly adjusts it underneath the brim of her wide straw and the next moment, as her sweetheart strolls down beside her, he—the poor dunce—makes mental comments on the beauty of her locks, not dreaming that her real hair is wet and soppy as softsoap and frightfully unpresentable. The dripping hair is all right and poetical enough in the water, but our girls have learned that it is a horror on the beach."

"Then it is a great beau catcher, too, eh?"

Before the clerk could answer in came a great, lumbering woman, who came very close to the counter, leaned far over and whispered something in the clerk's ear. The clerk smiled sweetl wrapped something in a dark bit of per and the fat lady left, a pleased pression all over her face.

She was preparing to lay some dude cold at the beach.—New Y Herald.

The Summer Beauty.

The summer beauty must not be c founded with the summer girl. Sh more favored than the latter, inasm as she receives notice from the press a is called by her name right out in mee in. The world that keeps its eyes and ears open soon knows all about the summer beauty. Her papa's wealth, her gowns, her tastes and her accomplishments, and finally the number of her adorers are each and all set forth in cold type, that doubtless grows warm in the recital. Until the summer solstice the summer beauty has lived and moved and had her being in the bosom of her family. She was an unknown quantity until placed amid the surroundings of a fashionable resort, where her plumage took on the iris of the dove and her attractions became glowing texts for the newspaper correspondent's daily letter.

Without the summer beauty how colorless would be the hotel dance, how tame the bathing hour on the beach, how dull and aimless the rattle of harness and the champing of steeds along the afternoon drive! It goes without saying that the summer beauty, who is perhaps described "as having a piquant, radiant face of the chatain type, and a prettily molded figure, which she carries spiritedly in repose or action," always gets there. She is in that delightful position of being always in it, and the chances are that having made—or had made for her—a reputation for bellehood, she returns home at the end of the season a conquering heroine, safely and securely engaged to some bold man. Such it is to be that jewel of fate—a summer beauty.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

A Defense of the Trailing Gown.

If ever a woman might pose as a misunderstood martyr, it is she who wears the trained gown. Press and people unite in denouncing this most graceful, most artistic, most convenient and most scrupulously neat of all modes. The average gown cannot be lifted on the street—at least by any woman who has any reverence for grace; the trailing gown is made to be lifted, and its wearer is thus preserved intact from all the various horrors of street dust, so ardently described in the press.

The secret of all this atrocious misunderstanding of the train is simply that it is an emanation of the masculine intellect that cannot, alas! know by personal experience anything of its comfort. The trained gown concentrates all its weight in one place, an it is so skillfully designed and drap that at a touch it can be lifted, while e ordinary skirt, befrilled and beflounced, needs a dozen pair of hands to raise it.

It is quite time that the claim of the trailing gown to the highest known degree of hygienic value, temporary comfort and beauty be set forth. It has been reviled long enough by those who know nothing about it.—Lilian Whiting in Boston Budget.

A Massachusetts Law Makes Trouble.

The fifty-eight hour law for women and children is already causing the displacement of women. Wright & Potter,

DEFECTIVE PAGE

WITH OUR EXCHANGES.

The Thirteen Towns, of Fosston, says:—The new Lutheran church is nearly enclosed, and will be the most pretentious of any in the city when completed.—At least two-thirds of the grain in this vicinity is in the shock and ere another ten days shall have passed the threshers will hum. —Jas. E. Morrisey, of the Crookston Iron Works, came up yesterday, remained between trains and made a short drive into the country.—Plastering has been commenced on the school building and the contractor expects to have it ready for occupancy by the 15th of next month.

The Grand Forks Herald:—Miss Minnie Martin, Miss Walker and Misses Lally, of Crookston, are visiting Miss Anna Kane at the Windsor.

The Warren Register:—A. A. Miller, one of Crookston's ablest lawyers, was in the city on Monday looking after professional matters.—Sheriff Kivel drove over to Thief River Falls on Monday and will be back to-day.—E. Chapin, of Crookston, has bought out E. J. Highworden, the barber, and will take posession next Monday.—That good looking Democrat, lawyer Wilkinson, of Crookston, was in the city on Saturday, but he failed to tell us what he was here for.—Dr. Chapin, of Euclid, and his brother, of Crookston, were in the city yesterday. The doctor has almost recovered from his late illness.—Mrs. Childs, of Crookston, is visiting her sister, Mrs. W. O. Holcomb, of this city.—The harvest is going on rapidly and at much less cost than last year, because there is much less of it.—A. L. Palmer, of Independence, came in on Saturday to look after his farming interests here. —Holston, the county attorney of Polk county, and McKenzie, of the Crookston Times, are at it hammer and tongs, making faces at each other and calling names. Boys, you hadn't ought to do it. It's wrong.

The Fisher Bulletin tells us that:—Tom Bjoin was over from Crookston Thursday.—Mrs. Ole Hanson, of Crookston, has been the guest of her sister, Mrs. A. Truesdahl, during the past week.—Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Lancaster and little daughter, were over from Crookston Wednesday.—Miss Lulu Thompson was over from Crookston Wednesday, visiting with her many little friends.—Misses Milla d Clara Olsen and Tena Brownlee re at Crookston Tuesday and dnesday, attending the teachers' aminations.

The Fertile Journal:—M. G. Peter-n started Sunday night for Nor-y, where he goes for his health.—outy sheriff Losey was to be seen our streets last night. He re-orts farmers further advanced with heir work in this vicinity than around Crookston.—Threshing will soon commence.—John Nichols commenced stacking Monday.—Ole E. Olson, the people's party nominee for the legislature from this district, died Friday night at his home in Marsh River, Norman county. Mr. Olson was one of the oldest settlers of that county, having resided there for the past eighteen years. He was fifty-six years old and was one of the best and most prosperous farmers of the county.

Verndale Journal:—Mrs. A. M. Stewart and children, of Crookston, are visiting her brother, W. J. Brown, of this place. Also Mr. and Mrs. E. Bullard, missionaries from India, are guests at the same home.

Thus saith D. P. R. Strong in the Grand Forks Review:—Hugh Thompson of Crookston was a visitor in our city on Saturday.—Harvesting is in full blast and the farmers are taking advantage of the fine weather. —Arne Higdem, one of our best farmers, says that the estimate we made of the present crop falling 20 per cent. short of ten bushels to the acre is about correst. Mr. H. will thresh his grain next week if good weather continues.—Thos. Routley has 250 acres in wheat and is tying it up as fast as eight horses and two self-binders can do it. His new house is almost ready for occupancy. Tom and his worthy wife deserve all the good fortunes likely to come their way.—Tom Nesbit of Mallory was in town on Tuesday. He has lately returned from southern Minnesota where he had been on a business venture and visiting relatives. He has bought the Joe Roberton estate of about 400 acres. Mr. Nesbit informs us that the wheat crop will drop far below the estimate. That three-fourths of the wheat has ripened too fast and as a consequence the berry has shrunken. Tom is a very careful estimator and his figures may be taken as nearly correct.

And new and improved Thief River Falls Press among lots of interesting locals, remarks:—Sheriff Kivel, wife and daughter Lily, of Warren, Marshall county, visited in this city this week. They were greatly taken with our city. Mr. Kivel being satisfied with three terms as Sheriff, has refused the office for another term and will step out after next November, and probably become a resident of our city as well as a business man among us.—Mrs. C. Retalic and children arrived in the city from California yesterday. Mr. Retalic had been expecting them for some time and had been fitting up his house for their arrival.—W. R. Shendel of Park River is in the city and has purchased the barber equipments of John Kubol as soon as his new building is finished will open a first-class tonsorial parlor.—The Press was shown some samples of red brick from the kiln just opened at Phil Zeh's brick yard. As far as our knowledge of brick goes we judge them to be of excellent quality and are as fine looking brick as we have ever seen. Persons familiar with the brick manufacturing industry support us in the assertion and we see no reason why Mr. Zeh should not meet with abundant success in his new enterprise.—The next census returns for this city will show an increase for the fourth week of August seldom outdone by a town of this size. In addition to the increased number coming from outside three of our families have contributed to the week's increase. Mr. and Mrs. John Olson, a boy, Thursday; Mr. and Mrs. F. Buck, a girl, Friday; Mr. and Mrs. Martin Rockstad, a girl, Friday. It was not an extraordinary week for babies either. —A young daughter of John Jacobson living nine miles southwest of this city had a very narrow escape from being seriously if not fatally injured last Thursday. Several children were playing in the harvest-field when one of them hiding from her little friends sat down in the standing grain and was not seen by the driver on the reaper which approached with the cruel sickle leveling everything in its path. The child received a severe cut in the fleshy part of the left arm about five inches in length and almost severing the flesh from the bone. Dr. Grundy was called and dressed the injured member by putting in twenty well adjusted stitches. The child was brought to this city and thanks to the skilled care of physician and nurse, has so far recovered as to be able to be taken home.

McIntosh Items.

From our regular correspondent.

McIntosh, August 29.—The time has again arrived when the busy farmer has laid low his grain, and gathered it in shocks. No more this season may we hearken to the buzzing and rattling of the busy binders, for they have performed their true and faithful work. Instead, we shall now be startled from our sweet slumbers by the weird shriek of the threshing engines. Threshing out of shocks would have commenced last Monday in good earnest if the rain had not prevented. The yield throughout the Thirteen Towns will be nearly as good as last year, averaging from 17 to 24 bushels per acre. But there will be more wheat marketed this year than last, because the average is about one-fifth larger.

Never before in the history of the Thirteen Towns has harvesting been rushed as it was this year. It did not seem to take more than a week before the sickle had swept the virgin wheat fields, and where the traveler's eye had gazed upon a broad expanse of waving grain, as it swayed in the morning breeze like billows upon the endless ocean, a week later you would behold only a field of stubble; and well may they be in a hurry, too, for they know not what destructive agencies may ruin their crop before they have it securely stored in their granaries, or weighed on the scales at the elevators. For on the growth of Nature's produce depends the farmers' fortune.

Our merchants were as busy as ants last Saturday, trying to supply the farmers with necessaries for threshing, which would have commenced last Monday if it had not rained.

Halvor Halvorson and David Anderson fired up their new Buffalo Pitts and moved up on Guy Pratt's farm last Saturday, where they threshed out a few loads of oats, just to try the machine. Halvor said he felt a little nervous when the thing commenced to stir. The yield of oats was large.

Andrew Nelson and Sam Berg of Hill River took out a new Case engine, which arrived on car from Crookston last Saturday. Andrew says there are no less than six threshing rigs in the town of Hill River this fall, and to judge by that bundles will be short lived in that part of the conntry.

Dr. McEachran's new store building is fast nearing completion, and will be one of the finest structures in town. As soon as it is ready Gunder Horst, formerly of Grand Forks, who has rented it, will take posession and open up a general merchandise store.

Ole Bjorge's new drug store is also nearly completed. Ole says it will be, when fully completed, as fine a building as was ever erected by human skill. No wonder Ole has grown a foot taller in the last two weeks, and may now be seen promenading the streets with a Prince Albert coat and stove pipe hat, trying to catch on. Says he is going to get married as soon as cold weather sets in. Good luck to you, Ole.

Ole Olson from Hay Seed, Wisconsin, is boarding with mine host Solberg, proprietor of the Hotel Duluth.

Dr. McEachran and Charley Lanman are the only two who have invested in bycicles in McIntosh, and they may now be seen skimming our level streets and country roads, as lightly as the swallows on the wing. They are both excellent riders, but I think Lanman a little the best acrobat, as was shown on our street some time ago when he took a header right through a farmer's wagon wheel. Besides, he is teaching some of our fair damsels how to ride. Charley is quite popular with the girls, you know.

Mr. Cronquist, one of P. Johnson's genial clerks, has moved into his new and elegantly furnished cottage on Broadway. Says he feels more at home now, since he got settled in the world.

John Pederson, our smiling postmaster, had to be put under the influence of chloroform the other day while undergoing the painful operation of having a tooth extracted. However, the chattering of John's teeth from fear while on his way to the Doctor's office loosened the tooth and the sudden twist of the Doctor's skillful hand made the operation an easy matter. Isn't John gritty, though?

The first Congregational church of McIntosh is nearly finished, and is as pretty a church as ever was built in any little town. It will be dedicated as soon as Rev. Northrop's successor arrives. Rev. Northrop is going to leave in a short time. He has been an efficient minister and has done more good work in this field during his short stay here than all his predecessors. And his numerous friends and adherents deeply mourn his departure, and all join in wishing him success and prosperity in his new field of labor.

The farmers' elevator will be commenced as soon as the lumber arrives, which will be soon. This is going to be the largest and most expensive elevator built on the Fosston branch; but the farmers and business men of McIntosh have subscribed liberally, and the company have between three and four hundred shares of $10 each. It will be located near the crossing, east of the Red River Valley elevator. The contract has been let to Ole Espeland, of McIntosh.

Rumor hath it that another wedding, and probably two or three of them may occur soon. It certainly looks as if some of our benevolent bachelors are going to be converted and join the world of benedicts. Just go ahead, boys, we need some such occasions to revive and stir up the band.

McIntosh can now pride itself on having one of the best barbers in the county, and you won't see any Rip Van Winkles on our streets any longer.

Another special school meeting is called for the 1st of September, for the purpose of designating a site for the new school house that the district has bonded $4,000 to build this fall. Give it a unanimous support, fellow citizens, as every true and patriotic citizen should. We are in much need of a school house and it ought to be located on a more proper and convenient site than where the old one is.

Something New in Train Equipment to Chicago.

The "Limited" train on "The Northwestern Line," leaving Minneapolis 7:25 p. m., St. Paul 8:25 p. m., and arriving Milwaukee 7:25 a. m., Chicago 9:30 a. m., is now equipped with Wagner Compartment Cars in addition to Standard Sleepers, and also with Buffet-Smoking and Library Cars.

This is the finest equipped train in America, is the only train of its kind west of Chicago, and no extra fare is charged on this "North-Western Limited."

By "The Northwestern Line" you also have advantage of fast day train, leaving Minneapolis 7:15 a. m. and St. Paul 7:55 a. m., arriving Milwaukee 7:55 p. m., Chicago 9:35 p. m., also an afternoon train, leaving Minneapolis 4:35 p. m., St. Paul 5:15 p. m., arriving Chicago 8:00 a. m.

"The Northwestern Line" is also the only Pullman Car Line from St. Paul and Minneapolis to Sioux City, Omaha, Kansas City, Duluth and Ashland.

For luxury and comfort, best equipment and road bed, secure tickets via "The Northwestern Line," they are on sale at all stations. Illustrated Map Folder free on application to

T. W. Teasdale,
Gen. Pass. Agent,
St. Paul, Minn.

Indigestion. Dizziness. Take Beecham's Pills.

The Boston board of health, in a tour of inspection at night in the North End tenement house district, found nine persons sleeping in one room, with windows and doors tightly closed.

SHE RIDES LIKE MEN.

A Young Western Woman Gallops Man Fashion in the Streets of Boston.

The lady who may be seen riding astride a horse in Washington street has such a penchant for horseback riding that nothing short of an average of twenty miles a day will satisfy her. She comes from the west, and, owning four western horses who are not accustomed to the style of horseback riding most eastern ladies adopt, she has to use the style of western ladies or have her horses eat their heads off in their stalls.

Her name is Miss Nettie Littell, and just now she is living in Roxbury. This is not the first time she has visited Boston, for she has ridden all over the eastern as well as the western states. She is likely to become quite a familiar sight on the country roads, because she is passionately fond of horseback riding. She is an apostle of the divided skirt on horseback, and nothing could induce her to ever ride any other way. She has seen too many accidents caused by the "mock modest" riding habit, as she calls it, to ever wear one. She says riding on a side saddle gives a horse the saddle gall and then a "setfast," something which affects the horse's back like frightful corns or bunions on a man's feet. Women get curvature of the spine by it, too, and a ten mile ride will use them up so that they cannot ride again for a week.

Miss Littell, on the contrary, rides from 10 to 100 miles every day of her life, and is so confident of her ability as a rider that she is willing to challenge any man but one in the country, or any two women, to ride horseback across the continent, 3,530 miles, for any reasonable purse. One of the women can ride half way and the other the rest. Miss Littell can saddle and ride all but the most vicious horses. She rode in Manchester, N. H., in November, 1890, the vicious running horse Billy H, which had just thrown his jockey owner, Billy Harrington, three times, the latter thereby losing the race. In this same running meeting she won first prize in one race for women, in another such race being passed only because the horse in front of her threw his rider, who had a side saddle, dragging the woman for half a mile on her back and nearly killing her.

Concerning the relative modesty of the two dresses Miss Littell says:

"No lady can go riding on a side saddle without showing every line of her figure, whether it is good or bad, while my heavily kilted divided skirts hide every part of mine. All the ladies in Colorado ride like this. You could not tell if you saw me walking in my riding dress on the street that I had not an ordinary skirt on, so heavy is it. It is a matter of health too. I have scores of letters from doctors commending my good sense and judgment.

"About my horses. I have four now, a mustang which I bought because he was being ill used, but do not ride, and three others which I do ride—Creole Kitty, Buckskin and Black Jim. I ride Buckskin mostly. He is very ugly. I defy any man to go into the stall with him and come out unhurt. Buckskin kicks at every one but me when in his stall. I cannot ride Black Jim around here, because I often stop and children touch my horse. Black Jim kicks at any one who touches him. I will give Black Jim to any one who is not a western person who can take and saddle and ride him. I can do it. Creole Kitty is very kind and gentle.

"I use a western saddle, and ride in the sensible western style, not jumping up and down like a monkey with the horse because 'it's English.' I can lay a silver dollar on a saddle, sit on it and start at a walk, go into a trot and then into a lope, or gallop, as you call it, and not drop the dollar. That shows how closely I sit on my horse. It is by far the easiest way to ride.

"My dress is as follows: A velvet cap or broad brim felt hat, with black ostrich feather; a black jacket, cutaway, with braid a la militaire; a waist of white flannel and tie to match, a heavy double kilted, bifurcated skirt, walking length, knickerbockers and high top boots. Nothing is ever revealed by this costume, no matter how fast I ride or how strong the wind is blowing."—Boston News.

Paint at the Races.

Perhaps the most remarkable feature at the Derby was the large number of pretty women who were present, and the amount of enamel and paint which they employed to enhance their attractions. If the present fashion of embellishing nature by the adventitious use of rouge and lampblack continues, a new opening for the younger sons will arise, and we may soon hope to behold among us a millionaire whose origin will be due to his having invested our womankind with artificial attractions.—London Truth.

A Vacation on a Bicycle.

—A school teacher of Yellow Springs, O., will take her summer outing by traveling on a bicycle from her home to Davenport, Ia. The trip will require twenty-five days and she will doubtless create something of a sensation all along the line. A bicycle party would certainly be an enjoyable and an inexpensive way to spend a two weeks' or three weeks' vacation.—New York Recorder.

Fifty Presents of One Kind.

History repeats itself, as everybody knows, in kind if not in manner. Brides used to receive sirup jugs, pickle casters and butter knives ad libitum. Now it is tea balls and souvenir spoons that are showered like rice on them, and the other day a bride got by actual count fifty-two cushions among her wedding gifts.—New York Times.

Mrs. Bedford Fenwick Coming.

Mrs. Bedford Fenwick will proceed to Chicago in September as the representative of the women's section of the royal commission, to make final arrangements concerning their exhibits at the World's Columbian exposition at Chicago next year.—Nursing Record.

WHY ONE WOMAN WOULD VOTE.

Several Forcible Reasons Why the Ballot Should Not Be Withheld.

I desire the suffrage because I am a human being and am concerned in the welfare of the race. The "human question" lies at the foundation of the "woman question." The uplifting of the race is the divine problem for whose solution Christ gave the golden rule. Any restriction upon the development of woman breaks that rule and hinders the progress of the race. Mankind cannot rise above the mothers of mankind. Any measure therefore which liberates and develops the powers of woman is of universal value. Whether suffrage be a right or a privilege, if it is of value to one-half of mankind it is of value to all.

To continue one-half of the race in tutelage after they have reached years of majority is bad for both parties to the transaction. Train your boy to swim, but keep your girl in ignorance; if they fall into deep water, what? The chivalrous boy seizes the girl perhaps, or the despairing girl grasps the boy, and in either event they go down. Better teach both to swim and breast the waves of life with equal stroke.

The human question will never be answered by imposing equal burdens upon mankind and denying equal rights. Men and women must rise or fall together. Hence the advocate of woman suffrage is no special pleader, whether a Plato or a Lincoln. His is that ideal republic, yet to be realized, a government not of men, by men, for men; but of the people, by the people, for the people.

I am a suffragist because I am a woman and believe in the equality of the sexes. I find in nature a threefold equation—physical, intellectual, moral. Woman, it is true, has smaller bones and weaker sinews than man, but so has the nightingale than the ostrich, the deer than the elephant. Woman does not (as a rule) carry the hod or handle the pickax, but she does turn the rolling pin and ply the needle. She offsets strength with delicacy, prowess with endurance. If not the burden bearer, she is the pain bearer of the world. Though she does not build pyramids or fight battles, she brings forth men-children and nerves them to be heroes.

The equality of woman being conceded, the right of man to legislate for her must be denied as an act both inexpedient and unjust. Inexpedient, because it deprives legislation of one-half of the mental and moral force which should seek that channel; unjust, because it always has been true, and from the necessities of logic forever must be true, that "the unrepresented or misrepresented class goes to the wall." As a single case in point within a few years, a large body of Christian women in person petitioned the mayor of Chicago to right a flagrant wrong, and were met with the sneer, "You have no votes," while he turned a respectful ear to the wrongdoers who had elected him to office.

It is an axiom of history that no class can legislate fairly for a subject class. In spite of the fact that through the agitation of suffragists during the last twenty-five years many laws unjust to women have been repealed, we have only to turn the leaves of our statute books today to prove that men, as a class, fail to treat fairly their political inferiors. Such injury and insult would be impossible if women had an equal voice in government.

I am a suffragist because I am a Christian, responsible to my God. As an accountable being already standing before God's judgment bar, erected in her own soul, woman is bound to seek her own highest development. The conscientious exercise of suffrage is a moral educator. The woman who votes will study history as one who is making history, civil government as a citizen; logic and morals as a thinker who must act.—Ella G. Ives in Stock and Home.

Rich Women at Summer Resorts.

The rich woman at the pleasure resorts shows the audacity of a Stanley in the interior of Africa by her freaks and fancies of dress. One morning she will appear late at breakfast with a short skirt, shirt waist and suspenders. In the same afternoon she will don a heavy, rich brocade velvet, a la pompadour, with voluminous draperies and gorgeous ornamentation, and in the evening a butterfly costume of thin gauze adorns her shapely figure, while her hair is arranged in a pillar of fluffs and frizzes, which much resemble the careless coiffure of the South Sea islander.

She has a hunting costume of green and russet brown, trimmed with leather and oxidized silver passementerie; a yatching costume of blue and white serge; a bicycle rig, which she wears when no bicycle is in sight; a billiard dress of royal purple and gold, a pedestrian dress, gotten up a la Anglaise, and hundreds of others, of which an unfashionable vocabulary will not allow expression. Bless her heart, she wants all the men to admire her, compliment her, flatter her and fall in love with her, and, although she places herself in ridicule to gain her end, I think in the main she is striving in a good cause.—Buffalo Enquirer.

She Wants to Be a Jockey.

Frances Milfred would like to be a jockey. She is from Missouri and knows how to handle a horse. She is now visiting Chicago.

Miss Milfred is a brown haired, slim young lady of pleasant features.

"In the first place, my weight is all right," she says. "I weigh just 110, and could train down if necessary. With me it is a serious matter.

"I want to do something to make a living, and I believe I would make a good jockey. Ever since I can remember I have been accustomed to handling horses. Four years ago I was counted the best rider in St. Joe, and once I won a race at a county fair.

"Do you see any reason why a young lady should not be a jockey? No; neither do I. My folks would object of course; but if I don't succeed here I'm going east and try it."—Chicago Letter.

A Hint from Paris.

"Tell Maude," said a lady writing from Paris the other day, "that a gored skirt trimmed with a ruffle or two, a simple waist with a band of ribbon around it, four loops of ribbon at the back and a band of ribbon with a small rosette at the back of the neck, and very large, full sleeves coming just below the elbow form the details of the very latest gown. Absolute simplicity for girls is 'de rigeur,' and in that and in the cut and finish of their gowns lie their greatest claim to distinction."—New York Tribune.

In Memory of a Brave Nurse.

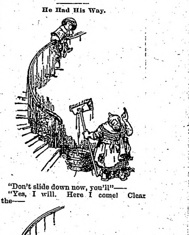
The cross which has been put up in Ayr cemetery to the memory of Nurse Coates, who died last December in the county infirmary of typhus, is of blue Ayrshire stone, and bears the inscription, "In Loving Memory of Letitia Coates," with the date of her death and birth. She was only twenty-two years old, and contracted the fever while in attendance on the typhus patients. The cost of the grave and cross has been given by the directors and friends of the hospital.—London Hospital.

Two hundred women are employed by Edison in working at the more delicate details of his electrical inventions.

The empress of Germany is a very skillful violinist and often plays at the after dinner concerts at the palace.

The broken and distorted foot of a Chinese lady is called a "golden lily" by Chinese admirers of such distortions.

He Had His Way.



"Don't slide down now, you'll"——
"Yes, I will. Here I come! Clear the—— —"TRA-A-C-K!"

Mortgage Sale.

(First publication Thursday, Aug. 25, 1892.)
(Last publication Thursday, Oct. 6, 1892.)

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a mortgage containing power of sale, dated December 28th, 1888, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Polk County, Minnesota, December 31st, 1888 in book 42 of mortgages, page 17, whereby John Boden, unmarried, mortgagor, mortgaged to The Middlesex Banking Company, mortgagee, the east half of the southwest quarter and the west half of the southeast quarter of Section thirty-one, (31) in Township one hundred and forty-eight, (148) of Range forty-one. (41) in said Polk County, by which default the power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding at law has been instituted to recover the debt remaining secured thereby, or any part thereof, and there is claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date hereof, $365.65, to which amount should be added the taxes on said property paid by said mortgagee, amounting, with interest as provided in said mortgage, to $42.12, making the total amount claimed to be due at the date hereof on said mortgage $407.77.

Now notice is hereby given that by virtue of said power said mortgage will be foreclosed and said premises sold at public auction, by the Sheriff of said county or his deputy, on October 8th, 1892, at ten o'clock a. m. at the front door of the Court House, in Crookston, in said county to pay said debt, interest, attorney's fees and disbursements allowed by law.

Dated August 15th, 1892.

THE MIDDLESEX BANKING COMPANY, (Seal.)
By Robt. N. Jackson, President.
Mortgagee.

H. C. Gilbert & Co., Attorneys,
St. Paul, Minn.
[19-25]

Mortgage Sale.

(First publication Aug. 25, 1892.)
(Last publication Oct. 6, 1892.)

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of one hundred dollars ($100) and the sum of seventy-five dollars ($75) and interest on said sums from the 9th day of October, 1886, at the rate of 10 per cent per annum, which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Frederick Bleier to Francis J. Detling, bearing date the 9th day of October, A. D. 1886, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 2d day of December, A. D. 1886, at 9 o'clock a. m., in book 22 of mortgages, on page 96, which mortgage, together with the debt thereby secured, was duly assigned by said Francis J. Detling, mortgagee, to Joseph Z. Perron by written assignment, dated the 28th day of February, A. D. 1891, and recorded in the office of said Register of Deeds on the 24th day of March, 1891, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book 56 of mortgages, on page 119; and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: Lots numbered one, (1) two, (2) and three, (3) in block numbered forty, (40) in Kretzschmar's Addition to Red Lake Falls, Polk county, Minnesota, according to the plat thereof on file in the Register of Deeds office in and for said County and State, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 8th day of October, A. D. 1892, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated August 20th, A. D. 1892.

JOSEPH Z. PERRON,
Assignee of Mortgagee.

P. G. Falardeau,
Attorney for Assignee,
Red Lake Falls, Minn.
[19-25]

DEFECTIVE PAGE

REACHES ENGLAND.

TWO FATAL CASES OF CHOLERA OCCUR AT GRAVESEND.

The Victims Came Direct From Hamburg—The Health Authorities Blamed. The Scourge at Hamburg and Other Points.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—There is now no doubt that the cholera has at last entered England. The disease was brought here by the steamer Gemma, which reached Gravesend Thursday from Hamburg. It was reported that the steamer was infected, but the authorities, after examining the passengers, allowed them to land. A few hours afterwards two aliens who had arrived on the Gemma were taken sick. They were immediately removed to the hospital at Gravesend, where the doctors

Pronounced Their Malady Cholera.

In spite of everything that was done for them they died shortly after they were were admitted. This fact has caused considerable anxiety, but there is no panicky feeling. The local government board and the health authorities of the various English ports will see to it that a more strict inspection is made of vessels and passengers from infected ports. The report of the death of two patients at Gravesend was telegraphed throughout the country and caused the health authorities in the various ports to be on the alert for arrivals from places known to be infected with cholera. The steamer Laura, plying between Hamburg and Lynn-Regis, an English port on the Great Ouse, has just arrived at Lynn. She was boarded by the health officials, who found two cholera suspects on board. The vessel was at once

Ordered to Put Back to Sea.

The officers and passengers protested against such treament, but the health officers were obdurate and positively refused to let a single person land from the steamer.

Sixty passengers on board the Hamburg-American steamer Columbia, from New York, which arrived at Southampton, changed their minds about proceeding to Hamburg when they learned of the cholera epidemic there. They left the Columbia when they found that the company had ordered that she proceed no further, and took passage for Flushing, in the Netherlands.

SECURED A FOOTHOLD.

Efforts of English Officials to Keep Out Cholera Prove Fruitless.

LONDON, Aug. 30.—If all the deaths that are being reported from Asiatic cholera are true, there is no doubt of Great Britain's having a visitation of the dreadful scourge. From Gravesend, Swansea, Glasgow and Dundee, towns in England, Scotland and Wales, reports come of death from the disease, showing that the efforts of the health officials to keep it out of the country have proved fruitless. And now comes a report that a person has died from Asiatic cholera at Bolton, the large manufacturing town which lies twelve miles northwest of Manchester. The place is one of the principal seats of the English cotton manufacture and thousands of mill operatives live there. With the assertions and denials made regarding the presence of cholera in England, it will be hard to decide whether the cholerine cases that have occured have been true Asiatic cholera or not. In some quarters it is positively asserted that there is doubt that true cholera has effected an entrance into the country, while on the other hand it is just as positively asserted that the disease is nothing but simple cholera, from which no danger need be apprehended.

A WEEK'S DEATHS.

Over a Thousand Cholera Victims at Hamburg in the Past Seven Days.

HAMBURG, Aug. 30.—During the week which ended at noon there has been 2,837 cases of cholera in this city, 1,087 of them having been fatal. The authorities express the opinion that a climax has been reached and that a steady abatement of the disease may now be expected. Their reasons for this opinion are not given and it is thought they are merely trying to allay the fears of the people.

The sanitary officers announce that the spread of cholera in Hamburg is directly traceable to the use of the Elbe water for drinking. The water is filthy, they say, and so impregnated with poisonous matter that it constantly menaces the city with epidemics. The presence of Russian emigrants in the city is pronounced to have been but secondary in importance in the spreading of the plague.

The assurances of the municipal authorities that the cholera has done its worst have not received much credence. Although no general exodus of citizens is apparent, the railroads during the day carried 40 per cent. more passengers than their average. Most of the fugitives go to the coast.

ABSOLUTE QUARANTINE.

Officials at Washington Discuss Measures to Prevent Introduction of Cholera.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—The government officials feel satisfied that they will be able to pevent the bringing of cholera into this country from European ports. They have taken, they say, every precaution to prevent the spread of the disease. They still regard the situation as one requiring stringent measures and this will be adopted. A consultation was held during the afternoon between Secretary of State Foster and Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Spaulding. Later they sent for the officials of the marine hospital bureau and discussed the question of absolute quarantine of vessels plying between this country and the infected ports of Europe. It was not deemed necessary at this time to take such action, but it is more than probable that it will be done before many days. There is at least one official who strongly urges an absolute quarantine and he thinks it ought to be ordered at once. Speaking on this he said: "It is thirty-seven years since the United States has been visited by Asiatic cholera and those who remember it do not want another experience of the dreaded disease. No vessels should be allowed to enter American port from any port where cholera prevails and no question of inconvenience of teurists should enter into the matter. No vessels carrying rags or other material in which cholera is likely to be carried should be accepted from any port where the disease prevails, and lastly, special details of health officers should be made to guard the entry of tramp steamers at every sea port. This, and this alone, in my opinion will prevent the cholera from getting a hold in this country.

DANGER INCREASING.

Government Officials Recommend Cleanliness to Prevent Cholera.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—Government officials are fully alive to the added danger of introducing cholera into this country from Europe arising out of the fact that it has appeared in England on its journey westward. Acting Secretary Spaulding says that all the necessary regulations prescribing precautions against its introduction have been sent to government officials along the Atlantic seaboard and along the border, and the only thing to do now was to see that they were strictly enforced. If more stringent or better efforts than those now in force were suggested to him he would at once adopt them. Cities and individuals could do much in a sanitary sense in restraining the introduction of cholera by keeping their cities and premises free from garbage.

AT ROTTERDAM.

Another German City Reached in the Onward March of the Cholera.

ROTTERDAM, Aug. 27.—Every precaution has been taken to prevent the introduction of cholera here, but notwithstanding all the efforts of the authorities the disease has effected an entrance into the city. The first victim of the disease, a woman, died during the morning.

ENTITLED TO VOTE.

Indians Who Have Taken Lands in Severalty Are Full-Fledged Citizens.

GUTHRIE, O. T., Aug. 26.—The Indian bureau and the attorney general have decided that all Indians who have taken their lands in severalty are full-fledged citizens of the United States with all the rights and privileges of the same. Under this ruling over 3,000 Indians in Oklahoma who have had their lands allotted within the last year will be entitled to vote at the coming election. As over half of them are blanket Indians and unable to speak or understand a word of English, the various candidates will have a big job on their hands trying to secure votes. How they will vote no man can tell. The signs about the polls will be novel for the red man will insist on coming in the night before and camping in front of the voting places with his wives, pappooses and dogs.

Cattle Cases Postponed.

CHEYENNE, Wy., Aug. 22.—Of the forty-two men bailed in the cattle invasion cases all but eight failed to appear for trial during the morning. Attorneys for the defense declare that all their clients will be here for trial. The case was set for Jan. 2. Each man who responded to his name entered into a new bond for $40,000. All express disappointment over the postponement. None of them fear the result of the trial.

Bar Association Officers.

SARATOGA, Aug. 27.—The American Bar association has elected the following officers: President, J. Randolp Tucker, Virginia; secretary, Edward Ottis Hinkley, Maryland; treasurer, Francis Rowle, Philadelphia; executive committee, George A. Mercer, Savannah, Ga., Alfred Hemingway, Boston, Bradley G. Schley, Madison, Wis.

Daniel Dougherty Improving.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 28.—The condition of Daniel Dougherty is much improved. Dr. Wood states that his patient has improved steadily all day and that there is a fair chance of his recovery.

Health Officers Were Careless.

EDMONDS, Wash., Aug. 27.—Two deaths occurred at Snohomish City of smallpox. The health officer is investigating. The spread of the disease was due to the carelessness of the health officers.

LATEST MARKET REPORT.

St. Paul Union Stock Yards.

SOUTH ST. PAUL, Aug. 29, 1892.

HOGS—Strong. Range of prices, $5.00@5.05.

CATTLE—Steady. Prime steers, $3.40@3.60; good steers, $2.50@3.25; prime cows, $2.40@2.65; good cows, $1.75@2.75; common to fair cows, $1.00@1.75; light veal calves, $3.25@4.25; heavy calves, $2.00@3.00; stockers, $1.50@2.00; feeders $1.50@2.00; bulls, $1.00@1.75.

SHEEP—Steady. Muttons, $4.00; feeders, $3.00.

Receipts: Hogs, 100; cattle, 415; calves, 15; sheep, 260; horses, 46.

Minneapolis Grain.

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 29, 1892.

WHEAT—August closed, 74½c; September opening, 78c; highest, 78¾c; lowest, 73c; closing, 72½c; December opening, 75¾c; highest, 76½c; lowest, 75¾c; closing, 76c. On track—No. 1 hard, 79½c; No. 1 Northern, 79½c; No. 2 Northern, 68@72c.

Chicago Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, Aug. 29, 1892.

OPENING PRICES.

WHEAT—September, 76c.

CORN—September, 51¼c; October, 51¼c; May, 52c.

OATS—September, 34⅝c; October, 34⅝c; May, 37¾c.

PORK—September, $10.60; October, $10.70; January, $12.40.

LARD—September, $7.75.

SHORT RIBS—September, $7.70; October, $7.62½.

CLOSING PRICES.

WHEAT—September, 75@76¼c.

CORN—September, 51¼c; October, 51½c; May, 53½c.

OATS—September, 34½c; October, 34⅝c; May, 37½c.

PORK—September, $10.65; October, $10.72½; January, 12.50.

LARD—September, $7.80; October, $7.80; January, $7.07½.

SHORT RIBS—September, $7.80; October, $7.62½; January, $6.55.

"WORTH A GUINEA A BOX."

STILL ROLLING

St. Helens, England, is the seat of a great business.

BEECHAM'S PILLS are made there. They are a specific for all Nervous and Bilious Disorders arising from Weak Stomach, Impaired Digestion, Disordered Liver and all Female Ailments.

THEY ARE COVERED WITH A TASTELESS AND SOLUBLE COATING.

Of all druggists. Price 25 cents a box.
New York Depot, 365 Canal St.

Mortgage Sale.

(First publication Aug. 25th, 1892.)
(Last publication Oct. 6, 1892.)

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a mortgage containing power of sale dated July 22d, 1889, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Polk county, Minnesota, August 19th, 1889, in book 42 of mortgages, page 105, whereby Ole H. Rustan and Barbo Rustan, his wife, mortgagors, mortgaged to The Middlesex Banking Company, mortgagee, the south half of the northeast quarter and the north half of the southeast quarter of Section thirteen, (13) in Township one hundred and forty-nine, (149) of Range forty-one, (41) in said Polk County, by which default the power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding at law has been instituted to recover the debt remaining secured thereby, or any part thereof, and there is claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date hereof $348.77, to which amount should be added the taxes on said property paid by said mortgagee, amounting, with interest as provided in said mortgage, to $56.47, making the total amount claimed to be due at the date hereof on said mortgage $400.24.

Now notice is hereby given that by virtue of said power said mortgage will be foreclosed and said premises sold at public auction, by the Sheriff of said county or his deputy, on October 8th, 1892, at ten o'clock a. m. at the front door of the Court House in Crookston, in said county, to pay said debt, interest, attorney's fees and disbursements allowed by law.

Dated August 15th, 1892.

THE MIDDLESEX BANKING COMPANY, (Seal.)
By Robt. N. Jackson, President,
Mortgagee.

H. C. GILBERT & Co., Attorneys
[19-25] St. Paul, Minn.

Ripans Tabules are always ready.
Ripans Tabules cure constipation.
Ripans Tabules cure dyspepsia.

First National Bank
OF CROOKSTON

PAID IN CAPITAL, - $100,000
SURPLUS, - - - $14,200

Interest on time deposits. Faithful attention to Collections and prompt remittance.

GEO. Q. ERSKINE, President.
WM. ANGLIM, Vice President.
CHAS. E. SAWYER, Cashier.

DIRECTORS:
Wm. Anglim, K. D. Chase, R. D. Childs
Geo. Q. Erskine. J. R. McKinnon. A. A. Miller
E. M. Walsh. Chas. E. Sawyer. W. H. Crosby

Work Horses - - - and Mares.

FOR GOOD, SOLID WORK HORSES and MARES, go to

M. R. BROWN,

The old reliable dealer, who has sold horses in this county since 1878, and who is always on hand to make his guaranty good. Every man who ever sold horses here is ready (when he sells) to guaranty, but later, if you happen to want him to make his guaranty good you can't most always sometimes find him ready to make his recommend good. He handles only good young horses and has sold more than any dealer in the county. He is now prepared to supply the demand for good teams—he handles no other—and guaranty them just as recommended. Before you buy you will do well to call at

Brown's New Stables,

Main Street, one door north of the old M. E. church building.

M. LeGUEE.
Veterinary Surgeon.

Residence and office on Jerome's Addition.
CROOKSTON, - - - MINN.

JOHN CROMB,
Attorney-at-Law,
SECOND STREET. CROOKSTON

Town Clerks.

The following is a list of the town clerks for the several towns in Polk county:

Andover,	E M Bivins	Crookston
Angus,	A B Carleton	Angus
Black River,	P A Eckstrom	Wylie
Bray,	Albert Wickstrom	Wylie
Badger	P N Savalrud	Sletten
Brandsvold.	Ole Nelson	Fosston
Belgium,	Henry Biever	Euclid
Brislet,	A P Frank	Warren
Bygland,	Thos. Benson	Fisher
Crookston,	E O Flanders	Crookston
Crookston, city,	E C Carruth	Crookston
Columbia,	R H Carr	Columbia
Chester,	O J Mattson	Lindsay
Emardville,	Peter Anderson	Emard
Euclid,	F Tiedt, Jr.,	Euclid
Eden,	Nerl A Skele	Olga
Fairfax,	Wm Himmelsback	Crookston
Farley,	Mark Congnon	Warren
Fanny,	Walter Latta	Buffington
Fisher,	Halvor Gunderson	Fisher
Fisher, vil.,	John Gleason	Fisher
Gd Forks,	John McCoy	E G Forks
Gd Forks, city,	John McCoy	E G Forks
Garfield,	Iver J Ingebretson	Fertile
Garden,	John Hanson	Ringdal
Gentilly,	H F Gondron,	Gentilly
Gervais,	John Deforge	R L Falls
Grand Park,	E E Abbott	Mentor
Goderey,	D T Mitchell,	Maple Bay
Hammond,	Ernest Hanna	Caookston
Higdem,	Ole Hendrickson	E G Forks
Hill River,	Fred S Syeverson	Lindsay
Huntsville,	O Osmundson	Mallory
Hubbard,	Frank Hanson,	Neilsville
Keystone,	D E Geddes	E G Forks
Kerlsonville,	Fred Benoit	Gentilly
King,	K C Norsving	McIntosh
Knute,	O H Dale	Erskine
Lake Pleasant,	Jos Perrault	R L Falls
Lambert,	Samuel Gebcan,	Lamber
Liberty,	Nelson Clementson	Fertile
Lessor,	H Helgeson	Ovetia
Lowell,	Ole Christianson,	Crookston
Louisville,	Louis Huot	Huot
Nesbit,	Robert Nesbit	Mallory
Norden,	O J Tweet	Tweet
North,	S T Johnson	T R Falls
Numedal,	Olaf Larson	Warren
Onsted,	W A Marin	Melvin
Parnell,	Thos Filban	Crookston
Poplar River,	J B Hebert	Brooks
Polk Centre,	Wm Wylie,	Wylie
Queen,	Hans L Houkom	Fosston
R L F, village,	August Herard,	R L Falls
Red Lake Falls,	Ildaig Baril	R L Falls
Reis,	D C Hallock	Edna
River Falls,	K C Gigstad	St. Hilaire
Rocksbury,	P Englestad	St. Hilaire
Roome,	P Boukon	Neby
Rosebud,	M E Randkler	Fosston
Russia,	Orens Simmons	Crookston
Sanders,	Nils K Anderson	St. Hilair
Sandsville,	Henry Nelson	E G Forkse
St. Hilaire,	L J Johnson	St. Hilaire
Sletten,	Ingebret Larson	Winger
Sullivan,	P A Hotvedt	E G Forks
Tabor,	F J Cernousek	Tabor
Terrebonne,	Edonor Perruse	Terrebonne
Tilden,	S J Furan	Dugdale
Tynsid,	A O Stortroen	Neby
Vineland,	John Thompson	Neby
Winger,	Albert Johnson	Winger
Woodside,	Joseph Tagley	Woodside
Wyandotte,	O J Johnson	St. Hilaire
Rhinehart,	Oscar Winck	E G Forks
Thief River Falls	C J Knox	T R Falls

G. G. HENAULT
Practical Dentist,
SECOND STREET,
CROOKSTON, - - MINN
OFFICE IN DOBSON'S BLOCK,

☞ All work in my line skilfully and promptly performed. Give me a call.
G. G. HENAULT.

W A. ROBERTSON
D. D. S.
Graduate of Dental Department of the University of Maryland.
OPERATIVE AND MECHANICAL
DENTIST.

N. B. Nitrous Oxide Gas, (Laughing Gas) administered for the painless extraction of teeth.

OFFICE IN McKINNON BLOCK.

NEW BARBER SHOP.
On Main St. C. E. MISNER, Prop.
Invites your patronage. Everything in the very latest style of the art.

RAZORS HONED.

If you desire your Razor Honed and cannot bring it, send it to me with 30 cents and your name and address and I will hone and return it.
Yours Respectfully,
C. E. MISNER.

KOPS BRO'S
105 Third Street,
GRAND FORKS, N. DAKOTA

PIANOS, ORGANS

WEBER, HAINES BROS., KURTZMANN, MATHUSHEK, McCAMMON PIANOS, Estey and Chicago Cottage Organs. New Upright Pianos from $250 to $1,000, on terms of $10 to $25 per month. New Organs from $60 to $250 on terms of $5 to $10 per month.

Satisfaction guanteed. Write for catalogue and prices. KOPS BROS.
Grand Forks, N. D.

ATTENTION, FARMERS!

If you are in need of a Mower or Binder, please call and see us. We have the celebrated Champion Mowers and Binders.

☞ Gearing and Pitman in Mowers Warranted never to wear out.

S. L. COLLINS & CO., Cor. Main and Fourth Sts. CROOKSTON.

TRY PEAKE,
THE MAIN STREET HARNESS MAKER,
FOR BARGAINS.

Prices Greatly Reduced
ON ALL
Summer Goods,
Summer Clothing,
Light Weight Suits,
Light Weight Underwear
AND Light Weight Shirts.

Everything in our Store at Greatly Reduced Prices.

STRAW HATS AT COST.

BOSTON ONE PRICE CLOTHING HOUSE,
MOSSEFIN & LINDELL, Props.

Great Reduction Sale!
Of White Goods, Embroideries, Challies,
AND
All Summer Goods!
FOR THE
NEXT TWO WEEKS,

Also bargains in Boots and Shoes and Groceries of all kinds.

If you have Wool, Shake Root, Eggs or Butter we will allow you the highest market prio in trade.

[OPERA HOUSE BLOCK, Crookston, Minn.] A. STURE.

You Can Buy Reliable
AGRICULTURAL MACHINER
OF
SYLVESTER & FINSETH,
CHEAPER AND BETTER

Than anywhere. We handle Buckeye and Osborne Binders with all ex for same, and Twine. Buckeye and Imperial Mowers with extras. Buck and Monitor Rakes, Eli, Oliver and Bradley Gang Plows, Stubble and Brea ing Plows, the Standard Rotary Shuttle Sewing Machine, Nichols & Shepa New Vibrator Threshing Machine. Also the Jackson, Mitchell an Favorite Wagons, the Enterprise Buggies, Spring Wagons and Carts on all of which we can undersell Grand Forks and other places. We also carry everything that can be had in any first class Hardware Store and invite everybody to call and see us at the corner of Broadway and Fletcher Sts.

SYLVESTER & FINSETH, Crookston, Minn,

Crookston Business College.
and INSTITUTE OF SHORTHAND.

DEPARTMENTS:—Commercial Shorthand, Typewriting and English.
TEACHERS:—Benj. A. Strawbridge, J. M. Latham and L. E. Gossman.
Summer Term began Monday, June 6th, 1892. Fall Term begins Monday, October 3rd, 1892. Send for new Catalogue.

CROOKSTON BUSINESS COLLEGE, Crookston, Minn.

A GREAT OFFER.
THE
Polk County Journal
Will be sent to any address, from now till after the campaign,
FOR
50 CENTS.

If You are a Republican

You should take THE JOURNAL and keep posted on what the Republican party is doing. THE JOURNAL will give from 3 to 5 columns of Republican political matter weekly, and you should keep yourself informed on the questions at issue and the movements of the party.

If You Are not a Republican

You should take THE JOURNAL so that you may see what the Republicans are doing and get the Republican side of the question as well as your own.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

FARM & GARDEN

SOFT SHELLED EGGS.

The Value of Oyster Shells as a Source of Material for Eggshells.

Soft shelled eggs arise from several causes, the most common being the want of material to form shell where birds have only earth or grass or a paved yard. Another cause is overfeeding with rich, soft, stimulating diet. The remedy is of course less of soft food and more shell forming substances, such as powdered eggshells, grit, lime, etc.

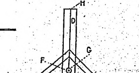
To test the value of oyster shells as a source of material for eggshells rather than as a substance whose value lies solely in furnishing grit, as is claimed by some, experiments were made at the New York station with six 1-year-old Leghorn hens, three of which were fed coarse ground oyster shells and three coarse broken glass instead. Both lots were treated and fed alike, except as above stated.

As a result it is said no other conclusion seems possible than that the eggshells were constructed from material supplied in large part by the oyster shells. The lot receiving pounded glass did not lay as well as the other, and two of the hens became sick, but recovered after a few days. The sickness is believed to have been due to the excessive amount of glass swallowed. An unlimited supply of pounded glass has been attended with no bad result when the food and other grit available to the fowls contained an abundance of lime, but when the food was deficient in lime and no other grit was attainable hens ate an injuriously large amount of glass.

In conclusion, the feeding of oyster shells during the laying season, where they can be cheaply obtained, is recommended. One pound will contain lime enough for about seven dozens of eggs. Fine gravel containing limestone will probably as well supply the deficiency of lime in most foods, but the use of some sharper grit with it may be of advantage. Long or sharp splinters of glass or dry bone should be avoided. For hens the size of particles of grit had better be larger than that of a kernel of wheat and should be smaller than that of a kernel of corn.

A Draining Level.

The illustration shows a form of level for evening the bottom of a drain, which a correspondent of The Country Gentleman describes: "It is made in the form of an inverted T, and the bottom board B is just 1 rod long, while the uppiece C D may be 4 to 6 feet. It is well braced to make it true, and can be made of dry ¾-inch pine. The bottom of the level should be perfectly square, and the upright piece put on so that the plumb bob G hangs over F.



LEVEL FOR EVENING THE BOTTOM OF DRAINS.

"The line should be fastened to a piece of wood or nail at H to swing clear of the board. By tacking on a strip at M you can get any required grade to the bottom of the drain and at the same time measure it. If you want a fall of an inch to the rod tack an inch strip on the bottom, and when the plumb bob comes level you have the required grade."

Orchard Grass.

It was advised, at an Ohio Farmers' institute, that more attention be given to producing orchard grass. Among remarks on the subject were the following by one farmer:

When I sow clover I always sow orchard grass with it. It pays well, and clover will do for pasture for horses, cattle and swine. The orchard grass is a valuable adjunct in a clover field. If you intend cutting the clover for hay, the orchard grass is still strong and will stand a great deal of clover. It helps the clover, and I can make a better quantity of hay.

The proper time to sow orchard grass is when the weather gets warm in the spring. I can get a better stand along in April to the middle of May. If sown alone use two bushels of seed to the acre. When I sow clover I use about half a bushel.

Cottonseed Meal.

Good cottonseed meal is estimated to contain nutriment per 100 pounds equal to 318 pounds of cornmeal, or to 767 pounds of wheat bran. This estimate may be chemically correct, but we doubt if it is practically. Cottonseed meal is unquestionably one of our most valuable foods, but it is also a very dangerous food in ignorant or careless hands. Its complete value can never be realized while it is fed alone or as the only grain; it needs balancing even more than cornmeal. All such comparisons are misleading, because they tend to leave the impression that any one food can be safely omitted from a ration, provided a more nutritive food is substituted.—Jersey Bulletin.

The Bordeaux Mixture.

The old formula for Bordeaux mixture was as follows: Dissolve six pounds of copper sulphate in sixteen gallons of water; in another vessel slack four pounds of fresh lime in six gallons of water. When the lime mix- has cooled to the temperature of air, pour it slowly into the copper tion, mixing the two by constant ring. At the Ohio station the above been found effective when diluted fifty instead of twenty-two gallons, ordinarily recommended. Farmers' alletin, No. 7, department of agricul- ire, recommends a similar reduction n the strength of the mixture.

FERTILIZING PASTURE LANDS.

Effects of Artificial Manures on the Quality and Composition of Herbage.

In a summary of results gained by manurial experiments extending over two years on pasture lands in north Wales, it was concluded:

First—Phosphatic manures containing phosphoric acid in an easily assimilable condition are the most valuable artificial manures. Such manures encouraged a fine bottom growth of grass and clover herbage, and are therefore especially valuable in improving pasture land.

Second—Nitrate of soda largely increases the bulk of hay produced in the first year after application, but this result was not so apparent in the second year after application. Nitrate of soda tends to encourage the grasses and to bring the herbage earlier to maturity. Nitrate of soda has a deleterious effect on the crop that follows the one to which it is directly applied.

Third—Potash manure does not seem to have any great beneficial effect on this land.

Fourth—Bone meal, for at least two years after its application, is not suitable as a source of phosphoric acid for this land. Dissolved bones are much more efficacious.

Fifth—Superphosphate and basic slag are much more economical sources of phosphoric acid as a manure for this land than either bone meal or dissolved bones, and while both these manures give good results on the whole the economic advantages are largely in favor of basic slag of the best quality.

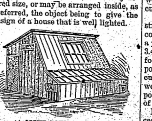
Sixth—A dressing of lime, even in the second season after its application, has had almost no effect in improving the quality of the bulk of the herbage.

Seventh—While different manures give different results, when applied to pasture, judicious manuring will improve and alter the composition of the herbage of a pasture, although a seed mixture is not sowed with the manures.

The grasses most abundant throughout the experimental field under consideration were crested dogstail, sweet vernal grass and other grasses of poor quality. In smaller quantities were such grasses as meadow foxtail, timothy, perennial rye grass, oat grass, meadow fescue and sheep fescue. In certain parts of the field also occurred clover and trefoil and numerous pernicious weeds. The nitrate of soda was applied to the plots April 23; the other manures were applied March 31.

A Well Lighted Poultry House.

The poultry house here depicted can, says Farm and Fireside, be of any desired size, or may be arranged inside, as preferred, the object being to give the design of a house that is well lighted.



A LIGHT POULTRY HOUSE.

The door at the end is for summer and is intended simply to prevent dogs or cats from entering. In winter it is removed and a close boarded door substituted. The entrance hole (A) is closed with slats at night, and is arranged so that the slats may be covered with a drop door if so desired. There is also a closed entrance at B, a ventilator being at C. The roof may be made flat and tarred paper used if desired.

Worms in Sweet Corn.

The pest known at the north as the green cornworm, or corn earworm, and in the south as the boll worm of cotton, is hatched from eggs deposited by the parent moth on the silk of young corn. As soon as hatched the young worms commence feeding on the silk and the green kernels, and when grown they descend into the earth a few inches, and in a short time come out again as moths. Their preferred food is corn, but the worm is often found on the green tomato and sometimes on other vegetables. In the south it is especially harmful on the young bolls of cotton. After the worm has entered the ear there is no remedy, and here it remains until the corn begins to harden. The moth is double brooded; the first brood attacks the early varieties of corn and the second the late kinds, leaving intermediate ones comparatively free. Hand picking the first brood of worms seems to lessen the injury from later attacks, and is the only remedy that is considered of much avail. The damage is usually limited to the upper end of the ear, and the sweet varieties of corn are the ones most commonly attacked. In the absence of any practical method for destroying the parent moths there is some satisfaction in being told that they probably have enough insect enemies to prevent their increase. An Ohio correspondent of Insect Life has given his experience while watching blackbirds, which were apparently pecking the grains of his corn when in the roasting ear stage. After an hour's investigation he became satisfied that the birds were hunting and destroying these worms.

News and Notes.

Out of 25,885 farms of Oregon, 8,150 are reported to be provided with facilities for irrigation.

The California Beekeepers' association is making preparations for a notable exhibit at the World's fair.

The Farmers' Review says that the United States produce 300,000,000 pounds of wool per annum, and we use twice that amount.

Several Astrakhan sheep from Persia have been sent to California for propagation by the agricultural department at Washington.

The Farmer's Monthly says: "Of the show games the black red game is easily first in numbers and in quality. The third week is a critical period in the life of the chick. The game is valuable as a cross on the Cochin or Brahma.

A USEFUL TOOL CHEST.

It Will Accommodate All the Carpenter's Tools Needed on a Farm.

The accompanying cut shows a tool chest which, according to the Philadelphia Farm Journal, is convenient to get tools from and will not let saws, chisels, etc., get dulled by contact. It is of ash, four feet high, and the upper drawers are used for nails, brads, screws, etc.

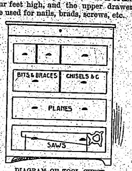


DIAGRAM OF TOOL CHEST.

Built 3¼ feet long by 20 inches broad, it will accommodate all the carpenter's tools needed on a farm, besides many other useful tools. The rack for saws is made of two short pieces of board set on edge in the bottom drawer, and slots cut into them for each saw. A bit rack and one for chisels can be made in the same way. The plane drawer should be partitioned for various kinds of planes. Such a chest should stand on casters and have handle bars at the ends. The top raises, giving room for plans and other drawings above the upper drawer. A smaller chest can be made of pine or whitewood, 1 foot deep by 18 inches high and 30 inches long. It should contain a square, saw, hatchet, rivet hammer, rivets, a brace and bit, chisels, including a cold chisel, mallet, a pair of pincers, spirit level, drawknife, screwdriver, screws, nails, monkey wrench and a variety of bolts. Such a chest can be carried anywhere in a wagon.

Effect of Pulling Fodder.

Stripping the leaves from the standing stalks of corn while in their best green condition is a quite common practice in some sections of the country. When properly cured and bound in bundles they make excellent white fodder, and it is generally considered that the pulling of the leaves causes no decrease in the production of grain. To test the question of loss or gain, experiments were made on sixteen plats at the Georgia station. From one-half of each the leaves were stripped and the fodder carefully cured and dried.

The plats from which the blades were stripped yielded 23.9 bushels of shelled corn per acre. The unstripped plats gave a yield of 27.3 bushels per acre, a loss of 3.4 bushels as the result of pulling the fodder. But the yield of fodder was 270 pounds per acre, at a cost for pulling and cutting of eighty-one cents. In other words, there was a loss equal to 190.4 pounds of corn and a gain of 270 pounds of fodder.

From the above and a similar trial preceding it the conclusion is reached that the strongest argument against the practice is the meager results in fodder compared with the amount of labor involved. The same labor employed in mowing grass or any good forage crops, even without the use of improved machinery, would yield vastly greater results.

Poultry Items.

If ducklings are fed on ground oats and barley mixed with bran they will develop rapidly and shell out eggs by the time the turkeys lose their heads, says The Fanciers' Journal, from which the following notes are gleaned:

For lice on fowls use tobocco dust or California buhach powder. The latter is very powerful, and can be diluted one-half with wheat flour.

The breeding season being over, the disposal of the old hens becomes necessary. The most profitable way is to sell them alive at market prices, keeping the yearling or 2-year-old hens over for another season.

The latter should be turned out to pasture on a farm and fed on oats principally. When leaves begin to fall in the autumn these hens will have nearly molted, and should be in good health and ready to lay.

Planting Cabbage at Various Depths.

About twelve years ago a trial was made by The Rural New Yorker of planting cabbages at various depths. It was done to ascertain whether the plants would make larger or smaller, more or less solid, heads if the leaves of the plants were left on or cut off. All the leaves of about fifty plants were set as taken up from the seed bed. The leaves of fifty others, all except the central, small, latest leaf, were cut off. There was no appreciable difference in the size or weight of the two lots at harvest. It is probable that the outer leaves of cabbage plants do neither good nor harm. They usually die before the plants start into new growth.

Agricultural Brevities.

Thomas Green, who died at Leeds, England, not long ago, was the inventor of the lawn mower.

According to the department report the area down to wheat is the same as a year ago, and the cotton area is 16½ per cent. less.

The eighth annual horse show at Madison Square garden will be held Nov. 14-19. Prizes, so far as heard from, amount to $34,000.

The proposal to sell eggs by weight instead of by count, as has been the practice heretofore, is finding great favor in the south, especially in St. Louis.

Professor Woll, of the Wisconsin station, says that buckwheat middlings for feeding are almost equal to oilmeal, while the hulls have little or no value for the same purpose.

Twenty million dollars is the estimated worth of flax products imported into this country last year, and our farmers are said to have destroyed 1,070,000 tons of flax straw.

BRIEF NEWS ITEMS.

FOREIGN.

Mr. Gladstone has been re-elected in Midlothian.

The government of Uruguay will negotiate a loan of $5,000,000 in Paris.

Marshal Deodore Da Fonseca, the first president of the Republic of Brazil, is dead.

A ukase has been issued annulling the prohibition against the exportation from Russia of rye, rye meal and all kinds of bran.

It is stated that an important witness in the Maybrick case is said to have died recently at Capetown, after having confessed to committing perjury at the trial.

The failure is announced of Redfern, Alexander & Co., Australian and New Zealand merchants and bankers of London. Their liabilities amount to 250,000 pounds.

A dispatch from Zanzibar says it is reported on good authority that Byron Paul and other members of the German expedition sent to punish the natives have been murdered at Kilamjori.

A dispatch from Tangier states that Muley Haman, the leader of the rebellious Angherites, has won a victory over the sultan's troops, killing many of them and putting the rest to precipitate flight.

An American petition in favor of the release from prison of Mrs. Maybrick, which contain the names of Mesdames Harrison and Bland has been presented to Queen Victoria and referred to Secretary Asquith. It is stated that an important witness in the case is said to have died recently in Cape Town after having confessed to committing perjury at the trial.

POLITICAL NOTATIONS.

Nils P. Haugen has been renominated for congress by the Republicans of the Tenth Wisconsin district.

At the meeting of the Nebraska Republican state central committee the name of T. J. Majors was placed on the ticket for lieutenant governor, in place of J. G. Tate, found ineligible.

Hon. Bellamy Storer and Hon. John A. Caldwell, representatives in congress from the First and Second Ohio districts, respectively, have been unanimously renominated.

The letter of acceptance of General Bidwell, Prohibition nominee for president, has been issued. The letter is quite lengthy and discusses the principles of the party as enunciated in the Cincinnati platform.

MISCELLANEOUS.

At New Egypt, N. J., a Mr. Widman killed a ten-foot adder in his parlor.

Thomas Woodleigh, consular agent for the United States at Corfu, Greece, is dead.

John X. Davidson, a pioneer of St. Paul, died Tuesday of cancer of the stomach.

The Futurity stakes, worth $75,000, was won by Morello, the favorite, at Sheepshead Bay Saturday.

Mrs. Harrison is steadily improving. Her recovery is gradual, but each day shows some gratifying change.

The Catholic church at Prairie du Chien, Wis., was entered by thieves, who stole a gold vestry service valued at $2,500.

Dr. Keeley, of drink cure fame, is suing the London Lancet for damages for libel. Medical men watch the trial with excited interest.

It is reported that in an encounter with the rebels in Morocco eighty of the sultan's troops and several officers were killed or wounded.

District Attorney George S. Graham, of Philadelphia, has been appointed receiver of the Iron Hall for the State of Pensylvania by Judge Bregy.

Six men who were at Homestead on July 6, the day the Pinkertons were forced to surrender have been arrested charged with conspiracy and aggravated assault.

The Winnipeg board of trade refuses to send delegates to the Grand Forks reciprocity convention because President Harrison issued his retaliatory proclamation.

Fitzsimmons the pugilist has fallen heir to $50,000 by the death of a brother in New Zeland. The bequest is coupled with a request that the pugilist give up the ring forever.

J. J. Hill has given notice that the Great Northern will withdraw from the Transcontinental association. The Atchison and Northern Pacific will probably do likewise.

L. B. McWhirter, a prominent lawyer and politician, was assassinated at Fresno, Cal., by unknown parties. It is believed that his political enemies put him out of the way.

The American Bar association, at Saratoga, has elected J. Randolph Tucker, of Virginia, president. H. F. Stevens, of Minnesota, was elected one of the vice presidents.

The controller of the currency has received an application from Fred. Pabst and associates of Milwaukee to organize the Wisconsin National bank of Milwaukee with a capital of $1,000,000.

The international peace congress, held at Berne, has unanimously decided to accept the invitation of the North American societies to hold the next international congress at Chicago in 1893.

The directors of the Minnesota state fair have declared all running races barred out, for the reason that Budd Doble will not trot Nancy Hanks there if the track is to cut up with runners.

The hearing of Miss Lizzie Borden at Fall River, Mass., was resumed Friday morning. The ghastly details of the murder were told on the stand but nothing of a convicting nature was brought out.

James S. Wilson, agent of the Kansas and Arkansas Valley railroad at Nowata, I. T., was held up and robbed late Monday night by three men supposed to be members of the Dalton gang of train robbers and desperadoes. About $1,000 was secured.

WE HAVE THE

- - RUSHFORD WAGON, - -

"Good timber and bone dry," best finished and lightest running wagon in the market.

ADVANCE THRESHER and STRAW BURNING ENGINE, Minneapolis Binders, Walter A. Wood Mowers, and we keep a full stock of Repairs. You will soon need these articles and we ask you to call and let us demonstrate that cheap goods of this class are dear at any price. Our motto is "MERIT WINS," and our increasing trade every day shows this to be true. We have added a full line of

THRESHERS' SUPPLIES,
BELTING, HOSE;
TANK PUMPS,
LACE LEATHERS,
BRASS FITTINGS, Etc.,

and we sell at bottom prices. We are selling the remainder of our Buggy Stock at very low prices to close out. We also carry a nice line of Single and Double, Light and Heavy Harness, and sell at prices which defy competition. We carry a line of implements at all times full and complete. Give us a call, and remember

Merit Wins.

Larsen, Carpenter & Co.

Opera Block, - - Crookston, Minn.

McKINNON BROS.,

DEALERS IN

ALL OF THE LEADING

Agricultural Implements

MAIN STREET. McKINNON BLOCK.

Before Purchasing, Give Us a Call.

CHRISTIANSON BROS.,

Abstracters of Title, Loans,
Real Estate and Insurance:

N. B. FARM LOANS a specialty. Terms, three to five years. Lowest rate of interest, payable annually at our office.

Choice FARM LANDS for sale cheap, on terms to suit purchasers.

Office on Robert Street, - - CROOKSTON, MINN

ALDERMAN & SYLVESTER,

DEALERS IN

Shelf and Heavy

HARDWARE,

Sash, Doors and Mouldings

Mixed Paints, Linseed and Machine Oils, Flying Dutchman Gang Plows, J. Thompson & Sons Walking Plows. Sole agents for the Domestic Sewing Machine.

A FULL AND COMPLETE STOCK OF

STOVES AND RANGES

Corner Main and Fletcher Sts.. - - - Crookston.

NEW FEED MILL

CHRIS. ANDERSON, Prop.

I desire to annouce to the farmers of Polk County that I have rented the

LAURENCE BUILDING, ON MAIN STEERT,

Next to Brown's New Livery Stable, and am now prepared to grind feed of all kinds promptly. You can get your feed in two hours after you bring me your grain. Prices Reasonable

Try My New Mill!

GASOLINE ENGINES

The Coming Power of the Northwest!

NO ENGINEER REQUIRED, NO FIREMAN,

No Boiler to Burst and no Expensive Wood or Coal Required. Runs at a cost of about 12 cents per day per actual horse power developed; that is, if you have a 6 horse-power engine and your machinery was but 3 horse power the cost of running your engine would be 36 cents for 10 hours.

The Lewis Gasoline and Vapor Engine

Is the Best Engine Made. One of these engines may now be seen in the JOURNAL press rooms in Crookston. For further information or catalogue, call on or address

S. B. PALMER, Lockhart, Norman Co., Minn.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

'Round Home.

Wheat—1 Hard 65.
1 Northern 63.

Comrade W. L. Coe has gone for a visit with friends to the saintly city.

Will Hoch and E. Cameron went out to McIntosh on Tuesday for a hunt.

The fall term of schools commences next Monday morning in our city schools.

Miss Olive Halvorson resumes her position in the post-office, refreshed by her vacation.

Fred Moeckel goes to Thief River Falls to accept a clerkship in the Northwestern hotel.

Misses Eunice, Edith and Mabel Copeland have returned from a pleasant visit with relatives in New York.

Miss Nellie Mullen has returned from her vacation visit in Iowa and resumed her place in Fontaine & Anglim's store.

Mr. W, F. Stone, who represented the Northwestern Life Insurance Company here for some time, is now located at Plainview, Minn.

Comrade W. M. Campbell was up from Ada last week. Says several of the Ada boys will go to Washington to attend the encampment.

Next week the state fair will be held on the state fair grounds midway between the twin cities. Some of our citizens talk of going down.

"The Stowaway" was presented to a good audience on Tuesday evening and highly enjoyed by all. The company is a good one and does excellent work.

O. D. Rood, who recently sold his laundry business to Frank Hertz, is preparing to go for a visit to Nebraska and may decide to locate there permanently.

Prof. Casey and wife have gone to Red Lake Falls to prepare for school duties. The Prof. is an A 1 teacher, and Red Lake Falls is fortunate to have secured his services.

The work on the power house is progressing favorably. Capt. Davis says he has now got it down to a matter of day's works and he can now breathe freely—no more danger from the river. He expects to have it completed in October.

The circus last Saturday was not well patronized, but better than it deserved. It was a favorite theory of P. T. Barnum that people love to be humbugged, and he made several fortunes demonstrating it and yet even Barnum always had something worth seeing, while this circus did not appear to have.

Our lady friends will regret that Mrs. E. E. Bangs has decided to go away for good, but that fact will not prevent them from taking advantage of the opportunity thus afforded of securing better bargains than were ever before offered in Crookston. Everything must be closed out within two weeks.

Joe Marceil is the first to occupy the new Fournet block. On Tuesday he commenced to move into the corner store, the room adjoining the city hall, a stock of groceries and crockery, and he will soon be ready to receive the public and show a complete line of fresh groceries. Joe will have things fixed up as slick as a whistle.

The democrats indulged in what they called a "rally" at McKinnon's hall on Saturday night of last week and a few of the faithful got together to renew their vows of fealty to "Cleveland and reform." It was a lonesome looking crowd that gathered to warm over the old chestnuts —and it will be lonesomer after the election in November.

Everybody says that Haverly's minstrel troupe is the best that ever attempted the business in our city. Everything was new and fresh and every actor is a professional. It is useless to attempt to describe such an entertainment, as it is "way out of sight." If Haverly's minstrels should ever come this way again the house will be full if our people appreciate the difference between a minstrel show and a good minstrel show.

IT IS IMPORTANT that all who intend to go to the 26th annual encampment should make that intention known at the meeting of Col. Cobham post to-morrow evening, as upon the number who go depends not only the manner of going but the kind of accomodations you receive while there. If enough are going to warrant it a through coach will be secured which can be used in Washington to sleep in, but if only a few go they will have to go "catch as catch can" and take care of themselves when they get there—which will be no small item in that crowd. Let every man who desires to go come prepared to put up $5 as a guaranty, and if enough pledges are put up to secure a car or even half a car we will secure the car. If there [illegible] nothing further will be done as far as the post is concerned.

All of the early sown grain in the county will be cut this week.

Hon. M. H. Dunnell will speak in Crookston on Wednesday, Sept. 28th.

Banker Mathews was up from Ada chatting with his friends on Saturday.

A. G. Gallasch was up from St. Paul looking after his business interests last week.

M. A. Adson arrived in the city last week from Elbow Lake on his way to Fosston on a bicycle.

Deputy auditor Mat Cornelius rejoices in the arrival of a boy at his house on Thursday of last week.

G. L. Read, of Chicago, arrived last week to look after the harvesting operations upon his large farm near this city,

If you intend to go to Washington, whether you are a vet or not, it will pay you to notify adjutant V. D. Carruth at once.

D. P. R. Strong, of the East Grand Forks Review, was gazing upon Crookston improvements on Thursday of last week.

Ed Schreader went to Fisher last week on professional business. Says that many farmers along the route were stacking their grain.

Comrade Louis Fontaine and son George left for a visit east last week. They will take in the big G. A. R. encampment ere their return.

Go to the National Encampment via the Baltimore & Ohio road which takes you through much of the country made famous by the war.

M. R. Brown sold that elegant span of black mares to Oliver Paul, of Louisville, last week. Mr. Paul now has one of the finest teams in Polk County.

The plank walk was laid along Broadway from the First National Bank to Robert street last week. We can see no reasonable excuse for the delay in other places.

W. S. Stockdale was over from Grand Forks on Friday, chatting with old friends. Everybody knows "stock," who used to be one of the jolly drummers and everybody likes him.

A: B. Wheeler arrived from Chicago on Saturday on a visit to his brother and family in this city Mr. Wheeler is much pleased with the appearance of our enterprising young city.

A cold rain on Sunday interfered with harvesting operations, making the grain too wet for cutting on Monday morning. The weather was cold enough for a frost had it not been for the rain.

The body of a man was found in the Red Lake River near East Grand Forks last week and the circumstances indicated a case of suicide. His name was Peter Swenson and he came from Montana recently.

George Holt, as deputy coroner, went over to East Grand Forks last Friday to hold an inquest upon the body of Jacob Livermore. who was killed by a Northern Pacific train. The verdict exonerates the trainmen from any blame.

The summer term of the business college closed on Friday of last week and the fall term will open on Oct. 3d, Prof. Strawbridge talks of going to Maryland to spend his vacation with his parents and will take in the big doings in Washington next month.

All of the New York and Pennsylvania G. A. R. boys intend to go to Washington to attend the 26th annual encampment. Comrades in the west who belonged to eastern regiments especially, will miss it if they do not go. The B. & O. railroad offers superior inducements.

The rain-storm of Sunday wound up with a cold spell that would have done credit to early November and even the latter part of that month need not have been ashamed of the extreme coolness. Everybody feared a frost but this proved to be a case where everybody was mistaken.

Handsome, full sheet posters in colors have just been printed at this office announcing that Fosston will hold a fair on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, Oct. 5th, 6th and 7th. The attractions offered will be numerous and interesting and no doubt many will go down from Crookston to attend. Such encerprise deserves liberal patronage.

On Wednesday night of last week the night watchman was called to the Scandinavian house to attend to an obstreperous individual who was giving mine host Westerberg some trouble. It seems that the man had just been making a disturbance in a restaurant, had been thrown out of there and then went to the hotel and demanded a bed, saying that he had not the wherewithal to pay for it. After wrangling a while with him Mr. W. put him out and sent for a policeman who discovered that the man's shoulder had been dislocated in the scuffle. He was given surgical attention and properly cared for [illegible] has had no opportunity to fill up and create a disturbance.

Mrs. L. Fontaine accompanied her husband on his trip east last week.

The hours for service in the M. E. church are now 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.

W. G. Lytle who has been laid up with rheumatism a few days is limping around again.

The delegates to the reciprocity convention at Grand Forks went over this morning.

Al Kaiser the banker millionaire of Fosston, took in Haverly's minstrels on Monday evening.

John Urness reports that he will finish cutting his grain this week. Thinks he will have a fair crop.

Mrs. Isaac Simmons received a telegram from Illinois on Saturday announcing the sudden death of her brother.

John C. Wells was up from the farm at Edna on Tuesday, Reports harvesting operations progressing favorably.

Will Peterson went over to Dakota last week and made that country from Neche to Hillsboro. Says he did a big business.

Rev. Battey: I have just received a letter from Rev. Edwards. He is at Clark, S. D., and says his health is somewhat improved.

The delegates to the republican congressional district convention left for Moorhead last night to nominate the next congressman from this district.

E. C. Yetter of Hallock spent the day in the city on Wednesday. Says that Kittson county will go republican this fall by a good majority, "and don't you forget it."

Doc Rutledge of the Fisher Bulletin was up to attend Haverly's minstrels on Monday evening. Doc is just recovering from a severe attack of cholera morbus and looks as fat as a match.

A. C. Wilkinson gets into his new house on the avenue this week. It is built in the very latest style and contains all of the modern improvements such as steam-heating apparatus, etc.

Hans Hoff, who lives about ten miles southeast of Croookston, started out yesterday with a bran new Buffalo Pitts engine and Advance separator purchased from Larsen, Carpenter & Co.

C. T. Lanman, the genial McIntosh Times man gave us a pleasant call last week, enroute for Grand Forks. He says Hunt, of the News, makes him a little weary at times, but does not cause him to lose any sleep.

The chicken season opens this morning. Last night you might have seen squads of hunters striking for the prairie with dog and gun to be in time to take the field by sun-up this morning to razoo the festive chicken and they are said to be very plentiful this season.

President J. J. Hill came up last week to look after the improvements going on in the yards here. The track is to be raised two or three feet, the Red River elevator will be moved to make room for the freight depot, a new passenger depot is to built and extensive improvements are planned.

Mrs. Peterson wife of Ed. Peterson, superintendent of the Crookston Water-power & Light Co., died of typhoid fever on Thursday last at the family residence on Sampson's Addition. The funeral was largely attended on Saturday and the remains laid to rest in Oakdale cemetery.

M. W. Wheeler, representing the Omaha road, gave us a pleasant call on Friday of last week. He will go to Washington in charge of several special coaches during the encampment to take good care of the boys and see that they get the coaches to sleep in while in Washington. The coaches will go to Washington from St. Paul via the West Wisconsin and the Baltimore & Ohio roads. All who go with Wheeler will be sure to have a good time.

L. E. Sessions, representing the Monon Route, called on us on Friday evening of last week in the interest of his road. Passengers for Washington via this route have the advantage of returning via Richmond by boat from Washington if they so desire, which gives them an opportunity to visit many of the most important battle-fields of the war at small extra cost. Mr. S. came over from Grand Forks on the N. P. line and left on the belated Great Northern train for Fargo.

Our senior editor expects to start on Saturday evening of this week for a trip through the famous Shenandoah Valley, arriving in Washington in time for the 26th annual encampment of the grand army of the republic, and may conclude to visit Richmond, Philadelphia, New York and other southern and eastern cities [illegible] lough, but the JOURNAL will be left in excellent hands while he is away.

A. D. Morris returned this morning from a visit to Canada.

Mrs. J. C. Webb, accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. F. E. Barnum, left last evening for Stillwater, Minn., where Mrs. Barnum will visit friends for a short time. F. E. is boarding at the Commercial now.

F. M. Dawley, of Royalton, Minn., a cousin of Postmaster Dawley, and J. C. Higgins of the same place, have been in the city for some time with a view to locating. They are prosperous farmers and just the kind of settlers we want. If they should locate here, it will be the means of bringing quite a number of families from Royalton.

Wm. Cunningham has a fine Siberian apple tree growing in his yard that is a prodigy. He set it out when he first came to this city as a mere slip, and to-day it is a fine large tree, full of fruit and looks good for 15 or 20 bushels of apples. This tree shows what may be accomplished here with care and proper attention.

M. P. Losey was in from Euclid on Wednesday with Mr. A. Chadwick and a Mr. Dean to help them prove up on their respective tree-claims. Mr. Losey has tended to these claims for these gentlemen from the first breaking to the complete work. He says that crops on the east side of the track near Euclid are good, nearly all cut and threshing would have been commenced on Monday only for the rains.

A. D. Stephens: There is quite a boom in Mentor real estate. I went out there the other day and sold $600 worth of lots between trains, and each lot is to have a building on it.

M. R. Brown: The company has put its stock yards in elegant shape to handle stock and expect to do an immense business this fall. We have already received, fed and forwarded several train-loads of stock and expect to be at it redhot shortly.

Mrs. Bangs' Departure.

The JOURNAL is not pleased to chronicle the departure of any worthy citizen, and thus it is with feelings of deep regret that the JOURNAL gives the first public announcement of the fact that Mrs. E. E. Bangs has decided to remove to California to make her future home. Mrs. Bangs came to Crookston some ten years ago with some means which she invested in city property, herself engaging in the millinery business. She has been prominent in church and social matters, making many friends, all of whom will, with the JOURNAL, regret that she has decided to go away from us to return no more. She goes to join an aged brother in San Francisco, who has for twenty years been a resident of California where he has amassed an ample fortune. This brother and sister, who have not seen each other for fifteen years, and hardly heard from each other in that time, have quite recently commenced to correspond and he has been so insistent that she should come and live with him for the balance of his life that she has decided to do so and expects to leave Crookston in about two weeks. The JOURNAL joins her many friends in the wish for a long and happy life for the lady.

THE FAREWELL.

Not going abroad? What, tomorrow?
And to stay, goodness knows, for how long?
Really, Jack, 'twould appear that dry sorrow had done even you, sir, a wrong.

It has? Ha! ha! ha! what a joke, sir!
Is it Mabel or Jenny or Nell?
I'm sure you are wrong; hold my cloak, sir.
Am I not an old friend? Come now, tell.

The prince of our set broken hearted!
What a joke! Who rejected you? Speak!
Did you look like that, Jack, when you parted?
Was that pallor of death on your cheek?

You interest me. Tell me about it,
And let your old chum, sir, console.
Hard hit in the heart, I don't doubt it;
You were made for that sort of a role.

Did you bend on your knee like an actor,
Hardly knowing just where to begin?
Was dear mamma's consent the main factor?
What a fool the poor girl must have been!

Who was she? What! I—you were jealous?
Oh, Jack! who'd have thought such a thing?
You've been certainly not overzealous,
But, kiss me, and where is the ring?

—Hartford Chat.

Long Nursing.

It is exceptional in these days for a woman to properly nourish a child exclusively from the breast for twelve months. It is therefore exceedingly improbable that a breast will be adequate for a period of many months, unless food is given in addition. Of course there may be a rare exception, but in our experience we have never seen a child, as we considered, properly nourished on the breast for so long. The chances of the child would, in our judgment, be better on good artificial food than on breast milk so old. Even if you change, good milk can be had almost everywhere with care, and with care it can be rendered safe for food. Trouble and anxiety do not count when the safety of a baby is in question. Further, if you really cannot get good milk [illegible] substitutes in the form of prepared foods, which may be used for longer or shorter periods, as necessary.—Babyhood.

For burns make a paste of lard and flour and bind on the burn with soft linen, or [illegible] sweet oil to a cream [illegible]

IT MEANS BUSINESS.

I have never been so busy as at present, which speaks well for the manner in which my business is conducted. There is no friction. Mistakes do not pay, so I do not provide for them. I am giving satisfaction to all my customers. That means I am giving Prompt Service, Low Prices and Good Work. I have the handsomest and best selected stock, and if business is what I expect it to be this fall,

GOODS MUST MOVE.

C. H. SAAKE, Practical Watchmaker and Jeweler.

"To improve the golden moment of opportunity, and catch the good within our reach, is the great art of life."
—Samuel Johnson.

EXCEPTIONAL OPPORTUNITIES.

Those who take advantage of these offerings will make no error.

Ladies' fast black cotton hose, double heels, soles and toes, 19c., should be 25c.
Ladies fast black cotton hose, double heels, soles and toes, 11c., should be 15c.
Ladies' summer corsets, 38c., should be 75c.
Ladies' white buckskin gloves, 79c., should be $1.
Ladies' colored, hemstiched handkerchiefs, all linen, 8c., should be 25c.
Anderson's Ginghams, 19c., should be 30c.
Black Cotton Bedford cord, 12c., should be 20c.
English suitings, 16c., should be 25c
English cashmeres, 16c., should be 25c.
All wool challies, 48c., should be 65c.
Ladies' black satine shirt waists, 62c., should be 85c.
Ladies white embroidered shirts, $1.11, should be $1.50.
Childrens' "black" satine blouse......38c., should be 65c.
Children's straw hats......................25c., should be 50c.
Caildren's straw hats......................50c., should be $1.
Children's straw hats.................. 60c., should be $1.25.
Children's straw hats.................. 75c., should be $1.50.
Children's straw hats..................$1.00, should be $2.00
Black polka dot organdies.............11c., should be 15c.

Our closing sale of REMNANTS at depleting prices is now in progress.

FONTAINE & ANGLIM

ADDENDA—Our fall stock of Carpets is now "enroute."

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication August 18th, 1892.]

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE CONditions of a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Henry A. Bruns and Matilda Bruns, his wife, to George H. Taylor, bearing date the 30th day of October, A. D. 1889, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 4th day of November, A. D. 1889, at 1:30 o'clock p. m., in book 44 of mortgages, on pages 188-192. And whereas the said George H. Taylor the owner and holder of said mortgage has elected to declare, and hereby does declare, the whole principal sum in said mortgage set forth and represented by the notes therein described upon which default has occurred, due and payable at the date of this notice under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

And whereas there is actually due and payable at the date hereof including principal and interest upon the notes in said mortgage described upon which there is default, the following sum, to-wit: Four hundred and fifty-four and 40-100 ($454.40) dollars; and whereas said mortgagee has been compelled to, and has paid the taxes upon the lands in said mortgage described as follows: 1889, $19.53; 1890, $18.50; and 1891, $14.93. And whereas the said power of sale has become operative and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: Situate, lying and being in the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The southeast quarter of the northeast quarter (se¼ ne¼) the northeast quarter of the southeast quarter (ne¼ se¼) and lot eight (8) in Section No. six (6); also lot No. one (1) in Section No. seven (7), all in Township No. one hundred and forty-eight (148) north, of range No. forty-three (43) west, containing one hundred forty-three 25-100 acres, more or less, and all in Polk county and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five ($25) dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of Polk county, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said county and State, on the 30th day of September, A. D. 1892, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated August 17th, A. D. 1892.

GEORGE H. TAYLOR,
Mortgagee.

TAYLOR & WOODARD,
Attorneys for Mortgagee,
920 Guaranty Loan Building,
Minneapolis, Minn.

[18-24]

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., July 22d, 1892.

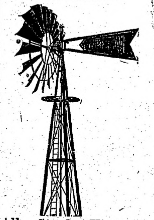
Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of her intention to make final proof in support of her claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register or Receiver at Crookston, Minn., on September 5th, 1892, viz: Mary Carpenter, Hd. No. 12,486, for the se¼ sw¼ and lot 8 Sec. 6, Tp. 151, R. 45. She names the following witnesses to prove her continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Joseph Bolduc, Fred. Coe, Henry Huot, Ferdinand Pepin, all of Huot P. O., Polk county, Minn.

HUGH THOMPSON, Register.

[18-20]

Ripans Tabules cure the blues.
Ripans Tabules cure scrofula.

THE IMPERIAL



All Steel Windmill.

Can be set up on a Steel or Wood Tower.

We carry a
COMPLETE STOCK OF
WOOD AND IRON PUMPS,
including DOUBLE-ACTING,
ANTI-FREEZING
FORCE PUMPS,
IRON PIPE AND IRON PIPE FITTINGS.

Special attention given to the
2-in Plugged and Rimmed Well Casing.

PRICES AS LOW AS THE LOWEST.

Estimates given on all Plumbing Contracts in or out of the city.

CROOKSTON PLUMBING CO.,
Broadway, near Robert St., Crookston, Minn.

E. D. SCHREADER,
Veterinary Surgeon.

Horse Dentistry a Specialty.

All Calls receive Prompt Attention
Satisfaction guaranteed in all cases
Office: 319 North Main Street, in connection with Livery house.
CROOKSTON, MINN.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

Polk County Journal.

VOL. XVI. CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY, SEPT. 8, 1892. NO. 21

Historical Society
MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

WHAT $100 WILL DO!

WHY NOT KEEP HOUSE?

PARLOR.

Brussels Carpet, full spring Lounge	$ 6.50
Patent Swing Rocker	7.75
Rattan Rocker	3.85
20 yds Best all wool Carpet	13.50
Oak Center Table with Shelf	3.00
Pair window blinds	90
	$35.50

BED ROOM.

Large, showy, antique Ash Suit	$16.75
Spring Mattress	5.50
Pair 6-lb. Feather Pillows	2.50
Pair extra cotton-filled Quilts	3.75
15 yds Carpet	6.50
	$35.00

DINING ROOM.

Six-foot oval or square Table	$ 4.75
Six high back Dining Chairs	6.50
One Oak Sideboard, large mirror	18.75
	$30.00

Kitchen Table	$1.75
Four Kitchen Chairs	1.65	$3.40

Here are the Figures:

Parlor Furniture	$ 35.50
Bed Room Furniture	35.00
Dining Room Furniture	30.00
Kitchen Furniture	3.40
	$103.90
Cash Discount	3.90
Total,	$100.00

Crookston Furniture Co.

LIBERAL HOUSE FURNISHERS.

Notice.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, }
COUNTY OF POLK, } ss.
CITY OF CROOKSTON. }

Notice is hereby given to all persons interested in Barrette's addition to the city of Crookston to be present at a regular meeting of the city council to be held on Tuesday evening, October 11th, 1892, and state cause if any there be why said addition should not be vacated by the city of Crookston.

E. C. CARRUTH,
[19-25] City Clerk.

Notice to Contractors

STATE OF MINNESOTA, }
COUNTY OF POLK, } ss.
CITY OF CROOKSTON. }

Notice is hereby given that bids will be received by the city council of the city of Crookston for building a retaining wall and otherwise repairing the approaches to the Sampson addition bridge in the city of Crookston as per plans and specifications now on file in the city engineer's office. Bids to be opened Tuesday evening, September 13th, 1892.

E. C. CARRUTH,
[19-21] City Clerk.

Twine at 6 1-2 Cents.

S. L. Collins has a few more bundles of that silver twine left which he offers at six and one-half cents per pound to close out. Call early.

Notice to Property Owners.

Notice is hereby given that the undersigned, commissioners appointed to assess the benefits and damages arising from the grading of Second street, from Main street to Ash street, will meet at the office of E. M. Walsh in Odd Fellow's block, Monday evening Sept. 12th, 1892, at 7:30 o'clock, hio,te purpose of assessing the benefits and damages to the property abutting said Second street and to hear any complaints or objections that any person may have to the assessments.

Signed, E. M. WALSH, }
W. H. NORRIE, } Com.
C. H. MIX, }

A Few More Left.

S. L. Collins has a few more of those heavy work horses for sale at reasonable figures. If you contemplate buying don't fail to call and see these horses.

For Sale at a Bargain.

Being about to remove to California, I will dispose of my store furnishings, consisting of counters, shelving, show-cases, wardrobes, tables, chairs, stoves, carpets, etc., at a bargain. All trimmed hats and millinery at 50 cents below cost mark until sold. Now is the time to secure such bargains in millinery as were never before offered in Crookston. Call early for choice.

MRS. E. E. BANGS,
Second street.

Notice to Hunters.

Hunters are hereby notified that they must keep off my farm sw¼, Sec. 14, Tp. of Lowell, on the Sabbath day, otherwise they will be prosecuted as Sabbath breakers.

[21-22] [illegible]

Republican Legislative Convention.

A Republican Legislative convention for the Fifty-first Legislative District, composed of Polk, Norman and Beltrami counties, will be held at the court house, in the city of Crookston, on Thursday, September 22d, 1892, at 1:30 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of placing in nomination candidates for the following positions, viz: Three Representatives.

The several counties will be entitled to delegates as follows: Polk, 9; Norman, 5; Beltrami, 1.

D. C. LIGHTBURNE,
Chairman.

For Sale.

A scholarship in the Crookston Business College. Apply at the JOURNAL office. [10 t.f.]

For Sale.

One Eagle Well machine in good repajr. For particulars address

A. LEPPERT,
[18-23] Wylie, Minn.

Wanted.

A good, steady boy to learn the printing business. Apply at the JOURNAL office.

National Encampment G. A. R.

No more interesting journey can be made than to the National Capital. The National Encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic will be held at Washington, D. C., Sept. 20th and following. For this meeting "The Burlington" will sell tickets from all its stations at one fare for the round trip. Tickets will be on sale Sept. 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19 and 20, good for return passage until and including Oct. 10th. Apply for tickets, rates and further particulars to the nearest ticket agent of the Burlington Route, to any ticket agent of connecting lines, or address W. J. C. Kenyon, G. P. A. "The Burlington," St. Paul, Minn. [20-22]

N. P. R. R. Makes Reduced Rates.

To persons desiring to attend the Minneapolis Exposition the Northern Pacific R. R. will sell excursion tickets to Minneapolis and return at reduced rates as follows: On Aug. 30 and Sept. 2, 13, 16, 20 and 23 at one and one-third fair plus 25 dents for admission. On Sept. 5, 6, 7, 8, 9 and 10 at one fare to St. Paul plus 25 cents for admission coupon. For the Minnesota State Fair the Northern Pacific R. R. has made round to St. Paul or Minneapolis of one fare to St. Paul plus admission to fair grounds. These tickets will be on sale Sept. 5th to Sept. 10th. Good returning not later than Sept. 12th. For further information apply to

C. A. SHARKEY, Agt.,
Crookston, Minn.

Lost.

Sunday evening, July 3, on the wagon road between Mentor and Crookston, a silver open face watch. Finder will be rewarded by leaving it at the JOURNAL office.

It will pay you to get your winter clothing of Gulbronson Bros., Reckitt block, Crookston.

Ripans Tabules [illegible]

A PERFECT GAS.

A Few Remarks Concerning the Crookston Gas Light and Heating Company.

A New System of Gas Will be Used—the Finest Gas in the World.

It Is Made of Crude Oil and Air—Principally Air, Pure or Otherwise.

A New Departure.

When the announcement was made a few weeks ago that a gas light and heating company had been formed in the city, it was generally supposed that the concern would furnish the ordinary coal gas. This is a mistaken idea. The company has gotten hold of a new system of gas and have purchased from the Universal Gas Co. of Minneapolis the right to manufacture and sell the gas in Polk county.

The gas is made from crude oil and air—90 per cent. of the gas being made of air. The light produced is a steady, soft, mellow, white light, and is said to resemble sunlight more than any artificial light yet discovered. Another advantage connected with this gas is its cheapness. Notwithstanding its wonderful superiority to coal gas, it can be manufactured and sold for about $1 per 1,000 cubic feet less than coal gas. The great objection to coal gas—the odor which constantly permeates buildings where used—is overcome by this new system. It is perfectly odorless, and this fact alone will place it many places where now the only objection to gas is its unpleasant odor. There is no danger from explosions, and if the light is blown out instead of turned out it will have no effect on the occupants of the room.

In fact this gas is the ne plus ultra of perfection, and is pronounced by all who have seen it to be the coming light of the world. The only place where it is in use yet is River Falls, Wisconsin, and the cost of lighting that place is small compared to electric light.

President Hugh Thompson of the Crookston Gas Light and Heating Co. assured the JOURNAL yesterday that they would have the plant in opperation by the middle of December and the citizens will then have a choice of lights. If the new gas proves anything like what it is represented to be, the citizens will have reason to be thankful for this new discovery, for more reasons than one.

Democratic Day.

The democrats of the 7th congressional district met in McKinnon's hall in this city, Tuesday, Sept. 6th, to name a candidate for congress from this district.

Samuel Torgeson of Moorhead, was made temporary chairman, and F. C. Hardy, of Wilmar, secretary.

The following delegates, one from each county, was named as a committee on credentials: D. Stewart, Marshall; A. C. Schmidt, Polk; B. T. Ashelman, Norman; P. H. Lamb, Dr. Truax, Wilkin; Dr. Duncan, Otter Tail, and James Field of Kandiyohi.

The chair appointed as a committee on resolutions, E. M. Stanton, N. Butler and Jas. Field, and on permanent organization, Wm. Anglim, W. A. Cragin and A. W. Woodland.

Forty delegates were reported entitled to seats.

Resolutions were then passed endorsing the platform of the Chicago convention and affirming their allegiance to Jeffersonian principles and the democratic doctrine of tariff reform.

When the nomination of a congressional candidate was in order, Nathan Butler put forward the name of W. F. Kelso and E. M. Stanton placed T. A. Dunlava in nomination.

An informal ballot was taken and as Kelso had 28 votes and Dunlava 12, Mr. Stanton moved to make the nomination of Mr. Kelso unanimous, which was accordingly done.

Mr. Kelso made a short speech of acceptance, thanking the convention and pledging his best efforts in behalf of the party.

After the convention, addresses were delivered by Hon. D. W. Lawler, democratic candidate for governor, and J. C. Nethaway, of Stillwater, candidate for attorney general.

Mr. Lawler is an earnest, eloquent speaker and was listened to with close attention, while he viewed the history of the protective tariff from a democratic standpoint.

Mr. Netherway spoke in a lighter vein, and kept the audience in good humor for a short time, after which the meeting adjourned, pledging themselves to use every effort to "redeem the country."

The Rain-storm at Warren.

The Warren Register of Aug. 31st says: One of the heaviest rains that has fallen this summer commenced last Saturday afternoon and continued with occasional intermissions until Monday forenoon; the latter part of the time in tapering off showers and drizzles. Fortunately, the rain came down gently. Had a heavy wind accompanied the rain the damage to the grain, both cut and standing, would have been very great. As it is, the damage is not very serious, we believe. It cleared off yesterday and the temperature was very close to frost last night and the night before. Most of the grain that is ripe is cut so far as we are able to learn, which is about ninety per cent of the whole, as near as we can figure it out.

Accident at Euclid.

One day last week a 9-year-old son of Nick Engle of Euclid, while playing with other children in a field of grass which an elder brother was cutting with a mower, accidentally got in front of the machine and had both legs badly cut by the sickle. Dr. Denniston of this city was summoned and found it necessary to amputate the right foot. The injured boy cannot tell how it happened. He says he was hiding in the grass and didn't see the machine coming.

To Our Patrons.

Owing to the change in managment with the first of this volume, it becomes necessary to have all past due subscription accounts settled up. Many of these were arranged for at the time and the balance agreed to pay in the fall. The address upon your copy tells you the date to which your subscription is paid, so that if you are in arrears you can easily see how much you are indebted and we shall expect that the matter will be adjusted before November 1st next. All accounts not settled this fall will be placed in other hands for collection.

Crookston Was in It.

Crookston was honored with the following committee appointments at the reciprocity convention at Grand Forks: J. E. Morrisey on credentials; E. D. Childs on regulations; H. Steenerson on permanent organization; Wm. Watts on order of business, and Mayor Anglim was made one of the permanent secretaries.

A Case of Murder.

While working on the log drive in the Red river at Grand Forks last week the drivers found a corpse under the logs, which was weighted down with a bag filled with mud tied around its neck. The body was neither bloated nor decayed and indicated recent death. It is evidently a case of murder.

Advertised Letters.

List of letters remaining unclaimed at the Crookston postoffice for the week ending Aug. 27th, 1892.

Conner, Pat O.	Gunderson, Tina.
Casperson, John.	Gysland, Simon C.
Hofstad, Gunder G.	Johnson, Fredrick C.
Larson, Tom.	Kilcline, M. J.
Lion, Ornpo.

Letters uncalled for week ending Sept. 3, 1892.

Matlusch, Frank.	Olsen, Rasmus.
Peterson, John.	Rowell, S.
Stanghelle, Ole J.	Swenson, Mrs. Mary.

Persons calling for the above letters please say advertised.

WM. B. DAWLEY, P. M.

Useful Information

Is a heading much resorted to by "retired physicians" and people whose "sands of life have nearly run out." The publishers of our standard dictionaries or encyclopedias tell the pure truth when they offer their works as "mines of useful information," and in the same class are reliable and first-class railroads, like the Burlington route. When this road offers to give you, free of charge, "useful information" about ways and means of safe, swift and comfortable railway travel you may place entire confidence in what is told you. They have no disposition to deceive you, and if they had are too shrewd not to know that "honesty is the best policy." Therefore, before taking a trip anywhere, write to W. J. C. Kenyon, Gen. Pass. Agent, St. Paul, Minn., and learn what are the advantages of this line as a route.

Beecham's Pills for a bad liver.

Ripans Tabules [illegible]

THE SEVENTH DISTRICT

Republican Convention at Moorhead on Thursday, Sept. 1st, Nominates a Farmer for Congress.

The Seventh district Republican congressional convention, to place in nomination a candidate for congress, met at the opera house in Moorhead on Thursday last at 10 o'clock a. m. The convention was called to order and the call read by Capt. H. W. Donaldson, chairman of the congressional committee, after which the various working committees were appointed and the convention adjourned till 1:30 o'clock p. m. Upon re-assembling, after the committees had reported, a motion to proceed to nominate a candidate for congress by ballot prevailed over an effort to have the vote of counties cast by the chairmen of the counties, and following was the result of the ballots taken:

Informal ballot—Frank M. Eddy 6 votes; C. O. Christianson 3 votes; S. G. Comstock 17 votes; E. G. Holmes 25 votes; Henry Feig 13 votes; A. S. Crossfield, 8 votes; E. F. Corliss 13 votes; A. B. Kaercher 17 votes.

1st ballot—Eddy 8; Comstock 7; Crossfield 13; Holmes 25; Corliss 20; Feig 30.

2nd—Holmes 22; Eddy 6; Crossfield 12; Corliss 20; Feig 42.

3rd—Corliss 28; Feig 44; Crossfield 3; Holmes 27.

4th—Feig 41; Corliss 28; Crossfield 3; Holmes 31.

5th—Corliss 33; Feig 45; Holmes 23; Comstock 1.

6th—Feig 42; Corliss 31; Holmes 22; Christianson 6; Comstock 1; Mathews 1.

7th—Declared illegal.

8th—Feig 50; Corliss 26; Holmes 11; Christianson 12; Comstock 1; Mathews 4; Gunderson 6.

7th—Feig 62; Corliss 19; Holmes 8; Christianson 14.

After a motion that the chair appoint a congressional committee prevailed, the convention adjourned.

Reciprocity Convention.

The reciprocity convention at Grand Forks last Thursday and Friday was well attended by representative business men from the principal cities of North Dakota, Minnesota and the provinces of the Canadian Northwest. Much speech-making was indulged in, resolutions were passed, acquaintances were made, and a date was fixed for another convention six months later. This convention may prove the entering wedge to a closer business relation between Canada and the United States which will be mutually beneficial. Commercial reciprocity is all that is sought for, annexation is out of the question. The following resolutions were passed by the cunvention:

The members of the first International Reciprocity convention hereby congratulate the people of the Canadian Northwest and the people of the Northwestern states of the American Union, on the cordial good feeling that exists between them and the earnest desire for closer business relations of which this large and representative gathering is a strong evidence. Whatever temporary differences may arise in the govermental relations of the two countries, we believe that the bonds of sympathy and of mutual interest between the two peoples here in the northwest are too strong ever to be broken and are destined to draw us closer together in our commercial and social relations. We are of common ancestry and religion and we are alike attached to the principles of free representative government. We desire to trade extensively with each other, to know each other better and to stand shoulder to shoulder in the accomplishment of the great work of advancing the civilization of the American northwest. With these objects in view we hereby adopt the following resolutions as a public expression of our opinion:

Resolved, That in the opinion of this convention the conditions of the great northwest on both sides of the international boundary make it desirable that all restrictions of trade between the two countries should be removed so far as the same can be done consistently with the requirements and other live interests of the two nations at large.

The other resolutions endorse the waterway improvements by way of the great lakes to the sea and advocate mutual usage of natural and artificial waterways without toll.

The Red River of the North and the Columbia river being international streams, it is urged that their navigation be improved by both governments under a mutual equitable agreement as to modes and expenses.

The construction of railways across the boundary line should be free from governmental restrictions or exclusive privileges.

Advantage should be taken of the natural and convenient outlet via Hudson's Bay. Copies of these resolutions are directed to be forwarded to the proper department of the two governments, requesting their approval. [illegible]

Margaret Mather Coming.

There is no star on the Ameaican stage today with whom the play going public is more enamored or whose career has been more closely watched than has that of Margaret Mather who is to be seen at the Grand opera house, Crookston, next week Thursday September 15. Every play goer, and in fact everybody who reads of dramatic events and successes, remembers how ten years ago Margaret Mather burst on the sight like some new meteor and by her power and skill at once compelled that recognition from press and public which is alone given to deserving, meritorious entertainers. It is known how, as the fair daughter of the luckless house of capulet, she at once surprised and captured even the captious critics and how since then she has gone steadily forward from one success to another, in each play seeming to surpass all that had gone before. What she did as the hapless capulet maiden was but the forerunner of the good work that was to follow and as one character succeeded another in her repertory she was hailed as the only successor of Charlotte Cushman and the other great women stars whose memory was still a thing of fond retrospective glances. This year she is said to have already enlarged and expanded the pleasant esteem in which she is held everywhere and to have by far surpassed all the work of her past career. In the very embodiment of bodily health and richer by years of experience she comes to the local stage, for the first time, quite prepared to win those substantial rewards of artistic and financial success which have been vouchsafed to her all over the country.

While some may be disposed to regret that she could not present her spectacular production here no one should regret that Bulwer Lytton's masterpiece "The Lady of Lyons" has been selected. To be sure the play has been seen here before and to be equally sure the story is known by heart but it has never been presented by one of Miss Mather's talents and merits and never with the aid of such a company as Miss Mather will bring. What her Pauline is to the other Paulines is as the arc light of the present day to the two-penny tallow dip of the past age. In its breadth, its far reaching scope and its thrilling touches of light and shade it is quite a different Pauline than any which the Crookston public has seen.

Her company embraces some of the best actors and actresses on the American stage, and numbers 25 people, the largest legitimate organization on the road. The engagement is for Thursday night, Sept. 15 only and the advance sale now in progress at Tom Morris' jewelry store assures a full house. Two of the boxes were sold before it was known what play would be selected and there is a steady demand for seats even at this time.

Something New in Train Equipment to Chicago.

The "Limited" train on "The Northwestern Line," leaving Minneapolis 7:25 p. m., St. Paul 8:25 p. m., and arriving Milwaukee 7:25 a. m., Chicago 9:30 a. m., is now equipped with Wagner Compartment Cars in addition to Standard Sleepers, and also with Buffet-Smoking and Library Cars.

This is the finest equipped train in America, is the only train of its kind west of Chicago, and no extra fare is charged on this "North-Western Limited."

By "The Northwestern Line" you also have advantage of fast day train, leaving Minneapolis 7:15 a. m. and St. Paul 7:55 a. m., arriving Milwaukee 7:55 p. m., Chicago 9:35 p. m., also an afternoon train, leaving Minneapolis 4:35 p. m., St. Paul 5:15 p. m., arriving Chicago 8:00 a. m.

"The Northwestern Line" is also the only Pullman Car Line from St. Paul and Minneapolis to Sioux City, Omaha, Kansas City, Duluth and Ashland.

For luxury and comfort, best equipment and road bed, secure tickets via "The Northwestern Line," they are on sale at all stations. Illustrated Map Folder free on application to

T. W. TEASDALE
Gen. Pass. Agent,
St. Paul, Minn.

Ladies, you should call on Mrs. E. E. Bangs and examine her elegant line of velvets, plumes, tips, aegretts, ribbons, ornaments, jets and hats—all of which are being sold at ONE HALF THE COST PRICE. Now is the time to purchase these articles.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

SENSITIVE MACHINES.

TYPEWRITERS ARE JEALOUS OF THEIR INSTRUMENTS.

Why It Is That the Expert Manipulator of the Keys of the Writing Machine Are Particular About the Care of Their Favorites—Fingers Travel Miles.

Stories innumerable have been told relative to the engineer and the sympathy existing between him and his locomotive. Veracious writers have reveled in singular tales in which the engineer's superstitious mind and the locomotive's almost animal instinct have been the chief and bewildering features. But the remarks of a girl typewriter the other day open an almost limitless field of thought and discussion, and discovers a new subject for the dissertation of psychological students.

"My typewriter is intelligent," said this human typewriter, referring to her mechanical friend.

"That is, I understand it and it understands me. I wouldn't lend it to anyone. It's a sensitive little thing, and its resentment at being loaned out would soon be manifested to me when I again attempted to use it. Skillful typewriters are extremely jealous in the care of their instruments. I have several very dear friends engaged in the same business, yet not one could obtain the use of my typewriter, and I am confident they could not be induced to lend me theirs."

Investigation shows these statements to be correct. Those who have their own machines never lend them even for temporary use, while in large offices, where the firms furnish the instruments, each of the latter has a certain operator, and no one else is allowed its use. Fanciful as the idea is that the prosaic writing machine should resemble the violin in its readiness to respond to familiar hands and its consequent rebellion at being used by strangers, there is no doubt in the minds of the typewriters as to its being a solemn and important fact.

"Whatever the reason," said the superintendent of an establishment where typewriters are sold, "a machine that has been constantly used by a certain person is ruined for that person by some one else's use of it. This refers to expert typewriters—those who do much work and whose constant practice has developed a remarkable rate of speed. So pronounced has this opinion become and so luxuriantly has the idea flourished that typewriters are usually furnished in cabinets that can be locked and are then secure from molestation. I know of no explanation for this queer state of affairs. Machines are made by the dozen; the pieces that form the machines are made by the hundred, yet each complete mechanical typewriter has what is known as a distinct 'touch.'

"An operator may try several machines before she finds one to her liking, and when she does no other will she use. An experiment was once made for the purpose of testing this. An operator of a particularly sensitive and nervous temperament, and who was particularly annoying in her complaints regarding the use of her typewriter by others, was blindfolded and tried in rapid succession fifty different machines of the same make. To every one's surprise she selected the one she had been in the habit of using."

Few people know the amount of manual labor involved in a day's typewriting or realize the distance the hands travel in a day's work. Probaby few of the typewriters themselves appreciate it. Yet their hands cover a distance they would never think of covering with their legs unless necessity compelled it.

The highest rate of speed ever attained is 200 words a minute. This is supposed to be the result of the most rapid movements the human hands are capable of. The person making this record maintained this speed for only four consecutive minutes, and has never been able to exceed that limit. Assuming the words average six letters apiece, 1,200 letters a minute were written. It is estimated that to make each letter the fingers are raised a height of two inches from the keyboard. Two inches added (for the descending movement) make the finger travel four inches before each letter is struck. So this expert's hand in writing these 200 words traveled 4,800 inches, or 400 feet, during the minute in which she wrote 200 words.

But this is unusual, of course. Very rapid writing is a speed of seventy-five words a minute, and this rate is too fast for comfort. Practical work is ten pages of legal paper an hour. Each page contains 300 words. Six hours' steady writing can be regarded as an entire day's work. This is a speed of fifty words a minute, and the practical worker writes during the day sixty pages—18,000 words, or 108,000 letters. If her finger travels four inches to make each letter, during the day it travels 432,000 inches.

This provides for the perpendicular movement only, and it is fair to increase this distance by one-third to estimate the distance the hands travel over the keyboard in a horizontal direction. This total sum in inches is 576,000. This is equivalent to 48,000 feet, or a little over nine miles a day. In a week the hands can cover fifty-four miles, and in a year's steady application to business over 2,800 miles.

So the vagary of the male and female typewriters can in a large measure be excused and their preference for their respective machines accounted for.—New York Recorder.

An Awful Indian Custom.

In India, up to within the last few years, the wife, either according to her wishes or otherwise, was cremated on the same funeral pyre that converted her dead husband's remains into ashes.—Philadelphia Press.

Safe.

"John," said the dealer, "where is the key to this self locking safe?"

"Insoide, sorr. It'll not be losht there, sorr," returned John.—Harper's Bazar.

ITS POLICY IS FREE TRADE.

There Is No Room for Protectionists in the Democratic Party.

Are all Democrats free traders? The question is pertinent not only to Republicans, but to Democrats themselves. Republicans, ask it for information. Democrats should ask it of themselves in order to determine how to vote. Not many years ago there were a good many avowed and honest protectionists in the Democratic party. Samuel J. Randall, whose memory is still respected by some Americans more than that of Grover Cleveland ever will be, was their leader. They had power enough to prevent the free trade leaders of their party from declaring openly for free trade.

They did this in both the contests of 1884 and 1888, so that one of the chief tasks of the Republican campaigners was to unmask the real purposes of the Democratic leaders. What has become of those Democratic protectionists now? They have lost their leaders, partly by death and partly by ostracism from the party, but have they forgotten the principle for which they fought so long under the wrong standard? The fact that there were 342 out of the 904 delegates in the Chicago convention who were afraid to antagonize them shows that they still exist.

Now what are they going to do? Their party has unmasked. It no longer pretends to be anything but a free trade organization. Its leading and accepted organs, such as the New York Times, the Chicago Herald, the Louisville Courier-Journal, etc., are openly declaring that there is no room for any but free traders in the Democracy. The Chicago Herald, for example, is publishing day after day such defiances as this: "There is no place on the platform for any man to stand who is tainted in the slightest degree with the heresy of protection."

Democratic protectionists, followers of Randall, friends of Hill and Weed, who have accepted such Democracy as is preached by the New York Sun and the Albany Times-Union, this is an invitation to you to become free traders or to get out of the Democratic party. Which will you do? Will you submit to be bound hand and foot by your Mugwump conquerors and stand without squirming while the party lash is exultantly applied to your backs? Or will you accept the other alternative? Ask yourselves what Samuel J. Randall would have done this year if he had lived?—Buffalo Express.

Echo Answers, Where?

A tariff for revenue only means more foreign goods to compete with American wares and materials. With the destruction of the protective tariff, as promised by the Democratic party, our workers will be obliged to sell out their American homes, move abroad and become citizens of foreign countries. Then, and then only, need they expect to sell their products in America. They will then be foreigners, and their goods will be foreign. The Democratic demand is for more foreign goods to take the place of the American. When our goods are displaced where are our wages to come from?—Philadelphia North American.

When Is He Sincere?

When the neighborhood folks visited Mr. Cleveland last Wednesday he began his polite little speech with, "My friends, I hope you will credit me with perfect sincerity when I assure you that I am glad to see you here," etc.

Why so ponderous an asseveration on so trifling an occasion? Are there, indeed, then, public occasions when Mr. Cleveland does not speak with "perfect sincerity," and Mr. Cleveland knows it?—Chicago Inter Ocean.

It Progresses Backward.

It has always been the fate of the Democratic party to lag about a generation behind the march of human progress. The free trade doctrines which it is now indorsing with such formality and emphasis are a relic of the southern confederacy, and have been repudiated by even the Tories of Great Britain, who ordinarily are about the last persons to acknowledge that the world moves.—Boston Journal.

They Don't Want the Change.

Unless, therefore, business men want a precipitate and general change (in the tariff) they are compelled in self defense to vote against the Democratic ticket. The admission of the Democratic free trader that he didn't desire a change now expresses a widespread feeling independent of all politics, and it will manifest itself in thousands of votes all over the country.—Philadelphia Press.

But He Didn't Have His Way.

If Stevenson, who was a peace-at-any-price man in 1864, had his way at that time the emancipation proclamation would have been recalled and slavery would still be in existence in the country.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The Sizzle and Snap Are Out.

When Hill's name is hissed in Tammany hall, as it was on the Fourth, we may conclude that his boom is as dead as an exploded firecracker. There are no more sizzle and snap to that boom.—Syracuse (N. Y.) Standard.

Remember 1888 and the Knife.

The Rochester Herald expects Cleveland and Hill will get on the same platform by September or October. The Herald seems to have forgotten the campaign of 1888.—Buffalo Express.

And It Will.

There is surely no danger of negro domination in New York, and that state can therefore safely give a majority for Harrison.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

It Will Hardly Carry Him.

The tariff plank of the star eyed goddess of reform seems rather weak for a 300 pounder like Grover.—Santa Fe New Mexican.

He Was After the Hide.

Mr. Whitney would have had the hide of the Tammany tiger, tariff or no tariff.—Chicago Mail.

"WORTH A GUINEA A BOX."

BEECHAM'S PILLS

COVERED WITH A TASTELESS AND SOLUBLE COATING.

A WONDERFUL MEDICINE FOR

Indigestion, Want of Appetite, Fullness after Meals, Vomitings, Sickness of the Stomach, Bilious or Liver Complaints, Sick Headache, Cold Chills, Flushings of Heat, Lowness of Spirits, and All Nervous Affections.

To cure these complaints we must remove the cause. The principal cause is generally to be found in the stomach and liver; put these two organs right and all will be well. From two to four Pills twice a day for a short time will remove the evil, and restore the sufferer to sound and lasting health.

Of all druggists. Price 25 cents a box. New York Depot, 365 Canal St.

Mortgage Sale.

(First publication Thursday, Aug. 25, 1892.)
(Last publication Thursday, Oct. 6, 1892.)

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a mortgage containing power of sale, dated December 28th, 1888, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Polk County, Minnesota, December 31st, 1888 in book 42 of mortgages, page 17, whereby John Boden, unmarried, mortgagor, mortgaged to The Middlesex Banking Company, mortgagee, the east half of the southwest quarter and the west half of the southeast quarter of Section thirty-one, (31) in Township one hundred and forty-eight, (148) of Range forty one, (41) in said Polk County, by which default the power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding at law has been instituted to recover the debt remaining secured thereby, or any part thereof, and there is claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date hereof, $365.65, to which amount should be added the taxes on said property paid by said mortgagee, amounting, with interest as provided in said mortgage, to $42.12, making the total amount claimed to be due at the date hereof on said mortgage $407.77.

Now notice is hereby given that by virtue of said power said mortgage will be foreclosed and said premises sold at public auction, by the Sheriff of said county or his deputy, on October 8th, 1892, at ten o'clock a. m. at the front door of the Court House, in Crookston, in said county to pay said debt, interest, attorney's fees and disbursements allowed by law.

Dated August 15th, 1892.

THE MIDDLESEX BANKING COMPANY, (Seal.)
By Robt. N. Jackson, President.
Mortgagee.

H. C. GILBERT & Co., Attorneys,
[19-25] St. Paul, Minn.

Mortgage Sale.

(First publication Aug. 25th, 1892.)
(Last publication Oct. 6, 1892.)

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a mortgage containing power of sale dated July 22d, 1889, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Polk county, Minnesota, August 19th, 1889, in book 42 of mortgages, page 105, whereby Ole H. Rustan and Barbo Rustan, his wife, mortgagors, mortgaged to The Middlesex Banking Company, mortgagee, the south half of the northeast quarter and the north half of the southeast quarter of Section thirteen, (13) in Township one hundred and forty-nine, (149) of Range forty-one, (41) in said Polk County, by which default the power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding at law has been instituted to recover the debt remaining secured thereby, or any part thereof, and there is claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date hereof $343.77, to which amount should be added the taxes on said property paid by said mortgagee, amounting, with interest as provided in said mortgage, to $56.47, making the total amount claimed to be due at the date hereof on said mortgage $400.24.

Now notice is hereby given that by virtue of said power said mortgage will be foreclosed and said premises sold at public auction, by the Sheriff of said county or his deputy, on October 8th, 1892, at ten o'clock a. m. at the front door of the Court House in Crookston, in said county, to pay said debt, interest, attorney's fees and disbursements allowed by law.

Dated August 15th, 1892.

THE MIDDLESEX BANKING COMPANY, (Seal.)
By Robt. N. Jackson, President,
Mortgagee.

H. C. GILBERT & Co., Attorneys,
[19-25] St. Paul, Minn.

First National Bank
OF CROOKSTON

PAID IN CAPITAL. - $100,000
SURPLUS. - - - $14,200

Interest on time deposits. Faithful attention to Collections and prompt remittance.

GEO. Q. ERSKINE, President.
WM. ANGLIM, Vice President.
CHAS. E. SAWYER, Cashier.

DIRECTORS:
Wm. Anglim, K. D. Chase, F. D. Childs
Geo. Q. Erskine. J. R. McKinnon. A. A. Miller
E. M. Walsh. Chas. E. Sawyer W. H. Crosby

Work Horses - - - and Mares.

FOR GOOD, SOLID WORK HORSES and MARES, go to

M. R. BROWN,

The old reliable dealer, who has sold horses in this county since 1878, and who is always on hand to make his guaranty good. Every man who ever sold horses here is ready (when he sells) to guaranty, but later, if you happen to want him to make his guaranty good you can't most always sometimes find him ready to make his recommend good. He handles only good young horses and has sold more than any dealer in the county. He is now prepared to supply the demand for good teams—he handles no other—and guaranty them just as recommended. Before you buy you will do well to call at

Brown's New Stables,

Main Street, one door north of the old M. E. church building.

JOHN CROMB,
Attorney-at-Law,
SECOND STREET. CROOKSTON

Town Clerks.

The following is a list of the town clerks for the several towns in Polk county:

Andover,	E M Blvins	Crookston
Augus,	A B Carleton	Angus
Black River,	P A Eckstrom	Wylie
Bray,	Albert Wickstrom	Wylie
Badger	P N Savalrud	Sletten
Brandsvold.	Ole Nelion	Fosston
Belgium,	Henry Biever	Euclid
Brislet,	A P Frank	Warren
Bygland,	Thos. Benson	Fisher
Crookston,	E O Flanders	Crookston
Crookston, city,	E C Carruth	Crookston
Columbia,	R H Carr	Columbia
Chester,	O J Mattson	Lindsay
Emardville,	Peter Anderson	Emard
Euclid,	F Tiedt, Jr.,	Euclid
Eden,	Neri A Skele	Olga
Fairfax,	Wm Himmelsback	Crookston
Farley,	Mark Congnon	Warren
Fanny,	Walter Latta	Buffington
Fisher,	Halyor Gunderson	Fisher
Fisher, vil.,	John Gleason	Fisher
Gd Forks,	John McCoy	E G Forks
Gd Forks, city,	John McCoy	E G Forks
Garfield,	Iver J Ingebretson	Fertile
Garden,	John Hanson	Ringdal
Gentilly.	H F Goudron,	Gentilly
Gervais,	John Deforge	R L Falls
Grand Park,	E E Abbott	Mentor
Goderey,	D T Mitchell,	Maple Bay
Hammond,	Ernest Hanna	Crookston
Higdem,	Ole Hendrickson	E G Forks
Hill River,	Fred S Syeverson	Lindsay
Huntsville,	O Osmundson	Mallory
Hubbard.	Frank Hanson,	Neilsville
Keystone,	D E Geddes	E G Forks
Kerlsonville,	Fred Benoit	Gentilly
King,	K C Norsving	McIntosh
Knute,	O H Dale	Erskine
Lake Pleasant,	Jos Perrault	R L Falls
Lambert,	Samuel Gebcan,	Lamber
Liberty,	Nelson Clementson	Fertile
Lessor,	H Helgeson	Ovetia
Lowell,	Ole Christianson,	Crookston
Louisville,	Louis Huot	Huot
Nesbit,	Robert Nesbit	Mallory
Norden,	O J Tweet	Tweet
North,	S TJohnson	T R Falls
Numedal,	Olaf Larson	Warren
Onstad,	W A Marin	Melvin
Parnell,	Thos Filban	Crookston
Poplar River,	J B Hebert	Brooks
Polk Centre,	Wm Wylie,	Wylie
Queen,	Hans L Houkom	Fosston
R L F, village,	August Herard,	R L Falls
Red Lake Falls,	Ildaig Baril	R L Falls
Reis,	D C Hallock	Edna
River Falls,	K C Gigstad	St. Hilaire
Rocksbury,	P Englestad	St. Hilaire
Roome,	P Boukon	Neby
Rosebud,	M E Randkler	Fosston
Russia,	Orens Simmons	Crookston
Sanders,	Nils K Anderson	St. Hilair
Sandsville,	Henry Nelson	E G Forkse
St. Hilaire,	L J Johnson	St. Hilaire
Sletten,	Ingebret Larson	Winger
Sullivan,	P A Hotvedt	E G Forks
Tabor,	F J Cernousek	Tabor
Terrebonne,	Edonor Perruse	Terrebonne
Tilden,	S J Furan	Dugdale
Tynsid,	A O Stortroen	Neby
Vineland,	John Thompson	Neby
Winger,	Albert Johnson	Winger
Woodside,	Joseph Tagley	Woodside
Wyandotte,	O J Johnson	St. Hilaire
Rhinehart,	Oscar Winck	E G Forks
Thief River Falls	C J Knox	T R Falls

G. G. HENAULT
Practical Dentist,
SECOND STREET,
CROOKSTON. - - MINN
OFFICE IN DOBSON'S BLOCK,

All work in my line skilfully and promptly performed. Give me a call.
G. G. HENAULT.

W. A. ROBERTSON
D. D. S.
Graduate of Dental Department of the University of Maryland.
OPERATIVE AND MECHANICAL
DENTIST.

N. B. Nitrous Oxide Gas, (Laughing Gas) administered for the painless extraction of teeth.

OFFICE IN McKINNON BLOCK.

NEW BARBER SHOP.
On Main St. C. E. MISNER, Prop.
Invites your patronage. Everything in the very latest style of the art.

RAZORS HONED. If you desire your Razor Honed and cannot bring it, send it to me with 30 cents and your name and address and I will hone and return it.
Yours Respectfully,
C. E. MISNER.

KOPS BRO'S
105 Third Street,
GRAND FORKS, N. DAKOTA

PIANOS, ORGANS

WEBER, HAINES BROS., KURTZMANN, MATHUSHEK, McCAMMON PIANOS, Estey and Chicago Cottage Organs. New Upright Pianos from $250 to $1,000, on terms of $10 to $25 per month. New Organs from $60 to $250 on terms of $5 to $10 per month.

Satisfaction guanteed. Write for catalogue and prices. KOPS BROS.
Grand Forks, N. D.

M. LeGUEE.
Veterinary Surgeon.

Residence and office on Jerome's Addition.
CROOKSTON, - - - MINN.

Ripans Tabules are always ready.
Ripans Tabules cure constipation.
Ripans Tabules cure dyspepsia.

McKINNON BROS.,
DEALERS IN
ALL OF THE LEADING
Agricultural Implements
MAIN STREET. McKINNON BLOCK.
Before Purchasing, Give Us a Call.

Prices Greatly Reduced
ON ALL
Summer Goods,
Summer Clothing,
Light Weight Suits,
Light Weight Underwear,
AND Light Weight Shirts.

Everything in our Store at Greatly Reduced Prices.

STRAW HATS AT COST.

BOSTON ONE PRICE CLOTHING HOUSE,
MOSSEFIN & LINDELL, Props.

Great Reduction Sale!
Of White Goods, Embroideries, Challies,
AND
All Summer Goods!
FOR THE
NEXT TWO WEEKS.
Also bargains in Boots and Shoes
and Groceries of all kinds.

If you have Wool, Shake Root, Eggs or Butter we will allow you the highest market prie in trade.

[OPERA HOUSE BLOCK, Crookston, Minn.] A. STURE.

You Can Buy Reliable
AGRICULTURAL MACHINERY
OF
SYLVESTER & FINSETH,
—CHEAPER AND BETTER—

Than anywhere. We handle Buckeye and Osborne Binders with all extras for same, and Twine. Buckeye and Imperial Mowers with extras. Buckeye and Monitor Rakes, Eli, Oliver and Bradley Gang Plows, Stubble and Breaking Plows, the Standard Rotary Shuttle Sewing Machine, Nichols & Shepard New Vibrator Threshing Machine. Also the Jackson, Mitchell and Favorite Wagons, the Enterprise Buggies, Spring Wagons and Carts on all of which we can undersell Grand Forks and other places. We also carry everything that can be had in any first class Hardware Store and invite everybody to call and see us at the corner of Broadway and Fletcher Sts.

SYLVESTER & FINSETH, Crookston, Minn,

Crookston Business College
and INSTITUTE OF SHORTHAND.

DEPARTMENTS:—Commercial Shorthand, Typewriting and English.
TEACHERS:—Benj. A. Strawbridge, J. M. Latham and L. E. Gossman.
Summer Term began Monday, June 6th, 1892. Fall Term begins Monday, October 3rd, 1892. Send for new Catalogue.
CROOKSTON BUSINESS COLLEGE, Crookston, Minn.

A GREAT OFFER.
THE
Polk County Journal
Will be sent to any address, from now till after the campaign,
FOR
50 CENTS.

If You are a Republican

You should take THE JOURNAL and keep posted on what the Republican party is doing. THE JOURNAL will give from 3 to 5 columns of Republican political matter weekly, and you should keep yourself informed on the questions at issue and the movements of the party.

If You Are not a Republican

You should take THE JOURNAL so that you may see what the Republicans are doing and get the Republican side of the question as well as your own.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

1892 September. 1892

Su.	Mo.	Tu.	We.	Th.	Fr.	Sa.
				1	2	3
4	5	6	7	8	9	10
11	12	13	14	15	16	17
18	19	20	21	22	23	24
25	26	27	28	29	30

BRIEF NEWS ITEMS.

FOREIGN.

Several severe shocks of earthquake were felt in Greece on Saturday.

A railway train has arrived in Jerusalem from Jaffa, the railway between the two places having been completed.

Several Welsh tin plate factories were closed down Saturday. Ten thousand men have been thrown out of employment, and quite a number have started for America.

A cable to The Herald from Valparaiso says that news comes from Montevideo that General Roco's party announces that it will oppose Pena's government. A quarantine of forty days has been imposed at Buenos Ayres against vessels from English ports.

POLITICAL NOTATIONS.

The fifth Texas district convention has renominated Congressman J. W. Bailey.

Henry Cabot Lodge, of Massachusetts, announces himself as a candidate for the federal senate.

The Democrats of the Eleventh Missouri district have renominated John O'Neill for congress.

At Independence, Ia., Nancy Hanks trotted a mile in 2:05 1-4, beating her own record by a full two seconds.

The Democratic congressional convention of the Third Minnesota district renominated O. M. Hall for congress.

The state convention of Prohibitionists of South Dakota will be held at Sioux Falls Sept. 14, instead of Aberdeen, as previously announced.

Twenty-one of the Jersey City, N. J., ballot box stuffers have been sentenced. Their sentences ranged from six to fifteen months. The prisoners were at once sent to jail.

Assistant Secretary Crounze, of the treasury department, has tendered his resignation to enter the gubernatorial campaign in Nebraska. He will look after the work of his department until his successor has qualified.

Democratic congressional nominations: Ninth Missouri, J. Beauchamp Clark; Twenty-fifth Pennsylvania, E. P. Gillespie; Ninth Michigan, H. H. Wheeler; Seventh Iowa, J. A. Dyer; Ninth Iowa, J. E. F. McGee; Tenth Tennessee, Josiah Pattison; Twenty-third, Pennsylvania; Frank C. Osborne; Seventh California, Olin Welborn.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Labor Day was generally calebrated throughout the country.

Danish Lutherans have closed a big conference at Waupaca, Wis.

President Harrison's letter of acceptance has been given to the public.

Daniel Steele Durrie, librarian of the Wisconsin State Historical society, is dead.

A row of wooden buildings at Portland, Or., owned by C. H. Dodd, was burned Sunday. Loss $100,000. Insured.

Rev. J. F. Chaffee, presiding elder of the Winona conference district of the Methodist church, will retire from active work on account of his health.

Lizzie Borden has been held for trial at Fall River, Mass., on the charge of murdering her father and stepmother. The trial is set for November.

Up to and including the 31st of August the treasury department has shipped to various points in the United States $7,000,000 in small notes to facilitate the moving of the crops.

The New York Standard, founded by Henry George and for a long time a prosperous weekly newspaper, has passed out of existence. It is said to have been run at a loss for some time.

Mrs. General John A. Logan has undertaken to raise $1,000,000 from the women of this country for the American University, the national institution founded by the Methodists at Washington.

Mike Cushing, the well known 126-pound pugilist, died at Fort Hamilton, N. Y., Wednesday afternoon, after a few days illness, aged 27. Deceased was born in Elizadethport, N. J.

Henry Sult and son, of Gilman, Ia., have entered the Pasteur Institute at Chicago for treatment of rabies. They were bitten by a mad dog three weeks ago and lately showed signs of having hydrophobia.

The Minnesota Historical Society will celebrate the 400th anniversary of the discovery of America at the Capitol on Oct. 21, 1892. Assistant Attorney-General Childs will deliver an historical oration and H. L. Gordon will read an original epic poem.

The retail coal dealers of Brooklyn have decided to raise the price of coal 50 cents a ton, from $5.25 to $5.75. The New Jersey Coal exchange notified all dealers in Newark, N. J., that the price of Lehigh had been raised to $6, and free burning coal to $5.75.

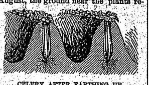
Ex-Secretary Blaine is negotiating for the purchase of a home in Los Angeles, Cal. It is probable that he will not return to Washington. He is said to have reached this determination shortly after the death of his son Emmons, being led to it by the suggestion of friends on account of his health, and to make a change from scenes full of sad association.

FARM AND GARDEN

CELERY CULTURE.

A Method of Blanching Which Is Gaining Favor Among Market Gardeners.

The general requisites in the culture of celery are to keep the ground clean and mellow and the plants in growing condition, for which purpose Greiner, in his work "How to Make the Garden Pay," advises the frequent use of wheel hoe, horse hoe, steel rake and hoe. Next comes the process of "handling." When the plants have made a good growth and the nights begin to get cool, late in August, the ground near the plants receives a thorough loosening, either by plowing a shallow furrow toward the row from each side or by drawing soil up to it with the hoe. The gardener now gets down on his knees, straddling the row, and gathering up all the stalks of one plant after another in his left hand packs the soil firmly around with his right, to retain them in this compact and erect position. More soil is then drawn up, or hoed up, to them.

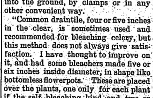


CELERY AFTER EARTHING UP.

No further treatment is necessary for the self blanching sorts to blanch them for market; yet, according to Mr. Greiner, we can greatly improve their flavor by earthing them up like the common varieties. Various methods are employed to blanch the crop. The one, though old, but yet commonly used, is by earthing up or "banking." This had best be done gradually in two or three operations. Soil is dug up from between the rows and banked up against the plants from each side, at the last operation almost to the tips of the leaves, as shown in the accompanying illustration.

In regard to other methods of blanching, Mr. Greiner says: "Blanching by means of boards is coming more and more into favor with market gardeners, and well deserves recommendation. The plants are first 'handled' in the usual way, and boards ten inches wide are then set on edge against the rows from each side, as here illustrated, and held in that position by tying a string around each set of two at each end, by pegs driven into the ground, by clamps or in any other convenient way.

"Common draintile, four or five inches in the clear, is sometimes used and recommended for bleaching celery, but this method does not always give satisfaction. I have thought to improve on it, and had some bleachers made five or six inches inside diameter, in shape like bottomless flowerpots. These are placed over the plants, one only for each plant if the self bleaching kind, and two or even three—one above the other—for each plant of the common kind. I have had good success with it and grown some fine blanched celery; but it seems to me that the expense connected with the purchase and breakage of the pots, and the labor required for storing and taking to and off the field, must prevent the more extensive or general use of this method.



BLANCHING WITH BOARDS.

"Early in the season, and while the plants are yet growing rapidly, celery bleaches beautifully in from two to three weeks after banking or boarding up, and is then in first class condition for use or market. Later it will take four or five weeks, perhaps even more, to bring the plauts out in marketable shape."

Weak Colonies.

Weak colonies of bees should not be wintered anywhere under any circumstances, for the reason that they are not worth wintering. If a colony be weak at the beginning of the winter, it will be weaker, if not dead, in the spring. Before the first flow of honey comes the colony must be strong, not only in bees, but in future bees—bees in the brood combs—the hives crowded and running over with workers, if any profit is to be obtained. In short, the early spring is not the time to begin to lay the foundation of summer strength. This must be done in the fall, and then, really, the growth of the colony begins anew. In the fall, if there are twenty weak colonies let them be united, if it takes the twenty to make one colony. One strong booming colony may do more the next year than the twenty, so far as profit is concerned, affirms a correspondent of The Country Gentleman.

Management of Hen Manure.

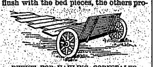
The most valuable property of hen manure is ammonia. If allowed to liberate it loses its value as a fertilizer. For the better preservation of the droppings a loose earthen floor, of dry road dust is best, for it catches all of the droppings of the fowls when not on the perches, and the frequent dusting covers them and prevents the liberation of the ammonia. Common ground plaster is excellent to mix with the manure. It can be sprinkled freely on the droppings during night and put away in barrels in a dry, cool place till needed. The dropping board should be movable, taken out every morning and scraped into the barrel, and then shake a heavy layer of plaster over the manure each time, about ten parts of plaster (gypsum) to one of manure. A fine tooth rake, made purposely for this use, will gather the loose droppings which can be treated in the same way.—Stockman.

CORNSTALK AND TOW CARTS.

Two Contrivances That Are Used by Many Long Island Farmers.

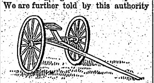
At Fig. 1 is shown a cornstalk or ensilage cart. It is sixteen to eighteen feet long, with an axle six feet long.

Two strong bed pieces are bolted on the under side of the axle close to the wheels, approaching to within a foot of each other in front. Boards are nailed on these, each alternate one coming out flush with the bed pieces, the others projecting some inches. Two small wide tired wheels are used. In loading one can easily walk up between the boards with an armful of stalks and put them anywhere on the load. In using this cart the front end is lifted and fastened to the axle of a tow cart, shown at Fig. 2.



DEVICE FOR HAULING CORNSTALKS.

This tow cart is simply a pair of wheels with an axle and tongue and a seat for the driver. It can be readily hitched to any load and the horses will pull more comfortably than with ordinary whiffletrees. Long Island farmers will hitch their tow carts to heavy loads on bad spots in the roads, to road machines or anything else needing a temporary lift. Thanks are due to Rural New Yorker for the foregoing cuts and descriptions. We are further told by this authority that in carting stalks to the barn some farmers set a stout pole at the front of the wagon with another pole playing on the top of it like an old fashioned well sweep. There is a rope hoop at the end of this pole with which they can lift a bundle or shock and swing it into the wagon. Others use the hay slings for unloading stalks.



A LONG ISLAND TOW CART.

Tomatoes and Potatoes Grafted Together.

At a recent meeting of Indiana horticulturists the question was asked, "Is it true that tomatoes and potatoes can be grafted together and bear a double crop?"

A professor at the Padua university present replied, "It is a fact that plants thus grafted have been made to grow tomatoes above ground and potatoes below ground."

W. H. Ragan, while admitting that the tomato and potato are closely related, expressed the opinion that we can go only a little way in this direction of crossing certain species of plants, and that the graft connecting the potato with the tomato must be an imperfect one. He thought that usually the union will be only mechanical.

An Indiana farmer present did not believe the time would ever come when potatoes and tomatoes will be grown on the same vine for profit, though it may be done as a curiosity.

Pastures in Autumn.

A correspondent writing in the New York World says: "One often reads directions about not feeding off pastures too early in the spring, but the caution is not so frequently given about feeding off too late in autumn. According to my experience and observation, there is no severer drain on the vitality of the plants than the one occasioned by close cropping of pastures and meadows late in the fall. The injury is especially pronounced if the season chances to be a very dry one. The following spring the grass will fail to start early, and throughout the season there will be a short crop of grass and hay. There is not a doubt but that some growth in autumn is required to give grass the strength for a good, fair, start the succeeding spring."

A Convenient Farm Gate.

A farm gate that appears to have decided advantages is described in The Rural New Yorker. This gate was built in two sections, which closed in the center. The gates were each about eight feet wide. A socket on the ground in the center of the driveway received the posts of the gate when closed and prevented sagging. The advantages of such a gate are obvious. It can be built of short timber, and as the weight is divided, the wear on each section is less than where the gate is in one piece. It is far more convenient to open a small gate than a large one when much width is not required. The double gate is neat and attractive, and its construction is so simple that any one "handy" with tools can construct one with ease.

Bee Buzzings.

To beekeepers tempted to use old sections, Mr. C. H. Dibbern says, "If intended for market it is poor policy, as it is discounting the crop in advance."

The American Bee Journal says: "Honey should be ripened in the hive before being extracted. It may be stored in stone jars, in tin tanks or in wooden barrels, care being taken not to have wood which will taint the honey. Zinc or galvanized iron must not be used for storing honey under any circumstances."

A. I. Root affirms that "the great unsolved problem in beekeeping is to control swarms when working for comb honey, or at least make it impossible for an out apiary to be run so as not to require the constant attention of a managing apiarist. Automatic swarmers, while far from perfect, give us hope. While they may in time become an entire success, they may prove to be an utter failure."

George A. Stockwell advises when there are weak colonies in the fall to unite them if it takes twenty weak ones to make one strong booming colony, and this one will the next year do better than the twenty so far as profit is concerned.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

O. M. Hall has been renominated by Third district Democrats.

Work has commenced on the electric railway connecting St. Paul and Stillwater.

Judge Kelly has decided that the Commercial bank, of St. Paul, may resume business.

The custom collections at St. Paul for August amounted to $20,000 and the revenue to $224,000.

Republicans of the Seventh district have nominated Henry Feig, of Kandiyohi county, for congress.

James W. Lawrence, of Minneapolis, has been nominated by the Democrats of the Fifth district for congress.

Minneapolis has two girl burglars aged 15 and 16. They were captured coming out of a residence, loaded down with plunder.

A. Detle, a shoemaker of Jordan, committed suicide by hanging himself in his shop. Domestic troubles are suppose to be the cause.

Scarlet fever is so prevalent in West Duluth that the opening of the Fairmount, Irving and Longfellow schools has been postponed.

Lightning struck the barn of Gustav Hartkopf, near Ortonville, burning the building and killing five horses and thirty-five or forty head of sheep.

The survivors of the battle of Birch Coolie, fought against the Indians in 1862, held a reunion at the Merchants hotel, St. Paul, to celebrate its thirtieth anniversary of that event.

A meeting of grain dealers of Southern Minnesota and Northern Iowa was held at Winona last week. The object of the meeting was to fix grades and transact other business preparatory to handling this year's crop.

The new directory of Winona, just issued, contains 8,000 names, an increase of 600 in two years. Using the multiple of 2 1-2, customary in this kind of calculation, the population of the city is now 20,000, as against 18,543 two years ago.

M. U. Bower, of Mankato, employed on the farm of A. Clark, just west of Redwood Falls, was struck by lightning and instantly killed and two men standing near him were knocked senseless and terribly shocked. Two horses were also killed.

The government has bought out all the contractors upon the river work in the vicinity of Hastings and will undertake the job in person under the eight-hour law. It will cost, probably, about double the amount paid under the old system.

Advance sheets of Polk's new Duluth directory show 24,072 names, an increase of 1,932 for the year. It uses 2 7-8 as a multiple, showing a population of 69,207, an increase of 5,558 over last year. This includes West Duluth, Lakeside and other suburbs.

The "face in the glass" in the Catholic church, in Canton, is still attracting the credulous from far and near. Last Sunday not less than a thousand people visited Canton to see what some claim to be a picture of "Mary with the Child Jesus" in her arms.

President Hill, of the Great Northern, has given his check to agents of a New York life insurance company for $186,850 for a policy of $100,000 and an extra annuity beginning ten years from date of $6,200. This is said to be the largest single premium for life insurance ever paid in the United States.

All the elevators belonging to the Lake Superior Elevator company and Union Improvement and Elevator company are now operated as private warehouses. This action results primarily from the annoyance and inconvenience caused the elevator companies by the action of the wheat investigating committee last winter.

A pardon has been granten to Lloyd Porter, editor of The Prison Mirror. He was sent up in November, 1884, for murder, to serve a life sentence. While intoxicated he endeavored to shoot a man with whom he had quarreled, and hit and killed another man standing near, who was looking on. He is 35 years old and a printer.

William Henry Allen, an inmate of the Minnesota Soldiers' Home, has received notice that by the death of a brother in California, he has fallen heir to a large slice of an estate valued at from $10,000,000 to $20,000,000. A nephew of the deceased gets the larger slice of it, but as William Henry's portion amounts to about $6,000,000, he thinks that by rigid economy he may manage to get along during the remainder of his natural life.

William Cunningham, of Crookston, has a crab-apple tree in his garden that is 25 feet high. Its branches spread over 30 feet of ground, and it has over 10 bushels of fruit upon it. From a limb 17 inches long 84 apples were picked. For a tree grown in Northern Minnesota this is a prodigious growth, and proves that fruit trees can be successfully cultivated in this region of country. Those who have seen the tree say that it contains more fruit than they ever saw on a tree of its class before in this state, or the Northwest. From three trees in his yard he expects to pick over 25 bushels of apples.

Partial investigation of the so-called Canton window miracles has been made under the direction of Bishop Cotter by a priest who has devoted some time to scientific studies. The priest says a faint image of a young woman, smiling and showing her teeth, appears in the lower left-hand quadrant, while to the right of this, very indistinct, is an object that appears like a doll. The priest explains the appearance of these images on the ground of molecular polarisation, some living image of a young woman having been cast upon the glass when it was heated in making. The action of sunlight on the glass has made clear the outline of her figure.

IT MEANS BUSINESS.

I have never been so busy as at present, which speaks well for the manner in which my business is conducted. There is no friction. Mistakes do not pay, so I do not provide for them. I am giving satisfaction to all my customers. That means I am giving Prompt Service, Low Prices and Good Work. I have the handsomest and best selected stock, and if business is what I expect it to be this fall,

GOODS MUST MOVE.

C. H. SAAKE, Practical Watchmaker and Jeweler.

TRY PEAKE,

THE MAIN STREET HARNESS MAKER,

FOR BARGAINS.

CHRISTIANSON BROS.,

Abstracters of Title, Loans, Real Estate and Insurance:

N. B. FARM LOANS a specialty. Terms, three to five years. Lowest rate of interest, payable annually at our office.

☞ Choice FARM LANDS for sale cheap, on terms to suit purchasers. ☜

Office on Robert Street, CROOKSTON, MINN

ALDERMAN & SYLVESTER,

—DEALERS IN—

Shelf and Heavy

HARDWARE,

Sash, Doors and Mouldings

Mixed Paints, Linseed and Machine Oils, Flying Dutchman Gang Plows, J. Thompson & Sons Walking Plows. Sole agents for the Domestic Sewing Machine,

A FULL AND COMPLETE STOCK OF

STOVES AND RANGES

Corner Main and Fletcher Sts., - - - Crookston.

NEW FEED MILL

CHRIS. ANDERSON, Prop.

I desire to annouce to the farmers of Polk County that I have rented the

LAURENCE BUILDING, ON MAIN STEERT,

Next to Brown's New Livery Stable, and am now prepared to grind feed of all kinds promptly. You can get your feed in two hours after you bring me your grain. Prices Reasonable

Try My New Mill !

GASOLINE ENGINES

The Coming Power of the Northwest!

NO ENGINEER REQUIRED, NO FIREMAN,

No Boiler to Burst and no Expensive Wood or Coal Required. Runs at a cost of about 12 cents per day per actual horse power developed; that is, if you have a 6 horse-power engine and your machinery was but 3 horse power the cost of running your engine would be 36 cents for 10 hours.

The Lewis Gasoline and Vapor Engine

Is the Best Engine Made. One of these engines may now be seen in the JOURNAL pressrooms in Crookston. For further information or catalogue, call on or address

S. B. PALMER, Lockhart, Norman Co., Minn.

Polk County Journal.

BY COOKE & HAMMOND.

Devoted to the Welfare of Polk County.

OFFICIAL PAPER, CITY OF CROOKSTON.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Dollar and Fifty Cents, if paid in advance to any address inside of Polk County. If outside of Polk County 15 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum to any address.

The date opposite your name on this paper shows the time your subscription is paid up to. The JOURNAL would like to have all those who are in arears, and can spare the money, remit as soon as possible, as the new management would like to get all the old accounts settled up.

THE REPUBLICAN TICKET.

National.

President—BENJAMIN HARRISON,
Of Indiana.

Vice-Pres.—WHITELAW REID,
Of New York.

State.

Governor—KNUTE NELSON,
Of Alexandria.

Lieut. Gov.—D. M. CLOUGH,
Of Minneapolis.

Sec. of State—F. P. BROWN,
Of Blue Earth County.

Atty-Gen.—H. W. CHILDS,
Of Otter Tail County.

Treas.—JOS. BOBLETER,
Of Brown County.

Supreme Court Judges—
C. E. VANDERBURGH,
D. A. DICKINSON,
WILLIAM MITCHELL.

Congressional.

Congressman 7th District—
HENRY FEIG,
of Kandiyohi County.

COMING EVENTS.

Sept. 21—Republican county convention at Crookston.

Sept. 22—Republican legislative convention at Crookston.

Sept. 28—Mark Dunnell lectures at Crookston.

Republican County Convention.

The Republican County Convention for the county of Polk will be held in the Court House in the City of Crookston at 1 o'clock p. m. on Wednesday, the 21st day of September, 1892, for the purpose of placing in nomination the following county officers for said county:

Auditor, Treasurer, Register of Deeds, County Attorney, Sheriff, Judge of Probate, Superintendent of Schools, Surveyor, Coroner, Court Commissioner, Commissioners of 1st, 2nd, 3rd and 5th districts.

Also for the election of delegates to the 51st district Republican Legislative Convention to be hereafter called, and for the transaction of such other business as may properly come before it.

The several election precincts are entitled to the following number of delegates, the basis of representation being one delegate for each organized town or precinct, and one additional delegate for each forty votes or major fraction thereof cast for the Republican candidate for President in 1888, viz:

Andover	2	Lambert	1
Angus	1	Lake Pleasant	1
Black River	2	Lessor	3
Brandsvold	3	Louisville	1
Badger	2	Liberty	2
Bray	2	Lowell	2
Belgium	1	Nesbit	2
Brislet	1	North	2
Bygland	2	Northland	2
Columbia	2	Norden	2
City E. G. Forks	4	Numedal	1
City of Crookston—		Onstad	2
1st ward	4	Parnell	1
2d "	3	Poplar River	1
3d "	2	Polk Center	2
4th "	5	Queen	3
5th "	1	Red Lake Falls—vil.	3
Town of Crookston	2	Red Lake Falls—town	1
Eden	1	Reis	2
Emardville	1	River Falls	1
Euclid	2	Roome	2
Fairfax	2	Roxbury	2
Farley	1	Russia	1
Fanny	1	Rosebud, including village of Fosston	3
Vil and town of Fisher	4
Grand Forks	2	St. Hilaire	2
Garden	4	Sanders	2
Garfield & vil. Fertile	4	Sandsville	2
Gervais	1	Sletten	3
Gentilly	2	Sullivan	2
Godfrey	3	Tabor	1
Grove Park	2	Terrebonne	2
Hammond	1	Tilden	2
Higdem	2	Tynsid	2
Hill River	3	Vineland	3
Hubbard	3	Winger	3
Huntsville	2	Woodside	3
Keystone	2	Wyandotte	2
Kertsonville	1		—
King	3	Total	159
Knute	3

A. A. MILLER, Secretary. A. D. STEPHENS, Chairman.

THE Minneapolis Exposition opened on September 1st with due ceremony.

IT took 1516 ballots to nominate a congressman in Texas recently. The Texans are stayers.

LLOYD PORTER, the whilom editor of the Prison Mirror, published in the Stillwater penitentiary, has lost his job. He has been pardoned.

JUST think of an increase of $6,377,925.09 in wages paid in the state of New York in one year under the McKinley bill. And the democrats say there's "nothing in it."

THE grand three-days mill has been opened at New Orleans, and the first event—the battle between Jack McAuliff and Billy Myers—was won by the former in fifteen rounds.

KNUTE NELSON is dated to speak at Halstad Nov. 1st, Ada Nov. 2d, Twin Valley Nov. 3d, Fertile on the evening of Nov. 4th, McIntosh Nov. 5th, at noon. Crookston, Nov. 5th, at 8 p. m.

DONELLY certainly has an unlimited amount of gall. In his speeches he asserts that he will be the next governor of Minnesota, with 30,000 plurality—when he knows very well that he dont stand a ghost of a show.

THE death of Geo. Wm. Curtis removes a bright light from the literary world. As the editor of Harper's Monthly and afterwards of Harper's Weekly he was well-known to the reading public. In politics he was a theorist, and as a consequence was never successful.

MARK H. DUNNELL will deliver an address in the opera house, Crookston, Wednesday, evening Sept. 28th. This will be the opening of the campaign in earnest by the republicans.

TUESDAY, August 6th, was labor day, and was generally observed throughout the United States. In the cities there were processions of labor organizations, and the contented, prosperous appearance of the laborers everywhere indicates that the American mechanic is not a lawless, down-trodden creature by any means.

THE cholera scare and even the political situation have been lost sight of for the past few weeks in the all-absorbing coming event the Sullivan-Corbett slugging match. Despite the ridicule and sarcasm which has been heaped upon prize-fighters by the press of the country, the prize-fighting business goes right along as frisky as ever.

THE state fair opened at Hamline on Tuesday, Sept. 6, with many attractions. Besides an excellent exhibit of live stock, there are many splendid features, notably the speeding of Nancy Hanks, the fastest trotter on earth. Visitors to the fair say there has never been a more diversified display at any of our state fairs than is shown this year.

UNLIKE yellow fever, cholera is not checked by frost. Twice has it raged throughout Russia in midwinter when the temperature was never up to zero. The worst epidemic that ever visited St. Petersburg was during an unusually cold winter. If it gets a foothold on America's soil, and is not checked immediately, it is liable to sweep over the country despite the fact that winter is fast approaching.

IT seems as if the speed and endurance of horse flesh was keeping pace with this fast age in which we live. When Maud S trotted a mile in 2:10¼ it was thought this record would never be beaten, but it has been lowered several times, until Nancy Hanks has made the phenomenal record of a mile in 2:05¼ at Independence, Iowa, on August 31st.

ANOTHER proof of the benefits of the McKinley bill is the fact that tinplate manufactories are on the increase in this country, there being forty-two now in operation. The cost of these mills was $6,000,000, and for the year ending June 30th, 1892, they turned out 13,000,000 pounds of tin. There has been ten mills closed down in Wales during the past ten months. These are facts and speak volumes for the principle of protection to American industry.

McIntosh Times:—Are Polk county interests to be represented at the World's Fair? If so it is time we were getting a hustle on ourselves and collecting samples of our agricultural products, etc., for exhibition.

This is a very pertinent question at this time. The World's Fair commences next May, and if Polk county is to have any of her products on exhibition at the greatest fair that has ever been held, then something must be done AT ONCE toward securing samples of grain, grasses, vegetables, etc. The JOURNAL would suggest that the Crookston chamber of commerce take hold of this matter. In Grand Forks and other North Dakota cities the chambers of commerce have employed men to scour the country and secure an exhibit. Another plan is for the county commissioners to employ men to gather samples. If the matter is left to individuals it will go by default, and the northern portion of Minnesota will have none of its products on exhibition. The only way an exhibit can be collected is through an organization of some kind.

THE CHOLERA PLAGUE.

So long as the cholera epidemic was confined to Europe the American people could complacently read about thousands of people dying, the authorities unable to bury them fast enough, the hospitals filled to overflowing, people dying in the streets, in the alleys, everywhere—and would simply say "it's terrible," but now that the dread disease has been brought to New York, twenty-two deaths occurring on board the steamer Moravia, which arrived at New York last week, causes a feeling of nervousness to spread throughout this country. Of course the passengers of the plague-carrying vessel have been quarantined, and every precaution is being taken to prevent the disease getting a foothold in America, but as the pestilence has spread throughout Europe and has also been discovered in English ports, it will be difficult to watch all the American ports and prevent the landing of infested passengers from some of the hundreds of vessels plying between Europe and America. It remains to be seen whether our health officers at the seacoast are equal to the emergency or not.

PROTECTION DOES PROTECT.

Hon. Chas. F. Peck, commissioner of labor for New York, has administered a terrible blow to democracy by his ninth annual report on the condition of labor and manufactures in the year 1891 as compared with 1890. Mr. Peck is a democrat, appointed by a democratic administration, and he virtually confesses in his report that he was obliged to resist partisan pressure in the collection of his statistics for his report. His report shows that there was a net increase in wages of $6,377,925.09, and of production of $31,315,130.60 in the year ending Aug. 31st, 1891, as compared with the previous year. This proves conclusively that protection does protect, else why has there been so much more wages paid out during one year under the McKinley tariff law than in the previous year in the state of New York; and why is there an increase of $31,315,130.60 in the amount of manufactures in one year?

Since the report was made public the democratic press have devoted columns of space to it, trying to explain that there "was nothing in it." There is certainly nothing in it in the way of consolation for them, but the republicans can find something in it.

In concluding his report, Commissioner Peck significantly remarks:

> It has been my experience, as I doubt not it has been that of every statistician more or less, that one often finds himself tempted—unconsciously, perhaps—to pursue an investigation with a view to establish a preconceived theory. How often failure and positive discomfiture follow I can safely leave to those who have engaged in the fascinating study of statistics. To the true statistician, however, uninfluenced by social or political considerations, the profession is an enviable one, and carries with it duties and responsibilities of the highest order. To him theories are as nothing; without facts to support them they become misleading and therefore worthless. Facts and truth are what he seeks; and having possessed himself of them he places them, hard and cold as they often times are, before the public, satisfied that he has done but his duty and thereby attained his highest ambition.

PRESIDENT HARRISON'S letter of acceptance is out, and as was expected, it is an able and comprehensive document. His review of the tariff, the national currency, free coinage of silver, Peck's report, the agricultural interests, the labor question, and in fact everything relating to national affairs is full of interest to even the most careless reader. It is not a dry statistical report, but is filled with logical conclusions and furnishes an abundance of food for thought. It is probably the most carefully prepared, the most exhaustive and the most interesting paper of the kind ever issued by a national executive.

THE action of President Harrison in ordering all vessels coming from cholera infected countries to be quarantined for twenty days receives universal commendation. When danger menaces the country President Harrison is always ready to meet it.

HENRY FEIG, the republican candidate for congress from this district, is a prominent farmer of Kandiyohi county, a staunch republican, a fluent talker, and popular wherever known. His speech of acceptance at the convention was sufficient proof of his ability on the stump.

The Soldiers' Party.

New York Press.

The Republican party was the party of the Union when the Union was in peril from Democratic assaults. Republicans rejoiced when there was a Union victory, and the attitude of the Republican party has been substantially in favor of the soldier during the twenty-seven years that have elapsed since the war closed. It was expressed by Col. Robert G. Ingersoll as follows:

> And right here I want to thank every soldier that fought to make it free. Every one, living and dead. These heroes are dead. They are at rest. They sleep in the land they made free, under the flag they rendered stainless, under the solemn pines, the sad hemlocks, the tearful willows and the embracing vines. They sleep beneath the shadows of the clouds, careless alike of the sunlight or of storm, each in the windowless palace of rest. Earth may run red with other wars—they are at peace. In the midst of battle, in the roar of conflict, they found the serenity of death. I have one sentiment for the soldiers living and dead—cheers for the living and tears for the dead.

In answer to these burning and eloquent words of Col. Ingersoll, what has the Democratic party to offer? Two candidates who took no part in the war for the Union. Grover Cleveland, who had sneers for the living pensioners and vetoes for the pensions of the dead heroes' widows. In common with thousands of other Democrats the Democratic candidates believe the average soldier shouldered his musket for the "money there was in it," and that having once been paid the nation's debt to its soldiers has been canceled.

The mustering of this vast host, the marches to the battlefields, the fierce engagements, the frightful calm that falls like a pall upon the scenes of bloody carnage, the widespread sorrow and affliction that followed never seem to have commanded their attention, occupied their minds nor thrilled their souls. No utterance, public or private, has ever been preserved to indicate that either Cleveland or Stevenson ever thought of those dead heroes so sympathetically referred to by the great Republican orator.

There is a growing undercurrent of belief that if Grover Cleveland is elected he will recommend and succeed in securing legislation that will repeal some of the present pension laws and prevent all further legislation favorable to the Union soldier. All Democrats, when not talking for publication, talk this way. All Democratic statesmen give grudgingly and quibble over the annual expenditures for pensions. And yet, ignoring entirely the sentimental side of this question, the present pension rolls, when all facts are considered, are of comparatively small moment to a nation as rich and prosperous as the United States.

The public debt has been almost wiped out and the interest on our bonds has been faithfully paid. That was a legal and righteous debt to those who loaned freely their money in the dark and doubtful days of civil war and its attendant uncertainties. From nearly $144,000,000 in 1867, the annual amount paid to those who held the bonds of the United States has dwindled to $37,500,000 in 1891. No soldier, no patriot, has ever raised his voice against the discharge of this debt.

But is the debt to those who lost their lives, or who were wounded or maimed, or who contracted disease by which their usefulness has been impaired and their days shortened, any less sacred, less binding or less important to maintain the integrity of the government? In twenty years we have paid nearly $2000,000,000 of the principal of our national debt and $2,500,000,000 in interest. During the same time we have paid out only $1,300,000,000 in pensions, or a trifle more than half the amount paid in interest on the public debt. Here are some facts:

PENSIONS AND INTEREST ON THE NATIONAL DEBT.

Year.	Amount.	Per Capita.
1870	$157,575,700	$4 08
1880	152,534,749	3 04
1890	143,036,139	2 29

Is there really any need for alarm here? If a nation with 38,000,000 population and $30,000,000,000 of wealth was not bowed down by a per capita charge for pensions and interest on the public debt of over $4, is a nation of 65,000,000 population and $63,000,000,000 of wealth going headlong into bankruptcy with a per capita charge for precisely the same purpose of a trifle over $2.25? The Press thinks not. All sensible, patriotic citizens think not. There should be no reckless legislation in this direction. The ordinary safeguards should not be abolished, but the veterans of the war should be fairly and justly treated. The Republican party stands squarely on this issue, and its president has vetoed no pension for a wounded soldier or dependent widow. When in doubt let the soldier have the benefit. A nation with a per capita wealth of $1,000 can afford to pay $1.71 per capita for pensions to the men who saved the Union. For many years it paid $3.35 per capita to the bondholders for interest, and now for a short time it is the old soldier's turn.

Yes, for a short time. Within a few weeks there will be a grand reunion of veterans at the national capital. Thousands will parade the broad streets and avenues for the first time since the days of the war. Half of those who went forth to defend the Union are dead. In June, 1890, about 1,100,000 of those who served during the War of the Rebellion were living. Nearly 50,000 have died since then. By the time the last dollar of the national debt has been paid, (1909) not much over half a million of this grand and patriotic army will be with us. Another decade will cut that number in half, and in half a century (a short time in a nation's history) but a few hundred will remain, and the great army will indeed sleep in the land they made free. It will matter not to them whether this government kept faith or not, but to the living of to-day and the dependents of those already dead it is a question of great moment. And for this reason the veterans regard the Republican party as the soldiers' party.

Elevating Journalism.

THE McIntosh News calls Charlie Lanman's paper the "putrid remains of a Crookston office cuspidore."

Here is the way Charlie Lanman gets back at Hunt:

Bro. Hunt, the I am an angel editor, of the News, who fraternizes with the People's party, soft soaps Lawler, and, we are creditably informed, pledges his vote to Harrison and Carnegie, is now busily engaged in reading his superiors out of the party.

ONE YEAR OF TARIFF.

MAJOR M'KINLEY'S CLAIMS FULLY AND ABSOLUTELY VINDICATED.

The Admissions of General Walker, a Noted Statistican and Free Trader. Wages Raised and Prices Lowered by the McKinley Bill—Some Figures.

The first full year of the operation of the McKinley law, tin plate clause and all, is an absolute vindication of Major McKinley's claim that protection tends to increase wages and to lower prices, and of President Harrison's position that reciprocity treaties, made effective by general protection, tend to increase our foreign commerce. First, as to wages. General Francis A. Walker, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, whose standing as a statistician is shown by the fact that he was superintendent of the tenth census, and who is himself a free trader, admits, in his work on "Political Economy," that protection does tend to create and maintain higher wages in the protected industries.

One of the features of the McKinley law is an increase in the duties on the finer grades of cotton goods, and if Major McKinley, protectionist, and General Walker, free trader, are right on this point, in which they agree, we would naturally expect to hear of higher wages in the centers of the cotton industry. The greatest cotton manufacturing city in all New England is Fall River, which contains 15.47 per cent. of all the cotton factories in the country, and one of the greatest is Providence. Here is the impartial testimony of Bradstreet's, one of the leading commercial journals of the country, in its regular department, entitled "The Boston Dry Goods Market:"

"The supply of cloths at Fall River and Providence is not allowed to accumulate. The mills are sold ahead, and manufacturers have been able to raise the wages of operatives."

Readers of the last Sunday Press found in it more about the prosperity of Fall River under the McKinley tariff on cotton goods. Cotton cloth is cheaper. There is a larger demand for it, because the home market has been reserved for the home manufacturer, and with a larger market at hand the manufacturer could afford to produce on a larger scale, which always means a lower cost of production per unit of product and lower prices to the consumer. One Fall River manufacturer says:

"I do know that we are prosperous, and I also know that if we did not have protection we would have to shut down our mills. As it now is my company is building new mills so that it can be able to meet the demands upon it."

Another Fall River manufacturer says:

"There can be but one inference. The people of the country are buying more of our goods. This naturally shows that the whole country is in a more prosperous condition than it has been, or that everybody has suddenly made up his mind to buy calicoes and other cotton fabrics."

So much for the effect of the tariff on the wages of the producer and the cost of the product in the protected industries. In view of these effects, it is as much an act of lunacy to complain of the slight temporary increase of price that accompanies an increased duty until increased production does its work in increasing the supply as it is to complain of the decreased visible supply of wheat when seed wheat is planted, to come up a hundredfold at harvest.

Equally significant is the effect on foreign trade. The McKinley law, be it remembered, is not hostile to foreign trade. It added to the free list over fifty articles which we do not produce, and it provided for reciprocity treaties by which our products were admitted on preferential terms to the markets of the countries which exported these articles that had been placed on the free list. Moreover, it had encouraged our own farmers to sow larger crops in view of the increased home market which the law had given them, both directly, by duties on various agricultural products, and indirectly, by increasing the opportunities and the consuming power of all the industrial classes.

One result for the past fiscal year was the result of the enormous total of $1,030,335,626 worth of exports, $145,854,816 more than in the previous year, while the imports were $827,391,284, a decrease of $17,524,912. There was of course an enormous increase in the exports of breadstuffs (in spite of the free trade orators' prediction that protection would rob the farmer of his foreign market), and the details of the fiscal year show that the exports of cattle, sheep, hogs and mineral oils also increased. The reports of the following articles showed an increase for the eleven months ending May 31 (the details for the whole fiscal year being not yet published): Agricultural implements, printed matter, coal, copper ingots, fruits and nuts, furs and skins, hops, iron and steel manufactures, sewing machines, steam engines, oilcake and oilcake meal, cottonseed oil, paraffin and wax, fresh beef, oleomargarine, butter, seeds and manufactures of wood.

The average ad valorem duty levied on the imports—not the dutiable imports, but the total imports—was only 20.65 per cent. Why was this? Because so much of our total imports was not dutiable at all, the imports duty free being $91,759,793 more than in 1891 and 55.39 per cent. of the whole. Protection seems to have taken from free trade all that was valuable in the idea, for never did American trade, domestic or foreign, seem more free to grow and to go than it is under this protective tariff act.—New York Press.

A Rag on Every Bush.

The Democrats are fusing with the People's party in the north and fighting it in the south, but such inconsistency is entirely consistent from their point of view. They want votes and are willing to practice any sort of trickery to get them.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A Democratic Candidate's Plan.

John P. Altgeld has declared himself against a nonpartisan judiciary in Chicago, and has asked the Democrats of Cook county to nominate a full number of candidates for the present vacancies on the bench and for those which will occur during the year. This attempt to turn the judiciary of a great city into a partisan body stamps Altgeld as a dangerous demagogue. The best Democrats in Chicago are satisfied with the present equal division of the judges between the parties, and are opposed to the idea of having them all of one politics. The nonpartisan plan has been in operation twelve years, and the longer it is tried the stronger it grows in favor.—Bloomington (Ills.) Pantagraph.

Stevenson's "Strength."

As the days following the Democratic convention at Chicago increase in number, it appears that there was more method than madness in the nomination of Adlai Stevenson to the vice presidency. While as yet there does not seem to be sufficient proof to positively connect him with the avowed enemies of the government in 1863 and 1864, or to utterly damn him in the north, the mere fact that Cleveland's running mate is openly charged with such disloyalty will perhaps serve to strengthen his ticket in certain sections of the south.—Philadelphia North American.

Democracy Has No Issue.

The stuffed indignation of the Democratic editors and statesmen over the force bill is one of the most amusing phases of the present campaign. Of course nobody cares a fig about the force bill outside of the south, which is all Democratic anyway, and the bill is not an issue anywhere. The fact is, Democracy has no real issue on which it dares to make a fight, and so they are forced to erect their own scarecrow and shake their fists at the ragged monster.—Oakland (Cal.) Tribune.

A Plain Issue.

This is going to be a campaign of education. The tariff is to be the issue. There will be no shrinking from the test on either side. It is a question whether America shall be for the American people, including all who have come to our shores and have adopted our customs and laws, or whether we shall give up developing our own country and depend largely on Europe for our manufactures. That is all there is of it.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Free Traders Won't Announce It.

No free trade paper will announce the fact that the Cotton Manufacturers' association at Fall River, Mass., has, without solicitation of its thousands of employees, voted to pay the same wages for fifty-eight hours a week that it has been paying for sixty hours and to advance the pay of piece workers 3½ per cent. No such advance has been made abroad in years; in fact the tendency is downward.—Indianapolis Journal.

Do You Want Them?

The area covered by the Carnegie works is about 0.2 ■ of a square mile. The area of the United States into which the free traders want to introduce lower wages by lower duties is 2,700,000 square miles, or 400,000 times larger than this:

▬▬▬▬▬▬▬▬▬▬▬▬▬▬▬▬

—New York Press.

A Responsive Industry.

No industry in the history of manufacturing has ever responded more promptly to encouragement than the tin plate industry in this country. It has done better than was expected by those who believed it would be wise business policy to make for ourselves a great share of the tin plate we consume.—Louisville Commercial.

All Trusts Are for Cleveland.

Phil Armour says he will support Cleveland. Of course he will. All the trusts are for him. The Sugar trust framed the sugar provision of the Mills bill in 1888, and made a big contribution to the Cleveland campaign fund in that year, while the Standard Oil trust is running his canvass this year.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Steve and Cleve.

The first thing "Cleve" did when "Steve" arrived at Gray Gables was to invite him to inspect his new brand of bait and to show him the corner of the refrigerator where the Jeffersonian simplicity is kept. After examining the tackle "Steve" ceased to wonder at "Cleve's" big luck as a fisherman.—New York Press.

A House Divided Against Itself.

On every question of public policy the Democratic party has developed violent differences and has become a house divided against itself, and therefore unable to stand. On one subject point, however, Democrats are a unit; they are all frantic to toast their toes in some good office.—Waterbury Republican.

Henri Is Deliberating.

Will somebody inform us whether or not Henry Watterson will vote for Cleveland for president in November? We have not heard much from him as to what the Democrats should do since the Chicago convention adjourned.—Charleston News and Courier (Dem.).

Making It Easy for Republicans.

The Democratic convention and the Democratic congress together have done much toward making the Republican campaign work this year light and easy, with full assurance of reward.—Kansas City Journal.

Palmer Helps Republicans.

Senator Palmer's anarchistic speech will add at least 5,000 votes to the Republican majority in Illinois.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Motion to Amend.

Senator Hill should amend it to read, "I am a Democrat on the quiet."—Washington Post.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

WITH OUR EXCHANGES.

When Brown Meets Brown.

Warren Sheaf: Horace W. Brown, the republican candidate for county attorney, has challenged Wm. C. Brown, the candidate of the democratic and people's parties, to a joint discussion of the issues involved in the present campaign throughout Marshall county, the first meeting to be not later than Sept. 12th.

Alliance Men to Support Nelson.

Warren Sheaf: G. O. Lien, one of the leading alliance men of Foldal, was in town last Thursday. In a conversation which we had with him Mr. Lien expressed himself as having no faith whatever in Donnelly and he will therefore support Knute Nelson for governor, and thinks that a great many alliance men out his way will do the same.

Will Vote the Republican Ticket.

McIntosh News (People's): The editor of the St. Hilaire Spectator, after his father had received the nomination for district judge, said that he intended to give the People's party the same enthusiastic support that he had always given the Republican party. Judging from the appearance of his paper, the Republican party is the gainer by the transaction, as the People's party has certainly not gained anything by the addition of the Spectator. It will be pretty nice to have the farmers vote for "papa" for judge, while Harry and the rest of the gang vote the good old Republican ticket.

Love's Labor Lost.

It is said that the notorious Ed. Love, of Kittson county, is figuring to capture the democratic nomination for representative in the legislature, says the Warren Sheaf. If we possessed any influence with the democrats we should say, give it to Love, for when the campaign would be over he would have gathered sufficient material for a great political comedy, entitled, Love's Labor Lost.

Distances to Washington.

From St. Louis to Washington the distance is 894 miles; from Cincinnati to Washington 553 miles; from Chicago to Washington 813 miles. This is via the bee line followed by the B. & O. railroad, the most picturesque as well as the most direct route from the Mississippi River to the Atlantic seaboard, stretching across level and fertile prairies, amid hills and valleys, over mountain crests, along banks of historic rivers, through teeming cities and bustling towns. Through B. & O. trains, with full Pullman equipment of Sleeping, Parlor and Buffet cars, run from St. Louis to Washington in 29 hours; from Cincinnati to Washington in 18 hours; from Chicago to Washington in 25 hours. Sleepers from all points run through to New York from the West without change. At Washington connection is made with the B. & O.'s matchless Royal Blue Line for Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York. These Royal Blue trains consist of the staunchest and finest Coaches, Parlor and Sleeping cars ever built by the Pullman Company; are vestibuled from end to end, and are protected by Pullman's improved anti-telescoping device, which makes every car as safe as it can be made by man's ingenuity and skill. All the cars are heated by steam and lighted by Pintsch gas. They are the fastest trains in the world, placing New York and Washington within five hours' reach.

Where the Fashions Come From.

Fashion is called a "fickle jade"—and yet nearly every style is designed with some special object in view. Often the manufacturer has created some new material which he desires to place before the merchant; to make the best impression possible he has samples of the new material placed with some of the best modists, whose special designers will study the goods, its color and texture, and its combinations with other colors and materials. While experimenting with the material they create some new style to attract attention; these designs are reproduced in colored plates and sent to all prominent dealers to give them an idea of the value of the new material. If these styles are liked they become the fashion.

Sometimes a dress made for some leading artist, who has to dress as well as act the character in the play, is often so beautiful or unique as to cause a sensation, and it immediately becomes all the rage.

Most large establishments in Paris have special artists who furnish them each month with a certain number of new styles suitable for the season and the new materials. From these the best are selected and the garment made up accordingly.

The reason La Mode de Paris, Paris Album of Fashion and La Couturiere give the earliest styles and those that are reliable is because they are at the very fountain head of Fashion and know just what is going to be popular. When you get a fashion journal get one upon which you can depend for correct ideas of style and material, for remember that if you wish to show correct and good taste yourself you will need to study those styles which are artistic and reliable. If you wish to keep up to the styles we advise you to subscribe for La Mode de Paris, $3.50 per year, or Paris Album of Fashion, $3.50 per year. These are the most artistic fashion journals published. La Couturiere is a fine home journal for $3.00 per year and La Mode is only $1.50 per year.

You can generally get single copies from your newsdealer, but do not allow him to give you some other journal for one of these. You can get them if you write to the publishers, Messrs. A. McDowell & Co., West 44th Street, New York.

READY MADE CLOTHING.

Another Load for the Calamityite Camel to Bear.

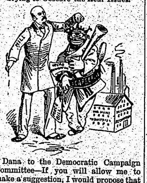
Rochester is after New York and Philadelphia the largest center of the manufacture of ready made clothing. It is a convenient locality for subjecting one of the Democratic issues of 1890 to a practical test. It was assumed two years ago that prices of ready made clothing would be advanced in consequence of the passage of the McKinley act, and also that the wages of workmen in that trade would be reduced by manufacturers as an offset to the increased cost of material.

Our staff correspondent shows that neither of these results has followed. Ready made clothing is as cheap as it was two years ago and the workmen are making as good wages, with the marked advantage of steadier employment. The price lists and wage schedules of the manufacturers demonstrate the falsity of the predictions made two years ago in both respects.

It was one of the chief objects of the McKinley act to secure the production in the United States of a large variety of the finer manufactures of both woolen and cotten goods. This result has already been partially accomplished. Enlargements and improvements in woolen mills have been made, and many new factories have been built. Not only is every woolen mill in the country running on full time, but there is also a marked improvement in the qualities of manufactured goods. The greatest activity prevails in this branch of business, and the number of competitors for supplying the home market with materials for clothing is rapidly increasing.

If the McKinley law remains in operation a few years longer the effect of largely increased competition will be fully produced, and great reductions to consumers will inevitably follow. Meanwhile there is no increased burden to consumers and no decline in wages, and the volume of business in manufacturing woolens and clothing is expanding enormously.—New York Tribune.

Trying to Obscure the Real Issues.



Dana to the Democratic Campaign Committee—If you will allow me to make a suggestion, I would propose that the portion of the Democratic campaign which relates to the force bill be intrusted to the pen of Senator Hill, of this state.—New York Press.

What protection has done and what a Democratic revenue tariff has done are matters of history. From 1847 to 1861, under a free trade revenue tariff, the balance of trade against us was more than $431,000,000, and there were but two years of the fifteen when the balance of trade was in our favor; while in the fifteen years from 1876 to 1891 there were just two years when the balance of trade was against us. We were then under protection thirteen years when the balance of trade was in our favor, and that balance aggregated $1,640,445,246. Which period was the most profitable to the American people?—Governor McKinley.

The Democratic Way.

The country has recently experienced four important and serious strikes. At Homestead the strike was commenced by boss workmen engaged at exceedingly high wages in producing articles on which the tariff had been reduced by the McKinley bill. At the Cœur d'Alene silver mines the strike was by union workingmen engaged in producing an article which bears no tariff duty. In Tennessee the issue is convict labor and in New York the trouble is in the untariffed railroad business. Yet the whole thing will be charged to the oppression and robbery of the McKinley tariff tax.—Minneapolis Tribune.

Whitney Cannot Swallow It.

Mr. Whitney is a protection Democrat, and as such he cannot subscribe to the free trade plank of the Chicago platform which was adopted as a substitute for the famous "straddle." That is why he refuses to become the chairman of the Democratic committee and make a campaign for free trade, as he would be expected to do. As an independent Democratic worker for Cleveland he can go through the campaign with a clear conscience without being called upon to father any of the lying free trade circulars with which the committee will flood the country.—Cleveland Leader.

GROVER'S EPISTLES.

MURAT HALSTEAD'S ANALYSIS OF CLEVELAND, THE CORRESPONDENT.

Democracy's Original and Unique Ideas as to the Proper Method of Demonstrating Its Surpassing Love for the People—Some Sapient Reflections.

The accepted interpretation of Mr. Cleveland's many laborious little letters is that he is an uncommonly anxious citizen. Forced as he was as a presidential candidate upon the convention of his party by the pertinacity of personally interested friends, who had tasted office along with him and permitted success by the flimsiness of an opposition that lacked the courage of its ambition; nominated against the bitterly serious protest of the unanimous delegation of his own state, his defeat would be annihilation. The deliberate, signed declaration of the New York men in the convention—seventy-two in number—was that his nomination would imperil the success of the party, for it would expose to defeat the electoral ticket of the state, and if this judgment should be vindicated the responsibility would fall upon the candidate, and there would be less of him forever after than of any other man who ever had a period of national conspicuity.

Whether he is to be president for four years or of considerably less importance than David Bennett Hill while they both live naturally causes him some concern, and the pangs of uncertainty are the more acute when he reflects that his only possibility of success rests with those who ostentatiously committed themselves to his failure, doing this before the Democracy in national convention assembled by proclamation and oration. The chance that those who were vehemently against him will be complacently for him depends upon the capacity of those who made a specialty of advocating his claims to efface themselves, and leave him to the mercy of the enemies he was beloved for making, and whose antagonism has been the highest testimonial of his character.

Mr. Cleveland is not only confronted by a condition—he is environed by a situation which is queerly simple, curiously complex and altogether embarrassing. Was it an imprudence in Mr. Cleveland to address one of his letters to ex-Secretary Fairchild, thanking him for his services as an antisnapper and to place upon it the injunction, "Pass it around," which was the prohibition of its publication? One would think Mr. Cleveland ought not to be forbidden civility to a friend whose devotion was a distinction, but Tammany has been touched in a tender spot with the story of thankfulness tendered by Cleveland to the May day friends who rallied after the February frost. There is something more than the heroic suppression of irritation by the fair weather friends.

Mr. William R. Grace has given voice to the sorrows of those who find that their support of a nomination that was made is an offense that the managers of the candidate cannot condone. Mr. Cleveland posing before the Sagamores may forget that differences of opinion existed, but Tammany as the head and front of the Democratic party—the regular and the only recognized delegates at Chicago—has not forgotten the Syracuse rebellion, and if they thought Cleveland would dare to reward those rebels they would make his last presidential defeat as extravagant as his first gubernatorial victory. It is only by renouncing Mugwumpery—by separating himself from the opponents of Tammany—by dealing unmistakably with the tiger—by knowing his boss—that there is a shadow of a show of possibility that the protesting delegation at Chicago shall falsify their prophecy in New York.

Mr. Grace is an old enemy of Tammany and expects nothing. He is in a position to afford to say what seems good to him. His brief indulgence the other day in conversational ability was not at all accidental. The Syracuse suppression had become intolerable. Something had to be said. Mr. Grace owned that there was trouble in the meeting house. It was even mentioned in the same connection that Whitney was blamed—that he was doing too much. He was substantially charged with contracting to keep the mouths of the fair weather folks at Syracuse shut for the season. In his treatment of this delicate predicament Whitney was up to his mark.

He loped around the steep and crooked corner smartly. Of course he said there was dissatisfaction. As for himself, he had declined rather than sought honors. But there would be harmony presently. A Democrat would not mind with what other Democrat he touched elbows. This was just all that could be said. The important facts behind it have not, however, been mentioned. They relate to the extreme trouble Mr. Cleveland is at to do the two horse act. He has to depend upon the faithfulness of his old friends while he makes love to the new ones. The faith of the Mugwumps has been sorely strained. The smugness of the civil service reformers is battered out of view. The alleged independents who saw in Cleveland a personage better than a Democrat—a man rising above his party—are discarded and derided. Tammany is exclusive. Cleveland has been initiated. The reformers are unaccustomed to submissiveness. They can hardly be sure they are alive if they are not making a noise.

The Mugwump journals have been warned to keep off the grass. They are expressly enjoined to be quiet about Senator Hill. It is understood that a few words in the journals that fought Cleveland's battles for him during the years of his presidency and retirement relating to Hill would complete the chemistry in the preparation of a high explosive, and Cleveland would be dynamited. Mr. Whitney is charged with deception. Well, he had to be deceptive in order to make a spectacle of harmony. He held his hand over the mouths of the Syracuse assortment at Chicago, with the promise of the nomination of Cleveland. But the poor snaps thought they were to be charged with the conduct of the campaign for their friend.

They actually had that notion of practical politics. Now they are not allowed to speak audibly. They had pictured to themselves the supervision of the Tammany work for Cleveland. They were to sit around as spies and see that the Tammany people were not traitors. They were to do fine detective work in smelling out treason. Now only their silence is wanted. No talk from them is in order. Mr. Cleveland's private letter cannot be passed around enough to afford them consolation. The Mugwumps, the high minded men, the rise-above-party citizens, the professors of purity and the mouthers of the phrase that a public office is a public trust, the creatures of beneficent political spirituality—those who have flopped before Cleveland—what of them just now? Are they coming into their kingdom at once? Well, apparently not. The fact is they are down with their hands on their mouths and their mouths in the dust. They are so glad Mr. Grace has spoken a few words for them.

The fraud that has been their favorite in politics is roosting high above them now as a fraud. Their pompous pretensions are blown away. If the great Cleveland is not a Tammany man he may be counted as of the departed who shall visit us hereafter only in dreams. It is an excellent thing that the third race of Cleveland has turned inside out the plethoric hypocrisy that has been so loudly and flagrantly identified with his name. There is an irrepressible conflict between the factions of New York, and the shifty policy of Mr. Cleveland since his nomination shows how he was impressed by the power that opposed him. There is nothing to show that the New York delegation was wrong when, in Chicago, in reply to inquiries and under a deep sense of duty, they affixed their signatures to a paper stating the Cleveland candidacy would imperil the party success. Indeed there has been much confirmation in the ten weeks since of the proclamation that is unique as a presidential document.

Mr. Cleveland's notification, with the Stevenson accompaniment, was meant to present a picture of harmony and to give the force bill a good start. But the silence that has prevailed, except in the talks of Grace and Whitney, is not harmony. It is the temporary acquiescence of hostiles in a policy that is an affectation of manner. The Alabama election abolished the force bill sensation. The Homestead strike and all that has been said about it has magnified the tariff question and made it overshadowing. In fact the tariff must have been the supreme theme, if there had been no strike, because the action of the convention in amending the platform submitted by the committee on resolutions placed it in precedence.

The greater the tariff discussion the keener and the more absorbing the interest in the question whether protection and reciprocity shall be abolished became. The language of the substitute resolution is that of violence. The policy it embodies is that of destruction. The Democratic congress in eight months made known that while it might tear down it could not build up. Mr. Cleveland was for years profuse in the use of the words "tariff reform." Well, what has become of it? The house did not pass a bill to give it to us. The Chicago convention could not have made a plainer declaration of destructiveness than it did.

The reformation of the tariff therefore is the destruction of the enormous interests involved in it. That is what is squarely before the country. We had for some time urged upon the attention of the people that no Democrat dared to say whether it was the policy of his party or his policy to continue sugar on the free list. Mr. Cleveland would not say anything. He abused bounties in the spring of 1891, never since. Not a word about sugar could be extracted from him. When Colonel McClure wanted a debate with Major McKinley, and the major and Mr. Watterson had an appointment to meet in Wisconsin, and Watterson was ill, it was stated that it would have been an admirable thing to have telegraphed for McClure. He and McKinley could have had their debate in Wisconsin in better form than in the Philadelphia opera house. We mentioned, however, that neither McClure nor Watterson nor any other Democratic creature would say what he would do, whenever, if ever, he got the power, with sugar.

This proved too much for Watterson, and he says the sugar duties are to be rescinded and the sugar bounties abolished, and he adds, "We mean to rip up, exterminate, abolish, annihilate, and in the foulest ignominy and disgrace, every vestige of the fraud called protection wherever we can find it."

That is it exactly. That is the doctrine of the platform and crowns the edifice. Mr. Watterson's paper, in correspondence with this, presents at the head of the first editorial column what Mr. Cleveland said at Madison square on the tariff, and shouting "The battle is on!" improves the occasion thus: "The Democratic party can gain nothing by making wry faces and throwing harmless tufts of grass at this Republican robber tariff and this Republican robber pension list."

If there had been needed a few words to make the destructive policy of the Democracy plain, this language would have supplied the deficiency. Mr. Watterson was, though not the first speaker on the amendment of the tariff plank, the actual leader in the movement, and we quote him as the platform maker, the highest authority on the platform. If he cannot interpret it no one is competent to do so. He quotes Mr. Cleveland's language to the same effect as his own annotations. Now the Democracy could not evade the rugged issue of the prohibition of protection and the abolishment of reciprocity if they would. They are before the country, undoubtedly boastfully, tauntingly, as destructives. They are mustered as nihilists. They would be the destroyers of the splendors of our civilization. The situation in the south will cause them to be more and more vicious in the tariff fight to which they are committed headlong.—Murat Halstead in New York Press.

FREE TRADERS WEEP

NO ARGUMENT FOR THEM IN THE LABOR TROUBLES.

The Wages of the Men Are Shown to Be Several Times as Large as Those Paid in Europe for More Hours of the Same Work—Three Democratic Governors.

Everybody has noticed the feverish anxiety of Democratic journals to extract some political capital from the labor controversies in various states. But the political influence of these strikes, judging from present appearances, will be decidedly adverse to Democratic hopes. The disclosure about wages paid perhaps affects public opinion more than anything else. The switchmen at Buffalo on eastern roads were receiving $2.50 per day for ten hours, and struck because they demanded the wages paid on roads running west from Buffalo—$2.70 for ten hours.

The work does not require long training nor exceptional skill, and thousands who have had experience, but who have since tried other avocations or who have been thrown out of work by previous unsuccessful strikes, are readily found to take the place of strikers. In England, France, Germany or Austria men at such labor get $6 per week or less, while at Buffalo they receive $15, not including Sundays or extra time, and demanded $16.20.

The dispute about the exact wages of the men at Homestead has done good, for it comes out that even the most ignorant and unskilled laborers received $1.40 to $1.68 per day and substantially all the skilled labor more than $3 per day, while quite a large percentage of skilled workers received $4 per day, and from that to $10 or even more. Men who know anything of the conditions of labor abroad contrast these wages with those paid in other countries, and ask themselves whether it is really true that protection does nothing for labor, as Mr. Cleveland and his friends assert.

When it appears that prices of products in the iron and steel industry have been so greatly depressed by home competition that all the iron workers have now gone back to work, assenting to some reduction of the higher wages, while the steel company proposed no change except for about a tenth of the men who were paid very high wages, the effect upon public opinion as to the tariff does not benefit the free traders.

Neither are the Democrats likely to get any advantage from the dissatisfaction of strikers. It happens that the governors of Pennsylvania, New York and Tennessee are all Democrats. Every order to use troops for the protection of property and the suppression of disorder, whether too long delayed or timely, was given by a Democratic governor. If the use of troops seems censurable to any of the strikers they have only Democratic officials to blame. Governor Pattison tried hard to evade an obvious duty; Governor Flower acted with great promptness; Governor Buchanan paltered with armed insurrection so long that he never did his full duty at all. But they are all Democratic governors.

The communistic tendency manifested in these outbreaks, the lawless spirit shown in destruction of property, in assaults upon men who wished to work and in shooting of guards and others, have caused not a little feeling of alarm. A multitude of conservative and law abiding citizens fear that the demand of organizations, their power over weak and ambitious politicians and the lawless conduct seen in connection with many strikes may presently bring the country into great peril. Whether such fears are exaggerated or not, men of any party can find but one safe and certain remedy, and that is to keep in power the party which never hesitates to enforce law and preserve order.

All conservative citizens have come to know that President Harrison does not take counsel of his fears or his personal ambition when there is any duty to be done. All conservative citizens are aware that the Republican party, however zealous it has been to promote the interests of labor by protection, never countenances lawless violence. Thus all the apprehensions of conservative people tend to strengthen the hold of the Republican party upon their confidence and support. In the important doubtful states this fact is likely to have not a little weight.—New York Tribune.

The report of the treasury shows that dutiable merchandise has decreased under the new law from $478,647,844 the fiscal year ended June 23, 1891, to $369,399,130 the year just past—a decrease of $109,284,705. The free list has in the same time increased $91,759 703. More than one-half the value of our imports is absolutely free. The value of our exports of merchandise the past fiscal year was $1,030,335,626, an increase of $145,854,816 over the previous year—a wonderful increase of our foreign trade under a new law which was to close the foreign markets to us. Our exports never before reached that point in a given year in all our history.—Governor McKinley.

Searching for a Mare's Nest.

It seems to be the peculiar mission of the free trade organs to search this country over with a fine tooth comb in hysterical haste to discover a protected industry which by reason of mismanagement or neglect has proven a failure. This is truly American procedure and is of great aid in advertising this nation.—Omaha Bee.

Ye Elusive Rainbow.

The Democrats may think that by opening headquarters in Chicago they will be able to get a little nearer the foot of the rainbow they have been chasing, but they won't.—Cleveland Leader.

A Pertinent Query.

If the Homestead workmen were so terribly ground down, how is it that they are able to have $180,000, drawing 6 per cent., on deposit with the company?—New York Recorder.

CONCERNING DYNAMITE.

Millions of Dollars Invested in Its Manufacture in the United States.

Very few people have a correct idea of what dynamite is, of what it is made and the uses to which it is put. To the French belongs the honor of its discovery and its practical use.

Nitroglycerin is the force of all high explosives. Dynamite is the name most usually given to these explosives, though other names are sometimes used.

Dynamite is simply nitroglycerin mixed with various ingredients. Nitroglycerin is made by mixing sulphuric and nitric acid with sweet glycerin, the same that is used by the ladies to prevent chapped hands. Mixing the acids and glycerin is where the great danger lies in the making of nitroglycerin. The mixing tank, or agitator, as it is called by dynamite makers, is a large steel tank, filled inside with many coils of lead pipe, through which while the mixing is in progress, a constant flow of ice water is maintained. This flow of ice water is used to keep the temperature of the mix below 85 degs., as above that point it would explode, and a hole in the ground would mark where the factory had been. The nitroglycerin is stored in large earthenware tanks, which are usually sunk in the ground to guard against blows or severe concussion.

The other ingredients for making dynamite are, nitrate of soda (which is found only in Chili), carbonate of magnesia and wood pulp.

Dynamite is put in paper shells usually 1¼ inches in diameter and 8 inches in length, and weighs about one-half pound to each shell or cartridge. It has largely taken the place of black powder for blasting, as it is many hundreds of times stronger, and consequently more economical. It is used chiefly in mining all kinds of ores, coal and rock, and submarine blasting and railroad building. Without its aid many railroads, especially those crossing the Rocky mountains, could not have been constructed; without it Hell Gate, in New York harbor, could not have been destroyed, and without it the miner, at prices now paid for mining ores, could not earn his bread.

Dynamite will not explode from any ordinary fall or jar. It will burn without explosion and freezes at 42 degs., 10 degs. above ordinary freezing point. The bomb is made of metal or glass and filled with pure nitroglycerin arranged so as to explode by severe contact with any hard object. These bombs are of course never made by a reputable dynamite factory.

Five or six millions of dollars are invested in the manufacture of dynamite in the United States, and its use is constantly on the increase. The fumes of nitroglycerin produce intense headache, which can be cured by taking a very small dose of it internally.—Detroit Free Press.

A Logician Out of Place.

A gentleman who stood a few moments at a corner where a large building was in process of erection overheard some remarks made by an Irish workman who evidently fancied himself a logician of no mean order.

He was a sturdy, good natured looking man, but evidently enjoyed leaning on his hod and commenting on what passed around him much better than he did active work. The cry of "mort-mort" usually rang out several times before he heeded it.

"Pat," said the foreman severely, coming upon the man at one of the moments when he was "restin a bit," "why don't you attend to your work and keep that man going?"

"Shure, now," said Pat, shifting his feet and turning a broad smile upon the foreman, "if I was to kape him goin he wouldn't have sorra a thing to say at all; an if he didn't say annything, how would I know he was there? An if he wasn't there fwhat would he be wantin of morther, sorr?"

And Pat marched off with his hod, leaving the foreman not convinced, but certainly confused by this remarkable exhibition of the workings of a logical mind.—Youth's Companion.

The Lorgnette Girl.

What shall be done with this quintessence of graceful impertinence? She is usually not one bit nearsighted. The dainty tortoise shell toy she so deftly and effectively wields is either an instrument of coquetry, defense or cruelty.

Viewed as the former weapon, it is without equal in the entire arsenal of flirtation's weapons. A skilled coquette can do more damage with it than with the fan. As a means of defense against the impertinences of other women it is invaluable. A cold stare, a contemptuous scrutiny through it will put to rout an army of impudent women.

But as an instrument of cruelty, an inquisitorial weapon, it does greatest execution. The lorgnette girl can display the most finished insolence with her fragile plaything. She is quite capable of calling the attention of the public to the worn gown or mended gloves of her victim.

A favorite and systematic course of cruelty is to take her station at the door of a summer resort hotel at the hour when the omnibus is arriving from the station with its load of weary, travel stained passengers and coldly scrutinize the dress of each woman as she alights. The lorgnette girl can be fascinating, she can be clever, but she has possibilities of brutality which would make a strong man quail.—Once a Week.

The execution of the eight-hour law, as applied to the construction of public buildings, has proved so embarrassing to the officials at the treasury department that the attorney general has been asked for a legal construction of the provisions of the act.

Rev. Graham Taylor, D. D., pastor of the Fourth Congregational church, New York, and professor of practical theology in Hartford Theological seminary, has resigned to accept the call of the Chicago Theological seminary to the chair of "Christian Sciology and Bible Study."

Professor John Marshall, of University college, London, says that yawning "may be accomplished by the will, but is often the result of involuntary imitation."

DEFECTIVE PAGE

A SOLDIER'S SECRET
BY CAPT. CHARLES KING,
U.S.A.

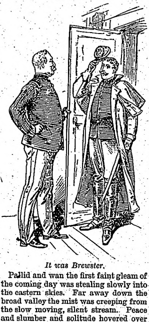
COPYRIGHT, 1892, BY J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY, AND PUBLISHED BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH THEM.

[CONTINUED.]

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Nita Guthrie, a St. Louis girl, is visiting the family of Surgeon Holden, in the camp of the Twelfth cavalry, in Arizona. Captain Rolfe, an officer of the Twelfth, proposes and is rejected. An old love affair is in the way. Nita swoons over some mysterious apparition on the eve of her departure for home. II—After Nita leaves camp Dr. Holden tries to unearth the mystery of her swoon. He suspects that Sergeant Ellis, a recent recruit, and a man with a history, had some connection with it. III—Lieutenant "Curly" Brewster, another officer of the Twelfth, is in love with Winifred Berrien, the daughter of Major Berrien. Captain Rolfe lights upon evidence that another woman claims Brewster's devotion. IV—The society at the fort gives a hop, and Mrs. Knowles, a married flirt from a near by town, makes a scene with Brewster, at which Major Berriam and Winifred are mystified and indignant. V—Before Brewster can explain to Winifred about the Khowles woman his troop is ordered to march against the Sioux Indians in Dakota.

CHAPTER VI.



It was Brewster.

Pallid and wan the first faint gleam of the coming day was stealing slowly into the eastern skies. Far away down the broad valley the mist was creeping from the slow moving, silent stream. Peace and slumber and solitude hovered over the wide acres where the tasseled corn had waved in the summer breeze and the bearded rye and bristling wheat had ripened and bleached under the fervid touch of the summer sun. In the barnyards and sheds the cattle still crouched, drowsing and huddling for warmth. In the orchards and among the maples and beeches the bluebirds and jays and belated robins still perched among the autumn leaves, their heads tucked away under sheltering wings. Under dew laden hedgerows the mother bird nestled her little brown brood, and Bob White still dozed away the dark hour that precedes the dawn. All over the placid, populous valley without the reservation lines the wings of night were spread. All through the streets of the thriving county town only the tread of the watchman waked the echoes, only the glimmer of his lamp was seen. The waning moon, a dim, mist bedraggled crescent, had peeped up over the shadowy forest down the eastward valley and climbed slowly toward a sheltering bank of cloud and there seemed to halt and hide.

Puffing and panting, a long, long train had wound under the wooded bluffs and was hissing at the station platform at the foot of the curving road that led to the broad plateau of the fort. And now lights were dancing and gleaming everywhere along the train; men in cavalry overcoats and topboots were busily, rapidly, silently leading horse after horse up the wooden ramps, or chutes, and into the dark depths of the cattle cars. Many a trooper stopped a moment after lashing his halter strap to the rail and murmured a few caressing, reassuring words to his wondering charger, patting him on neck or shoulder and striving to explain to him how it happened that he was stirred out from his warm stable at this unseemly hour and marched into a prison pen on wheels behind those black, hissing monsters up ahead. Silence and order and discipline prevailed. Only when some excitable, nervous steed balked and refused to climb the chute was there unusual sound. Then the sharp crack of the stable sergeant's whip and a stern "Hup, there!" brought the brute to his senses, and he plunged along up the wooden ramp, his iron shod hoofs thundering on the boards, his trooper's arms nearly wrenched from their sockets.

The division superintendent had been better than his word, for it was only four o'clock when the train came hissing in, and in ten minutes, in long ghostly procession, Rolfe's men were leading their chargers, curveting and prancing in the keen air, down the winding road to the valley, the quartermaster's wagons following with chest and box and bale and bundles of tentage and camp equipage. In fifteen minutes more the word went up to send down the next troop, and the train pulled forward four car lengths, so as to bring the next lot of horse cars opposite the platform and chutes, while Thorpe's handsome sorrels were led wondering from the dimly lighted gangway; and so, by a few minutes after five, even the officers' chargers and the spare horses of the first battalion were all aboard, and somewhere across the stream, just as the major acknowledged the report, "All aboard and secure, sir," in Hazlett's soldierly tones, a sprightly chanticleer, whose ears had at last caught those muffled sounds of hoof and voice over under the garrison bluffs, concluded it time to challenge, and woke the echoes with shrill cock-a-doodle-doo, whereat there came a low chuckle of delight from Hazlett's men.

"Very good, sir. Now get aboard all your baggage as quick as you can."

"All aboard now, sir."

"Then march up to quarters for coffee and breakfast—the others are at theirs now—and form under arms right afterward."

Precious little sleep has there been this night—no time among the men, no inclination among the women. Wives and daughters who had devoutly thanked heaven that only the first battalion was to go were soon undeceived and found that but ten hours' respite was to be theirs. All the night long the note of preparation could be heard in barracks and in quarters. The colonel, with his adjutant and quartermaster, hardly left the office at all. Berrien bustled from barracks to his home, from there to stables. At two o'clock, finding all his own campaigning kit in perfect readiness, and Winifred and her mother still huddling over the parlor fire, he noted the pallor in his daughter's face, the deep trouble in her pathetic eyes, and, taking her in his arms, he kissed her fondly again and again.

"Go to your room now, little daughter," he said huskily; "go, dear, and try to sleep. I will not leave without coming to say bye-bye, just as I always did." She shivered and hid her face and clung to his neck, saying no word, shedding no tear. Gently he unclasped her hands. "Yes, my child, do as I bid you now; I want to speak with mother awhile." And then reluctantly she turned, but the one brief look into his eyes was so full of wordless sorrow that he was for an instant unmanned. "My little girl! my little Winnie! don't look at your old daddy that way!" he almost sobbed, as again he threw his arm around her, leading her to the stairs. "We won't be gone long. We're all coming back, dear; and we'll have a lovely Christmas, and you shall have the jolliest kind of a party, pet. But be a brave little woman now. It—it'll all come right." She turned with quick convulsive sob and threw herself upon his breast, again twining her soft arms about his neck, her beautiful dark hair streaming in rippling, shimmering masses down over the creamy white wrapper. The burst of tears would have been a blessed relief, but it never came. A quick, soldierly tread was heard on the plank walk without, and then springing up the steps. Even before the rat-tat-tat at the door she had torn herself from his arms and sped like a startled fawn up the carpeted stair.

"It is Mr. Brewster," said Mrs. Berrien, in low tone, quickly. Berrien threw open the door. "Anything for a pretext to come here again," he muttered angrily to himself, as he confronted the unwelcome intruder. It was Brewster.

"Major Berrien, the colonel's compliments, and he desires you to know that the train will be here at four instead of five." And Brewster's eyes glanced but an instant into those of his superior, and then went wandering longingly over his shoulder.

"I had already heard it, sir. You have everything ready?"

"I beg pardon, then, for disturbing you, major. I have just left the colonel, and he thought you might not have heard. Yes, sir, everything will be ready, though the rations are not yet cooked."

"Then be ready to get your horses aboard the moment F has finished loading. Anything else, Mr. Brewster?" Poor fellow, there was something else—something that filled heart and soul and dominated every thought. Gazing wistfully up the stairs, his sad eyes had caught one glimpse of that white, fleeting form, one glimpse of the lovely pallid face all framed in dark, falling tresses, as, clinging to the balustrade, Winifred turned, unable to resist the longing to hear what he might have to say.

"Nothing—nothing more, I believe, sir." And, mechanically raising his hand in salute, poor Curly turned away, the door promptly closing behind him.

Berrien came back into the parlor clinching his fists, speechless indignation in his face. Mrs. Berrien saw the unmistakable signs, and, though in her heart she felt full of sympathy for Brewster, she knew it best to say nothing now.

"If I thought it as you said," he hoarsely spoke at last, "if I thought that fellow had been trifling with Winnie while all the time carrying on this —— Faugh! it makes me feel as though I could throttle him!" And Berrien strode up and down the cozy room, beating one brawny fist into the palm of the other hand.

"But, Richard dear, why do you think there has been anything serious between him and this—this woman? I think she deliberately assumed that manner at the hop tonight. I think she called him 'Carroll' solely for Winifred's benefit and mine. I saw how astonished and annoyed he was."

But Berrien held up a warning hand. "She came down the stairs weeping and he striving to soothe her. She was sobbing aloud when he put her in the carriage. Rolfe and I both saw and heard. Don't tell me there wasn't anything between them. Very possibly he does want to make up to Winifred now, but damn him! he shan't. I won't have her degraded by any such offer, if I have to send her and you to Europe to get her away from him. It is no imagination, Bess; I tell you I know. Why, only this morning she sent him a new picture of herself, and as for calling him Carroll for our benefit, that's what she calls him in her letters, and I can prove it."

"How [illegible]

"Rolfe saw it—saw it this very morning."

"Captain Rolfe! Why, how came he to see her letter to him?"

"Well, it was lying open on his desk; he could not help seeing."

"Why, Dick, I cannot understand Captain Rolfe's looking at or reading other people's letters, and"——

"It was an accident, I tell you."

"Ah, but it was no accident his telling of it, Dick. Nothing on earth should have induced him to refer to it, if, as he claims, he saw it by accident. I did not suppose Rolfe would do such a thing."

"Well, he couldn't help himself. I dragged it out of him, I suppose."

Another step, another rap at the door and, casting one glance aloft, Berrien, to his dismay, again caught sight of Winifred's pale face peering over the balustrade. The child could not, would not rest.

"What's wanted?" he curtly asked as he threw open the door.

"It is Sergeant Ellis, sir," said a deep voice. "I have come to beg the major to intercede for me. My troop goes with the major's battalion and I begged to be relieved and allowed to go, but the quartermaster says I must stay until some sergeant can be found who is competent to take charge—some one in the infantry battalion. That may require two or three days, sir, and I am fearful that once the command gets away there will be no obtaining orders to follow it. Besides, sir, there is my horse."

"You belong to the Black troop?"

"Yes, sir, and I think that if the major would but speak to Major Kenyon at once he could name a sergeant who would take my place here at the firehouse. Almost any man can do it, sir, only there is no time to be lost. Major Kenyon is at the doctor's now."

"Dr. Holden's?"

"Yes, sir, and Captain Rolfe has just joined him there."

"Have you spoken to Lieutenant Brewster? He commands your troop, as you know, now that the captain's away."

"I have, sir, but it was at the office, and the quartermaster spoke up at once, so that Lieutenant Brewster could do nothing."

Berrien turned back into the parlor. "Bess, dear, I must run over to Holden's a moment. Will you not go up to Winifred? She is not lying down at all."

Followed by the sergeant, Berrien entered Holden's gate and gave a whack at the open hall door as he passed in. Rolfe's voice was the first thing he heard. It was tremulous with excitement.

"If Colonel Farquhar will but give me authority to search one room in this post I will guarantee that I can find that picture and name the thief"— He broke off short at sight of Berrien. Holden rose, hospitably urging the major to join them in a cup of coffee, but Berrien proceeded at once to business.

"Major Kenyon, a sergeant of my battalion is in charge of the fire apparatus here, but is most anxious to go with us. He says it will be allowed if you can name one of your men—a noncommissioned officer—to take his place at once. You will do me a very great favor if you will."

"Certainly I can," answered Kenyon stoutly. "Is your man there? Call him in. Sergeant Griggs, of B company, will be just the man, and I know his company commander will make no objection."

"Come in here, sergeant," called Berrien, and cap in hand the dark eyed, dark haired trooper, on whose lip the mustache was again beginning to bristle, stood silently before them.

"Are you well enough to go, my man?" spoke up Holden on the instant. "You look very pale, if not ill."

"I am perfectly well, doctor, and I am eager to go. I suppose I'm a little cold and excited."

"Then give my compliments to the quartermaster at once and say Sergeant Griggs, of the infantry, will take your duty," said Kenyon quietly.

Ellis muttered, "Thank you, sir," faced about and hurried from the room.

"Was that man in the hall when I was talking and you came in?" asked Rolfe, in his quick, decided way.

"I don't know," answered Berrien surprised. "I think he followed me up the steps and was standing at the door."

"Why do you ask, Rolfe?" queried Holden, closely studying his face.

"Because, if he was, the search I spoke of would now be useless."

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

A Medical Lady on a Tricycle.

In Birmingham a lady doctor of celebrity is in the habit of going on her round of visits on a tricycle. Her dress is peculiarly neat and pleasing—a dark, striped costume of woolen stuff; a small dark hat and fur boa; equally suitable for a sickroom or the saddle. She skims along through the crowded streets and the dense traffic, the courage, quickness and lightness of touch, so useful to a doctor, showing to great advantage, and having daily practice on her steel steed, as well as at her patients' bedsides. Such a practice must give the relief and exercise necessary to a brain overstrained with work.—London Woman's Herald.

Woman in Politics.

Unquestionably woman is in politics, and in it to stay. That her influence will be wholesome is indisputable. Woman is instinctively honest. If not so well versed as man in the details of practical politics, she has the gift of grasping intuitively the real merits of a question, and coupled therewith a quality of enthusiasm which goes far to make up for her lack of the ballot. The women of this country have already given one signal illustration of their prowess. They will be apt to give a still more impressive lesson in November next.—Philadelphia Record.

The commissioners of customs in England have taken steps to bring their department into line in the normal requirements of trade, and the customs hours are from 6 to 6, without overtime.

For the Season's Outing.

"Put a number of old fashioned magazines in the bottom of your trunk when you start for the summer outing," said a mother recently. "You'll find them invaluable to the little girls on a rainy day. I found this out quite by accident when I undertook to trace the cause of my two little daughters' complete content an entire afternoon while the rain beat against the panes and the wind sighed mournfully through the trees.

"'What are you doing, children?' I said, and both ran to me, their faces eager with interest.

"'We have whole families of dolls,' cried the elder, and they showed me between different leaves of a last year's magazine 'Mrs. Russell,' with innumerable gowns, 'Mr. Russell,' 'Miss Russell,' and a large family of interesting young Russells. These they had cut out from fashion plates and advertisements, grouping each lot of ladies as Mrs. Russell in all sorts of gowns and the rest in the same way. They had also found enough furniture cuts to get out sets of furniture for every apartment in the house, and this cutting, sorting and arranging had kept them interested for hours. It seemed a valuable suggestion to other children storm bound in summer quarters and to other mothers who, like myself, have wondered how to amuse the children with no toys, books, games or other amusing implements about."

Another suggestion to the mothers of families country bound is to go armed with a kindergarten outfit. The sewing cards, weaving mats, beads and straws to be strung, and the gay bits of paper that make such bright, pretty forms pasted on paper—these can be bought now in sets, made up of them all, and their price, about two dollars, is a small investment for the large return of occupation and interest to the children and relief to mothers beset with the well known formula, "What can we do now?"—Her Point of View in New York Times.

A Thought for the City Relation.

Statistics show that insane asylums are peopled from the ranks of farmers' wives more than from any other source. No person can consider this without feeling sorry. The feeling is the same we experience for the overburdened car horse. His usefulness is great, but he is unappreciated, and one day he will break down and another will take his place in the hard lot to which he was born.

The city cousins who spend the summer with the farmer's wife have no wish to exchange places with her. Of all women she is the most versatile. She can grease a wagon, whitewash the chicken coop, paper a wall, drive the clod crusher, harness a horse, be nurse, dairymaid, laundress, cook, housemaid, seamstress and advisory committee on all farm work outside and in.

She knows very little about the advancement of women or the change of fashions. From seedtime to harvest she does her duty patiently each day, and from year to year she fills the cellar with jam, preserves and apple butter until her poor overtaxed nervous system cries out—and what then?

Do you do anything to vary the monotony of her life save to bestow your presence and approval in the summer time?

What are you going to take her besides your approval and perchance your board money?

Perhaps you will take some scraps for crazy patchwork?—New York Recorder.

Influence of Detroit Working Girls.

The working girls of Detroit at one time had the largest and best trade union of any city in the country, except perhaps Troy. They were a power not only in the management of their own affairs, but in compelling men into trade unions. Their methods were simple. They refused to dance with a scab. Before that name, which every connoisseur in epithets knows is a triumph of art in its way, strong men quailed when it came between a pretty girl's lips. When coupled with a refusal to dance it sent them tumbling over one another's heels in their effort to get inside of some union, which shows what women can do when they have convictions strong enough.—Detroit Letter.

Seed Decorations.

The use of seeds for purposes of simple ornamentation is very old, and has of late been revived with good effect for embroidering fancy articles. The best seeds are those of the melon, vegetable marrow and cucumber, assorted according to size, shape and color. After the design has been traced on the material, which may be velvet, plush, cloth or silk, the stalks are put in with gold or maize colored silk in stem, chain or herringbone stitch, and the leaves outlined in a similar manner. Then the seeds are placed in position and fixed by a stitch at either end, care being taken to make them lie flat.

Among the flowers which can be imitated in seed work are marguerites, asters, starwort, jasmine, etc. Ears of corn or barley are very effective, though more difficult to work, owing to the seeds having to be packed close together. On a foundation of maroon velvet or crimson cloth the seeds stand out like ivory in bold relief.

The calyx of the buds is done in crewel work or silk. This work can be adapted to fancy articles of various kinds, such as table borders and centers, banner screens, tea cozies, etc.—Decorator and Furnisher.

Mrs. Stanley's Tribute to Her Husband.

Mrs. Stanley may certainly be regarded as the champion admirer of a husband. When she spoke at the explorer's electioneering meeting at Doulton she said:

I voted for Henry Stanley two years ago in Westminster abbey, and I call on you to vote for him, not for himself, but yourselves and, in your interests, because he is a great and a good man and when you and I have passed away and are forgotten he will be remembered as having been a great man who had served his country well and done noble things for it. You can't make him a greater man than he is by putting M. P. after his name. There are nobodies who want to be somebodies, and in order to get this title they will promise to do everything, but Stanley is a man of his word, and when he says he will do anything he will do it. Stanley wants to extend your trade and to do all he can to develop commerce. Here is Stanley, and if you turn your back on him I say it will be a disgrace to Lambeth, for I think—and I do not say it because I am Mrs. Stanley—that he is the greatest man in England at this moment.

Avoiding the Taste of Codliver Oil.

A fascinating belle on the heights is said to have found a new use for codliver oil. This young woman is charming, but she is too thin to risk another season of evening gowns until she has reformed. Her physician imperatively ordered codliver oil. Now the young woman hates cod liver oil with a fervent hatred, and after she had taken half a bottle, in a freak of anger she began to apply the rest externally. Strange to relate, her skin grew smoother and fairer. She kept on, and the desired plumpness began to appear on her shoulders.

The young woman is on the Massachusetts coast, ostensibly for the sea bathing, but her druggist has sent her a case of codliver oil in a plain package by express, and if she comes home with a complexion of roses and cream he will not believe it was wholly the effect of sea bathing.—Brooklyn Eagle.

"Co-eds" Favor Reform Dresses.

The closing sensation of the university year was sprung when it was announced that the "Co-eds" had almost unanimously agreed to adopt for next year's wear the "rainy day dress," which Mrs. Jenness Miller advocated during her recent visit here. A document has been circulated among the female students for the past week, and has already secured sufficient signatures to assure the success of the scheme.

The dress which Mrs. Miller advocated reaches only to the knees, and is a marvel of sweet simplicity, comfort and common sense. The first rainy day next year will be a great day in Ann Arbor if the "Co-eds" stick to their pledges.—Ann Arbor Cor. Chicago Inter Ocean.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication August 18th, 1892.]

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE CONditions of a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Henry A. Bruns and Matilda Bruns, his wife, to George H. Taylor, bearing date the 30th day of October, A. D. 1889, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 4th day of November, A. D. 1889, at 1:30 o'clock p. m., in book 44 of mortgages, on pages 188-192. And whereas the said George H. Taylor the owner and holder of said mortgage has elected to declare, and hereby does declare, the whole principal sum in said mortgage set forth and represented by the notes therein described upon which default has occurred, due and payable at the date of this notice under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

And whereas there is actually due and payable at the date hereof including principal and interest upon the notes in said mortgage described upon which there is default, the following sum, to-wit: Four hundred and fifty-four and 40-100 ($454.40) dollars; and whereas said mortgagee has been compelled to, and has paid the taxes upon the lands in said mortgage described as follows: 1889, $19.53; 1890, $13.50; and 1891, $14.93. And whereas the said power of sale has become operative and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: Situate, lying and being in the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The southeast quarter of the northeast quarter (se¼ ne¼) the northeast quarter of the southeast quarter (ne¼ se¼) and lot eight (8) in Section No. six (6); also lot No. one (1) in Section No. seven (7), all in Township No. one hundred and forty-eight (148) north, of range No. forty-three (43) west, containing one hundred forty-three 25-100 acres, more or less, and all in Polk county and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five ($25) dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of Polk county, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said county and State, on the 30th day of September, A. D. 1892, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated August 17th, A. D. 1892.

GEORGE H. TAYLOR,
Mortgagee

TAYLOR & WOODARD,
Attorneys for Mortgagee,
920 Guaranty Loan Building,
Minneapolis, Minn.
[18-24]

Mortgage Sale.

(First publication Aug. 25, 1892.)
(Last publication Oct. 6, 1892.)

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of one hundred dollars ($100) and the sum of seventy-five dollars ($75) and interest on said sums from the 9th day of October, 1886, at the rate of 10 per cent per annum, which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Frederick Bleier to Francis J. Detling, bearing date the 9th day of October, A. D. 1886, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 2d day of December, A. D. 1886, at 9 o'clock a. m., in book 23 of mortgages, on page 90, which mortgage, together with the debt thereby secured, was duly assigned by said Francis J. Detling, mortgagee, to Joseph Z. Perron by written assignment, dated the 28th day of February, A. D. 1891, and recorded in the office of said Register of Deeds on the 24th day of March, 1891, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book 56 of mortgages, on page 119; and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: Lots numbered one, (1) two, (2) and three, (3) in block numbered forty, (40) in Kretzschmar's Addition to Red Lake Falls, Polk county, Minnesota, according to the plat thereof on file in the Register of Deeds office in and for said County and State, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 8th day of October, A. D. 1892, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated August 20th, A. D. 1892.

JOSEPH Z. PERRON,
Assignee of Mortgagee.

P. G. FALARDEAU,
Attorney for Assignee,
Red Lake Falls, Minn.
[19-25]

GREAT NORTHERN Railway
TIME CARD.

MONTANA EXPRESS—DAILY.

West		East
7:40 p m De.	St Paul	Ar. 6:55 a m
2:50 a m "	Fergus Falls	" 11:25 p m
4:47 a m "	Glyndon	" 9:36 p m
7:20 a m "	CROOKSTON	" 7:25 p m
8:40 a m "	Grand Forks	" 6:20 p m
9:45 a m "	Larimore	" 5:06 p m
2: 1 p m "	Devils Lake	" 2:55 a m
7:00 p m Ar.	Butte	De. 7:30 a m

ST. VINCENT BRANCH—Daily except Sunday
Depart 7:30 a m Arrive 6:30 p m

FOSSTON BRANCH—Tues., Thurs. and Sat.
Depart 8:00 a m Arrive 5:30 p m

ST. HILAIRE BRANCH—Monday Wed. & Friday.
Depart 10:45 a m Arrive 4:30 p m

GRAND FORKS' ACCOMMODATION.
Arrive 9:50 a m Depart 7:55 p m

The scenic route to Spokane, Helena, and Butte on the west, and St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth and West Superior on the east. Dining and sleeping cars on all through trains. Tickets on sale to all principal places. Baggage checked through to destination.

W. W. FEGAN, Agent.

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.

TIME SCHEDULE.

	Leave Crookston Daily.	Arrive Crookston Daily.
For Duluth, Ashland, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Chicago, and all points East and South	7:05 p. m.	8:27 a. m.
For Grand Forks, Grafton, Pembina, Winnipeg and points in N. Dakota and Winnipeg	8:27 a. m.	7:05 p. m.

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.

THE

Great Transcontinental Route

Passes through Wisconsin, Minnesota North Dakota, Manitoba, Montana, Idaho, Oregon and Washington.

The Dining Car Line

Dining cars are run between Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Winnipeg, Butte, Helena, Tacoma, Seattle and Portland.

PULLMAN SLEEPING CAR ROUTE.

Pullman service daily between Chicago, St. Paul, Montana and the Pacific Northwest; and between St. Paul, Minneapolis and Minnesota, North Dakota and Manitoba points.

THE POPULAR LINE.

Daily Express Trains carry elegant Pullman Sleeping Cars, Dining Cars, Day Coaches, Pullman Tourist Sleepers and Free Colonist Sleeping Cars.

YELLOWSTONE PARK ROUTE.

The Northern Pacific R. R. is the rail line to Yellowstone Park; the popular line to California and Alaska; and its trains pass through the grandest scenery of seven states.

THROUGH TICKETS

Are sold at all coupon offices of the Northern Pacific Railroad to points North, East, South and West, in the United States and Canada.

For rates, maps, time tables, or special information, apply to

CHAS. A. SHARKEY,
Agent Northern Pacific R. R.,
Crookston, Minn.

CHAS. S. FEE,
Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent,
St. Paul, Minn.

THE NEW
NORTHWEST

Home seekers will find the last of the public domain of agricultural and grazing value along the Great Northern Ry. in North Dakota and Montana FARM LANDS

NEW TOWNS 100 or more, along the Great Forthern Railway Line. Business chances. Write F. I. WHITNEY, St. Paul, Minn., for Books, Maps, &c. Write now.

Settlers on free Government lands along the Great Northern Ry. Line in North Dakota and Montana get low rates and fine markets for products. LOW RATES

Montana produces the finest Horses and Cattle. Free ranges yet in Mouse, Milk and Sun River Valleys and Sweet Grass Hills. Horses, Cattle.

Health, Wealth. In the Northwest. Free Lands. New Towns, New Railways, New Mines, Low Rates. Largest area of good vacant land.

Sweetest Grass Hills. Milk and Sun River Valleys, Montana, reached only by the Great Northern Railway Line. The stock raisers' paradise. Sheep, Hogs.

Herds, Mines These have made Montana the richest State per capita in the Union. Plenty of room for more miners and stock raisers. Now is the time.

A. A. JUST, M. D.,
Homoeopathic Physician and Surgeon
OFFICE IN
McKinnon Block, Crookston

A. H. DUNLAP, M. D.
Graduate McGill University, Montreal.
LICENSED COLLEGE PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS, QUEBEC.
Office in McKinnon Block.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minnesota, August 1st, 1892.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register or Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Sept. 23rd, 1892, viz: Joseph Duffy, Hd. No. 11,851 for the ne ¼ sec 18, twp 149, r 45. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Walter Morris, Cyrus Morris, Ole Anderson, Anders Anderson, all of Tilden, Polk Co., Minn.

[16-21] HUGH THOMPSON, Register.

BY THE PRESIDENT

STEPS TAKEN TO PREVENT INTRODUCTION OF CHOLERA.

A Proclamation by Which All Vessels Carrying Immigrants Are to Be Subjected to Twenty Days Quarantine—Two More Infected Vessels Arrive.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2. — President Harrison arrived here during the day and a conference of the cabinet ministers now here, the first assistant secretary and Dr. Wyman, surgeon general of the Marine hopital, was held at once to discuss the cholera situation. It was decided not to issue a proclamation at this time, but the following circular was issued instead:

Quarantine restrictions upon immigration to aid in the prevention of the introduction of cholera into the United States. To collectors of customs, medical officers of the Marine hospital service, foreign steamship companies, state and local boards of health: It having been officially declared that cholera is prevailing in various portions of Russia, Germany and France, and at certain ports in Great Britain, as well as in Asia; and it having been made to appear that immigrants in large numbers are coming into the United States from the infected districts aforesaid, and that they and their personal effects are liable to introduce cholera into the United States, and that vessels conveying them are thereby a direct menace to the public health; and it having been further shown that under the laws of the several states quarantine detention may be imposed on these vessels a sufficient length of time to insure against the introduction of contagious diseases, it is hereby ordered that no vessel from any foreign port carrying immigrants shall be admitted to enter at any port of the United States until said vessel shall have undergone a quarantine detention of twenty days (unless such detention is forbidden by the laws of the state or the regulations made thereunder), and of such greater number of days as may be fixed in each special case by the state authorities. This circular to take immediate effect, except in cases of vessels afloat at this date, which will be made the subject of special consideration upon due application to the department.

Is Received with Favor.

The announcement of the issue of the circular meets with general favor everywhere the subject is broached, and the president and his advisers are heartily commended for the action they have taken. It is said that the quarantine proposed is to be applied to vessels from all ports, although it is assumed that health officers will have discretion in the matter, and will be allowed to act as they see fit in the case of vessels that come from non-infected ports, and that have clean bills of health. The practical effect of a declarartion of a twenty days' quarantine, it is believed, will be to stop immigration from Europe for the time being, and thus will be brought about a result which the popular mind believes desirable at this time.

The president, though not alarmed, fully comprehends the gravity of the situation, and nothing which the general government may properly do to lessen the chances of cholera invasion will be left undone.

A SERIOUS SITUATION.

Arrival of Two More Cholera-Infected Vessels at New York from Hamburg.

NEW YORK, Sept. 4.—Nothing can now save the metropolis from a great plague but absolute compliance on the part of every member of the community with the instructions of the board of health and the quarantine authorities. The danger is real. It cannot be overestimated.

Two newly-infected steamships arrived in this harbor Saturday with awful stories of death and suffering. They were the Rugia and Normannia, both from Hamburg. The Rugia buried five steerage passengers at sea and had five living cholera patients still on board when she cast anchor. The Normannia buried four steerage passengers and one cabin passenger. She had four patients still alive, one being a member of the crew. It is claimed that the cabin passenger who died on the Normannia was suffering from diabetes only. With the exception of this case all were diagnosed as cholerine. All the dead had been buried at sea. The convalescent cases are considered very serious, and further deaths are likely to occur. Health Officer Jenkins immediately ordered both ships to the lower bay as soon as the captains of the vessels had notified him of the condition of affairs.

THE OUTLOOK DARK.

Nine More Deaths on Board the Stricken Hamburg-American Steamers.

QUARANTINE, Sept. 5.—The situation at quarantine is, as far as any information has been obtained, practically unchanged since Dr. Jenkins returned from the islands and reported two additional deaths on the Normannia, one on the Rugia and one on the Moravia.

The passengers aboard the quarantined vessels welcomed a mild summer day accompanied by a cold breeze from the north. Time hung heavily on their hands, especially as the conditions prevailing on shore at the upper quarantine station were different. Time did not hang heavily with Health Officer Jenkins and his staff of doctors. From early morning until late at night they labored ceaselessly. Dr. Jenkins arose early and at noon left for lower bay on the cutter State of New York. He was accompanied by the quarantine commissioners. Late in the afternoon Commissioner Allen returned with the disheartening news from the stricken vessels, leaving the health officer down the bay. The officers did not return during the day, but sent ashore a message ordering the pest boat Edson to repair to the stricken steamers at once. She will probably remain there until the cholera is effectually stamped out. On her arrival, Dr. Talmage, who was on duty from early morning, directed that the dead be removed to Swinburne island and there cremated. The sick were transferred to the Swinburne island hospital, and as dispatch must necessarily be used in the case of the Normannia, her steerage passengers were next removed on the transfer boat William Fletcher to Hoffman island and the disinfection system started on them.

Dr. Jenkins' visits to the Rugia and Moravia were short. He also visited the hospital islands, and in the afternoon several officials of the New York city health department steamed down the bay on a tug to see him. The police patrol reported early in the day for duty and warned all passing vessels to keep a safe distance. Masters of vessels of all descriptions begin to realize the gravity of the situation and give the pest ships a wide berth. Dr. Jenkins had promised the newspaper men that he would see them during the afternoon, and at 9 o'clock they are still awaiting his return from the lower bay. The foregoing facts show that the outlook is dark and all hands are prepared for a long siege. As to the probabilities of the disease getting into the country there need be no alarm if the present precautions are carried out.

MORE CHOLERA VICTIMS.

Three More Deaths on Board Quarantined Vessels at New York.

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—The Normannia has three new cases, one of which died. He was Otto Engle, aged 20 years, one of the crew. The other two cases were Wilhelm Queur, aged 19 years, and Theodore Zimmzek, 28 years, both of the crew. The Rugia has three new cases, of which one died. The other cases are Hendrik Sterr, aged 5 years; Joseph Pjekoska, aged 30 years; Johanna Buss, aged 54 years. These three people were of the families of other patients which preceded them and have been isolated since arrival. On the Moravia there were no new developments. Among the Normannia's passengers on Hoffman island one new case was transferred to the hospital on Swinburne island. There was one child died during the day, aged 5 years. The fifty special physicians, who will inspect the city with the view to warding off the cholera or any other infectious disease, were sworn in this morning. They began work at once, first visiting the thickly populated tenement districts.

MUST BE QUARANTINED.

All Vessels Not Afloat Thursday Included in the Circular.

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Secretary Foster has received the following telegram from Collector Hendricks at New York:

Referring to last paragraph of "Circular 150," the quarantine circular, shall I detain vessels in quarantine that are not entered, but are passed by the health office, until special instructions are received by the department, and will such detention apply to cabin passengers?

Assistant Secretary Spaulding caused the following reply to be sent:

Circular 150 excepts vessels afloat at date of circular. Any vessels within the exception and passing quarantine will be entered in absence of information received after they pass health officers, that their entrance is likely to introduce cholera.

FIRST OF THE SERIES.

Opening of the Fistic Carnival at New Orleans Won by McAuliffe.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 5.—The battle for the lightweight championship of the world and $20,000 in purse and side bets was won by Jack McAuliffe in the fifteenth round. The fight, though shorter than expected, was an exceedingly hot one. Myer had the advantage in the first round or two but soon succumbed to the fierce rushes of the Williamsburg lad.

Although the fight was not begun until 9 o'clock or thereabouts, the Olympic club was besieged before 5 p. m. by hundreds of men who live in this city and all parts of the Union. It was not an agreeable day by any means, for the rain came down in torrents at frequent intervals, but that little thing had very small effect on the enthusiasm of the visitors to the city or the residents thereof.

Before 9 o'clock the arena was uncomfortably full of men who paid $15 for box seats, $10 for lower seats and $7.50 for seats in the galleries, and when ex-Mayor Guillotte made the formal announcement that a contest for the lightweight championship of the world was about to take place he received a rousing cheer. As the ex-mayor finished his brief speech Professor John Duffy, the official referee, climbed through the padded ropes. There was a howl of pleasure. The men weighed in a few minutes before 9 o'clock. The limit was 138 pounds. Myer scaled at 137 1-2 and McAuliffe 137 3-4.

DANIEL DOUGHERTY DEAD.

The Silver-Tongued Orator of Democracy Dies at Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 5. — Daniel Dougherty died shortly after 2 o'clock p. m.

Daniel Dougherty was born in Philadelphia, Dec. 17, 1826. While a child his mother died and his father married again. It was then that young Daniel left home and began his struggle. His early life was a series of battles for existence. In his 18th year he made his real start in life by entering the law office of William and Samuel Badger. Two years afterward he became prominent as a Democratic speechmaker, and in 1840 he was admitted to the bar. In 1859 he was the acknowledged leader of the Douglas party in this city. In the presidential election that placed Lincoln in the White House for the first term the Douglas party in Philadelphia polled nearly 90,000 votes, which was due largely to Mr. Dougherty's earnest efforts.

Mrs. Harrison's Condition.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—The almost daily publication of accounts about Mrs. Harrison's alarming condition of health was brought to Private Secretary Halford's attention. He said: "Mrs. Harrison's physical condition has improved but her nervous condition has not kept pace with her physical improvement. Her illness, caused by overtaxing herself in the performance of her official and domestic duties, left her suffering from nervous prostration.

LAKE CRAFT SINK.

VESSELS ON LAKE SUPERIOR GO TO THE BOTTOM

And Many Lives Are Reported to Have Been Lost—Twenty-six Drowned by the Wreck of the Western Reserve—Some Reports Denied.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich., Sept. 2.—The steamer Western Reserve foundered sixty miles off Whitefish Point about 9 p. m. Tuesday night. She passed the Soo Tuesday and a heavy gale prevailed but she did not mind it and plunged ahead. When about sixty miles off Whitefish Point the sea was terribly rough and suddenly, without a moment's warning, the great steel structure broke in two amidships. The yawls were lowered but the operation took some time as it was the first time they had ever been used. Captain Peter Minch, his wife and two children and five of the crew got into the first boat and the rest of the crew—seventeen in number—into another. The first boat sank almost immediately and only two of its occupants were rescued by the other boat. The steamer sank in less than ten minutes after they left her. The second boat headed for shore and rowed almost fifty miles and when only ten miles from shore, their boat capsized and but one, Harry Stewart, managed to reach shore. He swam to Whitefish Point, procured a boat and rowed along the shore until he signalled a passing ship which took him on board and brought him here. The following persons were on board when the fated vessel went down:

Captain Peter Minch, the owner, with his wife and two children, Charles and Florence; Miss May Engleberry and Bertha Engleberry, of Vermillion. The crew consisted of Albert Myers, of Vermillion, captain; W. H. Leamen, of Cleveland, chief engineer; Fred Engals, first mate; Charles Lebeau, second mate; Charles Wells, assistant engineer; Burt Smith, steward; Ray Applebee, steward; Schuyler Stewart, watchman; Daniel Forbes, lookout; Carl Myers, wheelsman, son of the captain; John Satchen; fireman; S. D. Holdev, fireman; Horace Burroughs, fireman; Martin Klauser, greaser; Robert Simpson, greaser; Daniel Stickney, R. A. Longfield, M. Coffee and John Wilson, deck hands.

Captain Peter Minch, the owner of the Western Reserve, retired five years ago and settled down in Cleveland to manage his large vessel interests. The present trip was intended as a pleasure trip for himself and family and several friends. The Western Reserve was a steel steamer of 1,900 tons net, and was built in 1890 by the Cleveland Ship Building company. She was owned by P. G. Minch and others, of Cleveland, rated A1, and was valued at $220,000. Her boilers were inspected recently and repairs ordered, but had not been made yet.

The Barges Safe.

DETROIT, Sept. 4.—Dispatches have been received to the effect that the Guiding Star and Ononeto of the City of Toledo's tow are all right. The Guiding Star is ashore about twenty-five miles from Marquette, and it is believed none of her crew have been lost. Captain Eber Ward, of this city, has received a dispatch to the effect that the Ononeto is safe in the Huron Bay.

City of Green Bay Safe.

Later it is learned that the reported foundering of the city of Green Bay is unfounded. She left Marquette for White Fish at 10 a. m., Friday morning.

CAUSED A PANIC.

Homestead Soldiers Charge on an Excursion Steamer.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 4.—As the excursion steamer City of Pittsburg was passing Homestead during the evening some of the passengers shouted "scab" at the workmen in Carnegie's mill. A number of soldiers quickly boarded the tug boat Tide and started for the City of Pittsburg. The two boats collided and the militia made a bayonet charge on the excursionists. In the rush a woman was knocked down, her leg broken and severe internal injuries inflicted.

A scene of the wildest excitement followed, which soon developed into a complete panic. Women fainted by the score and four children were trampled under foot and seriously injured. About twenty-five of the passengers were arrested and taken to Homestead charged with disorderly conduct. Of those on board the City of Pittsburg only thirty-five were men to 800 women and children.

A General Break Anticipated.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 4.—It is reported at Homestead that several hundred Hungarians and Slavs will return to work in the Carnegie mill in the morning. It was also rumored that a general break in the ranks of the strikers from all departments of the mills will take place soon.

MINERS THREATEN.

Coal Creek and Oliver Springs to Be Destroyed.

COAL CREEK, Tenn., Sept. 4.—There has been no trouble here or at Oliver Springs during the day. Warden Ferris, of Oliver Springs, thinks the outlook ominous, however, and desires military guards. A report has reached here from Tellico county that 400 miners met there and swore to wipe out Coal Creek and Oliver Springs before next Saturday night.

Talt Hall Hanged.

NORTON, Sept. 2.—Talton Hall was safely hanged at Wise Court House, Va., at noon. There were fears of an attempt at rescue, but none was made. The murderer, who had been kept constantly under the influence of liquor during the last few days, made a speech on the scaffold. The drop fell at 12:34 p. m., and life was pronounced extinct seventeen minutes later. His neck was broken by the fall.

Kiefer Nominated.

LINDSTROM, Minn., Sept. 4.—The Fourth district Republican convention was held here at 11 a. m. Col. Kiefer, of St. Paul, was nominated without opposition.

S. L. COLLINS,
Proprietor of Main Street

Livery and Feed Stables.

Cor. Main and Fourth Sts., west side,
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

Horses bought and sold on commission. Everything neat and nobby. Feeding a specialty.

FINE HEARSE

in connection, which I will attend to in person.

Valley Roller Mills

MANUFACTURERS OF
FINE FLOUR
From Selected Red River Wheat.

QUOTATIONS.

Best	$2.25	per 98 lbs.
North Star	2.10	" "
Fife	1.90	" "
Skip Jack	1.25	" "
Bran	9.00	" ton.
Shorts	10.00	" "

Call early and get your supply of feed.

☞ We exchange flour for wheat on equitable terms.

LEE & HERRICK.

C. HENDRICKSON, President. L. ELLINGTON, Vice President.
J. W. WHEELER, Cashier. H. STEENERSON, 2d Vice President.
A. P. Hanson, Assistant Cashier.

Scandia-American Bank,

Of Crookston, Minn. Organized under the State laws. Authorized capital $200,000. Paid up capital $50,000. Undivided profits $10,500. Buys Bonds, School and Town Orders. Special attention to collections. Interest on time deposits.

DIRECTORS—C. O. Christianson, E. P. Pierce, O. H. Lucken, A. G. Gallasch, H. Steenerson, J. H. Locken, C. Hendrickson, Max Ericsson, L. K. Aaker, J. W. Wheeler.

NEW CIGAR STORE
SIGN OF THE BIG INDIAN.
H. F. BROWN, Proprietor,
Second Street,
CROOKSTON, MINN

Cigars of every known brand, from a cheroot to a 25 center. Cigarettes, Chewing and Smoking Tobaccos of all kinds, Snuff, Pipes to suit the fancy of all, from a corn-cob pipe to a meerchaum.

CALL IN.

MARTIN O'BRIEN,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
{I. O. O. F. BUILDING.} Crookston, Minn.

MILLER & FOOTE,
ATTY'S-AT-LAW,
McKinnon Block, - Crookston, Minn.

THE PIONEER
HARNESS SHOP,
M. RAUENBUEHLR, Proprietor.
A full supply of everything kept by the trade.
Cor of Broadway and Third Sts,
CROOKSTON. MINN

IF YOU ARE GOING EAST
OR SOUTH ASK YOUR NEAREST AGENT FOR TICKETS VIA THE
AND TAKE NO OTHER LINE. BURLINGTON

L. E. GOSSMAN,
Attorney-at-Law,
No. 2 Fournet Block } CROOKSTON, MINN.

P. J. RUSSELL,
Attorney-at-Law
CROOKSTON, MINN.
Next to Merchants' Bank.

FRANK IVES, Notary Public and U. S. Com'r. D. E. HATLESTAD, District Court Commissioner
IVES & HATLESTAD,
Attorneys and Counselors at Law,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

Will practice in all the courts and before the U. S. Land Office at Crookston and Washington. Pensions and Soldiers' Claims and Patents carefully and promptly adjusted.

We loan money on improved farms and city property and have facilities for placing large loans at low rate of interest. We give special attention to collection and all commercial business pertaining to our profession.

H. STEENERSON
ATTORNEY AT LAW
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA

NOW IS THE TIME
For the Next 30 Days,
At the New York Store,
A Grand Clearance Sale
Will be found.
SALE OPENS AUG. 1st,
Closes Sept. 1st.

During the above time every line of my immense stock will be offered at actual cost. I am not going out of business, but am preparing to reduce my stock before I move into my new quarters, which will be about September 1st, and in order to have less goods to move I intend to sell everything, regardless of quality or quantity, at

ACTUAL COST.

This is no closing-out sale, nor is it idle talk, we have the goods and they must be moved. If you want to procure bargains call upon me. Remember this offer

Lasts but 30 Days.

A. CHABOT.

A word to the wise and money savers.

GERVAIS'--The Hustlers,
THE GREATEST AGGREGATION OF
Spring and Summer Goods
That Ever Landed in the Northwest, comprising
The Latest Novelties in Fancy and Domestic Goods.
Dress Goods and Trimmings,
Jackets, Cloaks and Cloakings,
Parasols and Umbrellas for rain and sunshine.
White Goods and Embroideries,
Wash Goods in all the newest weaves,
Jersey ribbed and muslin Underwear,
Ladies' Shirt Waists in many styles,
Spring Caps and Straw Hats.

CARPETS

In all grades and newest designs.
Lace and Chenille Curtains and Portiers,
House Furnishing Goods, of all kinds,
New departure in Boots and Shoes.

Call In and Get Prices.

I. O. O. F. Block, Crookston. GERVAIS & GERVAIS, Leaders in Low Prices.

Schmidt, the Painter,
CARRIES A FULL AND COMPLETE STOCK OF PAINTS,
OILS AND
VARNISHES.
ALSO A FULL AND COMPLETE LINE OF
☞ WALL PAPER. ☜
Painting in all its branches, and Paper Hanging artistically done.
Call at the Shop on Broadway.

W. L. DOUGLAS $3.00 SHOE

For gentlemen is a fine Calf Shoe, made seamless, of the best leather produced in this country. There are no tacks or wax threads to hurt the feet, and is made as smooth inside as a hand-sewed shoe. It is as stylish, easy fitting and durable as custom-made shoes costing from $4.00 to $5.00, and acknowledged to be the Best in the World for the price.

For GENTLEMEN.
$5.00 Genuine Hand-Sewed.
$4.00 Hand-Sewed Welt Shoe.
$3.50 Police and Farmer.
$2.50 Extra Value Calf Shoe.
$2.25 Working-man's Shoe.
$2.00 Goodwear Shoe.

For LADIES.
$3.00 Hand-Sewed.
$2.50 Best Dongola.
$2.00 Calf and Dongola.
$1.75 For MISSES.
For BOYS' & YOUTH'S.
$2 & $1.75 SCHOOL SHOES.

☞ TAKE NO SUBSTITUTES. ☜

IT IS A DUTY you owe to yourself and your family, during these hard times, to get the most value for your money. You can economize in your footwear if you purchase W. L. Douglas' Shoes, which, without question, represent a greater value for the money than any other makes.

CAUTION. W. L. DOUGLAS' name and the price is stamped on the bottom of each shoe, which protects the consumer against high prices and inferior shoes. Beware of dealers who acknowledge the superiority of W. L. Douglas' Shoes by attempting to substitute other makes for them. Such substitutions are fraudulent, and subject to prosecution by law, for obtaining money under false pretences. W. L. DOUGLAS, Brockton, Mass.

For Sale by Fontaine & Anglim.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

'Round Home.

Wheat—1 Hard 65.
1 Northern 63.

Talk with Gulbronson Bros. before you purchase your winter clothing.

Miss E. Verronneau left for Chicago Sunday evening, to purchase a fall stock of millinery.

Charlie Pearson, who formerly represented Wright, Barrett & Stilwell, was in the city last week selling cutlery.

Thorp Bros.' elevator at Buffington was burned to the ground last week Tuesday. The loss is estimated at $2,000.

If you want a neat, nobby suit of clothes, made in the latest style, call on Gulbronson Bros., Reckitt block, Crookston.

The threatening weather of Friday and Saturday made our farmers look rather anxious on account of the threshing.

Acout 1,000 chickens were shipped to St. Paul last Friday by eastern sportsmen who are at present up in the St. Hilaire country.

John Knuppe was up from St. Paul last week looking after business matters in the city and gave the JOURNAL a pleasant call on Saturday.

Wm. Campion was in the city on Friday from Angus. Will attend the 26th annual encampment at Washington if he gets through threshing in time.

Most of the wheat in Marshall county has been harvested, and threshing has commenced. The average will be between 12 and 15 bushels.

J. G. McGrew returned Saturday from a trip to the British Northwest. He visited Calgary, Edmonton and other points of interest in the province of Alberta, and enjoyed his trip very much.

The infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Misner died Sunday morning of cholera infantum. The body was taken to Euclid Monday morning for interment in the family burying ground.

H. N. Knott, who has been working as a compositor on the JOURNAL for some time, left Sunday evening for his home at Sauk Centre, where he has secured a position on the Avalanche.

Benj. A. Strawbridge took the N. P. train Sunday evening for the east. He will visit his old home in Maryland, take in the G. A. R. encampment at Washington, and return in about three weeks.

Joseph Leicht, of the Westlicher Herold, Winona, was a caller at the JOURNAL office on Saturday. Mr. Leicht is the democratic candidate for state treasurer and was up looking after his friends a bit.

Judge Montague has a letter from Chairman Jamison of the republican state central committee asking him to deliver ten lectures during the campaign. The judge is a forcible speaker and can do efficient service on the stump.

The business of Larsen, Carpenter & Co. has increased so that they find it necessary to employ another bookkeeper. Mrs. Dickmann was engaged to go to work last Monday morning, but the injury to her foot prevented her from assuming her duties.

Geo. Carpenter: Look at this item in the JOURNAL. It says that Larsen, Carpenter & Co., sold a Buffalo Pitts engine the other day. We don't handle Buffalo Pitts engines, but the Advance engine and Advance separator, the best threshing rig in the world.

H. C. Snyder and wife, of Orangeville, Ill., have been visiting with Mrs. Snyder's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Bailey, returning to their home last week. Mr. S. is depot agent at Orangeville and has not been off duty before in five years. Mr. S. was a former resident of Polk County.

Gulbronson Bros., of Waukeshaw, Minn., have opened a merchant tailoring establishment in the Reckitt block. They will also keep a complete line of ready-made clothing. Mr. G. Gulbronson is an experienced tailor and will undoubtedly give satisfaction to those favoring him with their patronage.

THE Fosston fair promises to be a grand success. The work on the fair building is being rapidly pushed, a judge's stand and a starter's stand has been erected on the track. It is no small undertaking for a village like Fosston to hold a fair, and shows that its citizens have the necessary enterprise to build a city.

Postmaster Dawley is at present driving over the county and will visit every postoffice in it. There are thirty-three offices in the county and it will take him from twelve to fifteen days. The government allows no compensation for this work, and Mr. Dawley will have to bear all the expense of this trip besides suffering the fatigue and exposure of the journey. The government simply makes a request that he shall do it and do not take into consideration the task of covering a large and populous county like Polk.

The city schools opened Monday with a large attendance.

Extensive improvements have been made in the Times office lately.

Jas. Anderson, auditor of Grand Forks county, was in the city Tuesday.

Miss Helen Halvorson went to St. Paul Saturday to purchare her fall stock of millinery.

Gulbronson Bros., Reckitt block, carries a large line of ready-made clothing and you will find his prices right.

R. A. Wilkinson, the Great Northern right-of-way agent, has been looking over the city for the past few days.

Editor McKenzie of the Times left for St. Paul Tuesday night to join the Minnesota editorial excursion to Denver, Col.

John McGlogan has gone to Kalispell, Mont., where he has secured a position as chief lineman of a division on the Great Northern railway. He will not remove his family at present.

Ada, the eight-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bradshaw, died last Saturday morning from dropsy, brought on by five months suffering with inflammatory rheumatism. The funeral took place Sunday.

Oliver Mercil is busy opening up a stock of groceries, crockery, etc., in the new Fournet block. His goods are new and well selected, and when he gets them in shape he will have one of the nicest businesses places in the city.

On the St. Louis register Tuesday were the names of Dan W. Lawler, Lewis Baker, St. Paul, and J. C. Nethaway, Stillwater, the democratic campaigners who are going around the state urging the democrats to "redeem the country."

Miss Addie Dickmann, who is visiting Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Palmer, while crossing Second street at the Broadway crossing Sunday evening, stepped on a nail in one of the upturned sidewalk planks, and the nail was driven completely through her foot.

Secretary Graber, Vice-President Lord and Book Keeper Armstrong of the Minnesota Hail Association, were closing up the affairs of the company for this season this week. The company has done a fair business, settled their losses satisfactorily, and next year will have the confidence of the people throughout the state.

A. Chabot and J. E. O'Brien & Co. have removed their stocks into the new Fournet block. An archway will be cut between the stores vacated by these firms, and after a few other improvements are made, A. Chabot will remove his stock back again and occupy both establishments.

A traveling man: Grand Forks is getting too tough for any use. Just think, the other night a policeman was held up by three toughs. Each one pulled a gun on him and told him to put up his hands. When it gets so that policemen are held up on the streets and robbed, I call that pretty tough.

Prof. Moore: There was a large number of new pupils came to school Monday, and it is a big job to get them all arranged. I think there must be at least 1,000 more people in the city than there was a year ago. Postmaster Dawley also bears me out in this. He reports 365 new families since last year.

As a window dresser, F. J. Lindquist, a clerk in the Fair department store, is about as good as they make 'em. Ships, locomotives, Brooklyn bridges, spinning wheels, looms, geese, etc., etc., are artistically fashioned out of goods, and make the windows of the Fair always attractive.

H. E. Cooke left last Sunday evening for Washington, D. C. He will visit his old home in York State and enjoy an outing in the Shenandoah valley, reviewing the scenes where he campaigned for his country during the 60's. He will be in Washington during the national encampment and return shortly afterwards.

Mr. M. W. Jenson of the McIntosh mill had the thumb of his left hand badly mashed while helping to unload some freight from the train at Mentor. The car door was shut suddenly and Mr. Jenson's hand was caught in the fastening and the nail and flesh torn from his thumb. The injury is very painful and he will be laid up for some time.

A great deal of kicking has been indulged in lately by the citizens regarding the tardiness of the city authorities in replacing the sidewalks after the grading has been done, and it does seem as though the people had cause for complaint. But the trouble has been that Contractor McKinnon opened up and graded the streets faster than the street commissioners could replace the sidewalks. The city should have provided for this emergency before the grading commenced.

A. C. Rhinehart came down from the woods to attend the meeting of the county board.

Dr. N. Watson, who is now located at Red Lake Falls, was visiting his friends in this city on Tuesday.

O. L. Larson, P. M. Mark and Terry Shelly were a trio of Fosston business men who were in the city Wednesday.

The county commissioners were in session Wednesday, transacting routine business. Proceedings in full in next issue.

H. B. Walker, P. G. Falardeau, A. F. Holmes, Jos. Smith and Phil A. Kaufe, were representing Red Lake Falls in the city this week.

Mossefin & Lindell of the Boston One-Price Clothing house, Crookston, have introduced a new feature in their business. Every purchaser at their store gets a ticket with the amount of his purchase marked on it. When the customer has purchased $25.00 worth of goods he will be presented with a large 194-page book, which is called The Columbian World's Fair Atlas, containing complete illustrations of the World's Fair Grounds and buildings, general illustrations of public buildings, parks, monuments, street scenes, etc. of Chicago and maps of every state and territory in the United States and Canada, and general maps of the world. They are selling their goods as cheaply as ever and this excellent premium should draw them additional trade.

A play which is somewhat out of the ordinary run of dramas, is "The Witch," which was given at the opera house Tuesday evening, with Marie Hubert Frohmann in the title role. The story of the play, the scenes, characters, etc., are more like those of some foreign country than a page of history from the early days of America, when superstition and ignorance reigned throughout the colonies. The scenes are laid in Puritan times, when people were hanged for witchcraft, and kissing or unseemly levity was punished by being placed in the pillory in the public streets. Marie Hubert Frohmann as "the Witch," represents a pure, innocent maiden reared in the seclusion of the forest in charge of a good priest, but meeting a stranger falls in love, is married and deserted. On going to Salem to claim her husband she is accused of witchcraft and condemned to be hanged, but escapes the gallows by the pardon of the governor. Miss Frohmann is an artist in her profession, and is supported by a good company.

L. Ellington: Yes, I'm going up to Thief River this morning. We are expecting a man from St. Paul pretty soon to take charge of our bank at the Falls, and then Mr. Wheeler and myself will not have to be going up and down every week.

J. G. McGrew: I saw a tremendous lot of country out west, some of it good country, too. In the Saskatchewan country they raise the finest wheat I ever saw. And such yields. Fifty bushels to the acre is quite common. I saw a head of wheat containing 57 kernels. But it is too far out of the world up there.

R. G. Marlette: I've taken in a little wheat already. It grades No. 2 Northern, and I think the majority of the wheat in this section will grade No. 1 and No. 2 Northern. The low land wheat is badly shrunken, and when it is mixed with wheat grown on higher ground, it spoils the grade of it all. By next Monday I will be taking wheat from seven different localities, and will then be able to tell what the average grade in this section will be.

LATEST MARKET REPORT.

St. Paul Union Stock Yards.

SOUTH ST. PAUL, Sept. 5, 1892.

HOGS—10c higher. Range of prices, $4.90@5.05.

CATTLE—Slow. Prime steers, $3.40@3.65; good steers, $2.75@3.25; prime cows, $2.35@2.65; good cows, $1.90@2.30; common to fair cows, $1.00@1.75; light veal calves, $1.50@3.75; heavy calves, $1.75@2.50; stockers, $1.50@2.00; feeders $1.75@2.25; bulls, $1.00@1.65.

SHEEP—Market steady. Muttons, $3.25@4.15; lambs, $3.25@4.25; stockers and feeders, $2.00@3.50.

Receipts: Hogs, 275; cattle, 400; calves, 10; horses, 68; sheep, 6.

Minneapolis Grain.

MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 5, 1892.

WHEAT—May close, 78⅝c; September opening, 71½c; highest, 71½c; lowest, 71½c; closing, 71½c; December opening, 73¼c; highest, 73¼@73⅜c; lowest, 73c; closing, 73¼c. On track—No. 1 hard, 75¼c; No. 1 Northern, 73⅝c; No. 2 Northern, 68@70c.

Chicago Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, Sept. 5, 1892.

OPENING PRICES.

WHEAT—September, 73¼c.

CORN—September, 46½c; October, 47c; May, 50⅝c.

OATS—September, 32½c; October, 33c; May, 36c.

PORK—October, 10.85; January, $11.95.

LARD—October, $7.52½; January, $6.70.

SHORT RIBS—September, $7.80; October, $7.72½; January, $6.15.

CLOSING PRICES.

WHEAT—September, 72¾c; October, 73⅝c; May, 81⅛c.

CORN—September, 45¾c; October, 47¼c; May, 50⅛c.

OATS—September, 32¼c; October, 32⅝; May, 36c.

PORK—September, $10.22½; October, $10.30; January, $12.02½.

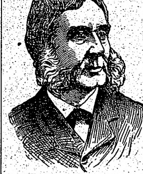
LARD—September, $7.45; October, $7.30; January, $6.90.

SHORT RIBS—September, [illegible]; October, [illegible]; January, [illegible]

GEORGE W. CURTIS DEAD.

The Noted Editor and Reformer Passes Away at His Home on Staten Island.

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—George W. Curtis died about 2:30 a. m. at his home in West Brighton, Staten Island. At his bedside were his wife, his unmarried daughter and his son, Dr. F. C. Curtis, of Boston. Mr. Curtis was conscious up to the last and his death was a very peaceful one. The nature of Mr. Curtis' disease has never been determined. It was announced some time ago that he was suffering from cancer in the stomach; but the physicians who attended him could not agree that his disease was of a cancerous nature.



GEORGE WILLIAM CURTIS.

FOR RECIPROCITY.

The Convention at Grand Forks Makes Recommendations.

GRAND FORKS, N. D., Sept. 1.—Three sessions of the reciprocity convention were held here during the day. Governor Burke, of North Dakota, is the chairman but Hon. James Fisher, of Winnipeg, is acting chairman. There are about 300 delegates present, Minnesota, North Dakota, Iowa, Wisconsin and Manitoba all being represented. The leading topic of discussion was the question of a waterway to the seaboard, the subject of reciprocity being left for another day. The committee on resolutions met a small stumbling block in agreeing upon a clause on the question of recommendations to the Canadian and United States governments as to increasing the waterway route to the sea. Canadian members and a majority of the state representatives favored a general recommendation to improve the St. Lawrence river route, but Thompson, of Duluth, opposed any recommendation that involved the expenditure of money by the United States in improving the Welland canal and leaving out his idea of a canal from the lakes to New York. In order to have unanimity of action a concession of both Canadians and Thompson was agreed upon. The resolution embodies a recommendation for an increased appropriation for making the Red River of the North more navigable. The convention is considered a big success.

The Second Day.

GRAND FORKS, N. D., Sept. 2.—The attendance had increased to about two hundred delegates when the Reciprocity convention was called to order at 10:20 a. m.

A telegram was read from J. J. Hill expressing regret at his inability to attend.

The committee on resolutions then reported. The resolutions declare in favor of the improvement of the Red River of the North and the Columbia river by the United States and Canadian governments under some equitable mutual agreement as to method and expense; in favor of every encouragement being given the promoters of the Hudson's Bay railroad, and declare that the commercial needs of the two countries should not be hindered by governmental resolutions or exclusive privileges to particular corporations in building railroads across the international boundary. After some debate the resolutions were adopted.

Will Meet in St. Paul.

After a brief discussion at 1:15 it was unanimously decided to hold the next convention in St. Paul within six months, the time to be selected by the executive committee. The convention then adjourned sine die after passing resolutions of thanks to the officials and citizens of Grand Forks.

A Lightning Calculator.

Professor Truman Henry Safford, of Williams college, is one of the most remarkable lightning calculators now living. A gentleman who had heard of his power and wished to test it said to him one day: "I have a little problem for you, Professor Safford. I was born Aug. 15, 1852, at 8 o'clock in the afternoon. This is June 20, 1888, and it is just 8 o'clock. Now, can you tell me my age in seconds?" The great man frowned, bent his head, and began to walk rapidly up and down, twisting his mustache and clasping and unclasping his hands in his nervous way. After a moment or so he returned the answer, which was somewhere in the billions. The gentleman produced a paper containing the problem worked out, and said, with a superior smile, "Well, professor, I'll give you credit for great genius, but you're several thousand out." The professor stretched out his hand for the paper, and running over the calculation, said contemptuously: "Humph! You've left out the leap years."—Boston Traveller.

Poor Blank.

Mrs. Jones—Men never know how much they owe to their wives. Now, there's Mr. Blank, who is praised by every one as a successful man, but what would he have been if he had never married?

Mr. Jones—A bachelor, dear.—Pharmaceutical Era.

Cannon were invented in 1330, were used by the Turks at Adrianople in 1453, and were made in England in 1547.

We are Selling Now

For fall use a nice line of HARNESS, Single or Double, heavy and light, at prices which will surprise you. We are making a leader on double heavy harness, and invite you to give us a call before purchasing. We have just received another car of Rushford Wagons the lightest running and best finished wagon made. We can show you something in PLOWS that no one else can, and if you are in need of one and will call and look at our line of goods we can convince you we have something you want.

Merit Wins.

And to that reason more than anything else, do we assign our large and daily increasing trade. The Yankee and Scandia Gang Plows and Sulkies can't be beat. We have a few Buggies left that we are selling cheap to close out.

Good Goods at Reasonable Prices,

and fair treatment to all is what we aim, and our motto is MERIT WINS—every time.

Larsen, Carpenter & Co.

Opera Block, Crookston, Minn.

"To improve the golden moment of opportunity, and catch the good within our reach, is the great art of life."
—Samuel Johnson.

EXCEPTIONAL OPPORTUNITIES.

Those who take advantage of these offerings will make no error.

Ladies' fast black cotton hose, double heels, soles and toes,	19c., should be 25c.
Ladies fast black cotton hose, double heels, soles and toes,	11c., should be 15c.
Ladies' summer corsets,	38c., should be 75c.
Ladies' white buckskin gloves,	79c., should be $1.
Ladies' colored, hemstiched handkerchiefs, all linen,	8c., should be 25c.
Anderson's Ginghams,	19c., should be 30c.
Black Cotton Bedford cord,	12c., should be 20c.
English suitings,	16c., should be 25c
English cashmeres,	16c., should be 25c.
All wool challies,	48c., should be 65c.
Ladies' black satine shirt waists,	62c., should be 85c.
Ladies white embroidered shirts,	$1.11, should be $1.50.
Childrens' "black" satine blouse......	38c., should be 65c.
Children's straw hats......................	25c., should be 50c.
Caildren's straw hats......................	50c., should be $1.
Children's straw hats..................	60c., should be $1.25.
Children's straw hats..................	75c., should be $1.50.
Children's straw hats..................	$1.00, should be $2.00
Black polka dot organdies..............	11c., should be 15c.

Our closing sale of REMNANTS at depleting prices is now in progress.

FONTAINE & ANGLIM

ADDENDA—Our fall stock of Carpets is now "enroute."

The constitutionality of a protective tariff has not been seriously questioned in more than a hundred years. The policy was recognized in the second act ever passed by the congress of the United States—a congress participated in by many of the framers of the constitution. The preamble of that act declared it to be "for the support of the government, for the discharge of debts of the United States and for the encouragement and protection of manufacturers."—Governor McKinley.

How Is This, Free Traders?

No strikes under free trade? What about the 55,000 tailors now out in London? Some of our dudes will have to do without British clothes this fall.—New York Recorder.

A New Slot Machine.

Drop a postal card in the letter box slot and get a long answer from Gray Gables.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

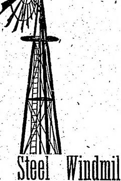
Keene's Pipes.

A good deal has been written in various quarters with regard to the little Elizabethan pipes in which the late Charles Keene took such great delight. I cannot help thinking that the persistent smoking of these pipes must have done no little injury to his health. The pipes were so short, they became so charged with nicotine and he so persistently smoked them at every opportunity that I cannot help thinking he must have absorbed a large amount of poison into his system.

No one, unless he had smoked one of Keene's pipes, could have the least idea of its strength. I remember trying one at his studio one evening, and though a pretty tough tobbaconalian I shall never forget how my head was affected and all the pains I endured in consequence. I had all the symptoms of suffering from the effects of a powerful narcotic poison.—London Graphic.

The September number of The Literary Northwest contains seventy-two pages of varied and otherwise excellent literature. Live questions naturally receive the most marked attention. Hence the symposium on the social problems arising out of the recent strikes will be eagerly perused by the readers of The Literary Northwest. Among the contributors to this symposium are three specialists—Mr. J. G. Pyle, associate editor of the Pioneer Press, Mr. E. V. Smalley, editor of the North-West Magazine and Mrs. Eva McDonald-Valesch, ex-state lecturer of the Farmers' Alliance. Address 139 Endicott Arcade, St. Paul, Minn.

THE IMPERIAL



All Steel Windmill,

Can be set up on a Steel or Wood Tower.

We carry a
COMPLETE STOCK OF
WOOD AND IRON PUMPS,
including DOUBLE-ACTING,
ANTI-FREEZING
FORCE PUMPS.
IRON PIPE AND IRON PIPE FITTINGS.

Special attention given to the
2-in Plugged and Rimmed Well Casing.

PRICES AS LOW AS THE LOWEST.
Estimates given on all Plumbing Contracts in or out of the city.

CROOKSTON PLUMBING CO.,
Broadway, near Robert St., Crookston, Minn.

E. D. SCHREADER,
Veterinary Surgeon.

Horse Dentistry a Specialty.
All Calls receive Prompt Attention.
Satisfaction guaranteed in all cases.
Office: 319 North Main Street, in connection with Livery house.
CROOKSTON, MINN.

Historical Society

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

Polk County Journal.

VOL. XVI. CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY, SEPT. 15, 1892. NO. 22

WHAT $100 WILL DO!

WHY NOT KEEP HOUSE?

PARLOR.

Brussels Carpet, full spring Lounge	$ 6.50
Patent Swing Rocker	7.75
Rattan Rocker	3.85
20 yds Best all wool Carpet	13.50
Oak Center Table with Shelf	3.00
Pair window blinds	90
	$35.50

BED ROOM.

Large, showy, antique Ash Suit	$16.75
Spring Mattress	5.50
Pair 6-lb. Feather Pillows	2.50
Pair extra cotton-filled Quilts	3.75
15 yds Carpet	6.50
	$35.00

DINING ROOM.

Six-foot oval or square Table	$ 4.75
Six high back Dining Chairs	6.50
One Oak Sideboard, large mirror	18.75
	$30.00
Kitchen Table $1.75
Four Kitchen Chairs 1.65	$3.40

Here are the Figures:

Parlor Furniture	$ 35.50
Bed Room Furniture	35.00
Dining Room Furniture	30.00
Kitchen Furniture	3.40
	$103.90
Cash Discount	3.90
Total,	$100.00

Crookston Furniture Co.

LIBERAL HOUSE FURNISHERS.

Notice.

STATE OF MINNESOTA,
COUNTY OF POLK, } ss.
CITY OF CROOKSTON.

Notice is hereby given to all persons interested in Barrette's addition to the city of Crookston to be present at a regular meeting of the city council to be held on Tuesday evening, October 11th, 1892, and state cause if any there be why said addition should not be vacated by the city of Crookston.

E. C. CARRUTH,
]19-25] City Clerk.

For Sale at a Bargain.

Being about to remove to California, I will dispose of my store furnishings, consisting of counters, shelving, show-cases, wardrobes, tables, chairs, stoves, carpets, etc., at a bargain. All trimmed hats and millinery at 50 cents below cost mark until sold. Now is the time to secure such bargains in millinery as were never before offered in Crookston. Call early for choice.

MRS. E. E. BANGS,
Second street.

Notice to Hunters.

Hunters are hereby notified that they must keep off my farm sw¼, Sec. 14, Tp. of Lowell, on the Sabbath day, otherwise they will be prosecuted as Sabbath breakers.

[21–22] J. P. MARCUM.

For Sale.

A scholarship in the Crookston Business College. Apply at the JOURNAL office. [10 t.f.]

Wanted.

A good, steady boy to learn the printing business. Apply at the JOURNAL office.

N. P. R. R. Makes Reduced Rates.

To persons desiring to attend the Minneapolis Exposition the Northern Pacific R. R. will sell excursion tickets to Minneapolis and return at reduced rates as follows: On Aug. 30 and Sept. 2, 13, 16, 20 and 23 at one and one-third fair plus 25 dents for admission. On Sept. 5, 6, 7, 8, 9 and 10 at one fare to St. Paul plus 25 cents for admission coupon. For the Minnesota State Fair the Northern Pacific R. R. has made round to St. Paul or Minneapolis of one fare to St. Paul plus admission to fair grounds. These tickets will be on sale Sept. 5th to Sept. 10th. Good returning not later than Sept. 12th. For further information apply to

C. A. SHARKEY, Agt.,
Crookston, Minn.

Republican Legislative Convention.

A Republican Legislative convention for the Fifty-first Legislative District, composed of Polk, Norman and Beltrami counties, will be held at the court house, in the city of Crookston, on Thursday, September 22d. 1892, at 1:30 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of placing in nomination candidates for the following positions, viz: Three Representatives.

The several counties will be entitled to delegates as follows: Polk, 9; Norman, 5; Beltrami, 1.

D. C. LIGHTBURNE,
Chairman.

We are headquarters for mouldings, building paper, cedar siding and shingles, and Washington fir flooring which is next to maple.

STEWART LUMBER. CO.

LOST—Last Saturday, between Crookston and the Clinger homestead, a newly sharpened John Deere plow lathe. Finder will be rewarded by leaving it at Fontaine & Anglim's, Crookston.

T. O. BERGLAND.

For Sale.

One Eagle Well machine in good repair. For particulars address

A. LEPPERT,
[18-23] Wylia, Minn.

When you need lumber call on us. We keep besides plain lumber, cedar shingles, cedar siding, Fir flooring, mouldings and building paper.

STEWART LUMBER. CO.

The Pioneer.

He is—or perhaps rather was, for he is almost of the past—a peculiarly American product. Hardy, courageous, self reliant, and rugged in his honesty, the country owes to him not only the opening of rich and productive lands, but the enlargment of domain which has made room for thousands fleeing from the poverty and despotism of the Old World. Their histories are illuminated with brave and romantic deeds, but, they are gone, and the "pioneers" of this age are the railways. Among them the Burlington Route stands preeminent

A Pioneer in Management,
A Pioneer in Equipment,
A Pioneer in Fast Time,
A Pioneer in Sure Connections,
A Pioneer in Popularity, and a purchase of tickets by the Burlington Route will prove all this and more to the traveler.

Ask your local agent for tickets by the Burlington Route, or address W. J. C. Kenyon, Gen. Pass. Agent C., B. & N. R. R., St. Paul, Minn.

Bids for Grading.

STATE OF MINNESOTA,
County of Polk, } ss.
City of Crookston.

Bids will be received by the City Council of the city of Crookston for grading on Second street between Main and Ash streets as per plans and specifications now on file in the City Engineer's office.

Bids to be opened Sept. 27th, 1892.

The council reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

Dated Crookston, Minn., Sept. 14th, 1892.

E. C. CARRUTH,
City Clerk.

Advertised Letters.

List of letters remaining unclaimed at the Crookston postoffice for the week ending Sept. 10th, 1892.

Englund, John	Gregerson, Evin
Hallan, Austin	Lion Napolion
Larson, Lars A.	Lamey Mike, 2.
Wilson, Sylvester	Salohns. Gunder J.

Persons calling for the above letters please say advertised.

WM. B. DAWLEY, P. M.

Ripans Tabules are always ready.

Ripans Tabules cure constipation.

DOC FISH'S LECTURE.

He Delivers one of His Flowery Time-Killing Talks in the Queen City.

He Carefully Kept Away from the Real Issues in this Campaign.

He Talked for About Two Hours but Gave the People Little to Think About.

Dr. Fish, the great calamity orator of the People's Party, delivered one of his characteristic addresses in McKinnon's hall last Saturday evening. The doctor is an easy talker, has a good command of language, and his speech was for the most part simply a flow of rhetoric. He talked a great deal but didn't say much. He spent a large part of his time discussing the press of our country and his auditors, who had gone to listen to the issues of the day, began to feel disappointed, as the status of the press—its honesty or dishonesty—is not an issue in this campaign. The doctor maintained that the press was all subsidized, the editors were owned by corporations, the news was distorted and suppressed, etc. Even the doings of congress were not printed in full, and measures were passed which never saw the light of day. As the lecturer has been an editor for several years, this may have been his experience. but when he talks about there being no such thing as an independent press, he is simply talking nonsense. Everyone who knows anything, knows that the freedom of the press in this country is unexampled. In fact it has frequently been said that there is too much freedom of speech and freedom of the press in this country.

The national banking system—the best and safest banking system in the world—was denounced as the most iniquitous robbery on earth. He got very much excited over this part of his discussion, and when he would give vent to such expressions as "He would shake it like a dead rat o'er the precipice of hell," it showed he was very much in earnest. A banker by the very nature of his occupation must be dishonest, and he thought no one connected with a bank should be sent to congress.

The farmer is the only creator of wealth, says the doctor, and no money is produced except by the farmer. He condemned the stock exchanges, and in this matter he also spoke from experience, for he said he had gambled in the stock exchanges of New York and Chicago. The probabilities are that the doctor was an unlucky speculator, hence he can see no good in the game, because it's a dead sure thing that if he had been a successful operator on Wall street he wouldn't be going around the country lecturing at so much per lecture.

He told an incident in which he was one of the principals, which shows, if true, the splendid and unequalled possibilities which are opened to penniless people in this country. At one time he had been connected with a college in Cincinnati, and he and the college managers conceived the idea of erecting a magnificent college building—a very laudable idea. They had no money, but that cut no figure whatever. They simply issued bonds and raised enough money to start the enterprise, the contractor built the building and took security on it for his pay, and lo and behold the undertaking was carried out. The profits of the college paid for the building in a few years, and none of the projectors of the scheme had put in a penny. Is there another country on earth where a few penniless people could honestly accomplish such results? If these men in Cincinnati could do this, why cannot similar enterprises be carried on elsewhere?

He dwelt briefly on the subtreasury scheme and the expenses of congress, saying that 15 days expenses of congress would build an elevator in every county of the north and a warehouse in every county in the south in the United States. He didn't say how large the buildings would be but they certainly wouldn't be large enough for any use.

He closed his address with a few semi-religious remarks, which some of his hearers thought were out of place in a political harangue.

At the close of his address he asked the audience for a collection—not for himself, he was rich, but for the party—but the few hearers who were left didn't seem to take kindly to the proposition and left the hall before the hat could be passed and the doctor went away feeling that the lot of the reformer is not a happy one in this cold, ungrateful world.

BRIEF NEWS ITEMS.

FOREIGN.

The German emperor has decided to enter his yacht, the Meteor, to compete for the American cup in 1893.

British Home Secretary Asquith has replied to the petition in behalf of Mrs. Maybrick, declining to advise the queen to interfere with the prisoner's sentence.

Dr. Pierson, of Philadelphia, who officiated in Mr. Spurgeon's pulpit in the Metropolitan Tabernacle during the latter's final illness, and who later acted in the same capacity, has finally been accepted as the permanent successor of Mr. Spurgeon.

POLITICAL NOTATIONS.

The Arizona Republicans have nominated W. C. Stewart for delegate to congress.

S. M. Owen, of Minneapolis, has been nominated for congress by the People's party of the Fifth district.

W. F. Kelso has been nominated for congress by the Democrats of the Seventh Minnesota district.

Republicans of Indiana have begun a suit in the supreme court to test the validity of the Democratic apportionment bill.

Daniel Buchanan, Jr., was nominated by acclamation for congress by the Democrats of the Tenth Wisconsin congressional district.

The elections in Arkansas have resulted in a Democratic victory, notwithstanding the fusion between Republicans and third partyites for county offices in various parts of the state. Mr. Fishback, Democratic candidate for governor, will probably receive 60,000 majority.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Wisconsin tobacco crop has been injured by frost.

Levi Goodrich, the first Anglo-Saxon to set foot in Milwaukee, is dead.

Arguments are being made in the Wisconsin supreme court on the treasury cases.

Ex-United States Senator Kiernan died at his home at Utica, N. Y., Wednesday.

The Minnesota state board of health, the railroad companies co-operating, has resolved to practically shut out all immigrants as a protection against cholera.

Zimmerman, the bicycle rider, has succeeded in smashing Nancy Hanks' record on a regulation track, going a mile in 2:06 4-5.

Postmaster General Wanamaker has issued an order to put up letter boxes for the collection and delivery of mails at house doors.

Martin Burke, one of the convicted Cronin murderers, is ill in the Joliet penitentiary. While no immediate fatal results are anticipated, it is acknowledged that his condition is serious.

A masked man boarded the Missouri Pacific train in the suburbs of Kansas City and overpowered the express messenger. He secured probably $10,000 and escaped.

The Southern Pacific company and the Wells Fargo Express company have offered a reward of $6,000 for the arrest of Chris Evans and John Sontag, the train robbers, or $3,000 for either.

Henry Bremer, a farmer's boy 8 years old, living near Cumberland, Wis., was shot through the heart and instantly killed by Louie Lohman, who pointed a gun at him in fun and thought to scare him.

During the raid of the police at the Garfield track Truesday, Millionaire Horseman Brown shot one policeman dead, probably fatally wounded another, and was in turn shot dead by another officer.

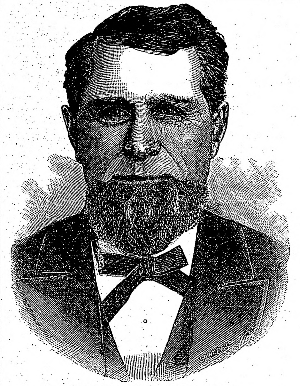
At Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., James Wyce was shot through the head and killed by Mrs. John Dalton. He knocked at her door, when she opened it and shot him, thinking he was trying to force an entrance.

The passengers on the quarantined steamed Normannia have sent a letter to Governor Flower protesting against detention without proper protection from the scourge. Dr. Jenkins is roasted to a turn.

Rev. Sam Small, the noted temperance evangelist was shot in the thigh by a tough at Hazelton, Ind., as he was about retiring. The shot was fired through a window of the hotel at which he was stopping.

A banquet was tendered in Crystal palace, London, by seventy Nonconformists, to Rev. Dr. T. DeWitt Talmage. During the entertainment the guest of the evening was presented with a handsome gold watch.

An agent of a Mexican bank, carrying $10,000 in gold and accompanied by five guards, was attacked by brigands in the Sierra Nevada mountains near Durango. The agent and four of the guards were killed and the money taken.



HON. KNUTE NELSON.

Republican Candidate For Governor

Was born in Norway Feb. 2, 1843; was brought to the United States in 1849 received an academic education, studied law and entered the practice soon after the war closed.

At the outbreak of the civil war he enlisted in the Fourth Wisconsin infantry and served through the war as private and noncommissioned officer. In the stirring times of Wisconsin politics just after the war he took an active part, was a member of the state legislature in 1868-9 and then located in Douglass county, Minn., where he was prosecuting attorney in 1872-4 He was four years a member of the state senate, was an elector on the Garfield ticket and held other positions of trust.

After serving in the Forty-eighth and Forty-ninth congresses he had a practical walk-over in 1886, when he received 43,937 votes for the Fiftieth congress, against 1,239 for Mr. Long, the democratic candidate. He was nominated at St. Paul July 28th as republican candidate for governor.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

A thousand car loads of wheat arrived at Duluth Saturday and Sunday.

W. H. Eustis has been nominated for mayor by Minneapolis Republicans.

John Pavlichek, of New Prague, was kicked by a horse and instantly killed.

James Cannon, a survivor of the First Minnesota volunteers, died last week at Mankato.

The Union band of St. Cloud won first money at the horn blowing contest at the Minneapolis convention.

The grain receipts at Winona the past year have been over 12,000,000 bushels, an increase of 4,000,000 over the previous year.

Mankato's G. A. R. post has raised $1,000 for a memorial fountain. It will be dedicated next month, and will be placed in Lincoln park.

Carl Johnson, cashier of the Adams Express company at St. Paul, has been arrested, charged with embezzlement. His shortage is not very large.

Rev. J. F. Chaffee, presiding elder of the Winona conference district of the Methodist church, will retire from active work on account of his health.

Charles J. Thompson, secretary of the Peoples' Building society, of St. Paul, who absconded about six months ago with $10,000, has been captured at San Francisco.

The October term of the Minnesota supreme court opens Oct. 5. Sept. 26 will be the last day for the filing of all notices and papers in cases which are to come up before the court.

In a saloon row at West Duluth Frank A. Hauck shot and killed Frank Hagerty and John Murphy. Hauck eluded arrest for several days, but was captured and is now in jail.

H. O. Peterson, county treasurer of Hennepin county, who was suspended from office pending an investigation of charges of malfeasance in office, has been reinstated by order of Governor Merriam.

The Thresher company at Stillwater is building fifteen freight cars for the Minnesota and Wisconsin Railroad company. These are the first cars constructed at the shops since the failure of the car company eight years ago.

M. Campbell, who was appointed postmaster of the village of Troy, near St. Charles, by President Lincoln in 1862, and has served ever since, a period of thirty years, has resigned from office. Mrs. Mary E. Hamilton has been appointed his successor.

Herbert H. Skinner, a barber of Moorhead, has fallen heir to a fortune in England. Mr. Skinner's share is one-ninth of the entire fortune, which is estimated at over $1,000,000. He thinks he will get about $125,000. The case is now in the hands of good attorneys, who will push it as fast as possible.

Henry J. Becker, charged with an attempt to outrage little Mamie Lapolice, was run out of Little Falls secretly Saturday night, and is now in jail at Brainerd. Early in the evening Sheriff Houde received an intimation that the jail would be stormed during the night and an attempt made to lynch Becker.

On Aug. 22 a man giving the name of Richard Brandt, bought a draft for $5 at the First National bank, of Moorhead, drawn on the Merchants National bank, of St. Paul. The draft was raised to $1,500, and was cashed by the St. Paul bank. The theft was not discovered until a statement from St. Paul was received. The draft was cashed Aug. 27.

Early Sunday morning a desperate fight between Bohemians occurred in a boarding house at the corner of Eighth avenue northeast and Ramsey street, Minneapolis. The boarders had been drinking beer the entire night and were all in a belligerent mood. Two brothers, Andrew and Joseph Wagner, pitched into Frank Shatszi and literally cut him to pieces with knives. They inflicted thirteen wounds on him and he now lies at the point of death. The fight between Shatszi and the Wagners was the result of an old family feud, begun on the other side of the water.

Simeon J. Ahern, a St. Paul capitalist, was sent to the workhouse in that city for criminally libeling Moritz Heim, attorney and notary public. Not long ago Ahern recorded an affidavit declaring that he had never made the acknowledgment of a certain document before Heim. He filed an affidavit with Governor Merriam to the same effect, and asking that Heim's notarial commission be revoked. Heim was able to produce unimpeachable testimony that Ahern had made the acknowledgment before him, and laid a charge of criminal libel against Ahern, which was heard before Judge Twohy. The sixty-day sentence was given without the option of a fine

Bray's Resignation.

BISMARCK, N. D., Sept. 13.—State Auditor John P. Bray has tendered his resignation and it was accepted by Governor Burke. A. Curry, Jr., who has acted as Mr. Bray's deputy for three years, was appointed to fill the vacancy. Bray has received his commission as postmaster of Grand Forks and will take charge at once.

American Tips Too Large.

Frenchman—Vat you gif zat wataire?

American—I gave the waiter half a dollar.

Frenchman—Mon dieu! Zat ees not von teep; zat ees von bribe.—New York Weekly.

There is a man in Montezuma, Ga., who has had his arm dislocated at the shoulder thirty-eight times and his leg dislocated at the hip eight times.

A NEW JAIL.

Proceedings of the Meeting of the County Board held September 7th and 8th.

It Was Decided to Erect a New Jail, and the Cost of the Building

To be Reduced from the Estimate Already made by Architect Permain

The Red River Lumber Company Asked to Pay for Damages to the Bridge

At East Grand Forks—A Large Grist of Bills Allowed or Otherwise Disposed Of.

The board of County Commissioners met on Wednesday, Sept. 7th, 1892. Members present, Commissioners Rhinehart, Kirsch, Thomas, Erwin and DeMers.

The committee on the East Grand Forks bridge presented the following report, which was adopted:

We, the undersigned, a majority of the committee to whom was referred the repairing of the county bridge crossing Red Lake river at East Grand Forks, at the last session of the board, herewith report that said bridge has been repaired according to contract hereto attached, and your committee would recommend that the contractor Jas. McGraith, be paid for said work the sum of $800 as stipulated in said contract.

M. E. KIRSCH,
A. RHINEHART, } Com.
C. P. DEMERS,

By a unanimous vote the board instructed the county auditor to notify the president of the Red River Valley Lumber company, T. B. Walker, of the cost and outlay by said Polk county in repairing the bridge at East Grand Forks, as the damage to said bridge so repaired by said county has been wholly caused by the boomage piers located near thereto by the Red River Valley Lumber company, and to ask said company to pay over to the county treasurer forthwith the amount of the $800 so expended, and the county attorney was likewise instructed to commence action against said Red River Valley Lumber company if the same should fail within a reasonable time to reimburse the county for its outlay.

The personal assessment of C. F. Misner in North Tp. for 1891, was abated with $1,297, and the county auditor was instructed to issue a refunding order for the amount of taxes paid thereon.

The county auditor was ordered to discontinue ordering school text books, and the school superintendent was instructed to make such transfer and exchange of books in the hands of the agents as he considers adequate to the demands.

The judge of probate was allowed an amount not to exceed $50 for clerk hire.

The nw¼ of sec. 4, tp. 157, r. 48, was detached from school district No. 17, and the same attached to district No. 16, a protest to the contrary, notwithstanding.

The school petition of John E. Tice was rejected.

The amount of $75 was appropriated out of the county road and bridge fund to Emardville township for the purpose of aiding said township in completing a bridge across Clearwater river on sec. 4.

A committee consisting of the chairman and commissioners Rhinehart and Erwin was selected to inspect and consider what repairs were necessary in order to place the bridge across the Marais, in Grand Forks township, in a safe and passable condition, with power to act.

The board approved the appointment of J. V. E. Wyatt as deputy county coroner, and his bond as such deputy.

The application of B. Sampson for an abatement of penalty and interest on certain lots in Sampson's Woodland addition was granted.

The county auditor and the chairman were authorized to issue county orders for the payment of bills presented and approved for labor performed in repairing the Fisher bridge.

The county attorney and Commissioner Rhinehart were appointed a committee to secure from the G. N. R. R. Co. their consent in writing that they (the R. R. Co.) will pay without assessment, their due share of cost and benefit to their lands by reason of the construction of a certain ditch through a portion of Powell and Crookston townships.

A committee consisting of Commissioners Kirsch and Erwin and architect Permain was appointed with the view of making such changes in the plans and specifications of the proposed county jail as shall materially reduce the estimated cost thereof, and the county auditor was by a unanimous vote instructed to advertise for bids for the erection and equipment of a county jail on its grounds in the city of Crookston, such bids to be received at the auditor's office until 2 o'clock the 3d day of October 1892.

The following bills were audited

Mrs. Freeman, services as nurse at the county hospital	$ 3 50
J. E. Hertz, laundry for county hospital	10 48
Emmerette Work, services at "	45 00
C. T. Cahoon, hauling wood for "	50
Stark Anderson, services at "	2 00
C Anderson, water for "	3 00
Chas. T. Vine, meat for "	19 68
Barnes & Slocum, groceries for "	36 32
S. A. Wallace, drugs for "	20 95
W. Cunningham, milk and potatoes for county hospital	10 65
Stewart Lumber Co. lumber for county hospital	8 58
C. U. Webster, postage and express	81 12
Arny Grundysen desk for sheriff's office	20 25
Hillieson & Tweten, lumber for county road	3 07
John Locken, postage	18 69
W. Marin, 2 days work on county bridge	5 00
V. D. Carruth, express and drayage	3 85
John Ostonson, grading and ditching for McIntosh and Woodside county road	62 00
The Crookston Tribune, printing	18 00
Arny Grundysen, sheriff's fees	70 55
Louis Gonyea, serving warrant and mileage	70
L. E. Gossman, taking testimony in justice court	12 45
Dr. A. Tillier, expert testimony in justice court	9 12
C. O. Christianson, justice fees	35 25
Shaw & Fuller, grading on Crookston and Lowell townships	66 00
Red River Dalen Pub. Co. printing	24 00
Jno. N. Kirsch, work on Crookston tp. bridge	9 50
Louis Gonyea, serving warrant and mileage	2 40
J. E. O'Brien & Co., hardware	16 09
A. C. Schmidt, setting lights at court house	3 25
V D. Carruth, postage and express	12 85
J. V. E. Wyatt, undertakers fees, Gust Blomdahl	85 00
M. Watts, medicines for patients at county hospital	4 90
Job Dougherty, two loads wood for county hospital	4 00
Nils Muus, express and postage	2 85
Peter Lafaive, witness fees, justice court	9 40
Stewart Lumber Co., planks for Crookston township bridge	80 27
P. J. McGuire, wood for jail and court house	151 50
Locken & Solberg, dry goods for prisoners	4 00
Aslak Gunderson, cleaning jail vault	8 00
" " " "	8.00
Wm. Fraser, witness fees	1 15
Hugh Quigley, "	1 40
Louis Gonyea, constable fees	73 85
S. A. Wallace, stationery	8 70
Boda Anderson, witness fees	2 48
Hannah Johnson "	2 72
Alma Juline, "	2 36
Mary Sundeen "	2 60
Anton Anderson, "	2 72
C. S. Lasker, justice fees	88 35
Martin Purcell, constable fees	23 27
Mark Lampman, constable fees	7 45
Alex Robeson, " "	1 40
John Kittelson " "	6 05
C. S. Spendley, justice "	25 75
Geo. Holt, dep. coroners fees	33 20
" " constables fees	3 45
Thomas Murray, constable's fees	19 70
Hugh Quigley, " "	8 35
T. A. Campbell " "	1 40
G. H. Barlow, " "	1 35
Jos. Jarvis, witness fees	1 15
Hugh Quigley, constable fees	6 45
G. H. Barlow " "	21 00
J. M. Hanson, justice fees	11 90
G. H. Barlow, constable fees	6 30
O. A. Stortroen, commissioners fees and mileage	9 60
C. O. Christianson, drawing jurors	8 12
J. S. Dwyer, justice fees	17 35
Martin Purcell, constable fees	9 70
W. E. McKenzie, printing and stationary	126 38
Arny Grundysen, sheriff's fees	225 46
T. A. Campbell, constable fees	4 40
M. Purcell, " "	20 40
Clarence Odell, conveying Herman Nelson to Red Wing reformatory	40 34
Louis Gonyea, constable fees	31 55
Martin Williams " "	10 60
" " interpreter fees	1 00
Alex Robeson, constables fees	2 95
James Jarvis " "	1 24
Crookston Tribune printing notice	4 50
Mike O'Reilly, constable fees	4 35
Arny Grundysen, boarding prisoners	195 97
J. S. Dwyer, justice fees	46 93
Brown, Tracy & Co. two books	23 00
Pioneer Press Co. stationery	5 20
" " tax books for '92	142 25
" " statements and naturalization records	34 00
W. Watts, attorney's fees	50 00
M. E. Kirsch, commissioner's fees and mileage	63 80
M. Watts, medical services at hospital	36 09
A. C. Rhinehart, commissioner fees and mileage	233
C. P. Demers commissioner fees and committee work	105 90

Dr. Denniston was engaged as county hospital physician, from date. The following bills were rejected, they being not a county charge:

Township of Louisville, J. S. Dwyer, five bills; G. H. Barlow, one bill; Dr. A. Nelson, Hugh Galbraith, Lars E. Gulseth, R. T. Webster, Jos. Rosaen, Peder Estenson, A. O. Elly, Alex Robeson, one bill.

Major Hitchcock's Story of a Close Call.

"I was once sentenced to be blown from a gun," said Major John Hitchcock. "I had long been a resident of that land of revolutions, Central America. During one of the semiannual political upheavals I was captured by a savage mob known as the army of San Salvador and sentenced to death. In the camp of my captors a 6-pound gun was fired at high noon by means of a sunglass, and to the muzzle of this antiquated smoothbore I was strapped and left in the broiling sun to await my fate. Now, I have faced several kinds of death in my day, but that knocked all the nerve out of me. I could not see the small, fiery spot made by the sunglass, but I knew that it was creeping slowly but surely to the powder at the vent. I imagined I could hear the powder hissing with the heat. The blazing sun beat down upon my bare head, blinding me and seeming to boil the blood in my veins. I became hysterical and prayed and cursed by turn.

"The great clock in the cathedral was on the stroke of noon, and I knew that the concentrated rays of the sun were pouring squarely upon the powder. The troops were dozing in the shade. A few, awakened by the bell, raised up on their elbows and watched me with lazy interest, expecting every moment to see me blown to shreds. One—two—three—four—five—with maddening deliberation came the strokes of the bell, when suddenly a harsher note was heard—the roar of musketry. The camp was surprised, and my captors driven were back. The cords were cut, and I sat down beneath the muzzle of the gun just as it belched forth its midday salute."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Standing Bear.

A book could be written about Standing Bear. Properly speaking he is not a Sioux, but a Northern Cheyenne. With Crazy Horse, Hunting Hog and old Chief Gall he has been at the head of nearly all the notable Indian wars for thirty years. He routed the Pawnees and once killed ten white men in a lonesome canyon single handed. On another occasion he defied and defeated alone thirty cavalrymen. It was Standing Bear who under Sitting Bull routed the United States forces when Custer died on the Little Big Horn.—San Francisco News-Letter.

SHE RECOILED, BUT DIDN'T KICK.

Heroic Conduct of a Tall, Graceful Girl at the Supreme Test of Love.

Two tall, graceful girls strolled slowly along the beach earnestly conversing. They were conspicuous in the throng, and many an admiring glance was turned toward them as they sauntered to and fro. A cloudless sky was reflected in calm waters below, while scarcely a breath of air was stirring.

The girl in the pure white blazer was doing most of the talking.

"It is all very well," she was saying, "to insist that you would die for the man you love, but the sacrifice is quite another thing."

The girl with the blue yachting cap shrugged her shoulders.

"You speak," she observed, "like one who had made the sacrifice."

"I have the right so to speak."

Affecting recollections poured tumultuously over the soul of the girl in the white blazer. Her lips trembled and the superb eyes bent upon the sand of the beach glistened with the dew of gathering tears.

The girl in the blue cap smiled haughtily.

"Indeed," she sarcastically retorted, "how very [illegible]esting! And how does it feel to [illegible] y die for the man you love?"

Reproachfully the girl in the white blazer directed her gaze upon the girl with the blue yachting cap.

"You shall not make light of it."

"Forgive me."

For a time they walked in silence. Both were deeply affected, the one filled with remembrances of the past; the other her resentment gone, with womanly sympathy.

"Tell me about it, Ethel."

The girl in the blue yatching cap was tenderly persuasive.

"It was worse than dying for him, Clara."

With a quick movement the tears were dashed from the superb eyes, and the girl with the white blazer faced her companion.

"It was at Easter, Clara. You remember the dear, bright fellow I was engaged to then. One evening but a short while before he said he did not believe I bore him the deep love I should. I challenged him to name a sacrifice I would not make for his sake. With an insight into feminine character which was Mephistophelian in its subtlety, he dared me to do that which causes every woman's heart to recoil with horror. But I did it."

They had paused in their walk, and were looking at each other fixedly.

"Ethel!"

"Yes, Clara, I did it. I went to church that Easter morning, sat in the very front seat, and I never looked around during the service."

The girl in the blue yachting cap drew a deep, tremulous breath.

"Ethel!"

"Yes, Clara."

"You are a sublime heroine. Can you forget my hasty words?"

"I can, Clara."

And the little wavelets lapped the snowy beach with drowsy sound, while all the throng gazed in admiration at the graceful girls.—Detroit Tribune.

Did the Ancient Jews Play Ball?

Herod the Great was the first Jewish king who imported into his realm Roman modes of "society life." His theaters and arenas, after the Roman style, were not to the national taste in amusements, despite the fact that the former were, so to say, silently patronized by the Talmud in the saying, "Let us be grateful to the Romans for their establishment of theaters, as they keep the public from mischief, which Satan finds for idle folks." The arenas were not patronized on account of the inhuman performances given there. The favorite Jewish national game at that time was the kadur, or ball.

Whether it was played as a sort of lawn tennis or as national baseball is not recorded. That the game was not allowed by some rabbis to be played on the Sabbath is a proof that the game required skill and labor. That the game was patronized by the Talmud we infer from its not being included among those against which the Talmud opened a crusade, condemning them as "gambling games."—Boston Transcript.

The Thunderer's Suicide Day.

A young Philadelphian, who has been employed on the staff of more than one newspaper in this city, went abroad and secured a position as reporter for the London Times. When he was deemed sufficiently broken in he was sent out one evening to write up the story of a rich and beautiful girl who had taken chloroform because her lover failed to appear at the altar when due.

The young Philadelphian raced nimbly about, gathering various particulars and hurried back to the office in a cab, after getting his copy into shape. Not far from midnight he sped up the stairs to the local room and turned in his copy with apologies for his unavoidable lateness.

"It doesn't matter," said one of the editors calmly; "this is Monday, you know, and we print suicides only on Saturdays."—Philadelphia Press.

Unconscious Comment.

Mr. C. was particularly deliberate in the matter of invoking the divine blessing upon the family meals, and when the repast was unusually good this was a trying ordeal to the three young sons. On one occasion there were strangers—and chicken—at dinner, and this function was longer than ever. At its conclusion the three-year-old son drew a long breath, and fervently but audibly remarked, "That's a good job done."—New York Tribune.

Always Right There.

The man who says the weather is too hot to dance at the summer hotel compromises, by wearing a polka dot necktie and standing in the ballroom window to keep as much air as he can away from the dancers.—New Orleans Picayune.

"WORTH A GUINEA A BOX."
Sleepy.
If a man is drowsy in the day time after a good night's sleep, there's indigestion and stomach disorder.
BEECHAM'S PILLS by removing the waste matter which is clogging the system, will cure all Bilious and Nervous Disorders, and will quickly relieve Sick Headache.
Covered with a Tasteless and Soluble Coating.
Of all druggists. Price 25 cents a box.
New York Depot, 365 Canal St.

Town Clerks.

The following is a list of the town clerks for the several towns in Polk county:

Andover,	E M Bivins	Crookston
Angus,	A B Carleton	Angus
Black River,	P A Eckstrom	Wylie
Bray,	Albert Wickstrom	Wylie
Badger'	P N Savalrud	Sletten
Brandsvold.	Ole Nelion	Fosston
Belgium,	Henry Biever	Euclid
Brislet,	A P Frank	Warren
Bygland,	Thos. Benson	Fisher
Crookston,	E O Flanders	Crookston
Crookston, city,	E C Carruth	Crookston
Columbia,	R H Carr	Columbia
Chester,	O J Mattson	Lindsay
Emardville,	Peter Anderson	Emard
Euclid,	F Tiedt, Jr.,	Euclid
Eden,	Neri A Skele	Olga
Fairfax,	Wm Himmelsback	Crookston
Farley,	Mark Congnon	Warren
Fanny,	Walter Latta	Buffington
Fisher,	Halyor Gunderson	Fisher
Fisher, vil.,	John Gleason	Fisher
Gd Forks,	John McCoy	E G Forks
Gd Forks, city,	John McCoy	E G Forks
Garfield,	Iver J Ingebretson	Fertile
Garden,	John Hanson	Ringdal
Gentilly.	H F Gondron,	Gentilly
Gervais,	John Deforge	R L Falls
Grand Park,	E E Abbott	Mentor
Goderey,	D T Mitchell,	Maple Bay
Hammond.	Ernest Hanna	Caookston
Higdem,	Ole Hendrickson	E G Forks
Hill River,	Fred S Syeverson	Lindsay
Huntsville,	O Osmundson	Mallory
Hubbard.	Frank Hanson,	Neilsville
Keystone,	D E Geddes	E G Forks
Kerlsonville,	Fred Benoit	Gentilly
King,	K C Norsving	McIntosh
Knute,	O H Dale	Erskine
Lake Pleasant,	Jos Perrault	R L Falls
Lambert,	Samuel Gebcan,	Lamber
Liberty,	Nelson Clementson	Fertile
Lessor,	H Helgeson	Ovetia
Lowell,	Ole Christianson,	Crookston
Louisville,	Louis Huot	Huot
Nesbit,	Robert Nesbit	Mallory
Norden,	O J Tweet	Tweet
North,	S T Johnson	T R Falls
Numedal,	Olaf Larson	Warren
Onstad,	W A Marin	Melvin
Parnell,	Thos Filban	Crookston
Poplar River,	J B Hebert	Brooks
Polk Centre,	Wm Wylie.	Wylie
Queen,	Hans L Houkom	Fosston
R L F, village,	August Herard,	R L Falls
Red Lake Falls,	Ildaig Baril	R L Falls
Reis,	D C Hallock	Edna
River Falls,	K C Gigstad	St. Hilaire
Rocksbury,	P Englestad	St. Hilaire
Roome,	P Boukon	Neby
Rosebud,	M E Randkler	Fosston
Russia,	Orens Simmons	Crookston
Sanders,	Nils K Anderson	St. Hilair
Sandsville.	Henry Nelson	E G Forkse
St. Hilaire,	L J Johnson	St. Hilaire
Sletten,	Ingebret Larson	Winger
Sullivan,	P A Holvedt	E G Forks
Tabor,	F J Cernousek	Tabor
Terrebonne,	Edonor Perruse	Terrebonne
Tilden,	S J Furan	Dugdale
Tynsid,	A O Stortroen	Neby
Vineland,	John Thompson	Neby
Winger.	Albert Johnson	Winger
Woodside,	Joseph Tagley	Woodside
Wyandotte,	O J Johnson	St. Hilaire
Rhinehart,	Oscar Winck	E G Forks
Thief River Falls	C J Knox	T R Falls

G. G. HENAULT
Practical Dentist,
SECOND STREET.
CROOKSTON, - MINN
OFFICE IN DOBSON'S BLOCK,
☞ All work in my line skilfully and promptly performed. Give me a call.
G. G. HENAULT.

KOPS BRO'S
105 Third Street,
GRAND FORKS, N. DAKOTA
PIANOS, ORGANS
NEWBY & EVANS
WEBER, HAINES BROS., KURTZMANN, MATHUSHEK, McCAMMON PIANOS, Estey and Chicago Cottage Organs. New Upright Pianos from $250 to $1,000, on terms of $10 to $25 per month. New Organs from $60 to $250 on terms of $5 to $10, per month.
Satisfaction guanteed. Write for catalogue and prices. KOPS BROS.
Grand Forks, N. D.

Mortgage Sale.

(First publication Thursday, Aug. 25, 1892.)
(Last publication Thursday, Oct. 6, 1892.)

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a mortgage containing power of sale, dated December 28th, 1888, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Polk County, Minnesota, December 31st, 1888 in book 42 of mortgages, page 17, whereby John Boden, unmarried, mortgagor, mortgaged to The Middlesex Banking Company, mortgagee, the east half of the southwest quarter and the west half of the southeast quarter of Section thirty-one, (31) in Township one hundred and forty-eight, (148) of Range forty-one (41) in said Polk County, by which default the power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding at law has been instituted to recover the debt remaining secured thereby, or any part thereof, and there is claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date hereof, $365.65, to which amount should be added the taxes on said property paid by said mortgagee, amounting, with interest as provided in said mortgage, to $42.12, making the total amount claimed to be due at the date hereof on said mortgage $407.77.

Now notice is hereby given that by virtue of said power said mortgage will be foreclosed and said premises sold at public auction, by the sheriff of said county or his deputy, on October 8th, 1892, at ten o'clock a. m. at the front door of the Court House, in Crookston, in said county to pay said debt, interest, attorney's fees and disbursements allowed by law.

Dated August 15th, 1892.

THE MIDDLESEX BANKING COMPANY, [Seal.]
By Robt. N. Jackson, President. Mortgagee.
H. C. GILBERT & Co., Attorneys,
[12-25] St. Paul, Minn.

Ripans Tabules are always ready.
Ripans Tabules cure constipation.

Prices Greatly Reduced
ON ALL
Summer Goods,
Summer Clothing,
Light Weight Suits
Light Weight Underwear,
AND Light Weight Shirts.
Everything in our Store at Greatly Reduced Prices.
STRAW HATS AT COST.
BOSTON ONE PRICE CLOTHING HOUSE,
MOSSEFIN & LINDELL, Props.

Great Reduction Sale!
Of White Goods, Embroideries, Challies,
AND
All Summer Goods!
FOR THE
NEXT TWO WEEKS.
Also bargains in Boots and Shoes
and Groceries of all kinds.
If you have Wool, Shake Root, Eggs or Butter we will allow you the highest market prie in trade.
[OPERA HOUSE BLOCK, Crookston, Minn.]
A. STURE.

You Can Buy Reliable
AGRICULTURAL MACHINERY
OF
SYLVESTER & FINSETH,
CHEAPER AND BETTER
Than anywhere. We handle Buckeye and Osborne Binders with all extras for same, and Twine. Buckeye and Imperial Mowers with extras. Buckeye and Monitor Rakes, Eli, Oliver and Bradley Gang Plows, Stubble and Breaking Plows, the Standard Rotary Shuttle Sewing Machine, Nichols & Shepard New Vibrator Threshing Machine. Also the Jackson, Mitchell and Favorite Wagons, the Enterprise Buggies, Spring Wagons and Carts on all of which we can undersell Grand Forks and other places. We also carry everything that can be had in any first class Hardware Store and invite everybody to call and see us at the corner of Broadway and Fletcher Sts.
SYLVESTER & FINSETH, Crookston, Minn,

Crookston Business College.
and INSTITUTE OF SHORTHAND.
DEPARTMENTS:—Commercial Shorthand, Typewriting and English.
TEACHERS:—Benj. A. Strawbridge, J. M. Latham and L. E. Gossman.
Summer Term began Monday, June 6th, 1892. Fall Term begins Monday, October 3rd, 1892. Send for new Catalogue.
CROOKSTON BUSINESS COLLEGE, Crookston, Minn.

A GREAT OFFER.
THE
Polk County Journal
Will be sent to any address, from now till after the campaign,
FOR
50 CENTS.

If You are a Republican

You should take THE JOURNAL and keep posted on what the Republican party is doing. THE JOURNAL will give from 3 to 5 columns of Republican political matter weekly, and you should keep yourself informed on the questions at issue and the movements of the party.

If You Are not a Republican

You should take THE JOURNAL so that you may see what the Republicans are doing and get the Republican side of the question as well as your own.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

A SPRING IN A WATCH

AN IMPORTANT BIT OF STEEL THAT FREQUENTLY BREAKS.

Watchmakers Say That Sudden Changes of Weather Are Dangerous to These Uncertain Pieces of Mechanism—Mainsprings in Expensive Watches.

"Mainsprings are very much like people," said a Broadway watchmaker the other day. "They are as susceptible to extreme degrees of heat and cold as human beings. When the thermometer is hovering around the freezing point or dancing away up in the nineties the little mainspring will give up in disgust and uncoil itself and die, just as men succumb to freezing or sunstroke."

This uncertain piece of mechanism is supposed to be adjusted to meet the various degrees of temperature, but when the change is very great and comes with short notice there is nothing that can prevent them from snapping. They are made in Switzerland of the very finest quality of steel, absolutely flawless. Very often the watchmaker can detect a bad spring before putting it in the watch, either by its color or the softness of its spring. These have been too highly tempered in the making, and instead of being subjected to merely a red heat the fire has been brought to white heat, thus weakening the strength of the metal. The finest watches that are handled by reliable dealers are put through a "cooking and freezing" process before they are sold, for the purpose of testing their reliability in all temperatures.

The watch is first placed in a little metal box, which is made airtight. Then a strong gas flame is turned on the under surface of the box and is kept there for two or three hours, so that the watch is so hot at the end of that time that it could not be touched with the bare hand. From this it is immediately taken and put into another metallic box which is buried in ice. There the costly watch is allowed to freeze for an equal length of time, when its torture ceases and the examination is made. If during this excessive test the watch appears to have ticked merrily on without deviating a fractional part of a second it is placed back in the case and marked "guaranteed for two years." The mainspring is the first piece of mechanism that succumbs to the test. If it survives nothing else need be feared.

Mainsprings are, however, about the only part of a watch that the jeweler cannot successfully diagnose. They can guarantee any of the numberless little wheels or pivots or balances that go to make up the anatomy of the watch, but the mainspring has as yet baffled the most skilled makers of watches of all countries. It is not so much the severe extremes of the weather that prove fatal to the spring as it is the process of changing from hot to cold, or vice versa. Like the human frame, if the ribbonlike little coil of steel can withstand the effects of this change it may be considered proof against breaking when the change to normal weather comes.

Many people who have been possessors of new watches but a short time come into the dealer's with blood in their eyes, declaring that they have paid an enormous price for the timepiece and the mainspring has broken after only a week's use.

"That is nothing," remarked the jeweler. "We have them snap in our case before the watch has ever been shown for sale." Others imagine that they might have wound the watch too tight, but this does not harm it. It is rather the jerky, hurried winding that will eventually tell on the temper of the metal. Every good stem winder has a stop placed in the stem, which prevents the winding too tight.

Damp weather has an ill effect on mainsprings, and in England they do not as a rule last as long as in this country. A severe thunder and lightning storm also frequently proves disastrous to the durability of the spring. A dealer who took in seventy-nine watches on one day said that one summer on a day immediately following a terrific electrical storm there were twenty-one watches brought into his store within five hours for new mainsprings. The cost of a new mainspring is the small part of making such repair. It is the putting them in, the labor expended, that costs. It costs from twelve to fifteen dollars to put a mainspring in the Jurgensen watch and a little less in a Patek Phillippe, while in a cheaper American make it may cost only fifty cents or a dollar.

A man purchased a $300 Jurgensen from a leading dealer several years ago, and shortly after he left for a tour around the world. He was gone a year, and when he returned he went back to the dealer with his watch and complained: "Here's a watch I paid you $300 for a year ago, and while I was traveling abroad it lost two minutes. You guaranteed it, and I want you to make it good." The watch was placed in the window with this card beside it:

"This watch lost only two minutes in a year in a trip around the world. Price $300." It sold within an hour.

It is said that one bar of iron costing $5 will produce $250,000 worth of mainsprings.

Some springs are made in this country by the manufacturers of cheap watches. These springs are several feet long and take nearly two minutes to wind up.—New York World.

His Excuse.

Patient—Great Scott, doctor, that's a frightful bill you've presented.

Doctor (with dignity)—Not so large, sir, when you come to think that it is my first case and I had to study up on half a library full of authorities.—Detroit Free Press.

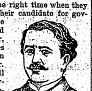
Fully Answered.

Gentleman—Riding a bicycle up such a steep hill as this is a great deal harder than walking. Why don't you get off and push it?

Boy—I just got it.—Good News.

TO REDEEM WISCONSIN.

Ex-Senator Spooner, Gubernatorial Nominee of the Republicans.



J. C. SPOONER.

The Republicans of Wisconsin did the right thing at the right time when they nominated as their candidate for governor that able statesman and eloquent orator, ex-United States Senator John Coit Spooner. Mr. Spooner will be known as Governor Spooner before very long, and Mr. Peck will have the opportunity to devote his entire attention to writing jokes—a very fitting occupation, by the way, as he is a great deal of a joke himself, especially as governor. A vigorous campaign will be inaugurated by the Wisconsin Republicans, and Senator Spooner's eloquent voice will be heard ringing from end to end of the state.

Mr. Spooner was born in Lawrenceburg, Ind., Jan. 6, 1843. He served gallantly throughout the war and was admitted to the bar in 1867. He was elected to the Wisconsin legislature in 1872, and took his seat in the United States senate in 1885.

What Free Trade Does.

Free trade gives to the foreign producer equal privileges with us. Upon what principal of fair play should he have them? It invites the product of his cheaper labor to this market, to destroy the domestic product, representing our higher and better paid labor. It destroys our factories or reduces our labor to the level of theirs. It increases foreign production, but diminishes home production. We cannot have free trade in this country without free trade conditions. The Democratic platform demands it upon these conditions, and is bound to have it at any cost. The world knows what these conditions are. The farmers and workingmen of England know what they are. Thousands of men who have worked on both sides of the ocean and under both systems know the conditions. To introduce them here will bring widespread discontent—revolutionize values. It will take from the people who work for a living heart and hope and home. It will be self destruction.—Governor McKinley.

Chickens Coming Home to Roost.

When Grover Cleveland was nominated for mayor of Buffalo he refused to accept unless the name of John C. Sheehan, the candidate for county clerk, should be removed from the ticket. John C. Sheehan and his brother, William F. Sheehan, declared their purpose to "get even" with Cleveland, and the ill feeling then created has continued ever since. The longed for opportunity has come with the selection of William F. Sheehan for the chairmanship of the Democratic state committee. Sheehan may pull fair, but Cleveland will probably have his doubts on the subject.—Troy Times.

The agriculturists of this country do not want more farmers; they want more people who do not raise their own food and whom they can supply. Every new industry increases the farmer's home market and furnishes him what he most wants—profitable customers. It is no fault of the new tariff law if the farmers of the United States do not supply every agricultural want of our entire population. We frame that law to give them this market and to encourage industries which would increase the consumers by increasing the factories and the demand for labor therein.—Governor McKinley.

It Is but Natural.

The Democrats are able to show that the increase of population in this country and the admission of new states have worked favorably for the Republican party, and they proceed to howl about it; but how can it be helped? Improvement, progress, development, expansion and prosperity always count for Republicanism. If this country were retrograding back to the condition of a wilderness Democracy would of course have a chance for success.—Columbus (O.) State Journal.

"General" Adlai, the Copperhead.

With the Democratic party declaring boldly for free trade, with the words that were contained in the constitution of the secession, free trade, slave holding, southern confederacy emblazoned upon the party banner this year, it would not seem likely that any one need to doubt where to find "General" Adlai Stevenson, the copperhead, the southern sympathizer, the man who believes that slavery of those who toil is right.—Cleveland World.

Mr. Cleveland joined the choir of calamity in his speech of acceptance. I fear he has not consulted the markets since 1890. He had in mind the campaign prices then prevailing, and seems to have been unadvised of what has occurred since. He hadn't then read the report of the senate committee appointed to investigate the effect of the new tariff law upon the consumer and the producer and the wages of labor.—Governor McKinley.

Promise and Performance.

The Democrats in 1890 promised the country to cut down the expenses by at least $100,000,000. During their first session they appropriated $44,000,000 more than the "billion" congress. This difference between promise and performance is characteristically Democratic.—Albany Evening Journal.

Modest Grover's Political Creed.

Grover Cleveland's political creed is simple. You do not have to read all his letters and speeches to get at it. Implicitly or explicitly it is stated in everything he writes. It is this, "The country is going to the devil because I am not president." Nothing could be simpler.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

TARIFF AND PRICES.

THE EXACT EFFECT OF ONE UPON THE OTHER.

Some Interesting Figures for the Contemplation of Free Traders—The Cost of Iron and Steel to the Consumer Decreased by the Tariff.

Nothing demonstrates more conclusively the fallacy of Grover Cleveland's proposition that the tariff is a tax than the statistics bearing on the iron and steel industry. The facts are that without any exception manufactured articles are cheaper today than in 1860, and that frequently the price is less than the duty. It is also true that as a rule the McKinley law has reduced the cost of such articles.

In 1870 the price of steel rails was $106.75 a ton. Today steel rails sell for $28 a ton and even less. At the same time production has steadily increased. Wages also have risen.

Before 1883 very few wire nails were made in this country. In that year congress placed a duty of 4 cents a pound on them. Previously the duty had been ad valorem, under a general clause of the tariff law, and was not really protective. The following table demonstrates that the price under the old schedule of duties grew gradually less, and that the production grew greater year by year:

	Product, kegs.	Price per pound.	Duty, act 1883.
1883.......	50,000	8 3-10 cts.	4 cts. per pound.
1884.......	120,000	7 4-10 cts.	......
1885.......	200,000	6 9-100 cts.	......
1886.......	300,000	4 6-10 cts.	......
1887.......	500,000	3 8-10 cts.	......
1888.......	1,000,000	3 2-10 cts.	......
1889.......	2,425,000	2 9-10 cts.	......
1890.......	3,400,000	2 8-10 cts.	2 cts. per pound.

After the passage of the McKinley law the figures are very striking:

	Product, kegs.	Per pound.
1891	4,100,000	1 8-10 cts.

According to The Iron Age the price at the present time is 1 6-10 cents a pound. The McKinley duty is 2 cents.

It is shown by the preceding tables that when a protective duty was put on wire nails in 1883 production immediately increased and the price fell. This went on continually until in 1890, the year of the passage of the McKinley law, wire nails were actually selling at 2 8-10 cents a pound, or 1 2-10 cents less that the duty.

Since the passage of the McKinley law (which reduced the duty to 2 cents a pound) the price has fallen still more, selling in 1891 at 1 8-10 cents a pound, or 2-10 of a cent less than the duty. Today the production has reached 4,000,000 kegs, and wire nails are sold for 1 6-10 cents a pound, or 4-10 of a cent less than the "tax" which Grover Cleveland says enters into the price of every dutiable article.

The duty on pig iron, fixed by the act of 1883, was 3-10 of a cent per pound. This was left unchanged by the McKinley law.

This table tells the story:

	Price per ton.	Production, tons (net).
1882..........	$25 75	$5,178,000
1883..........	22 33	5,147,000
1884..........	17 88	4,589,000
1885..........	18 00	4,520,000
1886..........	18 71	6,635,000
1887..........	20 92	7,187,000
1888..........	18 88	7,268,000
1889..........	17 75	8,516,000
1890..........	18 40	10,307,000
1891..........	17 52	9,273,000
1892..........	14 00	......

These figures show a marked decrease in selling price. The United States is now the greatest iron producing nation in the world. In 1890 we surpassed England. These figures are taken from the statistical abstract for 1891. The decrease in pig iron production in 1891 was world wide in extent, and was due to excessive speculations in South America.

The figures on cotton ties are scarcely less significant. They follow:

1890, average price per bundle..........	$1 10¾
1891, average price per bundle..........	1 09¾
1890, imports (fiscal year)..........	44,621,533 lbs
1891..........	416,550 lbs
1890, duty..........	35 per cent. ad valorem
1891, duty..........	1 3-10 cts. a lb.

But Mills placed them on the free list. The McKinley law has killed all importations from abroad.

The effect of the McKinley law upon the manufacture of cutlery is shown by the following table:

	Exports.	Imports.
1890..........	$127,199	$2,381,726
1891..........	141,228	1,002,478

That the Homestead strike is not the result of an increase in duties is here shown. Appended is the tariff upon iron and steel manufactured at the Carnegie works under the act of congress of Oct. 6, 1890, compared with the act of May 6, 1883:

	1883.	1890.
Spiegeleisen, per ton..........	$8 72	$6 72
Pig iron, per ton..........	6 72	6 72
Scrap iron, per ton..........	6 72	6 72
Bar iron, per ton..........	22	22
Bar iron or shapes of rolled iron, round, in coils or rods, less than 7-16 of an inch in diameter, per pound..........	1 2-10c.	1 1-10c.
Flat rails, punched—
Iron, per ton..........	17 92	13 44
Steel, per ton..........	17 92	13 44
T-rails and other, not over 25 pounds to the yard, iron and steel, per ton..........	20 16	13 44
Beams, girders, joists, per pound..........	1¼c.	9-10c.
Steel in forms—
Above 4c. and not above 7c., per pound..........	2c.	2c.
Above 7c. and not above 10c., per pound..........	2½c.	2 4-5c.
Above 10c., per pound..........	3½c.	....
Above 10c. and not above 13c., per pound..........	....	3½c.
Above 13c. and not above 16c., per pound..........	....	4 1-5c.
Above 16c., per pound..........	....	7c.
Ingots for railway wheels and tires without regard to manufacture, per pound.	2c.	2½c.
Wheels of iron and steel, and steel tired wheels for railway purposes, wholly or partly finished, per pound.	2½c.	2½c.

The figures given above only govern a few products; others showing the same general results in other branches could easily be supplied.—New York Press.

Tried by any test, measured by any standard, we lead all the rest of the world. Protection has vindicated itself. It cannot be helped by eulogy or hurt by defamation. It has worked out its own demonstration and presents in the sight of the whole world its matchless trophies. Our own experience shows that it is best for our citizenship and our civilization, and opens up a higher and better destiny for our people. The day of repentance will come when we have made a change.—Governor McKinley.

THIRTEEN TOWNS

FAIR,

At Fosston, Minn.

Wednesday, Thursday and Friday,

Oct. 5th, 6th and 7th.

HORSE RACING,
BASE BALL,
ATHLETIC SPORTS,
SPEECH MAKING.

$2,000 IN PURSES AND PREMIUMS.

For Premium List and further particulars, write to
W. H. AVERILL,
Sec. 13 Towns Fair Association,
FOSSTON, MINN.

W A. ROBERTSON
D. D. S.
Graduate of Dental Department of the University of Maryland.
OPERATIVE AND MECHANICAL
DENTIST.
N. B. Nitrous Oxide Gas, (Laughing Gas) administered for the painless extraction of teeth.
OFFICE. IN McKINNON BLOCK.

NEW BARBER SHOP.
On Main St. C. E. MISNER. Prop.
Invites your patronage. Everything in the very latest style of the art.
RAZORS HONED. If you desire your Razor Honed and cannot bring it, send it to me with 30 cents and your name and address and I will hone and return it.
Yours Respectfully,
C. E. MISNER.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication August 18th, 1892.]

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE CONditions of a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Henry A. Bruns and Matilda Bruns, his wife, to George H. Taylor, bearing date the 30th day of October, A. D. 1889, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 4th day of November, A. D. 1889, at 1:30 o'clock p. m., in book 44 of mortgages, on pages 188-192. And whereas the said George H. Taylor the owner and holder of said mortgage has elected to declare, and hereby does declare, the whole principal sum in said mortgage set forth and represented by the notes therein described upon which default has occurred, due and payable at the date of this notice under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

And whereas there is actually due and payable at the date hereof including principal and interest upon the notes in said mortgage described upon which there is default, the following sum, to-wit: Four hundred and fifty-four and 40-100 ($454.40) dollars; and whereas said mortgagee has been compelled to, and has paid the taxes upon the lands in said mortgage described as follows: 1889, $19.53; 1890, $13.50; and 1891, $14.93. And whereas the said power of sale has become operative and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: Situate, lying and being in the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The southeast quarter of the northeast quarter (se¼ ne¼) the northeast quarter of the southeast quarter (ne¼ se¼) and lot eight (8) in Section No. six (6); also lot No. one (1) in Section No. seven (7), all in Township No. one hundred and forty-eight (148) north, of range No. forty-three (43) west, containing one hundred forty-three 25-100 acres, more or less, and all in Polk county and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five ($25) dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of Polk county, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said county and State, on the 30th day of September, A. D. 1892, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated August 17th, A. D. 1892.

GEORGE H. TAYLOR,
Mortgagee

TAYLOR & WOODARD,
Attorneys for Mortgagee,
920 Guaranty Loan Building,
118-241 Minneapolis, Minn.

Mortgage Sale.

(First publication Aug, 25, 1892.)
(Last publication Oct. 6, 1892.)

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of one hundred dollars ($100) and the sum of seventy-five dollars ($75) and interest on said sums from the 9th day of October, 1886, at the rate of 10 per cent per annum, which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Frederick Bleier to Francis J. Detling, bearing date the 9th day of October, A. D. 1886, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 2d day of December, A. D. 1886, at 9 o'clock a. m., in book 22 of mortgages, on page 96, which mortgage, together with the debt thereby secured, was duly assigned by said Francis J. Detling, mortgagee, to Joseph Z. Perron by written assignment, dated the 28th day of February, A. D. 1891, and recorded in the office of said Register of Deeds on the 24th day of March, 1891, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book 56 of mortgages, on page 119; and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: Lots numbered one, (1), two, (2) and three, (3) in block numbered forty, (40) in Kretzschmar's Addition to Red Lake Falls, Polk county, Minnesota, according to the plat thereof on file in the Register of Deeds office in and for said County and State, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 8th day of October, A. D. 1892, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated August 20th, A. D. 1892.

JOSEPH Z. PERRON,
Assignee of Mortgagee.

P. G. FALARDEAU,
Attorney for Assignee,
[19-25] Red Lake Falls, Minn.

We are Selling Now

For fall use a nice line of HARNESS, Single or Double, heavy and light; at prices which will surprise you. We are making a leader on double heavy harness, and invite you to give us a call before purchasing. We have just received another car of Rushford Wagons the lightest running and best finished wagon made. We can show you something in PLOWS that no one else can, and if you are in need of one and will call and look at our line of goods we can convince you we have something you want.

Merit Wins.

And to that reason more than anything else, do we assign our large and daily increasing trade. The Yankee and Scandia Gang Plows and Sulkies can't be beat. We have a few Buggies left that we are selling cheap to close out.

Good Goods at Reasonable Prices,

and fair treatment to all is what we aim, and our motto is MERIT WINS—every time.

Larsen, Carpenter & Co.

Opera Block, - - - Crookston, Minn.

TRY PEAKE,
THE MAIN STREET HARNESS MAKER,
FOR BARGAINS.

CHRISTIANSON BROS.,
Abstracters of Title, Loans,
Real Estate and Insurance:
N. B. FARM LOANS a specialty. Terms, three to five years. Lowest rate of interest, payable annually at our office.
☞ Choice FARM LANDS for sale cheap, on terms to suit purchasers. ☜
Office on Robert Street, - - - CROOKSTON, MINN

ALDERMAN & SYLVESTER,
—DEALERS IN—
Shelf and Heavy
HARDWARE,
Sash, Doors and Mouldings
Mixed Paints, Linseed and Machine Oils, Flying Dutchman Gang Plows, J. Thompson & Sons Walking Plows. Sole agents for the Domestic Sewing Machine.
A FULL AND COMPLETE STOCK OF
STOVES AND RANGES
Corner Main and Fletcher Sts.. - - - Crookston.

NEW FEED MILL
CHRIS. ANDERSON, Prop.
I desire to annouce to the farmers ot Polk County that I have rented the
LAURENCE BUILDING, ON MAIN STEERT,
Next to Brown's New Livery Stable, and am now prepared to grind feed of all kinds promptly. You can get your feed in two hours after you bring me your grain. Prices Reasonable
Try My New Mill!

GASOLINE ENGINES -:-
The Coming Power of the Northwest!
NO ENGINEER REQUIRED, NO FIREMAN,
No Boiler to Burst and no Expensive Wood or Coal Required. Runs at a cost of about 12 cents per day per actual horse power developed; that is, if you have a 6 horse-power engine and your machinery was but 3 horse power the cost of running your engine would be 36 cents for 10 hours.
The Lewis Gasoline and Vapor Engine
Is the Best Engine Made. One of these engines may now be seen in the JOURNAL press rooms in Crookston. For further information or catalogue, call on or address
S. B. PALMER, Lockhart, Norman Co., Minn.

Polk County Journal.

BY COOKE & HAMMOND.

Devoted to the Welfare of Polk County.

OFFICIAL PAPER, CITY OF CROOKSTON.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Dollar and Fifty Cents, if paid in advance to any address inside of Polk County. If outside of Polk County 15 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum to any address.

The date opposite your name on this paper shows the time your subscription is paid up to. The JOURNAL would like to have all those who are in arears, and can spare the money, remit as soon as possible, as the new management would like to get all the old accounts settled up.

THE REPUBLICAN TICKET.

National.

President—BENJAMIN HARRISON,
Of Indiana.

Vice-Pres.—WHITELAW REID,
Of New York.

State.

Governor—KNUTE NELSON,
Of Alexandria.

Lieut. Gov.—D. M. CLOUGH,
Of Minneapolis.

Sec. of State—F. P. BROWN,
Of Blue Earth County.

Atty-Gen.—H. W. CHILDS,
Of Otter Tail County.

Treas.—JOS. BOBLETER,
Of Brown County.

Supreme Court Judges—
C. E. VANDERBURGH,
D. A. DICKINSON,
WILLIAM MITCHELL.

Congressional.

Congressman 7th District—
HENRY FEIG,
of Kandiyohi County.

COMING EVENTS.

Sept. 21—Republican county convention at Crookston.

Sept. 22—Republican legislative convention at Crookston.

Sept. 28—Mark Dunnell lectures at Crookston.

Republican County Convention.

The Republican County Convention for the county of Polk will be held in the Court House in the City of Crookston at 1 o'clock p. m. on Wednesday, the 21st day of September, 1892, for the purpose of placing in nomination the following county officers for said county:

Auditor, Treasurer, Register of Deeds, County Attorney, Sheriff, Judge of Probate, Superintendent of Schools, Surveyor, Coroner, Court Commissioner, Commissioners of 1st, 2nd, 3rd and 5th districts.

Also for the election of delegates to the 51st district Republican Legislative Convention to be hereafter called, and for the transaction of such other business as may properly come before it.

The several election precincts are entitled to the following number of delegates, the basis of representation being one delegate for each organized town or precinct, and one additional delegate for each forty votes or major fraction thereof cast for the Republican candidate for President in 1888, viz:

Andover	2	Lambert	1
Angus	1	Lake Pleasant	1
Black River	2	Lessor	3
Brandsvold	3	Louisville	1
Badger	2	Liberty	2
Bray	2	Lowell	2
Belgium	1	Nesbit	2
Brislet	1	North	2
Bygland	2	Northland	2
Columbia	2	Norden	2
City E. G. Forks	4	Numedal	1
City of Crookston—		Onstad	2
1st ward	4	Parnell	1
2d "	3	Poplar River	1
3d "	2	Polk Center	2
4th "	5	Queen	2
5th "	1	Red Lake Falls–vil.	3
Town of Crookston	2	Red Lake Falls-town	1
Eden	1	Reis	2
Emardville	1	River Falls	1
Euclid	2	Roome	2
Fairfax	2	Roxbury	2
Farley	1	Russia	1
Fanny	1	Rosebud, including village of Fosston	3
Vil and town of Fisher	4
Grand Forks	2	St. Hilaire	2
Garden	4	Sanders	2
Garfield & vil. Fertile	4	Sandsville	2
Gervais	1	Sletten	3
Gentilly	2	Sullivan	3
Godfrey	3	Tabor	1
Grove Park	2	Terrebonne	2
Hammond	1	Tilden	2
Higdem	3	Tynsid	2
Hill River	3	Vineland	2
Hubbard	3	Winger	3
Huntsville	2	Woodside	3
Keystone	2	Wyandotte	2
Kertsonville	1
King	3	Total	159
Knute	3

A. A. MILLER, Secretary. A. D. STEPHENS, Chairman.

TAMMANY has decided to support Cleveland.

ANOTHER cholera-laden ship has arrived in New York harbor, but thus far the pestilence hasn't reached the city.

Kittel Halvorson has declined the nomination of lieutenant governor on the people's party ticket and Swan Nelson, of Kandiyohi county has been named instead.

AN auxiliary bi-chloride of gold club has been organized in Fisher. Is it possible that there is any need for a bi-chloride of gold club in the beautiful, peaceful village of Fisher?

KNUTE NELSON and Ignatius Donnelly spoke at Austin recently, on the same day. Nelson had almost 1,000 hearers and Donnelly 200. Nelson is greeted every where with overflowing houses.

THE Minnesota grain and warehouse commission has made two changes in grain grades. No. 2 Northern shall be not less than 56 pounds to the bushel and No. 3 Northern shall be not less than 54 pounds.

THE state fair closed one day earlier than advertised on account of the rain. Owing to the continued rainy weather the fair hasn't been a financial success and it was closed to save expense. No fair will be held next year on account of the World's Fair.

The democrats of North Dakota have fused with the people's party of that state. At the democratic state convention at Fargo, the nominees of the People's party were endorsed. In South Dakota fusion was urged, but the majority of the democrats refused to sacrifice their principles to the People's party.

Query: What will the democrats of North Dakota gain by indorsing the independent ticket? They've sacrificed their principles—if they had any—and what do they gain in return?

Postmaster General Wanamaker has issued his expected order, deputizing the postmasters of free delivery cities, towns and rural communities to put up letter boxes, on the request of citizens, for the collection and delivery of mail at house doors. The order, it is said, affects nearly three million residences to which the free delivery service is already extended.

THE Grand Forks News says: "The street commissioner maintains cholera-breeding pests on all our principal thoroughfares, and the street gutters are more filthy than anybody's stables." If this terrible state of affairs exists, a quarantine should be established around the city at once and Bro. Bierly should be appointed health officer, with authority to act in the matter.

ANOTHER American poet has passed away. John Greenleaf Whittier is dead in the eighty-fifth year of his age. He was a strong abolitionist and his poems and lectures did much to arouse the anti-slavery feeling in the north. Born and raised on a farm, his taste for poetry developed early, and after quitting the farm he devoted all his life to his natural avocation. He was the author of many books of prose and verse.

THE Canadian quarantine authorities admit that the cholera will be in Canada in a week, as their quarantine restrictions are not strong enough to cope with the disease. This is a terrible admission to make and portends evil for this country, as the twenty day quarantine order of the president will make the steamship companies send the immigrant travel through Canadian ports and then into the United States.

ALTHOUGH the democrats declared there was nothing in Peck's report on labor in New York, the use of it by the republicans as a campaign document has worried the democrats so much that the democratic committee has asked Peck to explain how he made up the report. A committee will then try to show that the commissioner has erred in his figures. It will take a very, very large amount of explanation to convince the people that there was "nothing in Peck's report."

THE Red River Valley News announces that the farmers institute was not a howling success. Three sessions were announced, with music and banners and speakers galore. Dr. Fish was the only speaker present. The morning session was cancelled on general principles; the afternoon session was attended by fifteen people and the doctor didn't address it, but instead went to the Commercial hotel and gave an informal talk of an hour and a half. Apparently the farmers of Clay county don't take much stock in Dr. Fish or his visionary theories. About the only thing the farmers down there had to contend with this year was hail, and the People's party cannot promise them any relief from that.

NOT being able to take an active part in the campaign, and wishing to do something for his party, Mr. Blaine has written a letter to the state republican committee of Maine, in which he briefly states the issues between the two old parties, and shows clearly the weakness of the democratic platform, wherein protection is declared a fraud. He shows that Jefferson—whom all democrats point to as the founder of their principles—was not in favor of reducing the tariff, that when a surplus was created in the treasury and the question arose as to whether the duties should be removed or not, he recommended that they be not, and that the surplus be used to improve our rivers, canals, roads, and for education. Reciprocity and the national currency are also dwelt upon by Mr. Blaine, and the benefits of these two great achievements of the republican party are concisely expressed.

THE great fistic encounter between John L. Sullivan, and James Corbett for the championship of the world and a purse of $35,000 fought Wednesday night, Sept. 7th, at New Orleans, was won by Corbett, and Sullivan who has held the championship so long, will now pass from public gaze and be heard of no more. Like three-fourths of the pugilists, he will probably end his days in dissipation and poverty. His hippodroming around the country at so much per night is a thing of the past; his occupation with theatrical troops will be gone, and no more he'll be heard of as a prize fighter; his friends who have won thousands of dollars on him will turn from him now and know him no more. Verily the end of a prize-fighter's life is not an envious one. A new star has arisen in the pugilistic arena, and the American people generally are thankful that the championship has gone to a man who is more of a gentleman and less of a brute than Sullivan.

THE Warren Sheaf says that the republicans of Warren opened the campaign by a grand ratification meeting last week. There was sufficient enthusiasm shown to warrant the assertion that the campaign in Marshall county will not be a one-sided affair.

THE stars and stripes have been planted at the nearest point to the north pole yet reached by civilized man. Lieut. Peary, who has just returned to St. Johns, N. F. reports that on July 4th he reached the 82d parallel, where further progress was stopped by open water, which they named Indepence Bay. Accompanied by three eskimos and sixteen dogs he made a journey of 1300 miles and was almost worn out on his return to the ship.

THE Iowa Liberal Republican is the name of a paper just started at Sioux City, Iowa, as an anti-prohibition organ. It declares that prohibition in Iowa is a failure and is "sapping the strength of the Republican party." It further says that the liberal republicans "believe prohibition should be replaced by a system of license, with local option, which would give each city and town either prohibition or license at their local elections, according as the majority of their own voters desire." There isn't much hope of repealing the prohibition law in Iowa, but as a matter of fact, it might as well be and local option substituted, because in the river towns and cities, where the sentiment is against it, it is not enforced, but in the interior portion and among the farmers, where the sentiment is in favor of prohibition, the law is rigidly enforced. And this is about all there is to the prohibition law in any state. If the sentiment of the majority of the people in any community is in favor of prohibition the law is enforced, otherwise it is not.

W. A. Flemming in Brainerd Dispatch: I want to make a prediction, and it is this: Harrison will carry every northern state except two, New Jersey and Montana, and one southern state, West Virginia, and will of course be re-elected. I believe that, with the Democrats, it will be another Greely campaign over again, and for but the same reason. Then thousands of democrats were so thoroughly disgusted with their party for endorsing Greely, that they either did not vote at all or voted for Grant.

Today all over the north may be found Democrats, who are on the eve of revolt against Cleveland, because through him their party had been caught in the southern free trade net, and they will not have it. They believe in letting well enough alone. They know that free trade means ruin to American industries, the closing of our shops, mills and factories. They are for American homes and American labor first. They are for letting the foreign manufacturer stop at home with his wares. They see that the more workshops we have, giving constant employment and paying good wages, the better it is for the country. And they are not going to establish free trade here in America.

The Election Tickets.

The election tickets which will be used this fall under the new voting system will be unwieldy things. Each voter will vote two tickets. One will be a white ticket, on which will be the names of all the candidates for electors and state officers of all four parties. The other will be a blue ticket and will contain the names of all candidates for congress, district judge, legislative and county officers. Each voter will prepare his ticket after he reaches the election booth and an X must be placed after every candidate voted for. Each ticket will contain about 70 names and will be about 32 inches long. Voters should carefully consider the merits of all candidates and decide whom to vote for before going to the polls. Then the task of casting a ballot is an easy one and can be done in a minute.

Merely an Empty Honor.

Warren Sheaf: Wm. F. Kelso, the bonanza farmer of Kittson county, was nominated for congress in this district by the democrats at their congressional convention at Crookston. Of course, Mr. Kelso has not the least bit of show to get there this fall, the nomination being merely an empty honor. He will, however, get a big alliance support in the northern counties and will cut into the vote of the populist candiate, Mr. Boen, in great shape. He is as good an alliance man as Boen is, and a far abler man, too, but neither of them are built for congress.

A COUNTY JAIL.

At their last meeting the county commissioners decided to erect a county jail and have advertised for bids for the construction of a building in accordance with plans now on file in the auditor's office. The specifications will be changed so as to reduce the cost of the building to $17-000 or $18,000. The specifications on file call for a $22,000 building. The jail will be built on the court house grounds, and will be steam-heated, and fitted with all the modern improvements. One reduction in the cost of the building will be in putting in steel cells on the lower floor only. The cells of the upper floor will be the ordinary cells that are now in use in the old jail. The court house will be heated by steam from the boilers in the jail. Although it costs the county no more to board at Moorhead than it does here, there is a heavy expense entailed on the county in the way of transportation, sheriff's fees and mileage in taking prisoners to the Clay county jail, and the sum which can be saved the county in this respect will go a long ways toward paying for a jail of our own.

TWO YEARS AGO AND NOW.

Minneapolis Tribune. Two years ago "Dr." Fish, editor of the Donnelly campaign organ, wrote to Knute Nelson, now Republican nominee for governor, petitioning Nelson to become the Alliance gubernatorial nominee. Fish offered to subscribe $1,000 to Nelson's campaign fund and raise $25,000 by subscription. Nelson declined.

The Donnelly-Fish organ now devotes two or three columns in each issue to charges against Nelson and his record. But the date of everyone of the alleged acts for which the Donnelly-Fish organ brings rhetorical indictment was before "Doc" Fish wrote his famous letter to Nelson! Knute Nelson's record was an open book long before Donnelly and Fish begged him to become their candidate, and "Doc" Fish addressed Nelson in that letter as one who was always true to the masses.

What, then, is worth the scandalous trash which the Fish organ now publishes? Every charge made against Knute Nelson's record was for acts or alleged acts which took place before 1890, and in 1890 Fish, under Donnelly's instructions, endeavored to make Nelson the Farmer Alliance candidate, and pledged him the support of the Great West's alleged "15,000 clientage."

Not only did the Donnelly-Fish wing of the Alliance want Knute Nelson to head the farmers' ticket, but the Baker-Hompe-Hall faction did the same. The latter Alliance leaders despatched a committee to wait on Nelson in person. They knew his record and indorsed it. They recognized in him a representative of the farmers and the masses, and desired the power of his name and popularity to get them into political power.

The farmers and workingmen of Minnesota recognize that Knute Nelson, the Republican and common man's friend from 1870 to 1890, is Knute Nelson the Republican leader and representative of the masses in 1892, and they will vote accordingly.

Two Pictures.

Minneapolis Tribune: The fifty-second congress, with its 158 democratic majority, the largest majority which any party has enjoyed since the war, made these pledges to the people:

(1). To repeal the McKinley tariff.
(2) To carry free coinage of silver.
(3) To kill the "reciprocity fraud."
(4) To repeal the bounty on sugar.
(5) To stop the subsidies for ocean mail.
(6) To cut down appropriations $100,000,000.

This democratic majority of 158, after eight months of prolonged session and faithful salary drawing, fulfilled the pledges as follows:

(1) Made no attempt.
(2) Split its vote and did nothing.
(3). Made no attempt.
(4) Made no attempt.
(5) Made no attempt.
(6) Increased the appropriations $44,232,870.

A Picture by the President's Wife.

"A White House Orchid," an exquisite painting on porcelain of a lovely bunch of orchids grown in the White House, executed by Mrs. Benjamin Harrison with the superior skill for which she is noted, has been reproduced in the highest style of modern art, and so perfectly—to the faintest tint of color, and even to the peculiar texture of the porcelain—that it is impossible to distinguish the copy from the original. Demorest's Family Magazine has the honor of being the medium through which this unique picture is offered to the mothers, wives and daughters of America, to whom it is lovingly dedicated. These superb reproductions of Mrs. Harrison's fine picture—the only one ever painted by a President's wife for the public—are the same size as the original (11½x15 inches), and with each number of Demorest's for October, one of these wonderful pictures is to be presented free. Twenty cents a single copy (including a "White House Orchid," or $2 a year. Published by W. Jennings Demorest, 15 E. 14th St., N. Y.

CORRESPONDENCE.

A Budget of Interesting News and Gossip from the Village of McIntosh.

Obediah Dingle, of Fosston, Writes His First Letter to the Journal.

Fosston Ripples

By way of introduction to the readers of the JOURNAL, I will venture a brief synopsis of our thriving village, its situation, surroundings, business establishments etc. Situated as we are in one of the most prosperous agricultural districts in northern Minnesota, known as the Thirteen Towns, at the terminus of the Crookston and Fosston branch of the Great Northern railroad, forty-six miles southeast of Crookston in Polk county and a few miles from the reservation boundary, bordered on the northeast and south by heavy belts of hard and soft wood timber intermingled with pine, spruce and tamarac, dotted with numerous lakes which abound in fish, fowl and other game. A more suitable place for the sportsman, tourist or enteprising farmer would be difficult to locate. And well has nature's advantages been realized by the thrifty pioneer, as the numerous farm houses in all directions will bear testimony.

Our village is composed of the following establishments; three grain elevators, three hotels, six general stores including O. L. Larson's mammoth forty by eighty dry goods establishment, two restaurants, two meat markets, two millinery stores, two hardware stores, three blacksmith shops, six saloons, bakery, bank, newspaper, drug store, feed store, three farm machinery firms, furniture store, harness shop, shoe shop, barber shop, photograph gallery, flour mill, lumber yard, plaining mill, three churches, a graded school, fire engine and engine house, jail, opera hall, council rooms, two jewelers, livery barn, tailor, laundry, three lawyers, doctor, brass and string bands, depot, postoffice, and about fifty dwelling houses.

A rew rods south of the depot is the northern boundary of the race course where are situated the agricultural hall, grand stand, music and judges' stands and other buildings pertaining to the agricultural fair which takes place the 5th, 6th and 7th of October, and to which a cordial invitation is extended to the public in general to take part in and witness the different displays, games, races, political discussions, etc. OBADIAH DINGLE.

McIntosh Items.

Threshing is now in full blast and every available rig is in operation, Wheat don't yield as well as expected. Averaging from 14 to 17 bushels per acre, and low grade at that. But oats and barley is a good crop.

Attorney-at-Law Bratland returned a few days since, from a long absence to Red River, where he has been attending to his farming interests. He brought a fine span of horses with him.

Gunder Horst of Grand Forks, has opened up his store in McEachran's block and Andrew Haug, who has been employed as head clerk, may now be found behind the counter. Andrew is still troubled by those corns, but gets there just the same.

Assistant State Boiler Inspector George Candee of Fertile passed through town last Saturday, on his homeward tour of inspection through Winger, Knute and Garden Townships. Mr. Candee thoroughly understands his business, and won't leave any unsafe boilers in the field.

Rev. S. Stone of Clearwater Minn., preached in the school house last Sabbath, to a very large and enthusiastic audience. He proved to be an eloquent speaker, and delivered a pleasing sermon, that was listened to with close attention by all. The Rev. gave thorough satisfaction and may probably become the future pastor of the McIntosh and Fosston Congregational churches, as our former pastor, Rev. Northup, left a week ago.

Our merchants are putting in large stocks of dry goods and clothing this fall. They expect a good trade during the coming winter, and if we shall judge the future by the past, there are not apt be any shelfworn garments for next season. We have about 400,000 bushels of wheat to be marketed at McIntosh from this season's crop, and most of the "shiners" will be deposited among our business men.

J. P. Johnson has discovered a new way of decorating the ceiling of his store. And how does he do it? Well he has screwed the ceiling literally full of screw hooks, and on every hook he has hung a fur coat, from a dog and goat, to a seal and coon skin, and ladies cloaks from a $2.00 homespun to a finest plush. When asked the other day what he was going to do with them all, he answered, if he could not sell them at cost, he was going to give them away. I think, I shall watch my chance when he commences to give away.

New wheat is beginning to come in quite rapidly, and our wheat buyers are kept pretty busy. It seems the farmers are not going to hold their wheat, but haul it in as soon as it is threshed. They lost money by holding it last year and will probably profit by their experience.

Cleveland avenue has been greatly improved in the last couple of weeks, by plank crossings and gutters, including grading. This work was badly needed, and we must certainly give our rustling councilman Bakke credit for his engineering skill while superintending the work.

The farmers elevator is being pushed with all possible speed, and will soon be ready for service.

Everybody awaited the arrival of the daily train last Monday, as we have been informed they would commence on that day, but we were doomed to disappointment as usual.

Hans Quam is putting up a residence on Johnson and Lee's addition.

The McIntosh Fire Department held their regular monthly meeting Monday last. Resolutions were passed to join the State Fireman's Association.

J. Bridstone is in Dakota looking after his farming interests there.

J. W. Rode formerly of Grand Forks has bought the tailor shop and has refitted, built to, and will open a jewelry store in a few days.

An Apparent Impossibility.

The phrase "squaring the circle" is another way of saying "attempting an impossibility." The allusion is to the mathematical question whether a circle can be made which contains exactly the same area as a square, and the difficulty is to find the precise ratio between the diameter and the circumference of a circle. Popularly it is 3.1459, etc., but the numbers would go on to infinity. This problem has given rise to an amount of labor only equaled by that bestowed upon the equally impossible one of discovering perpetual motion.—Brooklyn Eagle.

An American Abroad.

Many Americans abroad are exceedingly annoyed at their lack of skill in the use of the European languages. After a vain attempt to make a Parisian waiter understand French they swear at him in English. But I have always remembered when traveling abroad the art of the physician who put all the remains of old prescriptions into one bottle—the oil and the calomel and the rhubarb and the asafetida—and when he found a patient with a "complication of diseases" he would shake up his old bottle and give him a dose. And so I have compounded a language for European travel. I generally take a little French and a little German and a little English, with a few snatches of Chinese and Choctaw, and when I find a stubborn case of waiter or landlord that will not understand I simply shake up all the dialects and give him a dose. It is sure to strike somewhere. If you cannot make him understand, you at any rate give him a terrible scare.

I never had the anxiety of some in a strange land getting things to eat. I like everything in all the round of diet except animated cheese and odorous codfish; always have a good appetite; never in my life missed a meal save once, when I could not get any, and knowing that "eine gerostete riendfleisch schiebe" means a beefsteak, "eine messer" a knife, and "eine gabel" a fork, and "eine serviette" a napkin, after that feel perfectly reckless as to what I can or cannot get.—Rev. T. De Witt Talmage in Ladies' Home Journal.

The handsome dwelling house owned by Colonel Hogg near Port Deposit, Md., has been totally destroyed by fire. The mansion was built about two years ago at a cost of about $100,000 and was said to be the finest residence in the state.

The fire engine manufacturers in the United States have combined and formed a trust to be known as the American Fire Engine company. The trust represents the output of all the companies in the United States and Canada.

Arrangements have been completed whereby excursion trains to the world's fair, by whatever road they may arrive in Chicago, will run within the exposition grounds and discharge their passengers there. No transfer of passengers at any point will be necessary.

During the performance of a Wild West show at Rockford, Ill., Mrs. James Fisher of Durand, Ill., was shot and fatally wounded. She was looking at the cowboys firing with supposed blank cartridges, when a bullet from one of their pistols passed through her body. The entire company is under arrest.

Time to Swear Off.

The Rev. Dr. Primrose—I'm glad to hear your husband has given up melon stealing. It is some comfort for me to feel that perhaps my poor words have had something to do with his reform.

Mrs. Johnson—Dat wasn't de reasun, sah. Yo' see ob late de po' man wuz gitin kotched ebery time.—New York Evening Sun.

English and American Games.

A careful examination of the catalogues of English dealers in games shows that the popular games in England are in every way identical with those in the United States, and not a single game could be found in any of them that is not well known and current in this country.—Philadelphia Ledger.

WITH OUR EXCHANGES.

Ada Index: An attache of the Red River Valley Insurance company says: We will be able to pay about 50 per cent. of our losses, if all the notes are collected. Our losses foot up about $15,000 and have $9,000 to pay it with if all the notes are collected.—The first wheat taken in this season at the Beltrami elevator graded No. 1 Northern and yielded 18 bushels per acre. It was raised on the Wells farm.

Thirteen Towns: The leap year party and dance given by the ladies of Fosston last Thursday evening at the opera hall, was a rousing and unqualified success in all respects, all needed arrangements were admirably made, and reflected much credit on the ladies having the management in charge. The ladies took good care that all the "Lords of Creation" were provided with suitable partners, so that there could be no excuse for absense on this score.

Grand Forks Herald: Judge Montague, of Crookston, will open the republican campaign at Grafton on the 19th, inst., and at Drayton on the 20th. Other general appointments will not be announced until after the 15th inst. On that day there will be a meeting of the state executive committee and the full plan of the campaign will then be decided upon.

Fisher Bulletin: At an early hour on Wednesday night, a separator and three loads of wheat belonging to A. G. Anderson were destroyed by fire. When the crew of threshers quit work on the evening above stated every precaution was taken against the sparks from the engine being blown out of the fire box, and from that fact, it is an undecided question how the fire originated. On Thursday morning Mr. Anderson went to Grand Forks to purchase a new outfit.—H. H. Spencer was in the village Tuesday engaging men to assist in stacking. Mr. Spencer hired a gang last Saturday, and boarded them over Sunday, when they evinced a marked aversion to manual labor and "quit him cold" Monday morning.—An attempt was made on Sunday night last by some person to steal the horse of W. E. Haynes. The fastenings of the stable door were broken, but the would-be thief was frightened away by Mr. Haynes before the horse could be unhaltered.—The butter and egg famine in Fisher is increasing instead of diminishing.

Fertile Journal: Threshing has commenced in the vicinity of this town and the results, so far as we can learn, are about what were expected. The yield will not average more than 15 bushels an acre and it will grade mostly No. 3 Northern, there will be no No. 1 Hard and but few will get No. 1 Northern for this year's crop. Oats are of poor quality and the yield is very light. We shall know more about the crops later on.—The potato crop will be better than expected.

From the McIntosh Times: Several cars of lumber for the Sletten Elevator Association arrived last week and work on their house commenced yesterday morning and will be pushed forward as rapidly as possible. When completed, the association will have one of the best houses at this station, and, if properly handled it will prove a paying investment.—Mr. Harris of Sabin, Minn., the new buyer for the McIntosh Elevator, formerly owned by Drew Bros., arrived in the city Friday and is now prepared to purchase whatever is offered in that line.—Rev. G. E. Northrup, pastor of the Congregational church, tendered his resignation of the pastorate on Wednesday last and will remove to Duluth. His resignation was accepted to take effect October 1st.—The special school meeting held last Saturday evening selected the Haaven or Hoaas site for the new school building. The new site, which is to be three hundred feet square, is on the most conspicuous elevation in it the village and is as near the center of the city as it is possible to get it.

McIntosh News: S. Solberg has comenced the erection of his new meat market on the lot adjoining his livery barn. He says he must have more room to accommodate his increasing business.—Wheat is not yielding as well as expected, the average being only about 14 bushels per acre.—There seems to be a good deal of smut in the wheat this year which will have a tendency to hurt grades. Brush and timber land appears to be less affected than prairie land.

In Good Old Democratic Times.

Warren Sheaf: Farmers have had no trouble in hiring help till lately. Plenty of men were to be had at $2 per day, for common labor, which is good wages, as even our calamity friends will admit. Since threshing began in earnest more men are needed and there is a scarcity. We remember the time when we used to do the same sort of work for 50 cents a day, and glad to get it; but that was before the "wah," and during "good old Democratic times," you know!

STARTLING NEWS.

THE SCANDIA REACHES NEW YORK WITH CHOLERA ABOARD.

Thirty-two Deaths Occur During the Passage from Hamburg—The Stricken Vessel Carries Nine Hundred Steerage Passengers.

QUARANTINE, Sept. 10.—Cold facts, not words, suffice to tell that the cholera plague, baffled in its attempt to gain a foothold on our shores, knocked at the Quarantine gate again during the night with vigor, indeed a hundred-fold over any previous effort. Up to the sundown a summary of the record of the scourge on the Moravia, Normannia, Rugia and Wyoming, while at sea and since arriving in port, approximately was as follows:

Total deaths at sea 31; total deaths in port 19; sick in port 43. Total number of cases 93. This does not include those who are isolated as suspects under Dr. Byron's charge on Swinburne Island. The much-expected Scandia, also of the Hamburg-American line was off Fire Island at 5 o'clock and soon after dark came to anchor in the lower quarantine grounds. No report was expected until morning because by Dr. Jenkins' statement at the evening talk that he expected to hear nothing till morning. When, therefore, at 1 o'clock a. m. Dr. Byron reported the fact that he was advised that there were 32 deaths in a total of 1,086 souls on board and that he was going to the ship from Swinburne island to bring off seven additional cases, there was intense excitement at the health officer's home. When Dr. Jenkins gave out the facts as received, this made the grand total for the five ships under surveillance as follows:

Deaths at sea, 63; deaths in port, 20; sick in port, 50; grand total, 130. The mother of the Perreson children who died on the Wyoming while she lay at Upper Quarantine, and who with her children was transferred to Swinburne island when the ship arrived at the pestilence roadstead, also died at Swinburne hospital during the evening, and her demise is included in the above summary.

Worse Than Reported.

The situation on the pest-laden steamer Scandia is even worse than reported early in the morning. On returning to Swinburne Island about 11 o'clock from a visit to the Scandia, Dr. Byron reported two deaths and eleven new cases on board that vessel, making a total of thirty-four deaths and eighteen cases. The eleven new cases were removed to Swinburne Island.

REFUSED ALL APPEALS.

Residents of Fire Island Display an Utter Lack of All Feelings of Humanity.

FIRE ISLAND, N. Y., Sept. 12.—The people here appear to have lost all sense of humanity. They have been appealed to in the name of God to permit the oldest women and the youngest children to be taken to the hotel for the night that their lives might be saved and have refused with brutal jeers. Even since nightfall the display of cruelty is well-nigh inconceivable. After the Cepheus came to anchor two police officers rowed to the landing and asked that a letter be taken to Dr. Wright. The mob refused to allow the letter to come ashore, and drove the police officers off with threats. As it was getting dark and no satisfactory answer had arrived from the first boat, a second boat put off from the steamer, rowed by two police. In the stern stood a tall, gray haired man—Robert Thompson. As he approached the landing the mob gathered threateningly. He asked to be heard in behalf of the 200 women and children on the steamer who were suffering from Hunger, Exposure and Exhaustion.

After several minutes of insulting retorts by the mob he was allowed to speak. He said the men on the steamer did not ask to land. The young women would remain if necessary, but the old women and the children should be allowed to land. They would be returned to the steamer after a night's rest and one meal. Attorney Willard P. Reid answered that if the captain of the steamer would come ashore, the people for whom he spoke would consider the request. Mr. Thompson returned to the steamer after saying that he would attempt to bring the captain back with him. It was dark except for the light of the stars when the boat was seen pulling back to the landing again. When the boat almost touched the landing a tall, spare figure was seen standing in the bow. "It is Senator McPhernon, of New Jersey," called out Mr. Thompson, who was still in the stern.

McPherson's Appeal.

Senator McPherson stood silent for some moments looking at the mob. "Citizens," said the senator at last, "I appeal to you in the name of God not to be led into heartless cruelty by this attorney, but to give your consent that these women and children can be taken from this boat where they have nothing to eat and no place to sleep; where the common decencies of life cannot be longer observed; where the surroundings are foul from seasickness. Wait before you answer. Think what you will be doing. Remember your own wives and children. Be manly. Do not bring an everlasting disgrace upon your names. Be men."

It did not seem as though human beings capable of understanding the language in which they were being addressed could withstand the appeal but the crowd stood there sullen and silent while the lawyer said:

"They cannot land. If we permit them to land it will pave the way for our case."

"They cannot land," the mob chimed in.

When the boat rowed back to the steamer the newspaper men who had listened to this appeal went to every member of the Islip health board who were present and begged that this horrible crime be not committed. At half past eight o'clock a meeting of the board was held and a resolution was passed that if Dr. Vought would go with Lawyer Reid to the steamer and see that the injunction papers were served the board would allow food and blankets to be taken aboard. The excitement did not abate in the slightest degree after the Cepheus had withdrawn to the stream. The crowd remained on the dock, muttering threats and swearing that the people on the excursion vessel could rot before they would be allowed to land.

Cause of the Trouble.

To go back to the beginning of the story—the Normannia cabin passengers who had been for eight days confined in a cholera stricken ship were greeted on Saturday with the promised and long-hoped-for relief in the shape of the Stonington, to which vessel they were transferred that evening. On Sunday they were to go to Fire island, which, through Governor Flower's generosity, had been secured, with all its houses and the Surf hotel, for the accommodation of the first and second cabin passengers of the ill-fated Normannia. On Saturday night they slept on the Stonington, but in the morning it was discovered that she had no means for cooking, was of too deep a draught to cross the bar, and, according to statements made, she was old and too unseaworthy to venture so far in the open ocean. The iron steamboat Cepheus was then hired and the first and second-class cabin passengers

Started for the Promised Land.

After a voyage of about thirty-six miles the captain weakened and said he was afraid to take the Cepheus over the bar without a pilot. In consequence of this the iron steamboat started back to the horseshoe bend and the first-class passengers were one more put on board the rickety old Stonington liner. The second cabin passengers were kept on board the Cepheus without beds or even a pillow on which to lay their heads. They were strewn about the settees and carpeted decks of the steamer. Early in the morning the Cepheus once more started down the bay to embark the first saloon passengers and take them to Fire island. The trip was again a rough one and after reaching Fire island they were met by the angry mob and refused a landing, although they were told time and again by health officers that they run no risk of cholera.

CANNOT LAND.

A New York Judge Issues an Injunction Against Jenkins and Others.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Judge Barnard, of the supreme court, Brooklyn, acted in the Fire island matter. He issued an injunction restraining Governor Flower, Dr. Jenkins and others from landing quarantined passengers on Fire island. This applies to the town of Islip in particular.

WILL BE REFUSED A LANDING.

Vessels Bringing Immigrants from Infected Ports May Be Sent Back.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—The president is taking an active part in the fight against cholera and is in constant and direct communication with the national authorities at Washington. Secretary Foster has made public the following telegram received by him on Saturday from the president: "It is an outrage that the steamship companies continue to bring immigrants from infected ports. Say to them that it should stop or we may be compelled to turn back pest-laden vessels."

"This dispatch," said Secretary Foster, "was given to Collector Hendricks, with instructions to send copies to the agents of the steamship companies. One of the difficulties that the steamship companies encounter is the fact that a large percentage of the people now coming over are American citizens. Of course our duty is just as solemn and binding to the poorest steerage passenger who is an American citizen as it is toward the richest cabin passenger. I think that most of the steamship companies are now refusing to bring immigrants to this country and I trust those who are persisting will desist."

Mrs. Harrison's Condition Alarming.

LOON LAKE, N. Y., Sept. 12.—An unexpected complication has added itself to Mrs. Harrison's illness and her condition now is so grave that it will prevent the president from being able to be absent from the sick room. In consequence the trip through Northern and Eastern New York has been given up. Chairman Hackett, of the Republican state committee was apprised of the fact by telegraph during the afternoon. Much solicitude has been felt at the sudden turn in Mrs. Harrison's condition.

A Date Set.

MADISON, Sept. 11.—Republican prosecutors of the second gerrymander suit won a victory in the supreme court when that body decided to permit the whole matter to be argued on its merits Sept. 20. Senator Vilas vainly sought by technical means to stave off the case, but Colonel George W. Bird, for the Republicans, urged upon the court the preciousness of time in obtaining a decision before election. The court overruled all of Vilas' objections and decided to hear the case on the 20th.

Maine Elections.

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 12.—The state elections for the choice of a governor, four congressmen and members of the legislature occurred Monday under the Australian ballot law and as far as learned everybody appears satisfied with the working of the system. Republicans claim the election of all the congressmen, two-thirds of the members of the legislature and Cleaves, for governor, by 11,000 majority. In 1890 the Republican plurality was 18,899, but the vote this year is much lighter.

Three Thousand Idle.

MARINETTE, Sept. 12.—The strike is still on. The mill owners will keep their mills closed until they can run them without molestation. They will not arbitrate. Many men are leaving the city to find employment. The boom company has shut down and 350 more men are out of employment, making 3,000 in the city unemployed from the strike.

SULLIVAN WHIPPED

THE GREAT PUGILISTIC CHAMPION CHAMPION NO MORE.

The Big Fellow Knocked Out in Twenty-one Rounds by the Clever Californian. Corbett's Long Reach and Scientific Work Land Him Winner Without a Scratch.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 8.—The king is dead! Long live the king! Sullivan was and is not. The crown of championship belongs to the Californian, and naught but bitterness of feeling and deep humiliation fall to the lot of him who was the idol of thousands of people. It was a game fight. No one can deny the fact. Sullivan made the fight of his life, but like the unconquered Napoleon the Great he met his Waterloo. Youth, science, generalship, height and reach proved too much for brute brawn backed by a list marked by victories and unmarred by defeat.

Corbett's supreme egotism and self-conceit stood well in the hour of trial. If he was nervous or fearful of the outcome, it was not discernable to the casual looker on. His every motion seemed to say "I am victor," and bravely it was borne out. Each round gave him renewed confidence, and, as he avoided the rushes of his Titanic opponent with ease, faith in himself grew stronger. Corbett's superb generalship awoke repeated applause. Sullivan's deadly right might have been paralized for all the execution it accomplished. At no stage of the game was Sullivan really dangerous, and as the fight went on round after round Corbett's chances increased in a corresponding ratio. The fight lasted twenty-one rounds, Sullivan being completely knocked out before the end of the last round.

The Corbett men are naturally jubilant while the Sullivanites are correspondingly depressed. However, they have no excuse to make and admit their man was fairly and honestly whipped. It is an instance of a pitcher going to the well once too often.

Corbett's title to the world's championship will be attacked at once. Joe Goddard is here with backing and is anxious to fight, but Peter Jackson, with whom Corbeet fought a draw, will doubtless have the preference. Corbett knows no such thing as the color line, and the next big battle will doubtless be of international interest.

Corbett for Congress.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 10.—If Champion Corbett cares for political honors his old neighbors in the Hayes Valley district of Frisco will run him for congress on a non-partisan ticket against Congressman Loud. A boom was started after the receipt of the news from New Orleans and his friends claim that if Corbett should run he could be easily elected.

A CHOCTAW WAR.

Politics Causes Several Murders in Indian Territory.

MCALISTER, Ind. T., Sept. 12.—As has been frequently predicted the heat of the campaign between the two parties has resulted in bloodshed. Sunday morning a party of about twenty-five Indians surrounded the home of Joe Hekletubbe, a full-blooded Choctaw, one mile south of Hartshorne, and, calling him out, riddled him with bullets. The gang then proceeded to the homes of Elias Colbert, Robbertson Nelson and Frank Frazier, all of whom they shot down. Frazier's wife and mother-in-law were witnesses to his death, and Mrs. Frazier says one of the murderous gang shot Colbert in the neck. These women claim to have recognized at least four of the outlaws. The murdered men were full-blood Choctaw Indians, said to belong to the "progressive" party. It is alleged that the men who killed them belonged to the opposing party and did the killing through political animosity only. The local authorities have issued a call upon Principal Chief Wilson N. Jones for assistance in subduing the outlawry. Gov. Jones is reported to be proceeding to the scene of the killing. He called out his "light horsemen," a mounted brigade of about forty-five experienced fighters.

It is claimed that the leaders of the gang are Mose Williams, Kingsbury Hawkins, Thomas McGee and Colbert Thompson.

Later reports are that five men have been killed on what is called Bushy Bottoms, though the report has not been verified.

An armed posse of about seventy-five men was organized last night at South McAlister, a suburb of this place, in which the United States court is in session, and the little town presents the appearance of war. Every man to be seen is armed to the teeth, and the streets are crowded. The Indians, of course, predominate, as it is exclusively their fight. There will be 200 men fully equipped scouring the country before morning from this point alone, and if the opposing parties meet there will certainly be a bloody battle.

Another Choctaw Murder.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 12.—The latest from the Choctaw nation is to the effect that Green McCurtain, the treasurer of the nation and leader of the progressive party, was taken from his home in San Bois county last night and shot. Indian Agent Burnett has arrived at McAllister, and is taking prompt measures to quell the rioting and settle the troubles. He will order a strong force of United States troops if necessary, and the Indian police under Gov. Jones are already in the field.

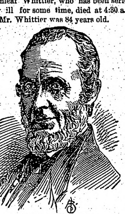
Gives Immunity from Cholera.

PARIS, Sept. 11.—The Temps says: Prof. Haffkine of the Pasteur institute, who discovered the anti-cholera "vaccine" declares that experiments on himself and Dr. Jawein of St. Petersburg, and Dr. Thamaicher of Tiflis, prove that the vaccine is without danger to health and that it gives immunity from cholera, that is after inoculation.

THE QUAKER POET DEAD.

John Greenleaf Whittier, Famous as a Bard, Passes Peacefully Away.

AMESBURY, Mass., Sept. 7.—John Greenleaf Whittier, who has been seriously ill for some time, died at 4:30 a. m. Mr. Whittier was 84 years old.



JOHN G. WHITTIER.

Upon the announcement of the death of Whittier the bells were tolled eighty-four strokes, the age of the Amesbury famous citizen, and the flags on public buildings were placed at half-mast.

Whittier's last conscious utterance was one of recognition of his niece, Mrs. Samuel L. Pickard, who lived with him for some years previous to her marriage. Mrs. Pichard asked him Friday afternoon if he knew her, and he replied: "Yes, I have known you all the time," and immediately lapsed into unconsciousness, in which state he remained until 4:30 a. m., when he passed quietly away. His end was apparently painless and peaceful, like falling asleep.

PECK'S LABOR REPORT.

Democrats Will Investigate the Recent Work of New York's Commissioner.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—The Democratic campaign committee on literature has decided to investigate the recent report of Labor Commissioner Peck in view of the fact that President Harrison made use of it in his letter of acceptance. Chairman Quincy, of the committee, has sent this letter to Commissioner Peck:

> In conformity with your offer, as reported in the press, to submit the methods and data employed by yourself in the preparation of your report upon the subject of "the effect of the tariff upon labor and wages," of which a summary has recently been made public, to the examination of committees representing the different political parties, I now ask you on behalf of the Democratic national committee to disclose these methods as fully as possible to Messrs. J. Schoenno., E. Ellery Anderson and Edward A. McSweeney, who are authorized by us to examine this matter and report upon it to us.

A Mandamus for Peck.

ALBANY, Sept. 11.—Norton Chase, of this city, acting for E. Ellery Anderson, has served Labor Commissioner Peck with a mandamus compelling him to show cause why he should not allow Andrson as a citizen to see the figures from which he compiled his report.

FILERS HAVE RIGHTS.

Decision Affecting Many Settlers on the Recently Opened Omaha Lands.

ASHLAND, Wis., Sept. 12.—A decision was received at the United States land office here which is of the utmost possible importance to homesteaders and settlers on the Omaha land grant recently thrown open to settlement. The decision is upon the ground of priority rights of parties who settled upon the land prior to Nov. 2, 1891, at which time it was thrown open for settlement. The case in question was the contest of Jennie Jacobs vs. Charles White and Thomas J. McCoy. McCoy and White settled upon the land prior to its being thrown upon the market, and Jennie Jacobs was a filer, she having entered upon the land after 12 o'clock of Nov. 1. This is the first Omaha case to be decided by the general department, and its full force will be realized by all settlers. The department found Miss Jacobs was entitled to the land and the decision contains some very strong points, one of which is as follows:

> It is very clear from these regulations that no preferred rights to these lands could be obtained by reason of any statement, residence or improvements thereon prior to Nov. 2, 1891. The old rule that white settlers upon reserved land acquire no rights against the United States, yet as against each other he who is prior in point of time is prior in right, as expressly declared to be inapplicable to the lands in question, to which no settlement right was allowed to attach until after their final opening to settlement as prescribed, which, as has been seen, was November, 1891.

This decision was a great surprise to all here and will necessitate the rehearing of fully one hundred cases which have been decided by the local officers.

LATEST MARKET REPORT.

St. Paul Union Stock Yards.

SOUTH ST. PAUL, Sept. 12, 1892.

HOGS—5c lower.

CATTLE—Quiet. Prime steers, $3.50@3.60; good steers, $3.00@3.25; prime cows, $2.40@2.60; good cows, $1.75@2.25; common to fair cows, 50c@1.50; light veal calves, $2.50@3.75; heavy calves, $1.50@2.50; stockers, $1.50@2.00; feeders, $1.60@2.25; bulls, $1.00@1.50.

SHEEP—Steady. Muttons, $3.50@4.25; lambs, $3.00@3.50; stockers and feeders, $2.00@3.25.

Receipts: Hogs, 125; cattle, 1200; no calves, no sheep, 8 horses.

Minneapolis Grain.

MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 12, 1892.

WHEAT—May close, 78¾c; September opening, 70⅜c; highest, 70⅜c; lowest, 70⅛c; closing, 70⅛c; December opening, 72¼c; highest, 72¼c; lowest, 71¾@72c; closing 72c. On track—No. 1 hard, 75@77c; No. 1 Northern, 71@74c; No. 2 Northern, 65@68c.

Chicago Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, Sept. 12, 1892.

OPENING PRICES.

WHEAT—December, 77c; May, 82¾c.
CORN—October, 48¾c; May, 51¼c.
OATS—October, 34¾c; May, 37¾c.

CLOSING PRICES.

WHEAT—December, 76¼c; May, 81¼c.
CORN—October, 48c; May, 50¾c.
OATS—October, 34¼c; May, 37¼c.

HISTORY OF SHAVING

ONCE UPON A TIME ALL MEN EVERYWHERE WORE BEARDS.

Alexander of Greece Is Said to Have Been the First Barber—Beards Have Been Common During the History of Earliest Races—Some Remarks.

TO THE EDITOR—Can you tell us when shaving came into fashion, also something of the history of beards? BROWN AND JONES.

This question is apropos. At this period, when the Nineteenth century is coming to the end of the division, the fire has been put out in the box and old father time has reversed the wheels and put on the brakes, it is particularly fitting that somebody, either Brown or Jones or both, should arise and put this question. It is a fin de siecle question.

The first instance of shaving originated from the necessities of war. In the late autumn of the year 800 B. C., the Macedonians got their crops in early, and after the celebration of the harvest home things got pretty uninteresting in Macedonia. It was too cold to fish and too warm to skate, and the prospect for the Macedonian on pleasure bent when he fired up the baseburner and reflected that skates hadn't been invented yet was not a happy one.

Things continued to drag on until Thanksgiving time, 800 B. C., when the Macedonians got together, sailed down on the Greeks and did them battle. The Greeks got the worst of it, and for no other reason than that they sported long, flowing beards. The marauding Macedonians grabbed these Grecian ornaments and yanked the poor Greek forty ways for Sunday, leaving him a howling mass on the ground. It was this incident that probably gave rise to the couplet:

When Greek meets Macedonian
Then comes the tug of beard.

An old veteran by the name of Alexander saw at once the weak point of the Grecian forces and he called in a loud voice, "Off with every beard!" That settled it. The next day a committee called on the army with a ripsaw and a bucket of salve and amputated every beard in sight. This is an account of the first shave known to history. The record of the first barbering is a frontlet of curls made for a princess in the east 3,000 years ago, now in the British museum. Homer has the first reference to the razor in the Eighth century, B. C. He says, with some feeling:

Death or life stands on a razor's edge.

After the rape of the beards of the Grecian army shaving became popular with some, but not until a much later day, and when Greece had started down the toboggan slide of adversity, did it become general. In fact it is a well known fact among historians that the fashion of smooth faces among the men has marked the effeminacy, weakness and final downfall of all nations. The Romans were always partial to beards until the Roman empire became too big for its clothes and acquired a swagger, when Hadrian set the example of a smooth chin in 101 A. D. and gave the Roman barbers a boom. The first mention of barbers is by Pliny. Somewhere along about 296 B. C. Scipio Africanus took a jaunt to Sicily and there saw some barbers. They pleased him, and he brought 200 back to Rome and had his beard taken off.

Scipio was a good deal of a Ward McAllister in his day, and the Roman swells rapidly followed suit. After that it got to be a common sight in Rome for a row of men to sit until 12 o'clock Saturday night and listen for "Next!" But this was only among the Four Hundred. The bone and sinew of the Roman republic swore by their beards. All through the orient short hair and beardless chins have always meant a condition of mourning and servitude. A long beard was priceless, and the Mohammedans still swear by their beards. The prophet Ezekiel, as early as 585 B. C., was directed to take a barber's razor upon his head and upon his beard in sign of the ruin to come upon Israel.

The men were set free, but were ashamed to go to David with any of their beard gone. He found them, however, and sent them on a vacation to let their beards grow out. An old Greek, known among his friends as Zoilius, who lived in 800 B. C., and was dropped off a precipice for criticising Homer, had a very long beard, and so solicitous was he that long hair on his head might detract from the strength of the beard that he kept his noddle clean shaven. After Thomas More had taken leave of his daughter at the foot of the scaffold, in 1535, his chief anxiety was that the headsman might injure his beard.

The finest beard on record belonged to Gillaume the priest, bishop of Clermont, who founded the college for Jesuits at Paris late in the Eighteenth century. This beard was long, wavy and soft as silk. But his beard was his downfall. His brother bishops became jealous of it, and decided that it must come off. This was decreed at a secret council, and the next morning when the priest entered the chapel three men met him with soap, hot water, a razor and shears and laid hold of him. He broke away, skedaddled and took refuge in a castle, where he died of vexation.

The only exceptions where beards have not been considered as advantageous appurtenances were among the Germans, the Egyptians and in the early colonial days among the Puritans. The ancient German youth was not allowed to shave until he had slain an enemy in battle, and among the New England Puritans long beards were sometimes forcibly reaped, because the idea prevailed that pride lurked behind a venerable beard. It was not until the beginning of the present century that the long beard went entirely out of fashion. Since then smooth faces have been on the increase, and any person who will take the trouble to notice the men who pass a given point for an hour on any of the busy streets of Chicago will see but a very few long beards. It is not improbable that in another century, if the beard is continually cropped, the long beard will no longer grow and will become a thing of history and story books.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

A SOLDIER'S SECRET

BY CAPT. CHARLES KING, U.S.A.

COPYRIGHT, 1892, BY J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY, AND PUBLISHED BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH THEM.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Nita Guthrie, a St. Louis girl, is visiting the family of Surgeon Holden, in the camp of the Twelfth cavalry, in Arizona. Captain Rolfe, an officer of the Twelfth, proposes and is rejected. An old love affair is in the way. Nita swoons over some mysterious apparition on the eve of her departure for home. II—After Nita leaves camp Dr. Holden tries to unearth the mystery of her swoon. He suspects that Sergeant Ellis, a recent recruit, and a man with a history, had some connection with it. III—Lieutenant "Curly" Brewster, another officer of the Twelfth, is in love with Winifred Berrien, the daughter of Major Berrien. Captain Rolfe lights upon evidence that another woman claims Brewster's devotion. IV—The society at the fort gives a hop, and Mrs. Knowles, a married flirt from a near by town, makes a scene with Brewster, at which Major Berriam and Winifred are mystified and indignant. V—Before Brewster can explain to Winifred about the Khowles woman his troop is ordered to march against the Sioux Indians in Dakota. VI—Major Berrien hears some gossip about Brewer's relations to Mrs. Knowles and bars the lover out from a parting word with Winifred.

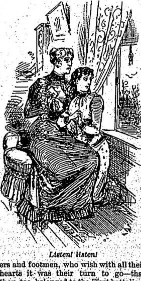
[CONTINUED.]

CHAPTER VII.

Daylight at last, but the sun is hidden in banks of dripping mist. Daylight, wan and chill and comfortless, and the bleary lamps still smoke and flicker about the parade. Daylight, yet without one spark of gladness. Even the birds huddle in the shelter of the autumn foliage, now so crisp and brown, and not so much as a chirp is heard. All around the big quadrangle night lamps are still aglow within the shaded windows, telling of sleepless vigil, of pallid cheeks and tear dimmed eyes. Only in the barracks of the men or the lively dens of the bachelor subalterns do the windows blaze, uncurtained, undismayed. There no silently weeping wives, no clinging, sobbing little ones, crying "because mamma cries," yet little dreaming for what cause, no thought of "What will come to these should I never return?" daunt the spirit of the soldier. There all voices are ringing with eagerness, even exultation, as the men brace on their woven cartridge belts and toss over their brawny shoulders carbine slings and the straps of canteen and haversack, and then come streaming forth upon the galleries muffled to the chin in the blue cavalry overcoats.

Out on the parade the trumpeters are gathered under the moist folds of the flag, awaiting the signal to sound "assembly," and now the band comes marching in through the morning mist, and the adjutant strides forth from the office door. Merrily, briskly the stirring peal bursts from the bells of the brazen trumpets. Promptly the blue overcoats leap into ranks. Sharply they face to the left; and the stern voices of the sergeants can be heard calling the rolls—the "here," "here," of the men responding in animation and hilarity sometimes so marked as to call forth a frown of rebuke. The troop commanders and their subalterns have hastened to their company grounds. The major has just come forth from his dimly lighted hall and is joined by the colonel at the gate, and now, slowly, these two are pacing out to the parade. On many of the verandas dim feminine forms, mantled in heavy shawl or cloak, have gathered in the gloom. Some can be seen flitting ghostlike through the mist, seeking comfort and sympathy in the society of a near neighbor equally bereaved. Brewster turns one longing glance at the porch of the major's quarters, but no one is there.

Again, quick and spirited, as though defying the elements, the trumpets peal the adjutant's call; the band bursts into the martial rhythm of lively quickstep, and then the dripping, moisture laden morning air rings with the words of command as, in full ranks, the four troops come swinging out upon the turf and all the roadway around the parade fills up with other light blue overcoats, those of troopers and footmen, who wish with all their hearts it was their turn to go—that they, too, belonged to the First battalion. In a moment the line is formed; the carbines snap into the bared-left hands as arms are presented; Berrien leaves the colonel's side and takes post in front of the center, touches his cap in acknowledgment of the salute and whips out his own battle worn blade. No speech making here. "Right forward, fours right!" rings the order, and then, arms at right shoulder, band and trumpeters leading, Berrien's men, with quick, elastic step, with swing and life and jauntiness in every stride, march square away across the parade, heading for the road in front of Farquhar's quarters. The trumpets strike up their merry, lively peal. With one simultaneous crash the carbines are brought to the carry, and Berrien lowers his saber in salute to the gray haired colonel, whose eyes fill and who bares for the moment his handsome head as he notes the spirited bearing of the men.



Listen! listen!

And now the head of column has reached the road and turns to the left, and now the trumpets cease and the full band bursts into martial song and all along the row women are waving handkerchiefs wet with tears, even though many are sobbing as though their hearts would break, and little children are perched on the gallery railings, shouting in shrill treble their goodby to papa, who turns one brief glance, perhaps the very last on earth, and a big lump rises in many a husky throat and stern eyes are dimmed with unwonted tears, and God alone knows the secret thoughts that go surging through the soldier brain, the never ceasing whisper of that still, small voice, "What—what will be their fate if I am taken?" God alone can hear, God alone can know the humility, the piteous pleading in the muttered prayer that floats to him on high, "Oh, guard and protect them, and if it be thy will in thy good time restore the father to his helpless little ones." Ah, it is one thing to go forth to fight for an imperiled country, for an insulted flag, to stake life and fortune and hope to guard the beloved ones at the fireside, and to feel that one is battling for them, for their honor, peace and future prosperity.

But it is a thing far different to be torn from loving arms and the smiles and sunshine in the little faces, the prattling and kisses of baby lips, to face year after year a savage foe, knowing full well that, defeated, only death can be the soldier's fortune; that, victorious, the only reward will be permission to slink back to the station whence one came. It is the conquered Indian who rides in triumph to the nation's capital and learns how great and good a thing it is to take the warpath every other year. It is all well enough for the young officers, the young troopers, to laugh and cheer. It is the husband and father among the seniors, the old campaigner in the rank and file—men who have been through many and many a bloody fight within some twenty years of national peace and prosperity—men who have seen dozens, hundreds of their cherished comrades slaughtered in battle with the Sioux—it is they who see the other side of the picture, and ask: "To what purpose? To what end?"

Outbreak has followed outbreak, campaign has followed campaign, each marked by bitter losses in many a regiment, each swelling the list of the widowed and the fatherless, each terminated by the final surrender of hostile bands satiated with the summer's slaughter and shrewd enough to know that they have only to wave the white rag of submission to be restored to public confidence and double rations. Step aside now, gentlemen of the army, bury your dead, patch up your wounds, go back to your stations and get ready for another shindy in the spring. You have had your annual outing, the Indian only his first innings. Now comes his second. Now the bureau takes hold, and away go the prominent leaders of the red revolt in the annual pilgrimage, the annual starring tour through the east, and the sentimentalists swarm to meet them, and wheresoever they stop hosts of our fellow citizens throng to smile upon them, eager to clasp and shake the hands that less than a month ago were reeking with the blood of mutilated soldiery for whom desolate women and bereaved little ones are wailing hopelessly today. Væ victis!

Go on in your triumphal circuit, red brothers Rain-in-the-Face, Thunder Bear, Blizzard Hawk. Rejoice in the sunshine of your prosperity; go back to your new lodges and unload your chests of plunder, the free will offerings of your palefaced kindred. The war has made you rich. Your squaws and children revel in food and finery galore, and should supplies begin to slacken up a little with the coming of another spring shoot your agent, carry off his wife and daughters, and start in for another summer of fun. As for you, weeping widow and children of Captain Something—I've forgotten his name—shot from ambush by the Sioux last fall, get back to the east as best you can, dry your tears, and be happy on twenty dollars a month. It's what one must expect in marrying into the army.

And now the last of the blue column has passed through the western gate, and a throng of comrades surges after, every man in the garrison, not otherwise on duty, trudging down through the mist and mud to see Berrien's battalion to the waiting train. The guard springs to arms and falls in line—the guard whom Brewster was to have relieved at eight a. m.—and again the major lowers his saber in acknowledgment of their salute, and so, down the winding road, tramp, tramp, steadily, cheerily, even joyously, they go, and the broad parade above is silent and deserted. Women are sobbing in one another's arms, and Mrs. Berrien, seated at an upper window looking out to the west, is stroking Winifred's glossy, rippling tresses—Winifred, who, kneeling, has buried her tear stained face in her mother's lap. Fainter and fainter the martial strains come floating up from the wooded valley. The band is playing another quickstep now, its prelude full of vim and life and spirit, and then—What strange inspiration has possessed the leader? Listen! listen! Winifred raises her head and looks one instant with dilated eyes into her mother's pallid, quivering face; then, covering her ears with her slender hands, burrowing again into her mother's lap, she bursts into a passion of tears. Listen! Sweet, soft, sad, the beautiful notes of the thrice beautiful old song are wafted up on the gentle beeeze. God! to how many a breaking heart, how many a world worn, weary, yearning soul has it not spoken!

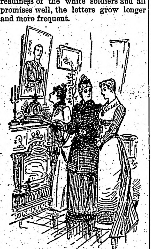
Love not, love not, ye hapless sons of clay.

It is too much for Mrs. Berrien. Brave, self controlled, uncomplaining as she has been through it all, this is test beyond her strength. Down comes the window with sudden clash, and then, drawing her daughter to her breast, clasping her in her loving, sheltering arms, the mother heart gives way, the sorrowing wife bows her head, and, rocking to and fro in worldless grief, mingles her tears with those of her beloved child.

Cheer upon cheer comes swelling on the morning air. Cheer follows cheer as Berrien's men return the soul stirring, soldierly goodby. Guidons wave from the thronging platforms. Bronzed faces peer from every window. Hats and forage caps are tossing on high. Men rush alongside the slowly starting train for one last handclasp of the departing comrades. The echoes ring to the rollicking notes of their old charging, fighting tune. The trumpets answer from the crowded cars. The sun bursts through the eddying mist and streams in glorious radiance upon the scene. All here at the station throbs with soldier song and spirit and enthusiasm, but above—above, where in mournful premonition one poor army wife is weeping over three little curly heads pillowed in her straining arms, there comes no sound of soldier triumph, no echo of soldier song. Sunshine and stirring music follow the swiftly speeding train, but all is dark and desolate now where gladness reigned but a day gone by.

CHAPTER VIII.

Letters from the front! What joy and comfort they bring!—for every writer seems bent on convincing the anxious ones at home that there is no danger and little discomfort, after all. Telegrams and brief notes have been raining in ever since the departure of the regiment, but now the two battalions are reunited under Farquhar's command; they have got shaken down into a species of winter cantonment with a goodly number of comrade troops and troopers from the threatened department. The weather has not been unusually severe thus far. Men and horses stood the trip admirably, and nobody growled at stiffened fingers and red noses and benumbed feet as they rode in long column from the railway to the agency, and, now that fuel has been lugged up in abundance and fur caps and "blizzard coats" are coming and the Indians hovering about the camps seem deeply impressed with the numbers and readiness of the white soldiers and all promises well, the letters grow longer and more frequent.



"It is my brother."

"We are doing first rate, Bess dear," wrote Berrien, "and all are hopeful that with the surrounding of the big band of hostiles in the Bad River valley the most uncertain feature of the business is at an end. If they can be quietly herded in to the reservation and induced to give up all their arms and ponies, there will be no further trouble. The health and spirit of the regiment are excellent, and, while I hope no emergency will arise, I can bet that if there should be a shindy the Twelfth will give good account of itself. Farquhar keeps us on the alert and there is no rusting. Gorham has joined from leave, so that Brewster, to his infinite disgust I doubt not, has had to fall back to second place. He and Rolfe are about the only gloomy spirits in the command, and of Brewster I see very little. Ever since the episode of which I told you and her most significant appearance at the depot in town while we were being switched to the northbound track I have not felt like having anything to do with him. How do you suppose she heard of our move, since she left the hop before any one knew of it? There were a few other ladies there, I admit, for they were still with us when the orders came, and it had cleared by the time we reached the depot.

She, however, seemed to hang on to him and nobody else to the very last. I am distressed at what you tell me about Winifred, and the more I think of it the more I am disposed to urge your instant acceptance of Miss Guthrie's invitation. It will be the very best antidote I know of—a few weeks in St. Louis society—if she has indeed, as you fear, become interested in him. Go by all means; it will do you good—do Winifred a world of good (get her some new gowns, and take in all the parties and all the gayety you possibly can), and it will be a good thing for Miss Guthrie too.

"Now, this is strictly entre nous. Holden is worried about her, and in course of a long talk we had last night he showed me a letter just received from Mrs. Holden. Of course she is all upset by his having to take the field, and wants to leave the children with her mother and come up here to him, but she couldn't be in camp and there isn't a room to be had at the railway station. The place is just crammed with newspaper men and quartermaster's people. Mrs. Holden writes that ever since the night of that queer adventure of hers at the fort Nita has been unlike herself—strange, nervous, almost hysterical at times. She will permit no allusion to it, and seems striving to forget it all. She goes everywhere, morning, noon and night, but looks haggard and ill. I gather from what Holden said that, as you once surmised, there was an old affair which may have had something to do with her persistent refusal of every offer; but what that could have had to do with her fright at Pawnee I cannot imagine. Holden agrees with me, however, that it would be a capital thing if you and Winnie would pay her the visit she urges; so again, I say, go by all means.

"By the way, I wish you would run over and see Mrs. Thorpe as often as you can. Her letters have a depressing effect on the captain. He tells me the only insurance he has in all the world is in the Army mutual, but three thousand dollars would hardly pay their debts and take care of them for a year if anything were to happen to him. Don't be alarmed by newspaper stories of the lighted skies and howling ghost dancers. Indians will dance all night on any provocation, and our fires light the skies quite as much as theirs. Sergeant Ellis, who volunteered to push through with dispatches to Buller's command somewhere on the other side of the Bad Lands, got back all right this morning and says he had hardly any difficulty in working a way through the hostiles. That fellow, I think, is going to make a name for himself in this campaign. He is always ready for anything that turns up.

"I hear that Brewster and Ridgeway have had a row and do not speak. Some of the boys know what it's all about, but won't tell me. Do you know? Now, unless you wire to the contrary, I shall address my next care of Hon. Warren L. Guthrie, St. Louis."

Then Kenyon got a letter. He was now commanding officer of the post, and was unremitting in his thoughtfulness and attention to the households of the absent officers. It was Rolfe who wrote to him, and Kenyon was well nigh at his wits' end in the endeavor to conjecture what it all meant.

"You remember my saying I could find that stolen picture if I could but have authority to search one room at the post. It is my conviction still that the man who goes by the name of Ellis was the thief. He had a lock box at the post-office in town, number twenty-three, and letters have been forwarded to him here by the postmaster, two of which were not addressed to Sergeant Ellis or to G. B. Ellis, Twelfth cavalry, but to Ralph Erroll, box twenty-three. When he returned from detached service this morning the sergeant major handed him his mail and asked him if those additional letters were his. He turned red, then pale, but said yes. Both these were from Louisville, as I happen to know; both were addressed in the same hand—that of an educated woman—and there is no doubt in my mind that this Ellis or Erroll has a screw loose in his record. Brewster knows something of his past, but refuses to tell. It is of vital importance to me to find out who and what he is, for I believe him to have been guilty of a crime beside which the theft of that picture is as nothing.

"Now, I want you to do something for me. A man will call on you within a few days, presenting a letter of introduction from me. He is a detective from Chicago. He has certain inquiries to make at the post and in town before going to Louisville, and it should not be known that he is a detective at all. Give him every facility in your power. Introduce him to the postmaster as a friend of mine, if you prefer it, and let him occupy my quarters while at the garrison. He will want to see the firehouse and apparatus and all about Holden's quarters. Kathleen is there in charge, and Holden has no objection, though he pooh poohs the efforts I am making to get at the bottom of this strange business. I hope I am not asking too much of you.

"I saw Hearn last evening, just in from a ten days' scout with Lane's squadron over toward the Wakpa Shicha. He asked after you and sent cordial regards. There are two other fellows here who were on their honeymoon tour when their regiments were ordered to the field. It reconciles one to being a bachelor almost."

The major put the letter down and pondered long, perplexed and annoyed. He had known Rolfe but a short time, and had learned to know him mainly through Holden. He knew him to be resolute, positive, even aggressive at times. He admired his soldierly qualities and respected his ability. But when finally he rose from his desk after stowing that letter away old Kenyon expressed himself about as follows: "That fellow needs a wife. He is too much accustomed to having his own way. I'll be hanged if I'll do any detective work for him or anybody else. If Holden wants his house searched, Holden can say so."

Two days later the major had the mournful pleasure of escorting Mrs. and Miss Berrien to the train, and as it steamed away eastward a man who had stepped from the day car as Kenyon placed his fair charges on the sleeper came forward and handed him a note addressed in Rolfe's characteristic hand.

"I know who you are," said Kenyon. "You will find me at my office in the garrison when you get up there." And stepping into the waiting wagon he bade the driver go ahead, leaving the detective to come up in the post stage.

That evening he wrote a short letter to Rolfe, and the gentleman from Chicago indited a long one—both of which would have served to surprise that calmly superior soldier not a little had they reached him in due course of mail, which, however, they did not. It was some time before he saw them at all, for when they were unloaded from the mailbags at the winter cantonment Rolfe, with Berrien's battalion, was miles away.

Getting no reply to his missives and little encouragement at the the field, strange civilian suddenly departed after three days' apparently aimless stay, and the next heard of him was in the shape of a letter from Louisville. Could Major Kenyon procure for him anyhow, anywhere, a photograph of Sergeant Ellis? No, Major Kenyon couldn't, and was very short in saying so.

And now December was come, and the air was crisp and keen in the valley of the Pawnee, the sunshine radiant and sparkling; but far to the north the wintry winds were howling about the flimsy cantonment and whirling the snow through every cranny and crack, and the long nights on outpost and picket were bitter cold. But through it all the various battalions of horse were sent scouting in turn around the reservation, and more and more the young warriors dribbled away from the agencies and were next heard of welcomed with acclamations by the savage hosts in the fastnesses of the Bad Lands, and every hour increased the prospect of sharp fighting in the near future. But all the letters to the anxious hearts at home were full of hope and cheer, full of prophecy that everything would soon be settled. The renegade bands were all "located" and being slowly hemmed in. The Twelfth would eat its Christmas dinner at Pawnee after all, they hoped. And in St. Louis Miss Guthrie was exerting herself to see that her charming guests were having the loveliest kind of a time. Dinners, luncheons, cards, theaters and dancing parties followed in quick succession. The new gowns were being made as fast as famous modistes could evolve and construct them, and Winifred was rushed from one scene of gayety to another.

"Nothing could have been more charming than our welcome," wrote Mrs. Berrien to her beloved Dick, "nothing more delightful than the round of entertainments to which we are bidden. One has hardly time to think. As for writing, this is the first opportunity I have enjoyed in three days, and we are home from the theater but half an hour. Mrs. Holden comes over every day, and we exchange such news as we have of the dear old regiment and the dearer ones who are our especial property. She is what I call a genuine woman, and I like her more and more. I must tell you something I learned through her. The day after our arrival we were in the library, and my attention was attracted by a large portrait, apparently a crayon copy of a photograph, that hung over the mantel. It was of a singularly handsome young man, and I knew at once he must be a Guthrie. 'It is my brother,' said Nita, in such a sad, constrained tone, 'taken just a few weeks before his death six years ago.' Of course I could ask no more, but Winifred and I both noted how utterly her face changed, how unspeakably distressed a look came into her eyes. We could see then why Mrs. Holden should have said she was haggard and ill, and yesterday Mrs. Holden told me something of his story. He was barely twenty-two, the idol of the family and immensely popular in society. He was assistant cashier in one of the big banks here, and one day the sudden discovery was made that in some mysterious way quite a large sum was missing, money for which he was responsible, but he could not account for it; neither could anybody else. The matter was investigated thoroughly.

"They had detectives everywhere, and absolutely nothing could be brought up against young Guthrie. He never gambled, never dissipated in any way, was a model son and brother. Nita was wild with indignation at his having been even suspected. Mr. Guthrie offered to make good the sum twice over if need be, and to bind himself for all his wealth to establish his boy's honor, and for three or four days all was excitement, and then, in the midst of it, poor Jack was found dead in his room, a half empty bottle of chloral by his bedside. The world said suicide, guilty conscience, etcetera, but Nita and others knew that he had not slept a wink since the discovery of the loss and was crazed with misery. They have always maintained it was an accidental overdose. But it nearly broke Mr. Guthrie's heart, and it was three years before Nita would go into society in St. Louis again. They went to Europe and staid there ever so long.

"What makes it seem probable that he was unjustly suspected was that the bank dismissed its cashier, Jack's most intimate friend, a man two or three years older than himself, and a devoted admirer of Nita's. It was even supposed that she was engaged to him. He had no wealthy friends to stand up for him, and Jack's death made it appear as though there had been guilt; and yet such a sum could not well have been made away with except by the knowledge or collusion of the cashier himself, and though proofs were lacking, he was discharged the very day poor Jack was buried. No one knows whatever became of him afterward, and people settled down into the belief that this Mr. Worden was the real thief. But now comes the strangest part of it all. The president of the bank was a widower who, for two years, had been a suitor of Nita's, a persistent suitor, despite her marked coldness and aversion. Four months ago rumors began to float as to the stability of the bank; then came a run, a panic; the bank had to close its doors; immediate investigation into its affairs was made, and then came the discovery that the president had been a heavy speculator and had unquestionably used the funds of the bank to cover his losses. They found his body in the river four days afterward, floating down by the old barracks, where you and I had such a happy winter twenty years ago. People say now that it was President Percival himself all the time, and that he threw suspicion on young Guthrie because he knew the father would eagerly pay any sum to cover the loss and hide the shame; but Jack's death balked the scheme.

"Do you wonder now that Nita is sometimes overwrought and nervous? Poor girl! who knows what she has suffered? Who, to see her in society, would dream that she had ever suffered at all? Do you suppose Captain Rolfe did not hear all about this when he was here on recruiting service?

"Now you ask me to tell you everything about Winifred. Is she happy? Is she getting over her disappointment? I do not know just what to say. She is always bright and apparently joyous in society; always grateful for every kindness and attention shown her; but she is rarely alone one minute from morning until late at night, and I cannot be sure. She never speaks of him; and in all the whirl of social gayety here, and the attention she receives on every side, I think, I hope, she may forget her girlish sentiment. Time will show."

Time might have shown, but time was not accorded. Coming home late one night from a delightful dance their carriage stopped outside the massive porte-cochere of the Guthrie homestead instead of driving right in.

"What is it, James?" asked Miss Guthrie.

"Another carriage here, miss. I think it's Mrs. Holden just getting out."

"Jennie here! Why, how odd! She went home half an hour before we started."

It was Jennie, with a grave, anxious face, at sight of which Mrs. Berrien fairly sprang from the carriage.

"You have ill news, Mrs. Holden. What is it? Tell me at once."

"This has just come from my husband," was the trembling answer as she held forth a telegram: "Major Berrien's wound serious, but not fatal. Mrs. Berrien must not be alarmed. Do not believe sensational newspaper reports of disaster. Wounded doing well."

GREAT NORTEHRN
Railway
TIME CARD.

MONTANA EXPRESS—Daily.

West		East
7:40 p m De.	St. Paul	Ar. 6:55 a m
2:50 a m "	Fergus Falls	" 11:25 p m
4:47 a m "	Glyndon	" 9:36 p m
7:20 a m "	CROOKSTON	" 7:25 p m
8:40 a m "	Grand Forks	" 6:20 p m
9:45 a m "	Larimore	" 5:06 p m
2:1 p m "	Devils Lake	" 2:55 a m
7:00 p m Ar.	Butte	De. 7:30 a m

ST. VINCENT BRANCH—Daily except Sunday
Depart 7:30 a m Arrive 6:30 p m
FOSSTON BRANCH—Tues., Thurs. and Sat.
Depart 8:00 a m Arrive 5:30 p m
ST. HILAIRE BRANCH—Monday Wed. & Friday.
Depart 10:45 a m Arrive 4:30 p m
GRAND FORKS' ACCOMMODATION.
Arrive 9:50 a m Depart 7:55 p m

The scenic route to Spokane, Helena, and Butte on the west, and St. Paul, Minneapolis-Duluth and West Superior on the east. Dining and sleeping cars on all through trains. Tickets on sale to all principal places. Baggage checked through to destination.

W. W. FEGAN, Agent.

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.

TIME SCHEDULE.

	Leave Crookston Daily.	Arrive Crookston Daily.
For Duluth, Ashland, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Chicago, and all points East and South............	7:05 p. m.	8:27 a. m.
For Grand Forks, Grafton, Pembina, Winnipeg and points in N. Dakota and Winnipeg........	8:27 a. m.	7:05 p. m.

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.

THE

Great Transcontinental Route

Passes through Wisconsin, Minnesota North Dakota, Manitoba, Montana, Idaho, Oregon and Washington.

The Dining Car Line

Dining cars are run between Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Winnipeg, Butte, Helena, Tacoma, Seattle and Portland.

PULLMAN SLEEPING CAR ROUTE.

Pullman service daily between Chicago, St. Paul, Montana and the Pacific Northwest; and between St. Paul, Minneapolis and Minnesota, North Dakota and Manitoba points.

THE POPULAR LINE.

Daily Express Trains carry elegant Pullman Sleeping Cars, Dining Cars, Day Coaches, Pullman Tourist Sleepers and Free Colonist Sleeping Cars.

YELLOWSTONE PARK ROUTE.

The Northern Pacific R. R. is the rail line to Yellowstone Park; the popular line to California and Alaska; and its trains pass through the grandest scenery of seven states.

THROUGH TICKETS

Are sold at all coupon offices of the Northern Pacific Railroad to points North, East, South and West, in the United States and Canada.

For rates, maps, time tables, or special information, apply to

CHAS. A. SHARKEY,
Agent Northern Pacific R. R.,
Crookston, Minn.
CHAS. S. FEE,
Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent,
St. Paul, Minn.

A. A. JUST, M. D.,
Homoeopathic Physician and Surgeon
OFFICE IN
McKinnon Block, Crookston

A. H. DUNLAP, M. D.
Graduate McGill University, Montreal.
LICENSED COLLEGE PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS, QUEBEC.
Office in McKinnon Block.

FARM AND GARDEN

PEA AND BEAN WEEVILS.

Facts in Their Life History—Effective Remedies Against Them.

The adult pea weevil is shown at B in Fig. 1, with its natural size indicated at the small outline below. Its general color is rusty black, with more or less white on the wing covers and a distinct white spot on the hinder part of the thorax. The beetles begin to appear about the time peas are in blossom, and when the young pods form the females lay their eggs upon the surface without attempting to insert them. The eggs are deep yellow in color and are fastened by some viscid fluid, which turns white in drying. Where the insects are abundant a single pod will be found to carry as many as fifteen to twenty eggs, but only one larva can develop in a single pea. The newly hatched larva is deep yellow in color, with a black head, and bores directly through the pod into the nearest pea.

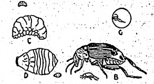


FIG. I—THE PEA WEEVIL.

In the cut B represents the adult beetle; C, full grown larva; D, pupa; G, pea showing exit hole enlarged. The natural size of the insect in its various stages is represented by the smaller figures.

Sometimes many of the beetles will issue in the fall of the year, but as a general rule they remain in the peas through the following winter, and many are planted with seed peas. As far as is known the insects on issuing will not oviposit upon the dry peas, and a sure remedy will therefore be found in keeping seed peas in a close receptacle over two seasons before planting. The beetles will all issue at the customary time, but will soon die. When it is necessary to plant the first season the entire lot of seed should be thrown into water, when the "buggy" ones will float and should be removed and destroyed. Infested peas may also be disinfected by placing them in a tight vessel with one of a number of insecticides, among which may be mentioned camphor, chloroform, ether and bisulphide of carbon, the latter being cheapest and most efficacious. There is an idea current that the larva while working in the interior of the pea avoids the germ, and that peas which have been eaten by weevils are still available for seed. Careful experiments conducted by Professor Popenoe, of the Kansas station, appear to practically settle the question, so that it may be definitely said that weeviled or buggy peas should not be planted.

The bean weevil resembles the pea weevil in general appearance. The adult beetle is shown at Fig. 2; the main points of difference are in the absence of white markings. The general color is tawny gray, with more or less dull yellow, and it is somewhat smaller than the pea weevil. In its life history this species differs from the pea weevil in two important points. Largely on account of its smaller size and the greater size of the seed which it infests, a number of individuals will develop in a single bean. As many as twenty-eight have thus been found feeding at once. A second point of difference, and one of great economic importance, is that the insects will continue breeding indefinitely in stored beans.

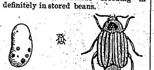

FIG. II—THE BEAN WEEVIL.

The remedies for this insect are the same as for the pea weevil, except that keeping the imported seed over two years in tight vessels will be of no avail for the bean weevil. Careful experiments with bisulphide of carbon show that in this substance we have an almost perfect remedy for both species. The foregoing facts are gathered from Insect Life, in which the illustrations also appear.

Roots for Milk Cows.

Carrots stand at the head of the list. They are an excellent food for all kinds of farm stock. A writer in The New England Homestead warns, however, against feeding them regularly to milk cows. He says:

As small a quantity as four quarts three times a day will give the butter a carroty flavor. This may not be disagreeable at first, but with age it becomes unpalatable and makes the butter unfit for culinary purposes. Cabbages and turnips should never be fed to cows where their milk is made into butter. Some feed these roots to cows right after milking; others put boiling water into the milk; some even dose it with niter, but nothing will destroy the peculiar taste in the butter when turnips are fed.

Feed judiciously and not in such large quantities as to lax the bowels. Turnips do very well as a feed for dry cows, young stock, sheep and occasionally hogs. They should not be fed to horses, as they are liable to produce colic. All kinds of beets and mangolds are excellent for cows milked in winter, and best of all these is the white sugar beet. It can be grown more easily than the turnip and will produce a far greater number of tons per acre. Chopped and sliced and fed with a little wheat middlings and cornmeal it will produce a large flow of heavy sweet milk and make butter of excellent quality and flavor, which will keep sweet for months if properly packed and kept in a cool, clean place.

SUCCESS WITH POULTRY.

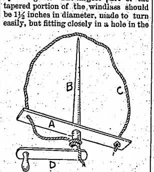
Essential Points in a Well Ordered Poultry Yard.

1. Do not interbreed. 2. Give poultry more accommodation and more care. 3. Supply them when closely confined with what they can pick up when running at large, such as gravel, lime, dust bath, green stuff, etc. 4. Keep no hens over two years. Why? Because they will then molt so late that they will eat the prospective profit before they begin to lay. 5. Select the best layers to breed from and so secure a good laying strain. 6. Watch closely for the hens that do not lay, and cut their heads off. 7. Save the waste table scraps, all the kitchen waste. Mix into a hot morning feed, not sloppy. Do not feed too much. 8. Keep the hens busy by scattering straw and leaves about the floor and throwing the grain feed into it. 9. Learn how to manage the poultry department as well as any other live stock department and mark results. A strict record should be kept of expense and profit in order to give the poultry a fair show.

Director Gilbert of the Ottawa (Canada) experiment farms, in naming the essential elements of success, as here given, says that the breeds found to be the best for farmers among the varieties tried so far are the White Leghorns and Plymouth Rocks, for the reason that the White Leghorns have laid more eggs and the Plymouth Rocks have put on more flesh than any others. The Wyandottes make a good general purpose fowl. The Brahmas are also a fine fowl, but are a little slow in maturing, owing to their large frame, but they make large birds after six or seven months. Some crosses make fine layers and market fowls.

Device for Binding Corn.

I use a handy device for binding shocks of corn, which consists of a strip of hard wood A 20 inches long, 1 inch thick and 4 inches wide. An inch hole is bored at each end for a rope C about 10 feet long and three-quarters of an inch in diameter. A knot in one end prevents it from slipping through the hole. A windlass B is made of a piece of hard wood 2½ feet long, turned or shaved round, and pointed as represented by the figure. The largest part of the tapered portion of the windlass should be 1½ inches in diameter, made to turn easily, but fitting closely in a hole in the middle of the piece A. This crank should be about 1 foot long. In use I put the piece A against the side of the shock where it is to be bound. Thrust the windlass through the hole in the same and into the stalks. Then put the end of the rope around the shocks, put it through the hole in the end of A; wrap it around the end of the crank and wind it up until it is tight enough. Fasten the crank with a cord to the end of A and bind the shock with a straw band, which will hold the stalks when the rope is removed, although it will not be strong enough to draw them up as tightly as the rope will.—Practical Farmer.



A USEFUL CORN BINDER.

Meadow Grass.

Heavy meadow grass is valuable. If its quality does not come up to standard it may be cut wet and balanced up with nitrogenous foods, like cottonseed and linseed meal, and will pay well for feeding. Because a meadow is overflowed each year and doesn't cut the best timothy, but yields heavy fescue or other grasses, don't despise it. Stimulate it, encourage it, make all you can of it. If the field does not yield heavily harrow it or plow and harrow it after the regular freshet, so it will have a chance to get sodded before another flood, and sow grass at once.

Sow varieties that are known to do well in such a situation and sow more than one kind. Be sure to sow sorts that ripen together, that the hay may be fit for the mowers, and not part too ripe and part too green, is the advice of a Philadelphia Farm Journal correspondent, who furnishes also the following suggestive item: "I have a neighbor who last year had the best prospects for a good corn crop of any one around, but he followed old time ways and put a heavy cultivator at work severing the corn root in July, and a drought setting in just after, his crop failed to produce within a good many bushels of what it promised."

Hints from The Farm Journal.

Old asparagus roots sometimes die out or are destroyed by field mice. We usually replant such hills with strong roots. To prevent the grubs of the asparagus beetle from devouring these tender shoots we watch them and rub off the eggs and grubs by passing them through the fingers.

It is thrifty farming to raise, match and train steers for work teams. The demand for them is increasing. Teach them to walk fast. Devons can't be surpassed for the purpose.

When you make underdrains be sure also to make a map locating them perfectly so they can be found for repairing without too much digging.

The farmer who must mow weeds to find his potatoes is convinced that potato growing doesn't pay.

It pays to run the seed wheat through the fanning mill twice. The mill should be a good one.

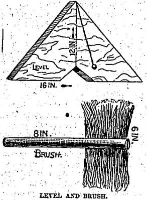
If the buttermilk be rich suspect a loss in the churn.

IMPLEMENTS FOR THE APIARY.

Two Useful Tools That Can Be Easily and Cheaply Made.

A thing that has proved useful to a correspondent of Gleanings in Bee Culture, from which our cut is reproduced, is the old style level. This correspondent says: "It has the merit of being cheap; and any one reasonably handy with saw and square can make it, and it does its work well. Mine is made of a piece of 2 by 12 plank; sixteen inches is about the proper length. To level up hive stands set it on a bottom board on the stand and block up under until the line falls naturally parallel with the mark on the plank. Any bit of lead or even an old burr will do for the plumbbob. Bore a hole in one corner to hang it up by when not in use.

"I have tried all styles of brushes known to the fraternity, from a turkey feather to a bunch of asparagus tops, and, all things considered, I like the one Father Langstroth described in his book years ago best of all. Two pieces of ½-inch rope, six inches long, and a piece of broom handle, eight inches long, is all that is needed. Make two sawkerfs as close together as you can conveniently, three inches deep from one end, and after separating the rope into strands force them down into the opening left by the two sawkerfs; drive three or four wire nails through and clinch tight, and it is done, except that the rope will need to be wet and straightened. I have two or three, so when one is daubed another is ready. To clean, put it in warm water, and whirl as if it were a top you were going to spin. The same motion when out of the water will throw the brush all out straight and get rid of surplus moisture, only it is apt to fly into your face or on your clothes; but if it is not dirty water this will do no harm. Lay them down to dry. It works best while yet damp."



LEVEL AND BRUSH.

Pasturage.

It needs no argument to prove that the easiest way to feed stock is to let them gather their food themselves. Cows may be profitably kept for milk in many instances, chiefly on ensilage and fodders, green and dry, but it is only where good pasturage is available that general stock raising can be profitable. Notwithstanding what seems so self evident, the importance of making the most possible out of the pasture does not appear to have taken a very strong hold on the minds of farmers in general, according to a correspondent of the New York World, who says:

Many of the farmers in the eastern and middle states who are the owners of acres of woodland, either large or small, by a little clearing out of underbrush to let in the sun and the scattering of grass seed adapted to shaded lands, might easily so increase their pasturage that most of the land now devoted to it could be reserved for meadow or cultivated crops. In other words, many farmers have pieces of woodland the value of which might be greatly increased by semicultivation of the kind described.

In the south, where grass has a much longer period of growth, the subject of pasturage deserves especial consideration. No more profitable use can be made of a large portion of the land annually devoted to cotton than to seed it down for permanent pasture and meadow. There is no good reason why the south should not raise and feed its own stock, and thus stop a large drain on the resources of southern planters. With more land given up to grass and stock there would gradually come better farming. This means increased fertility for the other lands and more corn and cotton to the acre cultivated.

One Way to Shock Wheat.

To set up a stack that will stand and turn water is an art which every one has not learned, and yet it is easy enough when once the lesson is learned. Waldo F. Brown's plan, as tried by himself, is to set the bundles squarely against each other and only slightly leaned from the perpendicular. He puts eleven bundles in a shock—four for the foundation, one at each end and two at each side, and a single cap sheaf. He says that one cap will turn the water as well as two if properly broken and put on, is much less likely to be blown off, and in long continued wet weather two sheaves will become so saturated as to twist the shock by their weight.

Poultry Points.

As a green food for chickens and ducks in summer or winter, some poultry keepers claim there is nothing much better than flat turnips chopped and sliced, these being at least nearly equal to clover, cabbage and lettuce, and can be grown at less cost and kept for winter feeding very easily.

Do not crowd the half grown chickens together in a small coop. This causes disease as well as deformities, such as crooked breastbones and wry tails.

Whitewash the nests and coops frequently during warm weather, or keep them fresh and clean by some method.

Good feeding will do much to increase the size of eggs; according to one theory this is why eggs from yards where only few fowls are kept are often larger and richer than those of regular market eggs.

S. L. COLLINS,
Proprietor of Main Street
Livery and Feed Stables.
Cor. Main and Fourth Sts., west side,
CROOKSTON, - - - MINNESOTA.

Horses bought and sold on commission. Everything neat and nobby. Feeding a specialty.

FINE HEARSE
in connection, which I will attend to in person.

Valley Roller Mills
MANUFACTURERS OF
FINE FLOUR
From Selected Red River Wheat.

QUOTATIONS.
Best..........$2.25 per 98 lbs.
North Star..........2.10 " "
Fife..........1.90 " "
Skip Jack..........1.25 " "
Bran..........9.00 " ton.
Shorts..........10.00 " "
Call early and get your supply of feed.

☞ We exchange flour for wheat on equitable terms.
LEE & HERRICK.

C. HENDRICKSON, President. L. ELLINGTON, Vice President.
J. W. WHEELER, Cashier. H. STEENERSON, 2d Vice President.
A. P. Hanson, Assistant Cashier.
Scandia-American Bank,
Of Crookston, Minn. Organized under the State laws. Authorized capital $200,000. Paid up capital $50,000. Undivided profits $10,500. Buys Bonds, School and Town Orders. Special attention to collections. Interest on time deposits.
DIRECTORS—C. O. Christianson, E. P. Pierce, O. H. Lucken, A. G. Gallasch, H. Steenerson, J. H. Locken, C. Hendrickson, Max Ericsson, L. K. Aaker, J. W. Wheeler.

NEW CIGAR STORE
SIGN OF THE BIG INDIAN.
H. F. BROWN, Proprietor.
Second Street,
CROOKSTON, MINN
Cigars of every known brand, from a cheroot it a 25 center. Cigarettes, Chewing and Smoking Tobaccos of all kinds, Snuff, Pipes to suit he fancy of all, from a corn-cob pipe to a meerchaum.
CALL IN.

MARTIN O'BRIEN,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
{I. O. O. F. BUILDING.} Crookston, Minn.

MILLER & FOOTE,
ATTY'S-AT-LAW,
McKinnon Block, - Crookston, Minn.

THE PIONEER
HARNESS SHOP,
M. RAUENBUEHLR, Proprietor.
A full supply of everything kept by the trade.
Cor of Broadway and Third Sts,
CROOKSTON, MINN

IF YOU ARE GOING EAST OR SOUTH ASK YOUR NEAREST AGENT FOR TICKETS VIA THE BURLINGTON AND TAKE NO OTHER LINE.

L. E. GOSSMAN,
Attorney-at-Law,
No. 2 Fournet Block } CROOKSTON, MINN.

P. J. RUSSELL,
Attorney-at-Law
CROOKSTON, MINN.
Next to Merchants' Bank.

FRANK IVES, Notary Public and U. S. Com'r
D. E. HATLESTAD, District Court Commissioner
IVES & HATLESTAD,
Attorneys and Counselors at Law,
CROOKSTON, - - - - MINN.
Will practice in all the courts and before the U. S. Land Office at Crookston and Washington. Pensions and Soldiers' Claims and Patents carefully and promptly adjusted.
We loan money on improved farms and city property and have facilities for placing large loans at low rate of interest. We give special attention to collection and all commercial business pertaining to our profession.

H. STEENERSON
ATTORNEY AT LAW.
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA

Until I Remove Back to
MY OLD STAND
I will Sell Everything in my store
Way Down Low.
—I am making a Special Drive in—
CLOAKS ☞ FOR LADIES' AND CHILDREN.
Which we are selling at
ACTUAL COST
Laid down here. If you don't think I am giving bargains,
{COME IN AND PRICE MY GOODS.}
A. CHABOT.
Pro. New York Dry Goods store, - - - CROOKSTON, MINN.

A word to the wise and money savers.
GERVAIS'--The Hustlers,
THE GREATEST AGGREGATION OF
Spring and Summer Goods
That Ever Landed in the Northwest, comprising
The Latest Novelties in Fancy and Domestic Goods.
Dress Goods and Trimmings,
Jackets, Cloaks and Cloakings,
Parasols and Umbrellas for rain and sunshine.
White Goods and Embroideries,
Wash Goods in all the newest weaves,
Jersey ribbed and muslin Underwear.
Ladies' Shirt Waists in many styles,
Spring Caps and Straw Hats.
CARPETS
In all grades and newest designs.
Lace and Chenille Curtains and Portiers,
House Furnishing Goods, of all kinds,
New departure in Boots and Shoes.
Call In and Get Prices.
I. O. O. F. Block, Crookston.
GERVAIS & GERVAIS, Leaders in Low Prices.

Schmidt, the Painter,
—CARRIES A FULL AND COMPLETE STOCK OF—
PAINTS,
OILS AND
VARNISHES.
—ALSO A FULL AND COMPLETE LINE OF—
☞ WALL PAPER. ☜
Painting in all its branches, and Paper Hanging artistically done.
Call at the Shop on Broadway.

McKINNON BROS.,
—DEALERS IN—
ALL OF THE LEADING
Agricultural Implements
MAIN STREET. McKINNON BLOCK.
☞ Before Purchasing, Give Us a Call. ☜

THE NEW
NORTHWEST
Home seekers will find the last of the public domain of agricultural and grazing value along the Great Northern Ry. in North Dakota and Montana | FARM LANDS
NEW TOWNS | 100 or more, along the Great Forthern Railway Line. Business chances. Write F. I. WHITNEY, St. Paul, Minn., for Books, Maps, &c. Write now.
Settlers on free Government lands along the Great Northern Ry. Line in North Dakota and Montana get low rates and fine markets for products. | LOW RATES
Montana produces the finest Horses and Cattle. Free ranges yet in Mouse, Milk and Sun River Valleys and Sweet Grass Hills. | Horses, Cattle.
Health, Wealth. | In the Northwest. Free Lands. New Towns, New Railways, New Mines, Low Rates. Largest area of good vacant land.
Sweetest Grass Hills, Milk and Sun River Valleys, Montana, reached only by the Great Northern Railway Line. The stock raisers' paradise. | Sheep, Hogs.
Herds, Mines | These have made Montana the richest State per capita in the Union. Plenty of room for more miners and stock raisers. Now is the time.

First National Bank
OF CROOKSTON
PAID IN CAPITAL. - $100,000
SURPLUS. - - - $14,200
Interest on time deposits. Faithful attention to Collections and prompt remittance.
GEO. Q. ERSKINE, President.
WM. ANGLIM, Vice President.
CHAS. E. SAWYER, Cashier.
DIRECTORS:
Wm. Anglim, K. D. Chase, R. D. Childs
Geo. Q. Erskine, J. B. McKinnon, A. A. Miller
E. M. Walsh, Chas. E. Sawyer, W. H. Crosby

JOHN CROMB,
Attorney-at-Law.
SECOND STREET. CROOKSTON

'Round Home.

Wheat—1 Hard 65.
1 Northern 63.

For the commissioner's proceedings, see 2nd page.

J. E. O'Brien was in St. Paul this week on a political mission.

J. V. E. Wyatt was appointed deputy county coroner at the last meeting of the county board.

More new furniture still arriving at I. U. Jenning's furniture store, and it is being sold at same low prices.

A. H. Yancy, traveling passenger agent of the Burlington, passed through the city Wednesday morning.

Don't forget the Republican county convention at the court house, Crookston, September 21st., at 1 p. m.

For cedar shingles, cedar siding and Washington fir flooring call on Stewart Lumber. Co. Yard near the N. P. depot.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Hayes, who have been visiting with Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Roberts, left for their home in Chicago last Thursday.

E. J. Brennan, the contractor who is laying the iron on the Thief River Falls branch, was in the city Wednesday looking for men.

At the Baptist church there will be the usual services next Sunday, the pastor will again occupy the pulpit. Services 11 a. m. 7:30 p. m.

W. D. Wilson of the Fair, returned Sunday from a business trip to Chicago where he purchased a large invoice of goods for the Fair.

The Red River Valley elevator is being moved north to a point near the Minneapolis and Northern, where the elevators will all be together.

Cedar shingles, cedar siding, Washington fir flooring, cedar dimension, shingles with fancy cutting, can be had at Stewart Bros'. Lumber Co.

Louis Ellington says that the iron is laid about a mile out of St. Hilaire but owing to a lack of men it will be about the 20th of this month before the road is finished to Thief River Falls.

The date for the appearance of Margaret Mather in Crookston has been changed to Friday evening, the 16th inst., when she will play the "Egyptian" instead of "The Lady of Lyons."

Mrs. A. M. Stewart returned last week from a visit to her brother at Verndale. Mr. and Mrs. Stewart have gone to housekeeping in A. C. Wilkinson's residence on Houston Avenue.

Judge Montague has placed his services at the command of the republican central committee for ten days, commencing October 1st. He will also deliver a series of lectures in North Dakota, commencing at Grafton on the 19th inst.

Republicans, paste this in your hats: Republican county convention on September 21st., republican legislative convention on September 22nd and Mark H. Dunnell's lecture on September 28th.

J. V. E. Wyatt has settled his business affairs, and will carry on his undertaking establishment at his old stand on Broadway, opposite the Fournet block. Everybody is glad to see John get straightened out again.

Herb Marshall, son of L. D. Marshall, who has been connected with the Scandia-American bank in this city has accepted a position with the Red River Valley Elevator Company and will be stationed at Minneapolis. Herb's friends here all wish him success in the Flour City.

Chief Sullivan of Grand Forks was in the city on Tuesday looking for two prisoners who escaped from the Grand Forks county jail Monday. One of them is the man whom Chief Gonyea arrested for burglarizing Ephraim Bros. store at Grand Forks.

At the Congregational church Rev. R. H. Battey will speak next Sunday. Subject of morning sermon "Jacob's Unanswered Question." In the evening his subject will be "Religion and the Young Men," the second lecture of the course now in progress at this church.

Rev. G. F. G. Hoyt, of the Episcopal church of this city, left last Monday for Brooklyn, N. Y., where he will be married on the 20th inst. Previous to his departure he was presented by his parishioners with a check of $200, and an elegant gold watch by the Oddfellows of the city.

While driving along Broadway near Munn Bros., shop last Tuesday, August Young was thrown out of a road cart, and becoming tangled in the wheels he was severely injured before the horse could be stopped. When the horse became free it ran as far as the N. P. depot before it was stopped.

All kinds of household furniture found at I. U. Jennings' furniture store. Particular attention is called to the large variety of patent swing rockers and the combined "new flour chest, bread board and cupboard".

Mrs. Bert Bivins of Argyle is visiting friends in the city.

Miss E. D. Elkins of Chicago, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Tom Morris.

Postmaster Dawley has completed his visitations of the postoffices in the county.

W. E. Kelsey was congratulating himself last Saturday on his wife's return from a week's visit to Fargo.

Miss Emma Veronneau returned Wednesday from Chicago where she purchased a large stock of millinery of the very latest styles.

Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Silver's two-months-old child died Wednesday night of cholera infantum.

W. J. Murphy, president of the Crookston Water Power & Light Company came up from Minneapolis Wednesday to see how the power house is getting along.

Commissioner Rhinehart passed through the city Wednesday on his way home from the pineries. He will look after threshing operations on his farm for a few days.

Walker's saw mill shut down on Tuesday last and the employees all went to Grand Forks to start up the mill there. About 15,000,000 feet of logs have been sawed this season.

Miss Jennie Patridge who represents the music house of Howard, Farwell & Company, of St. Paul, has again made her headquarters at the Commercial, and will canvass the surrounding country.

Mrs. I. U. Jennings has returned from the west where she has been since June 1st nursing her daughter Mrs. I. M. Underhill, who was afflicted with sciatica, but has so far recovered as to be able to return with her mother.

Mrs. A. J. Abell, of Augusta, Wis., who has been in the city for the past two weeks, visiting with her sister, Mrs. Newland, leaves for her home on Friday evening of this week. Her little granddaughter, Miss Maud Elroy, accompanied her.

John C. Wells, the bonanza farmer of Edna, says that he has been agreeably disappointed with the way his wheat is turning out. It is yielding between 18 and 20 bushels to the acre. Why, said Mr. Wells, if the grain in Wisconsin had been mudded in the way it was here last spring, there wouldn't have been any crop at all.

Those who like to have a good hearty laugh should have attended the "Skipped by the Light of the Moon" entertainment given in the opera house last week. It is one of the best farce comedies on the road. The jokes are new, the songs are original, and the comedians are "out of sight." There isn't a stale part in it.

Mr. T. B. Walker is politely asked by the county commissioners to go down in his jeans and produce $800 to repair the damage which his logs did to the bridge across the Red Lake river at Grand Forks, while said logs were being floated to his saw mill at that place and which the county has had repaired.

Mrs. Bangs is still selling her goods at 50 cents less than cost. Velvets at 30 cents per yard. Felt and beaver hats for ladies and children from 25 to 40 cents. She has also for sale yet a carpet, oil cloths, wardrobe, lamps, curtains, counters and 100 stamping patterns. She is disposing of her goods at a sacrifice, as she must leave for California soon.

On the Great Northern west-bound passenger train Wednesday morning were the following Great Northern officials: C. W. Case, general superintendent, N. D. Miller, chief engineer, C. H. Jenks, division superintendent. They were looking after improvements along the line, and held the train at this point long enough to make inquiries and give instructions regarding the work going on here.

J. V. E. Wyatt: I've got 32 entries already for the fall meeting of the during association, Oct. 10, 11 and 12, and I expect about 55 horses to take part in the races.

Agent Fegan: No I don't know anything about a daily train being put on the Fosston branch. Will the Great Northern build the bridge here this fall? I expect they will. I havn't heard anything to the contrary.

Rev. Battey: I expect to go to Minneapolis on the 19th inst, to attend the state association of the Congregational ministers and churches, which opens on the 20th and continues four days. They have me down for a lecture, so I guess I'll have to go.

Chairman Kirsch: We will have the finest jail in the state outside of Minneapolis or St. Paul. It will have all the advantages and none of the defects of other jails. We visited many of the best jails in the country and got ideas which will enable us to put up a first-class building at a nominal cost. We've got the money in the treasury to pay for it too.

McIntosh Items

The streets on Johnson's and Steven's addition have also been nicely graded, and crossings put in.

J. P. Johnson is rebuilding his old store, that was wrecked during last summer's cyclone. It will be occupied as a clothing store.

Charley Thomas has disposed of his barber shop to Howard Mills, a gentleman who recently came to the city.

Miss Hilda Dahl started for the east last evening to purchase the fall stock of goods for Mrs. Jenning' millinery store and obtain the latest and most approved styles. Mrs. Jennings will be found hereafter at her old stand ready to serve her friends and patrons who have so liberally dealt with her for the past thirteen years.

Great Northern Improvements.

For about three weeks the Great Northern Railway has had a force of men and teams at work grading on the east side of their tracks between the Red River Valley elevator and the bridge, in this city, and when the grade is lowered to a level with their tracks, a side track will be put in and the freight depot moved south to a point opposite the JOURNAL office. The passenger depot will then be moved north to where the freight depot is at present. Owing to a lack of help, the company has been unable to push their improvements at this point as they had calculated on doing. They have all the men they can get—about 30—at work cutting down the Carman hill, and as fast as they can get more men they will put them to work cutting down the hill on the north side, raising the tracks two feet between the hills and putting in the new bridge. It is thought by some, and earnestly hoped by all, that the company will erect a new depot instead of moving the old one, which is in a dilapidated condition and cannot last many years more. The amount of business which the Great Northern does at this point warrants the building of a commodious and respectable depot in keeping with the size of the city.

Weather-crop Bulletin.

The rainfall for the past week has been below the normal except in a few southern counties and beneficial to corn and flax, but delayed threshing somewhat and was slightly injurious to grain in the shock. Stacking about half done in the northern and central counties and three-fourths in the southern. Some southern counties report all grain in stack. Flax harvest has commenced in Martin county and the crop will be good. The temperature has been beneficial to buckwheat, corn and potatoes.

Corn is nearly ripe in the east, central and southeastern counties. Cutting has commenced in Sherburne. The general report is that up to Sunday no damage was done by the frosts of Aug. 30 and 31, except to buckwheat in Hower county. From ten days to two weeks is needed to put the crop out of danger. Some corn in Rice county is now out of danger. Goodhue county reports potatoes will be a poor crop. Rain is needed for fall plowing and pasturage in the southeast.

J. H. HARMON,
Central Station, Observer.
Minneapolis, Minn.

A MUSICAL TREAT.

To-night at McKinnon's Hall.

Grand concert by the Mendelsohn Quartette Concert Company, of Minneapolis, Minn.

QUARTETTE—Mr. Sam A. Rask, Mr. Sophus M. De Vold, tenors. Mr. S. M. Stenerson, Mr. O. H. Rask, bassos.

SOLOISTS—Mr. Sophus M. De Vold, piano and baritone; Mr. Sam'l A. Rask, tenor; Miss Inga Lovtang, piano.

READERS—Mr. O. H. Rask, Mr. S. M. Stenerson.

Miss Inga Lotvang, accompanist.

PROGRAM—PART I.

a. Serenade, Schubert.
b. Nellie was a lady. (College Song)
THE MENDELSOHN QUARTETTE.

Baritone Solo—The two Grenadiers—Schuman.
MR. SOPHUS M. DE VOLD.

Piano Solo—Selected { - - Lizt
- Beethoven.
MISS INGA LOVTANG.

Reading—"The Raggady Man."
MR. O. HARALD RASK.

PART II.

Sweet and Low - - Barnby.
THE MENDELSOHN QUARTETTE.

Tenor Solo—Evening Rest—E. H. Gurney.
MR. SAM'L A. RASK.

Piano Solo—Selected { - - Chopin.
Rubenstein.
Schumann.
- Mozart
MR. SOPHUS M. DE VOLD.

Reading—Selected
MR. S. M. STENERSON.

Oh! hush thee my Baby—Sullivan.
THE MENDELSOHN QUARTETTE.

Tickets 25 cents.

Miscellaneous Items.

Grand Forks is figuring on securing a woolen mill.

Grand Forks is promised a street railway this fall.

The public schools of Stephen have been closed for the present on account of scarlet fever.

Chas. Bradley of Warren shipped two carloads of wheat from Warren last Friday which graded No. 1 Northern. The hazel nut crop around Warren is said to be out of sight.

A traveling man made the acquaintance of two pleasant gentlemen at East Grand Forks last week and accepted their kind hospitality for the night. In the night the pleasant gentlemen took the traveling man's watch and skipped.

THE death list on the cholera fleet at New York is increasing. Altogether forty-two have died at sea and ten after arrival at port.

THE 7th day Adventists will hold a camp meeting at Detroit lake, commencing Sept. 20 and lasting five days.

Republican Rally.

There will be a grand Republican rally at McKinnon's hall, Wednesday evening September 21st. Prof. H. W. Tipton and Hon. Halvor Steenerson will deliver addresses on the issues of the day. Don't forget the speech by M. H. Dunnell at the opera house on the 28th.

Good Luck, Old Man.

Warren Sheaf: Bro. Cooke of the Crookston JOURNAL, is an old soldier, and his patriotism would not allow him to stay at home during the grand re-union in Washington, D. C., hence he left home last week on his way thither. Good luck old man. Wish we could go too; but we are too poor, and must, per force, stay at home.

Threshing Machine Accident.

A young man named Wm. Guthrie, lately from Iowa, while working about a threshing machine on the farm of J. G. Harris, in the town of McCrea, near Warren, last week, got his left hand and arm caught between the drive belt and the cylinder pulley, crushing the bones and mangling the flesh so badly that amputation became necessary.

The Way They Do it in McIntosh.

New arrivals in McIntosh are properly welcomed, as the following from the News will show:

The band turned out Saturday evening to serenade the new arrivals at the homes of G. R. Glover and Owen Nelson, after which they all adjourned to the upper story of Gunder. Bjorgo's building where the two happy "papas" had prepared refreshments in honor of the occasion.

What Did They Get for Their Money.

The poor settlers on the indemnity land, near Red River, in this county, collected among themselves $300 which was given to Donnelly for prosecuting their case—this same good unselfish Donnelly who never takes any pay for helping the "dear people." And what good did they get in return for their money? Will some one answer?—Warren Sheaf.

"The Egyptian."

The engagement of Margaret Mather and her excellent company at the Grand for Friday Sept. 16 is the most important attraction ever to appear in this city. She produces her greatest success, The Egyptian, a play dramatized for her from Victor Hugo's story of the Hunchback of Notre Dame. The production is on the grandest scale, and Miss Mather as the fair Egyptian is the greatest success of the season. Those who relish the sight of pretty dresses charmingly worn by a handsome woman-(and who does not)- have a treat in store in the coming of Miss Mather for she will wear here the same dresses that the critics of other cities have raved about and which came fresh this year from the great Parisian dressmaker, Felix, of Paris.

Foremost among this company must be mentioned Laurence Cauley the young Englishman who won his spurs so worthily with Mrs. Langtry and who is now on his first tour of America and gaining golden endorsements of the opinions our English cousins gave him. Then, too, there is Joseph E. Whiting whose creation of the role of "Jim, the penman" in the play of the same name added luster to his fame some years ogo and made him prominent. Again comes Harry Langdon, the best known and most able old man character on the stage today. A man whose quarter of a century on the stage has been filled with personal triumphs. Among the others may be mentioned Emma Cushman Tuttle who has the reputation of never having done anything badly, Mrs Sol Smith who needs no introduction to American play goers. Out of a list of a score more, for the organization numbers 25 people, are taken the names of Erskine Lewis, Royden Erlynne, Bartly Cushing, Robert D" Leon, Thomas Reynolds, George A. Dalton and R. F. Runyon. The engagement is by all odds the event of the year in dramatic circles and from the prodigously large advance sale it is sure that the house will be crowded as it should be. Prices for this engagement will be 25, 50, 75 1.00 and 1.25. Seats are now on sale at Tom Morris' and those desiring good seats should make haste and secure them in advance.

"Still They Come."

THE importers and jobbers are sending along the goods as if there was no end to room and no end to goods at the other end. Let them come, we will find place somewhere. We will not "stand and hold them," that's certain. You may hold a part if you want to.

BLANKETS. Maybe you would like "to have and to hold" a pair or two of Blankets. Eight qualities in gray, from $1 to $18 per pair, would pay you to hold and to use these cool nights, a good investment upon the "have your cake and eat it plain." There are a lot of White Blankets. A very few dollars would give you a lien for life on some fine soft Blankets.

LADIES' UNDERWEAR.

Ladies' natural ribbed, silk plated, combination suits are now in stock (just the kind for this weather.) They are the best shape and finish we know of, sizes 2 to 5, price $2.25. A new line of fine ribbed, heavy weight cotton shirts and pants from 60c to 75c.

DRESS GOODS. This stock is now very strong New styles come along almost daily—too fast to keep our trade posted. They know we always have the goods to show when asked for.

SMYRNA RUGS.

New lot just opened, new colorings.

SIZES.		SIZES.
18x34	$1 75	21x45	$2 50
36x54	3 74	30x60	4 50
36x72	6 50	40x84	10 50

All goods are marked in plain figures.
It costs nothing to see them.

Fontaine & Anglim.

IT MEANS BUSINESS.

I have never been so busy as at present, which speaks well for the manner in which my business is conducted. There is no friction. Mistakes do not pay, so I do not provide for them. I am giving satisfaction to all my customers. That means I am giving Prompt Service, Low Prices and Good Work. I have the handsomest and best selected stock, and if business is what I expect it to be this fall,

GOODS MUST MOVE.

C. H. SAAKE, Practical Watchmaker and Jeweler-

M. LeGUEE.
Veterinary Surgeon

Residence and office on Jerome's Addition.
CROOKSTON. - - - MINN.

Work Horses - - - and Mares.

FOR GOOD, SOLID WORK HORSES and MARES, go to

M. R. BROWN,

The old reliable dealer, who has sold horses in this county since 1878, and who is always on hand to make his guaranty good. Every man who ever sold horses here is ready (when he sells) to guaranty, but later, if you happen to want him to make his guaranty good you can't most always sometimes find him ready to make his recommend good. He handles only good young horses and has sold more than any dealer in the county. He is now prepared to supply the demand for good teams—he handles no other—and guaranty them just as recommended. Before you buy you will do well to call at

Brown's New Stables,

Main Street, one door north of the old M. E. church building.

STATE OF MINNESOTA. COUNTY OF POLK ss. In Probate Court, Special Term Sept. 13th, 1892. In the matter of the estate of Erdras Roux, deceased: On reading and filing the petition of Onezime Noel, administrator of the estate of Esdras Roux, deceased, representing among other things, that he has fully administered said estate and praying that a time and place be fixed for examining, settling and allowing the final account of his administration, and for the assignment of the residue of said estate to the parties entitled thereto by law.

It is ordered, That said account be examined, and petition heard by this court, on Monday the 10th day of October. A. D. 1892, at 10 o'clock A. M. at the Probate office in the city of Crookston in said county.

And it is further ordered, That notice thereof be given to all persons interested, by publishing a copy of this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Polk County Journal a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston in said county.

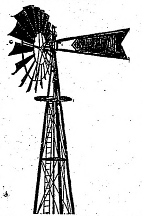
Dated at Crookston the 13th day of September A. D. 1892. By the Court,
C. M. BENSON, Judge of Probate.

Ripans Tabules cure dyspepsia.

Ripans Tabules cure scrofula.

25c. for a box of Beecham's Pills worth a guinea.

THE IMPERIAL



All Steel Windmill,

Can be set up on a Steel or Wood Tower.

We carry a
COMPLETE STOCK OF
WOOD AND IRON PUMPS,
including DOUBLE-ACTING,
ANTI-FREEZING
FORCE PUMPS.
IRON PIPE AND IRON PIPE FITTINGS.

Special attention given to the
2-in Plugged and Rimmed Well Casing.

PRICES AS LOW AS THE LOWEST.
Estimates given on all Plumbing Contracts in or out of the city.

CROOKSTON PLUMBING CO.,

Broadway, near Robert St., Crookston, Minn.

E. D. SCHREADER,
Veterinary Surgeon.

Horse Dentistry a Specialty.

All Calls receive Prompt Attention. Satisfaction guaranteed in all cases. Office: 319 North Main Street, in connection with Livery house.
CROOKSTON, MINN.

If You Want to Hear
The Best Speech
In This Campaign

Polk County Journal.

Hear
MARK H. DUNNELL
At Opera House
Next Wednesday
Evening.

MINNESOTA
HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

VOL. XVI. CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY, SEPT. 22, 1892. NO. 23

WHAT $100 WILL DO!

WHY NOT KEEP HOUSE?

PARLOR.

Brussels Carpet, full spring Lounge	$ 6.50
Patent Swing Rocker	7.75
Rattan Rocker	3.85
20 yds Best all wool Carpet	13.50
Oak Center Table with Shelf	3.00
Pair window blinds	90
	$35.50

BED ROOM.

Large, showy, antique Ash Suit	$16.75
Spring Mattress	5.50
Pair 6-lb. Feather Pillows	2.50
Pair extra cotton-filled Quilts	3.75
15 yds Carpet	6.50
	$35.00

DINING ROOM.

Six-foot oval or square Table		$ 4.75
Six high back Dining Chairs		6.50
One Oak Sideboard, large mirror		18.75
		$30.00
Kitchen Table	$1.75
Four Kitchen Chairs	1.65	—$3.40

Here are the Figures:

Parlor Furniture	$ 35.50
Bed Room Furniture	35.00
Dining Room Furniture	30.00
Kitchen Furniture	3.40
	$103.90
Cash Discount	3.90
Total,	$100.00

Crookston Furniture Co.

LIBERAL HOUSE FURNISHERS.

Notice.

STATE OF MINNESOTA,
COUNTY OF POLK, } ss.
CITY OF CROOKSTON.

Notice is hereby given to all persons interested in Barrette's addition to the city of Crookston to be present at a regular meeting of the city council to be held on Tuesday evening, October 11th, 1892, and state cause if any there be why said addition should not be vacated by the city of Crookston.

E. C. CARRUTH,
City Clerk.
]19-25]

Wanted.

A good, steady boy to learn the printing business. Apply at the JOURNAL office.

N. P. R. R. Makes Reduced Rates.

To persons desiring to attend the Minneapolis Exposition the Northern Pacific R. R. will sell excursion tickets to Minneapolis and return at reduced rates as follows: On Aug. 30 and Sept. 2, 13, 16, 20 and 23 at one and one-third fair plus 25 dents for admission. On Sept. 5, 6, 7, 8, 9 and 10 at one fare to St. Paul plus 25 cents for admission coupon. For the Minnesota State Fair the Northern Pacific R. R. has made round to St. Paul or Minneapolis of one fare to St. Paul plus admission to fair grounds. These tickets will be on sale Sept. 5th to Sept. 10th. Good returning not later than Sept. 12th. For further information apply to

C. A. SHARKEY, Agt.,
Crookston, Minn.

Bids for Grading.

STATE OF MINNESOTA,
County of Polk, } ss.
City of Crookston.

Bids will be received by the City Council of the city of Crookston for grading on Second street between Main and Ash streets as per plans and specifications now on file in the City Engineer's office.

Bids to be opened Sept. 27th, 1892.

The council reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

Dated Crookston, Minn., Sept. 14th, 1892.

E. C. CARRUTH,
City Clerk.

Burlington Bulletin of Reduced Rates.

The Burlington Route will make reduced rates from St. Paul and Minneapolis, and its other stations in Minnesota open to the public for the occasions named below:

American Horticultural Society, Chicago, September 28th to 30th. Tickets on sale September, 25th, 26th and 27th.

National Real Estate Association, Buffalo, N. Y., October 4th to 7th. Tickets on sale October 1st, 2nd and 3rd.

Dedication of World's Fair buildings, Chicago, October 20th to 22nd. Tickets on sale October 19 to 22nd inclusive, good to return until October 24th. Fare for the round trip $13.00. Apply to nearest local ticket agent.

W. J. C. KENYON.
General Passenger Agent.

Sunny Side of Politics.

In these days, when stump speakers are given to gloomy periods and to telling the people what a dreadful state the country is in, one would never imagine that there is a sunny side to politics. But there is, notwithstanding, a very sunny side, and much of the sunshine has been embodied in a book entitled "The Sunny Side of Politics," just published by the Price-McGill Company of St. Paul. In it are contained stories, witticisms, anecdotes and reminiscences, dating from old Whig times until the present day and dealing with all sorts and conditions of people. The Chicago Inter Ocean says that "It is full of good, side shaking laughs and a book to be enjoyed by all classes." If your local bookseller does not happen to have it, send stamps or postal note for 50 cents to the Price-McGill Company, St. Paul, Minnesota, Publishers.

Don't fool with indigestion. Take Beecham's Pills.

COUGHING LEADS TO CONSUMPTION. Kemp's Balsam stops the cough at once.

The Author of an Old Campaign Song.

There is satisfactory evidence that the words of "Tippecanoe and Tyler, Too," were written by A. C. Ross, of Zanesville, O. This was the original song. The words then comprised only a comparatively few verses. The song was such a success that additions were made to them in all direction. Here is an instance in point. The Whigs unexpectedly carried the state of Maine, electing Edward Kent by a very small margin for governor. This verse immediately appeared:

Have you heard from Maine, [illegible], Maine,
good news and true?
It went, hell bent, for Governor Kent, and Tippecanoe and Tyler too.
And with them we'll beat little Van, Van,
Van.
Oh, Van is a "used up man," etc.

As regards the music, it was adapted from a familiar air of the times, which had the not very attractive name of "Little Pig's Tail." Henry Russell was an Englishman, and at that period was the most popular concert singer in this country. He was a composer, but he did not compose this tune, and probably would not have been very proud if he had been credited with its authorship. It is altogether likely that the Whigs engaged him to sing it in Boston, as he told our correspondent that he did sing it as he stood in a window near the corner of Washington and Milk streets. Mr. Russell must be a gentleman well advanced in years by this time. It is a great many years since he ceased to sing in public in this country. It may be interesting to know that he is the father of W. Clark Russell, the popular writer of nautical novels.—Boston Herald.

Railroad Speed and Obstructions.

Two years ago a cow was seen in the middle of the Monon tracks in front of a train. The engineer tried to stop, and the result was the locomotive was derailed and the engineer killed. A few months ago the writer was riding on an engine on the Chicago division of the Pennsylvania, and a herd of cattle got on the track. The train was running almost forty miles an hour, but when the engineer saw them he "threw her wide open," and went into them at full seventy-five miles an hour.

No damage was done except to "muss up" the engine extensively. The engine man was asked why he had thrown on the extra speed. His reply was that had he been running slow it was eight chances to ten that he would have left the track.—Indianapolis News.

REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

The Republican County Convention Meets and Places a Ticket in the Field.

Harmony and Enthusiasm Prevailed and Everything Passed off Smoothly

A Strong Ticket Placed in the Field—Oratory in the Evening.

The republican county convention met at the court house in Crookston on Wednesday, Sept. 21st, to place in nomination candidates for the various county offices, and also to nominate candidates for commissioners for the 1st, 2d, 3d and 5th commissioner districts, and to name nine delegates the legislative convention which meets in the city to-day.

The convention was called to order by Chairman Stephens, who made a few pleasant introductory remarks and then read the call for the convention.

John Cromb was then selected as temporary chairman and Hugh Robertson, secretary.

The chair appointed the following committees:

Credentials: Jas. Greenhalgh, B. S. Bennett, K. Ophelm, J. J. Ide, Paul Hagan,.

Resolutions: H. Steenerson, Dr. Nelson, Wm. Boyd, John Ellington, S. S. Stadsvold.

Permanent organization: D. P. Strong, J. Carter, O. Bergdahl.

The committee on permanent organization reported in favor of making the temporary organization permanent, which was adopted.

The committee on resolutions reported the following resolutions which were adopted amidst loud applause.

Your committee on resolutions beg leave to report:

Resolved by the Republicans of Polk county in convention assembled:

1. That we heartily endorse the Republican national platform adopted at Minneapolis, the state platform adopted at St. Paul, and the congressional district platform adopted at Moorhead, and the respective nominations there made.

2. That we believe that fitness, efficiency and integrity alone should control in the selection of administrative offices of the county, in order that the rights of the people and taxpayers may be subserved and protected.

3. That we favor an independent, non-partisan judiciary, and recommend that the voters regardless of party affiliations support the independent candidate for Judge of the District Court.

4. That the efforts of Senator C. K. Davis in behalf of the state at large, and especially his eminent services in behalf of cheap water transportation to the seaboard, is deserving of the highest praise, and we heartily endorse his candidacy for re-election to the senate of the United Seates.

The committee on credentials reported the following delegates entitled to seats:

Garfield—Dr. A. Nelson, Andrew Opheim.

Rosebud—S. S. Stadsvold. B. S. Bennett, I. O. Brandt.

Hubbard—John J. Ellingson, 3 votes.

Brandsvold—O. H. Bergdahl, E. D. Barness, Knute Steenerson, with power to cast full vote of delegation.

Andover—L. L. Davis, 2 votes.

Roome—J. J. Ide, 2 votes.

Fisher—Henry Tabor, Ole Larson, Even Olsen, A. G. Rutledge.

Norden—Nick Nelson, C.H. Taryen, Alexander De Plaine, proxy.

King—Gunder Bjorge, 2 votes, C. T. Page.

City of East Grand Forks—T. J. McAdams, D. P. R. Strong, Paul Hogen, Ed Sullivan.

City of Crookston—First Ward—J. H. Whitesell, W. A. Hammond, W. A. Lanctot.

Second Ward—L. K. Aaker, John Carter, Jas. Greenhalgh.

Third Ward—Ole Hanson, Wm. Boyd.

Fourth Ward—Halvor Steenerson, John Cromb, Hugh Robertson, P. J. McGuire, Hugh Thompson.

Chester—J. Walseth.

Candidates for the county offices were then nominated as follows:

Auditor—W. A. Lanctot, Crookston.

Treasurer—Lewis Lohn, Fosston.

Register of Deeds—Nic. Nelson, Norden township.

Attorney—Ira C. Richardson, Thief River Falls.

Sheriff—Jas. M. Bain, Fisher.

Judge of Probate—R. J. Montague.

Superintendent of schools—V. D. Carruth.

Surveyor—George Ralph.

Coroner—Geo. Holt.

Delegates to the legislative convention were named as follows: Jas. Greenhalgh, Hugh Thompson, K. Ophelm, S. S. Stadsvold, J. J. Ide, D. P. R. Strong, L. Davis, John Ellington and P. J. McGuire.

The delegates from the districts where commissioners are to be elected this fall, reported the following candidates which were ratified by the convention:

First District—E. D. Barness.
Second District—Thos. Erwin.
Third District—E. D. Childs.
Fifth District—Thos. Nisbett.

After the nominations had all been made, the chairman introduced Hon. Henry Feig, of Kandiyohi county, the republican candidate for congressman from this district, who addressed the convention. Mr. Feig is an eloquent speaker, and took the convention by surprise, as few of the delegates had ever seen him, and were hardly prepared to find in their farmer candidate a man of so much ability as Mr. Feig displayed. Mr. Convers of the state central committee was called upon to address the convention which he did by making a few valuable suggestions about organization.

The convention then adjourned.

GRAND RALLY.

In the evening the largest political gathering which has assembled here this year met in McKinnon's hall to listen to addresses by Prof. M. H. Tipton, of Redwood Falls, Hon. Halvor Steenerson, and Hon. Henry Feig. As the JOURNAL goes to press Thursday morning it is impossible to give an account of their speeches. Suffice it to say that Prof. Tipton's was lengthy and full of statistics, that Mr. Steenerson spoke with all his old time vigor and enthusiasm—the kind of enthusiasm which stirs up the people—and Mr. Feig delighted his audience by his eloquent speech and magnetic manner.

Schoolhouse Flags.

In talking with Deputy Superintendent Dickson the other day, it was learned that only two schools in the county outside of Crookston have got flags, viz: No. 2 near East Grand Forks and No. 31 in East Grand Forks. On the 4th of July '91 E. A. Baker of East Grand Forks, an old veteran and patriot, presented to the teacher and pupils of No. 2, a handsome American flag, and on each school day that flag is raised in the morning and lowered in the evening and properly cared for. The state superintendent and county superintendent have made several suggestions to the teachers on this question, and judging from the number of inquiries which have come in from teachers in regard to the object etc. of hoisting the national emblem over the schoolhouses of our land, it is likely that every schoolhouse in the county will have a flag floating from its flagstaff next summer. As no funds are appropriated for the purchase of flags, each school must raise the necessary means to purchase its own flag. In some places each scholar constributes a few cents and the necessary amount is raised in that manner. In other places a school entertainment is given and a small admission fee charged.

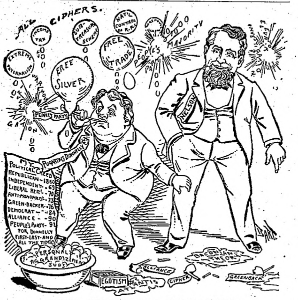
The object of these flags is twofold. The main object is to instil a spirit of patriotism and a love for the national emblem into the youth of our country. Once let a child become imbued with a patriotic spirit and a devotion to the flag of his country and it clings to him through life.

Another object is to aid the teacher in impessing American history upon the minds of the pupils. For instance on national holidays, or on the anniversary of some battle or event of national importance, the flag can be raised with more ceremony than usual and a talk given the children regarding the occurrence. In this way dates are fixed in the minds of the scholars in a manner never to be forgotten.

Every teacher should take steps to procure a flag, and it is better to have the children provide the funds, for then they feel an ownership and take more interest in it. The procuring and putting up of a flagstaff should also be done by the scholars as far as possible. It is only necessary for a teacher to suggest this matter to the scholars and they will all be ready to go into the scheme. They will become enthusiastic over their flag and learn to guard it as zealously as the oldest patriot.

For Sale.

A scholarship in the Crookston Business College. Apply at the JOURNAL office. [10 t.f.]



THE BUBBLE BLOWER.

IGNATIOUS DONNELLY—Of course there's nothing in these things but they may fool someone and help me to a soft snap yet.

KNUTE NELSON—Don't you believe it, "Ig;" people are not so easily fooled. They'll bust as all your bubbles have for fifty years past.

ANNUAL SCHOOL REPORT.

County Superintendent Carruth Issues his Annual Report of the last School Year.

It Shows the School Children and Schools to be Increasing Rapidly.

County Superintendent of schools, V. D. Carruth, has just completed his annual report for the last school year, and forwarded a copy of it to State Superintendent Kiehle. Prof. Carruth is not only popular with the people but understands thoroughly the workings of every department of his office. His efficient deputy, W. N. Dickson, who has performed the clerical work on this report, deserves much credit for its neatness and correctness. From the report we gather the following facts:

GRADED SCHOOLS—INDEPENDENT AND SPECIAL DISTRICTS.

Number scholars entitled to apportionment, 1,416.

Number of scholars not entitled to apportionment, 440.

Number scholars enrolled for the year, 1,856.

Average length of school months, 9 1-5.

Number teachers in each sex, 7 males and 26 females.

Average monthly wages, males $84; females $42.80.

Number individual districts, 4; special, 1.

Number new school houses built during the year, 2 frame; value $4,000.

Whole number of school-houses, 9 frame, 1 brick.

Value of all school-houses and sites, $97,000.

Seats and desks, $4,125.

School apparatus, $1,160.

Number volumes for school library bought during the year, 79.

Total volumes in all libraries, 620. Value $590.

RECEIPTS.

Cash on hand at beginning of year	$22,483 23
School funds, etc	14,104 34
One mill tax	1,009 79
Special tax	11,026 98
Bonds sold	6,979 25
From all other sources	492 12
Total	$56,095 71

DISBURSEMENTS.

Teachers wages	$15,767 97
Fuel and school supplies	4,605 80
Repairs	5,688 09
New school houses and sites	7,500 00
Paying bonds or interest	6,098 67
Library books	120 00
Apparatus	115 25
Other purposes	3,822 96
Cash on hand at end of year	12,378 97
Total	$56 095 71
Aggregate indebtedness of 5 districts	$43,300 00

COMMON SCHOOLS.

Number pupils entitled to apportionment, 4,207.

Number pupils not entitled to apportionment, 2,060.

Entire number scholars enrolled, 6,267.

Number teachers employed during year, 40 males, 167 females.

Average wages: Males, $38.75, females $33.40.

New school-houses built, 4 frame; value $2,400.

Number school districts 211.

Whole number of school-houses in county, 148 frame, 1 brick, 39 log. Total 188.

Value of all school-houses and sites, $98,928.

Value of desks, $12,884.

Value of school apparatus, $8,344.

Number of volumes for school library bought during the year, 271.

Total volumes in all libraries, 1,008. value $1045.64.

RECEIPTS.

Cash on hand	$28,703 76
School fund	19,262 62
One mill tax	4,828 97
Special tax	40,240 12
Bonds sold	7,745 20
All other sources	1,567 90
Total	$102,348 57

DISBURSEMENTS.

Teachers' wages	$40,094 87
Fuel and school supplies	4,559 84
Repairs	2,036 44
New schoolhouses and sites	3,808 87
Bonds or interest	15,165 05
Library books	223 70
Apparatus	96 15
Other purposes	341 86
Cash on hand at end of year	32,952 97
Total	$102,348 57

Aggregate indebtedness, $93,718 00.

Number districts included, 165.

There were 12 first grade, 67 second grade, 83 third, 79 permanent certificates in physiology and 83 limited granted during the year.

Three districts planted 548 trees on Arbor day.

There are 55 schoolhouses in natural groves, and 99 having no trees.

Found.

On the road at Carman, on the 15th inst., a small valise. Owner can have same by calling at section 22, town of Andover, or at the JOURNAL office. [22-23]

A Strange Criminal Action.

On Tuesday of last week, Mrs. Hans Halvorson, of East Grand Forks, swore out a warrant for the arrest of August Kelle, for the murder of her husband, which deed, she avers, was committed about twelve years ago. The accused man waived examination and was brought to this city and confined in the county jail. He has retained DeForest Bucklin, and L. E. Gossman as attorneys, and his hearing will be had before Justice Spendley, on Monday next. Kelle claims that he was not in Grand Forks at the time of the disappearance of Halvorsen, but, on the contrary, will prove that he was in another part of the conntry, working on a railroad. At the time Halvorson is claimed to have been murdered, the bridge at Grand Forks was being repaired, and was in an unsafe condition. Hugh Ryan was on the police force, and late at night saw Halvorsen, who was in an inebriated condition, start to cross the bridge. A few moments afterwads a cry was heard, and Ryan rushed to the bridge. Nothing could be seen of anyone, but on the edge of a plank on the bridge could be seen finger marks, evidence where someone had clutched to save from falling into the river. Nothing has been seen of Halvorson to this day, but the supposition was always prevalent that he was drowned, in the manner described above. The outcome of the case against Kelle will be watched for with great interest.

Safety, Speed, Comfort.

These are three indispensible conditions of traveling by rail:

Safety, because if we cannot travel without constant risk of life and limb, we prefer to stay at home or walk. The Burlington Route is pre-eminently a safely managed line.

Speed, because when we start to go somewhere we want to get there before our clothes get out of fashion, or we grow so old that our friends can't recognize us. The Burlington Route has speedy trains.

Comfort, because the days of stage coaching are over, and we do not expect to be either baked or frozen on the journey, we like good meals enroute and plenty of time to eat them, and on a night journey a chance to sleep. The Burlington Route trains have well-warmed and well-ventilated coaches. Pullman's latest "vestibuled" sleepers and "peerless" dinning cars, and free reclining chair cars. Purchase your tickets by this line, and for further information address W. J. C. Kenyon, General Passenger Agent, St. Paul, Minn.

Advertised Letters.

List of letters remaining unclaimed at the Crookston postoffice for the week ending Sept. 17th, 1892.

Adler, W. H.
Bloomquist, John 2
Davis, Michael J.
Johnson, May 2
Wjedersha, Oluf
Wolf, Joseph M.
Agnes, Mat
Cardinal, E.
Hanson, Helga
Nelson, John O.
Williams, George

Persons calling for the above letters please say advertised.

WM. B. DAWLEY, P. M.

Lane's Medicine Moves the Bowels Each Day. In order to be healthy this is necessary.

We are headquarters for mouldings, building paper, cedar siding and shingles, and Washington fir flooring which is next to maple.

STEWART LUMBER. CO.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Mankato is to have a cracker factory.

The Commercial bank of St. Paul has resumed business.

Alderman J. C. Haynes has been nominated for mayor by Minneapolis Democrats.

According to a census bulletin 34 per cent. of the aliens of Minnesota cannot speak English.

Burglars blew open the safe in the Northern Pacific station at Fergus Falls and secured $40 in cash.

New postoffices have been established at Eureka, Hennepin county, and Little Valley, Olmstead county.

James Lindsay, of Montrose, was suffocated while attempting to remove furniture from his burning dwelling.

Pearl Hilton, an inmate of a Duluth house of prostitution, suicided by taking a bottle of carbolic acid. Cause not known.

The Northwestern conference of the Norwegian and Danish Methodist Episcopal churches is holding a six days' session at Duluth.

Samuel Mayall, one of St. Paul's best known real estate brokers, died Saturday of paralysis. Deceased was 76 years of age and has resided in St. Paul over thirty years.

Albert Carlson, confined in the Central station at Minneapolis for attempted murder, committed suicide in his cell by hanging, making a large handkerchief answer the purpose of a rope.

E. V. Townsend, a highly respected citizen of Mapleton, died last week at the advanced age of 85 years. Deceased was born at Shorham, Vt., and in his boyhood days was an intimate friend and schoolmate of Vice President Morton.

The Redwood Falls Electric Light company has been formed with $12,000 capital. Citizens are taking stock rapidly. They are expected to raise from $5,000 to $8,000, and will control the plant until the city is able to purchase it. The plant will be running before winter.

The Mankato Knitting company is erecting a three-story factory. It will be 160x50 feet and will contain the latest machinery for the manufacture of knitting yarn from wool and cotton and for the knitting of socks and mittens. The factory will employ from 100 to 300 hands.

Agnes Mock, the wife of a well-to-do farmer living near St. Cloud, was gored to death by an infuriated cow. She was alone in a pasture milking the cows, and the infuriated animal rushed upon her from behind. A neighbor saw what had befallen her and came to her rescue. She died in two hours.

At the annual convention of the W. C. T. U. at Stillwater last week the following officers were elected: President, Mrs. H. A. Hobart, of Red Wing; corresponding secretary, Mrs. E. S. Wright, Red Wing; recording secretary, Mrs. E. L. Condit, St. Anthony Park; treasurer, Mrs. S. S. Sickles, of Minneapolis.

The state railroad and warehouse commission has decided to reduce the grain inspection fees this year from 20 to 15 cents per car load and from 40 to 30 cents per 1,000 bushels in cargo. The reduction went into effect on Thursday, the 15th. The rates for inspection in car load lots was reduced from 25 to 20 cents last year.

The electric street railway franchise recently granted by the Brainerd city council has been acquired by C. N. Parker of St. Paul, who proposes to immediately construct and put in operation the four miles of track required by the terms of the franchise. The road will be built in the best possible manner, and will be supplied with the latest and best motors manufactured, at a cost of at least $50,000. Mr. Parker expects to have it in operation by Nov. 1.

Endorsed by Pillsbury.

MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 20.—The action of the elevator companies in withholding reports of stocks of grain on hand was yesterday brought before C. A. Pillsbury and he took the same position as the elevator managers. He said that he had long been of the opinion that the government reports and the newspapers in their roseate accounts of the splendid crops had hurt the farmers millions of dollars yearly. All these reports are taken as evidences of abundant harvests, and the bears on the exchanges use them as clubs to beat down the price of grain, and thus give the farmers much less than is justly their due.

Breckenridge Will Orate.

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—The final programme for the dedication of the world's fair buildings has been settled, and it is now a definite fact that W. C. P. Breckenridge, of Kentucky, will deliver the oration. There has been some hostility to Mr. Breckenridge on account of his attitude on the world's fair appropriation, but this has been smoothed over. The next most important action of the committee was the substitution of Cardinal Gibbons for Archbishop Ireland to deliver the closing prayer. The archbishop is to appear on another programme for the same day, which is given as the reason for the change.

Another Record Breaker.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 20.—The wife of Charles Billings, a poor mountaineer living in Ashe county, North Carolina, has just given birth to six children, all boys. They weigh from four and a half to nine pounds each. Mrs. Billings has other children, but are all born singly.

Cattle King Dead.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 19.—William Dunphy, the pioneer cattle king of California, died at his home during the night, aged 49 years. He was one of the richest men in the state and made his money in cattle. He leaves a widow and three children.

Electricity and Explosives.

No stronger evidence of the safety of electric lighting installations can be afforded than the fact that a great many explosives factories are now being lit by electricity. It is obvious that in a building where the preparation of inflammable or highly explosive substances is carried on very special care should be taken in order to avoid even the smallest risk, and powder manufacturers now find that the electric light adds a considerable percentage over gas to the chances of safe operation. While electricity increases the safety of this branch of industry in one way it lessens it in another. There is a great deal of free electricity thrown off in various stages of manufacture, and the disposition of this, so far as it can be removed out of harm's way, is a serious question.

The charge of a powder cake press with ebonite plates may practically be considered as an electric pile, and a large amount of friction or electric influence from outside may cause a sufficient electric charge to give off sparks. Several undisputed cases of this kind have been known. Another source of danger from friction occurs during the glazing, rounding and sieving of gunpowder. The powder is subjected to a constant rubbing of its particles against each other and during the glazing especially there is danger of electricity accumulating.

Therefore precautions should be taken in order to convey away any charge that may accumulate in the glazing barrels. —New York Telegram.

The Meaning of Blunders.

Examining into the matter of blunders, particularly in tracing the course of the "mistakes, well meant," in our own lives, when we look back upon them with the cooler understanding of later years we are constrained to confess that the "mistake" must have been intended to be there, as well as the correct action, because the plan of our development has included both. Continuing to study clearly and deeply we must acknowledge that the mistakes and errors—nay, the very sins—when forsaken and forgiven, have helped the soul upward; that all have worked together to accomplish the result sought; that they must have been put there and meant so to be, and so that our "blunders" were not blunders at all, but although we sowed and watered often amiss there was always some increase given which achieved the good we aimed at, but failed to reach.

And deepest of all we see that the divine love, which saw the end from the beginning, bore with a tender compassion to look upon our struggles, our weeping, our disheartened sighs. Ah, infinitely greater it is, but like to the love we bear our own children, which is so deep and true that we endure to treat them harshly, and with seeming cruelty behold their tears, knowing surely that one day they will comprehend all the kindness.—Harper's Bazar.

The Localities of the Birds.

All our permanent residents among the birds, both large and small, are comparatively limited in their ranges. The crow is nearly as local as the woodchuck. He goes farther from home in quest of food, but his territory is well defined, both winter and summer. His place of roosting remains the same year after year. Once, while spending a few days at a mountain lake nearly surrounded by deep woods, my attention was attracted each night, just at sundown, by an osprey that always came from the same direction, dipped into the lake as he passed over it for a sip of its pure water and disappeared in the woods beyond.

The routine of his life was probably as marked as that of any of ours. He fished the waters of the Delaware all day, probably never going beyond a certain limit, and returned each night at sundown, as punctual as a day laborer, to his retreat in the forest. The sip of water, too, from the lake he never failed to take.

All the facts we possess in regard to the habits of the song birds in this respect point to the conclusion that the same individuals return to the same localities year after year to nest and to rear their young.—John Burroughs in Century.

A Live Snake in a Woman's Arm.

There lives, or did quite recently, near Columbia, S. C., a woman afflicted in a manner that makes one's flesh creep to think of it. For more than the third of a century she has carried a live snake under the skin of one of her arms. How the reptile first found lodgment in its queer situation is as much of a puzzle to the old lady as it is to the hundreds who have visited her for the purpose of viewing the long welt where the unwelcome creature lies encysted.

When the lady first noticed the bow shaped ridge on her arm it was of about the diameter of a pin, and less than two inches in length. During the many years that it has safely nestled in her flesh it has grown from a mere thread to a snake a foot long and as large as a lead pencil. The eyes of the creature are plainly visible through the skin, and the scales can be felt by rubbing the finger along the welt formed by its body.

Physicians pronounce it a most remarkable freak, and have endeavored, without success, to prevail upon the old lady to have it removed.—Philadelphia Press.

Personal Barometers.

A good many old housewives still remain their own weather prophets, and as a consequence one of the most popular of familiar weather sayings is, "When rheumatic people complain of more than ordinary pains in their joints, it will rain." Another homemade barometer is the tender corn or sensitive tooth.—Philadelphia Times.

A Frank Statement.

"Can I—dare I ask that little hand for my own?" pleaded the smitten young man.

"It is only—ah—second hand," replied the young widow deprecatingly.—Exchange.

THE EARTH MUST DIE.

An Illustration Showing That the Solar System Will Inevitably Expire.

Consider a flywheel or clockwork as driven by a weight and the heat generated by friction against the motion of wheels and pendulum and by impacts of teeth against the pallets of an escapement. Our knowledge of properties of matter and of modes of propagation of heat by radiation or conduction, and of the efficiency of heat as a motor, discovered by several thousand years of observation and several hundred years of experiment and dynamical theory, suffices to show that when the weight is run down and the potential energy (or capacity to do work) which it had in the beginning has been all spent in the heat, this heat is not available for raising the weight and giving the clockwork a renewed lease of motivity.

The solar system, according to the best modern scientific belief, is dynamically analogous to the clockwork in all the essentials of our consideration. Not going back in thought to a beginning of which science knows nothing, let us compare the solar system as it was 3,000 years ago with the solar system as it is now. Let our analogue be a clockwork which three hours ago was known to be going with its weight partially run down, and which is still going with its weight not yet wholly run down.

During these 3,000 years the sun has been giving out radiant heat (light being included in the designation "radiant heat") in all directions, propagated at the rate of about nine and a half million million kilometers per year, and therefore twenty-eight and a half thousand million million kilometers in 3,000 years. We do not know whether the light which left the sun 3,000 years ago is still traveling outward with almost undiminished energy or whether nearly all is already dissipated in heat, warming the luminiferous ether or ponderable bodies which have obstructed its course. We may, I think, feel sure that it is partly still traveling outward as radiant heat, and partly spent (or dissipated) in warming ponderable matter (or ponderable matter and the luminiferous ether).

The running down of the weight in the clockwork has its perfect analogue, as Helmholtz was, I believe, in reality the very first to point out in the shrinkage of the sun from century to century under the influence of the mutual gravitational attractions between its parts. The heat producing efficiency of the fire which there would be if the sun were a globe of gunpowder or guncotton burning from its outward surface inward—that is to say, the work done by the potential energy of the chemical affinity between uncombined oxygen and carbon and hydrocarbons, attractive forces as truly forces and subject to dynamic law as is the force of gravity itself, is absolutely infinitesimal in comparison with the work done by the gravitational attraction on the shrinking mass adduced by Helmholtz as the real source of the sun's heat.

The whole story of energy now in the sun, whether of actual heat corresponding to the sun's high temperature or of potential energy (as of the not run down weight of the clockwork)—potential energy of gravitation depending on the extent of future shrinkage which the sun is destined to experience—is essentially finite, and there is much less of it now than there was 300,000 years ago. Similar considerations of action on a vastly smaller scale are of course applicable to terrestial plutonic energy, and thoroughly dispose of the terrestial "perpetual motion" by which Lyell and other followers of Hutton, on as sound principles as those of the humblest mechanical perpetual motionist, tried to find that the earth can go on forever as it is, illuminated by the sun from infinity of time past to infinity of time future, always a habitation for race after race of plants and animals, built on the ruins of the habitations of preceding races of plants and animals.

The doctrine of the "dissipation energy" forces upon us the conclusion that within a finite period of time past the earth must have been, and within a finite period of time to come must again be, unfit for the habitation of man as at present constituted unless operations have been and are to be performed which are impossible under the laws governing the known operations going on at present in the material world.—Fortnightly Review.

Dogs That Bathe Regularly.

It is only the petted and pampered canines who have such a dread of the surf. The democratic curs of the town and the sensible old house dogs who have lived here long enough to feel thoroughly at home and who feel equal to the task of looking out for themselves under any and all circumstances are of an entirely different frame of mind, so far as that is concerned. Plenty of them go in for their daily swim as regularly and as unconcernedly as the most enthusiastic and inveterate bathers the town contains, and plenty more wait only for the barest invitation to go plunging in after a stick or ball, to bring it out on the strand, triumphant at the victory over the watery element.—Philadelphia Times.

What the Death Mask Shows.

The value of a plaster cast as a portrait of the dead or living face cannot for a moment be questioned. It must of necessity be absolutely true to nature. It cannot flatter; it cannot caricature. It shows the subject as he was or is, not only as others saw him in the actual flesh, but as he saw himself. And in the case of the death mask particularly, it shows the subject often as he permitted no one but himself to see himself. He does not pose; he does not "try to look pleasant." In his mask he is seen as it were, with his mask off.—Laurence Hutton in Harper's.

Flowers That Bloom in Winter.

Cubeb—It seems very natural.

Scarcely—What does?

Cubeb—To see a blooming idiot and a society bud together.—Kate Field's Washington.

Price 1 "Worth a Guinea a Box." 25d.

BEECHAMS PILLS

Dislodge Bile,
Stir up the Liver,
Cure Sick-Headache,
Female Ailments,
Remove Disease and Promote Good Health.

Covered with a Tasteless & Soluble Coating.

Famous the world over.

Ask for Beecham's and take no others. Of all druggists. Price 25 cents a box. New York Depot, 365 Canal St.

Town Clerks.

The following is a list of the town clerks for the several towns in Polk county:

Andover,	E M Bivins	Crookston
Angus,	A B Carleton	Angus
Black River,	P A Eckstrom	Wylie
Bray,	Albert Wickstrom	Wylie
Badger	P N Savalrud	Sletten
Brandsvold.	Ole Nelson	Fosston
Belgium,	Henry Blever	Euclid
Brislet,	A P Frank	Warren
Bygland,	Thos. Benson	Fisher
Crookston,	E O Flanders	Crookston
Crookston, city,	E C Caruth	Crookston
Columbia,	R H Carr	Columbia
Chester,	O J Mattson	Lindsay
Emardville,	Peter Anderson	Emard
Euclid,	F Tiedt, Jr.,	Euclid
Eden,	Neri A Skeie	Olga
Fairfax,	Wm Himmelsback	Crookston
Farley,	Mark Congnon	Warren
Fanny,	Walter Latta	Buffington
Fisher,	Halyor Gunderson	Fisher
Fisher, vil.,	John Gleason	Fisher
Gd Forks,	John McCoy	E G Forks
Gd Forks, city,	John McCoy	E G Forks
Garfield,	Iver J Ingebretson	Fertile
Garden,	John Hanson	Ringdal
Gentilly,	H F Gondron,	Gentilly
Gervais,	John Deforge	R L Falls
Grand Park,	E E Abbott	Mentor
Goderey,	D T Mitchell,	Maple Bay
Hammond,	Ernest Hanna	Crookston
Higdem,	Ole Hendrickson	E G Forks
Hill River,	Fred S Syeverson	Lindsay
Huntsville,	O Osmundson	Mallory
Hubbard,	Frank Hanson,	Neilsville
Keystone,	D E Geddes	E G Forks
Kerlsonville,	Fred Benoit	Gentilly
King,	K C Norsving	McIntosh
Knute,	O H Dale	Erskine
Lake Pleasant,	Jos Perrault	R L Falls
Lambert,	Samuel Gebcan,	Lamber
Liberty,	Nelson Clementson	Fertile
Lessor,	H Helgeson	Ovetia
Lowell,	Ole Christianson,	Crookston
Louisville,	Louis Huot	Huot
Nesbit,	Robert Nesbit	Mallory
Norden,	O J Tweet	Tweet
North,	S T Johnson	T R Falls
Numedal,	Olaf Larson	Warren
Onsted,	W A Marin	Melvin
Parnell,	Thos Filban	Crookston
Poplar River,	J B Hebert	Brooks
Polk Centre,	Wm Wylie,	Wylie
Queen,	Hans L Houkom	Fosston
R L F, village,	August Herard,	R L Falls
Red Lake Falls,	Ildaig Baril	R L Falls
Reis,	D C Hallock	Edna
River Falls,	K C Gigstad	St. Hilaire
Rocksbury,	P Englesiad	St. Hilaire
Roome,	P Boukon	Neby
Rosebud,	M E Randkler	Fosston
Russia,	Orens Simmons	Crookston
Sanders,	Nils K Anderson	St. Hilair
Sandsville.	Henry Nelson	E G Forkse
St. Hilaire,	L J Johnson	St. Hilaire
Sletten,	Ingebret Larson	Winger
Sullivan,	P A Hotvedt	E G Forks
Tabor,	F J Cernousek	Tabor
Terrebonne,	Edonor Perruse	Terrebonne
Tilden,	S J Furan	Dugdale
Tynsid,	A O Stortroen	Neby
Vineland,	John Thompson	Neby
Winger,	Albert Johnson	Winger
Woodside,	Joseph Tagley	Woodside
Wyandotte,	O J Johnson	St. Hilaire
Rhinehart,	Oscar Winck	E G Forks
Thief River Falls	C J Knox	T R Falls

G. G. HENAULT
Practical Dentist,
SECOND STREET,
CROOKSTON, - - - MINN
OFFICE IN DOBSON'S BLOCK,

☞ All work in my line skilfully and promptly performed. Give me a call.

G. G. HENAULT.

KOPS BRO'S
105 Third Street,
GRAND FORKS, N. DAKOTA
PIANOS, ORGANS

WEBER, HAINES BROS., KURTZMANN, MATHUSHEK, McCAMMON PIANOS, Estey and Chicago Cottage Organs. New Upright Pianos from $250 to $1,000, on terms of $10 to $25 per month. New Organs from $60 to $250 on terms of $5 to $10 per month.

Satisfaction guanteed. Write for catalogue and prices. KOPS BROS.
Grand Forks, N. D.

Mortgage Sale.

(First publication Thursday, Aug. 25, 1892.)
(Last publication Thursday, Oct. 6, 1892.)

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a mortgage containing power of sale, dated December 28th, 1888, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Polk County, Minnesota, December 31st, 1888 in book 42 of mortgages, page 17, whereby John Boden, unmarried, mortgagor, mortgaged to The Middlesex Banking Company, mortgagee, the east half of the southwest quarter and the west half of the southeast quarter of Section thirty-one, (31) in Township one hundred and forty-eight, (148) of Range forty-one, (41) in said Polk County, by which default the power of sale has been made operative, and no action or proceeding at law has been instituted to recover the debt remaining secured thereby, or any part thereof, and there is claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of $365.65, to which amount should be added the taxes on said property paid by said mortgagee, with interest as provided in said mortgage, to-wit $42.12, making the total amount claimed to be due at the date hereof on said mortgage $407.77.

Now notice is hereby given that by virtue of said power said mortgage will be foreclosed and said premises sold at public auction, by the Sheriff of said county or his deputy, on October 8th, 1892, at ten o'clock a. m. at the front door of the Court House, in Crookston, in said county to pay said debt, interest, attorney's fees and disbursements allowed by law.

Dated August 15th, 1892.

THE MIDDLESEX BANKING COMPANY, (Seal.)
By Robt. N. Jackson, President. Mortgagee.
H. C. GILBERT & Co., Attorneys,
(19-25) St. Paul, Minn.

Ripans Tabules cure constipation.

Ripans Tabules cure the blues.

Prices Greatly Reduced
—ON ALL—
Summer Goods,
Summer Clothing,
Light Weight Suits,
Light Weight Underwear,
AND Light Weight Shirts.

Everything in our Store at Greatly Reduced Prices.

STRAW HATS AT COST.

BOSTON ONE PRICE CLOTHING HOUSE,
MOSSEFIN & LINDELL, Props.

Great Reduction Sale!
Of White Goods, Embroideries, Challies,
—AND—
All Summer Goods!
—FOR THE—
NEXT TWO WEEKS.

Also bargains in Boots and Shoes and Groceries of all kinds.

If you have Wool, Shake Root, Eggs or Butter we will allow you the highest market price in trade.

[OPERA HOUSE BLOCK,
Crookston, Minn.] A. STURE.

You Can Buy Reliable
AGRICULTURAL MACHINERY
—OF—
SYLVESTER & FINSETH,
—CHEAPER AND BETTER—

Than anywhere. We handle Buckeye and Osborne Binders with all extras for same, and Twine. Buckeye and Imperial Mowers with extras. Buckeye and Monitor Rakes, Eli, Oliver and Bradley Gang Plows; Stubble and Breaking Plows, the Standard Rotary Shuttle Sewing Machine, Nichols & Shepard New Vibrator Threshing Machine. Also the Jackson, Mitchell and Favorite Wagons, the Enterprise Buggies, Spring Wagons and Carts on all of which we can undersell Grand Forks and other places. We also carry everything that can be had in any first class Hardware Store and invite everybody to call and see us at the corner of Broadway and Fletcher Sts.

SYLVESTER & FINSETH, Crookston, Minn.

Crookston
Business College
and INSTITUTE OF SHORTHAND.

DEPARTMENTS:—Commercial Shorthand, Typewriting and English.
TEACHERS:—Benj. A. Strawbridge, J. M. Latham and L. E. Gossman.
Summer Term began Monday, June 6th, 1892. Fall Term begins Monday, October 3rd, 1892. Send for new Catalogue.
CROOKSTON BUSINESS COLLEGE, Crookston, Minn.

A GREAT OFFER.
—THE—
Polk County Journal
Will be sent to any address, from now till after the campaign,
—FOR—
50 CENTS.

If You are a Republican

You should take THE JOURNAL and keep posted on what the Republican party is doing. THE JOURNAL will give from 3 to 5 columns of Republican political matter weekly, and you should keep yourself informed on the questions at issue and the movements of the party.

If You Are not a Republican

You should take THE JOURNAL so that you may see what the Republicans are doing and get the Republican side of the question as well as your own.

CAUSES ANXIETY.

MRS. HARRISON'S CONDITION PRONOUNCED CRITICAL.

Her Removal from Loon Lake to Washington at Present Declared Impossible. The President May Be Unable to Attend the Grand Army Encampment.

LOON LAKE, N. Y., Sept. 14.—Mrs. Harrison spent a quiet and restful day. She was conscious of all surroundings and showed a keen appreciation of the precariousness of her condition. The president's future movements will depend upon the state of Mrs. Harrison's health, and it now seems likely that he may have to abandon his purpose of being present at the Grand Army encampment at Washington next week.

Doctors Gardner, of Washington, F. E. Dougherty, of New York, and E. T. Trudeau, of Saranac, had a consultation at the president's cottage during the morning in regard to the case of Mrs. Harrison, and at its close issued the following statement of her condition:

Primary disease, pulmonary tuberculosis of right side associated with nervous prostration. Recent complication, sub-acute pleurisy, with rapid effusion of water in the right chest, necessitating two tappings, with some relief. Present condition critical on account of tendency to reproduction of fluid. Removal to Washington at present impossible. Prognostication as to immediate future uncertain.

The President's Anxiety.

President Harrison makes no effort to conceal his anxiety over the condition of Mrs. Harrison and has been at her bedside the entire day. The whole family share his deep concern and all are evidently apprehensive of the continuance of the present unfavorable symptoms. The greatest danger lies in the accumulation of water in the chest and constant attention is required by the doctors to prevent it being ended by a fatality. The doctors show keenly the results of their anxiety. All at the Harrison cottage were awake up to a late hour and some remained awoke all night.

CANNOT RECOVER.

A Washington Physician Says Mrs. Harrison Will Surely Die.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—"The recovery of Mrs. Harrison is impossible," said one of the leading physicians of Washington.

"Of course, her physicians will not acknowledge this fact without reservations, but the president and the people should know the actual condition of the wife of the president. I can explain it to you very simply. Mrs. Harrison had tuberculosis of the right lung and subacute pleurisy, with rapid effusion of water. Now, the pleura is a serous membrane. It is like a double sack, and each separate pleura encloses a lung. In this case the right pleura is filling with water. It is a sack of two thicknesses, and between its serous walls there is an accumulation of water. As the pleura swells it presses upward upon the lung and causes suffocation. The right apex of the lung is hardening. The apex of the lung is under the collar bone. It is supplied with less blood than the lower parts of the lung, and, consequently, less nutrition. It is the weakest point. The pressure of fluid in the pleura prevents expansion of the lung and frequently causes sudden collapse of the lung. Tapping the pleura releases the accumulated fluid, and relieves the lung. But every tapping is a traumatic or surgical shock to the patient. The loss of blood each time weakens her. These tapping are only made when it is certain that the patient will die without such relief. The result is only to prolong life a few hours. The unfortunate lady is now in such a condition that her recovery is absolutely impossible."

CONTINUES TO IMPROVE.

Mrs. Harrison to Be Removed to Washington at Once.

LOON LAKE, Sept. 20.—A cold rain began falling over Loon Lake shortly after midnight and it continued steadily until early morning. The sudden change in temperature excited some apprehension as to whether it would have any affect on the condition of Mrs. Harrison but when Dr. Gardner came over to the hotel from the president's cottage for his breakfast he reported that his patient was better and stronger, having passed a comfortable and restful night. According to the statements of those about her there is little in Mrs. Harrison's present condition to excite serious apprehension. With the non-appearance of the dreaded watery accumulation in the cavity of the pleura, hope has revived in the hearts of the patient and members of her family and the suggestion that she be moved from Loon Lake to Washington will be carried out at once.

A consultation was held between Drs. Gardner and Trubeau and it was decided to grant the wish of the president, his family and Mrs. Harrison herself, that she be taken to Washington. The removal, it is now definitely stated, will take place during the afternoon and the train having the distinguished invalid aboard will be due in Washington on Wednesday morning.

CENSUS FACTS.

Something About the Inhabitants of Several States.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—The census bureau has issued a bulletin on the color, sex and general nativity of the population of the states of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota. Of the male population of these states, taken as a whole over 21 years of age 19.59 per cent. are aliens, 64.23 per cent. have been naturalized, 7.31 per cent. have taken out their first papers. As to the remaining 8.87 per cent. nothing has been learned. Of the aliens in Ohio, 35.43 per cent. cannot speak the English language. In Indiana the per centage is 26.10; in Illinois, 30.24; in Michigan, 27.99; in Wisconsin, 42.28, and in Minnesota, 34.26.

REPUBLICAN CLUBS.

The National League Convention Meets at Buffalo.

BUFFALO, Sept. 15.—Owing to the change of date for holding the meeting and other causes, not over 800 delegates were present when the convention of the National League of Republicans clubs was called to order at 11 a. m. in Music Hall. Judge Albert Haight made a brief address of welcome and President Clarkson, on behalf of the clubs, thanked the speaker for his cheerful words.

On account of the light attendance the president deferred the delivery of his annual address until the afternoon session.

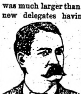
In the Afternoon.

General Clarkson's address having been published in the noon edition of a Buffalo paper under the supposition that it would be delivered at the morning session in accordance with the programme, he decided not to deliver it at all before the convention authorizing the United Press to publish it as his prepared address on the work of the league.

After transacting some routine business adjournment was taken until morning.

THE SECOND DAY.

Clarkson and Other Officers Re-Elected. The Platform.



J. S. CLARKSON.

BUFFALO, Sept. 16.—The second day's meeting of the League of Republican clubs was called to order at 11 a. m. by President Clarkson. The attendance was much larger than the first day, many new delegates having arrived. The committee on time and place for holding the next convention reported in favor of Louisville, Ky., and the time as the second Wednesday in May. After some debate the report was adopted. J. S. Clarkson was nominated for president and was reelected by a rising vote. A. B. Humphrey, the present secretary, was also re-elected by acclamation. The same action was taken in the case of Treasurer Lounsberry. General Fairchild, of Wisconsin, presented the report of the committee on resolutions as follows:

The representatives of the Republican clubs of the United States, in convention assembled, mindful of the splendid history of the Republican party, a history luminous with heroic services rendered our beloved country, make the following declaration of principles:

We most heartily indorse the wise, patriotic and statesmanlike administration of President Harrison.

Believing that the principles announced by the representatives of the Republican party at Minneapolis, in national convention assembled, fully express the sentiments of the Republican League of the United States, we therefore most cordially indorse those principles to the end that the continued prosperity of our country may be assured.

The Republican party has been, from its birth, the advocate of all measures of advancement and progress. Its principles are and always have been such that appeals to young men having the good of their country at heart. We cordially invite all young voters who believe in the prosperity and perpetuity of union to unite their political fortunes with the Republican party.

Resolved, That it be expressed as the sense of this convention that the Republican press of the country is one of the most potent agencies that may be employed to promote the principles of Republicanism and that it is worthy of the hearty encouragement and support of all Republicans.

Resolved, That in the future each state and territory shall be entitled to six delegates at large and four from each congressional district. Each college Republican club in the United States shall be entitled to one delegate and each college where there is but one college in the congressional district where the college is located to two delegates in the national convention. The title of colleges to representation under this provision shall be subject to the action of the executive committee.

We recommend that Republicans residing in the District of Columbia having a legal residence in the states and territories connect themselves with the National Republican League.

Whitelaw Reid was escorted into the hall shortly before 1 o'clock by a large delegation headed by a brass band and with waving plumes. He was given a splendidly enthusiastic reception and the convention fairly went wild for several minutes. Mr. Reid spoke briefly.

Upon the eve of adjournment Mr. Seamans, of California, received unanimous consent to make a motion. He moved that the pampas plume selected by California league as their emblem receive the endorsement of the national league. This was adopted with cheers for California. The convention then adjourned sine die. Three cheers were given for Harrison and Reid, and the delegates then crowded forward to welcome Mr. Reid, who remained on the stage several minutes shaking hands

LATEST MARKET REPORT.

St. Paul Union Stock Yards.

SOUTH ST. PAUL. Sept. 10, 1892.

HOGS—Steady. Range of prices, $4.95@5.05.

CATTLE—Steady. Prime steers, $3.50@3.50; good steers, $2.50@3.25; prime cows, $2.40@2.60; good cows, $2.00@2.40; common to fair cows, $1.00@1.75; light veal calves, $2.50@3.50; heavy calves, $1.50@2.50; stockers, $1.50@2.20; feeders, $1.75@2.40; bulls, $1.00@1.50.

SHEEP—Steady. Muttons, $3.50@4.25; lambs, $3.50@4.25; stockers and feeders, $2.00@3.25.

Receipts: Hogs, 200; cattle, 1,000; calves, 20; sheep, 105.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO UNION STOCK YARDS, Sept. 10, 1892.

CATTLE—Market weak.

HOGS—Steady. Heavy, $5.15@5.50; mixed and medium, $5.15@5.40; light, $5.00@5.35.

SHEEP—Steady.

Receipts: Cattle, 21,000; hogs, 23,000; sheep, 8,000.

Chicago Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, Sept. 10, 1892.

OPENING PRICES.

WHEAT—May, 81¾c.

CORN—October, 47⅛c; May, 50¼c.

OATS—October, 33⅝c; May, 37⅛c.

PORK—October, $10.05; January, $11.82½.

LARD—October, $7.37½; January, $6.65.

SHORT RIBS—October, $7.62½; January, $6.07½.

CLOSING PRICES.

WHEAT—September, 71⅝c; October, 72⅝@72¾c; May, 80⅝@80¾c.

CORN—September, 46c; October, 46½@46⅝c; May, 49⅞c.

OATS—September, 32⅞c; October, 33c; May, 36⅞c.

PORK—September, $9.95; October, $10.00; January, $11.72½.

LARD—September, $7.37½; October, $7.37½@7.40; January, $6.65.

SHORT RIBS—September $7.62½; October, $6.65; January, $6.05.

BRIEF NEWS ITEMS.

FOREIGN.

Announcement is made of the death of Eugene Gonow, the French sculptor and founder, in his 78th year.

Emperor William was thrown from his horse during the manouevres near Amklam, on Saturday and narrowly escaped being crushed by the horses.

The Empress of Germany has given birth to a daughter. This daughter is the seventh child born to the emperor and empress. The others are boys.

The harvest in the West of Ireland, which recently promised to be abundant, has been completely spoiled by incessant rains, and great distress is inevitable.

There is great suffering among the unemployed in London owing to the dullness of manufacturing interests. Over 6,000 men are destitute and asking for aid from the city.

The Birkbeck bank of London is involved in the recent financial failures. The assets and liabilities are about 5,500,000 pounds. Other banks have come to the rescue.

Three hundred persons were killed and ninety wounded in a recent gale in the Tokushima district Japan. Twenty thousand acres of land were devastated by inundations and 42,000 houses destroyed.

The Railway of Western France announces, that on account of the cholera epidemic the management has decided to give up the advertised excursions to Paris this week in connection with the grand national fete.

POLITICAL NOTATIONS.

William H. Hale has been nominated for governor by Massachusetts Republicans.

David B. Hill addressed a big Democratic meeting at Brooklyn on Monday night.

Frank J. Cannon, a Mormon, has been nominated for congress by Utah Republicans.

Wisconsin Congressional Nominations—First district Democrats, Clinton Babbitt; Eighth district Republicans, Colonel H. A. Framback; Fourth district Democrats, John L. Mitchell.

CRIMES AND CRIMINALS.

A race war has broken out in Calhoun county, Ark. Nine negroes and two whites were killed and several wounded.

Masked men covered the cashier of Watkins' bank at Dexter, Kan., with revolvers. The cashier gave up $3,000.

The indictments against J. J. West, formerly editor of the Chicago Times, for fraudulent issue of stock, have been dismissed.

Sontag and Evans, the California train robbers, had a fight with a United States marshal and posse near Visalia, Cal., and shot and killed four. The robbers escaped.

Berkman, who attempted to kill H. C. Frick, has been sentenced on seven counts. His sentence aggregates twenty-one years in the penitentiary and one in the workhouse.

An agent of a Mexican bank, carrying $10,000 in gold and accompanied by five guards, was attacked by brigands in the Sierra Nevada mountains near Durango. The agent and four of the guards were killed and the money taken.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Wisconsin tobacco crop has been injured by frost.

Harrison Nickerson, a Pennsylvania woodsman, has challenged Corbett to fight.

State grain inspection has been reduced 25 per cent. by the Minnesota railroad and warehouse commission.

The threatened strike of all railway employes on the Reading has been averted and the trouble amicably settled.

Arthur McKee Rankin, the actor, has been denied a divorce from his wife, whom he sued on the ground of desertion.

The Northern Pacific railroad has agreed to raise the wages of its 600 telegraph operators, and a strike is thereby averted.

All the 8,000 miners in the Monongahela river district have struck on the half-cent reduction made by the operators.

The twenty-first annual convention of the national board of steam navigation, at New York, adopted a resolution indorsing the Nicaragua canal scheme.

Mayor Grant, of New York, has requested President Harrison to stop all immigration to this country until all danger from cholera shall have disappeared.

The Rev. Dr. Jenks, of Indianapolis, in an interview declares his belief that the cholera epidemic now sweeping over the world is a warning of the approach of Christ's second coming.

A large shipment of sealskins has left Victoria, B. C., for London, by the Canadian Pacific, valued at $200,000 and filling six large cars. The skins will be offered for sale at the London fall sales.

It is announced that the Northern Pacific will withdraw from the Western Passenger association, following the Great Northern's action. It has already withdrawn from the Transcontinental association.

The annual report of Governor Murphy, of Arizona, says the population of the territory has considerably increased during the last year, and now numbers about 70,000. The assessed value of property is $27,023,162. He urges that Arizona be admitted to the Union.

Consul General Sutton has cabled the state department that the time for free importation of corn has been extended by the Mexican government until Nov. 13. It is important, he says, that this information be given wide publicity especially west of the Mississippi.

CONTENTMENT IN NATURE.

I would not change my joys for those
Of emperors and kings.
What has my gentle friend, the rose,
Told them, if aught, do you suppose—
The rose that tells me things?

What secrets have they had with trees?
What romps with grassy spears?
What know they of the mysteries
Of butterflies and honey bees,
Who whisper in my ears?

What says the sunbeam unto them?
What tales have brooklets told?
Is there within their diadem
A single rival to the gem
The dewy daisies hold?

What sympathy have they with birds,
Whose songs are songs of mine?
Do they e'er hear, as though in words
'Twas lisped, the message of the herds
Of grazing, lowing kine?

Ah, no! Give me no lofty throne,
But just what Nature yields.
Let me but wander on, alone
If need be, so that all my own
Are woods and dales and fields.

—J. K. Bangs in Harper's Weekly.

Parrots a Source of Pleasure.

There was a time when parrots were regarded in India and elsewhere as sacred, and anybody who dared to injure one of them was regarded as guilty of a dreadful crime. It is true that since then they have fallen somewhat from their high estate, and that in this more degenerate age the common Amazon parrot has been shot in great numbers in the eastern parts of Brazil for the prosaic purpose of making a particular kind of soup to which the natives are partial, while the naturalist waxes quite eloquent when he sounds the praises of parakeet pie.

But in our own country, though we do not go either to the one extreme of holding them sacred or to the other extreme of putting them into pies, parrots still occupy a place of honor in our households, and a well behaved "pretty Poll," who has been duly instructed in the accomplishments of her kind, is still the source of as great a degree of pleasure as ever.—Strand Magazine.

Why He Could Not Attend.

An amusing instance of the expedients resorted to by men summoned to attend as common jurymen in order to avoid serving in that capacity occurred recently. One morning a little girl whose eyes just peered above the desk timidly exclaimed:

"Please sir, father can't come; he can't put on his boots."

The judge asked the nervous little creature what was the matter with her parent. She hesitated. Evidently she had not been instructed further than the statement she had made, and looking straight into the judge's eyes said:

"Well, sir, father don't wear boots; he's got wooden legs. I wasn't told to say anything else, sir; that's all."—London Tit-Bits.

The Street Band's Delight.

One of the delicate delights of the street band is its propensity to scent out household musicales. In nothing, apparently, do these wandering musicians so much delight as to spring into blatant strains before the house from which issues the voice of song or the modest music of the pianoforte. They carry the day or rather the night every time; for while they can play through and over and above anything, it would take a self possessed and steady nerved household performer to hold his own or her own against such rivalry. And then they ring the bell and extend the hat!—Boston Commonwealth.

The Names of Two Cities.

On the principle of "In Rome do as the Romans do," I think it a safe rule to pronounce the name of a place as the residents of that place do. Hence we should speak of St. Louis as though it were written "St. Lewis," not "St. Louee." All good Missourians say "St. Lewis." It is a little difficult to put down in black and white the local pronunciation of New Orleans, but it is something like this, "New Awl-yins," with the strong accent on the "Awl."—Cor. New York Tribune.

She Should Have Been Glad.

She had induced him to swear off on cigarettes, but one hot day he fell from grace.

"George," she said severely, as she swept her nose through the atmosphere of his surrounding, "you have been smoking."

"Of course I have," he replied, as he mopped his face, "and you ought to be thankful that I have not gone further and broken out into a regular blazing conflagration—confound this weather."—Detroit Free Press.

A Child with Two Brains.

A few years ago, in 1884, a child was born to Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Kuerwitz, of Spring Creek, near Hebron, Neb., that had two well developed brains, the second and useless adjunct being in a sac attached to the back of the real head by a ligament six inches in length. The child lived but two days.—St. Louis Republic.

The fact that man has been able to produce many great changes on the face of the earth is a tribute to his industry and ingenuity. But it is possible that he is bringing about effects of equal importance without intending them.

A safety surfboat, with deck, sides, bottom, stern and keel all made out of one piece of metal and so constructed as to have but one seam, and that running down the ends along the bottom, is the invention of a New York genius.

The smokestacks of our ocean steamers are much larger than is generally supposed. They range from fourteen to eighteen feet in diameter. Those of the Etruria are over the latter figure.

A dwarf residing at Shigaken, Osaka, is thirty-six years old and but seventeen inches high. He is well educated and gains a livelihood by teaching penmanship.

Benedict VI was strangled in the castle of St. Angelo by order of his successor, Boniface VII. who a few months later was deposed and died in exile.

We are Selling Now

For fall use a nice line of HARNESS, Single or Double, heavy and light, at prices which will surprise you. We are making a leader on double heavy harness, and invite you to give us a call before purchasing. We have just received another car of Rushford Wagons the lightest running and best finished wagon made. We can show you something in PLOWS that no one else can, and if you are in need of one and will call and look at our line of goods we can convince you we have something you want.

Merit Wins.

And to that reason more than anything else, do we assign our large and daily increasing trade. The Yankee and Scandia Gang Plows and Sulkies can't be beat. We have a few Buggies left that we are selling cheap to close out.

Good Goods at Reasonable Prices,

and fair treatment to all is what we aim, and our motto is MERIT WINS—every time.

Larsen, Carpenter & Co.

Opera Block, - - Crookston, Minn.

TRY PEAKE,

THE MAIN STREET HARNESS MAKER,

FOR BARGAINS.

CHRISTIANSON BROS.,

Abstracters of Title, Loans, Real Estate and Insurance:

N. B. FARM LOANS a specialty. Terms, three to five years. Lowest rate of interest, payable annually at our office.

☞ Choice FARM LANDS for sale cheap, on terms to suit purchasers. ☜

Office on Robert Street, - - - - CROOKSTON, MINN

ALDERMAN & SYLVESTER,

—DEALERS IN—

Shelf and Heavy HARDWARE,

Sash, Doors and Mouldings

Mixed Paints, Linseed and Machine Oils, Flying Dutchman Gang Plows, J. Thompson & Sons Walking Plows. Sole agents for the Domestic Sewing Machine.

A FULL AND COMPLETE STOCK OF

STOVES AND RANGES

Corner Main and Fletcher Sts., - - - Crookston.

NEW FEED MILL

CHRIS. ANDERSON, Prop.

I desire to annouce to the farmers of Polk County that I have rented the

LAURENCE BUILDING, ON MAIN STEERT,

Next to Brown's New Livery Stable, and am now prepared to grind feed of all kinds promptly. You can get your feed in two hours after you bring me your grain. Prices Reasonable

Try My New Mill !

W. A. ROBERTSON

D. D. S.

Graduate of Dental Department of the University of Maryland.

OPERATIVE AND MECHANICAL

DENTIST.

N. B. Nitrous Oxide Gas, (Laughing Gas) administered for the painless extraction of teeth.

OFFICE IN McKINNON BLOCK.

NEW BARBER SHOP.

On Main St. C. E. MISNER, Prop.

Invites your patronage. Everything in the very latest style of the art.

RAZORS HONED. If you desire your Razor Honed and cannot bring it, send it to me with 30 cents and your name and address and I will hone and return it.

Yours Respectfully,

C. E. MISNER.

FRANK IVES, Notary Public and U. S. Com'r

D. E. HATLESTAD, District Court Commissioner

IVES & HATLESTAD,

Attorneys and Counselors at Law,

CROOKSTON, - - - - MINN.

Will practice in all the courts and before the U. S. Land Office at Crookston and Washington. Pensions and Soldiers' Claims and Patents carefully and promptly adjusted.

We loan money on improved farms and city property and have facilities for placing large loans at low rate of interest. We give special attention to collection and all commercial business pertaining to our profession.

H. STEENERSON

ATTORNEY AT LAW

CROOKSTON, - MINNESOTA

Polk County Journal.

BY COOKE & HAMMOND.

Devoted to the Welfare of Polk County.

OFFICIAL PAPER, CITY OF CROOKSTON.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Dollar and Fifty Cents, if paid in advance to any address inside of Polk County. If outside of Polk County 15 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum to any address.

The date opposite your name on this paper shows the time your subscription is paid up to. The JOURNAL would like to have all those who are in arears, and can spare the money, remit as soon as possible, as the new management would like to get all the old accounts settled up.

THE REPUBLICAN TICKET.

National.

President—BENJAMIN HARRISON,
Of Indiana.

Vice-Pres.—WHITELAW REID,
Of New York.

State.

Governor—KNUTE NELSON,
Of Alexandria.

Lieut. Gov.—D. M. CLOUGH,
Of Minneapolis.

Sec. of State—F. P. BROWN,
Of Blue Earth County.

Atty-Gen.—H. W. CHILDS,
Of Otter Tail County.

Treas.—JOS. BOBLETER,
Of Brown County.

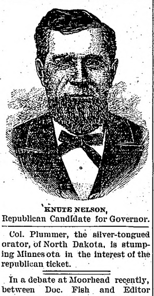
Supreme Court Judges—
C. E. VANDERBURGH,
D. A. DICKINSON,
WILLIAM MITCHELL.

Congressional.

Congressman 7th District—
HENRY FEIG,
of Kandiyohi County.

COMING EVENTS.

Sept. 28—Mark Dunnell lectures at Crookston.



KNUTE NELSON,
Republican Candidate for Governor.

Col. Plummer, the silver-tongued orator, of North Dakota, is stumping Minnesota in the interest of the republican ticket.

In a debate at Moorhead recently, between Doc. Fish and Editor Smith of the Minneapolis Tribune, the latter worsted his opponent on nearly every point, and the meeting voted him the victor.

THE G. A. R. Reunion which met in Washington on the 20th inst. is one of the largest gatherings of the kind ever held in the United States, and the parade was the finest ever seen on the streets of the national capital.

THE general land office at Washington has very properly made a ruling intended to stop the practice of giving blasphemous and indecent names to mining claims. Two parties recently appeared at the local office at Waterville to file claims designated as "Holy Moses" and "Jumping Jesus." The general office has refused to consider these applications under those names.

NOTWITHSTANDING that a light vote was cast in Maine,—12000 less than in 1888—Cleaves (rep.) was elected governor by 11000 majority. All four republican congressmen, Reed, Millikin, Dingley and Boutelle were elected. The total failure of the democrats to materially increase their vote is shown by the fact that the legislature will remain about as it was with 27 republican senators to 4 democrats, and an increase in the lower House over the democrats of 41 representatives in a total of 151

The New York Press has just published a little book "The Press Cyclopedia of Protection," compiled by John Ford, editor of the American Economist. It covers the whole field of tariff discussion, furnishing authoritative information on every phase of it. The topics are alphabetically arranged besides having an exhaustive index, so that with it in his possession the champion of protection can find in a moment the very facts and figures he needs to silence his free-trade opponent, no matter what the point in controversy. It contains 144 pages, price 10 cents. Address The Press, 38 Park Row, New York City.

HARRISON'S LETTER.

THE PRESIDENT'S ABLE DOCUMENT ACCEPTING THE NOMINATION.

A Powerful Review of the Work of the Republican Party During the Past Four Years—Results of the Policy—Reciprocity—Other Matters.

President Harrison has issued a message to the American people. In dignity and elevation of tone, in breadth of statesmanship, in deliberation and care of statement it is worthy of a place with the ablest state papers of the nation's history. His letter of acceptance, in form addressed to the committee from the Republican national convention, is in substance a powerful review of the work which has been done for the country by the administration and by congress since power was intrusted to the Republican party four years ago. It directly appeals to the people to decide whether this work merits a vote of want of confidence. The appeal is not personal. Modestly the president attributes to others a great share of the credit for grand accomplishments.

To the leaders and members of the Republican congress he gives high praise, nor does he hesitate to honor Democratic members who have faithfully guarded the honor of the country in foreign affairs. More than once a tribute is paid to Mr. Blaine, whose zealous services, the president says, deserve the nation's thanks. The appeal is on behalf of the principles and measures which the president so ably represents.

President Harrison devotes much of his space to a most convincing statement of the results attained by the policy of reciprocity. He shows how it has alarmed Great Britain and other nations; how anxiously European traders are appealing to their governments in some way to resist what they call "the commercial crusade of the United States:" how British exports to Latin American countries have declined $23,750,000, while our own exports to countries with which treaties have been made have increased 23.7 per cent.; how great are the benefits already secured for American farmers and workingmen; and he then appeals with great power to the people to decide whether the party which styles this "sham reciprocity," and proposes to abolish it, shall be preferred.

The review of the results of protection, and particularly of the new tariff, would gladden the heart of every American citizen if the minds of some were not darkened by partisan prejudice. After showing that prices have been lowered and wages advanced; that new industries transplanted and established here and the revival or enlargement of others "have given employment to many thousands of American men and women, and will each year give employment to increasing thousands," the president urges that its repeal "would throw thousands out of employment and give work to others only at reduced wages." Yet nothing else than repeal can be expected from the party which declares all protection unconstitutional.

This new departure of the Democratic party, the president well says, if executed "would at once plunge the country into a business convulsion such as it has never seen." But if it be said that this radical policy will not be executed if Democracy gains power, the president asks, "What shall be thought of a party that is capable of trifling with great interests?" It is with the dignity of true statesmanship and the earnestness of strong patriotism that the president says, "This mad crusade against American shops, the bitter epithets applied to American manufacturers, the persistent disbelief of every report of the opening of a tin plate mill or of an increase of our foreign trade by reciprocity, are as surprising as they are discreditable."

Not less strong and clear is the treatment of monetary questions. At the very outset the Democratic demand for a revival of the old state bank system, or want of system, is met with an impressive picture of the conditions resulting from the use of such currency, and in contrast the splendid results of Republican legislation are submitted. Regarding the coinage, President Harrison could not have spoken more distinctly or candidly. He declares that the free coinage of silver at such a ratio to gold as will maintain their equality in purchasing power would conduce to the prosperity of all nations; that "the one essential condition" is that this equality shall be maintained, and declares, "I am quite sure that if we should now act upon this subject independently of other nations, we should greatly promote their interests and injure our own." The bright prospect of good results from the conference of nations on this subject gives the president much gratification.

In treating of the freedom of elections, President Harrison quotes from his last annual message the proposal that a nonpartisan commission should be created to consider the evils of election laws and apportionments, and to suggest some remedy. He describes with great clearness and force the operations in Alabama, and urges that "parties and political debate are but a mockery if the judgment of honest majorities is to be reversed." He advocates no law, and says with truth that the Republican party would rejoice if existing evils could be met and corrected by action in the several states. But such a commission as he suggests would surely do much to prepare public opinion for necessary action.

On many other topics President Harrison speaks in this remarkable letter with a power which men of all parties will recognize and with a spirit which every true American must admire. It is not the letter of a narrow partisan. Broad and lofty patriotism inspires it throughout. It appeals to whatever is best and most worthy of honor in American character and to the noblest motives that can actuate American citizens. It would not be creditable to the people to suppose that such an appeal will fail to have a powerful and lasting effect.—New York Tribune.

THE HARRISON CURRENT.

Murat Halstead Proves That It Is Flowing Stronger Than Ever.

Stronger than ever the constant current for Harrison flows. There has not been for more than a year an obstruction or an eddy in the steady stream of events providing commanding forces for a second term of national administration by Harrison.

The nomination of Mr. Cleveland was a bid by Democrats for conservative support, and it has aroused the Alliances in the south to opposition, seriously threatening the solidity of that section for the Democracy.

The strike agitations in this country are as much exaggerated abroad as the European cholera is sensationalized here, but they have gone far enough with us to show that the Democratic partisans had greater reason than the Republicans to be alarmed about their political influence. The strikes have testified to our industrial and commercial prosperity under the protective system, and it is prevalent public opinion that there can be no safer, no stronger administration than Harrison's.

There has been a Democratic effort to change the scene and the issue of the national political contest—to locate the decision in the northwest and insist upon fighting the force bill. But it is the tariff issue that rises up incessantly, and the state of New York that draws with the attraction of gravitation.

Democratic concern as to the purposes of Senator Hill amounts to dismay. Tammany is unequivocally for Cleveland, but Hill has not taken his place at the head of the procession. His vote on the silver bill for free silver after the Chicago platform was the party law has been a deep mystery. There has been added to it the publication of state statistics showing officially, on Democratic authority, the increase of wages of workingmen in New York since the McKinley law took effect. Labor Commissioner Peck, who makes the report, is a close friend of Hill, and had just seen him before giving out the figures so fatal to his party. Does this candor amount to treason? Can it show that Hill means to strike Cleveland? That a cruel knocking down and out blow has been delivered there is no doubt.

Coincident with the statistics, which are a deadly dose for the Democracy, comes the home speech of Mr. Stevenson, which unreservedly places the tariff and involved labor and wages questions in the first place, and then aggressively includes a subject so tremendous that others cease to be distinguishable. This does not obscure the consideration of the tariff, for it at once supplements and magnifies that issue.

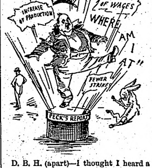
Stevenson's point is, It would be "the essence of justice" to restore the internal revenue war tax on our home manufactures that one year yielded $127,000,000, and other war taxes of the same character, the income tax among them. This is adding the platform of Omaha to that of Chicago, and would grind the manufacturing industries between the upper and nether millstones of free trade and special war taxation and grind them very fine.

The speech of Stevenson making this shocking suggestion was delivered immediately after he had been in consultation with the Democratic managers in this city, and gains significance from that fact.

Taken in connection with the labor commissioner's report of the information gathered from manufacturers in New York, its influence upon business men on the deciding questions in the decisive state, and indeed all the manufacturing states, must be considerable if not conclusive.

Republicans greet President Harrison with cheerful confidence and warranted assurances that matters and things are going his way with accelerated velocity.—Murat Halstead in New York Herald.

In a Peck of Trouble.



D. B. H. (apart)—I thought I heard a dull, sickening thud.—New York Press.

Let Him Try It.

If any American workingman, even in "protected Pennsylvania," thinks the British workingman is better off than himself he should go over to the old country and try it. It is a strange fact that though the free traders claim that the tariff does not affect wages, workingmen are continually emigrating from free trade England to seek the higher compensation of labor in protected America.—Kansas City Journal.

Democrats as Crow Eaters.

It is an unfortunate turn of affairs for Democratic newspapers when they are compelled just now to praise President Harrison for his ringing, American, retaliatory proclamation. But, alas! there is no escape but silence, and Democrats know nothing of that method of expression.—Omaha Bee.

Stevenson's Silence Is Natural.

We are not surprised that Copperhead Candidate Stevenson had so little to say about the force bill in his Bloomington speech. The subject of force naturally suggests unpleasant memories to him in connection with his record in the early sixties.—Cleveland Leader.

VETERANS IN CAMP

GRAND ARMY MEN CAPTURE THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

The Dedication of Grand Army Place the Feature of the First Day's Programme. Four Candidates Already in the Race for the Position of Commander-in-Chief.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—Grand Army week opened fair and cool with every apparent indication of a continuance of good weather during the exercises and celebrations in connection with the national encampment. All through the night the streets were alive with marching men, G. A. R. posts and their friends on their way from railroad stations to quarters. Distinguished visitors were abundant, ex-President Hayes, Major Generals Howard, Miles and Brooks and General B. F. Butler are prominent among them.

The feature of the day, full of events as it was, was the inauguration and dedication of Grand Army Place, as it is called, which is known as the White Lot, just south of the grounds of the executive mansion. It is one magnificent lawn comprising many acres of ground, covered with well kept green sod and unbroken by a single tree or bush. In the center of the field representing Richmond, the capital of the confederacy, is a commodious grand stand. Surrounding it are myriad tents set apart for and representative of the position of the various army corps that wound up the war.

Preceded by a Parade.

The inauguration of Grand Army Place was preceded by a parade of considerable proportions. The procession consisted of five brigades, commanded by General Eugene Carrusa, as follows: Troop of the regular army, naval batteries and marine, district national guard, posts of the department of the Potomac G. A. R. and Sons of Veterans. The procession started at 10 o'clock from Second street west of the capitol and proceeded up Pennsylvania avenue to a stand in front of the treasury, where it was reviewed by Vice President Morton.

At 12 o'clock an artillery salute from the guns on the fac simile of the Kearsarge, in the rear of the stand, sounded and a few minutes later Vice President Morton was ushered to his place on the stand. Commander-in-chief Palmer was a moment later shown to his seat. At 12:10 o'clock a bugler sounded the assembly and Commander McElroy called those present to order. The Rev. D. Payne, of Florida, chaplain-in-chief of the G. A. R., offered prayer. He made a special plea for the restoration to health of Mrs. Harrison. Commissioner John W. Douglass, of the District of Columbia, was introduced. As a municipal officer he assented with pride and pleasure on behalf of the district to the change of the name of White lot to Grand Army Place.

Palmer's Address.

Another air by the Marine band followed, and Commander-in-Chief Palmer made the introductory address. As he rose on the platform the old soldiers gave him a most affectionate greeting. He spoke as follows:

COMRADES—For the first time since the close of the great civil conflict you will have an opportunity of meeting your comrades in arms in a headquarters provided for each of the great army corps that existed during the war. It would certainly be invidious of me to single out or attempt to mention any particular corps for its gallant service. I know that human nature on the average is about alike. And I can appreciate how every soldier took delight in speaking with pride of the service rendered by the corps in which he served, and no one will object if when you get together the recollections of past dangers tempt you to be enthusiastic. I have often heard the boys say "My corps won the fight" in some particular contest, but you must bear in mind that a large number of the "boys" who were on the other side will mingle with you during your visit in Washington, and it's very likely that they will have some recollection of what occurred from 1861 to '65. Whatever differences of opinion we may have as to the gallantry of the several corps, there is one point upon which we all agree, that whether it was the comrade who wore the star or the eagle, whether it was he who wore the insignia of a non-commissioned officer or the common soldier who carried the musket in the ranks, each was loyal to the common cause for which he served, and each tried to do his full duty as he saw it. The same can be said for each corps and its gallant commander. Each had its full share in the contest and each shared the glorious achievements in the Union army. The thought that so many of our gallant leaders cannot be with us today fills our hearts with many sad reflections. They would respond cheerfully at the call of friendship as they did in 1861 to the call of duty.

Today you will meet and look into the faces of comrades you have not seen for years. You will take each other by the hands and recall the scenes and incidents through which you have passed and repeat the story of how the battle was won. I congratulate for you the committee who have had this grand work in charge. I know you will all enjoy and appreciate the results of the labor they have so generously given for your pleasure. You will once more meet and touch elbow again with the comrades who helped to add to the fame of your respective corps. And now, comrades, I know you will share my feelings of profound regret over the circumstances which caused the absence of one whom you would all have been delighted to see and hear, and who had anticipated joining you in all the festivities of the week, a comrade whose gallant services to the nation in the hour of peril have been supplemented by his wise and patriotic management of the affairs of this great republic in time of peace—Benjamin Harrison.

I now take great pleasure in introducing Hon. Levi P. Morton, vice president of the United States.

A Message from the President.

Before introducing the vice president, General Palmer read a telegram from President Harrison, from Loon Lake, in answer to one sent by him to the president, expressing his regret and sympathy, in which the president said:

I looked forward with much interest to the great rehearsal in Washington next Tuesday of the victors of the march of 1865. I have esteemed it one of the highest honors of my public life to have welcomed to the national capitol and to have received on its historic avenue this representative assembly of the men who not only saved the city from threatened destruction, but made it the worthy political capital of an unbroken nation. It would also have been one of the most favored and tender incidents of my private life to have taken these comrades by the hands again, but all this has been denied me by the intervention of a sad and imperative duty, and I can only ask you to give to all my cordial greeting and good wishes.

Accept my sincere thanks for your very kind and sympathetic message.

Mr. Morton made a brief speech of welcome to the veterans, concluding by formally dedicating Grand Army Place.

The flag on the staff 150 feet overhead was then unfurled and saluted by a park of artillery, and, with the "Star Spangled Banner," by the Marine band, the dedication of Grand Army Place was complete and thousands of comrades dispersed.

FOR COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF.

Four Candidates in the Field for the Honored Position.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—The active struggle for the post of commander-in-chief of the national G. A. R. has begun. There are four candidates—B. F. Warfield, of California; Charles P. Lincoln, of the department of the Potomac; A. G. Weissert, of the department of Wisconsin, and B. H. Hearst, of the department of Ohio. All but the first are hampered by local complications, chiefly the lack of united support from their respective departments. Colonel Warfield is looked upon as an available compromise candidate. In the event of a deadlock between Colonel Lincoln and Captain Weissert, General Hearst and Colonel Warfield will begin to hustle. General Hearst, being an Ohio man, is further handicapped by the Indianapolis boom for the location of the next encampment. These are the two capital prizes of the event and they are not apt to be given to adjoining states. Colonel Lincoln has made a thorough canvass for the office. He has been fortunate in getting a number of active members enlisted in his behalf. There appeared to be some danger at one time that the Western departments would unite and try to place the officers in that section of the country. The West is not united, however, for some of the Washington man's best workers are from Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Nebraska, Kansas, Minnesota, and other departments even further off. At present Colonel Lincoln's most dangerous opponent seems to be Colonel Weissert, whose backers think his perseverance should be rewarded. He is a Western hustler and has done much to keep up the spirit and numbers of the Wisconsin department.

ELEVEN DEATHS.

Another Stricken Steamer Arrives at the New York Quarantine.

QUARANTINE, Sept. 15.—The Bohemia arrived at Quarantine during the night, having had eleven deaths during her passage from Hamburg. She was sent to the lower bay.

Early in the morning Dr. Byron visited the Bohemia. He reports that there were eleven deaths at sea on the boat; and that four cases were removed to Swinburne island. He reports that those who died on board the vessel died of gastro-intestinal trouble.

The names of those who were removed to Swinburne island are: Max Feingolt, aged 6 years; Chage Bass, 28 years; Leo Handfeldt, 26 years, and one small child of the steerage.

The Bohemia has on 353 steerage, 10 cabin and 77 crew. All passed and found well. The ship's condition as to cleanliness is first class.

When Dr. Jenkins came from his private telegraph report of Dr. Byron's visit to the Bohemia he said: "I am mighty glad that this is the last of the ships we expect serious trouble from.

ANOTHER NEW CASE.

A Cholera Victim Found in a Big New York Boarding House.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—A man named Louis Weinhagen, 35 years old, a coachman for William Schlemmers, a hardware merchant of 29 Broadway, was found during the afternoon suffering from cholera in Mrs. Gunther's big boarding house, 4 and 6 Extra Place. Weinhagen had recently come from Bay Shore. A few days ago he was taken with the usual cholera symptoms and during the afternoon the health board was notified and Weinhagen was removed to the reception hospital. A report just received from the hospital indicates that he has a genuine case of cholera. His case will be watched for further developments. The boarding house from which Weinhagen was taken contains 250 men. The house was thoroughly fumigated and a physician from the health board placed in charge.

AT CAMP LOWE.

Cholera Breaks Out in the Quarantine Camp at Sandy Hook.

CAMP LOWE, SANDY HOOK, Sept. 19.—Asiatic cholera has struck this camp. Francesco Morino, an Italian passenger on the Normannia, who arrived here during the morning and who was thought to have cholera morbus, died at 10 o'clock p. m. It is announced that a widow, the mother of four children, was suddenly attacked by the scourge during the evening and her little ones were immediately isolated. It is singular that both these parties were Normannia's passengers who have been in quarantine for eighteen days.

Cholera at La Libertad.

PANAMA, Sept. 20.—A telegram from San Salvador states that a death from cholera has occurred at La Libertad on the Pacific coast of the republic and a short distance from the capital. The victim of the disease was a nun recently arrived from Europe.

A COMMERCIAL PEST.

THE SHIP FREE TRADE MUST BE RIGIDLY QUARANTINED.

She Has John Bull as Captain and Grover Cleveland as Pilot—What It Will Mean If She Should Get by Protection Island in November.

Quarantine means protection against the seeds of disease and death brought to our shores from a foreign land. And we are all agreed that it is a good thing.

Protection means quarantine against the seeds of death to American industries brought to our shores on the ship Free Trade, sailing under the English flag, with J. Bull as captain and Grover Cleveland as pilot.

It is as important to the industrial and commercial health of the nation that the ship Free Trade should be halted at Protection island and prevented from landing her passengers and cargo as it is to its physical health that the Moravia should be held down the harbor and prevented from scattering the cholera germs among our people.

The free trade bacillus is known to be deadly to the prosperity of every country where it obtains a foothold. The Cobden club is its place of original incubation, and as a destroyer of American manufactures its ravages, if it ever gains an entrance to this country, will be terrible. In 1846, under what was known as the Walker tariff, the British commercial cholera broke out "in our midst," and from that date on for a long period the mortality among our leading industries was great.

The usual symptoms of this dreaded scourge of American business were rapidly developed. The pulse of trade grew steadily feebler, paralysis of the nerve centers of business followed and in 1857 the whole industrial and commercial system, surcharged with the British free trade bacilli, collapsed with a financial crash that will always remain among the darkest memories of our history.

Again we are threatened with a similar visitation of this fearful plague. The Democratic party is full of the Cobdenite germs, and frankly avows its purpose to abolish the McKinley quarantine station and allow the British "free trade" ship, with the same old commercial cholera on board, to pass Protection island unmolested.

If this ship that has nailed to its masthead the legend, "Death to American industries," is not halted by the imperative voice of the people at the polls next November, there is a sorry time ahead for them. The "pestilence that walketh by night" is not more deadly to human life than a "tariff for revenue only" will be to both capital and labor.

The British press may well watch with eager and hopeful interest the Democratic effort to break down the protective system, which has for thirty years served as a most effective quarantine against the invasion of British cheap goods, made by British cheap labor, working for British cheap wages. It means renewed vitality and vigor for British industries if this country shall elect Grover Cleveland, with a mandate to let down the tariff bars and let in the flood of foreign pauper competition upon American factories and workshops and the working people employed therein.

The American workingmen, however, can hold the free trade plague at bay if they choose. The quarantine station will not be abandoned if they say that it shall not be. Protection island is in their hands. They can halt the British ship, with its pestilential doctrine that a protective tariff is unconstitutional, if they determine to do it. Self preservation is nature's first law, and of course they will maintain the quarantine that defends their wages, their homes and their families.—New York Recorder.

Wages in Woolen Factories.

According to the British board of trade, a government body, the average wages paid in British woolen factories are about $292 a year. The average yearly earnings in New York state, according to returns made to Labor Commissioner Peck by manufacturers in reply to circulars (the method adopted also by the British board of trade) were $526.93 in 1891.—New York Press.

No Democratic Boom in Montana.

Montana Democrats have never shown any great admiration for Grover Cleveland. In the Chicago convention Montana gave her solid vote for Boies and was for anybody to beat the stuffed prophet. After Bourke Cockran made a speech pulverizing Grover, Montanians took to Cockran and cast their vote for him for vice president, although it was known that he was ineligible. Cleve and Steve can raise no boom in Montana.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

They Will Not Forget.

The Illinois Germans whom the Democrats are trying to inveigle into helping them out of the slough of despond are the same men who were driven out of Missouri during the war by other Democrats because they were loyal to the Union cause. It is very kind in the Illinois Democrats to present the men whom their fellows persecuted with a list of candidates to vote for this year.—Springfield (Ills.) State Journal.

Prosperity at Home, Peace Abroad.

Harrison's candidacy stands for prosperity at home and peace abroad. The revival of domestic industries under the McKinley tariff is certain, and it would be a piece of inconceivable stupidity on the part of the American people to place in power the party that proposes to repeal it and to open the floodgates of foreign competion with American labor.—Norristown (Pa.) Herald.

What Hill Is Waiting For.

When Hill begins to boom Cleveland you may know that a corrupt bargain has been made. That is all he is waiting for.—Trenton State Gazette.

WITH OUR EXCHANGES.

Princeton Union.—There is no use in talking, an Indian cannot be convicted of any crime by a Mille Lacs county jury. Evidence that would send a white man to a penitentiary is not considered sufficient to indict an Indian.

Wabasha Herald:—A ball club composed exclusively of women will cross bats with the Wabasha club on Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock. It is possible that the game may not be very scientific but it will afford more amusement than any game yet played at Athletic Park.

Thief River Falls Press: Capt. Eberhardt has been making some very extensive improvements to his steamer "Viking." In addition to the side wheels which he is now putting on, the boat is made more comfortable for excursion parties by a sun roof over the entire deck. This also adds to the beauty of the craft very materially. When the repairs contemplated are completed the Viking will be one of the best steamers in the northwest.

St. Vincent New Era: Hon. Jas. J. Hill, sent, on Tuesday last, his check for $25. to the St. Vincent Agricultural Society.—On Saturday last Dep. Coll. Williams returned to Emerson, Manitoba, immigrant luggage from Europe. On Wednesday two women from Europe, via Hull, England, walked over from Emerson and took the south train; Mr. Williams sent them back from Hallock and they were retained in car here until Thursday noon when immigration agent Pierson sent them by team to Emerson. Health officer Peters telegraphed the facts to Dr. Hewitt of the state board of health.

Fisher Bulletin: Last Wednesday afternoon three individuals entered Even Olsen's shoe store and appropriated two pairs of fine shoes. They then visited H. B. Laughlin's and stole another pair. Marshal O'Reilly was notified and, with the assistance of Tommy Johnstone, landed the thieves in the cooler. At the hearing Thursday morning they enriched the village exchequer to the tune of about $30. The bridge was completed at an early hour on Monday morning and thrown open to the public. Thos. Johnstone has sold the famous Percheron stallion Madere 4271, the property of Felland Bros., to a stock company consisting of the principal farmers of Bachelors Grove, N. D. Consideration, $2,400.

In the October number of "Peterson's Magazine" appears the following notice to its subscribers: "This magazine is about to pass into the control of stockholders who propose to convert it into a periodical devoted solely to literature and art. Peterson's long-continued success, its general merit, and the great improvement in its literary departments during the past few years have decided the future publishers to call their periodical The New Peterson, confident that the name will raise up for it in advance a wide host of friends and supporters. The new magazine will commence with the January number, although the December number will be issued in the new form. A full announcement of its designs and a description of its leading features will be given in the November issue."

Warren Register.—One of the elevators here has not been opened this fall, and the others are about full, and cars sufficient cannot be had to ship our wheat. Some of the threshers have stopped work because there is no place to store the wheat when threshed. Who is responsible for this condition of things, we do not know, but it looks to a man up a tree as though there was a colored gentleman in the fence, somewhere. It does not seem at all probable that a scarcity of cars can be the cause. The railroad company must have hundreds of them not in use, as the crop in the northwest has hardly begun to move, as yet.—As evidence of this being a good fruit climate, we can show, on our premises in Warren, two plum trees in bloom for the second time this season; something we have not known of here before. —Mrs. Maria Jensen, wife of A. N. Jensen, of this city, died on Sunday, the 11th inst., after a long and painful illness, and was buried Monday afternoon in the city cemetery.

Thirteen Towns: The buildings for the Thirteen Towns Fair are nearly completed, and they present a decidedly neat and creditable appearance. The main exhibit building is especially worthy of mention being large and roomy with plenty of space for exhibits of all kinds to be properly displayed.—Bishop Gilbert, of St. Paul, bishop for the Minnesota diocese of the Episcopal church, accompanied by his wife, Rev. J. A. Gilfillan, of White Earth, and F. J. Poole of Faribault arrived in the city on Tuesday afternoon from Red Lake, having traveled overland from Brainerd, visiting the church missions at Bass Lake, Leech Lake, Red Lake and other points camping out most of the time. In the evening the bishop held services at the Congregational church and confirmed a class of five, four boys and one girl, at the conclusion of which he delivered a short discourse on the reasons and objects of confirmation, as it is administered by his church. —Threshing commenced in earnest this week, and all the machines are being pushed to their fullest capacity. The yield is far beyond the expectation.—Republican enthusiasm is growing in this section. Harrison and Nelson are winners.

Henry Feig.

Douglas County News: Hon. Henry Feig of Kandiyohi county was nominated for congress in this district at the Republican convention held at Moorhead last Thursday. Mr. Feig served his county in the legislature at the last session and is a strong, clear-headed young man of German descent. He is a good speaker and will make a thorough canvass of the Seventh district. His nomination gives good satisfaction to the Republicans.

Minneapolis Tribune: Hon. Henry Feig, the Republican candidate for member of congress from the Seventh district, was born in Minneapolis. He is 31 years of age, and is of German parentage. He removed with his father and mother to the township of Harrison, Kandiyohi county, when he was 9 years old and has ever since been a resident of that county. At the age of 22 he was married, bought 80 acres of land in the town of Harris, six miles north of Atwater, and commenced farming on his own accord. Since he has added another 80 acres to his farm, making it 160 acres, which he tills himself, doing all kinds of farm labor. He has never been engaged in any other business. He was elected town clerk of Harrison at the age of 21, which office he held for a number of years. His legislative experience commenced in the session of 1885, when he was appointed clerk of an important house committee. He was also clerk of committees in the session of '87 and '89—during the latter session being clerk of the house committee on railroads. In the fall of 1890 he was elected to the house of representatves as a Republican, notwithstanding the stormy Alliance movement then prevailing in Kandiyohi county. He proved himself to be an able and an active representative, and always a strong Republican. He is physically a powerful man, linked with an equal mental faculty. He is a good stump speaker, ready in debate, a first-class parliamentarian, and possesses all the necessary qualifications to make an A No. 1 congressman. He was nominated for congress at the Republican convention in Moorhead Sept. 1 on the eighth ballot. On accepting the nomination he took the convention by storm, making a rousing speech. His nearest friends, knowing his ability and fighting qualities, feel assured of his election.

Doc. Fish Talked Him to Sleep.

Hallock News: Knocking a man down with his tongue seems to be a rather hard thing to do, yet Doc. Fish succeeded in literally doing this in his Wednesday's lecture. A man sitting near us listened attentively to his evening lecture for about twenty minutes and then commenced to feel so warm that he removed his shoes. A little later he gave out entirely, placing his shoes in the chimney corner and on top of them curled himself up, went to sleep and snored audibly in sweet oblivion for two solid hours while Doc. was vehemently pounding away at the "Plutocrats."

The Foul Fish.

In speaking of Doc. Fish's lecture at Hallock, the News of that place says: "The cringing old hypocrite used alternately the worst possible forms of blasphemy and rank figures of speech. We would quote some of them but are afraid they would in their intensity of heat burn the very page upon which they would be printed."

Woman is indeed a curious creature. There is a widow in Atchison county, Mo., who not only has forgiven a man who assisted to lynch her husband twenty years ago but is about to marry him.

Jonathan P. Bass, the ossified man, who was the most widely advertised freak in the world, died at his home at Lewiston, N. Y., Sept. 12, the ossification having reached his heart. Bass began to ossify when he was very young, and for twenty years has not moved a muscle except those of his head. He was a solid mass of bony flesh. His legs and body were cold to the touch and could not be indented.

A Plain Statement.

A Hartford girl called on a physician recently who is as plain in his speech as his patient is in respect to her face. He tried to cheer her; her ailment being only a trifling matter, he said. "Oh, doctor," she groaned, "I feel worse than I look." Then, my dear young lady, there is no hope for you," replied the doctor.—Philadelphia Ledger.

CITY COUNCIL.

Official Proceedings of a Meeting of the City Council held Sept. 13th.

Resolutions Adopted—Bills Allowed—Reports Made and Petitions Presented.

Proceedings of a regular meeting of the city council of the city of Crookston held in the city hall on Tuesday evening, Sept, 13th, 1892.

Meeting called to order by President Cromb.

Roll call.

Aldermen present: Anderson, Childs, Jennings, Jerome, Morrisey, Marlette, Walker, Cromb.

Aldermen absent: Austin, McGlogan, Watts.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

The aldermen of the Fourth ward reported in favor of allowing A. A. Miller to move his fence into the street a few inches so as to straighten it.

The mayor presented the name of John Dainard as patrolman No. 3.

The committee to whom was referred the matter of the validity of the Crookston Waterworks, Power and Light Co's contract with the city reported that they had engaged a lawyer to look the matter up and presented his opinion upon the same to the council.

The committee to whom was referred the matter of drawing up an ordinance covering the Crookston Heating and Gas Light Co's proposition reported and presented an ordinance relating to the same.

The finance committee reported favorably upon the following bills;

Ed. Allard, board		$ 15 50
A. C. Wilkinson, brief		150 00
Chas. Vine, meat for poor		5 65
Ed. Ross, asst. engineer		30 00
Cooke & Hammond, printing,		16 40
A. C. Schmidt, painting		20 80
Christianson Bros., insurance,		15 00
W. Marin, labor		67 71
L. Rivard, plastering		16 00
A. C. Schmidt, painting		7 95
H. R. Nolan, labor		54 46
Fontaine & Anglim, mdse		17 15
Carl Schmidt, labor		7 00
Geo. A. Ralph, engineer		12 80
W. E. McKenzie, advertising		10 40
Ralstad & Ralston, meals		42 30
Ralstad & Engen, meals		7 85
Ernest Ralsch, lumber		1 80
W. W. Marsh, asst. engineer		46 00
M. D. Stoner, asst. engineer		25 00
O. Hinds, labor		9 00
C. E. Dampier, med. attend'ce		6 00
D. McDonald, labor,	1st ward,	11 37
" "	2d ward,	98 62
" "	3d ward,	10 43
" "	4th ward	24 48
" "	5th ward	3 49
" genl. labor		51 62
" " "		55 98

On motion the report was accepted and the bills ordered paid.

Alderman Marlette excused.

Moved by Alderman Morrisey seconded by Alderman Jennings that when we adjourn it be to meet on Tuesday evening, Sept. 27th, at 7:30 p. m. Carried.

The finance committee reported that the county officials were not separating the ward funds correctly, and upon motion the city attorney was instructed to look into the matter and take such steps as may be necessary regarding them.

The city engineer passed in a report upon the expense of building the sewer along Third, Broadway and Fourth streets.

The commissioners who were appointed to assess and award damages in grading Second street, passed in the following report:

To the Honorable City Council:

GENTLEMEN: The undersigned, commissioners appointed by your honorable body under the provisions of Sec. 6 of Chapter 10, Special Laws of Minnesota, in the matter of establishing street grades in this city:

Pursuant to said act and the appointment of the undersigned as commissioners at a meeting of the city council, held August 17th, 1892, to assess the benefits and damages on the grading of Second street, from Main street to Ash street, beg leave to report as follows: After due notice given as provided in Sec. 4, of Chapter 10, we proceeded to hear, view and determine the damages and compensation to be paid to the owners of property abutting on said street, and also to determine the cost of making said improvements upon the tracts benefited by said improvements, and have assessed the benefits, damages, and the cost of said improvements as follows, to-wit:

ORIGINAL TOWNSITE.

NAME OF OWNER.	LOT.	BLOCK.	COST.	Benefits.
Francis Rickett	4 & 5	17	$37 58	$37 58
A F Rauch	1 & 2	16	18 57	18 57
H F Brown	1 & 2	16	6 58	6 58
Carl Reidesel	1 & 2	16	3 76	3 76
Ernest Rolsch	23 & 24	16	6 83	6 83
James McKenzie	23 & 24	16	5 98	5 98
Aalden Braley	23 & 24	16	5 98	5 98
C H Saake	23 & 24	16	5 12	5 12
C C Rickett	alley	17	3 42	3 42
FLETCHER AND HOUSTON'S ADDITION.
Francis Rickett	17	5	5 12	5 12
First National Bank	17	5	8 54	8 54
" "	6	12	25 62	25 62
Almira Clements	1	13	25 62	25 63
Robert Stanton	7	12	25 62	25 62
Charles E Dampier	2	13	17 08	17 08
Judge Lewis	2	13	8 54	8 54
City of Crookston	alley	16	8 42	8 42

Respectfully submitted.

C. H. MIX.
W. H. NORRIE.
E. M. WALSH.

On motion the report was referred to the finance committee.

The trustees of the M. E. church requested the privilege of moving the sidewalk in front of the church while they were putting in a new foundation. On motion the request was granted.

A petition was presented by residents and property owners in South Crookston asking that a sidewalk be built along and in front of lots 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 11, 12 and 13, of block 3 of South Crookston.

On motion the petition was referred to the aldermen of the 1st ward. The aldermen of the 1st ward reported favorably on the petition.

Bids were opened for building a retaining wall near the Sampson Addition bridge. Two bids were received, one from John R. McKinnon and one from Henry Nolan. As the bids were both for the same amount, viz: $760, they were laid on the table till the adjourned meeting.

The ordinance on grades was brought up and on motion was laid on the table until the next meeting.

An ordinance relating to slaughter houses was offered by Alderman Cromb. Moved by Alderman Childs, seconded by Alderman Morrisey, that the ordinance be referred to a committee of three. Carried.

Chair appointed as that committee: Aldermen Childs, Anderson and Morrisey.

The ordinance relating to the Crookston Gas Co. was brought up and the amount of $5,000 inserted therein as the penal amount.

Alderman Childs moved that the resolution passed at the meeting held on the 9th day of August relating to putting in sewers between Sixth and Eighth streets be reconsidered.

Alderman Morrisey raised a point of order that it was too late to reconsider. Chair declared the point not well taken. Alderman Morrisey appealed from the decision of the chair.

Aldermen voting for sustaining the chair: Anderson, Childs, Jennings, Jerome, Walker.

Not sustaining the chair: Morrisey.

Moved by Alderman Childs, seconded by Alderman Anderson, that the vote whereby a resolution was passed on the 9th day of August relating to putting in sewers between Sixth and Eighth streets, be reconsidered.

Aldermen voting in the affirmative: Anderson, Childs, Jennings, Jerome, Walker, Cromb.

Alderman voting in the negative: Morrisey.

Motion declared carried.

The resolution mentioned was then voted upon with the following result:

Aldermen voting in the affirmative Morrisey.

Aldermen voting in the negative: Anderson, Childs, Jennings, Jerome, Walker, Cromb.

Resolution declared lost.

Moved by Alderman Morrisey, seconded by Alderman Anderson, that the mayor be allowed to name a policeman for such time as he thinks necessary, and that the salary be fixed the same as the other patrolmen.

Aldermen voting in the affirmative: Anderson, Childs, Jennings, Jerome, Morrisey, Walker, Cromb.

Aldermen voting in the negative: none.

Motion declared carried.

Moved by Alderman Morrisey, seconded by Alderman Jennings, that the mayor's appointmnet of John Dainard as patrolman No. 3, be confirmed and that the clerk be instructed to so cast the ballot. Clerk cast ballot as instructed and John Dainard was duly confirmed as patrolman No. 3.

At a regular meeting of the city council of the city of Crookston held the 13th day of September, 1892, Alderman Jennings offered the following resolution which was seconded by Alderman Anderson:

The city council of the city of Crookston do hereby resolve, that a sidewalk five feet wide, built of pine plank, surfaced on one side and two inches in thickness, said plank to be laid on three pine plank stringers of six by two inch dimensions and to be nailed thereon by twenty penny spikes, and said sidewalk to be constructed in front of and adjacent to lots 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 11, 12 and 13, of block 3 of South Crookston.

Upon the call of ayes and nays the vote stood as follows:

Aldermen voting in the affirmative: Anderson, Childs, Jennings, Jerome, Morrisey, Walker, Cromb.

Aldermen voting in the negative: none.

Upon this vote the resolution was declared carried by the President of the Council.

Passed this 13th day of September, 1892.

JOHN CROMB,
President of the Council.

Approved this 13th day of September, 1892.

Attest: WM. ANGLIM, Mayor.
E. C. CARRUTH. Clerk.

On motion the clerk was instructed to advertise for bids for grading Second street, between Main and Ash streets, bids to be opened at the meeting to be held on the 27th inst. Carried.

Moved by Alderman Morrisey, seconded by Alderman Jerome, that John R. Mckinnon be paid $650 as the second estimate on his grading contract with the city. Carried.

The engineer reported that H. Nolan had completed his contract of repairing the Sampson Addition bridge.

The finance committee reported favorably upon the bill of H. R. Nolan for repairing Sampson's Addition bridge. On motion the report was accepted and the bill ordered paid.

On motion council adjourned,

E. C. CARRUTH, Clerk.

Fosston Ripples.

People at this end of the route are getting cross-eyed looking for that daily train.

Guy Pratt, the rustling wheat man and base ballist of McIntosh was seen on our streets recently. Looking for another snap game of ball Guy, hey?

No lack of music in this vicinity. Five pianos in town and more coming.

For the past two weeks Mayor Hilligoss has been making his annual tour as pilot to a party of hunters from Cincinnati and reports having bagged no less than 1200 chicks and dux.

Four new threshing outfits have been unloaded from the cars at this place in the past few weeks, which will greatly help to shorten the threshing season.

Wheat is beginning to roll into the elevators in large quantities, grading No. 1 and No. 2 northern.

S. C. Bagley finished threshing 5000 bushels of wheat with a good fair yield and No. 1 Northern grade.

Cranberries are being marketed here by the wagon load, bringing in the neighborhood of one dollar per bushel.

Our handsome jeweler, J. Cadieux, departed for his home at Terebonne last week somewhat undecided whether to return. Fosston is a good opening for a first class jeweler.

J. W. Moore, of the firm of Tuneteal & Moore, heating and ventilating company of Minneapolis, has been in town the past week, overseeing the putting in of hot air furnaces, in the school building, Commercial hotel and Synod church.

The premium lists of the Thirteen Towns Fair Association are being mailed this week. If you have not received one address a postal card to the secretary, W. H. Averill, Fosston.

The following prizes have been drawn in the leap year matrimonial lottery, of Fosston, up to date: Postmaster, photographer, hardware merchant, clerk and bartender. A number of valuable prizes are still to be found patronizing the dining hall of our leading hotel, viz: lawyer, banker, operator, school teacher, hotel proprietor, foreman, ex-marshall, clerks, machine agents and numerous others; come girls, let this good work continue.

The following clipping from School Education speaks for itself: "Prof. James R. Taggart, teacher of manual training in the Minneapolis east side high school, has spent his vacation in superintending the erection of school-houses at Fosston and McIntosh. The building at Fosston he thinks the prettiest school-house in the state. The school board manifested their appreciation of his faithful and satisfactory work by presenting him with an elegant guard for his watch. He is under contract for a school house in S. Dakota some time in the near future.

Bitten by a Tarantula.

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia., Sept. 12.—William Coquillette, of Prairieburg, was bitten by a tarantula concealed in a bunch of bananas. He was wild and delirious most of the night and remains in a critical condition, though physicians believe he will recover.

The father of Haydn, the composer of "The Creation," was a wheelwright and often scolded his son for neglecting business.

Saving to No Purpose.

It has sometimes happened that persons little deserving, and even rulers, have reaped the harvests which misers have painfully sown. The life of Vandille is a proof of this. This man lived upon bread and milk, with the addition of a small glass of sour wine on Saturdays. At his death he left £800,000 to the king of France. Audley, the commonwealth miser, saved £400,000, all of which reverted to the government.—Cassell's Journal.

Rubies have been obtained up to the present time from the old beds of streams, having been washed out of the rocks originally by the water.

LOCKEN & HOLMBOE,

Opera House Department Store,

MAIN STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN.

SIX LINES OF BUSINESS

UNDER ONE ROOF AND ONE MANAGEMENT.

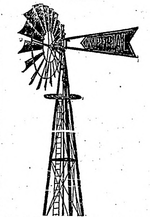
Dry Goods, Notions, Furnishing Goods, Hosiery, Underwear, Gloves, Caps, Cloaks, Clothing. | Shoes, Rubbers, Groceries, Provisions, Flour, Feed, Crockery, Glassware, Lamps.

Trunks and Valises.

OUR FALL STOCK

Is now in and we are ready to show the public what we can do for them.

THE IMPERIAL



All Steel Windmill,

Can be set up on a Steel or Wood Tower,

We carry a COMPLETE STOCK OF WOOD AND IRON PUMPS, including DOUBLE-ACTING, ANTI-FREEZING FORCE PUMPS. IRON PIPE AND IRON PIPE FITTINGS.

Special attention given to the 2-in Plugged and Rimmed Well Casing.

PRICES AS LOW AS THE LOWEST.

Estimates given on all Plumbing Contracts in or out of the city.

CROOKSTON PLUMBING CO.,

Broadway, near Robert St., Crookston, Minn.

E. D. SCHREADER,

Veterinary Surgeon.

Horse Dentistry a Specialty.

All Calls receive Prompt Attention. Satisfaction guaranteed in all cases. Office: 319 North Main Street, in connection with Livery house.

CROOKSTON, MINN.

M. LeGUEE.

Veterinary Surgeon.

Residence and office on Jerome's Addition.

CROOKSTON, MINN.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, COUNTY OF POLK ss. In Probate Court, Special Term Sept. 13th, 1892. In the matter of the estate of Erdras Roux, deceased: On reading and filing the petition of Onezime Noel, administrator of the estate of Esdras Roux, deceased, representing among other things, that he has fully administered said estate and praying that a time and place be fixed for examining, settling and allowing the final account of his administration, and for the assignment of the residue of said estate to the parties entitled thereto by law.

It is ordered, That said account be examined, and petition heard by this court, on Monday the 10th day of October, A. D. 1892, at 10 o'clock A. M. at the Probate office in the city of Crookston in said county.

And it is further ordered, That notice thereof be given to all persons interested, by publishing a copy of this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Polk County Journal, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston in said county.

Dated at Crookston the 13th day of September A. D. 1892. By the Court,

C. M. BENSON, Judge of Probate

A SOLDIER'S SECRET

BY CAPT. CHARLES KING, U.S.A.

COPYRIGHT, 1892, BY J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY, AND PUBLISHED BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH THEM.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Nita Guthrie, a St. Louis girl, is visiting the family of Surgeon Holden, in the camp of the Twelfth cavalry, in Arizona. Captain Rolfe, an officer of the Twelfth, proposes and is rejected. An old love affair is in the way. Nita swoons over some mysterious apparition on the eve of her departure for home. II—After Nita leaves camp Dr. Holden tries to unearth the mystery of her swoon. He suspects that Sergeant Ellis, a recent recruit, and a man with a history, had some connection with it. III—Lieutenant "Curly" Brewster, another officer of the Twelfth, is in love with Winifred Berrien, the daughter of Major Berrien. Captain Rolfe lights upon evidence that another woman claims Brewster's devotion. IV—The society at the fort gives a hop, and Mrs. Knowles, a married flirt from a near by town, makes a scene with Brewster, at which Major Berriam and Winifred are mystified and indignant. V—Before Brewster can explain to Winifred about the Khowles woman his troop is ordered to march against the Sioux Indians in Dakota. VI—Major Berrien hears some gossip about Brewer's relations to Mrs. Knowles and bars the lover out from a parting word with Winifred.

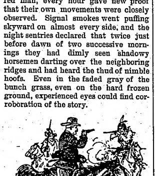
[CONTINUED.]

CHAPTER IX.

Pursuant to his orders, Major Berrien, with his battalion of the Twelfth, had been scouting the open country that lay to the northeastward of the cantonment. So alarming had the situation become, so significant if not actually defiant was the manner of the Indians whose lodges were pitched all over the prairie around the agency that the commanding general had caused intrenchments to be thrown up on every ridge overlooking that threatened settlement. Additional troops, including a strong force of infantry and detachments of light artillery, had been sent to the scene. Hotchkiss and field guns were placed in position commanding the Indian camp, and night and day the earthworks were heavily manned and sentries and outposts guarded every approach.

Meantime the main body of the hostiles was still ghost dancing and howling through the wintry night far over to the north among the breaks and chasms of the Bad Lands, so strong in numbers and so secure from assault within the lines of their natural fortress as to laugh to scorn all premonition of disaster. Runners had gone to every tribe urging concerted action and united revolt. Every day brought new accessions, and all that was needed to enable them to bid defiance to the encircling force was the arrival of the great bands that had broken away from the reservations along the Missouri, followers and would be avengers of the old chieftain. Sitting Bull, who had died in harness, a rebel to the last. Brule and Ogallalla, Uncpapa and Minneconjou—here were the warriors, re-enforced by many a new grown son, who had fought the white soldiers summer after summer, time and again, in the bloody days of the decade past—the Brules especially, once restrained by the wisdom of old Sintogaliska, now ripe for any deviltry and well nigh unanimous for war to the knife.

Without noteworthy incident. Berrien's command had circled around to the east of the sacred lines of the reservation, had spent a day or two exploring the breaks and ravines of a dozen little streams flowing into the Wakpa Washtay, had located trail after trail of travois, pony and lodge pole tracks, had scoured the wide valley of the main stream, but without sight of a single warrior, much less a war party. The still smoking ruins of two ranches told, however, of recent visitation, and the hoof marks of cattle mingling with the pony tracks pointed unerringly whither the spoil had been driven. Meantime, while nothing could be seen of the wily red man, every hour gave new proof that their own movements were closely observed. Signal smokes went puffing skyward on almost every side, and the night sentries declared that twice just before dawn of two successive mornings they had dimly seen shadowy horsemen darting over the neighboring ridges and had heard the thud of nimble hoofs. Even in the faded gray of the bunch grass, even on the hard frozen ground, experienced eyes could find corroboration of the story.



Almost in the face of the foremost Sioux his revolver blazes its challenge.

Daring Indian scouts were ever on their flanks and front and rear, making no overt move against them, but keeping the hostile camp fully informed of everything that was being done and watching restlessly for opportunity to cut off every straying charger, to cut down every straggling man. Knowing all this full well, Berrien had given strict orders—neither officer nor trooper was permitted to leave the column by day nor the bivouac by night; and now its mission accomplished, the column had started on return march, and up to this time no casualty had occurred. So long as the isolated battalion was moving toward the hostile camp, nearing every hour the overwhelming array of the enemy and separating itself farther and farther from friendly supports, no bar had been put to its progress. But now the Indian scouts could see that it was turning back, probably in the hope of regaining the cantonment unmolested.

It was a sunshiny December afternoon; the air was as clear as a bell, the clouds that obscured the eastern sky at dawn had long since drifted out of sight, and in all its broad expanse the pale blue vault of the heavens wore not so much as a feather of vapor. Who that rode in the laughing, chatting, jaunty column that sparkling day could realize the change a few hours might effect on the silent, breezeless solitudes around them? At noon the sun was so warm that many a trooper had stripped off his heavy overcoat and turned up the flaps of the rough fur cap. Except in deep ravines hardly any snow was to be seen. The dull gray surface of the rolling prairie, wave after wave, lay basking, and the leafless branches of the cottonwoods overhanging the frozen pools were glistening, sparkling in the lifegiving rays. The advance guard, after breaking the ice and treating their horses to a mouthful of water at the stream, had moved on at brisk trot, and now the stalwart riders were spreading out in extended order as they breasted the slope. Out to the west, full five hundred yards, the wary flankers could be seen, some crossing the stream farther down the valley, while other comrades appeared over the barren ridge behind, that no sneaking foe might crawl up unobserved and send a long range bullet from its shelter down into the swarm of troopers at the ford. So, too, the flankers to the east and the sturdy little knot of rear guardsmen just popping up over the divide so recently crossed, all told of ceaseless vigilance on every side. Berrien has not ridden the Sioux trail a score of years for nothing. He takes no chances where the security of his command is concerned, and has small opinion of the leader who subjects them to needless risk.

And now one after another the four troops ride into close column on the northward bank; the men dismount, unsaddle, and presently, with side lines in hand, each trooper leading his faithful steed, the four herds are guided to the separate grazing grounds already chosen and "pre-empted" by wide awake subalterns or sergeants. There the side lines are carefully adjusted, the bridles slipped off, three or four men remain in saddle as herdguard and the horses are left to graze. Rich with nutriment is that crisp, dry bunch grasp—rich and plentiful. The mules of the pack train bray with impatience to shed their loads and join their envied four footed comrades, but presently they, too, following the bell, are streaming out upon the guarded prairie, rolling in luxury upon the frosty earth and kicking their legs in air in genuine delight. From a dozen little fires among the bare limbed cottonwoods the thin smoke is curling aloft, and the rattle of tin cup and plate and the jovial voices of the men seem to clamor for their soldier rations. In long rows the saddles and equipments were aligned upon the turf, each man's carbine and belt at his saddle. Huge rolls of robes and blankets are unstrapped and spread to air, and all this time, while the troop officers are looking to the comfort and security of their horses, Major Berrien, followed by a single orderly, is riding about from point to point to satisfy himself that the guards are stationed where best they can secure the bivouac against surprise.

The ridge to the southwest is higher than those which limit the view at other points, and thither Berrien is now riding at easy lope. Rolfe and Hazlett, watching him for a moment, exchange an appreciative nod as they hear from the group of soldiers at the nearest camp fire some brawny son of the old sod remark, "Just luck at the ould man now; sure it's a smart redskin that will ever get through the pickets he posts." Not since the days of old "Major Slowtrot," old "Pap" Thomas, has there been a battalion commander better loved by the rank and file. They know nothing will ever induce him to forget one precaution for their safety, and reward his care with a loyalty of devotion good to see. Watching him still further, Hazlett notes that a distant vedette has signaled, and that Berrien, slowly now, is riding up the slope to join him. A sergeant has some question to ask at the moment, and when Hazlett again looks out to the southwest, major, orderly and vedette have disappeared from view around a little shoulder of bluff. Other vedettes can be seen at their posts on all sides, and a few dismounted sentries lying prone where, unseen themselves, they can scan the country to their front. But Hazlett's curiosity is excited by the fact that two men, mere specks in the distance, are huddling together at the crest half a mile away to the southwest and evidently watching something out at their front and motioning to the sergeant back with the supports. Presently this trooper, too, trots out to join them. Berrien and his party are still out of sight from camp.

"Captain, may I borrow your field-glasses?" asked Mr. Brewster, swinging up to the fire where Hazlett stands. "I have lent mine to the sergeant of the guard."

"Did you see where the major went?" asks Hazlett by way of reply, as he hands the desired instrument.

"I last saw him at the point yonder. He rode around it with Sergeant Ellis and a couple of men, and that vedette must have been calling to him. It seems to me they've been gone some time; so Gorham says I can ride out and find out what it means."

"Why can you, Brewster, but my horse is out at herd. Take the glasses with you, anyhow." Brewster's big black is led up at the moment, and the lieutenant quickly mounts and canters easily away.

Meantime, old Berrien, who has noted the signals of the vedette referred to, has joined him, with the brief inquiry, "What is it, Scott?"

"Why, sir, I was posted here by the sergeant, and he had no sooner gone than I saw what I took to be horsemen in the valley several miles out yonder to the southwest. The major can see the whole country from a butte that lies perhaps three hundred yards farther out beyond this ridge. But here comes the sergeant back, sir."

It is Ellis, cantering briskly from the advanced position Scott has designated, and coming to them now around the shoulder of the bluff a little to the right. That Ellis has seen something is evident: his face shows it in an instant.

"An Indian war party, major, perhaps a dozen, rode from behind a long ridge over to the west and down into the valley of what I take to be a branch of the Porcupine. That butte hides a good deal of the valley; but we can see it from there, though."

"You three men come with me," says Berrien quietly. "We must look into this."

Two minutes' lope brings them to the butte Ellis has pointed out. Leaving their horses with the orderly, Berrien, the sergeant and the sentinel go crouching up the hither slope, throw themselves on the ground and crawl to the summit. As the vedette has said, the whole country for miles in every direction can be seen—a country of bold contours, of bare, rounded bluffs and buttes, of deep, shadowy ravines and gulches—a country bare of trees save the ghostly, leafless cottonwoods perched by the banks of many a frozen stream. Miles and miles to the north and northwest the wild Indian land spreads before their eyes. Close at hand, tumbling, billowy and abrupt, the ridges follow or intercept one another in rapid succession. The face of the land is cut up into tortuous "breaks," the deep, narrow beds of countless little streams, all winding tributary to the river that flows placidly away to the northeast in the broad valley from which the column marched at dawn. Beyond that, west of north, clearly, sharply defined in the distance, already alternating glaring surface and ghostly shade under the slanting rays of the westering sun, a tumbling mass of jagged, fantastic shapes, a tangle of vertical cliffs and seamed and furrowed walls, a labyrinth of gorges, gullies, washed out channels, deep, black crevices, and broad, yawning, impassable gulfs, the storied Bad Lands of Dakota, shunned by all except the renegade and outlaw in the past, now habitable only by the Indian. Beyond these, faint and dim in the distance, the snow covered, pine crested summits in the Black Hills. All the rest of the surface, east, west and south, a frozen sea of gray, glinting here and there in the declining rays; and there off to the southwest, perhaps five miles away, lies the valley into which the party of dusky warriors has galloped so short a time before—the valley beyond which, a long, long day's march away, stands the guarded camp of comrade soldiery awaiting their return. Berrien studies the scene long and carefully through his glasses. Intermediate ridges are not many, but they are sharp and clearly defined.

"Who was it reported that the advance saw signal smokes south of us at noon?" he asks.

"Corporal Waite, sir; he and two of the men saw them plainly, and they seemed to be answered off here." And Ellis points miles away to the west.

Berrien ponders a moment.

"Where away would you locate the agency, sergeant, if you were going to take a bee line for it?"

"Out off here, sir."

"And they crossed that line going into the valley?"

"They certainly did, sir, and— Look, major! look yonder! Another band, and from exactly the same place."

A little bevy of dark objects darts suddenly into view from behind a curtainlike divide and goes skimming over a level stretch toward the lowlands of the valley. Berrien's glasses seem glued to his eyes.

"Twenty of them in that party! What do they see? What's their hurry? They would not expose themselves to our view unless there were urgent need for haste."

"The old road comes in from that direction, sir," answers Ellis. "We left it a few hours out from the cantonment, as you remember. Can anything have been seen along that road to give rise to signal smokes?"

Berrien turns half over and looks keenly into the sergeant's intelligent face.

"That road has been abandoned for weeks past. Everybody to the east of us has taken refuge at the railway long since. Nobody would be coming from that direction."

"I know that, sir; but would not any detachment coming from the agency to meet us, for instance, be apt to keep the road? I understood we were to strike for it in the morning and follow it in."

Again Berrien gazes long and earnestly through the binocular. "They are certainly heading for that road and riding at full speed. How many men have you at this front?" he quickly asks.

"Just eight, sir, all told, but eight more are almost within call over on our left flank. Yonder is the ridge where my men are posted." And Ellis points to their left rear where lies the low crest.

"Just keep a good lookout here, sergeant. I will move them over this way and then ride to the left flank. My horse, orderly." And, thinking deeply over the matter as he rides, Berrien spurs into a lively canter across an intervening dip in the prairie. "Some mischief ahead," he mutters. "They are not speeding up that valley for nothing. We may have to saddle and get over there."

Not two hundred yards has he ridden when from the point which he has just quitted there comes a sudden yell of warning, followed almost instantly by two shots in quick succession. Then bang! bang! another two, and, as he whirls about, the first object that meets his startled gaze is Ellis' handsome black horse plunging to earth almost at the edge of a shallow ravine some distance out in front of the butte.

"My God, sir," cries the orderly, "Sergeant Ellis is killed!"

Berrien's heart bounds. There, face downward upon the sward, motionless, just a few feet away from the plunging, death stricken horse, lies the sergeant, his carbine dropped from his nerveless hand. At the same instant red, glittering, bedaubed with paint, bespangled with cheap finery, two young Indian braves lash their ponies into furious gallop as they shoot up out of the shallow ravine, and rifles in hand, coupsticks advanced, race madly toward the stricken trooper in eager effort to secure the trophy of their prowess, the coveted scalp of the fallen foe.

"Your carbine, man!" yells Berrien to his orderly. "Quick! Shoot that leader!" And putting spurs to his snorting horse, reckless of the fact that he is armed only with revolver and that the ravine may be full of Indians, the veteran soldier drives full tilt at the charging braves. He thinks only of the fact that one of his men lies prostrate and helpless before them. They are almost upon Ellis before Berrien has galloped a rod. They are within twenty paces of him when, with a shout of delight, the major sees him whirl suddenly over, grasp his carbine, and, all in a second, the flame leaps from the bronzed muzzle, the foremost warrior drops his rifle, whirls up a clinching, convulsive hand and topples headforemost out of the saddle. Scott, the vedette, echoes with another shot that kicks up the dust close under the second pony's flashing heels. Its red rider veers in broad circle to the right, and in the twinkling of an eye the feathered war bonnet bows low over the pony's stretching neck. Berrien's bullet whizzes harmlessly above, and the major himself, borne by the rush of his half maddened steed, dashes on past Ellis, now kneeling for another shot, and goes crash into the midst of a little knot of yelling warriors just bounding up out of the gully to the rescue of their stricken comrade. "Bess, my wife; Winnie," are the only words he has time or thought to mutter, for instant death seems inevitable.

But all the old fighting instinct is uppermost, and almost in the face of the foremost Sioux his revolver blazes its challenge, and horse and pony meet in tremendous shock, and the lighter steed goes tumbling and rolling over the turf. There is chorus of yells, shots, soldier cheers, thundering hoofs. There is a vision of glittering steel in front of his eyes, of hideous painted face, a sudden sense of stumble and stunning fall, a shrill whoop of triumph, changing instantly into the death cry, and while his Brule antagonist goes crashing down, pony and all, Berrien is conscious of the superb leap of a big black charger over his own prostrate form, of a stentorian cheer from half a dozen trooper throats, and the next minute Brewster is kneeling by his side, raising the honored gray head in his strong young arms, and the voice that thundered in battle cry but an instant agone is trembling now as he calls for a canteen of water and bids his half stunned commander not to strive to move.

"We've got two of them, sir, all right," he whispers, breathless, but well knowing that to be the best news he can give. "The rest got away and left a bullet hole in your shoulder."

Coins of Value.

"Some pennies are worth a good deal of money," said a dealer in coins. "If you come across an old collection of copper cents in an out of the way corner you will do well to examine their dates carefully. From the point of view of the numismatist their value depends largely upon their condition. For example, for a cent of 1799 in a fair state of preservation we pay five dollars, but for a specimen of the same issue in first rate condition we would pay from ten to twenty-five dollars, and for a perfect cent of 1799—that is, as bright and sharp as the day it was coined—we will pay $100.

"Do not attempt to clean coins that are in fine condition. They should be held only by the edges in handling them, and ought to be kept wrapped carefully in chamois skin or soft tissue paper or laid on velvet. Gold and silver coins may be rinsed, not washed, in hot water and soap. Copper coins should be placed in sweat oil only to remove grease and dirt. Acids and scouring will ruin any coin of worth. Age does not necessarily make value in coins. The old Spanish silver pieces current in this country from 1700 to 1800 are worth no more than their face, and the same is the case with cents of 1798, 1802 and 1803, as well as with half dollars of dates between 1805 and 1835."—Washington Star.

An Old Question Asked Anew.

The old question has been lately asked anew, Why fill the infant mind with images of cruelty and horror? Why suggest to innocence the dreadful vision of ogres fattening captives like sheep for their table? Why torture it with that appalling cabalistic bloody invocation, Fee, faw, fum? Why permit the hoary murderer Blue Beard to terrify the young before in historical sequence they reach Henry VIII, in no extenuating page of Froude, but as the grisly murderer and defender of the faith of the older annals? And why perplex the callow pilgrim scarcely embarked on the journey of life, which the reverend and the wise describe as a moral warfare, by the rhyme which declares the greedy thief of a plum from the copious pudding a good boy?

Why is a glutton who triumphs in his gluttony to be commended in honeyed measure as good, while nothing is said in praise—nay, he is not even mentioned—of the virtue of the unnamed comrade, who was undoubtedly present and who restrained his desire to pull out plums, and who, so far as posterity knows, not only had no plum, but also forbore the sauce?—George William Curtis in Harper's.

THIRTEEN TOWNS

FAIR,

At Fosston, Minn.

Wednesday, Thnrsday and Friday,

Oct. 5th, 6th and 7th.

HORSE RACING,
BASE BALL,
ATHLETIC SPORTS,
SPEECH MAKING.

$2,000 IN PURSES AND PREMIUMS.

For Premium List and further particulars, write to
W. H. AVERILL,
Sec. 13 Towns Fair Association,
FOSSTON, MINN.

DO YOU COUGH DON'T DELAY TAKE KEMP'S BALSAM THE BEST COUGH CURE

It Cures Colds, Coughs, Sore Throat, Croup, Influenza, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis and Asthma. A certain cure for Consumption in first stages, and a sure relief in advanced stages. Use at once. You will see the excellent effect after taking the first dose. Sold by dealers everywhere. Large bottles 50 cents and $1.00.

S. L. COLLINS,
Proprietor of Main Street
Livery and Feed Stables.
Cor. Main and Fourth Sts., west side,
CROOKSTON, - - MINNESOTA.

Horses bought and sold on commission. Everything neat and nobby. Feeding a specialty.

FINE HEARSE

in connection, which I will attend to in person.

C. HENDRICKSON, President.
L. ELLINGTON, Vice President.
J. W. WHEELER, Cashier.
H. STEENERSON, 2d Vice President.
A. P. Hanson, Assistant Cashier.

Scandia-American Bank,

Of Crookston, Minn. Organized under the State laws. Authorized capital $200,000. Paid up capital $50,000. Undivided profits $10,500. Buys Bonds, School and Town Orders. Special attention to collections. Interest on time deposits.

DIRECTORS—C. O. Christianson, E. P. Pierce, O. H. Lucken, A. G. Gallasch, H. Steenerson, J. H. Locken, C. Hendrickson, Max Ericsson, L. K. Aaker, J. W. Wheeler.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication August 18th, 1892.]

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE CONditions of a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Henry A. Bruns and Matilda Bruns, his wife, to George H. Taylor, bearing date the 30th day of October, A. D. 1889, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 4th day of November, A. D. 1889, at 1:30 o'clock p. m., in book 44 of mortgages, on pages 188-192. And whereas the said George H. Taylor the owner and holder of said mortgage has elected to declare, and hereby does declare, the whole principal sum in said mortgage set forth and represented by the notes therein described upon which default has occurred, due and payable at the date of this notice under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

And whereas there is actually due and payable at the date hereof including principal and interest upon the notes in said mortgage described upon which there is default, the following sum, to-wit: Four hundred and fifty-four and 40-100 ($454.40) dollars; and whereas said mortgagee has been compelled to, and has paid the taxes upon the lands in said mortgage described as follows: 1889, $19.53; 1890, $13.50; and 1891, $14.93. And whereas the said power of sale has become operative and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: Situate, lying and being in the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The southeast quarter of the northeast quarter (se¼ ne¼) the northeast quarter of the southeast quarter (ne¼ se¼) and lot eight (8) in Section No. six (6); also lot No. one (1) in Section No. seven (7), all in Township No. one hundred and forty-eight (148) north, of range No. forty-three (43) west, containing one hundred forty-three 25-100 acres, more or less, and all in Polk county and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five ($25) dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of Polk county, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said county and State, on the 30th day of September, A. D. 1892, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated August 17th, A. D. 1892.

GEORGE H. TAYLOR,
Mortgagee.

TAYLOR & WOODARD,
Attorneys for Mortgagee,
920 Guaranty Loan Building,
Minneapolis, Minn.

[18-24]

GREAT NORTHERN Railway
TIME CARD.

MONTANA EXPRESS—Daily.

West				East
7:40 p m	De.	St Paul	Ar.	6:55 a m
2:50 a m	"	Fergus Falls	"	11:25 p m
4:47 a m	"	Glyndon	"	9:36 p m
7:20 a m	"	CROOKSTON	"	7:25 p m
8:40 a m	"	Grand Forks	"	6:20 p m
9:45 a m	"	Larimore	"	5:00 p m
2: 1 p m	"	Devils Lake	"	2:55 a m
7:00 p m	Ar.	Butte	De.	7:30 a m

ST. VINCENT BRANCH—Daily except Sunday
Depart 7:30 a m — Arrive 6:30 p m
FOSSTON BRANCH—Tues., Thurs. and Sat.
Depart 8:00 a m — Arrive 5:30 p m
ST. HILAIRE BRANCH—Monday Wed. & Friday.
Depart 10:45 a m — Arrive 4:30 p m
GRAND FORKS' ACCOMMODATION.
Arrive 9:50 a m — Depart 7:55 p m

The scenic route to Spokane, Helena, and Butte on the west, and St. Paul, Minneapolis-Duluth and West Superior on the east. Dining and sleeping cars on all through trains. Tickets on sale to all principal places. Baggage checked through to destination.

W. W. FEGAN, Agent.

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.

TIME SCHEDULE.

	Leave Crookston Daily.	Arrive Crookston Daily.
For Duluth, Ashland, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Chicago, and all points East and South	7:05 p. m.	8:27 a. m.
For Grand Forks, Grafton, Pembina, Winnipeg and points in N. Dakota and Winnipeg	8:27 a. m.	7:05 p. m.

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.

THE
Great Transcontinental Route

Passes through Wisconsin, Minnesota North Dakota, Manitoba, Montana, Idaho, Oregon and Washington.

The Dining Car Line

Dining cars are run between Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Winnipeg, Butte, Helena, Tacoma, Seattle and Portland.

PULLMAN SLEEPING CAR ROUTE.

Pullman service daily between Chicago, St. Paul, Montana and the Pacific Northwest; and between St. Paul, Minneapolis and Minnesota, North Dakota and Manitoba points.

THE POPULAR LINE.

Daily Express Trains carry elegant Pullman Sleeping Cars, Dining Cars, Day Coaches, Pullman Tourist Sleepers and Free Colonist Sleeping Cars.

YELLOWSTONE PARK ROUTE.

The Northern Pacific R. R. is the rail line to Yellowstone Park; the popular line to California and Alaska; and its trains pass through the grandest scenery of seven states.

THROUGH TICKETS

Are sold at all coupon offices of the Northern Pacific Railroad to points North, East, South and West, in the United States and Canada.

For rates, maps, time tables, or special information, apply to
CHAS. A. SHARKEY,
Agent Northern Pacific R. R.,
Crookston, Minn.
CHAS. S. FEE,
Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent,
St. Paul, Minn.

A. A. JUST, M. D.,
Homoeopathic Physician and Surgeon
OFFICE IN
McKinnon Block, Crookston

A. H. DUNLAP, M. D.
Graduate McGill University, Montreal.
LICENSED COLLEGE PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS. QUEBEC.
Office in McKinnon Block.

Mortgage Sale.

(First publication Aug. 25, 1892.)
(Last publication Oct. 6, 1892.)

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of one hundred dollars ($100) and the sum of seventy-five dollars ($75) and interest on said sums from the 9th day of October, 1886, at the rate of 10 per cent per annum, which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Frederick Bieler to Francis J. Detling, bearing date the 9th day of October, A. D. 1886, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 2d day of December, A. D. 1886, at 9 o'clock a. m., in book 22 of mortgages, on page 96, which mortgage, together with the debt thereby secured, was duly assigned by said Francis J. Detling, mortgagee, to Joseph Z. Perron by written assignment, dated the 28th day of February, A. D. 1891, and recorded in the office of said Register of Deeds on the 24th day of March, 1891, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book 56 of mortgages, on page 119; and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: Lots numbered one, (1) two, (2) and three, (3) in block numbered forty, (40) in Kretzschmar's Addition to Red Lake Falls, Polk county, Minnesota, according to the plat thereof on file in the Register of Deeds office in and for said County and State, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 8th day of October, A. D. 1892, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated August 20th, A. D. 1892.

JOSEPH Z. PERRON,
Assignee of Mortgagee.

P. G. FALARDEAU,
Attorney for Assignee,
Red Lake Falls, Minn.

[19-25]

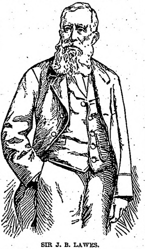
FARM AND GARDEN

THE ROTHAMSTED EXPERIMENTS.

Sir J. B. Lawes' Notable Work in the Interests of Scientific Agriculture.

Many Americans, going to England, have visited Rothamsted, inspected the experiments in progress and made the acquaintance of Sir John Bennett Lawes, whose agricultural work there during the last fifty years is known throughout the civilized world. This friendly intercourse has led Sir John to institute a course of lectures, to be delivered biennially in the United States, upon the investigations carried on at Rothamsted. From a report, published by the department of agriculture, of the first six lectures delivered under the Lawes trust, at Washington, by Robert Warington F. R. S., we learn the following:

Sir John entered upon his home farm of 250 acres in 1834. Three or four years later he began experiments, in pots, upon the effect of various manures, and these led to field experiments.

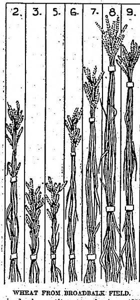


SIR J. B. LAWES.

The foundation of the Rothamsted station for agricultural experiments is earlier than that of any other, with the single exception of that established in Alsace. The earliest German station, that at Mockern, was founded in 1852; the earliest American station, at Middletown, Conn., in 1875. The earliest of the systematic field experiments at Rothamsted were those with turnips, commencing in 1843. The continuous wheat experiments commenced in the autumn of the same year, the first harvest being in 1844.

In the earlier trials made upon turnips and wheat the manures varied a good deal from year to year and the same plot was not always treated in the same way; a more regular proceeding was, however, soon adopted and has since been generally adhered to. In the later systematic experiments each plot receives every year the same manuring, unless a change of treatment is needed to attain some special object. The substances applied are ammonium salts, sodium nitrate, superphosphate made from bone ash, potassium sulphate, magnesium sulphate and sodium sulphate. The various constituents of plant food are thus applied in a soluble and active form. The weight of each constituent applied is also known, so that the results admit of quantitative treatment.

Wheat has been grown in the celebrated Broadbalk field every year for forty-eight years, and there is at present no appearance of any decline in its fertility. Our second cut is from a photograph representing the wheat harvested in 1878 from seven of the plots. Plot 2 has received farmyard manure every year since 1844; plot 3 has been unmanured for the same period; plot 5 has received ash constituents only since 1852; plot 6, the ash constituents, with 200 pounds of ammonium salts; plot 7, the same, with 400 pounds of ammonium salts; plot 8, the same, with 600 pounds ammonium salts; plot 9, the ash constituents, with 550 pounds of sodium nitrate. The picture illustrates in a striking manner the preponderating effect of nitrogenous manures in determining the luxuriance of wheat.



WHEAT FROM BROADBALK FIELD.

A correspondent of Hoard's Dairyman says that from trials with the Babcock test he is convinced that a cow over eight or ten years old will not give as good a test in the richness of her milk as when she was in her prime. They may keep up the quantity of milk, but it will grow poorer in butter fat.

WHEAT CULTURE.

Causes of Poor Crops—Suggestions About Marketing.

Sowing foul seed is one prime cause of sorry crops, according to a writer in Ohio Farmer, who expresses the following opinions: "If all the foul seeds with our wheat were harvested to themselves and measured it would surprise most farmers. Yet this is not all, for it costs as much to sow and reap this foul growth, bushel for bushel, as it does the wheat, and robbed the soil of as much fertility, and, moreover, it must be got out from among the wheat or make inferior flour, which will add another cost to the crop.

"A proper preparation of the soil is too much neglected by most farmers, and this adds another cause for poor crops. The thorough preparation of the soil before sowing is more necessary for wheat than most any other crop. All we can do to insure a good crop ends with the sowing of the seed. Cultivated crops may be planted on a poorly prepared soil and by after cultivation the soil put in order. But this cannot be done with a wheat crop. Moreover, the greatest enemy of the wheat crop is the freezing and thawing of winter, and a well prepared, compact seed bed enables the wheat to root down in the solid earth and be less liable to be thrown out of the ground, and the very fine, mellow surface pushes a quick growth, enabling the plant to grow sufficient blade to furnish protection to the root. But an improvement in the seed bed would not only do all this, which would increase the yield in the end, but would require less seed, which would go into the thousands of bushels saved, and counting up profits it will be found more in what we save than in what we make.

"Another reason for poor crops is the farmers' lands are growing thin from excessive cropping and they do not manure their land in any way. If the farmers would manure their land liberally with good stable manure or sow clover they would greatly increase their yield.

"Another point I wish to suggest to the reader is the marketing of their wheat. I believe many of our farmers sell their wheat at a disadvantage, and believe many times twenty-five cents more might be realized by having their wheat made into flour and sell it and feed the bran to their stock, and thus a good portion of the fertility would be returned to the soil. A little additional cost for a better quality of seed, a little more work in preparing the soil, the more liberal use of good manure, will return to the farmer an increased yield of wheat, and thus greatly enhance the profit of wheat growing."

Potash and Soda.

Dr. E. H. Jenkins says, in The New England Farmer, that a dressing of salt sometimes has a very marked effect on the following crop. The Rural New Yorker, commenting on the foregoing, says so also may an application of carbonate of soda. The same is true of copperas and other salts. But this does not prove or even indicate that these salts can in any way "replace" potash in the plant. They no doubt increase the solubility of the plant food in the soil. Both potash and soda are necessary to the plant. Neither can wholly replace the other, though the quantity of soda which is absolutely necessary is extremely small.

Chicken Cholera.

Shelter the affected birds from the sun and give every five hours a teaspoonful of castor oil, into which has been dropped five drops of laudanum, until the diarrhea ceases; give soft, not wet food, with cayenne pepper; this is a recipe in common use; in this case, as in most others, however, an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure; keep the birds in clean, dry quarters, with plenty of clean, pure water to drink and food to eat, and there will be no diarrhea and consequent cholera.

An Economical Manger.

The food which most horses waste is a factor that adds largely to the cost of keeping them. Horses that are bad about wasting their feed should have a manger especially arranged for economy. The New England Homestead gives a cut of a manger for preventing waste, of which the one who planned it says:

The animal accustomed to take a mouthful and then turn his head will rarely turn far if he has to back before doing it. With the manger boarded, as in Fig. 1, leaving just room enough for his easy access to the feed, what grain is dropped he will find again. The upright boards should be nailed to the manger on its inner side. If the horse merely roots the cut food around, a guard will prevent waste. This consists of an 8-inch board nailed to the manger, as in Fig. 2 at A. It will catch anything that is thrown up under it, and food dropped on it will roll back.

PLAN OF MANGER.

Agricultural Notes.

The hay crop is reported large, but of doubtful quality owing to many weeds.

The Texas hay crop from wild and cultivated grasses is estimated at $1,590,887.

Two-thirds of a full average crop of corn and 95 per cent. of a full average of wheat is reported for Iowa.

Some of the state buildings on the exposition grounds at Chicago will be historic reproductions, representing Fort Marion, Washington's home at Mount Vernon and similar structures. They will be surrounded by handsome lawns, with shrubbery and flowers.

The hop growers in New York state are combining to protect their interests.

It has been estimated that 15,000,000 acres of land are lying idle in Virginia.

A DIAMOND MARKET.

EXPERTS IN PARIS WHO KNOW ALL THE PRECIOUS STONES.

A Place Where a Stranger Would See No Traces of Buying or Selling—Millions of Dollars Represented in One Day's Stock Carried in Queer Places.

It was the Abbe Hauy who subjected diamonds to the roughest treatment. He used to take a hammer and smash them. He did the same with emeralds, rubies and sapphires, just as if they were worth nothing. By this heroic treatment the venerable abbe discovered that the broken particles of all precious stones have particular forms which establish their genuineness beyond all doubt. Before his time it was almost impossible to tell a diamond from a brilliant or a piece of rock crystal.

But now nobody breaks precious stones. Any dealer can take, with an indifferent air, the diamond that is presented to him for examination, and say without the least hesitation, "That weighs so much; it is a little fellow: it is worth so much." And he is never deceived. At the present time everybody is somewhat of a dealer, and the consequence is that everybody can distinguish a real diamond among a thousand bogus stones.

On the second floor of a cafe in the Boulevard Montmartre the market or bourse of precious stones is held, always in broad daylight. Very few strangers to the trade can penetrate this sanctuary, not because the access to it is difficult, for the door is always wide open, but because the portfolios close and the stars disappear the moment an unknown face appears at the threshold.

Instead of animated traders the stranger only finds a few dull eyed Jews, carelessly playing a game of bezique. Ah, but there is a Turk there, too; the Turk that looks so much like Coudere, of the Opera Comique, except that he is yellow and wears very loose trousers, but these trousers are full of diamonds. Don't believe for a moment that these good Jews, the merchants in precious stones, are afraid of robbers. That is the smallest thing that bothers them. What they dread is to let the profane, and especially the small jewelers, know the real value of their goods.

As soon as the stranger departs the arms stretch out and the portfolios reappear. The greater number of these portfolios are made of tin and are closed with a lock and key. In a moment the tables are covered with little bundles of white paper formed like those in which the druggists put rhubarb or sulphate of magnesia. These packages are opened, and in less time than it takes to tell it all the tables, including the billiard table, are covered with precious stones that might startle the king of Persia. A strange spectacle is presented by those sordid old men quietly taking from their pockets three or four millions' worth. Each one of perhaps 10,000 packages contains so many brilliants. After they are disposed of the rare stones are introduced. Here there are sapphires as big as nuts. There lies a black diamond almost as large as the twelve pearls that surround it. Here again is a necklace made of fifteen emeralds that would make as many snuffboxes, certainly not big enough for M. Hyacinthe, of the Palais Royal, but too big beyond a doubt for the nose of Mlle. D.

"Here is a rare bargain," shouts one of the merchants, "one of the finest pieces of ancient jewelry known! It is a necklace that belonged to Madame la Princesse de Guemenee. Mounting, diamonds and all are ancient. Prince Proisetoiloff refused 75,000 francs for it twenty years ago."

The necklace is passed from hand to hand. The merchants gaze at it with attention. The eyeglasses come into play. Indecision and doubt are painted upon some faces. At last the necklace is passed to Michel. He is the great judge. He takes the thing, weighs it in his hand, looks at it with an indifferent air and says, "The two brilliants are ancient. They come with their mounting from the Countess de Prejean. The two others, still finer, once formed part of a necklace which was stolen in Venice in 1804 from Mme. Morosini. This necklace belonged later on to Lady Temple, whose husband purchased it at Candaar of Isaac Lieven. Lady Temple gave it to her daughter, who sold it three days after her marriage. As for the sapphire in the center, that comes from the sale of Mlle. Schneider. The rest is new and comes direct from Hamburg. But, after all, it is well preserved, and 75,000 francs does not seem to be too much for it."

As extraordinary as it may appear there are now living five or six individuals who know all the costly diamonds and all the rich jewels in the world, and they are able to recognize them after a lapse of thirty years, even when they had first only seen them a moment, as certainly as a tailor would recognize at thirty paces the customer that forgot to pay him.

When a robbery is committed in the house of a well known jeweler, a thing which often happens in Paris, London, Vienna and St. Petersburg, if there is among the objects stolen a stone of more than ordinary value it is sure to be found again, although it may take many years to bring it back to its owner.—Figaro.

A Word to Young People.

You must be willing to bear reverses. You must expect disappointments. You must be ready to meet ill luck and to endure poverty if need be. Don't expect things to make themselves unless you help them. Whatever you have must be worked for, and if it is worth having it is richly worth working for.—Ludgate Weekly.

What an Epicure Is.

The term epicure means only the person who has good sense and good taste enough to wish to have his food cooked according to scientific principles; that is to say, so prepared that the palate be not offended, that it be rendered easy of digestion and ultimately contribute to health.—Cook's Oracle."

C
AT BEDTIME I TAKE A PLEASANT HERB DRINK

THE NEXT MORNING I FEEL BRIGHT AND NEW AND MY COMPLEXION IS BETTER.
My doctor says it acts gently on the stomach, liver and kidneys, and is a pleasant laxative. This drink is made from herbs, and is prepared for use as easily as tea. It is called
LANE'S MEDICINE
All druggists sell it at 50c. and $1.00 a package. If you cannot get it, send your address for free sample. Lane's Family Medicine moves the bowels each day. In order to be healthy, this is necessary. Address, ORATOR F. WOODWARD, LeROY, N. Y.

Work Horses - - - and Mares.

FOR GOOD, SOLID WORK HORSES and MARES, go to

M. R. BROWN,

The old reliable dealer, who has sold horses in this county since 1878, and who is always on hand to make his guaranty good. Every man who ever sold horses here is ready (when he sells) to guaranty, but later, if you happen to want him to make his guaranty good you can't most always sometimes find him ready to make his recommend good. He handles only good young horses and has sold more than any dealer in the county. He is now prepared to supply the demand for good teams—he handles no other—and guaranty them just as recommended. Before you buy you will do well to call at

Brown's New Stables,

Main Street, one door north of the old M. E. church building.

Valley Roller Mills

MANUFACTURERS OF

FINE FLOUR

From Selected Red River Wheat.

QUOTATIONS.

Best	$2.25	per	98 lbs.
North Star	2.10	"	"
Fife	1.90	"	"
Skip Jack	1.25	"	"
Bran	9.00	"	ton.
Shorts	10.00	"	"

Call early and get your supply of feed.

☞ We exchange flour for wheat on equitable terms.

LEE & HERRICK.

NEW CIGAR STORE

SIGN OF THE BIG INDIAN.

H. F. BROWN, Proprietor.

Second Street,
CROOKSTON, MINN

Cigars of every known brand, from a cheroot to a 25 center. Cigarettes, Chewing and Smoking Tobaccos of all kinds, Snuff, Pipes to suit the fancy of all, from a corn-cob pipe to a meerchaum.

CALL IN.

MARTIN O'BRIEN,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
{I. O. O. F. BUILDING.} Crookston, Minn.

MILLER & FOOTE,
ATTY'S-AT-LAW,
McKinnon Block. - Crookston, Minn.

THE PIONEER
HARNESS SHOP,
M. RAUENBUEHLR, Proprietor.
A full supply of everything kept by the trade.
Cor of Broadway and Third Sts,
CROOKSTON. - - MINN

IF YOU ARE GOING EAST OR SOUTH ASK YOUR NEAREST AGENT FOR TICKETS VIA THE BURLINGTON AND TAKE NO OTHER LINE.

L. E. GOSSMAN,
Attorney-at-Law,
No. 2 Fournet Block } CROOKSTON, MINN.

P. J. RUSSELL,
Attorney-at-Law
CROOKSTON, MINN.
Next to Merchants' Bank.

Ripans Tabules cure dyspepsia.
Ripans Tabules are always ready.
Ripans Tabules cure scrofula.

Until I Remove Back to

MY OLD STAND

I will Sell Everything in my store

Way Down Low.

—I am making a Special Drive in—

CLOAKS ☞ FOR LADIES' AND CHILDREN.

Which we are selling at

ACTUAL COST

Laid down here. If you don't think I am giving bargains,

{COME IN AND PRICE MY GOODS.}

A. CHABOT.

Pro. New York Dry Goods store, - - CROOKSTON, MINN.

A word to the wise and money savers.

GERVAIS'--The Hustlers,

THE GREATEST AGGREGATION OF

Spring and Summer Goods

That Ever Landed in the Northwest, comprising

The Latest Novelties in Fancy and Domestic Goods.
Dress Goods and Trimmings,
Jackets, Cloaks and Cloakings,
Parasols and Umbrellas for rain and sunshine.
White Goods and Embroideries,
Wash Goods in all the newest weaves,
Jersey ribbed and muslin Underwear,
Ladies' Shirt Waists in many styles,
Spring Caps and Straw Hats.

CARPETS

In all grades and newest designs.
Lace and Chenille Curtains and Portiers,
House Furnishing Goods, of all kinds,
New departure in Boots and Shoes.

Call In and Get Prices.

I. O. O. F. Block, Crookston. GERVAIS & GERVAIS, Leaders in Low Prices.

Schmidt, the Painter,

—CARRIES A FULL AND COMPLETE STOCK OF—

PAINTS,
OILS AND
VARNISHES.

—ALSO A FULL AND COMPLETE LINE OF—

☞ WALL PAPER. ☜

Painting in all its branches, and Paper Hanging artistically done.

Call at the Shop on Broadway.

McKINNON BROS.,

—DEALERS IN—

ALL OF THE LEADING

Agricultural Implements

MAIN STREET. McKINNON BLOCK.

☞ Before Purchasing, Give Us a Call. ☜

THE NEW
NORTHWEST

FARM LANDS — Home seekers will find the last of the public domain of agricultural and grazing value along the Great Northern Ry. in North Dakota and Montana.

NEW TOWNS — 100 or more, along the Great Northern Railway Line. Business chances. Write F. I. WHITNEY, St. Paul, Minn., for Books, Maps, &c. Write now.

LOW RATES — Settlers on free Government lands along the Great Northern Ry. Line in North Dakota and Montana get low rates and fine markets for products.

Horses, Cattle. — Montana produces the finest Horses and Cattle. Free ranges yet in Mouse, Milk and Sun River Valleys and Sweet Grass Hills.

Health, Wealth. — In the Northwest. Free Lands, New Towns, New Railways, New Mines, Low Rates. Largest area of good vacant land.

Sheep, Hogs. — Sweetest Grass Hills, Milk and Sun River Valleys, Montana, reached only by the Great Northern Railway Line. The stock raisers' paradise.

Herds, Mines. — These have made Montana the richest State per capita in the Union. Plenty of room for more miners and stock raisers. Now is the time.

First National Bank
OF CROOKSTON

PAID IN CAPITAL, - $100,000
SURPLUS, - - $14,200

Interest on time deposits. Faithful attention to Collections and prompt remittance.

GEO. Q. ERSKINE, President.
WM. ANGLIM, Vice President.
CHAS. E. SAWYER, Cashier.

DIRECTORS:
Wm. Anglim, K. D. Chase, F. D. Childs
Geo. Q. Erskine. J. B. McKinnon. A. A. Miller
E. M. Walsh. Chas. E. Sawyer W. H. Crosby

JOHN CROMB,
Attorney-at-Law,
SECOND STREET. CROOKSTON

'Round Home.

Wheat—1 Hard 65.
1 Northern 63.

Sheriff Grundysen was at Grand Forks Monday.

Miss Lizzie Zarracher was over to Fisher Saturday.

Mrs. Frank Dickinson of Stephen is visiting friends in the city.

The two Toms—Young and Harris—drove over to Fisher Sunday.

Miss Ollie Webster is assisting in the work at the county auditor's office.

John L. Dow, of Grand Forks, was visiting in the city Sunday night.

Geo. B. McLean, our genial deputy postmaster, went over to Fisher Sunday visiting friends.

Gulbronson Bros. are in need of several seamstresses. Call or address them at Crookston.

Commissioner Rhinehart and Erwin attended a meeting of the Masonic lodge Monday evening.

More new furniture still arriving at I. U. Jenning's furniture store, and it is being sold at same low prices.

The JOURNAL is under obligations to Editor Rutledge this week for services in pursuing the nimble local.

A. A. McGregor, commission merchant of Minneapolis, was in Crookston Monday looking up wheat to ship to his home.

Miss Edith Herrick, of Fisher, who has been the guest of Mrs. Hugh Thompson during the past week. left for her home yesterday morning.

Ed Nash, senior member of the firm of Nash Bros., wholesale fruit dealers of Grand Forks, was registered at the Commercial Sunday evening.

You would save money on your shoe bill by buying Bradley & Metcalf's shoes, which cost no more than ordinary shoes, and Locken & Holmboe have the sole agency in Polk county.

"Jack" McGlogan who recently moved with his family to Kalispell, Mont., visited in the city Saturday and Sunday and left for his home Monday morning.

Messrs. T. W., Frank and Charlie Walter and Miss Walter, of Beltrami, were in Crookston, Saturday purchasing a quantity of supplies from our merchants.

Martin and Tom Benson, of the town of Knute, finished threshing their wheat last Saturday, and report an average of 24 bushels, No. 1 Northern, to the acre.

Arrangements are being made whereby the Crookston ball team will play at Fosston, October 5th, the opening day of the Thirteen Towns Fair association.

C. H. Baldwin of the firm of Larsen, Carpenter & Co., returned Sunday from Larimore, N. D. He says the wheat on his farm turned out about 16 bushels—and still he's not happy.

Mr. L. H. Benson, brother of Probate Judge Benson, arrived from Castle Rock, on Thursday of last week. He is at Erskine making arrangements to engage in the general merchandise business.

No daily train was put on the Fosston line, last Monday, notice to the contrary notwithstanding. Agent Fegan informs the JOURNAL that he had no official announcement that the daily service would be inaugurated this week, but adds that the same will undoubtedly be in vogue within a fortnight.

Mrs. Bangs is still selling her goods at 50 cents less than cost. Velvets at 30 cents per yard. Felt and beaver hats for ladies and children from 25 to 40 cents. She has also for sale yet a carpet, oilcloths, wardrobe, lamps, curtains, counters and 100 stamping patterns. She is disposing of her goods at a sacrifice, as she must leave for California soon.

Surveyor Geo. Ralph left Monday morning for the reservation, where he will finish the surveying which he was compelled to leave last spring on account of the protracted wet weather. Mr. Ralph will have a crew of fifteen men and in all has about eight townships to survey. He expects to complete the job about November 5th.

Last Friday evening Miss Grace Duntley, Bert Duntley's 8-year-old daughter, broke her left wrist. The little girl was attempting the dangerous feat of walking on the top board of the fence when she fell to the ground with the above result. Dr. Dunlop was called and set the broken member and Grace is now getting along nicely.

L. D. Marshall, who has been with the Red River Elevator Co., for several years as superintendent with headquarters here, has been promoted to the position of manager of the company and will be located at Minneapolis where he will remove with his family in a couple of weeks. Since Mr. Marshall's residence here he has always taken a lively interest in the welfare of the city, and his removal will be a public loss. In social circles Mr. Marshall and his estimable wife will be greatly missed.

Soft easy shoes for tender feet, at The Fair.

The ladies say Mrs. Bangs is almost giving her goods away.

Felix Fournet went to Argyle, Monday morning, to rustle liquor orders.

A large double blanket can be bought for $1.00 at Locken & Holmboe's.

J. R. Gardner, the insurance hustler, returned, Monday morning, from Minneapolis.

For one dollar a week you can buy a fall jacket of any kind at Fontaine & Anglim's,

County Auditor Webster was at Fisher, Sunday, visiting with his sons, R. T. and Uziah.

If there is anything in the merchandise line that you cannot find, ask Locken & Holmboe for it.

Ed. George returned last Saturday morning from a trip to Rochester, N. Y., where he has spent a very pleasant time with friends.

Mrs. Wm. Price died last Saturday in Carman, of inflammation of the bowels. The deceased was the widow of Wm. Price, the section foreman at Beltrami, who died last winter.

N. P. Stone has been confined to his room since the 10th inst. by sore eyes, He has been a sufferer, at different times, for several years, with very poor eyes, and has often been unable to attend to his duties.

Major C. H. Mix and Capt. Frank Zarracher left last Thursday for the G. A. R. encampment at Washington. Frank will visit his home in Pennyslvania and the Major will also take occasion to visit friends in the east.

Hanging lamps, Rochester lamps, reflector lamps, stand lamps, kitchen lamps, hand lamps, nutmeg lamps in immense quantities and a large variety are being unpacked at Locken & Holmboe's opera house department store.

Hugh Thompson was at Fisher Monday, looking after his interests there. The roller mill of which he is proprietor, is being enlarged and overhauled. A new set of boilers are being put in, which will greatly increase the output of the mill.

Karl Cornelius, the 18-year-year son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter. Cornelius died last Saturday of consumption. The funeral services were held at the home of Mr. Cornelius, Monday afternoon, Rev. L. W. Squire, pastor of the M. E. church, conducted the services.

THE last number of "Pointers," published by Wright, Barret & Stillwell, contains the following well deserved compliment: "If you want to see a good looking, clean country paper, get a copy of the Press, Thief River Falls, Minn. It is a 'bird' as the boys say."

C. O. Felland, of the firm of Felland Bros., horse dealers of Madison, Wisconsin, was over from Fisher, Monday. Mr. F. has several fine stallions that he intends entering at the Fosston fair. This firm is building up a splendid trade throughout northern Minnesota and North Dakota as they import nothing but first-class stock.

Prof. G. W. Walker, the new principal of the Fisher schools, was in the city Friday evening, to witness the Margaret Mather performance at the Grand. The professor hails from Monticello, Minn., and is a graduate of the High School at that place. Although but 24 years of age, the professor is one of the best informed men we have had the pleasure of meeting, and is "'way up" in educational and social matters. The citizens of Fisher are fortunate in securing such an able instructor.

E. M. Stanton addressed the democratic club Tuesday evening on the subject of free trade. Mr. Stanton is a firm believer in the principles of free trade and in his discourse he reviewed the workings of the corn laws in England and their disastrous effect upon the commerce of that country until they were repealed and free trade prevailed. But to compare the corn laws of England to the protective tariff of the United States is by no means fair, as the former was a tax on agricultural products only, while the latter is directed against foreign manufactures as well as foreign products. Mr. Stanton is an orator of considerable ability and one whom it is a pleasure to listen to.

Last Friday night, Nick Thompson, a patient at the county hospical, died of typhoid fever. He was brought over from Fisher, about two weeks ago, and was in very poor condition. "Old Nick," as he was familiarly known by everyone, has been one of the "land-marks" of Fisher for the past seven or eight years. He was always a heavy drinker, and for three years has scarcely drawn a sober breath. He worked at odd jobs about the village, and scrubbed and did other drudgery in the saloons for his liquor. His favorite quarters in Fisher were at the town hall, where he slept on a cot. Owing to his excessive indulgence in the "ardent," he has been in a terrible condition, and death was not far distant when he was removed to the hospital.

Buy your fall jackets of Fontaine & Anglim on the installment plan only one dollar a week.

Carpets, rugs, draperies and curtains—all new and well-selected—at Locken & Holmboe's.

Locken & Holmboe take special pride in their shoe stock.

Editor Lanman, of the McIntosh Times, was doing business with the county officials Friday.

The ladies are still rushing to Mrs. Bang's store to secure those lovely goods. Prices lower than ever.

Cloaks from one of the largest and best manufacturers in the east, from $2.00 up to $50.00, at Locken & Holmboe's.

You can buy a "fall wrap" of any kind at Fontaine & Anglim's and it will only cost you one dollar a week, until the whole is paid for.

C. J. Knox, of the firm of Knox & Tindolph, real estate dealers of Thief River Falls, was transacting business in the city, last Monday.

The Great Northern Railway now has about 100 men employed at this point, cutting down the Carman hill and raising the tracks in the yard.

Rev. H. Ware of Brainerd, Minn., passed through the city Friday on his way home from a visit to his son P. S. Ware of the Thief River Falls Press.

A. Chabot has purchased the tailoring establishment of A. Emond, and will conduct the business in the present stand, as soon as he can find a good tailor to put in charge of the shop.

Farmers should trade at a store where they can sell anything they produce and buy anything they need for their families. It saves time and money. Locken & Holmboe's is the place.

Locken & Holmboe appreciates the farmers' trade and wish to say to every farmer that anything they can do for them to merit their patronage will always afford them much pleasure.

The business of Locken & Holmboe has increased so that they have added another clerk, a Miss Velyer Ehri, who has been three years with the Ontario store at Grand Forks. She will have charge of the dry goods department.

Last Thursday evening a tramp sneaked into the store of Mossefin & Lindell by the Broadway entrance, and while those in the store were busily engaged, he grabbed six pairs of pants and made his escape. Chief Gonyea, acting on information given by Mr. Walworth who had seen the thief carry off the goods and suspected something was wrong—soon had the culprit arrested. He was taken before Justice Spendley, who committed him to the next term of court.

The harvest day services at the Methodist Episcopal church last Sunday were well attended, and the display of products was splendid, the quality being especially good. The pastor L. W. Squire delivered a very novel address, taking a sheaf of wheat and showing the different phases of human life and character which are represented in its composition. In the evening a harvest day concert was given, consisting of songs, readings, recitations etc., by the young people of the church.

The repairs on the county bridge at Fisher have been completed and the work accepted by the committee. Commissioner Thos. Erwin had charge of the work and was assisted by Henry Nolan. The approaches, at both ends of the bridge, were altered, new abutments, floors and needle beams were put in, and the entire structure moved about seven feet on to new piers. The bridge is now in excellent condition: and the repairs were speedily made. The total cost of the work was $1,171.75, of which amount the county pays $878.97 and the village $292.60. Commissioner Erwin did his work in a very creditable manner, and deserves the thanks of the people of Fisher and vicinity.

The Wilson Theatre company, pronounced by everybody to be the best repertoire company ever to visit Crookston, return after an absence of over a year, for one week's engagement, commencing Monday, Sept. 26th. Owing to the fact that this company is to play this city for a week, the prices have been reduced; the highest price for a ticket will be fifty cents and the lowest fifteen cents. The company's repertoire consists of "Mr. Barnes, of New York," a play never before seen in Crookston and said to be one of the best of American dramas. The great melo-drama, "Michael Stroggoff," a play of startling situations and thrilling dialogue. The beautiful drama, "The Wage of Sin," the laughable comedy, "Peril or Love at Long Branch," a play somewhat similar to "She Couldn't Marry Three," played here some time ago by Miss Lillian Kennedy; the sensational play, "Braying the World," and others. There will be seven performances in all, including Saturday matinee. Mr. Wilson's company is this year stronger and better than ever, and will present to patrons entirely new faces, and altogether the strongest repertoire company ever seen in this section of the country.

The Temple Builders of the Baptist church will give a Golden Rod social in the parlors of their church Friday evening. All are cordially invited to attend.

Mrs. F. E. Barnum returned Tuesday from a 10 days visit with friends in Sauk Centre and Stillwater.

A. A. Trovaten, editor of the Dakota, a Norwegian paper published at Fargo, N. D., was in the city last week.

A separator belonging to Messrs Erickson & Brakke was burned Monday about two miles north of Fisher. Four stacks of grain were also burned.

Prof. Otto Lugger, state entomologist from the state experimental station, was in the city yesterday. He had been up to Argyle investigating the damage done to the wheat up there by an insect which the professor calls a frit fly. It is similar to the Hessian fly and cuts the wheat down at the first joint, and the farmers had supposed at first that the damage had been done by hail. The professor suggests plowing down the grain to kill the insect.

May They Live Long and Prosper.

The Fisher Bulletin gives the following account of the marriage of our townsmen, Mr. J. W. Peterson to Miss Clara Liebert, at Fisher last week: On Tuesday last at 11 a. m., was solemnized the marriage of Mr. J. W. Peterson, of Crookston, and Miss Clara Liebert. Rev. Harre, pastor of the German Lutheran church, officiated at the ceremonies, which took place at the residence of the bride's parents east of Fisher. Only relatives and a few intimate acquaintances of the contracting parties were present. Henry Peterson, brother of the groom, was best man, while Miss Ida Liebert, sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaid. A grand wedding dinner was given immediately after the ceremony. The young couple have many friends in Fisher, who all join the Bulletin in wishing them happiness."

Cloaks.

Two thousand one hundred dollars worth of women's, misses' and children's cloaks and wraps were sent us this week by a wholesale cloak house that was overstocked, with instructions to sell them at any price. This is the best opportunity to secure a good winter cloak at your own price. Come early and secure a good choice. The Fair, corner Main and Robert streets.

The Marais Country.

FISHER, Sept. 19. [Special correspondence].—In company with "Tommy" Johnson, the whole-souled, genial and entertaining manager for Felland Bros., A. G. Rutledge, the popular editor of the Fisher Bulletin, and Prof. G. W. Walker, the scholarly principal of the Fisher schools—your correspondent took a drive yesterday through the Marais country—a section which is called by its citizens "the back-bone of Polk county." And in this respect it seems as though they had some foundation for this claim, as that portion of the county is certainly as good as any portion of the county—if not the best.

The land cannot be excelled for fertility and while it is flat, it is high enough to be free from overflows and standing water. The farmers are prosperous, have excellent and commodious buildings, good stock, plenty of machinery and money in the bank. Many of them settled here 16 years ago with scarcely anything, but they are a thrifty class and by hard work and economical management of their affairs have made themselves independent. A few of the farms noticed were those of the Merrills—Anse. Ed. Verne and Bert—Alvin Brainerd, Dan., James and Charles McDonald, David Morrow, James, Robert and Thomas Nisbett, John and William Hannah and John Byrson. Those who have threshed in this neighborhood report an average of about 16 and 17 bushels to the acre, and some as high as 20. At David Morrow's we were shown the horse, Lord Sanquor and the gold medal and silver cup which he captured at the Grand Forks fair last fall. Mr. Morrow is justly proud of this celebrated animal.

A short call was made at Jas. McDonald's to exchange courtesies with himself and wife. Jim is regarded by his neighbors as authority on all questions of school or township affairs.

Jas. Nisbett—"Genial Jim" as he is called—has a handsome place and although he urged us to "stay for supper," we had to hurry along, and only had time to make his acquaintance.

Another stop was made at Thos. Nisbett's home at Mallory, but he was not at home and we didn't have the pleasure of meeting him.

A more hospital people than the residents of the Marais country cannot be found, and the only regret we had was that we couldn't stay a week and visit them all.

Ed. Martin: Our ball club will play the Fosston team at Fosston, October 6th.

M. H. Iverson of Fosston was in the city Wednesday booming the Fosston Fair.

Postmaster Dawley: The postmasters of the county are a nice lot of men whom it is a pleasure to meet.

A. M. Silver and Wm. Davis have purchased from John Mix the Queen City laundry, and will conduct the business at the present stand on Main street for the present, with Mr. Mix in charge of the establishment.

Mrs. Bangs will continue to sell one week longer, and give lower prices than ever. Large plumes 50 cents, tips 25 cents a bunch, velvet 25 to 30 cents a yard, ladies' and children's felt and beaver hats 25 cents. She is selling all her goods for less than half the original cost. Now is the time to secure great bargains in winter millinery. She has two thousand dollars worth of goods that must be closed out inside of one week.

L. D. Marshall: I would rather stay here than go to Minneapolis, not that I think this is a nicer place, but because we have made so many good friends here. But the company saw it fit to promote me, and I have to go. I am building a house on Thirty-third street, Minneapolis, and I presume we shall like it there when we get acquainted.

The firm of Locken & Holmboe are reaching out for more business, and have increased their facilities to accommodate it. They have purchased Locken & Solberg's entire stock of merchandise, and for the present will make a specialty of clothing in the new store. At their large department store in the opera house block they have been receiving an endless amount of new goods lately, and now have their building filled to overflowing with everything required about a house. Previous to the meeting of the board of equalization, this firm had increased their stock to such an extent that the board raised their assessment 30 per cent. and since that time they have been getting in their fall and winter supply of clothing, cloaks, blankets, shoes, etc., etc. They have now got one of the most complete stocks of general merchandise in the city, and with the addition of the Robert street store are now able to supply almost anything your heart could desire.

For Sale.

One Eagle Well machine in good repair. For particulars address
A. LEPPERT,
[18-23] Wylia, Minn.

When you need lumber call on us. We keep besides plain lumber, cedar shingles, cedar siding, Fir flooring, mouldings and building paper.
STEWART LUMBER. Co.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report.

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

IT MEANS BUSINESS.

I have never been so busy as at present, which speaks well for the manner in which my business is conducted. There is no friction. Mistakes do not pay, so I do not provide for them. I am giving satisfaction to all my customers. That means I am giving Prompt Service, Low Prices and Good Work. I have the handsomest and best selected stock, and if business is what I expect it to be this fall,

GOODS MUST MOVE.

C. H. SAAKE, Practical Watchmaker and Jeweler-

$1.00

A WEEK WILL BUY ANY

CLOAK,

JACKET

or SACQUE

In our immense stock, and if you consider it a little too early for these goods, by making a cash payment of $1.00 we would be too pleased to reserve them for you until required.

WE QUOTE AS SAMPLE VALUES.

40 inch Plush Sacqes, satin lined	$9 50
Plush Jackets, 32 inches long, fur trimmed	7 50
BlackDiagonal Jacket, 32 inches long, all wool	4 50
Fancy Bk Cloth Jacket, Melton reefer, satin faced	8 50
Novelties in Colored Cloth Jackets	6 00

$7.50, $10.00, $12.00, and by easy steps as high as $45.00.

Children's Garments.

Too, for the little ones of 1, 2, 3, 4, 6. 8, 10 and 12 years, and Misses garments for all ages. The cloths are right, the trimmings harmonize and the

GARMENTS WILL FIT.

Fontaine & Anglim.

Polk County Journal.

Historical Society
MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

VOL. XVI. CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY, SEPT. 29, 1892. NO. 24

WHAT $100 WILL DO!

WHY NOT KEEP HOUSE?

PARLOR.

Brussels Carpet, full spring Lounge	$ 6.50
Patent Swing Rocker	7.75
Rattan Rocker	3.85
20 yds Best all wool Carpet	13.50
Oak Center Table with Shelf	3.00
Pair window blinds	90
	$35.50

BED ROOM.

Large, showy, antique Ash Suit	$16.75
Spring Mattress	5.50
Pair 6-lb. Feather Pillows	2.50
Pair extra cotton-filled Quilts	3.75
15 yds Carpet	6.50
	$35.00

DINING ROOM.

Six-foot oval or square Table		$ 4.75
Six high back Dining Chairs		6.50
One Oak Sideboard, large mirror		18.75
		$30.00
Kitchen Table	$1.75
Four Kitchen Chairs	1.65	$3.40

Here are the Figures:

Parlor Furniture	$ 35.50
Bed Room Furniture	35.00
Dining Room Furniture	30.00
Kitchen Furniture	3.40
	$103.90
Cash Discount	3.90
Total,	$100.00

Crookston Furniture Co.

LIBERAL HOUSE FURNISHERS.

Notice.

STATE OF MINNESOTA,
COUNTY OF POLK, } ss.
CITY OF CROOKSTON:

Notice is hereby given to all persons interested in Barrette's addition to the city of Crookston to be present at a regular meeting of the city council to be held on Tuesday evening, October 11th, 1892, and state cause if any there be why said addition should not be vacated by the city of Crookston.

E. C. CARRUTH,
]19-25] City Clerk.

Wanted.

A good, steady boy to learn the printing business. Apply at the JOURNAL office.

COUGHING LEADS TO CONSUMPTION
Kemp's Balsam stops the cough at once.

For Sale.

A scholarship in the Crookston Business College. Apply at the JOURNAL office. [10 t.f.]

Lane's Medicine Moves the Bowels Each Day. In order to be healthy this is necessary.

Advertised Letters.

List of letters remaining unclaimed at the Crookston postoffice for the week ending Sept. 24th, 1892.

Grasmeier, H. B. 2
Nee, Harry

Persons calling for the above letters please say advertised.

WM. B. DAWLEY, P. M.

Republican County Committee.

Pursuant to the instructions of the Polk county republican convention held at Crookston, September 21st, 1892, I hereby appoint the following central committee: P. J. McGuire, chairman, Crookston; Sam. Dainard, St. Hilaire; J. McCannich, Red Lake Falls; T. J. McAdam, East Grand Forks; James Gilmour, Nesbitt; Harry Falk, Crookston; W. A. Robertson, Crookston; J. J. Ide, Roome; Ole Larson, Fisher; Felix Fournet, Crookston; S. S. Stadsvold, Fosston; Dr. A. Nelson, Fertile; Hans Larson, Crookston.

JOHN CROMB.
Chairman Republican Co. Convention.

Berkman, the anarchist, who attempted to murder Manager Frick at Homestead, has been sentenced to twenty-two years imprisonment.

Jim O'Neill and Jas. Ken, who have been running a blind pig on an old flat boat on the Red River along the border of Norman county, have been arrested and sent to Moorhead to await trial.

Little Falls, Minn., recently experienced a plague of frogs. In crossing the railroad track they gathered on the rails so thickly that a train was delayed two hours. Whence they came or where they went, nobody knows.

The strikers at Homestead recently received $10,000 from the amalgamated association, and the same day the Carnegie mills paid out $60,000 to their workmen. This is about $20,000 less than was paid when the mill was working its full crew, and yet the strikers are more confident than ever of victory.

Near Yankton is the most remarkable family on this continent—perhaps in the world. It consists of father, mother and twenty-four children and the mother of the brood is not yet thirty years old. She is a Norwegian woman and her husband a Hoosier. The children were born triplets and the oldest lot is under twelve years old. All of them are boys but three, one set of triplets being all girls. They are a sturdy lot of youngters. The gentleman who has started in to become the father of his country is a well-to-do farmer, who is remarkably proud of his progeny. He says if the good Lord continues to smile upon Dakota he may yet be able to furnish Uncle Sam with a full company of soldiers.

Useless as a Fly Trap.

East Grand Forks Courier:—The county commissioners have decided to build a new jail, the present structure being about as useless as a fly trap.

Didn't Appreciate Fish.

Big Stone County Journal: The notorious Doc. Fish, editor of the Great West, arrived in town Tuesday, and was to have delivered a political speech, but the party with whom the arrangements for billing him and procuring a hall was intrusted neglected his duty.

A Large Edition of East Grand Forks.

Editor Duffy, of the East Grand Forks Courier, was with the Minnesota editors' excursion to Colorado, and in the last issue of his paper he writes a descriptive account of the trip. In speaking of Colorado City he says: Colorado City, the oldest town in Colorado, and situated between the Springs and Manitou, has a population of 4,000, and is an enlarged edition of East Grand Forks. There is but one principal street, and every other door is a saloon. It is needless to say that the writer felt very much at home in Colorado City, though he only viewed the place from an electric car window."

A Good Word for Lanctot.

John Berthiaume, formerly of Crookston, but who is now conducting a large jewelry establishment at West Superior, writes the JOURNAL as follows, under date of September 23rd:

POLK COUNTY JOURNAL.

GENTS:—We notice in the colums of your paper that W. A. Lanctot got the nomination for county auditor on the republican ticket. Allow me through your valuable paper to congratulate him, and I feel confident that if the republicans of Polk county should elect him, they will elect a man who will do credit to the office and to the general public, as he is fully capable of fulfilling the office. I sincerely hope that the republicans of Polk county will put him there as he is entitled to it.

JOHN BERTHIAUME.

Fits—All fits stopped free by Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. No fits after the first day's use. Marvelous cures. Treatise and $2.00 trial bottle free to fit cases. Send to Dr. Kline, 931 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa. For sale by all druggists; call on yours.

LEGISLATIVE CONVENTION.

Proceedings of the Republican Legislative Convention Held Sept. 22nd.

Halvor Steenerson, Lars E. Norby and Peter Ramstad Selected as Candidates.

A Platform Adopted Which Embraces Needed Legislation in This District.

A republican legislative convention for the 51st senatorial legislative district was held at the court house in the city of Crookston, Minnesota, September 23rd 1892, at 1 o'clock p. m., and upon being called to order, organized by the election of Hugh Thompson of Polk as temporary chairman and S. A. Scarvie of Norman county as temporary secretary.

On motion the chair appointed the following committees, viz:

CREDENTIALS:—D. P. R. Strong, L. Davis and Andrew Opheim.

RESOLUTIONS:—P. J. McGuire, John Ellington and A. Annensen.

PERMANENT ORGANIZATION:—O. H. Myran, J. S. Stadsvold and J. Greenhalgh

A recess of 15 minutes was taken to allow the several committees time to report.

The committee on credentials reported the following delegates entitled to seats in the convention to-wit:

Hugh Thompson, D. P. R. Strong, L. Davis, Andrew Opheim, J. S. Stadsvold, James E. Greenhalgh, John Ellington, J. J. Ide and P. J. McGuire from Polk county and O. H. Myron, Knute Haugen, Charles Hansen, A. Annenson and S. A. Scarvie from Norman county.

Report accepted.

The committee on permanent organization reported in favor of the temporary organization being made permanent.

Report accepted.

The committee on resolutions presented the following report which was adopted to-wit:

We the delegates of the republican party of the 51st legislative district, in convention assembled, at Crookston this 23rd day of September A. D. 1892, do hereby adopt the following resolutions:

Resolved:—1st. That we endorse the national republican platform adopted at Minneapolis, the republican state and congressional platforms, and the respective nominations there made.

2nd. That we commend the efforts heretofore made in the legislature of this state toward a just control of the railroads, and the regulation of the business of storing, handling, grading and weighing of grain at the terminal markets, and we declare that these efforts must not be relaxed, but must be supplemented by such further legislation on these subjects as in the light of experience may be deemed necessary to the end that the railway charges may be reduced to a just compensation only for the services rendered and that the producers of our agricultural products may enjoy A FREE AND OPEN MARKET and the highest market price without a diminution, for their just reward.

3rd. That whereas, it was provided by act of congress, granting swamp lands to this state as follows:—"The proceeds of said lands, whether from sale or direct appropriation in kind, shall BE APPLIED EXCLUSIVELY so far as necessary to the reclaiming of said lands by means of levees and drains," and,

Whereas, large tracts of the lands so donated in trust to the state are located within this legislative district, and,

Whereas, they have heretofore been appropriated by the state for other purposes than those expressed in the grant,

Now therefore, we affirm that the sovereign state of Minnesota is morally and in good faith bound to make good this misapplication of these lands by adequate appropriations for the construction of requisite main-drains, and clearing and widening of the natural channels and water courses of the state for proper drainage and reclamation of said lands, and we enjoin upon our legislative nominees, (if elected) to use their best efforts and influence to induce the legislature to honor this our just claim.

4th. We recommend such legislation as will at least afford partial relief to those farmers who lost their crops by hail storms.

5th. We declare the subject of deep water navigation from the head of the great lakes to the sea board, is a matter of utmost importance to the people of the Red River Valley and highly appreciate the able efforts in that behalf in congress and earnestly urge a continuance thereof until the ocean steamers can carry our products from our seaport at Duluth, without breaking bulk, to the markets of the world. Of equal importance to the farmers is good country roads and we favor legislation to promote their improvement and encourage their construction. Upon this legislative program we appeal for the co-operation and support of all the people of this district, regardless of party affiliations and pledge our nominees to a faithful carrying out of these measures to the best of their ability.

P. J. M'GUIRE,
A. ANNENSON,
J. J. ELLINGTON. } Committee on Resolutions.

The chair announced next order of business being the nomination of candidates for the legislature.

Mr. D. P. R. Strong presented the name of Hon. Halvor Steenerson of Polk county as representative from this district and on motion the nomination was made by acclamation.

Mr. P. J. McGuire presented the name of Lars E. Nordby, of Norman county, as one of the representatives and the nomination was made by acclamation.

Mr. O. H. Myran presented the name of Peter Ramstad, of Norman county, for representative, he was nominated by acclamation.

The chair was authorized to appoint a legislative committee for the next two years.

In accepting the nomination Hon. Halvor Steenerson placed himself squarely on the platform adopted by the convention. That all may know the pledges which he has made to the people we print his speech of acceptance as follows:

GENTLEMEN OF THE CONVENTION: I am informed that you have nominated me as your candidate for member of the legislature for this district. It is an honor I have not sought. It is an office that will involve personal sacrifices on my part, but I accept the nomination nevertheless, and appreciate very highly indeed the honor of being selected as your candidate.

Objection is sometimes heard to selecting legislators from among the members of my profession, but such objections cannot be based upon the possession by them of legal knowledge or attainments, for nothing can be more useful to the people in a legislator than these, but rather upon a want of confidence. There is nothing in this world that ought to be more highly regarded than the confidence and esteem of one's neighbors and fellow citizens, and this expression, therefore, of the confidence and regard of you, the delegated representatives of the people of Polk and Norman counties, whom I have had the honor before to serve in a similar capacity, is doubly gratifying to me. Your platform, or legislative program, is an excellent one, and embraces just demands for legislation which ought, at least in a measure, to be achieved at the ensuing session, and I pledge you and the people at large, that if elected I shall faithfully and honestly strive to accomplish what you desire. With regard to drainage appropriations I would say that former representatives in both branches of the legislature have earnestly sought to obtain them, and failed, but your demands are just, and if we only persist in them and continue the agitation, ultimate success will surely crown our efforts.

With regard to railway legislation, I fully agree with your platform, and I believe the time has come when the farmers of this district can justly demand a further reduction of freight rates.

The problem of establishing a satisfactory system of state grain inspection and regulating the warehousing and weighing of grain, is certainly a difficult one, and the prevalent dissatisfaction with the operation of the present law upon these subjects demonstrate how difficult it is to tell beforehand just what results will flow from any particular legislation, but I believe that the problem is soluble, and that reasonably satisfactory results are attainable.

If your nomination shall be ratified by the people at the polls, I shall strive to faithfully and honestly serve them, and their good will and gratitude shall be the reward I shall seek to earn.

Again I thank you and hope to meet you all again during the campaign.

Hon. M. S. Converse, of the republican state committee, then addressed the delegates, after which the convention adjourned.

The JOURNAL gives below a sketch of one of the candidates on the legislative ticket, Hon. Halvor Steenerson. The JOURNAL is unacquainted with the history of the two nominees from Norman County, so we cannot give them as much attention this week as we should.

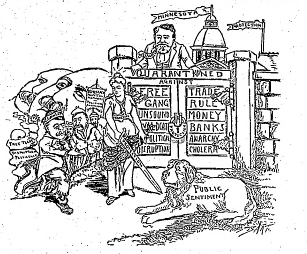
Halvor Steenerson was born on a farm in the town of Pleasant Springs, Dane county, Wisconsin, in 1852. He removed to Houston county, Minnesota, where his parents settled in 1853. Was educated at the common schools and high schools of the neighboring towns. In 1887 he went to Chicago to attend the law department of the University of Chicago. He was admitted to practice law in June, 1878, at the supreme court of Illinois, and was admitted to practice in this state the same year. He commenced the practice of his profession at Lanesboro, Minn., in the fall of 1878. In 1879 he visited the Red River valley where his older brother, Levi, was one of the early pioneers, having settled at the mouth of the Sand Hill river in 1871, and was so pleased with the country and its prospects that he removed to Crookston the following spring. He was elected county attorney in the fall of 1880, and served with distinction for two years, when he was elected to the state senate where he served during the sessions of 1883 and 1885.

It was at the session of 1885 that the question of regulating railroads and elevators first came up before the legislature, and Mr. Steenerson took a prominent part in framing the railroad and warehouse laws of that year, which have been the basis of all subsequent legislation on the subject.

It was in 1886 that the subject of Red River valley drainage first came into popular attention, and Mr. Steenerson took an active and prominent part in that agitation which resulted in a complete drainage survey of the valley, the expense being borne by the counties affected and the St. P., M. & M. Ry. Co. The legislatures of 1887 and 1889 were strongly urged to make adequate appropriation for a comprehensive drainage scheme, but the measures were defeated.

The legislative convention of this district, as will be seen from the resolutions elsewhere printed, has determined that this claim against the state for adequate drainage appropriations to reclaim the wet lands of this section, must not be allowed to rest, but must be urged upon the legislature until finally honored.

In Mr. Steenerson the convention have selected an able advocate for this and the other measures considered in the resolutions, and those who know him are confident of his complete success.



Dunnell's Speech.

The speech at the opera house last night by Hon. Mark H. Dunnell was a masterly effort, but as his time was limited, owing to a theatrical troupe having the boards at 9 o'clock, there were many points which he had not time to touch. Mr. Dunnell was a member of the congress which passed the McKinley bill, and is therefore thoroughly familiar with that measure. He was one of the men who suffered defeat because that bill was not understood by the people. But the people have undergone a change of heart regarding that measure since its passage. The investigation of the senate committee—composed of republicans and democrats—showed it to be a beneficial measure; and the reports of the labor commissioners of New York, Massachusetts and Indiana—democratic commissioners at that—prove that the McKinley bill is beneficial to the interests of the American people.

Although time has silvered his hair, Mr. Dunnell has lost none of his old time vigor.

Democratic County Ticket.

The democrats—a few of them—got together in convention on Wednesday and put in nomination the following ticket:

For auditor, J. M. Hanson; for treasurer, L. C. Couvrette; for register of deeds, Adam Zeh; for Sheriff, A. C. Schmidt; for judge of probate, P. J. Russell; for attorney, P. G. Falardeau; for surveyor, P. Emard; for coroner, Henry Shephard; for court commissioner W. H. Averill.

No nomination was made for the office of county superintendent of schools as the average democrat has no use for anything of an educational nature. For commissioners, Ephraim King in the First district, M. E. Kirsch in the Third and A. C. Rhinehart in the Fifth, were nominated.

WORKMEN'S SAVINGS.

A Deplorable Condition from the Calamity Howlers' Standpoint.

It is the duty of the superintendent of the banking department of the state of New York to make out semiannually a report showing the condition of the banks under his supervision. Usually his figures are read and digested only by experts, but this year they have a meaning that excites more than ordinary interest. The "calamity howlers" of the Democracy have been trying to persuade people that they have been plundered to the verge of bankruptcy by the "robber tariff," and that a change of national administration is necessary in the interests of the taxpayer. If these wails were based on facts, then the report of Superintendent Preston ought to show a decrease in the total deposits in our savings banks since the McKinley act went into effect, and a decrease also in the total number of depositors.

What Superintendent Preston's report does show is that the total deposits in the savings banks of the state—which are peculiarly the wage earners' places of deposit—have increased from $615,889,706 on Jan. 1, 1889, to $701,112,873.43 on July 1, 1892. The amount of savings per capita is about the same—$451.91 in 1889 and $450.65 in 1892, but the number of depositors has increased from 1,362,852 to 1,556,133. That is to say, 193,279 more wage earners have opened small accounts and put some of their surplus in the savings banks than had done so two years and a half ago.

To these depositors there was paid out in interest for the six months ending July 1, 1892, the sum of $10,417,849.54—about seven dollars to every depositor on the average. The total amount of deposits, oddly enough, increased during the first six months of the year by almost the exact sum paid out for interest—$10,417,915.28.

Why is it that the wage earners of the state have been able to save nearly $10,500,000 out of their wages during the first six months of this year? One answer is found in the report of Labor Commissioner Peck, who reports that he has found 285,000 persons whose wages have been raised under the operations of the McKinley act, and that wage earners in manufacturing industries received over $6,000,000 more in wages in 1891 than in 1890.

These two Democrats, Commissioner Peck and Superintendent Preston, have furnished in their official reports, without at all meaning to do so, two excellent Republican campaign documents. They have proved, as conclusively as it can be proved by the returns of a single state, that the Republican tariff is a blessing to the people.

The practical application of these facts will be made at the ballot boxes on election day.—New York Press.

Veronneau & Adams desire to call the attention of our lady readers to a nice new fall stock of millinery goods fresh from Chicago and eastern cities. All of the very latest novelties in stock and prices that cannot be duplicated in Crookston. We have no shop-worn goods to sell at cost but we are selling our new stock at prices as low as any in the city. Call and see us before you purchase, if you desire the latest styles at lowest figures. Our specialties this fall are the best goods at low prices.

VERONNEAU & ADAMS.

For a disordered liver try Beecham's Pills.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, COUNTY OF POLK ss. In Probate Court, Special Term Sept. 13th, 1892. In the matter of the estate of Erdras Roux, deceased: On reading and filing the petition of Onezime Noel, administrator of the estate of Esdras Roux, deceased, representing among other things, that he has fully administered said estate and praying that a time and place be fixed for examining, settling and allowing the final account of his administration, and for the assignment of the residue of said estate to the parties entitled thereto by law.

It is ordered, That said account be examined, and petition heard by this court, on Monday the 10th day of October, A. D. 1892, at 10 o'clock A. M. at the Probate office in the city of Crookston in said county.

And it is further ordered, That notice thereof be given to all persons interested, by publishing a copy of this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Polk County Journal, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston in said county.

Dated at Crookston the 13th day of September A. D. 1892. By the Court,

C. M. BENSON, Judge of Probate

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Henry Barrel, a farmer living near Windom, was killed by a vicious bull Monday.

A Minneapolis dentist pulled the wrong tooth and the patient has begun suit for $1,000.

The grist mill and the adjoining warehouses at Alden were completely destroyed by fire Friday.

The Merchants' National Bank of St. Cloud has been authorized to commence business with a capital of $100,000.

Thieves secured $150 from the money drawer at the Great Northern depot at Pipestone while the agent was at dinner.

By the bursting of a fly wheel in Merrill & Ring's saw mill at West Duluth Charles Simonean was killed and another employe badly injured.

The safe of Anton Hoeschen, of Kent, near Moorhead, was cracked and $1,500 in cash taken. Hoeschen is agent for the Farmers' elevator and a storekeeper.

Carl Anderson, a Swedish peddler, confined in a St. Paul hospital with a bullet hole in the knee, suicided last week. He continually raved about some crime he is thought to have committed.

The abduction of Little Mamie Schwartz at St. Paul four months ago has caused her mother to become insane. Although able detectives were engaged on the case no trace of the missing child has been found.

The workmen on the branch of the Great Northern, which is being constructed between St. Hilaire and Thief River Falls, have been taken from the work and in all probability the track will not be ready for traffic before Nov. 1.

Stephen Liddone, an old English soldier, who has lived at Winona for the past ten years, has received intelligence that he is to receive $3,000 from the British government for services in the East Indies. He will get the money from the British consul at Chicago.

While Nicholas Quinnill and family, residing on a farm five miles south of Hokah were away from home visiting, his house was entered by sneak thieves and valuables to the amount of $700 carried away. The funds consisted of a $50 bill and five promissory notes aggregating $650.

John Herman, a plasterer, was murdered at Litchfield Friday. Herman, with two other men, had trouble in a saloon, separated and came together again in the outskirts of the town, when Herman was shot dead. Herman Pehle, a German farmer, has been arrested as the murderer and held to the grand jury.

John Buck, an aged farmer, was killed at Lanesboro last week. He attempted to cross the railroad track in front of an incoming train, and at the last moment, seeing he could not make it, suddenly turned his frantic team and was thrown forward on the whiffletrees, where he was killed, being dragged several blocks.

Prominent in the gatherings of the Grand Army men in Washington during encampment week has been the remnant of the gallant First Minnesota. The vets, many of whom came from Minnesota and some who are residents of other states flocked together on several occasions and heartily enjoyed themselves.

Major A. B. Brackett died at his residence in St. Paul Thursday after an illness of about two weeks. There was probably no man in the State of Minnesota who was more generally or more favorably known than was Major Brackett. For thirty-six years he has been a prominent personage in the state. The greater part of that time he has been in the office of United States marshal. As an Indian fighter he has an excellent reputation, and Brackett's battalion was one of the most noted in the civil war.

The much mooted discovery of a manganese mine near Monticello was settled Tuesday by the shipment of 36,000 pounds to a St. Paul manufacturing firm. The manganese ore has been tested by different manufacturing companies and pronounced valuable. Several orders have been received from various points and there is prospect of the establishment of a permanent manganese industry. J. N. Stacy, the discoverer and owner of the manganese beds, first found the mineral over a year ago.

For several weeks past the streets and sidewalks of Little Falls have been covered with frogs, so that it is almost impossible to keep from stepping on them. A few days ago a train on the Little Falls and Dakota road was delayed nearly two hours on account of them. The frogs were so thick on the track that hundreds were crushed and the wheels slipped. Another peculiar thing in regard to them is that they are all hopping in a northwesterly direction; hardly a single instance can be seen of their going any other way.

An Additional Reward.

ST. PAUL, Sept. 27.—An additional reward of $1,000 is offered by Governor Merriam for the apprehension of Thomas Dalton, alias Thomas Lewis, who is wanted for the murder of John McCaffery at La Prairie, Minn., Aug. 27 last. The fugitive is a noted desperado, and McCaffery is said to be the third man he has killed. The murder was the result of a quarrel over a woman. Dalton is described as 5 feet 11 inches in height, bullet head, bulldog face, bull neck, dark complexion, crooked nose, a trifle pug, hazel eyes, scar on back of head and one on upper lip, low forehead.

Nebraska Farmer in Trouble.

SHICKLEY, Neb., Sept. 27.—Dahlman Fivecoat, a prosperous farmer living near here, has been arrested on complaint of his daughter charging him with incest. At the preliminary examination he was bound over to district court.

THE PLAGUE WIPED OUT.

No New Cases of Cholera Reported at Quarantine Since Sept. 20.

QUARANTINE, Sept. 26.—Dr. Byron made this report to Dr. Jenkins at 5:30: "We have had no new cases or suspects since Sept. 20. Our last cholera patient is on the way to recovery. Danger is past, and we all congratulate you on your most able work and ability both in the night and by day during the emergency."

Outbreaks Rewarded.

PIERRE, S. D., Sept. 26.—James Cavanaugh, an Indian trader on the Cheyenne river, reports runners from the Bad Lands working among the Indians on Cherry creek, in an attempt to work up another such an outbreak as that of two years ago, which ended at Wounded Knee. Their present desire is caused by the encouragement given them by the government after their former break. When it was ended, the Indians, many of whom owned no property except the ponies they rode, presented claims for losses which were paid and in addition their rations were increased, and they consider they were rewarded rather than punished for their devilment.

Want Cardinal Gibbons to Pray.

CHICAGO, Sept. 26.—Cardinal Gibbons has been tendered an invitation from the joint committee on ceremonies of the World's Columbian commission and the World's Columbian Exposition to offer up the closing prayer at the dedication exercises in Chicago on Friday, Oct. 21.

Queer Reasoning.

Under the Democratic tariff for revenue only regime, as per confederate constitution, it is constitutional to place an 80 per cent. duty on sugar, a 100 per cent. duty on rice and a 75 per cent. duty on peanuts and whisky. But a 50 per cent. duty on wool or a 30 per cent. duty on barley is "unconstitutional" and a fraud.—Minneapolis Tribune.

About Peck.

Mr. Peck is the Burchard of Clevelandism.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

The great issue of tariff reform appears to have come in contact with a severe case of Peck's Bad Boy.—Washington Post.

In ordinary dealing four pecks make a bushel, but one Peck has overrun the Democratic measure of woe.—Indianapolis Journal.

The labor commissioner of New York has manifestly put the Cleveland Democrats in a Peck of trouble.—Cleveland Leader.

Winter Killing of Clover.

It is believed by the editor of Hoard's Dairyman that a great deal of the loss through so called winter killing of clover comes from another cause—the allowing the clover to mature too far before cutting. He says: "Clover is a biennial plant—that is, it lives two years or until it seeds, and then it dies. The same root never seeds twice; hence it must die. The way to keep it alive and strong is to cut it before the formation of the seed in the head and cut another crop later in the season, say in September, cutting that also before any seed is formed. In this way the plant does not perform the purpose of nature and object of its life, which is the production of seed. As long as it is thwarted in this purpose the plant struggles to exist and is vigorous. There is great loss annually through the killing of clover, and whatever is caused by too late cutting can be remedied by paying attention to the laws which govern its life. Besides this, the farmer will have, if the clover is cut twice, from every acre a largely increased crop of better feeding value and a much more steadfast meadow. We have seen clover fields that had been cut in this way for nine years with fine profit all around. Two or three quarts of seed, sown early every spring before the frost is all out of the ground, is also a good thing."

Hardy and Healthy.

After two years' experience with flocks of Houdans, Wyandottes, White Leghorns and White Faced Black Spanish, I have no hesitation in recommending the Wyandottes as by far the best of the four breeds tested for this climate, being good layers of medium sized eggs, and the chicks are hardy and healthy and they mature early. The young pullets begin to lay early and are good winter layers.—J. A. Sharpe, Agassiz, B. C.

FOR CAHENSLEYISM

CONVENTION OF GERMAN CATHOLICS IN SESSION AT NEWARK.

In Point of Numbers This Meeting Far Exceeds Any Previous Gathering—The New York Times Predicts That Cahensleyism Will Be Approved.

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 26.—The sixth annual convention of the German Catholics of the United States was begun in this city during the day. The convention will, in point of influence, as well as of numbers, far exceed any previous meeting. Not less than 2,000 delegates from the German Catholic parishes of the whole country have already arrived here, while every train brings new additions to the numbers. With the members of the many German Catholic societies and with the mass of Catholic laymen generally the total number of participants may safely be placed at from 7,000 to 8,000 persons. Every territory within the jurisdiction of the United States is represented. All the populous cities of the Eastern and Middle states, and especially of the West and Northwest, have sent their delegates. There are German Catholic priests and laymen from New York, Brooklyn, Boston, Philadelphia, Pittsburg, Rochester, Buffalo, Cleveland, Chicago, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Milwaukee and St. Paul. The importance of the congress from a Catholic point of view may be inferred from the hearty endorsement by Catholic priests. The statement is made by the New York Times that Cahensleyism will be approved by this gathering. In other words it is their purpose to direct, if possible, the stream of emigrants and to keep the emigrant loyal to old world traditions. He is warned against American influences as being dangerous to his faith.

First Day's Proceedings.

Shortly after 2 p. m. the meeting of the delegates from the German Young Men's Catholic societies was held in St. Peter's school house, and resolutions were offered and referred to a committee. In the evening the public exercises of the Sixth German Catholic congress were held. There were over 4,000 men in line in the procession, all carrying lighted torches. Thirty-five bands furnished the music for the occasion. The affair was one of the finest pageants ever seen in this city. The procession was headed by a platoon of mounted policemen and the many banners gave it a bright appearance. Upon the arrival of the procession at Caledonian park there was a grand welcome reception. Addresses were made by Bishop Wigger, Governor Abbett, Dr. Faerber and Mayor Haynes. A concert and fireworks followed the procession.

MAKE BOTH CARDINALS.

How the Pope Will Avoid Giving Offense to Friends of Ireland and Corrigan.

PARIS, Sept. 26.—It is reported that the pope will make Archbishop Corrigan of New York, and Archbishop Ireland of St. Paul, cardinals at the coming consistory, thus gratifying the friends of both these prelates in the American church.

MAY CAUSE WAR.

The Seizure of a British Sealing Schooner by the Russian Authorities.

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 26.—The decision of the British government to dispatch a man-of-war to Vladivostock, Siberia, to investigate the recent seizure of a Canadian sealer by Russian cruisers was in response to a demand from the Dominion government, a member of the cabinet says, for the protection of its property.

It is not yet known what British schooner is to be sent to Siberia, but it probably will be one now at the Chile station.

Judging by what can be learned here, Russia did not respond so readily to the British government's demand for the punishment of the Russian officers who made the seizures and for the restoring of the confiscated property. The British government has taken a more forcible and decisive course to bring about a satisfactory explanation and adjustment of the insult to the British flag.

An official high up in parliamentary circles says that he fears before the matter is settled there will be a collision between England and Russia.

LOCKEN & HOLMBOE,

Opera House Department Store,

MAIN STREET, - - - - - - CROOKSTON, MINN.

SIX LINES OF BUSINESS

UNDER ONE ROOF AND ONE MANAGEMENT.

Dry Goods. Shoes,
Notions, Rubbers,
Furnishing Goods, Groceries,
Hosiery, Provisions,
Underwear, Flour,
Gloves, Feed,
Caps, Crockery,
Cloaks, Glassware,
Clothing. Lamps.
Trunks and Valises.

OUR FALL STOCK

Is now in and we are ready to show the public what we can do for them.

"WORTH A GUINEA A BOX."

BLIND.

They are blind who will not try a box of

BEECHAM'S PILLS

for the disorders which grow out of Impaired Digestion. For a Weak Stomach, Constipation, Disordered Liver, Sick Headache, or any Bilious and Nervous ailments, they take the place of an entire medicine chest.

COVERED WITH A TASTELESS AND SOLUBLE COATING.

Of all druggists. Price 25 cents a box.
New York Depot, 365 Canal St.

Town Clerks.

The following is a list of the town clerks for the several towns in Polk county:

Andover,	E M Bivins	Crookston
Angus,	A B Carleton	Angus
Black River,	P A Eckstrom	Wylie
Bray,	Albert Wickstrom	Wylie
Badger'	P N Savalrud	Sletten
Brandsvold.	Ole Nelion	Fosston
Belgium,	Henry Blever	Euclid
Brislet,	A P Frank	Warren
Bygland,	Thos. Benson	Fisher
Crookston,	E O Flanders	Crookston
Crookston, city,	E C Caaruth	Crookston
Columbia,	R H Carr	Columbia
Chester,	O J Mattson	Lindsay
Emardville,	Peter Anderson	Emaid
Euclid,	F Tiedt, Jr.,	Euclid
Eden,	Neri A Skeie	Olga
Fairfax,	Wm Himmelsback	Crookston
Farley,	Mark Congnon	Warren
Fanny,	Walter Latta	Bullington
Fisher,	Halyor Gunderson	Fisher
Fisher, vil.,	John Gleason	Fisher
Gd Forks,	John McCoy	E G Forks
Gd Forks, city,	John McCoy	E G Forks
Garfield,	Iver J Ingebretson	Fertile
Garden,	John Hanson	Ringdal
Gentilly.	H F Gondron,	Gentilly
Gervais,	John Deforge	R L Falls
Grand Park,	E E Abbott	Mentor
Goderey,	D T Mitchell,	Maple Bay
Hammond,	Ernest Hanna	Crookston
Higdem,	Ole Hendrickson	E G Forks
Hill River,	Fred S Syeverson	Lindsay
Huntsville,	O Osmundson	Mallory
Hubbard,	Frank Hanson,	Neilsville
Keystone,	D E Geddes	E G Forks
Kerlsonville,	Fred Benoit	Gentilly
King,	K C Norsving	McIntosh
Knute,	O H Dale	Erskine
Lake Pleasant,	Jos Perrault	R L Falls
Lambert,	Samuel Gebean,	Lamber
Liberty,	Nelson Clementson	Fertile
Lessor,	H Helgeson	Ovella
Lowell,	Ole Christianson,	Crookston
Louisville,	Louis Huot	Huot
Nesbit,	Robert Nesbit	Mallory
Norden,	O J Tweet	Tweet
North,	S T Johnson	T R Falls
Numedal,	Olaf Larson	Warren
Onsted,	W A Marin	Melvin
Parnell,	Thos Filban	Crookston
Poplar River,	J B Hebert	Brooks
Polk Centre,	Wm Wylie.	Wylie
Queen,	Hans L Houkom	Fosston
R L F, village,	August Herard,	R L Falls
Red Lake Falls,	Ildaig Baril	R L Falls
Reis,.	D C Hallock	Edna
River Falls,	K C Gigstad	St. Hilaire
Rocksbury,	P Englesiad	St. Hilaire
Roome,	P Boukon	Neby
Rosebud,	M E Randkler	Fosston
Russia,	Orens Simmons	Crookston
Sanders,	Nils K Anderson	St. Hilair
Sandsville.	Henry Nelson	E G Forkse
St. Hilaire,	L J Johnson	St. Hilaire
Sletten,	Ingebret Larson	Winger
Sullivan,	P A Hotvedt.	E G Forks
Tabor,	F J Cernousek	Tabor
Terrebonne,	Edonor Perruse	Terrebonne
Tilden,	S J Furan	Dugdale
Tynsid,	A O Stortroen	Neby
Vineland,	John Thompson	Neby
Winger,	Albert Johnson	Winger
Woodside,	Joseph Tagley	Woodside
Wyandotte,	O J Johnson	St. Hilaire
Rhinehart,	Oscar Winck	E G Forks
Thief River Falls	C J Knox	T R Falls

G. G. HENAULT

Practical Dentist,

SECOND STREET,

CROOKSTON, - - MINN

OFFICE IN DOBSON'S BLOCK,

☞ All work in my line skilfully and promptly performed. Give me a call.

G. G. HENAULT.

KOPS BRO'S

105 Third Street,

GRAND FORKS, N. DAKOTA

PIANOS, ORGANS

WEBER, HAINES BROS., KURTZMANN, MATHUSHEK, McCAMMON PIANOS, Estey and Chicago Cottage Organs. New Upright Pianos from $250 to $1,000, on terms of $10 to $25 per month. New Organs from $60 to $250 on terms of $5 to $10 per month.

Satisfaction guanteed. Write for catalogue and prices. KOPS BROS.
Grand Forks, N. D.

Mortgage Sale.

(First publication Thursday, Aug. 25, 1892.)
(Last publication Thursday, Oct. 6, 1892.)

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a mortgage containing power of sale, dated December 28th, 1888, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of Polk County, Minnesota, December 31st, 1888 in book 42 of mortgages, page 17, whereby John Boden, unmarried, mortgagor, mortgaged to The Middlesex Banking Company, mortgagee, the east half of the southwest quarter and the west half of the southeast quarter of Section thirty-one, 31) in Township one hundred and forty-eight, (148) of Range forty-one, (41) in said Polk County, by which default the power of sale has become operative, and no action or proceeding at law has been instituted to recover the debt remaining secured thereby, or any part thereof, and there is claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date hereof, $365.65, to which amount should be added the taxes on said property paid by said mortgagee, amounting, with interest as provided in said mortgage, to $42.12, making the total amount claimed to be due at the date hereof on said mortgage $407.77.

Now notice is hereby given that by virtue of said power said mortgage will be foreclosed and said premises sold at public auction, by the Sheriff of said county or his deputy, on October 8th, 1892, at ten o'clock a. m. at the front door of the Court House, in Crookston, in said county to pay said debt, interest, attorney's fees and disbursements allowed by law.

Dated August 16th, 1892.

THE MIDDLESEX BANKING COMPANY, (Seal.)
By Robt. N. Jackson, President,
Mortgagee.

H. C. GILBERT & Co., Attorneys,
[19-25] St. Paul, Minn.

Ripans Tabules cure constipation.

Ripans Tabules cure the blues.

Prices Greatly Reduced

—ON ALL—

Summer Goods,
Summer Clothing,
Light Weight Suits,
Light Weight Underwear,
AND Light Weight Shirts.

Everything in our Store at Greatly Reduced Prices.

STRAW HATS AT COST.

BOSTON ONE PRICE CLOTHING HOUSE,

MOSSEFIN & LINDELL, Props.

Great Reduction Sale!

Of White Goods, Embroideries, Challies,

—AND—

All Summer Goods!

—FOR THE—

NEXT TWO WEEKS.

Also bargains in Boots and Shoes and Groceries of all kinds.

If you have Wool, Shake Root, Eggs or Butter we will allow you the highest market price in trade.

[OPERA HOUSE BLOCK, Crookston, Minn.] A. STURE.

You Can Buy Reliable AGRICULTURAL MACHINERY

—OF—

SYLVESTER & FINSETH,

—CHEAPER AND BETTER—

Than anywhere. We handle Buckeye and Osborne Binders with all extras for same, and Twine. Buckeye and Imperial Mowers with extras. Buckeye and Monitor Rakes, Eli, Oliver and Bradley Gang Plows, Stubble and Breaking Plows, the Standard, Rotary Shuttle Sewing Machine, Nichols & Shepard New Vibrator Threshing Machine. Also the Jackson, Mitchell and Favorite Wagons, the Enterprise Buggies, Spring Wagons and Carts on all of which we can undersell Grand Forks and other places. We also carry everything that can be had in any first class Hardware Store and invite everybody to call and see us at the corner of Broadway and Fletcher Sts.

SYLVESTER & FINSETH, Crookston, Minn.

Crookston Business College

and INSTITUTE OF SHORTHAND.

DEPARTMENTS:—Commercial Shorthand, Typewriting and English.
TEACHERS:—Benj. A. Strawbridge, J. M. Latham and L. E. Gossman.
Summer Term began Monday, June 6th, 1892. Fall Term begins Monday, October 3rd, 1892. Send for new Catalogue.

CROOKSTON BUSINESS COLLEGE, Crookston, Minn.

A GREAT OFFER.

THE

Polk County Journal

Will be sent to any address, from now till after the campaign,

—FOR—

50 CENTS.

If You are a Republican

You should take THE JOURNAL and keep posted on what the Republican party is doing. THE JOURNAL will give from 3 to 5 columns of Republican political matter weekly, and you should keep yourself informed on the questions at issue and the movements of the party.

If You Are not a Republican

You should take THE JOURNAL so that you may see what the Republicans are doing and get the Republican side of the question as well as your own.

BRIEF NEWS ITEMS.

FOREIGN.

Prince Ernest of Saxe Meiningen was married Monday to Marie, daughter of the German poet, William Jensen.

The London Daily Telegraph states that Alfred Rothschild will be one of the English delegates to the international monetary conference.

The papal consistory will be postponed for two months on account of the cholera epidemic. It is reported that the pope will cause to be postponed for the same reason the annual October pilgrimage to Rome.

Honolulu advices state that a petition to Queen Victoria for the establishment of a British protectorate over the Hawaiian islands is in circulation throughout the islands, and is being freely signed by natives. It will be presented to the British minister to be forwarded to England.

POLITICAL NOTATIONS.

Frank J. Cannon, a Mormon, has been nominated for congress by Utah Republicans.

The fusion committee of Colorado Democrats has endorsed the People's party ticket.

Theobald Otzen has been nominated for congress by Republicans of the Fourth Wisconsin district.

David H. Mercer, of Omaha, has been nominated for congress by the Republicans of the Second Nebraska district.

J. J. McIntosh, Democratic candidate for congress from the Sixth Nebraska district, has withdrawn, finding that he is not a citizen.

Mr. Cleveland's letter of acceptance has been given to the public. He favors a reduction of the tariff but denies he is a free trader. He is opposed to free silver.

Woman Suffragists in convention at Washington nominated Victoria Woodhull Martin for president, and Mrs. Mary L. Stow, of California, vice president.

Wyoming Democrats and Populists have fused on state and national tickets. Democrats will support Weaver electors and the People's party will put no state ticket in the field.

In a letter to the editor of the St. Paul Globe C. A. Pillsbury agrees to contribute $10,000 to the Democratic campaign fund if the charges made against him in the story of the alleged wheat ring can be proved.

Ex-Governor Porter, of Indiana, is in Washington, and says that he has resigned the position of minister to Italy is true. He leaves the city at once for his home in Indiana, where he will enter actively in the political campaign.

S. M. Owen will refuse to allow his name to be printed on the election ticket as the candidate of the Populists for congress in the Minneapolis district. He will not pay the $50 fee, and if the party pays it and insists on his name going on the ticket he will advise his friends not to vote for him.

CRIMES AND CRIMINALS.

A $20,000 bank robbery occurred at Roslyn, Wash., in which two men were shot.

Burglars robbed the house of A. B. Stickney, the railroad president, at St. Paul, of $4,000 worth of jewelry and other valuables.

MISCELLANEOUS.

P. S. Gilmore, the noted band leader, died in St. Louis, Saturday.

Ex-State Senator Hixon, of La Crosse, the millionaire lumberman, is dead.

General Pope, the distinguished Union commander, died Friday at Sandusky, O.

Three horses were killed and their jockeys injured at the Gravesend track Thursday.

The pope has approved Cardinal Gibbons' plan for an exhibition of Catholic schools at the world's fair.

Frank G. Lenz, who left New York June 7 to make a tour of the world on a bicycle, has arrived at Walla Walla.

A cry of fire in a New York synagogue caused a stampede of the congregation. Four persons were killed and many injured.

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, in session in Cincinnati, have selected Harrisburg, Pa., as the place of meeting in September, 1894.

At Pittsburg the grand jury has returned true bills against 167 Homesteaders for murder and aggravated riot. It is not known when the trials will begin.

Frank Glover, ex-champion heavyweight pugilist of Illinois, died in Chicago, aged 29 years. His death was caused by tuberculosis of the stomach and bowels.

At Battle Creek, Mich., the entire plant of the Union School Furniture company, together with all the manufactured stock on hand, was burned. Loss, $250,000.

Rockaway Beach, the famous Long Island resort, was visited Tuesday by a fire which destroyed about a million dollars worth of property. Two persons were fatally injured.

D. A. McKinley, brother of Governor McKinley, of Ohio, and Hawaiian consul at San Francisco, died Monday of paralysis. He was 63 years old and went to California in 1852.

Edwin Capps, instructor of Latin and Greek at Yale, has been secured for the Greek chair at the new Chicago university. Mr. Capps is a graduate of the university of Illinois and Yale.

David A. Wade, of Enterprise, Ky., was married to Mrs. Elizabeth Garvin, at Wellston, O., a few days ago. They are a remarkable couple, their ages aggregating 182 years. The groom has passed the century mark.

The question as to whether the interstate commerce commission has power to compel railroad monopolies and combines to obey the law against illegal freight discriminations is being argued before Judge Gresham in Chicago.

GRAVEST APPREHENSION.

Intimate Friends Say Mrs. Harrison Will Not Live Many Days.

MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 26.—The Tribune's Washington special says: Gravest apprehension exists regarding Mrs. Harrison. Her condition is so critical that intimate friends of the family predict that the end is not far distant. The formal statements of physicians do not convey all the facts in the case. The Tribune correspondent learns from persons who have been at the White House and Loon Lake that Mrs. Harrison is much more broken down than the public is aware of. Her nervous system is completely undone, and in this respect alone her condition would be serious were there no other ailments. The throat affectation is of long standing and has grown worse year by year. The pulmonary trouble, which started with la grippe, has greatly impaired, in fact almost destroyed her right lung. It is a distressing fact, and the thousands who have learned to respect and love Mrs. Harrison will be slow to accept the truth.

Next Meeting at Milwaukee.

PORTLAND, Or., Sept. 23.—The next sovereign grand lodge of Odd Fellows will be held in Milwaukee. That city was selected at the morning's session of the lodge by nearly a two-thirds vote, the ballot resulting as follows: Milwaukee 101, Chattanooga 56, and a few scattering votes for Chicago. The voting against Chicago was based on the ground that the world's fair would attract all the interest and attention from the lodge, while on the other hand, Milwaukee being so near to Chicago, opportunities would doubtless be afforded to "kill two birds with one stone." While other matters of interest were considered, this was the most important. The meeting of the sovereign grand lodge is rapidly drawing to a close.

REFUSED BAIL.

Hugh O'Donnell Will Have to Stay in Jail Until His Trial.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 25.—Hugh O'Donnell, the Homestead strike leader, charged with murder and riot, was refused bail by Judge Porter. O'Donnell will now be compelled to remain in jail until his trial.

Peck Admitted to Bail.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 26.—Labor Commissioner Peck and his stenographer, Rogers, appeared in the court of sessions at 11 a. m., in answer to bench warrants. The sealed indictments in possession of the court were then opened and found to be against Mr. Peck and Mr. Rogers, charging them with destroying public documents. Mr. Peck waived examination, and through his counsel asked for postponement. The court granted the application, and both were admitted to bail.

Immigration Commissioners' Report.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Within a day or two there will be published under order of congress the reports of the commissioners sent to Europe last year by the treasury department to investigate the extent and origin of immigration to the United States. With the appendix containing the laws of European governments governing the immigration from their countries and the reports from the United States consuls on the subject furnished by the state department they will make a volume of about 500 pages.

Governor Prince's Report.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Governor Prince, of the territory of New Mexico, has transmitted to the secretary of the interior his annual report. Land grants covering an area of 248,000 acres were confirmed during the year. The total population of the territory is 190,832. The total assessed valuation of real estate and improvements in the territory for 1891 was $45,329,563; of personal property $8,829,747.

Deacon at Liberty.

PARIS, Sept. 23.—The Figaro states that Edward Parker Deacon has been liberated from imprisonment. The Figaro adds that Mr. Deacon intends to reside in Paris and to prosecute legal proceedings for the custody of his children.

Free Delivery in the Northwest.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—The postmaster general has issued an order to establish the free delivery system, beginning Dec. 1, 1892, at Decorah, Ia.; Yankton, S. D.; Ironwood, Mich.; Stevens Point, Wis., and Mason City, Ia.

LATEST MARKET REPORT.

St. Paul Union Stock Yards.

SOUTH ST. PAUL, Sept. 26, 1892.

HOGS—Strong. Range of prices $4.95@5.05.

CATTLE—Steady. Prime steers, $3.50@3.50; good steers, $2.50@3.20; prime cows, $2.40@2.60; good cows, $2.00@2.40; common to fair cows, $1.00@1.75; light veal calves, $2.50@3.50; heavy calves, $1.50@2.50; stockers, $1.50@2.25; feeders, $2.00@2.60; bulls, $1.00@1.60.

SHEEP—10@20c lower. Muttons, $3.00@3.75; lambs, $3.00@4.00; stockers and feeders, $2.00@3.25.

Receipts: Hogs, 150; cattle, 420; calves, 5; sheep, 710.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO UNION STOCK YARDS, Sept. 28, 1892.

CATTLE—Market weak.

HOGS—Strong, 5@10c higher. Heavy $5.20@5.60; mixed and medium, $5.25@5.50; light $5.00@5.52½.

SHEEP—Market steady.

Receipts: Cattle, 22,000; hogs, 25,000; sheep, 10,000.

Chicago Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, Sept. 28, 1892.

OPENING PRICES.

WHEAT—May, 81¾c.

CORN—October, 46@46⅛c; May, 49c¼.

OATS—September, 32⅞c; October, 32⅞c. May, 36⅝c.

PORK—October, $10.65; January, $12.10.

LARD—January, $6.95.

SHORT RIBS—January, $6.82.

CLOSING PRICES.

WHEAT—September, 74½c; October, 74⅝c May, 82⅛@82¼c.

CORN—September, 45⅞c; October, 46⅛c; May, 49⅜c.

OATS—September, 33⅝c; October, 33c; May, 37c.

PORK—September, $10.65; October, $10.65; January, $12.17½.

LARD—September, $7.85; October, $7.85 January, $6.92½@6.95.

ROBBER WRECKERS

FIENDS CAUSE A TERRIBLE DISASTER ON THE SANTA FE.

Fast Express Ditched and Four People Killed and Many Injured—A Million Dollars on Board the Train But the Robbers Get Nothing—A Dozen Lives Lost in a Wreck on the Pittsburg and Fort Wayne.

TOPEKA, Kan., Sept. 21.—A frightful wreck occurred on the Santa Fe road, a few miles west of Osage City, at 3 a. m. The train was ditched by train robbers, and four of the trainmen were killed and about thirty-five passengers seriously injured. The train was the fast Missouri river express, east-bound, and due in this city at 4:45 a. m. It consisted of a baggage and express car, four coaches, and three Pullman sleeping cars. The coaches and sleeping cars were well filled with passengers, nearly all of whom were asleep when the accident occurred. The train was ditched by obstructions placed on the rails and rolled down a steep embankment. The day coaches in the forward part of the train were telescoped, and it was in these coaches that most of the injured passengers were located. The following are the killed:

ENGINEER EDWARD MEYER, of Topeka, Kan.

FIREMAN THOMAS CHADDICKS, of Topeka, Kan.

BLOMENTHAL, express guard, first name unknown.

FRANK BAXTER, express messenger, Kansas City.

In the express car there was about $1,000,000 which was being shipped by the Mexican Central Railway company through to its general offices in Boston. The object of the wreckers was not accomplished, owing to the manner in which the express car was buried by the coaches that were piled up in general confusion. So high was the wreckage heaped that it was literally impossible to find the locomotive, let alone the treasure box.

Besides the box containing the million dollars of the Mexican railroad there were on the train three combination safes containing money and bonds but as far as can be ascertained no efforts were made to take any of these. There is no doubt that the robbers were hiding in the grass and were frightened away when they saw the extent of the wreck which they had not anticipated.

TWO ON ONE TRACK.

Pittsburg and Fort Wayne Trains Collide Near an Ohio Town.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 21.—What will undoubtedly prove the most disastrous accident that ever occurred in the history of the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne & Chicago railway, took place early in the morning in what is known as Brown's Cut, one mile and a half west of Shreve, Ohio. Train No. 8, the fast east-bound passenger train, collided at that point with the first section of freight train No. 75, west-bound. The passenger train was about one hour late, and was running at the rate of sixty miles an hour.

Passengers and train men who escaped say the accident had hardly taken place before flames burst forth, and they believe that but two or three people were killed outright, the others having been pinned down in the cars and slowly roasted to death. Twelve burned and blackened trunks have been taken from the wreck. Those known to be among the dead are:

George Smith, Crestline, Ohio, fireman; D. E. Reese, Massilon, Ohio, postal clerk; H. S. Allen, Columbiana, Ohio, postal clerk; G. C. Mann, Chicago, postal clerk; J. D. Patterson, Beaver Falls, Pa., postal clerk; A. A. Glenn, Allegheny, Pa., brakeman; N. Hammond, Allegheny, Pa., fireman. Five unknown, three men, one woman and a child.

ALL DEAD OR INJURED.

A Serious Wreck on the Chicago Great Western at New Hampton, Ia.

MASON CITY, Ia., Sept. 25.—Seven dead and three injured is the result of a railroad wreck which occurred at New Hampton Saturday. For the number of lives lost and destruction of property, it is the worst accident that has occurred in the state in years. A construction crew had been at work on the main line of the Chicago Great Western replacing rails, and during the morning they were ordered out from Elma to work south on the road. About 10 a. m. they pulled into New Hampton on the main track to do some work. The through freight was due at the latter point at 1:15. The freight was a little behind time, and was running on orders not to stop at New Hampton. The road enters New Hampton from the north, but within sixty rods makes a turn, going directly east. This makes a bad curve in the road, and it is rendered still worse by a grove which entirely shuts out vision until within forty rods of the station. The train was going at the rate of about thirty miles an hour. When within about ten rods of the caboose of the construction train, the freight engineer saw the peril confronting him, and yelling to his fireman to jump, he reversed the lever, and both left the engine. It was just in time to save their lives, for a moment later the engine smashed into the caboose, fairly splitting it in two, and engine, caboose and three freight cars were piled up in a promiscuous mass. The engine was buried in three feet of earth. In the caboose of the construction train were at least twelve persons, and six of these were killed outright, one has since died, three are dangerously injured and two are unaccounted for. Following are the dead so far as known:

Michael McNamara, a traveling man of Independence, Ia.; W. Beeman, Otto Smith, Frank Kubbet, all of Elma, Ia.; unknown man; Henry McCarty, Elma, both legs cut off, skull crushed, died after being removed from wreck.

INDIANAPOLIS CHOSEN.

The Next G. A. R. Encampment to Be Held at the Hoosier Capital.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—Indianapolis has been selected as the place for holding the next G. A. R. encampment. There was no contest, other competitors having withdrawn.

At the conclusion of General Palmer's address at the first day's session of the twenty-sixth annual encampment of the G.A.R. the usual reports were submitted.

John Taylor, quartermaster general, reported receipts $35,960.77; expenditures, $30,216.16; balance on hand, $7,548.79. Assets, including United States bonds and supplies, $29,153.35. The Grant monument fund amounts to $11,578.62, of which $226.16 was received since the last encampment.

The report of Inspector General Pratt contained the following summary of the condition of the Grand Army at latest receipt of reports and statistics from department inspectors.

Total number of posts, 7,630; total number of post members in good standing, 391,507; number of muskets owned by posts, 30,028; total amount of relief funds, $476,565; total amount expended for relief, $310,448; total amount of post funds in hands of quartermasters, $839,370; total amount of property at other than in quartermaster and relief funds owned by posts, $1,342,183.

After the reports of the adjutant general and surgeon general were read Junior Vice Commander T. E. Clarkson, of Omaha, offered the following resolution. It was seconded by ex-President Hayes and unanimously adopted:

Resolved, By the members of the twenty-sixth national encampment of the G. A. R., and through them its 500,000 members, that their most sincere and heartfelt sympathy is hereby extended to Comrade Benjamin Harrison in the deep affliction which has kept him from our midst with the earnest hope and prayer that his noble wife, that true American woman, may be spared to him and to us for even greater opportunities for good.

Indianapolis Chosen.

Governor Chase, ex-department commander of Indiana, asked the encampment to determine the location of the encampment of 1893, as he was compelled to leave the city. He presented the name of Indianapolis. General J. R. Carnahan, also an ex-department commander of Indiana, was expected to present the claims of the Hoosier capital, but on motion of a delegate from Ohio the encampment by acclamation accepted the invitation of Indianapolis without waiting to hear further regarding it, or for any other city to be named.

ELECTED OFFICERS.

A. G. Weissert, of Wisconsin, Chosen Commander-in-Chief.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—A. G. Weissert, of Milwaukee, has been chosen by acclamation as commander-in-chief of the G. A. R. to succeed General Palmer. Comrade Lincoln, of this city, his most prominent competitor, withdrew. The encampment has also, by an overwhelming vote, defeated the proposition to deny life membership in the encampment to past grand officers and ex-post commanders.

The encampment then elected the following additional officers: R. H. Warfield, of San Francisco, senior vice commander; Peter B. Ayres, of Delaware, junior vice commander; Dr. W. C. Weyl, of Danbury, Conn., surgeon general, D. R. Lowell, of Kansas, chaplain-in-chief. A recess was then taken until 3 p. m.

The afternoon session began promptly at 3 o'clock and under General Palmer's skillful management business was proceeded with to conclusion and final adjournment of the twenty-sixth national encampment of the G. A. R. at 6:10 p. m. A committee was appointed to prepare resolutions upon the death of General Barnum, of New York, which together with a portrait of the deceased are to be inserted in the official proceedings of this encampment. Comrade Kramer, of Maryland, representing a committee of the G. A. R. in behalf of the members of the organization, presented General Alger an immense silver cup very handsomely engraved which was accepted by General Alger in an appropriate speech.

Among the resolutions adopted were the following:

Asking congress to pass a law giving the same right of precedent in appointments to all honorably discharged soldiers that is now given by law to soldiers discharged for disability; recommending that the edition of the official records of the rebellion published by congress be increased from 11,000 to 50,000 copies; commending the order of Commander-in-Chief Palmer forbidding any G. A. R. post to march under the Confederate flag; declaring it to be inexpedient for the national encampment, G. A. R., to express an opinion upon the subject of opening the world's fair on Sunday, it being a subject upon which the members are divided; favoring the establishment of a soldiers' home in the marine hospital building at New Orleans; requesting that the census of veterans of the war and their postoffice addresses be published immediately; asking congress to provide for the erection of a monument to the private soldiers of the army; returning the thanks of the encampment to the citizens of Washington for the generous hospitality of the reception given to the veterans.

A PRESIDENT CHOSEN.

Mrs. Margaret Bickens, of Kansas, at the Head of the W. R. C.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—The question of representation of the Women's Relief Corps at the world's fair was discussed at the afternoon session, but no conclusion reached. The new G. A. R. commander-in-chief, Weissert, the adjutant of staff, Gray, Past Senior Commander Deitrich, of the department of Illinois, visited the convention and addressed the meeting.

The convention then proceeded to the election of officers for the ensuing year. Mrs. Margaret Bickens, of Kansas, was elected president. The retiring president, Mrs. Sanders, was extended a vote of thanks for her able and just administration of her arduous duties during the past year.

Featherweights Fight.

CONEY ISLAND, Sept. 26.—The fight between Johnny Griffin, of Braintree, Mass., and James Lynch, of New York, for $2,500 and the featherweight championship, drew a big crowd to the Coney Island Athletic club. Betting on Griffin was $100 to $60. He won in five rounds.

We are Selling Now

For fall use a nice line of HARNESS, Single or Double, heavy and light, at prices which will surprise you. We are making a leader on double heavy harness, and invite you to give us a call before purchasing. We have just received another car of Rushford Wagons the lightest running and best finished wagon made. We can show you something in PLOWS that no one else can, and if you are in need of one and will call and look at our line of goods we can convince you we have something you want.

Merit Wins.

And to that reason more than anything else, do we assign our large and daily increasing trade. The Yankee and Scandia Gang Plows and Sulkies can't be beat. We have a few Buggies left that we are selling cheap to close out.

Good Goods at Reasonable Prices,

and fair treatment to all is what we aim, and our motto is MERIT WINS—every time.

Larsen, Carpenter & Co.

Opera Block, - - Crookston, Minn.

TRY PEAKE,

THE MAIN STREET HARNESS MAKER,

FOR BARGAINS.

CHRISTIANSON BROS.,

Abstracters of Title, Loans,

Real Estate and Insurance:

N. B. FARM LOANS a specialty. Terms, three to five years. Lowest rate of interest, payable annually at our office.

☞ Choice FARM LANDS for sale cheap, on terms to suit purchasers. ☜

Office on Robert Street, - - - - CROOKSTON, MINN

ALDERMAN & SYLVESTER,

DEALERS IN

Shelf and Heavy

HARDWARE,

Sash, Doors and Mouldings

Mixed Paints, Linseed and Machine Oils, Flying Dutchman Gang Plows; J. Thompson & Sons Walking Plows. Sole agents for the Domestic Sewing Machine.

A FULL AND COMPLETE STOCK OF

STOVES AND RANGES

Corner Main and Fletcher Sts., - - - Crookston.

NEW FEED MILL

CHRIS. ANDERSON, Prop.

I desire to annouce to the farmers ot Polk County that I have rented the

LAURENCE BUILDING, ON MAIN STEERT,

Next to Brown's New Livery Stable, and am now prepared to grind feed of all kinds promptly. You can get your feed in two hours after you bring me your grain. Prices Reasonable

Try My New Mill!

W A. ROBERTSON

D. D. S.

Graduate of Dental Department of the University of Maryland.

OPERATIVE AND MECHANICAL

DENTIST.

N. B. Nitrous Oxide Gas, (Laughing Gas) administered for the painless extraction of teeth.

OFFICE IN McKINNON BLOCK.

NEW BARBER SHOP.

On Main St. C. E. MISNER, Prop.

Invites your patronage. Everything in the very latest style of the art.

RAZORS HONED.

If you desire your Razor Honed and cannot bring it, send it to me with 30 cents and your name and address and I will hone and return it.

Yours Respectfully,

C. E. MISNER.

FRANK IVES, Notary Public and U S. Coms'r.

D. E. HATLESTAD, District Court Commissioner

IVES & HATLESTAD,

Attorneys and Counselors at Law,

CROOKSTON, - - - - MINN.

Will practice in all the courts and before the U S. Land Office at Crookston and Washington. Pensions and Soldiers' Claims and Patents carefully and promptly adjusted.

We loan money on improved farms and city property and have facilities for placing large loans at low rate of interest. We give special attention to collection and all commercial business pertaining to our profession.

H. STEENERSON

ATTORNEY AT LAW

CROOKSTON, - MINNESOTA

Polk County Journal.

BY COOKE & HAMMOND.

Devoted to the Welfare of Polk County.

OFFICIAL PAPER, CITY OF CROOKSTON.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Dollar and Fifty Cents, if paid in advauce to any address inside of Polk County. If outside of Polk County 15 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum to any address.

The date opposite your name on this paper shows the time your subscription is paid up to. The JOURNAL would like to have all those who are in arears, and can spare the money, remit as soon as possible, as the new management would like to get all the old accounts settled up.

THE REPUBLICAN TICKET.

National.

President—BENJAMIN HARRISON,
Of Indiana.

Vice-Pres.—WHITELAW REID,
Of New York.

State.

Governor—KNUTE NELSON,
Of Alexandria.

Lieut. Gov.—D. M. CLOUGH,
Of Minneapolis.

Sec. of State—F. P. BROWN,
Of Blue Earth County.

Atty-Gen.—H. W. CHILDS,
Of Otter Tail County.

Treas.—JOS. BOBLETER,
Of Brown County.

Supreme Court Judges—
C. E. VANDERBURGH,
D. A. DICKINSON,
WILLIAM MITCHELL.

Congressional.

Congressman 7th District—
HENRY FEIG,
of Kandiyohi County.

County.

Auditor.—W. A. LANCTOT,
Of Crookston.

Treasurer.—LEWIS LOHN,
Of Fosston.

Register of Deeds.—NIC NELSON,
Of Norden Township.

Attorney.—IRA C. RICHARDSON,
Of Thief River Falls.

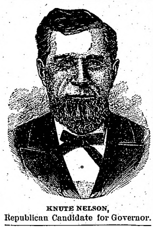
Sheriff.—JAS. M. BAIN,
Of Fisher.

Judge of Probate.—
R. J. MONTAGUE,
Of Crookston.

Supt. of schools.—V. D. CARRUTH,
Of Crookston.

Surveyor.—GEORGE RALPH,
Of Crookston.

Coroner.—GEORGE HOLT,
Of Crookston.



KNUTE NELSON,
Republican Candidate for Governor.

A GREAT ROORBACH.

Some time ago the Chicago Herald published a couple of pages of an alleged exposure of a great wheat steal by the elevator men of the northwest, implicating C. A. Pillsbury and Senator Washburn in particular, and thought to make a campaign document out of it by charging the alleged robbery to the republican party. The story is simply a re-ramp of the charges made at the time of the wheat steal investigation in this state some years ago. Said investigation was made by a committee appointed by an alliance-democratic legislature, and the charges were thoroughly investigated and found to be entirely groundless.

These charges have been compiled in pamphlet form by a man named C. C. Wolcott, a man who was at one time in the banking business at Larimore, N. D., and failed. The Minneapolis & Northern Elevator company engaged Wolcott as an agent, he agreeing to furnish funds to its agents for the purchase of grain, and knowing the character of the man, the company inserted a clause in the agreement binding Wolcott not to operate on his own account while in the employ of the company. The failure of Wolcott's bank prevented him after a year or two from fulfilling his part of the contract, but he still seemed to think that he should draw his salary, and when it was stopped he became deeply incensed at the members of the company, C. A. Pillsbury especially. Wolcott now appears to have devoted his time and attention to what is known as "getting even." He went to Paris and shortly after many prominent elevator men of the northwest received letters, which purported to come from the Credit Lyonaise bank of Paris making inquiries about the amont of dividends which the elevators of the northwest were paying. Some of the elevator men answered these letters, saying that some years the elevators didn't pay a cent, and some years they paid as high as 40 per cent. Wolcott now has these letters, which is conclusive evidence that he was the writer of the Paris letters, and not the Credit Lyonaise bank. Wolcott is reaping a harvest from his pamphlet as the wheat speculators of Chicago are backing him in the hope that his charges against Senator Wasburn may defeat that gentleman's chances of passing his anti-option bill through congress. If that bill should pass—and it is to the interest of every wheat-grower in the northwest that it should—the occupation of the wheat gamblers would be gone, and the business of buying and selling thousands of bushels of wind every day until this depressing the price of wheat, would be at an end.

The democratic national committee thought Wolcott's pamphlet would make good campaign literature, and have had thousands of copies of it printed for distribution. But it seems strange that the democrats should overlook the fact that there are among the wheat buyers of the northwest as many democrats as republicans, and therefore as a compaign document against the republicans the Wolcott circular falls flat. The Chicago Herald and St. Paul Globe are the only democratic papers which have taken up this matter, and the bluff of the St. Paul Globe has been called by C. A. Pillsbury, who denies all the charges with regard to the margins which the elevators realize on the wheat handled by them, and offers to pay all the expenses of a disinterested committee to investigate the charges, and if he (Pillsbury) doesn't prove the truth of his statements and the fallacy of the charges, he will donate $10,000 to the democratic campaign fund. But the Globe, knowing full well that the charges made in the circular have all been exploded before, dare not accept Mr. Pillsbury's challenge, but simply keeps on reiterating the charges. The democratic press of the country is not only keeping quiet regarding this circular, but one democratic organ, The Minneapolis Times, is fearless enough to denounce the whole business in scathing terms. Read what it says:

> The Times has declined to join in the attack of the Chicago Herald upon the milling and elevator interests of Minneapolis or to give currency to the vicious assault upon the business reputation of Mr. Pillsbury and the other gentlemen who stand at the head of other interests. It has no sympathy with the attempt to manufacture party capital out of charges that, so far as has yet been shown, have no other basis than the unsupported allegations of a seedy scamp who is not fit to unloose the shoelatches of the gentlemen whom he seeks to defame. If men of character—men who have long held influential and honorable positions in the commercial world—are to hold their reputations at the mercy of disappointed blackmailers, and are to be condemned by the unsupported
>
> ASSERTIONS OF MALIGNANT BLACKGUARDS,
>
> then no man, however high his position or honorable his career, is safe from the assault of reckless and vindictive defamers who may desire to injure him. The Times does not believe that any political party can gain any permanent advantage, even in a heated canvass, by attempting to use such material for campaign purposes. The popular sense of justice and decency will assert itself and stamp the seal of emphatic disapproval upon methods so unworthy and disgraceful.
>
> That there are serious evils connected with the present elevator system, and the methods of grading and handling wheat, nobody will pretend to deny. But it is absurd to suppose that the entire responsibility for the evils can be thrown upon one or two men, and through them upon the political party to which they may happen to belong. There are in Minnesota several hundred elevators. The men connected with them are
>
> NOT ALL OF ONE POLITICAL FAITH.
>
> They are democrats as well as republicans; hence the absurdity of attempting to make a party issue out the defects in the management. The truth is, if the farmers have been robbed by the elevator companies, the robbers belong as much to one party as the other. The question, therefore, is not of party politics, nor one to be settled by campaign tactics and appeals, but one which must be settled by the state legislature.
>
> The remedy for this evil is to be found in legislation which will require the wheat to be correctly weighed and graded when it goes into the elevator. Such legislation has been repeatedly proposed as would give the state warehouse commission jurisdiction over the elevators, but has always been defeated. Such a proposition was rejected by the last legislature.

The Times might have added that the last legislature was controlled in both houses by the democratic-alliance combine.

THE LEGISLATIVE TICKET.

The republicans of the 51st legislative district placed a most excellent ticket in the field, by nominating Hon. Halvor Steenerson, of Polk county and Peter Ramstad and L. E. Norby, of Norman county.

Mr. Ramstad is a farmer by occupation, and is one of the pioneers of that county. He is a man of education and ability, and is highly respected wherever he is known. He served for several terms as register of deeds in his county and will make an able and influential representative. Mr. L. E. Norby resides at Halstad, Norman county, and is engaged in the hardware business at that place. He was formerly in the grain business in this city and has many friends here. He is a man of sterling integrity and extensive experience in business affairs.

Mr. Steenerson is so well and favorably known to the people of this district that any personal mention of him would be superfluous, but a brief reference to his public career may be of interest. He was elected to the state senate from the old 45th district ten years ago and served with distinction in the sessions of 1883 and 1885. He was a member of the judiciary committee and several other of the leading committees of the senate and took a leading and active part in all important measures. It was at the session of 1885 that the act establishing the railway and warehouse commission was passed, which has served as a basis for all subsequent legislation on the subject of regulating railroads and elevators. The bill as reported gave the commissioners advisory powers in the matter of railroad rates, and Senator Steenerson offered an amendment giving the commissioner the power to fix and prescribe rates—which rates so prescribed should be taken as prima facie reasonable rates. This was opposed as too radical, and was after a long debate, led by Hon. Thomas Wilson on the one side and Senator Steenerson on the other, finally defeated. See Senate Journal 1885, page 284.

At the next session of the legislature (1887) Hon. Ignatius Donnelly was chairman of the committee on railroads and reported from this committee a bill which gave the railroad and warehouse commissioner absolute power to fix railroad rates. It was objected at the time that this was obnoxious to the constitution—as depriving the railroads of their property "without due process of law" but these objectors were charged by Donnelly with being the tools of the corporations and so the bill was passed with this provision in it.

The railroad and warehouse commissioners sought under this law to fix the charges for transporting milk from Faribault and Owatonna to St. Paul, but the railroad company appealed the case to the United States supreme court, where the law was declared unconstitutional and void. In the last session of the legislature the law of 1887 was amended so as to avoid the constitutional objections raised and the commission is given power to prescribe rates, which rates shall be as "prima facie reasonable rates" in all the courts of the state. Just exactly the same provision which Senator Steenerson proposed in 1885. Had his suggestions been followed the railroad problem would have been six years nearer a solution than it is. This shows the folly of too radical measures which cannot stand the test of the courts, and serve only as a delusion and a snare. Senator Steenerson was the author of that provision of the law of 1885 (Sec. 9, Ch. 188.) which requires the commission to investigate and consider what if any amendment or revision of the railroad laws of the state the best interest of the people may demand, and report on said subject to the legislature.

It is by reason of this provision that most of the well digested and carefully prepared railroad laws are now upon the statute books, for this provision has been substantially retained in every revision of the railroad laws since 1885. It was by virtue of this provision that the commission proposed to the last legislature bills for several important acts—among which was one providing for acquiring elevator sites the right of way of railroads—extending the jurisdiction of the commission to country elevators—their weighing and grading of grain, giving the farmer the power to compel railroads to deliver the wheat shipped at the point of destination. All these needed and beneficial measures were however defeated by the democrat-alliance combine in the house, presumably because their passage would have to that extent diminished their political capital. It is a fact that the only real improvements in the railroad legislation of the state at the last session is due to the labor of the commission under said provision of the law of 1885, of which Senator Steenerson was the author. This is not generally known, but it is a fact nevertheless and the records prove it. Mr. Steenerson has given the subject of railway regulation and control special study and is probably one of the best qualified men in state to deal with this difficult subject.

The convention has renewed the demand of this section of the state for an adequate appropriation for the reclamation and drainage of the low and wet lands of the country, and have placed this demand upon grounds which it will be difficult to ignore.

The swamp lands of this section have been diverted from the object for which they were given and have been donated to build railroads and state institutions in the southern and central part of the state. This is a violation of trust imposed by the general government upon the state in the grant of swamp lands and can only be made good by an adequate appropriation to the end that every river and creek channel from Wild Rice north may be dredged out and main drains or ditches constructed through every town. This measure was ably and persistently urged upon the legislature by Senator Sampson in 1887, but the opposition was then too strong.

To again press this just claim upon the state no better advocate could have been selected than Mr. Steenerson. It is said of him that he obtained more bridge appropriations for this district twice over than has ever been obtained since. He will be of incalculable value to the district in the legislature and of his election there can be no doubt.

HOW ABOUT THIS?

The free trader's tariff tax on wire nails is 2 cents a pound, which he says is paid on every pound of them bought and used in this country, but they are selling regularly, according to the Iron Age of April 14th, at 1.65 cents a pound, 3.5 mills less than the alleged tax. It is only a few years ago when, under a low tariff, wire nails were so dear that farmers could not afford to buy them at all. Now, under the McKinley law they sell cheaper than ever before, and the farmer can drive them into his fence posts or sheep sheds with the satisfaction of knowing that he is driving absolutely the cheapest and best wire nails in the world, notwithstanding the "grinding tariff" on them.—American Economist.

In 1875, under the revenue duty of about 1 cent a pound, we made 1,000 kegs of wire nails, which sold at 10 cents a pound. In 1883 the duty was made protective (4 cents a pound) and last year we made over 4,000 times as many (4,114,385 kegs) and they have been selling as low as 1.5 cents a pound in large lots, 1-2 cent a pound below the present duty.

And here's another one. Take the working girl's home dress of challis which is wool and cotton. The duty on these goods is 9½ cents a yard and the retail price is 7 cents a yard. And yet the democrats tell us the consumer pays that duty of 9½ cents.

STRAWS TELL.

Coming out of Washington the other day a vote was taken as to political preferences. The train was composed of eight or ten coaches filled mostly with Grand Army men, there being about 50 others. Every Grand Army man voted for Harrison and a majority of the others, also.

HON. R. G. EVANS, the Minnesota member of the national republican committee, will deliver an address in in Crookston, on October 21st.

TELEGRAMS from Topeka, announce that the alliance party is on the decline in Kansas. Even Jerry Simpson cannot draw one-sixth of the people he did two years ago, and everywhere their meetings are poorly attended.

GENERAL JAS. W. HUSTED died at his home in Peekskill, N.Y., Sept. 25th. General Husted had the longest legislative service of any man in the history of his state, namely eighteen years. He was speaker of the house of representatives in the legislature six times. For over 30 years he had been in active political life.

SPEAKING of Wolcott and his boomerang circular, the Grand Forks Herald says: "Unfortunately for the hope of working democratic campaign material out of the book issued by one C. C. Wolcott, the author is known in this county, where he formerly resided, as utterly unreliable and unworthy of belief, even while under oath."

THE boom edition of the Thief River Falls Press is out and it's a hummer. It contains a write-up of the village and surrounding country, and is filled with cuts of prominent business men of Thief River Falls, its business blocks, mills, etc., and taken altogether the edition is a grand advertisement for the thriving young village. Long live the Press.

HENRY FEIG, republican candidate for congress in the 7th district, is a plain, practical farmer, a man who understands the needs of the farmer thoroughly, a man of intelligence, who, should he be elected, would be able to accomplish effective work for all of his constituents. He is not one of those political farmers who farms with his mouth for selfish purposes.

THIS is truly a campaign of education. The next event in the republican lecture course is a number of speeches by N. S. Nelson, from October 3 to 7. There is no necessity for any one remaining in ignorance of the issues in this campaign for by attending the meetings held by the different parties he can become acquainted with all the arguments of all the parties.

SECRETARY McCOMAS, of the republican national committee, who has been taking a trip through the south says there are three southern states which will not be in the democratic column this fall. One of these is West Virginia, and McComas asserts that it will go republican. If northern people keep immigrating to the south for the next five years as they have in the past five years, it will change the political complexion of the "solid south."

DURING our trip we took occasion to interview the inhabitants of the various states through which we passed upon the political situation. In Wisconsin we found the Peoples' party quite strong, in Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, West Virginia and Maryland, very little, and in Pennsylvania and New York they knew nothing about such an organization only as they read of it. In Minnesota it has degenerated into a scramble for office without regard to the interests of the laboring classes in whose welfare it was supposed to have been formed.

THE democrats of North Dakota didn't indorse the People's Party nominees for nothing. The work of withdrawing the people's party canditates and placing democrats in their stead has already begun. Dr. M. O. Tiegen, the populist candidate for congress, has been withdrawn in favor of Jas. O'Brien, a democrat. In Grand Forks county an effort is being made to withdraw the Populist candidate for the state senate from the seventh district in favor of a democrat to be nominated. Wherever the populists fuse with the democrats they will find that the democrats will get the largest share of the spoils.

THE following telegram from London under date of September 10th is respectifully referred to any democrat who thinks that the condition of labor is better in free trade England than in the United States:

> The army of unemployed men in Liverpool is increasing in numbers every day. Last Tuesday a business firm advertised for a few men, offering five shillings a day wages. A few minutes after the advertisement appeared hundreds of applicants crowded the place, and although the late comers were informed that the places had been filled, the crowd kept growing till it blocked the street and caused suspension of all traffic. The eager but disappointed faces of the poor fellows were pathetic in their strained gaze, and spoke too eloquently of the widespread distress now existing in the greatest seaport town. At last the police had to be called in to disperse the crowd, which reluctantly departed.

THE following from the Brainerd Tribune shows that republican enthusiasm in Crow Wing county is away above par this year.

> The Republicans of Crow Wing county opened the campaign of '92 with a grand demonstration on Wednesday evening last, which was just a little the biggest affair of the kind ever known in this section. Previous to the speaking in the Opera House there was a grand torchlight procession under the auspices of the League club, headed by the Third Regiment Band, fully 500 torch bearers being in line. The boys made a fine display with their new uniforms, and were enthusiastically cheered by the hundreds of people who crowded the streets along the line of march. The flambeau club of fifty men with torches throwing a flame high in the air was the great feature of the parade. The town was fairly ablaze with enthusiasm, showing that the loyal republicans of Crow Wing county have their blood up and are in splendid fighting trim.

THE New York Press tells of a thrilling incident in the G. A. R. parade at Washington as follows: "Ohio comes next, 2,000 strong, with Commander Warner at its head, and then Pennsylvania avenue sees a sight that can only be seen in one country on God's earth. It is a white-haired, but erect, old but not feeble, man, marching in the ranks of a country post and saluting to the Vice President, while he bows to the roaring plaudits of the crowd. He has come up that avenue before, but not on foot. He has come up that avenue in the state, simple but impressive, which befits the ruler of 50,000,000 free people. He did not pass the place where the reviewing stand is when he came up before. He entered then at the gate of the mansion behind the trees. He is Comrade Rutherford B. Hayes of the Ohio Department, ex-president of the United States."

THE woman suffragists met in Chicago last week and nominated Mrs. Victoria Woodhall Martin of New York and London—principally London—as their candidate for president of the United States and Mrs. Stowe, of California, for vice-president. It seems strange that these ladies couldn't find an American woman on whom they could confer this honor—if honor it be—without going to England for a candidate.

Their platform is as follows:

> Whereas, under the 14th amendment no citizen is deprived of the franchise through law, but by custom and habit, therefore be it.
>
> Resolved, we, the representative women of America, ask the officers in charge of the election precincts throughout the United States in the coming campaign to give us the opportunity to cast our ballots on the first Tuesday of November, 1892, for our candidates.
>
> "Resolved, that, by the united efforts of the women voters of this nation, we will drive anarchy, crime, insanity, and drunkenness from our midst by our humanitarian efforts backed by the ballot."

ON THE 22d inst. the republican legislative convention was held in this city, and certain resolutions were passed, outlining the needs of this section in the matter of legislation. By reference to the report of the convention in another column it will be seen what those resolutions were. The principal demands made were for state appropriations for drainage, laws regulating the weighing, grading and handling of grain, and a law fixing lower freight rates. In the Crookston Times of the 27th inst. appears an editorial endorsing the platform of the republican convention, and urging the democratic legislative convention which met on the 28th inst. to adopt exactly the same demands as made by the republican convention. The republican party has always been the aggressive or reform party, and the democrats the conservative or do-nothing party, and for this reason the JOURNAL is pleased to note the efforts of Editor McKenzie in trying to stir up the democrats, and it is doubly gratifying to see him urging upon his party the excellent platform already adopted by the republican convention.

A. G. WEISSERT, who was elected commander-in-chief of the G. A. R. at Washington, was born at Canton, Ohio, August 17, 1844. He attended the schools at Racine, Wisconsin, the state of his adoption. Graduating from the Racine High school, he entered the university of Michigan. He was distinguished in his studies, and bore off the degree of L. L. D. He was admitted to practice in Wisconsin, and was winning fame at the Milwaukee bar when the war broke out. As soon as the tocsin sounded he enlisted in the eighth Wisconsin infantry, "The Live Eagle," and shared its fortunes until the battle of Nashville. There he was grievously wounded, receiving a bullet just over the knee, which he still carries. Convalescing sufficiently to rejoin his regiment, he did so on crutches.

After four years' gallant service he was brevetted captain from the date of the battle of Lake Chiole, Arkansas, June 6, 1864, for meritorious service in that fight, and at the battle of Nashville on Dec. 15 following, and for extraordinary bravery throughout the Red River expedition. He refused the tender of a West Point cadetship by reason of his wound.

HE joined the Grand Army of the Republic at Madison, Wis., in 1866, and has filled creditable every position from comrade and officer of the army up to department commander. He has since been called upon to administer the latter office. He was chairman of the executive council of the citizens' committee that made the twenty-third encampment at Milwaukee a success. In observance of the custom of throwing the senior vice commandership to the encampment city the hero of the day received the prize. At the Detroit encampment he received the second highest number of votes for the office to which hehas been elected. In the capacity of senior vice commander he visited all the departments of the East in company with Commander-in-Chief R. A. Palmer. Just now he is a member of E. R. Wolcott post, of Milwaukee.

All Parties will Support Him.

Warren Sheaf.—Frank Ives, of Crookston, the people's candidate for judge of district court in the fourteenth judicial district, was in the city Tuesday interviewing some of his friends. He is a most persistent office seeker, and for that reason alone, if for no other, he deserves defeat. His nomination, in the first place, was obtained by employing the methods of a machine politician, and besides, he is considered to be utterly unqualified for the high office. His record as county attorney of Polk county counts against him. The people believe in a non-partizan judiciary, and for that reason republicans, democrats and populists will support the present judge, Hon. Ira B. Mills, who has come out as an independent candidate for re-election.

THE CANDIDATES.

The Journal Introduces to the Electors the Candidates on the Republican County Ticket.

It Tells Who They are, Where They Live, Their Occupation, Etc., Etc.

It is Conceded to be a Strong Ticket and With Proper Work can be Elected.

The JOURNAL takes this opportunity of insroducing to the electors the various candidates on the republican county ticket. The republican ranks are being increased every day, and when the ballots arecounted in November it will be found that the republicans are "in it,"

COUNTY AUDITOR.

The nominee for County Auditor W. A. Lanctot, is a young man who has been identified with the interests of Crookston for 11 years, having came here in 1881. From September 1st 1882 to October 1st 1885 he was engaged in the local United States land office, and for the past five years has been deputy surveyor general of logs for the seventh district of Minnesota. "Will" is not a politician, but a more capable man for the position of county auditor would be hard to find.

COUNTY TREASURER.

Lewis Lohn, the nominee for this office, is a popular and energetic young business man of Fosston, and thoroughly qualified for the office for which he has been named. He was born near Chicago 35 years ago, and came to the Red River valley when 21 years of age. He farmed in Traill county, North Dakota, and also held the office of register of deeds of that county for 5 years. He came to Polk county in 1887 and settled at Fosston, where he engaged in the hardware business. He is at present cashier of the bank of Fosston, in which he owns considerable stock.

REGISTER OF DEEDS.

The nominee for this office is a farmer of Norden township, where he settled on land 11 years ago. He has also taught school and has been active in township affairs, having organized the township and two school districts in the township. He was census enumerator of district No. 288, and has been a member of the town board for 2 years.

ATTORNEY.

Ira C. Richardson the nominee for this office was born at Lebanon, N. D., on September 21st, 1885. In 1865 he came with his parents to southern Minnesota and settled on a farm. At the age 19 years he was a public school teacher, which vocation he follow for several years. He studied law at Rochester, Minn., for one and a half years, then took the complete course at the Iowa law school, from which he graduated in 1884 with the degree of Bachelor of Laws. He has practiced his profession continually ever since that time. March 25th, 1885, he settled at Argyle Minn., and in 1886 he was elected county attorney of Marshall county, Minn., and in 1888 was nominated by all three parties and retained the office for two terms and declined renomination in 1890. In March 1892 he settled at Thief River Falls and is at present attorney of the village. He has one of the finest law libraries in the state and is an attorney of more than ordinary ability, and is every way qualified to fill the office for which he is nominated.

SHERIFF.

Jas. M. Bain of Fisher, the candidate for sheriff, was born in Fullerton, Ont., in 1860. He came west in 1869 and settled in Winona county, Minn., and afterwards moved to Polk county, and now owns and lives on a farm one mile from Fisher. He has always been a staunch republican, but never asked for or held any political office. The republicans have acted wisely in selecting Mr. Bain as their candidate for sheriff.

JUDGE OF PROBATE.

The candidate for this office, R. J. Montague, needs no introduction to the people of this county. He is one of Polk county's ablest attorneys and has long been identified with the interests of Crookston and Polk county.

SUPERINTENDENT OF SCHOOLS.

Why say anything about the candidate for this office? Everybody in the county knows V. D. Carruth. He has been connected with the educational interests of the county from the early pioneer days and is not only universally popular but thoroughly familiar with every branch of school work. This is one of the most important offices in the county and a man can only become familiar with the workings of the office by years of practical experience. Superintendent Carruth should and will be re-elected.

COMMISSIONER FIRST DISTRICT.

E. D. Barness, the nominee for commissioner from the first district, is a prominent farmer of Brandsvold township. He was born on a farm in Freeborn county, Minnesota, in 1857. He remained with his parents until he was 23 years old when he removed to Traill county, N. D., and engaged in farming. In 1886 he settled on a homestead in Brandsvold township in Polk county Minnesota, where he and his family have lived ever since. He is a man of good sound judgment and has held various offices in his own town, and the satisfaction he has given the people, together with his general character, is sufficient guarantee that if he is elected he will do credit to the office to which he is elected.

COMMISSIONER SECOND DISTRICT.

Thos. Erwin of Fisher, the nominee for this position, has served on the board since the resignation of Mr. Stortroen, and during that time has shown himself thoroughly capable of taking care of the interests of the county. He is a prominent farmer residing near Fisher, having settled there some 20 years ago. By hard labor and careful management he has become comfortably fixed. His word is as good as any man's note, and the people of his district swear by him almost to a man, irrespective of party affiliation. His election is a foregone conclusion, and the only question is, how large will his majority be?

COMMISSIONER THIRD DISTRICT.

E. D. Childs, the republican nominee for county commissioner in the third district, is one of the successful farmers of Polk county. He was born in Massachusetts under the shadow of Bunker Hill. When thirteen years of age he removed with his parents to Pierce county, Wisconsin, which was then an almost unbroken prairie solitude. They settled on a piece of wild land, which the strength and youth of his early manhood was spent in cultivating. In 1877 he came to Polk county and purchased some wild land of the railroad company, which he has since spent his time in cultivating. He is a man who is in touch with the farmers and thoroughly understands their needs. He is a man of sterling character, upright and honest, and is besides one of the shrewdest business men in the country. While alderman of the 5th ward of the city of Crookston he has demonstrated the fact that as a parliamentarian he has no superior in that body.

COMMISSIONER FIFTH DISTRICT.

The people of the fifth commissioner district have nominated a man whose name is the synonym of honesty wherever he is known, a man whose character is above reproach, and a man who has the respect of all who know him—Thos. Nesbit of Mallory. Mr. Nesbit settled in Huntsville, Polk County in 1877, having came from Canada in 1865 and lived at Winona, Minn. for 12 years before coming to the Red River Valley. He owns and works several excellent farms in Huntsville township. He has held the office of town treasurer for ten years, being the unanimous choice of the people all the time.

Geo. Ralph for surveyor and Geo. Holt for coroner are both well-known Crookston gentlemen.

Lawler's Opinion of the Norwegians

St. Peter Tribune: Mr. Lawler's sarcastic fling at Knute Nelson's nationality, in his remarks at the democratic meeting Monday night, made him no votes among thinking men. Mr. Lawler said: "I do not want to explain the motives that prompted the nomination of my opponent for governor, as it would be cruelty to animals."

Greeted With Large Audiences.

Grand Forks Herald: Judge R. J. Montague, of Crookston, was in the city last evening, on his return from Walsh and Pembina counties, where he has delivered a campaign speech each evening of the week, speaking at Grafton Monday evening, Drayton Tueday, Cavalier Wednesday, Bathgate Thursday and Ardoch Friday. Judge Montague has addressed large audiences at each of these points, enunciating sound republican doctrine on the leading national issues At each of these republican rallies, held in the midst of a busy week for farmers, the attendance has been larger than that which Lawler, democratic nominee for governor of Minnesota, was able to muster at Crookston. Judge Montague was accorded a specially hospitable reception at Ardoch, where his audience was graced by the presence of many ladies. The state committee has secured Judge Montague for five more effective speeches before the campaign closes.

Ripans Tabules cure constipation.

Ripans Tabules are always ready.

Ripans Tabules cure the blues.

Ripans Tabules cure dyspepsia.

FOR GERMANS' VOTES.

DEMOCRATS MAKE A BID WHICH WILL PROVE FUTILE.

There Are Many Reasons Why the Germans Will Not Support a Free Trade Candidate—Bismarck and Caprivi Are Both Believers in Protection.

The address of Carl Schurz and other politicians of the same ilk to the German-American voters, urging them to support Cleveland, will hardly have the desired effect. There are certain reasons why the voters of this class cannot be expected to assist in the election of a free trade president. They are intelligent and practical men as a rule, and their political actions are governed by the lessons of observation and experience. Many of them have directly profited in a marked degree by the policy of protection, and they have all been benefited more or less through its useful influence in all branches of trade and industry.

It is useless to present theories to them showing that a tariff system like ours is a wrong and a burden, and that it would be better to throw open our markets to cheap foreign products and put our labor in competition with that of countries where wages barely suffice to keep soul and body together. They know that the facts refute this form of theorizing. The statistics tell a story of prosperity that leaves no room for doubt as to the value of protective duties, and they have besides the testimony of their personal well being to convince them that the tariff is not robbing and ruining them. They can remember when Carl Schurz advocated the policy which he now condemns, and he would probably be doing so today if the Republican party had continued to give him important and lucrative offices.

When the German-American looks back to his fatherland he does not see any reason for being a free trader. He knows that Germany has a protective tariff, and that its advantages in her case are similar to those which we have derived from the same source. It was the great Bismarck who ten years ago declared, "In my deliberate judgment the prosperity of the United States—the most illustrious success of modern times in material development—is due to its protective laws, and I urge that Germany has now reached the point where it is necessary to imitate the tariff system of that country." His advice was taken, and the result has fully vindicated its wisdom.

A tribute of equal praise has been given to us in the same relation by his successor, Caprivi, who is also a protectionist, as are most of the leading German statesmen. It is well understood that the workmen of Germany are better paid and more contented and happy than they were under previous conditions, and that her manufacturing industries have been largely increased and the chances of employment correspondingly multiplied.

The German-Americans are familiar with all these facts and clearly comprehend their significance. They realize that protection has been a surpassing blessing both to the country of their birth and to the country of their adoption. No other argument is needed to satisfy them that it ought to be maintained here as well as there. They will not vote for Cleveland at the request of Carl Schurz, and thus strike a blow at a system which is commended to their approval and confidence by such a record of profit, general and personal, as has never before been known in all the history of civilization.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Hill's Cousin Bets on Harrison.

It will be an interesting tip for New Yorkers of both political parties to know that Senator David B. Hill's first cousin, George E. Hayner, of New York, recently had a long conference with the senator, and as a result of that conference is betting on Harrison. Mr. Hayner is in Boston, and in an interview he said:

"If you have any money to bet place it on Harrison, where I place my money. I know what I am doing."

"Will Mr. Hill come out and support Cleveland?" he was asked.

"I do not think he will. I am betting my money on Harrison, and I know what I am doing."—New York Press.

A Doubly Monotonous Proceeding.

Some of the leading Democratic papers acknowledge that it is very tiresome to be obliged to shout for one man for twelve long years. But when that man cuts the somewhat absurd figure in the political history of the country that Grover presents, it is doubly monotonous. Even Andrew Jackson tired the Democracy at last. They want a new prophet and they want him very bad.—Burlington (Ia.) Hawkeye.

Democrats Are Full of Forebodings.

The attempt to get Don M. Dickinson out of the way by sending him to Chicago; the distrust of Dickinson as to the loyalty of Brice, Gorman and Ransom to the Cleveland cause; the peculiar and ominous quietness of Gray and Boies, who have evidently not recovered from their chagrin at being shelved at Chicago, are filling the minds of Democratic politicians with forebodings.—Milwaukee Wisconsin.

A Cheerful Contemplation, Indeed.

The Democratic party, should it elect its presidential ticket and carry the next congress, proposes to take the duty off wool and to allow peon mined Mexican lead ore to come into this country free of duty. Should this happen our wool growers would be ruined, and the mines of New Mexico would have to close down. Just contemplate this, all you interested.—Santa Fe (N. M.) New Mexican.

David Was Right That Time.

Again we remark that David B. Hill was right when he said the Democratic platform had turned every workship in the country into a Republican headquarters.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

IN FORTY-FOUR STATES.

"Benjamin Harrison, So We All Say, Will Be Our Next President."

NE B RASKA
G E ORGIA
CALIFOR N IA
NEW J ERSEY

NEW H AMPSHIRE
M A RYLAND
VI R GINIA
NO R TH CAROLINA
LOU I SIANA
WI S CONSIN
M O NTANA
ILLI N OIS

S OUTH DAKOTA
I O WA

W YOMING
MINN E SOTA

M A SSACHUSETTS
CO L ORADO
DE L AWARE

ARKAN S AS ID A HO
KENTUCK Y

NE W YORK
MICH I GAN
F L ORIDA
NORTH CARO L INA

ALA B AMA
MAIN E

OHI O
CONNECTIC U T
MISSOU R I

KA N SAS
W E ST VIRGINIA
TE X AS WASHING T ON

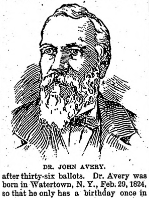
P ENNSYLVANIA
VE R MONT
OR E GON
MIS S ISSIPPI
RHODE I SLAND
IN D IANA
N E VADA
TE N NESSEE
NOR T H DAKOTA.

—New York Recorder.

A Physician Congressman.

The Republican congressional nomination in the Eleventh Michigan district means election, and is always sought after by the best men. The next congressman from this famous district will be Dr. John Avery, of Greenville, whom the Republicans recently nominated after thirty-six ballots. Dr. Avery was born in Watertown, N. Y., Feb. 29, 1824, so that he only has a birthday once in four years. When he was a boy of twelve his parents removed to Michigan. The doctor earned his education by his own efforts. He served with distinction as a surgeon during the "late unpleasantness," and has since been a member of the state legislature, besides having held various local offices in Greenville. The Republicans of the Eleventh Michigan made no mistake when they selected Dr. Avery to represent them in congress.



DR. JOHN AVERY.

They Greatly Fear Harrison.

The secret of the Democratic fault finding is a well grounded fear of the man who now sits in the White House. Four years have demonstrated that Benjamin Harrison is a very clear headed, farseeing man and no novice in politics. He believes in practical work in its very best sense and understands how to plan it shrewdly and ably direct its execution. It is this fact that incites Democratic misrepresentation and abuse. The Bourbons would gladly rob the Republicans of the advice and counsel of President Harrison, for they know nothing would weaken them more. This being understood, Democratic criticisms on this point are unworthy of attention.—Cleveland Leader.

Savings Banks Deposits.

In three years and a half, immediately following the election of President Harrison and a protectionist congress, the deposits in New York's savings banks increased from $523,677,575

on Jan. 1, 1889, to $610,560,031 on July 1, 1892, and the number of depositors from 1,362,852 to 1,556,183

—New York Press.

German-Americans Will Vote Right.

The Republican party stands out more prominently for the people today than it ever has before. It stands for the protection of American industries. Our German-American citizens are a thrifty class, and they appreciate the necessity of standing by the party more firmly than ever. They have made no mistake, and there will be abundant evidence of this fact as the campaign progresses.—Newark (N. J.) Daily Advertiser.

Without Issues, Principles or Courage.

Without issues, without principles, without the courage of its convictions, if it has any, how can the Democratic party appeal to the young men of the country for support? They are earnest, conscientious, patriotic and thoroughly courageous in their beliefs. There is nothing in the Democratic party to attract such men.—Rochester (N. Y.) Democrat and Chronicle.

Explain This, Free Traders.

In the good old times of the Walker tariff, in 1857, a suit of clothes cost twenty-five dollars, but a better one, made of American goods, can be bought today for half that sum. Today all kinds of skilled labor is paid an average of 40 per cent. more than in those good old times.—Indianapolis Journal.

MUSIC AS MEDICINE.

INSTEAD OF TONING UP A SICK MAN HE MAY BE "TUNED UP."

Discussion of a Subject That Has Been Suggested by an Eminent Physician of St. Petersburg—Some Tunes That Would Be Inappropriate for Certain Ills.

Professor Tarchanow, of St. Petersburg, lectured recently on "The Influence of Music on the Human Organism," and affirmed that music is of the greatest service in the treatment of disease, and that, by the proper use of music, the system can be "tuned" like a musical instrument. Sufferers from nerve disorders can, he states, be soothed by music, but the remedy must be employed with discrimination, as in some cases it produces an effect contrary to that which is intended.

Well, opium will do that, and so will many other drugs when they are not "used with discrimination," so that is no disparagement to the therapeutic virtue of music. So if Professor Tarchanow is right—and he is a scientific man—the degree of musical doctor, such as was conferred on Sir Arthur Sullivan, is very likely to have a new significance. The subject opens up rather a broad view.

Where will a college for such musical doctors be located? Where can a man studying musical medicine learn the effect of some heroic remedy, like the trombone, without originating a scourge of nervous diseases? It is possible, however, to build the college in the middle of some vast, uninhabited tract, where professors, students and patients can literally wrestle with the problem.

There are of course only a certain number of musical instruments. Will a musical doctor use all of them in his practice, will they make up his pharmacopœia, or will he become a specialist on one instrument, a first violinist, so to speak, in the grand orchestra of the profession? If he becomes a specialist he must treat different diseases by administering different tunes. The swan song from "Lohengrin" would naturally have one effect upon a man in a fit; "Ta-ra-ra-boom-de-ay" another. Professor Tarchanow attributes the frequent failure of music to cure diseases to its being used at the wrong time and in unsuitable cases. So of course the young musical practitioner will exercise the nicest judgment. He can lay down some standard rules like "Wagner in case of stupor," or "Offenbach in melancholia," but he will never dream of giving "I Owe Ten Dollars to O'Grady," when an unfortunate has taken arsenic with suicidal intent, or of prescribing the newest ballet music for a girl suffering with St. Vitus' dance.

The Russian savant expressed the conviction that a time will come when music "in the hands of scientifically trained physicians" will be acknowledged to be an agent of great power for the relief of suffering. It would be now if it were "in the hands of scientifically trained physicians." Their training has taught them to detect human suffering. They can see a man wince when his ear is shocked; they can see him squirm and twist—smiling all the time—while some one sings "The Last Rose of Summer" out of tune. They can in fact hear his teeth grate when his favorite air is played false. Can the ordinary young person at the piano do that; can the leader of the German band; can the fellow with the hand organ?

"How can music fail to relieve," exclaims Tarchanow, "when a series of cases has proved that it is the the most powerful regulator of men's moods and feelings which dominate many sides of the psychical and physical life of the organism?" A profane critic might suggest that musicians as a class do not exemplify that perfect "regulation" of their emotions which might be expected. The professor has doubtless never seen two bandmasters pulling each other's hair in a fight about the proper tempo of the Dead March in Saul. It is even possible that he has never heard of rival prima donnas scratching and clawing. But this failure to regulate the emotions of musicians may be the result of the tolerance begotten of overuse. The same thing happens in the medicine of the present day. An old morphia fiend can take enough of the drug to kill a dozen ordinary men. Then there are of course those Styrians who, beginning to take arsenic wheh they are young, are in years able to eat it as some people do garlic.

However all this may be, the sedative effect of music on patients in whom the instrument of mind is "like sweet bells jangled out of tune and harsh" is universally admitted. Canon Harford, an Englishman, has reported clinical experiments made by the St. Cecilia guild that show that it has a distinctly beneficial effect in certain cases of insomnia. Here, too, one would think the tune employed would have to be chosen with very nice judgment.

Music doubtless will relieve pain, not by acting on the nerve centers, but by distracting the sufferer's attention. This is the true field for music as a therapeutic agency, and it is improbable that it ever can do more. Orpheus made trees and mountains dance to his lute, and the Pied Piper's music purged Hamelin of rats, but it is very doubtful whether Canon Hartford will ever charm away a tumor or rid a tuberculous lung of bacilli. Within limits, however, music may be a most useful handmaiden to medicine, and in this age of "nerves" it might possibly be made to play an important part in the prevention of the many diseases which are fostered if not actually engendered by depression and fatigue. Canon Hartford and his colleagues may be encouraged to persevere in their efforts to press the most spiritual of the fine arts into the service of suffering humanity.—New York World.

Bluff Enough There.

"Do you want to see the Artists' bluff?" asked the White Mountain guide.

"No; I go to all the art galleries at home," said the matter of fact tourist.—Boston Transcript.

WANTED SALESMEN.
Local and Traveling
To represent our well known house. You need no capital to represent a firm that warrants nursery stock first-class and true to name. WORK ALL THE YEAR. $100 per month to the right man. Apply quick, stating age.
L. L. MAY & CO.,
Nurserymen, Glosists and Seedsmen,
(This house is responsible.) St. Paul, Minn.

NOTICE OF INTENDED APPLICATION to vacate a portion of the Townsite of South Crookston:

To whom it may concern:

Notice is hereby given that I, the undersigned, owner and proprietor of the real estate hereinafter described, will, on the fifth day of December, A. D. 1892, make application to the Honorable, the Judge of the District Court of the Fourteenth Judicial District, in and for the county of Polk, Minnesota, at the Court House in the city of Crookston, in said county and State, at the hour of 10 o'clock in the forenoon of said day, or as soon thereafter as counsel can be heard, to vacate a portion of the Townsite of South Crookston, in said county of Polk, Minnesota, that is embraced in the description hereafter given. Said application for vacating being intended to cover streets, alleys and blocks as originally platted and dedicated. That said intended application to vacate will be made upon the ground that the same has become wholly useless for the purpose for which the same was platted and dedicated. That the property intended to be vacated is described as follows, to-wit: All of blocks 4, 5, 7, 8, 9, 11, 12,13,14,21,22, of the townsite of South Crookston, according to the recorded plat thereof now on file in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said county of Polk, Minnesota, and also a portion of the following named streets adjoining the real estate above described, as follows, to-wit: A part of Hill avenue, College avenue, Polk avenue, Sampson street, Water street and Riverside avenue.

All parties interested are hereby notified to be present at the above time and place.

Dated Crookston, Minn., Sept. 24th, 1892.

PETRIE SAMPSON,
Proprietress and Owner.

H. STEENERSON,
Attorney for Petitioner. [24]

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication Sept. 29th, 1892.]
[Last publication Nov. 10th, 1892.]

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE payment of nine dollars ($9.00) which became due on the first day of October, A. D. 1889, upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Daniel Bernard and Fannie Jane Bernard, his wife, to John Milton Oliver, bearing date the 3d day of October, A. D. 1888, which mortgage together with the power of sale therein contained, was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the county of Polk and state of Minnesota, on the 29th day of October, A. D. 1888, at 8 o'clock and 10 minutes a. m., in book 40 of mortgages, on pages 273, 274 and 275.

It is provided in said mortgage that if said mortgagors shall fail to pay any part of the sum of money thereby secured at the time and in the manner specified in said mortgage, then upon such default, the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage, may at the option of the mortgagee be declared due and payable; and the said John Milton Oliver, mortgagee, who is now the legal holder of said mortgage and of the notes thereby secured, has elected and does hereby elect and declare the whole sum secured by said mortgage to be due; and there is claimed to be due upon said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of forty-eight and 13-100 dollars, ($48.13), and no action or proceeding has been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Wherefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz:

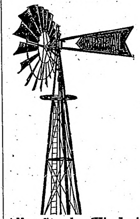
The northeast quarter (ne¼) of Section fourteen, (14) in Township one hundred and fifty-four (154) north, of Range forty-six (46) west, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres more or less, according to the government survey thereof, in the county of Polk and state of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances thereto belonging; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said county of Polk at the front door of the Court House in the city of Crookston, in said county and state, on Saturday, the 12th day of November, A. D. 1892, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon of that day, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

Dated at Minneapolis, Minn., this 24th day of September, A. D. 1892.

JOHN MILTON OLIVER,
Mortgagee.

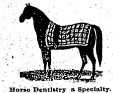
C. M. HERTIG,
Attorney for mortgagee. [24-30]

THE IMPERIAL



All Steel Windmill,
Can be set up on a Steel or Wood Tower.
We carry a
COMPLETE STOCK OF
WOOD AND IRON PUMPS,
including DOUBLE-ACTING,
ANTI-FREEZING
FORCE PUMPS.
IRON PIPE AND IRON PIPE FITTINGS.
Special attention given to the
2-in Plugged and Rimmed Well Casing.
PRICES AS LOW AS THE LOWEST.
Estimates given on all Plumbing Contracts in or out of the city.
CROOKSTON PLUMBING CO.,
Broadway, near Robert St., Crookston, Minn.

E. D. SCHREADER,
Veterinary Surgeon.



Horse Dentistry a Specialty.
All Calls receive Prompt Attention.
Satisfaction guaranteed in all cases.
Office: 319 North Main Street, in connection with Livery house.
CROOKSTON, MINN.

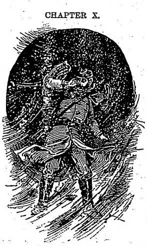
A SOLDIER'S SECRET
BY CAPT. CHARLES KING.
U.S.A.

COPYRIGHT, 1892, BY J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY, AND PUBLISHED BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH THEM.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—Nita Guthrie, a St. Louis girl, is visiting the family of Surgeon Holden, in the camp of the Twelfth cavalry, in Arizona. Captain Rolfe, an officer of the Twelfth, proposes and is rejected. An old love affair is in the way. Nita swoons over some mysterious apparition on the eve of her departure for home. II—After Nita leaves camp Dr. Holden tries to unearth the mystery of her swoon. He suspects that Sergeant Ellis, a recent recruit, and a man with a history, had some connection with it. III—Lieutenant "Curly" Brewster, another officer of the Twelfth, is in love with Winifred Berrien, the daughter of Major Berrien. Captain Rolfe lights upon evidence that another woman claims Brewster's devotion. IV—The society at the fort gives a hop, and Mrs. Knowles, a married flirt from a near by town, makes a scene with Brewster, at which Major Berriam and Winifred are mystified and indignant. V—Before Brewster can explain to Winifred about the Khowles woman his troop is ordered to march against the Sioux Indians in Dakota. VI—Major Berrien hears some gossip about Brewer's relations to Mrs. Knowles and bars the lover out from a parting word with Winifred. VII and VIII—The whole Twelfth goes to the seat of war. Captain Rolfe sends a detective to hunt up Sergeant Ellis' career before he joined the army. IX—Major Berrien is wounded in a skirmish. Brewster and Ellis save his life.

CHAPTER X.



A solitary and well nigh exhausted trooper.

"Since you ask me, sir, I most distinctly oppose its being referred to Major Berrien. He is doing well, but the excitement might bring on fever—and disaster."

It was Dr. Holden who spoke—and very firmly spoke—to Colonel Farquhar four days after the little fight beyond the Porcupine. The colonel sat with bowed head, grave and thoughtful. Before him stood his surgeon, respectful but most earnest in manner. Beside him on the narrow field bed sat Rolfe, with face of gloom—three or four letters and a telegram in his gauntleted hand. Already the wintry twilight was settling down; the wind, that had been moaning through the flimsy shelter for the last hour, was now whistling in gathering wrath and flapping every loose rag of canvas about the crowded cantonment. Mules and horses at the picket lines with one accord were turning tail to the black northwest and pawing the hard and frozen ground in nervous disquiet. The orderly who suddenly stepped within the tent was followed by a few whirling flakes of snow, and the first match he struck in the effort to light the colonel's field lamp was puffed out in a twinkling.

"Give my compliments to Mr. Brewster and ask him to step here," said the colonel after a moment's silence, and the orderly vanished.

In the camp of the Twelfth, where Berrien was universally beloved, three names had been on every lip since the battalion's return—those of the gallant major himself, of Lieutenant Brewster and of Sergeant Ellis. Painfully shot and stunned and bruised though he was, Berrien's wits had never left him. He was positive that the rush of war parties toward the old road portended mischief, and despite the lateness of the hour he ordered the battalion to saddle at once and march to the Porcupine. From the abandoned lodge poles found along the banks experienced hands had quickly lashed together a comfortable litter. Between these improvised shafts two of the most sedate of the elderly pack mules were harnessed fore and aft. A bed of robes and blankets was hung midway, and while Rolfe and Hazlett pushed ahead, scouting every ridge and ravine with their keen eyed skirmishers, Gorham and Thorpe followed, escorting their beloved chief.

Just as was anticipated, at nightfall the distant flash and report of rifles proved that the hostiles were busily at work in some deviltry or other and, launching forward at the gallop, Rolfe's long line swooped down into the valley in time to send the yelling circle of mounted warriors whirling away into the ravines beyond the stream, and to rescue a little squad of scouts and troopers, a mere handful, who had ventured forth with dispatches for Berrien's command and were fighting for life behind their slaughtered horses. Two were already sorely wounded and all would doubtless have lost their scalps but for the veteran major's clear judgment and the sense of duty that triumphed over physical pain.

"The ould man's clear grit all through," said his invariable eulogists, the troopers. But there would have been no dear old man left to them, as Ellis and Scott had borne testimony, had it not been for Brewster's daring charge into the midst of the red warriors. It was his bullet that laid low the savage brandisher of the knife just as he would have gashed the brave old major's throat; but "White Wolf" had counted his last coup and, stripped of his finery, lay stiffening on the prairie a painted corpse, awaiting funeral honors at the hands of his howling comrades.

Every soldier's heart rejoiced that it was Brewster who saved the major's life, for Brewster, of all the subalterns, was first favorite among the rank and file. And as for Ellis, though he was too exclusive—"too much like as though he wanted to be an officer"—to be generally popular among the men, he had always commanded their respect, and his unexpected prowess on this occasion won their genuine admiration. What nerve the fellow had, to be sure, to lie there "playing possum" just as though he were stone dead and ripe for scalping, and so tempt his assailants out from the cover of the ravine, and then never stir until they were so close he simply couldn't miss, and so "got in his deadly work." Brewster and Ellis were the major's avengers, the two troopers who had dealt out death to the foe, and who were therefore, from the soldier point of view, the men most entitled to the honors of the day.

And yet, at the very moment when every other man in the regiment was lauding their names and congratulating them upon their deserved laurels, one captain, Rolfe, was practically demanding at the hands of his colonel that they should be stripped of their high estate and sent to the rear in arrest.

As Dr. Holden stood there listening to the accusations and arguments brought forward by Captain Rolfe, he could not but recall the remarks that in one form or other had occasionally been brought to his ears at Rolfe's expense. Even so conservative and loyal a fellow as Warren, the adjutant, had once summarized his character in forcible terms. "I respect his ability," said he, "but damn his egotism. Rolfe in this regiment is just like the one juror who said that they could long ago have agreed on conviction but for the eleven blooming idiots who held out for acquittal." Rolfe was a man of such intensity of opinion and purpose that once having made up his own mind as to what somebody else ought to do, he deemed it not only a right but a duty to instruct the other party, no matter what that party's rank or station might be; and this was practically what Rolfe had been doing to his colonel ever since Holden appeared upon the scene. Personally Holden had never met Rolfe before the arrival of the regiment at Pawnee, but except a certain dogmatism of manner in discussions over points in tactics, politics, law or whist, he had decidedly liked everything about him, and told the youngsters as much when he found that they did not.

"Any man with half an eye can see that Rolfe wants to make the very best kind of an impression on Dr. and Mrs. Holden," said Randolph. "They are Miss Guthrie's nearest friends and relatives—at least the nearest whom he knows." But Holden also liked Brewster, liked him well, and could not believe all that Rolfe was so strenuously urging upon the colonel, first, that Ellis was a thief and an outcast, and second, that Brewster had known it all along and concealed it. The more positively and unflinchingly Rolfe asserted himself the more did Holden resent it.

Finally Rolfe had burst out with:

"Well, Colonel Farquhar, I'm acting in this manner for the honor of the regiment to which I've been attached through thick and thin for nearly a quarter of a century. I heard you were just sending forward a report highly commending these two men, and I believed it my duty to inform you of their character. As you seem reluctant to accept my statements, I request as a matter of justice to me that you refer my report to Major Berrien at once, and he will corroborate my opinion."

Then and not till then did Farquhar firmly and almost sternly call his subordinate to order, and when Rolfe had been reduced to enforced silence the colonel turned to Holden, and Holden had given prompt voice to his utter objection to their disturbing the wounded major with any such matter. "But I will send for Mr. Brewster, Captain Rolfe, and question him in your presence," said Farquhar. And Brewster, who had just been enjoying a hearty handshake and pleasant words with several officers of the Eleventh who, despite the rising gale, had ridden over to congratulate him, went blithely and briskly to answer the colonel's summons. Warren had given him "the tip" as to the letter being prepared for Farquhar's signature. It was a joy to know that his name was to be sent forward with the praise of his soldierly and honored chief. It was almost rapture to conjecture what Winifred Berrien would think of him when she heard that his vigilance and dash had saved her father's life.

He looked therefore the very picture of stalwart, soldierly, brave eyed manhood as he stepped quickly into the colonel's tent and stood erect before the silent trio there assembled. He came with a heart beating high with anticipation; but one glance at Rolfe's somber and half averted face, the first words in Farquhar's grave, though courteous tones, banished all pleasurable thought and put him on his guard.

"Mr. Brewster, if I remember aright, it was you who presented Sergeant Ellis for enlistment when we were in the Hills. Am I right?"

"Yes, sir."

"You knew him before his joining us, did you not?"

"A short time, sir; yes."

"Where had you known him and how long?"

"At Deadwood, sir; I met him there on two occasions before he decided to enlist."

"Two occasions? And how long before he came to us?"

"Perhaps a week, sir."

"And you had never known him or of him before?"

"I had seen him; but I cannot say that I had ever known him."

"Mr. Brewster," burst in Captain Rolfe at this juncture, before he could be checked, "do you mean to tell me you were not well acquainted with this so called Ellis long before you met him in the Hills?"

"Captain Rolfe," was the instant answer, and the flush leaped to Brewster's cheeks, an angry light to his eyes, "I mean to tell you nothing whatever. I am answering Colonel Farquhar."

"Permit me to conduct this matter, Captain Rolfe," said Farquhar, stretching forth a restraining hand and checking the captain as he rose with another question on his lips. Rolfe with almost any other man might possibly have persisted. He knew Farquhar, however, and knew that however gentle and courteous might be his manner he could come down hard upon those who crossed him. So, with evident effort, he held his tongue, but remained standing. "Be good enough to resume your seat, captain," continued the colonel, all grave politeness; and Rolfe slowly and reluctantly subsided.

"You went to Helena once some five years ago as witness before a court, and the train was held up by road agents, Mr. Brewster. Did you not meet this man about that time?"

"Yes, colonel, I saw him, but I did not know him from Adam."

"You conversed with him, did you not, and were at the same hotel at Helena with him?"

"I did; yes, sir; and I was at the same hotel for thirty-six hours. But he was a total stranger to me. His dress was that of a gentleman, so was his manner, and almost everybody in our car got to talking with him. He was the only one who really saw the train robbers—it was all done so quickly, while we were in our berths; but he had got aboard at some station just before the thing occurred."

"Did you not know when he enlisted that he gave an assumed name?"

"No, colonel, I did not. For all I know Ellis is his own name."

"Yet you knew him as Ralph Erroll at Helena," burst in Rolfe again.

"Captain Rolfe," said the colonel, with marked emphasis, "I will ask you to withdraw; but, except by Dr. Holden's permission, you will not speak of this matter to Major Berrien. I desire to see Mr. Brewster for myself. No, Holden, you remain."

There was no help for it now, Rolfe had to go; and go he did, without a word. Then Farquhar, in his courteous tones, repeated his question and received prompt reply:

"He certainly gave his name as Erroll in Helena and as Ellis when he enlisted, colonel, but which is right or that either is right I have no means of knowing."

"Well, I am told that he gave you much of his history and that you lent him money in Deadwood."

"I did lend him, though at the time I thought I was giving him, twenty dollars to pay pressing debts which he had to settle before he could leave there and come to us. He was destitute and starving. He did tell me something of his past, but whether it was true or not I cannot say. The more I see of him the more I believe it; believe he was a gentleman born and bred, and that he had had hard luck, lost home and friends and fortune; that he took to the west and mining; that he made and lost alternately; that now he is reaping some reward for his labor. What I know is that he is a tiptop soldier, of whom the whole regiment has reason to be proud, even though I don't know what may be his own name."

Holden was listening eagerly to every word.

"May I ask a question, colonel?"

"Certainly, doctor."

"Brewster, did he ever tell you where his home was—where his relatives now live?"

"Yes—Louisville; and I have a packet which, should he be killed or mortally wounded, I have promised to unwrap and express to the address written within. I do not now even know what it is."

"Well, did he never speak of having lived in St. Louis—having had friends there?"

"Never so much as mentioned the place, doctor."

For a moment there was silence, broken only by the dismal moan of the rising gale, the flap of canvas, and the creak of straining guyropes. Farquhar was still thinking deeply. At last he looked up.

"Captain Rolfe has lodged with me very serious charges against Ellis, and bases them on the report of professional detectives. As you know, I gave Ellis permission to ride over to the railway on Gorham's report that he had some important personal matters to look after. Has he returned yet?"

"He had not up to stables, sir, but his pass does not expire until tattoo, and I almost hope he has not started in face of this wind. It looks like a blizzard coming."

"When did Rolfe get these reports, if I may ask?" queried Holden. "I sent a telegram day before yesterday to Mrs. Holden that ought to have reached her that very evening—it was to forestall any sensational newspaper story about the major's wound—and I certainly looked for a reply of some sort yesterday."

"The wires are down both east and west, I'm told—cut by 'friendlies' at the reservation, very probably. No dispatch has passed either way since yesterday," answered the colonel. "Rolfe's must have come before that. Possibly we will have later news when the sergeant rides back tonight. I gave him an order to get any telegrams that might have arrived for the regiment. What time does the train get in from the east—do you know, doctor?"

"Somewhere about three, sir, but I fear there will be no mail for us for a day or two. Old hands here say it is madness to face a Dakota blizzard on the open prairie, and some of the officers think we are in for a gale, to say the least."

"Well, Brewster," said the colonel kindly, "your statement is all that was needed to put an end to any idea that you knew all about Ellis before his enlistment. Of course I shall have to look into Captain Rolfe's charges against him; but say nothing about the matter for the present."

The cavalry trumpet, weird and fitful on the wings of the gale, was sounding first call for retreat as Brewster left the colonel's tent and started down the gentle slope to join his troop. Already the snow flakes were driving almost horizontally with the biting wind, and in the rapidly gathering gloom the men came huddling from their rude shelters, and bundled to the ears in their great coats stood stamping and swinging their arms, impatient to have roll call over and done with. The colonel came forth a moment later, and together he and Holden tramped over to the turf walled structure in which their wounded comrade lay. The air was now so thick with snow that objects a hundred yards distant were blurred and those beyond entirely obscured. Holden softly unstrapped and raised the canvas flap and poked his fur capped head within the aperture.

"Sleeping?" he queried of the hospital attendant.

"Sleeping like a baby, sir," whispered the soldier, as he tiptoed to the entrance. "Captain Hazlett was reading to him over an hour, and then he just dropped away, and the captain left at first call."

"That's capital," said Holden, turning to the chief. "He has worried so over the effect the news might have on his wife that I couldn't get him to sleep. Now, if we can only tide him over until morning and if this beastly gale will only subside, we'll have good news for him."

"Well, don't let Rolfe get near him." said Farquhar with a quiet smile. "There isn't a better duty officer in all the Twelfth, but somebody has to suppress him once in awhile."

"He ought to be married." laughed Holden in reply.

That night when the trumpets pealed tattoo the musicians braced their backs against the blustering northwest and blew as best they could, though Boreas strove to silence their lustiest effort, and no trooper on the windward side could hear a note. Over the whistle and howl of the gale, far out on the desolate prairie, far to the southeast, however, the stirring, welcoming, hope-reviving strain was borne to the frozen ears of a solitary and well nigh exhausted trooper, bidding him pluck up courage, rouse himself to renewed effort, and once more plunge forward into the blackness of the night.

So long as he kept the gale in his battered face, so long would he be struggling toward comrades and shelter. Staggering, stumbling, sometimes crawling a few paces on hands and knees, sometimes turning his back to the icy blast and gasping for breath, sometimes burying his face in his arms, sometimes stretching those arms aloft to heaven and lifting up a silent prayer for help, for strength, he had struggled on afoot long after abandoning his fallen and crippled horse. No beckoning light, no glimmering star to guide, only the rude buffets of the cruel, pitiless blast, the stinging, biting, thrashing of the snow pelting him like small shot, to point the way, yet savagely to beat him back—to bid him face and force them, yet furious to overwhelm and down. Weak and exhausted, he had well nigh abandoned the last vestige of hope, and a wailing cry went moaning aloft from his cracked and frozen lips: "God in heaven guide me; bear me up; give me strength. It is not for myself, but those poor women. God in mercy hear me. God in pity answer."

And over the wrath and fury of the mad hurricane, triumphing above the shriek and howl of the temptest, ringing like the voice of archangel through the vault of the storm lashed skies, God's answer came. The divine pity, riding indeed upon the storm, spoke to him in the glad, thrilling, familiar strains of the far away trumpets of the Twelfth.

Hard Work.

How many men like hard work? Many of us are ready enough to tax our minds or our muscles to the utmost for a certain object, but it is the object we love, not the labor. If we could obtain the end we covet without exertion, which of us would toil and sweat as a matter of choice? Horace Greeley, who was one of the hardest workers of his day and generation, used to say that nine-tenths of those who profess to be enamored of work are mere hypocrites.

Adam himself was an indolent fellow. Had it been otherwise the cultivation of the soil would not have been imposed upon him as a penalty for his disobedience. He was quite taken back when told that he must live by the sweat of his face. He would have preferred the life of a gentleman of leisure, and most of his descendants take after him in that particular. Nevertheless we toil with an energy and perseverance that do honor to our—shall we say to our greed?

But mark our cunning. All the time we are inventing labor saving machinery, manufacturing dumb slaves to do our bidding, while we look on and admire their energy.—Pomona Progress.

Kicked-to-Death May Hang.

RAPID CITY, S. D., Sept. 13.—Deputy United Stated Marshal Matthiessen has arrived from the reservation with Ghost Hawk, alias Kicked-to-Death, charged with beating and kicking his wife, Daisy, to death. The murder was a brutal one and may result in an Indian hanging, an almost unheard of thing in these parts.

By adopting the basic process of making steel castings there is less phosphorous in the metal than when the acid process is used, and the results are said to be most satisfactory.

THIRTEEN TOWNS

FAIR,

At Fosston, Minn.

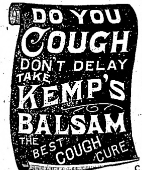
Wednesday, Thursday and Friday,

Oct. 5th, 6th and 7th.

HORSE RACING,
BASE BALL,
ATHLETIC SPORTS,
SPEECH MAKING.

$2,000 IN PURSES AND PREMIUMS.

For Premium List and further particulars, write to
W. H. AVERILL,
Sec. 13 Towns Fair Association,
FOSSTON, MINN.



It Cures Colds, Coughs, Sore Throat, Croup, Influenza, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis and Asthma. A certain cure for Consumption in first stages, and a sure relief in advanced stages. Use at once. You will see the excellent effect after taking the first dose. Sold by dealers everywhere. Large bottles 50 cents and $1.00.

S. L. COLLINS,
Proprietor of Main Street

Livery and Feed Stables.

Cor. Main and Fourth Sts., west side,
CROOKSTON, - - MINNESOTA.

Horses bought and sold on commission. Everything neat and nobby. Feeding a specialty.

FINE HEARSE

in connection, which I will attend to in person.

C. HENDRICKSON, President.
L. ELLINGTON, Vice President.
J. W. WHEELER, Cashier.
H. STEENERSON, 2d Vice President.
A. P. Hanson, Assistant Cashier.

Scandia-American Bank,

Of Crookston, Minn. Organized under the State laws. Authorized capital $200,000. Paid up capital $50,000. Undivided profits $10,500. Buys Bonds, School and Town Orders. Special attention to collections. Interest on time deposits.

DIRECTORS—C. O. Christianson, E. P. Pierce, O. H. Lucken, A. G. Gallasch, H. Steenerson, J. H. Locken, C. Hendrickson, Max Ericsson, L. K. Aaker, J. W. Wheeler.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication August 18th, 1892.]

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE CONditions of a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Henry A. Bruns and Matilda Bruns, his wife, to George H. Taylor, bearing date the 30th day of October, A. D. 1889, and duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 4th day of November, A. D. 1889, at 1:30 o'clock p. m., in book 44 of mortgages, on pages 188-192. And whereas the said George H. Taylor the owner and holder of said mortgage has elected to declare, and hereby does declare, the whole principal sum in said mortgage set forth and represented by the notes therein described upon which default has occurred, due and payable at the date of this notice under the terms and conditions of said mortgage and the power of sale therein contained.

And whereas there is actually due and payable at the date hereof including principal and interest upon the notes in said mortgage described upon which there is default, the following sum, to-wit: Four hundred and fifty-four and 40-100 ($454.40) dollars; and whereas said mortgagee has been compelled to, and has paid the taxes upon the lands in said mortgage described as follows: 1889, $19.53; 1890, $18.50; and 1891, $14.93. And whereas the said power of sale has become operative and no action or proceeding at law or otherwise has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed, and the premises described in and covered by said mortgage, viz: Situate, lying and being in the county of Polk and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The southeast quarter of the northeast quarter (se¼ ne¼) the northeast quarter of the southeast quarter (ne¼ se¼) and lot eight (8) in Section No. six (6); also lot No. one (1) in Section No. seven (7), all in Township No. one hundred and forty-eight (148) north, of range No. forty-three (43) west, containing one hundred forty-three 25-100 acres, more or less, and all in Polk county and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances, will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five ($25) dollars attorney's fee, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of Polk county, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said county and State, on the 30th day of September, A. D. 1892, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale as provided by law.

Dated August 17th, A. D. 1892.

GEORGE H. TAYLOR,
Mortgagee

TAYLOR & WOODARD,
Attorneys for Mortgagee,
920 Guaranty Loan Building,
Minneapolis, Minn.

[18-24]

GREAT NORTHERN Railway
TIME CARD.
MONTANA EXPRESS—Daily.

West				East
7:40 p m	De.	St Paul	Ar.	6:55 a m
2:50 a m	"	Fergus Falls	"	11:25 p m
4:47 a m	"	Glyndon	"	9:36 p m
7:20 a m	"	CROOKSTON	"	7:25 p m
8:40 a m	"	Grand Forks	"	6:20 p m
9:45 a m	"	Larimore	"	5:06 p m
2:1 p m	"	Devils Lake	"	2:55 a m
7:00 p m	Ar.	Butte	De.	7:30 a m

ST. VINCENT BRANCH—Daily except Sunday
Depart 7:30 a m Arrive 6:30 p m
FOSSTON BRANCH—Tues., Thurs. and Sat.
Depart 8:00 a m Arrive 5:30 p m
ST. HILAIRE BRANCH—Monday Wed. & Friday.
Depart 10:45 a m Arrive 4:30 p m
GRAND FORKS' ACCOMMODATION.
Arrive 9:50 a m Depart 7:55 p m

The scenic route to Spokane, Helena, and Butte on the west, and St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth and West Superior on the east. Dining and sleeping cars on all through trains. Tickets on sale to all principal places. Baggage checked through to destination.

W. W. FEGAN, Agent.

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.
TIME SCHEDULE.

	Leave Crookston Daily.	Arrive Crookston Daily.
For Duluth, Ashland, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Chicago, and all points East and South............	7:05 p. m.	8:27 a. m.
For Grand Forks, Grafton, Pembina, Winnipeg and points in N. Dakota and Winnipeg........	8:27 a. m.	7:05 p. m.

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.
THE
Great Transcontinental Route

Passes through Wisconsin, Minnesota North Dakota, Manitoba, Montana, Idaho, Oregon and Washington.

The Dining Car Line

Dining cars are run between Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Winnipeg, Butte, Helena, Tacoma, Seattle and Portland.

PULLMAN SLEEPING CAR ROUTE.

Pullman service daily between Chicago, St. Paul, Montana and the Pacific Northwest; and between St. Paul, Minneapolis and Minnesota, North Dakota and Manitoba points.

THE POPULAR LINE.

Daily Express Trains carry elegant Pullman Sleeping Cars, Dining Cars, Day Coaches, Pullman Tourist Sleepers and Free Colonist Sleeping Cars.

YELLOWSTONE PARK ROUTE.

The Northern Pacific R. R. is the rail line to Yellowstone Park; the popular line to California and Alaska; and its trains pass through the grandest scenery of seven states.

THROUGH TICKETS

Are sold at all coupon offices of the Northern Pacific Railroad to points North, East, South and West, in the United States and Canada.

For rates, maps, time tables, or special information, apply to
CHAS. A. SHARKEY,
Agent Northern Pacific R. R.,
Crookston, Minn.
CHAS. S. FEE,
Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent,
St. Paul, Minn.

A. A. JUST, M. D.,
Homoeopathic Physician and Surgeon
OFFICE IN
McKinnon Block, Crookston

A. H. DUNLAP, M. D.
Graduate McGill University, Montreal.
LICENSED COLLEGE PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS, QUEBEC.
Office in McKinnon Block.

Mortgage Sale.

(First publication Aug. 25, 1892.)
(Last publication Oct. 6, 1892.)

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of one hundred dollars ($100) and the sum of seventy-five dollars ($75) and interest on said sums from the 9th day of October, 1886, at the rate of 10 per cent per annum, which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Frederick Bieler to Francis J. Detling, bearing date the 9th day of October, A. D. 1886, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 2d day of December, A. D. 1886, at 9 o'clock a. m., in book 22 of mortgages, on page 96, which mortgage, together with the debt thereby secured, was duly assigned by said Francis J. Detling, mortgagee, to Joseph Z. Perron by written assignment, dated the 28th day of February, A. D. 1891, and recorded in the office of said Register of Deeds on the 24th day of March, 1891, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book 56 of mortgages, on page 119; and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: Lots numbered one, (1) two, (2) and three, (3) in block numbered forty, (40) in Kretzschmar's Addition to Red Lake Falls, Polk county, Minnesota, according to the plat thereof on file in the Register of Deeds office in and for said County and State, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 8th day of October, A. D. 1892, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated August 20th, A. D. 1892.

JOSEPH Z. PERRON,
Assignee of Mortgagee.

P. G. FALARDEAU,
Attorney for Assignee,
Red Lake Falls, Minn.

[19-25]

FARM AND GARDEN

A CONVENIENT GATE.

It Can Be Opened, Closed and Latched Without Getting Out of the Wagon.

Progressive farmers want something better than the old fashioned gate for their roadways. One of this class of agriculturists sends to Country Gentleman the drawings and description of a farm gate which he claims can be opened, closed and latched securely without getting down from the wagon.

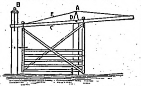

FIG. I—IMPROVED FARM GATE.

The posts A B (Fig. 1) are twelve feet high and the same apart. A piece of timber is fastened across tops of posts to keep them firm. Eleven feet from ground on post A is pivoted a rail 2 by 5 inches and twenty-five feet long. On face of this rail (which should be sunk even with face of posts), near the lower edge, nail on iron rail same as used for barn doors. On top edge of wooden rail nail a horizontal board, letting it project so as to protect the rollers. This also helps to keep track from swaying back and forth. Under A place on track a triangular piece of plank, D: stretch over top of this a small iron rod and fasten at each end of track.

The rollers are bolted to end pieces of gate which extend up to track. Rollers should be fitted so that lifting of gate cannot get them off the track. A latch is placed on gate to hook into staple in post. A short post placed at bottom of gate will keep it from swinging outward.

For opening and closing, place across outside of post B, at right angles with gate, a 2 by 6 scantling F (Fig. 2), twelve feet long, six feet projecting on either side of post. This is sunken its thickness into post, is parallel with roadway and seven feet from the ground. Bolt the levers G H one at each end of this crosspiece. The levers are fourteen feet long and 1½ by 4 inches at the largest place and tapering to the ends. They are bolted so that when horizontal the inner ends lack a few inches of meeting. On the inner end of each lever is a spring latch (anybody can make it) connected by a small iron rod I I to a finger iron at the outer end. A cogwheel K about six inches in diameter is fastened against face of post by a screw bolt (loose enough to turn easily). This wheel is placed at such a height that the inner ends of levers latch in opposite sides of wheel when the outer ends are about nine feet from the ground. When levers are latched in wheel, as in Fig. 2, draw down the end of track C, which projects past post (Figs. 1 and 2), till it is about a foot lower than at A. This gives you the length of rods to connect end of track with inner ends of levers.

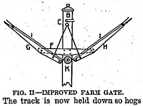

FIG. II—IMPROVED FARM GATE.

The track is now held down so hogs cannot tilt it by rooting at the gate; levers are up so cattle cannot break them or be injured by them, yet within easy reach of a person in a wagon, no matter from which side you approach. Spring the latch and press down on lever till the end of track is raised about two feet and the gate rolls back of its own weight. When past, push up on the lever just beside you and the gate shuts itself with a bang and latches itself. This gate is as convenient for pedestrians as any other.

Eggs on Limited Ground.

Tegetmeier, the noted English authority on poultry, says that there is but one way in which to get a succession of eggs in a run of limited extent, and that is by continually getting rid of the old hens and supplying their place with fresh bought healthy young pullets. He says:

If I lived in a village or town and required eggs all the year round I should relinquish the idea of keeping any particular breed. Every autumn I should purchase from a healthy country run as many early hatched pullets as I required, preferably of nonincubating varieties—Spanish, Houdan or Hamburg; these would lay during the winter. In the spring, as the warm weather commenced, I would supply their places with a number of later hatched chickens of last season, and these might be relied upon for laying during the summer and autumn until they were exchanged for the supply for the second winter. This plan would not be an expensive one, while it would conduce to the health of the stock and insure a good supply of eggs.

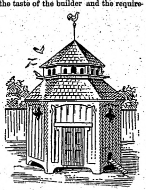
Fertilizers as Insecticides.

The importance of certain fertilizers as insecticides has been emphasized by the experiments of Professor J. B. Smith, of the New Jersey experiment station. He has found the potash salts, preferably kanit, very effective against cutworms or wireworms in corn. These salts have a high value as fertilizers and stimulate the plant to renewed growth at the same time that they destroy the insects. Mr. Smith recommends as the best method of application broadcasting in fertilizing quantity before or during a rain, so that the material is carried into the soil at once. In cornfields infested with the "white grub" or wireworms the application should be made before planting. In the case of strawberry beds infested with white grubs the application should be made at time of cultivation or before setting the plants.

ORNAMENTAL POULTRY HOUSE.

Varying in Design from the Usual Model and Surmounted by a Pigeon Cote.

The ornamental poultry house illustrated in the accompanying cut from Stoddard's Poultry Architecture is in shape polygonal, and may be built with six, eight or more sides, according to the taste of the builder and the requirements of whatever group of buildings it is to be associated with. The greater the number of sides the more roomy will be the interior.



A POLYGONAL POULTRY HOUSE.

The roof is made of shingles, which if a little extra pains be taken in laying can be made sufficiently water tight, and is topped with a pigeon house, which is quite an ornamental feature. If pigeons are not kept the floor may be left open, thus ventilating the fowl house below more completely. But ventilation is pretty well provided for by the starlike openings in the alternate sides, which are fitted with shutters, for use in cold weather.

Medical Knowledge in Novels.

Wilkie Collins made a specialty of his medical knowledge, and it was upon this account that he was induced to undertake an antivivisection novel, which he published under the name of "Heart and Science." The work was equally unsatisfactory both to the persons who inspired it and to the general public. Wilkie Collins' effort in this direction was a complete failure, and his medical men and his wonderful drugs could never have existed outside of his own imagination.

In Dickens' "Tale of Two Cities," where Sydney Carton substitutes himself for the condemned Evremonde, we have premonitions of the chloroform which was to be discovered fifty years later—the chloroform of popular imagination, however, and by no means the CHCl of the "Pharmacopœia."—British Medical Journal.

Brier Root.

Brier root, of which pipes are made, comes from the root of a kind of shrub that was formerly dug in great quantities in the south of France, but now it comes mostly from Spain, Italy and Algiers. In the mountain forests the roots are sometimes found bigger than a man's body. Instead of digging them out after the old fashion they are torn up nowadays with explosives.—Washington Star.

Love Making on the Stage.

"The art of making love on the stage is one that few actors acquire," said an old Thespian. "A woman naturally clings to a man with grace, grasping his arm with cleverly implied passion or tenderly nestling on his bosom. But a man doesn't get on to the æstheticism of the thing with the same ease and grace. Harry Lacy was a dream of a lover, though. He had a trick of weaving his arms about a woman with a sinuous, seductive movement that brought a little lump into the throat of every woman in the audience. He always preferred approaching a woman from behind and then drawing her back into arms that seemed made for that purpose. Hoff isn't a bad lover by any means. Ask the St. Louis girls if they don't think he makes very few false moves.

"Funny thing, while on this topic, but you know when Barrymore was supporting Langtry they hated each other worse than poison. He declares she would put pins in her bodice to stick him, and they kept up a regular quarrel the whole time they were billing and cooing and embracing in most ardent fashion. 'Don't hold me so tight, sir; you have evidently never had your arms around a lady,' Langtry would say in a whisper. 'If you knew how thoroughly distasteful this is to me you would never accuse me of getting near you,' he would reply. Do people ever make love on the stage? Not that I know of; it is all purely business."—St. Louis Republic.

A Phalanx.

A phalanx in the military affairs of Greece was a square battalion or body of soldiers formed in ranks and files compact and deep with their shields joined and pikes crossing each other so as to render it almost impossible to break it. At first the phalanx consisted of 4,000 men, but this number was afterward doubled by Philip of Macedon, and the double phalanx is hence often called the Macedonian phalanx. Polybius describes it thus:

"It was a square of pikemen, consisting of sixteen in flank and 500 in front. The soldiers stood so close together that the pikes of the fifth rank extended three feet beyond the front. The rest, whose pikes were not serviceable owing to their distance from the front, couched them upon the shoulders of those who stood before them, and so locking them together in file pressed forward to support and push on the former rank, by which means the assault was rendered more violent and irresistible." The spears of those behind also stopped the missiles of the enemy. Each man's pike was twenty-three feet long. The word phalanx is also used for any combination of people distinguished for solidity and firmness. A grand phalanx consisted of 16,384 men.—Brooklyn Eagle.

A Machine for Sifting Ashes.

A machine has been invented which separates ashes from boiler fires into three portions. Unburned fuel, called breeze or cinders, which can be mixed with coal and burned over again, or for blacksmiths' fires, being the finest material procurable; fine dust, useful for builders in place of sand; clinkers, useful for roadmaking, paths, etc.

The machine consists of a tank or compartment kept full of water. The ashes or breeze to be cleansed rest on a grating, which is covered by a fine perforated copper plate. A free passage of water is allowed, and at the same time the breeze or fuel is prevented from falling.

The separation is effected by an agitator worked by a crank shaft. At each downward plunge of the agitator the water is forced upward through the perforated copper bottom, causing the material to rise. The rubbish, owing to its greater specific gravity, is precipitated to the bottom on the return stroke; at the same time the breeze, or unburned fuel, being lighter, works to the surface.

At each stroke of the crank a body of water and a quantity of clean breeze is carried to a plate, which is also perforated, so as to allow the water to fall into the machine and thence through a valve to be used over again, and the clean breeze is swept by a revolving brush over a ledge. The clinker accumulates on the perforated copper plate, and from time to time is allowed to escape by a valve in the body of the machine, whence it is raised by an elevator and discharged.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Odd Stamps with High Values.

Many stamps attain a fictitious value on account of some accident in their printing or publication. The story is told that on one occasion a number of stamps were sent into Wales without the customary perforation. They were of the penny brick variety, common enough in all conscience, but it is said because the 240 of them which composed the prized pound's worth were the only specimens ever sent out in such a manner they are now worth two pounds each, and the same queer enthusiasm exists in France, where the stamps used in connection with the balloon post of the great war of 1870 are considered worth their weight in gold.—Million.

Gastronomic Item.

"We are going to have pie for dinner," said Bobby to the minister.

"Indeed!" laughed the clergyman, amused at the little boy's artlessness: "and what kind of pie, Bobby?"

"It's a new kind. Ma was talking this morning about pa bringing you to dinner so often, and pa said he didn't care what she thought, and ma said she'd make him eat humble pie before the day was over, an I suppose we're goin to have it for dinner."—Texas Siftings.

Society in Western Towns.

There is a social equality in western country towns that prevails nowhere else, and the daughters of the blacksmith are quite as prominent as the daughters of the banker, providing they behave as well, which they are likely to do, as they all grow up together and are educated in the same schools. The only social test in the west is good conduct.—E. W. Howe in Forum.

Money Won't Work "Out West."

The desperate efforts which the Democrats are making to secure the electoral votes of Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, Minnesota and Wisconsin show how little hope they have of winning in the doubtful states of the east. There is every reason to believe that they have given up New York. In that state they have always used money unsparingly, but they seem to think that it would be sheer waste to do so this year. Money can never patch up the quarrel between the factions there. And yet there is a much better prospect of results from the expenditure of a corruption fund in New York than in Nebraska, or any other of the states for whose purchase the Democrats of the country are now asked to contribute. Grover Cleveland cannot be elevated to the presidency by the use of money in the northwest.—Omaha Bee.

Results of Ten Months.

What, then, has the McKinley law already accomplished?

It has increased our farm exports by more than $10,000,000 through the operation of its reciprocity clauses.

It has reduced tariff revenues at the rate of more than $60,000,000 a year.

It has admitted free goods to the amount of $192,322,143 in excess of the value of free goods under the old law.

It has increased the value of American exports by $265,142,533 in excess of the yearly average of the ten years preceding it.

It has stimulated home industries.

It has cheapened nearly all manufactured products.

It has increased wages.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Coal Miners' Wages.

The Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron company has just fixed the wages of its coal miners at an average of $2.6035 per day. The coal miners at the Rosebridge colliery, in England, when visited by Nat McKay a very few years ago, were receiving $4 to $4.50 per week, or $0.75 per day.—New York Press.

M. LeGUEE.
Veterinary Surgeon.
Residence and office on Jerome's Addition.
CROOKSTON. - - - MINN.

P. J. RUSSELL.
Attorney-at-Law
CROOKSTON, MINN.
Next to Merchants' Bank.

AT BEDTIME I TAKE A PLEASANT HERB DRINK

THE NEXT MORNING I FEEL BRIGHT AND NEW AND MY COMPLEXION IS BETTER.
My doctor says it acts gently on the stomach, liver and kidneys, and is a pleasant laxative. This drink is made from herbs, and is prepared for use as easily as tea. It is called
LANE'S MEDICINE
All druggists sell it at 50c. and $1.00 a package. If you cannot get it, send your address for free sample. Lane's Family Medicine moves the bowels each day. In order to be healthy, this is necessary. Address, ORATOR F. WOODWARD, LeROY, N. Y.

Work Horses - - - and Mares.
FOR GOOD, SOLID WORK HORSES and MARES, go to
M. R. BROWN,
The old reliable dealer, who has sold horses in this county since 1878, and who is always on hand to make his guaranty good. Every man who ever sold horses here is ready (when he sells) to guaranty, but later, if you happen to want him to make his guaranty good you can't most always sometimes find him ready to make his recommend good. He handles only good young horses and has sold more than any dealer in the county. He is now prepared to supply the demand for good teams—he handles no other—and guaranty them just as recommended. Before you buy you will do well to call at
Brown's New Stables,
Main Street, one door north of the old M. E. church building.

Valley Roller Mills
MANUFACTURERS OF
FINE FLOUR
From Selected Red River Wheat.
QUOTATIONS.

Best	$2.25	per 98 lbs.
North Star	2.10	" "
Fife	1.90	" "
Skip Jack	1.25	" "
Bran	9.00	" ton.
Shorts	10.00	" "

Call early and get your supply of feed.
☞ We exchange flour for wheat on equitable terms.
LEE & HERRICK.

NEW CIGAR STORE
SIGN OF THE BIG INDIAN.
H. F. BROWN, Proprietor,
Second Street,
CROOKSTON, MINN
Cigars of every known brand, from a cheroot to a 25 center. Cigarettes, Chewing and Smoking Tobaccos of all kinds, Snuff, Pipes to suit the fancy of all, from a corn-cob pipe to a meerchaum.
CALL IN.

MARTIN O'BRIEN,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
{I. O. O. F. BUILDING.} Crookston, Minn.

FITS STOPPED FREE
Marvelous success.
Insane Persons Restored
Dr. KLINE'S GREAT NERVE RESTORER
for all BRAIN & NERVE DISEASES. Only sure cure for Nerve Affections, Fits, Epilepsy, etc. INFALLIBLE if taken as directed. No Fits after first day's use. Treatise and $2 trial bottle free to Fit patients, they paying express charges on box when received. Send names, P. O. and express address of afflicted to DR. KLINE, 931 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa. See Druggists. BEWARE OF IMITATING FRAUDS.

MILLER & FOOTE,
ATTY'S-AT-LAW,
McKinnon Block. - - Crookston, Minn.

THE PIONEER HARNESS SHOP,
M. RAUENBUEHLR, Proprietor.
A full supply of everything kept by the trade.
Cor of Broadway and Third Sts,
CROOKSTON, MINN

IF YOU ARE GOING EAST OR SOUTH ASK YOUR NEAREST AGENT FOR TICKETS VIA THE BURLINGTON AND TAKE NO OTHER LINE.

L. E. GOSSMAN,
Attorney-at-Law,
No. 2 Fournet Block | CROOKSTON, MINN.

Ripans Tabules cure dyspepsia.
Ripans Tabules are always ready.

Until I Remove Back to
MY OLD STAND
I will Sell Everything in my store
Way Down Low.
—I am making a Special Drive in—
CLOAKS ☞ FOR LADIES' AND CHILDREN.
Which we are selling at
ACTUAL COST
Laid down here. If you don't think I am giving bargains,
{COME IN AND PRICE MY GOODS.}
A. CHABOT.
Pro. New York Dry Goods store, - - CROOKSTON, MINN.

A word to the wise and money savers.
GERVAIS'--The Hustlers,
THE GREATEST AGGREGATION OF
Spring and Summer Goods
That Ever Landed in the Northwest, comprising
The Latest Novelties in Fancy and Domestic Goods.
Dress Goods and Trimmings,
Jackets, Cloaks and Cloakings,
Parasols and Umbrellas for rain and sunshine.
White Goods and Embroideries,
Wash Goods in all the newest weaves,
Jersey ribbed and muslin Underwear,
Ladies' Shirt Waists in many styles,
Spring Caps and Straw Hats.
CARPETS
In all grades and newest designs.
Lace and Chenille Curtains and Portiers,
House Furnishing Goods, of all kinds,
New departure in Boots and Shoes.
Call In and Get Prices.
I. O. O. F. Block, Crookston.
GERVAIS & GERVAIS, Leaders in Low Prices.

Schmidt, the Painter,
—CARRIES A FULL AND COMPLETE STOCK OF—
PAINTS,
OILS AND
VARNISHES.
—ALSO A FULL AND COMPLETE LINE OF—
☞ WALL PAPER. ☜
Painting in all its branches, and Paper Hanging artistically done.
Call at the Shop on Broadway.

McKINNON BROS.,
—DEALERS IN—
ALL OF THE LEADING
Agricultural Implements
MAIN STREET. McKINNON BLOCK.
☞ Before Purchasing, Give Us a Call. ☜

THE NEW NORTHWEST
Home seekers will find the last of the public domain of agricultural and grazing lands along the Great Northern Ry. in North Dakota and Montana
FARM LANDS
NEW TOWNS
300 or more, along the Great Northern Railway Line. Business chances. Write F. I. WHITNEY, St. Paul, Minn., for Books, Maps, &c. Write now.
Settlers on free Government lands along the Great Northern Ry. Line in North Dakota and Montana get low rates and fine markets for products.
LOW RATES
Montana produces the finest Horses and Cattle. Free ranges yet in Mouse, Milk and Sun River Valleys and Sweet Grass Hills.
Horses, Cattle.
Health, Wealth.
In the Northwest. Free Lands. New Towns, New Railways, New Mines, Low Rates. Largest area of good vacant land.
Sweetest Grass Hills, Milk and Sun River Valleys, Montana, reached only by the Great Northern Railway Line. The stock raisers' paradise.
Sheep, Hogs.
Herds, Mines
These have made Montana the richest State per capita in the Union. Plenty of room for more miners and stock raisers. Now is the time.

First National Bank
OF CROOKSTON
PAID IN CAPITAL. - $100,000
SURPLUS. - - $14,200
Interest on time deposits. Faithful attention to Collections and prompt remittance.
GEO. Q. ERSKINE, President.
WM. ANGLIN, Vice President.
CHAS. E. SAWYER, Cashier.
DIRECTORS:
Wm. Anglin, K. D. Chase, R. D. Childs
Geo. Q. Erskine, J. R. McKinnon, A. A. Miller
E. M. Walsh, Chas. E. Sawyer, W. H. Crosby

JOHN CROMB,
Attorney-at-Law,
SECOND STREET, CROOKSTON

'Round Home.

Wheat—1 Hard 65.
1 Northern 63.

Soft easy shoes for tender feet, at The Fair.

Fur trimmed jackets at A. Sture's, only $6.50.

Locken & Holmboe, headquarters for blankets.

Cloaks are cheaper this year; See Locken's stock.

County Superintendent V. D. Car, ruth drove over to Fisher on Sunday last.

For one dollar a week you can buy a fall jacket of any kind at Fontaine & Anglim's,

By all means, buy your footwear from Locken & Holmboe. They soon save you 25 per cent.

More new furniture still arriving at I. U. Jenning's furniture store, and it is being sold at same low prices.

Hugh Thompson and wife, and daughter Luella, were at Fisher last Saturday visiting with old friends.

The board of county commissioners will meet next Monday, to take action in regard to erecting the new jail.

Will Hoch, after much worry and trouble, has succeeded in regaining possession of "Skel," his fine setter pup.

J. F. Creamer went to St. Paul Sunday night to meet his wife who has been visiting with relatives in Iowa.

John Alderman has rented a house on Ash street, and moved his family and household effects into it last Saturday.

County Auditor Webster and wife went over to Fisher, Monday afternoon to remain during the week to look after the threshing on Mr. W's farm.

Farmer J. B. Roome has threshed his grain and reports that he has got 1500 bushels of wheat and that it graded No. 1 Northern. He had an average of 10 bushels.

Talking about cloaks. Have you seen the new stock in Locken & Holmboe's opera house departmnet store? It is a new feature of their business; consequently the cloaks are of the latest style.

Kops Bros., the celebrated music dealers of Grand Forks, issued a neat musical program which was given at the opening of their Fargo house last Monday. These gentlemen also have a branch house at Great Falls, Montana.

Percy E. McKid, who does the heavy villain act for the Wilson Theatre Company, was renewing old acquaintances in the city this week. "Mack" has been with this company since its organization, and has hosts of friends in the norhwest.

At the Congregational church next Sunday Rev. R. H. Battey will preach at the morning hour and in the evening instead of the regular service there will be a musical service. Miss Leaner will sing, the exercises being led by the pastor and choir.

Gilbert Walker informs County Auditor Webster that the damages assessed to his father T. B. Walker, in repairing the county bridge at East Grand Forks, will be attended to as soon as the latter returns from New York, where he has been for some time past.

Mrs. J. Pirnic who has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. J. B. Copeland, during the summer, left for California on Sunday evening last. She goes to join a daughter who went there last spring. Mrs. Copeland accompanies her part of the way. They will stop in St. Paul to visit friends for a few days.

Rev. R. H. Battey returned Saturday from attending the meeting of the Congregational association of Minnesota at Minneapolis. He reports having had a splendid meeting—the best ever held in the state. He was honored by appointments on two committees: Temperance, and Carleton college.

Mrs. Bangs will continue to sell one week longer, and give lower prices than ever. Large plumes 50 cents, tips 25 cents a bunch, velvet 25 to 30 cents a yard, ladies' and children's felt and beaver hats 25 cents. She is selling all her goods for less than half the original cost. Now is the time to secure great bargains in winter millinery. She has two thousand dollars worth of goods that must be closed out inside of one week.

La Mode de Paris and Paris Album of Fashion are $3.50 per year each and are the most artistic fashion magazines published. La Couturier is a fine home journal for $3.00 and La Mode is only $1.50 per year. Another important fact to remember is that the three former publications contain each month a lesson on some popular garment with valuable practical suggestions. You can get them if you write to the publishers, Messrs. A. McDowell & Co., 4 West 14th Steet, New York.

If you want fresh groceries, go to A. Sture's.

Cloaks! cloaks! at A. Sture's. Give us a call.

If you want a good pair of shoes, call at A. Sture's.

We return to our home under the firm conviction that there is no place like Minnesota.

J. B. George, the skillful harness maker of Fisher, was in the city Sunday evening.

E. E. Abbott of Mentor, accompanied by his daughter, Miss Eunice, were in the city Wednesday.

If there is anything in the merchandise line that you cannot find, ask Locken & Holmboe for it.

Do you want a good pair of blankets? If so, do not purchase before you have seen those at A. Sture's.

J. W. Peterson and wife were over to Fisher last Sunday, visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Liebert, Mrs. Peterson's parents.

The Wilson Theatre Co., arrived Monday morning from Wilmar and are domiciled with Landlord Jerome, at the St. Louis.

Large stock of dry goods just received. Come in and look them over before you go elsewhere. Prices guaranteed. A. STURE.

P. G. Falardeau gave us a pleasant call on Wednesday. He received the empty honor of a nomination for county attorney on the democratic ticket at their convention.

Prof. Strawbridge returned on Thursday morning from his visit to his parents near Baltimore, Md. He reports having had an excellent time, and the writer is prepared to believe that, having accompanied him on his trip as far as Washington.

Dick Fadden, of Grand Forks, was in the city Monday as a witness in the Halvorsen murder case. "Dick" was sheriff of Grand Forks county in the pioneer days, and is today regarded as the most competent officer on the Grand Forks police force.

Threshing from the shock is about all completed and stack threshing well commenced. The crop will not be quite equal to that of last year, but if the price will only reach a remunerative figure the average farmer will do as well as in ordinary seasons.

The firm of Locken & Holmboe are reaching out for more business, and have increased their facilities to accommodate it. They have purchased Locken & Solberg's entire stock of merchandise, and for the present will make a specialty of clothing in the new store. At their large department store in the opera house block

The Burkhardt Bros. are building a new chimney at the Cleveland house, from the cellar to the roof. It does one good to see Rudy taking a bit of manual exercise mixing mud and carrying brick—but that ain't much work—all Rudy has to do is to mix and carry the mortar and carry the brick—the man on the chimney does all the work.

A couple of lodgers at the Germania house left last Thursday night without paying their board and also took with them Landlord Netzer's trousers, and after taking $12.00 from the pockets left them in the yard. The bartender at the Minnesota house was also robbed the same night of what change he had in his clothing.

Tom Harrs has moved the Red River valley elevator to its position near the Minneapolis & Northern elevator. This was no small job, as the building was taken across the hollow back of the Germania house on a temporary trestle of blocks. Tom is "onto his job" in good shape. And the building was moved and set down in as perfect condition as it was before removal.

The dance given Thursday evening in McKinnon's hall by the Queen City orchestra was fairly well attended and the music was good. The orchestra is composed of the following members: J. Schefstad, violin; Jens Schefstad, viola; G. Schefstad, bass: A. Lime, piano; Sprague, cornet; L. J. Columbus, clarinet.

Casad & Halvorson expect to start out with their attraction November 12th and will probably open at Crookston. Their company is said to be composed of first-class artists, and the play "Olson's Troubles" an exceptionally good farce-comedy. Should the managers conclude to open here, they would undoubtedly be greeted by a large house, as everybody would like to give these popular gentlemen a good send off.

The Wilson theatre company is playing a week's engagement to good houses. The company is a good average one. Our old friend Percy McKid is with them, and, like old wine, improves with age. Little Dot Farley is a rare gem, and if they don't work her too hard, will make her mark in theatrical circles. She is only twelve years old, and takes leading parts easily and gracefully. The house should be filled every night, as the repertoire is an excellent one and well presented.

Hon. Marcus Johnson was in the city Wednesday.

B. F. Zarracher returned from Washington on Wednesday morning.

The train on the Great Northern road was two hours late on Wednesday morning.

Buy your fall jackets of Fontaine & Anglim on the installment plan only one dollar a week.

Farmers in the east are grumbling over poor crops this year—grain very light and not half a crop of fruit.

M. R. Brown has been busy day and night caring for the Montana cattle that are now arriving by the Great Northern railroad.

You can buy a "fall wrap" of any kind at Fontaine & Anglim's and it will only cost you one dollar a week until the whole is paid for.

Our senior returns to his labors this week refreshed by his brief outing but too late to tell our readers much about his trip. Will try and do something in that line for our next issue, however.

Charley Sture, who has been rusticating in Douglas county, Minnesota, during the summer, returned Tuesday, looking strong and rugged, and has resumed his old position in his father's store.

W. E. Slocum has been on the tentorhooks this week, expecting his wife home from her visit, but every day "she cometh not," he said, and his classic features assumed a weary expression too pathetic for any use. On Thursday morning her brother, Mr. Van Arnam, arrived for a visit, and Mrs. S. is still expected daily.

A sign is just now attracting great attention on Robert street, "Great Bargains in clothing" is dispayed in large letters across the entire front of Locken's clothing store on Robert street. The proprietors say it means just what it says. Inside can be found a large new stock of overcoats, suits and pants. Besides all kinds of furnishing goods and underwear. The prices have never been equalled.

Another sign outside the same place says: Ladies shoes at cost. It means that the firm shall not carry ladies shoes any longer. Everybody should take avantage of this liberal offer.

The Prattsburg N. Y., News thus notes the visit of H. E. Cooke to that town, where he lived for a number of years previous to coming to Minnesota:—H. E. Cooke, editor of the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL at Crookston, Minn., and H. K. Carpenter and son, Edward, of Clifton Springs, were in town last week. Mr. Cooke attends the national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic at Washington this week. It is about seventeen years since he left Prattsburgh to try his fortunes in the west and he has done well, in that he has been one of the first and most effectual in building up one of the progressive cities of the northwest.

Geo. Carpenter had quite an adventure Sunday night, and thinks himself lucky to be alive. He had driuen over to Grand Forks and after spending the day with friends over there, he started home about 9 o'clock in the evening. When about a mile and a half this side of East Grand Forks—driving along, thinking about the girl he left behind him—he was suddenly surprised by a man making an attempt to stop the horses. George woke up and struck the would-be highwayman with his whip. This frightened the horses and they gave a jump, broke the reach of the buggy and jerked the front wheels off and dragged George out in the road. The tramp then approached him saying "he'd fix him." It was so dark George couldn't see his size, but he wouldn't take a bluff so he told his trampship that if he wanted to continue any longer on this earth it would be necessary for him to keep his distance, which he accordingly did. George then drove the team back to the Forks, and next day got the buggy fixed up and drove home.

The "Halvorsen-Melin-Whalstrom murder case," wherein August Kalle was arrested for the murder of Lars Halvorsen, and which was narrated in the JOURNAL last week, came up for trial before Judge Christianson, at the city hall, last Monday afternoon. Judge R. J. Montague and L. E. Gossman appeared for Halvorsen. while A. R. Holston and Judge John Sullivan, the latter of Grand Forks, conducted the prosecution. Mr. Holston, on behalf of the prosecution, asked for a continuance of the case, as two important witnesses were not obtainable. The defense demurred, and after considerable argument pro and con, the case was continued until Tuesday, Oct. 4th. Mr. Holston claims that he will produce witnesses to whom Kalle confessed that he murdered Halvorsen, while the defense will prove that Halvorsen was accidentally drowned while under the influence of liquor. As before noted, the case will come up for final hearing on Tuesday next, and the attorneys for the defense have agreed to a dismissal if the missing witnesses are not procured by that time.

J. B. Norby and Pete Ramstad were up from Norman county on Wednesday.

Senator H. Burkhardt and wife arrived last week from Wabasha on a visit to their son. The Senator returned to his home Wednesday, but Mrs. Burkhart will remain for a month or so.

County Auditor Webster has received a circular from F. P. Brown, secretary of state, in regard to the forthcoming election. After instructions in regard to the different kinds of ballots to be used the secretary says: "It will be necessary for the clerks of election in the several townships and districts to appear in person at the auditor's office to receive the ballots to be voted and to receipt for the same. All candidates for the people's party nomination in the several districts and counties must secure their names on the ballot by petition. Prohibition party candidates in any county where the vote of last election was less than 1 per cent. of the total vote of the county, must furnish petitions on the same form of blanks sent out for the people's party nominees. Independent candidates must furnish names on a petition equal to 1 per cent. of the vote cast at the last general election in the district or county where they propose to be candidates. Special forms of the independent candidates will be furnished. In the case of candidates nominated by two or more parties, or the indorsement of the candidate either as an independent or party candidate, if the party indorsing is to be recognized at the end of the candidate's name on the ballot, a separate fee must be paid for such indorsement or recognition, bearing in mind that the party drawing the first place by lot in any county will retain first place for all candidates on the ballot followed by the name of the party indorsing or originally nominating, and so with the other drawings until the ballot is completed.

Fisher Bullitin: On Sunday morning last, Mrs. H. B. McLaughlin presented her leige lord with a bouncing baby boy, whom H. B. declares weighs thirteen pounds. A box of cigars have hardly filled the requirements of Mr. L's friends, who all join in wishing the youngster long life.—Mr. D. O'Reilly brought a potato into the village, Tuesday evening, which for size beats anything we have seen this year. It is of the Snow Flake variety, and weighs three pounds.—Tommy Johnstone intends exhibiting several of Felland Bros.' stallions at the Thirteen Towns Fair, which will be held at Fosston Oct. 5th, 6th and 7th. He will, in all probability, also exhibit Lord Sanquor, Dave Morrow's famous prize winner, in the sweepstakes.—J. J. Flant had not been in his new home at East Grand Forks more than twenty-four hours when he was successfully initiated into the peculiar customs of that erratic commonwealth. Mr. Flant, at an early hour on Monday morning, was called upon at his stables by two men in want of a livery rig, and in harnessing up the rig, he threw his coat into a buggy, and when he sought the same, ten minutes afterwards, the garment had disappeared. It was not the loss of the coat that worried Mr. Flant, but $100 in bank bills which had been placed in the inside pocket. He searched diligently throughout the two Forks cities, but was compelled to swallow the truth that his first day's business in East Grand Forks was of a very discouraging nature.—Rev. M. Falk Gjertson will address the people of Fisher and vicinity, on the live issues of the day, at Fisher, on Monday, Oct. 3d at 2 o'olock p. m., and at Neby, at 7:30 p. m. On Tuesday, Oct. 4th, at 1 p. m., he will speak at the Bernard Anderson school house, and at Crookston in the evening. Oct. 6th, at 7:30 p. m., L. S. Nelson and Hon. Halvor Steenerson will deliver addresses. R. J. Hall will be at Fisher and Mallory, but the date has not been announced. All are cordially invited to attend.

Well! Well!! Well!!!

Almost the first thing we heard after reaching the glorious northwest was that during our absence, Will Peterson had taken unto himself Miss Clara Liebert for better or for worse, which interesting event occurred on the 13th inst. It may be rather late to offer congratulations, Will, but our senior editor thinks that in this case it is better late than never. We believe you have chosen wisely and well, Will, and here are our sincere and heartfelt congratulations, and may you live long and prosper; and may all of your sorrows be little ones.

Cloaks.

Two thousand one hundred dollars worth of women's, misses and children's cloaks and wraps were sent us this week by a wholesale cloak house that was overstocked, with instructions to sell them at any price. This is the best opportunity to secure a good winter cloak at your own price. Come early and secure a good choice. The Fair, corner Main and Robert streets.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report.

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

The Fall Races.

Thirty-two entries have already been made for the fall meeting of the Northern Minnesota Agricultural and Driving association, October 10, 11 and 12. The following is the program:

FIRST DAY, OCTOCER 10.
2:29 Trot	$ 250 00
2:35 Pace	250 00
1 Mile Running, 2 in 3	200 00
½ Mile Trot and Pace, for farmers' horses owned one year or more in Polk county	100 00
SECOND DAY, OCTOBER 11.
2:45 Trot	200 00
Free-for-all Pace	250 00
2:34 Trot	250 00
½ Mile Pony Running, 2 in 3	100 00
THIRD DAY, OCTOBER 12.
3:00 Trot	200 00
Free-for-all Trot	250 00
One Mile Running, 2 in 3	200 00
Stake race for colts 3 years old and under	100 00

Fosston Ripples.

D. A. Ray will move his family into his new and commodious residence the latter part of this week.—The alliance grain house has, by additional improvements, been changed from a flat house to a horse-power elevator.—S. C. Bagley has already commenced sending men to the pines to begin his extensive lumber operations.—We are pleased to note that J. H. Foster will have quarters at the Commercial during the fall and winter, having charge of Mr. Bagley's interests at this place.—Contractor James Taggart, of Minneapolis, arrived in town Saturday, and inspected the progress of the work on the school building, between trains.—If Providence will favor us with another ten days of this glorious weather, and Jim Hill provides us with a daily train, our fair will be a decided success.—Mrs. Louis Lohn and children are on a visit to friends and relatives at Caledonia, N. D., and Louis is domiciled at the Commercial awaiting her return with a depressed countenance which even the nomination to handle the county's shekels don't seem to banish.—Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Carruth came up on Thursday's train and departed for Crookston and intermediate points in the afternoon via the bicycle route.—The illuminated horizon occasioned by the burning straw piles each evening would tend to indicate that the threshing season will not be of very long duration, providing the present fine weather continues.—Our former townsmen, Chas. and Teddy Plum, are with us again after several months travel in different regions, including a trip to England. Their many friends in this vicinity would be pleased to have them decide to again locate in our midst.—A drive through the country in almost any direction will prove that the hay crop has been abundant and a second glance will also prove that farmers are altogether too careless in protecting their hay and buildings from prairie fires, which during this dry and windy weather, are liable to sweep over almost any section with less than an hour's notice.

IT MEANS BUSINESS.

I have never been so busy as at present, which speaks well for the manner in which my business is conducted. There is no friction. Mistakes do not pay, so I do not provide for them. I am giving satisfaction to all my customers. That means I am giving Prompt Service, Low Prices and Good Work. I have the handsomest and best selected stock, and if business is what I expect it to be this fall,

GOODS MUST MOVE.

C. H. SAAKE, Practical Watchmaker and Jeweler.

$1.00

A WEEK WILL BUY ANY

CLOAK,

JACKET

or SACQUE

In our immense stock, and if you consider it a little too early for these goods, by making a cash payment of $1.00 we would be too pleased to reserve them for you until required.

WE QUOTE AS SAMPLE VALUES.

40 inch Plush Sacqes, satin lined....$9 50
Plush Jackets, 32 inches long, fur trimmed.... 7 50
Black Diagonal Jacket, 32 inches long, all wool... 4 50
Fancy Bk Cloth Jacket, Melton reefer, satin faced 8 50
Novelties in Colored Cloth Jackets.... 6 00

$7.50, $10.00, $12.00, and by easy steps as high as $45.00.

Children's Garments.

Too, for the little ones of 1, 2, 3, 4, 6, 8, 10 and 12 years, and Misses garments for all ages. The cloths are right, the trimmings harmonize and the

GARMENTS WILL FIT.

Fontaine & Anglim.

Historical Society

Polk County Journal.

VOL. XVI. CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY, OCT. 6, 1892. NO. 25.

WHAT $100 WILL DO!

WHY NOT KEEP HOUSE?

PARLOR.

Brussels Carpet, full spring Lounge	$ 6.50
Patent Swing Rocker	7.75
Rattan Rocker	3.85
20 yds Best all wool Carpet	13.50
Oak Center Table with Shelf	3.00
Pair window blinds	90
	$35.50

BED ROOM.

Large, showy, antique Ash Suit	$16.75
Spring Mattress	5.50
Pair 6-lb. Feather Pillows	2.50
Pair extra cotton-filled Quilts	3.75
15 yds Carpet	6.50
	$35.00

DINING ROOM.

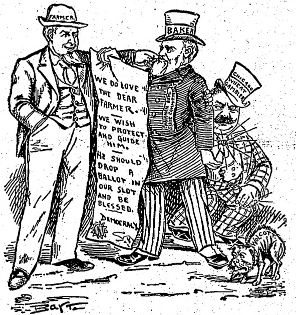
Six-foot oval or square Table	$ 4.75
Six high back Dining Chairs	6.50
One Oak Sideboard, large mirror	18.75
	$30.00
Kitchen Table $1.75
Four Kitchen Chairs 1.65	$3.40

Here are the Figures:

Parlor Furniture	$ 35.50
Bed Room Furniture	35.00
Dining Room Furniture	30.00
Kitchen Furniture	3.40
	$103.90
Cash Discount	3.90
Total,	$100.00

Crookston Furniture Co.

LIBERAL HOUSE FURNISHERS.



FARMER
BAKER
WE DO LOVE THE DEAR FARMER. WE WISH TO PROTECT AND GUIDE HIM. HE SHOULD DROP A BALLOT IN OUR SLOT AND BE BLESSED. DEMOCRACY
CHAIRMAN DEM. STATE COMMITTEE
CHICAGO WHEAT GAMBLER
WOLCOTT
BART

NOT SO EASILY FOOLED.

THE DEAR FARMER:—Who's that hiding behind you, friend Baker, with his skulking cur? This sudden love for me is not so thick but I can see through it. The Democratic party has formed a partnership with the Chicago wheat gambler and the cur Wolcott, who are our enemies.

WHEAT GAMBLER (to Friend Baker):—Give him some more taffy, old man; I'm afraid he's getting on to me and the dog.

Attention, Sheep Farmers!

The undersigned has a few thoroughbred

SHROPSHIRE RAM LAMBS

For sale at his farm near Ada, in county. Call on or address

PETER RAMSTAD, Ada,
[25-28] Norman Co., Minn.

Don't Be Bluffed.

Don't let the other fellow bluff you in discussing politics, but have in your vest pocket the American Political Record for 1892. Thirty years of political statistical history on the questions of the hour. Every voter should have a copy. Price 25 cents, post paid.

HINES PUBLISHING CO.,
251 S. Clark St., Chicago, Ill.

Notice.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, }
COUNTY OF POLK, } ss.
CITY OF CROOKSTON. }

Notice is hereby given to all persons interested in Barrette's addition to the city of Crookston to be present at a regular meeting of the city council to be held on Tuesday evening, October 11th, 1892, and state cause if any there be why said addition should not be vacated by the city of Crookston.

E. C. CARRUTH,
]19-25] City Clerk.

COUGHING LEADS TO CONSUMPTION Kemp's Balsam stops the cough at once.

For Sale.

A scholarship in the Crookston Business College. Apply at the JOURNAL office. [10 t.f.]

If you want fresh groceries, go to A. Sture's.

Cloaks! cloaks! at A. Sture's. Give us a call.

The Wade-Deroyle company is not a repertoire company but play one and two night stands. By special arrangement they have agreed to play all next week at the opera house. The rates of admission will be 75, 50 and 25 cents.

Miss Helen Halvorson has her fall opening of millinery this week and such a dainty display is hard to beat. She informed our reporter that she has a more extensive stock this fall than ever before and is prepared to give greater bargains. She invites her lady friends to call.

Advertised Letters.

List of letters remaining unclaimed at the Crookston postoffice for the week ending Oct. 1st, 1892.

Anderson, Arm—2
Bloom, C. T.
Rrydges, George
Dillon, John
Gimbale, Moise
Haller, Harry
McKenzie, W. C.
Ovlland, Emma Swenson, Hans
Bjorich, A. J.
Bush, Joe
Canfield, J. F.
Echtermach, D. E.
Green, R.
King, J. W. alone, John
Smith, John

Persons calling for the above letters please say advertised.

WM. B. DAWLEY, P. M.

Lane's Medicine Moves the Bowels Each Day. In order to be healthy this is necessary.

Fits—All fits stopped free by Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. No fits after the first day's use. Marvelous cures. Treatise and $2.00 trial bottle free to fit cases. Send to Dr. Kline, 931 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa. For sale by all druggists; call on yours.

A Sample of One of the Ballots to be Used at the Coming Election.

Congressional, Legislative, Judicial and County Ticket.

(To be printed on BLUE paper)

Put an X mark in the space indicated by the index ☞

Congressman Seventh District—HENRY FEIG—Republican.		Vote for 1 only
Congressman Seventh District—W. F. KELSO—Democrat.
Congressman Seventh District—H. E. BOEN—People's Party.
Congressman Seventh District—
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—HALVOR STEENERSON—Republican.		Vote for three only
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—LARS E. NORDBY—Republican.
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—PETER RAMSTAD—Republican.
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—JOHN R. McKINNON—Democrat.
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—OLE NYGAARD—Democrat.
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—JACOB H. NESS—Democrat.
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—J. D. KNUTESON—People's Party.
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—B. M. CHESLEY—People's Party.
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—O. E. OLSON—People's Party.
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—
Judge 14th Judicial District—IRA B. MILLS—Independent.		Vote for one only
Judge 14th Judicial District—FRANK IVES—People's Party.
Judge 14th Judicial District—
County Auditor—W. A. LANCTOT—Republican.		Vote for one only
County Auditor—J. M. HANSON—Democrat.
County Auditor—C. U WEBSTER—People's Party.
County Auditor—
County Treasurer—LEWIS LOHN—Republican.		Vote for one only
County Treasurer—L. C. COUVRETTE—Democrat.
County Treasurer—J. T. BEAUDRY—People's Party.
County Treasurer—
Register of Deeds—NIC NELSON—Repupliean.		Vote for one only
Register of Deeds—ADAM ZEH—Democrat.
Register of Deeds—J. AMUNDSON—People's Party.
Register of Deeds—
County Attorney—IRA C. RICHARDSON—Republican.		Vote for one only
County Attorney—P. G. FALARDEAU—Democrat.
County Attorney—A. R. HOLSTON—People's Party.
County Attorney—
Sheriff—JAS. M. BAIN—Republican.		Vote for one only
Sheriff—A. C. SCHMIDT—Democrat.
Sheriff—ARNE GRUNDYSEN—People's Party.
Sheriff—
Judge of Probate—R. J. MONTAGUE—Republican.		Vote for one only
Judge of Probate—P. J. RUSSELL—Democrat.
Judge of Probate—C. M. BENSON—People's Party.
Judge of Probate—
Superintendent of Schools—V. D. CARRUTH—Republican.		Vote for one only
Superintendent of Schools—A. A. LOMMEN—People's Party.
Superintendent of Schools—
Surveyor—GEO. RALPH—Republican.		Vote for one only
Surveyor—P. EMARD—Democrat.
Surveyor—
Surveyor—
Court Commissioner—G. H. PALMER—Republican.		Vote for one only
Court Commissioner—W. H. AVERILL—Democrat.
Court Commissioner—
Coroner—GEO. HOLT—Republican.		Vote for one only
Coroner—HENRY SHEPARD—Democrat.
Coroner—HENRY SHEPARD—People's Party.
Coroner—
County Commissioner, 1st District—E. D. BARNESS—Republican.		Vote for one only
County Commissioner, 1st District—EPHRIAM KING—Democrat.
County Commissioner, 1st District—JOHN E. OPPEGAARD—People.
County Commissioner, 1st District—
County Commissioner, 2d District—R. ERWIN—Republican.		Vote for one only
County Commissioner, 2d District—ANTON LINDEM—People's Party.
County Commissioner. 2d District—
County Commissioner, 3d District—E. D. CHILDS—Republican.		Vote for one only
County Commissioner, 3d District—M. E. KIRSCH—Democrat.
County Commissioner, 3d District—CHRIS. HANSON—People's Party.
County Commissioner, 3d District—
County Commissioner, 5th District ROBT. NESBIT—Republican.		Vote for one only
County Commissioner, 5th District—A. C. RHINEHART—Democrat.
County Commissioner, 5th District—ROBT. ANDERSON—People's Party
County Commissioner, 5th District—

George Finlayson and Graham Munch have gone to Minneapolis to enter the university.

The fall term of the commercial college commenced on Monday with a fair attendance.

From $2.00 to $5.00 saved by those who need a cloak this fall and read Locken & Holmboe's adv. in this issue.

Ladies, just examine those 89 cent kid gloves at the New York store. They're cheap in price but not in quality.

Question; Where buy our dry goods this fall? Answer in Chorus; Locken & Holmboe's opera house department store.

See those lovely kid gloves at the New York store for 89 cents. A. Chabot is almost giving his goods away this week.

A. Chabot is the sole agent in Crookston for Thompson's glove fitting Corsets, which are acknowledged to be the most perfect corset made.

J. H. McKee came from Michigan last week to visit his son, S. H. He was accompanied by a Mr. Rich who came to look the country over with a view of investment.

Chas. O'Connor appeared before Judge Christianson on Tuesday afternoon, plead guilty to a simple drunk paid four dollars and departed a sadder though a wiser man.

Knute Osmunson and Miss Bertha Jorgenson, of Thief River Falls, were quietly married at the Central house in this city on Tuesday afternoon. Judge C. O. Christianson officiating.

Rev. Hoyt, the Episcopal minister returned with his bride on Saturday last. A reception was given them on Tuesday evening at the residence of W. W. Fegan which was largely attended.

Tommy Johnston the braw Scotch farmer of Fisher, went up to Fosston on Wednesday to attend the fair. Tommy says that this county will never come to the front until we get in the habit of having county fairs more numerously and Tommy is about right.

On Tuesday afternoon Deputy Sheriff Losey went out to Parnell to bring Pat Casey before Judge Benson, and took L. E. Gossman along to help him. He needed him as Pat declined to come and force had to be resorted to. He was finally secured, brought to town and on Wednesday examined and committed to the insane asylum at Fergus Falls.

On Monday and Tuesday, Oct. 10th and 11th, I will have my opening of fall and winter millinery, to which the ladies are cordially invited. My stock is complete, my prices are low, my goods are of the most fashionable as inspection will warrant. Thanking you for your past patronage, I am yours for the future.

MRS. SEMPF.

A sign is just now attracting great attention on Robert street, "Great Bargains in clothing" is displayed in large letters across the entire front of Locken's clothing store on Robert street. The proprietor say it means just what it says. Inside can be found a large new stock of overcoats, suits and pants. Besides all kinds of furnishing goods and underwear. The prices have never been equalled. Another sign outside the same place says: Ladies' shoes at cost It means that the firm shall not carry ladies' shoes any longer. Everybody should take advantage of this liberal offer.

F. E. Kernott, of Grand Forks, has accepted a position in S. A. Wallace's drug store.

Stephen Forrester was brought before Judge Christianson on Tuesday on a charge of drunk and disorderly. Fined and sent to the coop pending liquidation.

Millinery Opening.

The attention of the lady readers of the JOURNAL is invited to my new fall stock now ready for inspection, larger and more complete than ever. Opening days, Thursday Friday and Saturday of this week. Consult your interests by calling at my millinery parlors on Main street.

HELEN HALVORSON.

Kalle Acquitted.

"Halvorson-Melin-Whalstrom murdercase" referred to in our last issue of September 29th, came up before Judge Christianson on Tuesday morning. In the absence of R. J. Montague, De Forest Bucklin appeared as associate counsel for the defendant, August Kalle. When the case was called the attorney for the prosecution, Mr. Sullivan, stated that although every possible effort had been made to secure the presence of the witnesses for whose presence the case had been adjourned, they had been unable to secure them, and he hinted pretty broadly that the agents of the prisoner had been tampering with the aforesaid witnesses, and moved for dismissal without prejudice. Attorney Gossman for the defense warmly repelled the insinuation that the witnesses for the prosecution had been unduly influenced, and demanded that the case proceed. He said that his client had been brought over here and incarcerated in the common jail without sufficient cause, and he wanted the matter sifted to the bottom in justice to him—at any rate he wanted that man Whalstrom to go upon the stand and testify. Mr. Sullivan replied that the state was not prepared to go to trial, that it would be impossible to get the witnesses required, and insisted upon dismissal, whereupon De Forest Bucklin took a whirl at the question and insisted that Mr. Whalstrom should be called upon to testify in the case, so that if possible the true inwardness of this case might be arrived at—said that some 1800 years ago we read of cases where the devil took possession of men and had to be cast out; he supposed that in this day and age of the world such cases would be called insane, but he thought he could discover signs of the devil in the composition of some men in the present day—he would not say they were insane but he proceeded to treat one witness to a rich brown roast duly seasoned to the queen's taste, and then he offered to produce those witnesses which the prosecution deemed so essential, if the prosecution would consent to a short adjournment. After a little more skirmishing by counsel, County Attorney Holston stated that the prosecution had not sufficient evidence to make a case, and moved for dismissal, whereupon the case was dismissed and Mr. Kalle walked out of the court room a free man. To our reporter he afterwards stated that he was not at all satisfied with the outcome of the case and that he proposed to follow it up and show to the world that it was a case of malicious persecution. Says it is the outgrowth of an old case that was in the courts years ago, and which has already cost the taxpayers of Polk county a good round sum.

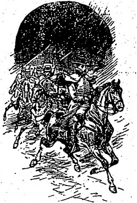
A SOLDIER'S SECRET

BY CAPT. CHARLES KING, U. S. A.

COPYRIGHT, 1892, BY J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY, AND PUBLISHED BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH THEM.

[CONTINUED.]

CHAPTER XI.



Brewster led his little band of troopers off into the night.

"Who's there?" demanded Brewster from beneath his robes and blankets, as late that night his name was called.

"It is I—Holden. Tumble up, man; I want you quick."

"My God, doctor, is Berrien worse?"

"No, thank heaven, he's sound asleep. Sergeant Ellis was brought in by the guard half an hour ago. He fell exhausted at the lines. We've just brought him to at the hospital tent, and from what I can make out—he's so weak yet—there's something back there out on the prairie, an ambulance and women. I ran over for you as soon as I could, for you probably know him best."

"Be with you in a minute," shouted Brewster, kicking off his moccasins and struggling into his heavy boots. "Lie still, Haddock; you're not wanted," he added. "What time is it, Doc?"

"Long after eleven—near midnight, I judge. Come as quick as you can. I'll go right back."

In five minutes, in the dim light of the hospital tent, Brewster was bending over Ellis' prostrate form. Others had pulled off his heavy boots and were chafing his half frozen feet. Holden had just administered another dose of brandy, but at sight of Brewster the languid, half open eyes began to gleam and the muscles of the lips to twitch.

"Stoop lower, Brewster; he wants to speak to you," said Holden. And Brewster inclined his ear almost to the black mustache.

Then with sudden bound he was on his feet again.

"What!" he cried. "God of heaven, man! do you mean it?" His face was ashen in an instant, but his eyes never quit their questioning gaze. Ellis nodded vehemently, striving again to speak.

"Doctor, do you hear?" cried Brewster, in mad dismay. "He says Mrs. Berrien and Winifred are in the ambulance broken down at Wolf Creek." And without another word he darted from the tent.

Ten minutes more, a dozen men of the "black troop" were bracing cinch straps, buckling throat latches and loading blankets on their astonished steeds. Despite the howling of the gale, half the camp was up and astir, Farquhar among the first. Brewster had his own horse saddled and was astride before any one else was fairly dressed, and by this time Ellis had recovered sufficiently to speak and tell his story. The train from the east came in on time at three, and he was amazed to see Mrs. Berrien's face. No one dreamed of her coming, for the wires were down. The quartermaster ran to meet her, and the sergeant himself hastened to give her good news of her husband. Nothing would answer, though, but that she must go to him at once.

In vain did Major Sterrett plead with her, saying it took five hours to drive over to the cantonment by day and he feared the evening would be dark and stormy. Go she would, and the quartermaster ordered out his own ambulance and best four mule team, with his own driver and a couple of armed outriders. He gave the ladies hot tea, loaded in lots of blankets and robes, and they started about half past three, were in the teeth of the gale at five o'clock, in pitch darkness and off the road at six, and somewhere about seven the mules became unmanageable in the blizzard, whirled short around and snapped off the pole. By this time, too, one outrider was lost, the other was frozen half to death and had been drinking whisky. The driver was so stiff he could hardly move hand or foot, and he and Ellis had the utmost difficulty in cutting loose the mules. There was every prospect of their capsizing the wagon, and they had to get the ladies out until the beasts were free. Then he found they were close to Wolf creek, more than half way, and Ellis determined to push on through the cantonment for help, first replacing the ladies in the covered wagon, wrapping them in furs and blankets and fastening the curtains. The hurricane increased. He and his horse were both blinded, and at last the poor brute stumbled, fell into a ravine and could barely struggle to his feet. Abandoning his horse, Ellis pushed on afoot and reached camp he knew not how. He only remembered hearing that distant tattoo.

Farquhar never hesitated. Brewster never asked. Holden made him and each of his men swallow a cup of steaming coffee, and the colonel took it as a matter of course that Curly was the very man to go.

"You have brandy and blankets in plenty?" he asked. "Holden is loading more into the ambulance, and it follows at once. Off with you now."

Impatient even of this brief detention, Brewster led his little band of troopers off into the night. There was not a man in the Twelfth that wouldn't have faced worst things than a blizzard for old Berrien's sake, and as for this it was but a bagatelle. "All we've got to do is scud before the gale, fellers," sung out Murphy, joyously, as they went cantering out of camp, and in a second more were lost to sight and hearing. Then came the clatter and rattle of the hospital team, the ambulance, weighted down with robes and blankets and a brace of heavy troopers, despite which ballast the light vehicle was well nigh whirled over by the force of the gale. And then Farquhar and the doctor had time to turn to Ellis and to think.

"They must have got my dispatch Tuesday night and left by the earliest train," said Holden. "How utterly outrageous a proceeding! And yet I might have known it of Mrs. Berrien."

Meantime there had been dismay at the quartermaster's depot. Sterrett, noting the increasing severity of the gale at nightfall, had begun upbraiding himself for having allowed the ladies to persist in the rash attempt. He had done his best to persuade Mrs. Berrien and to assure her that the major was doing well; he pointed out to her that they had nothing but rough shelter of log and turf and canvas at the camp; that there was absolutely no place where delicately nurtured women could be cared for. He offered her and Miss Winifred his own warm, snug, though rudely furnished room at the station, and ordered his chief clerk to clear out and sleep in the office. He told her how impossible it was for him to leave his post and his duties of forwarding supplies, and explained that there was no officer to properly escort them. But one by one she had promptly overthrown his objections. Escort? Here was Sergeant Ellis. What better could she ask? As for lack of accommodation at the camp, had she not lived all one winter with her beloved Dick in a Kansas dugout just the year after their marriage? Had she not camped with him on the Yellowstone?—nursed him in a deserted log hut through the mountain fever in the Big Horn? Were there not women, school teachers and the agent's and trader's families there at the agency? What had she to fear for herself or Winifred in the midst of the Twelfth?

"But the regiment is ordered to march tomorrow," said Sterrett. "It is an open secret that the Indians have slipped away from the troops along the Cheyenne, and there's the mischief to pay."

"All the more reason for my being at my husband's side," promptly answered this army heroine. "Dr. Holden will have to go, and Dick will be left practically alone. Winifred and I start at once, even if we have to walk."

Of course that ended the matter. Against such determination he was powerless. Having first done his best to detain them he had then bent all his efforts to the duty of transportation, and now at a late hour in the evening and in the energetic and familiar language of the corral was blaspheming the fate that had led him to yield his better judgment to her importunity. Somewhere about nine o'clock one of the outriders had been dragged off his horse more dead than alive and told a pitiful tale of having been driven before the storm, and he didn't even know how far they had got before he lost sight of the ambulance entirely, but was sure that one and all they had lost the road and now were adrift on the prairie. This was bad enough; but at ten o'clock or thereabout the corral master came in to say that the riderless horse of the other man had just arrived at the gate and, barely able to stagger, was led inside.

"Pete had a flask along," said the corral master sententiously. "That's what's the matter with him."

Then Sterrett could stand it no longer. Soldiers there were none to send—they were all over the range, at the cantonment or beyond; civilians were there in plenty, dozens of refugees from the ranches, dozens of railroad men and train hands, one or two disgusted correspondents who had got the "tip" as to impending movements all too late to catch the luckier members of that all pervading fraternity, but who were quick to realize the "scoop" they would have in transmitting to their respective journals full and picturesque details of the Dakota blizzard. It is an ill wind that blows nobody good.

Even though every one told him he could accomplish nothing whatever before daylight, Sterrett had a little party of stalwart frontiersmen duly equipped by midnight and ready to start the instant the gale should show signs of moderating. Hour after hour it shrieked and howled, driving the sheets of snow before it, sweeping the frozen prairie clean as a floor, but whirling dense white clouds into every sheltered gulch and ravine, settling the drifts in the lee of every stack and shed and building at the railway station where, "dead" and abandoned, lay the engine of the eastbound train, the passengers huddling for warmth into a single car and cheerfully discussing the propriety of using the other for firewood.

And then, before the first faint glimmer of dawn, as though spent with its own violence, the gale began to die. The clouds scudding southeastward drew aside, uncurtaining the placid heavens, where the stars were faintly gleaming and then twinkling out of sight. Soon in a blaze of glory and triumph the sun rose slowly over the far distant bluffs and looked down upon the scene of wrath and desolation wrought by rude Boreas in the conqueror's absence; and just then, too, there hove in sight a battered little squad of troopers on spent and jaded steeds, and the sergeant in command rode breast deep into the drift at the south entrance of Sterrett's office and yelled over the intervening shield of snow the stunning question:

"Did the ladies get back all right? We can't find the ambulance anywhere along the Wolf."

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

IF I WERE FAIR.

If I were fair!
If I had little hands and slender feet;
If to my cheeks the color rich and sweet
Came at a word and faded at a frown;
If I had clinging curls of burnished brown;
If I had dreamy eyes aglow with smiles,
And graceful limbs, and pretty girlish wiles—
If I were fair, Love would not turn aside.
Life's path, so narrow, would be broad and wide,
If I were fair!

If I were fair!
Perhaps like other maidens I might hold
A true heart's store of tried and tested gold.
Love waits on Beauty, though sweet Love alone,
It seems to me, for naught might well atone.
But Beauty's charm is strong, and Love obeys
The mystic witchery of her shy ways.
If I were fair my years would seem so few;
Life would unfold sweet pictures to my view.
If I were fair!

If I were fair!
Perhaps the baby, with a scream of joy,
To clasp my neck would throw away its toy,
And hide its dimples in my shining hair,
Bewilder'd by the maze of glory there!
But now—Oh, shadow of a young girl's face:
Uncolor'd lips that Pain's cold finger trace!
You will not blame the child whose wee hands close,
Not on the blighted bud, but on the rose
So rich and fair.

If I were fair!
Oh, just a little fair, with some soft touch
About my face to glory it much!
If no one shunn'd my presence or my kiss,
My heart would almost break beneath its bliss.
'Tis said each pilgrim shall attain his goal,
And perfect light shall flood each blinded soul
When day's flush merges into sunset's bars,
And night is here. And then beyond the stars
I shall be fair!

—Edith Rutter in London Spectator.

A Life Search.

Men in the ministry are brought into contact with cranks of all sorts. Their name is legion, and the subject of religion, which appeals strongly to the imagination and gives full scope to speculation, has a special fascination for them. If preachers would write out their experiences with this class of persons there would be no scarcity of spicy reading. It was a harmless kind of crank that Bishop Thomas Bowman, of this city, ran against one time at a camp meeting. On that occasion he preached from the following text: "As Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the son of man be lifted up." The most attentive listener in the congregation was a tall, lank individual, with wild, deep set eyes and long hair. At the conclusion of the sermon he made a bee line for the bishop, and the latter, divining the character of the man, tried to get away from him, but failed.

"Well, now, my brother," said the bishop, with just a little pique in his voice, for he was very tired and the weather was hot, "what is it you wish?"

"Bishop," he replied, with intense earnestness, "I have been a student of the Bible all my life, and there is one question that has troubled me for a long time. Perhaps you can throw some light on it. It is this: What was the color of the snakes that were sent to afflict the children of Israel?"—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Farms for Epileptics.

Epilepsy is so large a cause of enforced idleness among the working people in England that a colony has been established in a country place within an hour's ride of London, where they can perform lucrative labor suited to their condition. The plan is imitated from one successfully carried out in Westphila, Germany. On a piece of land of some hundred acres there will be built cottages to hold from ten to twenty inmates. The sexes will be separated, and also the children from the adults.

Market gardening, spade and barrow labor, cow keeping, dairy work and poultry farming will be the first industries; then gardening and fruit culture, and later on will follow bootmaking, carpentering, bookbinding, printing and other industries; and for the women laundry work, sewing, cooking and various domestic services.—Boston Transcript.

The Lady Trapped.

"Yes," said the society lady at a swell affair the other evening, "I've crossed the Atlantic ocean eleven times."

The smart young man adjusted his eyeglass and said, "Ah! Born in America, I suppose?"

"No, indeed! Why do you ask?"

"Because if you were born in this country and had crossed the ocean eleven times you'd be on the other side now, dontcherknow!"

The lady figured a moment on the tips of her pretty fingers, blushed violently and fled.—London Tit-Bits.

The Indians' Regard for Snakes.

The North American Indians will not kill a snake in their path. They hold it in reverence, and although they select great numbers of them to use in their snake dances they never kill them, but when the ceremony is finished take them out on the plains and release them. Some Zuni Indians from New Mexico with whom I became acquainted refused to repeat their folk lore out of doors for fear the rattlesnakes would hear them.—St. Nicholas.

Why destroy present happiness by a distant misery, which may never come at all; or you may never live to see it, for every substantial grief has twenty shadows, and most of them shadows of your own making.—Sydney Smith.

The onion has a virtue to which thousands of people will swear. This is its ability to ward off attacks of malaria in any form, and to cure cases as rapidly as the strongest doses of quinine.

There are times when men have to be treated like children, when they are very ill, for instance, or when they are in imminent danger which must be averted first and explained afterwards.

There are not a few who think themselves lucky if at the dinner hour they are able to allay the cruel pangs of hunger with a philosophic pipe.

The harvester was invented by Cyrus McCormick in 1831, and has been improved by many subsequent inventors.

"WORTH A GUINEA A BOX."
BEECHAMS PILLS
(Tasteless—Effectual.)
For Sick-Headache, Impaired Digestion, Liver Disorders and Female Ailments.
Renowned all over the World.
Covered with a Tasteless & Soluble Coating.
Ask for Beecham's and take no others. Made at St. Helens, England. druggists and dealers. Price 25 cents a box. New York Depot, 365 Canal St.

Town Clerks.

The following is a list of the town clerks for the several towns in Polk county:

Andover,	E M Bivins	Crookston
Angus,	A B Carleton	Angus
Black River,	P A Eckstrom	Wylie
Bray,	Albert Wickstrom	Wylie
Badger'	P N Savalrud	Sletten
Brandsvold.	Ole Nelson	Fosston
Belgium,	Henry Biever	Euclid
Bristet,	A P Frank	Warren
Bygland,	Thos. Benson	Fisher
Crookston,	E O Flanders	Crookston
Crookston, city,	E C Caaruth	Crookston
Columbia,	R H Carr	Columbia
Chester,	O J Mattson	Lindsay
Emardville,	Peter Anderson	Emard
Euclid,	F Tiedt, Jr.,	Euclid
Eden,	Neri A Skele	Olga
Fairfax,	Wm Himmelsback	Crookston
Farley,	Mark Congnon	Warren
Fanny,	Walter Latta	Buffington
Fisher,	Halvor Gunderson	Fisher
Fisher, vil.,	John Gleason	Fisher
Gd Forks,	John McCoy	E G Forks
Gd Forks, city,	John McCoy	E G Forks
Garfield,	Iver J Ingebretson	Fertile
Garden,	John Hanson	Ringdal
Gentilly.	H F Gondron,	Gentilly
Gervais.	John Deforge	R L Falls
Grand Park,	E E Abbott	Mentor
Goderey,	D T Mitchell,	Maple Bay
Hammond.	Ernest Hanna	Caookston
Higdem,	Ole Hendrickson	E G Forks
Hill River,	Fred S Syeverson	Lindsay
Huntsville,	O Osmundson	Mallory
Hubbard.	Frank Hanson,	Neilsville
Keystone,	D E Geddes	E G Forks
Kerlsonville,	Fred Benoit	Gentilly
King,	K C Norsving	McIntosh
Knute,	O H Dale	Erskine
Lake Pleasant,	Jos Perrault	R L Falls
Lambert,	Samuel Gebcan,	Lamber
Liberty,	Nelson Clementson	Fertile
Lessor,	H Helgeson	Ovetia
Lowell,	Ole Christianson,	Crookston
Louisville,	Louis Huot	Huot
Nesbit,	Robert Nesbit	Mallory
Norden,	O J Tweet	Tweet
North,	S T Johnson	T R Falls
Numedal,	Olaf Larson	Warren
Onsted,	W A Marin	Melvin
Parnell,	Thos Filban	Crookston
Poplar River,	J B Hebert	Brooks
Polk Centre,	Wm Wylie.	Wylie
Queen,	Hans L Houkom	Fosston
R L F, village,	August Herard,	R L Falls
Red Lake Falls,	Ildaig Baril	R L Falls
Reis,	D C Hallock	Edna
River Falls,	K C Gigstad	St. Hilaire
Rocksbury,	P Englestad	St. Hilaire
Roome,	P Boukon	Neby
Rosebud,	M E Randkler	Fosston
Russia,	Orens Simmons	Crookston
Sanders,	Nils K Anderson	St. Hilair
Sandsville.	Henry Nelson	E G Forkse
St. Hilaire,	L J Johnson	St. Hilaire
Sletten,	Ingebret Larson	Winger
Sullivan,	P A Hotvedt	E G Forks
Tabor,	F J Cernousek	Tabor
Terrebonne,	Edonor Perruse	Terrebonne
Tilden,	S J Furan	Dugdale
Tynsid,	A O Stortroen	Neby
Vineland,	John Thompson	Neby
Winger,	Albert Johnson	Winger
Woodside,	Joseph Tagley	Woodside
Wyandotte,	O J Johnson	St. Hilaire
Rhinehart,	Oscar Winck	E G Forks
Thief River Falls	C J Knox	T R Falls

G. G. HENAULT
Practical Dentist,
SECOND STREET,
CROOKSTON, - - MINN
OFFICE IN DOBSON'S BLOCK,
☞ All work in my line skilfully and promptly performed. Give me a call.
G. G. HENAULT.

KOPS BRO'S
105 Third Street,
GRAND FORKS, N. DAKOTA

PIANOS, ORGANS
WEBER, HAINES BROS., KURTZMANN, MATHUSHEK, McCAMMON PIANOS, Estey and Chicago Cottage Organs. New Upright Pianos from $250 to $1,000, on terms of $10 to $25 per month. New Organs from $60 to $250 on terms of $5 to $10 per month.
Satisfaction guanteed. Write for catalogue and prices. KOPS BROS.
Grand Forks, N. D.

NOTICE OF INTENDED APPLICATION to vacate a portion of the Townsite of South Crookston:

To whom it may concern:

Notice is hereby given that I, the undersigned, owner and proprietor of the real estate hereinafter described, will, on the fifth day of December, A. D. 1892, make application to the Honorable, the Judge of the District Court of the Fourteenth Judicial District, in and for the county of Polk, Minnesota, at the Court House in the city of Crookston, in said county and State, at the hour of 10 o'clock in the forenoon of said day, or as soon thereafter as counsel can be heard, to vacate a portion of the Townsite of South Crookston, in said county of Polk, Minnesota, that is embraced in the description hereafter given. Said application for vacating being intended to cover streets, alleys and blocks as originally platted and dedicated. That said intended application to vacate will be made upon the ground that the same has become wholly useless for the purpose for which the same was platted and dedicated. That the property intended to be vacated is described as follows, to-wit: All of blocks 4, 5, 7, 8, 9, 11, 12, 13, 14, 21, 22, of the townsite of South Crookston, according to the recorded plat thereof now on file in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said county of Polk, Minnesota, and also a portion of the following named streets adjoining the real estate above described, as follows, to-wit: A part of Hill avenue, College avenue, Polk avenue, Sampson street, Water street and Riverside avenue.

All parties interested are hereby notified to be present at the above time and place.

Dated Crookston, Minn., Sept. 24th, 1892.

PETRIA SAMPSON,
Proprietress and Owner.

H. STEENERSON,
Attorney for Petitioner. 124]

Ripans Tabules cure the blues.

Ripans Tabules cure dyspepsia.

WE ARE NOW STOCKING UP.
In Better shape than ever before with a
Handsomer and
Better Selected Line
Than ever before, and,
As to Prices, we Shall Certainly Please You.
If you wish to save money. One of the many
RARE BARGAINS —ARE THE— Children's Suits
From ages 8 to 11. Don't fail to see them.
Men's, Boys' and Dhildren's OVERCOATS, Very Nobby and Very Cheap.
Fur Coats open for inspection.
BOSTON ONE PRICE CLOTHING HOUSE,
MOSSEFIN & LINDELL, Props.

IT'S A FACT
—THAT THE—
Journal Job Department
Is Equal to any in
Northern Minnesota.
IT IS EQUIPPED WITH
New Material,
Quick Presses,
Cheap Power
—AND—
First-Class Workmen.

IF YOU have anything to sell, which some other person wants, advertise in the JOURNAL, and you will find a purchaser.

Judicious Advertising Pays,
Therefore place your advertisement in a paper which goes into the homes of the people and is carefully read.
SUCH A PAPER IS
—THE—
Polk County Journal.

SECOND KNOCK OUT

WISCONSIN'S APPORTIONMENT ACT AGAIN DECLARED VOID.

The Defense Given Permission to Make Answer to Relator's Complaint—A General Disposition Among Democrats to Abide by the Decision.

MADISON, Sept. 27.—The supreme court has rendered a decision declaring the apportionment made by the extra session of the legislature invalid. Justice Winslow dissents. Another session will doubtless be called, and the legislature will make another attempt to conform to the rulings of the court.

The decision holding the second legislative apportionment act void, created the most intense excitement in political circles. The court has as yet handed down no opinion. It did not have time to write one. Its action was specified in a brief order not exceeding 200 words which it handed down. The order is as follows:

The court holds that the order granting leave to the relator to bring this action on behalf of the state was properly made. Hence the motion on behalf of the defendant to vacate the same and dismiss the action must be refused.

The court further holds that the complaint states facts sufficient to entitle the state to the relief demanded. Hence the motion on behalf of the state to add a demurrer to the complaint is frivolous and therefore judgment must be granted. Such determination of these matters in effect overrules the demurrer of the complaint.

An opinion will be prepared and filed at an early hour. If the defense desires leave to interpose answer to the complaint the court will hear such motion on the next motion day.

That, so far as the public has any information, is the full record of the court on the subject with the exception that Associate Justice Winslow gave notice that he dissented from the findings of his four associates. The latter, it may be interesting to note, are Chief Justice Lyon and Justices Cassoday, Pinney and Orton. Orton and Pinney are Democrats and Lyon and Cassoday are Republicans. Winslow, who dissents, is also a Democrat and was appointed by Governor Peck a year ago to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Justice Taylor. No political bias, under the circumstances, can be attached to the decision.

The general view of the situation is that the court practically decides that the legislature has no discretion in making apportionments so far as population is concerned and that the law is practically declared invalid.

Will Abide by the Decision.

Senator Vilas had a talk with the justices after the decision, and although leave is given to file a motion on the next motion day, which is Friday, asking leave to interpose an answer in the case and defend the law on its merits, he appears to be satisfied that it would be useless under the circumstances.

Attorney General O'Connor said: "We can stand it if the Republicans can. There is no political advantage to either party. I did not believe the law was unconstitutional but the majority of the court seemed to disagree with me. Farther than this I do not care to speak at present."

Secretary of State Cunningham said that the court has been outspoken and he was willing to abide by its determination. One Democratic official suggested that the court ought to be impeached, but the general disposition to acquiesce in the decision prevails.

DENIED THE MOTION.

Leave to Answer Denied to Vilas by the Supreme Court.

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 1.—The supreme court denied the motion of Senator Vilas, attorney for the secretary of state for "leave to interpose an answer" in the legislative apportionment case, and ordered judgment for relief entered for the relator, thus finally and ultimately closing the case against the secretary of state, and in favor of the relator, C. F. Lamb. The extra session of the legislature to enact a new law will undoubtedly be called at an early date.

ABOUT OCTOBER 11.

An Extra Session of the Wisconsin Legislature to Be Called.

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 3.—It has been decided that an extra session will be called Oct. 11 or 12 to make another apportionment. Secretary of State Cunningham says that is the programme and that the mandate of the court is supreme so far as he is concerned. The governor has not yet returned, but the call will not be issued until after the court has filed its decision. That will probably be in a day or two as Justice Cassoday, it is understood, will then be ready, as Justices Lean and Orton wrote their opinion on the first apportionment.

MOTION DENIED.

Commissioner Peck's Case Will Be Investigated by the Grand Jury.

ALBANY, Oct. 3.—The motion to quash the indictment against Charles F. Peck is denied and he will have to answer the criminal charge. He is charged with having burned the records of his office. When the case was called in the court of sessions, Judge Clute said: "The motion to quash the indictment is denied. It is the duty of the grand jury to investigate any alleged offense."

An Independent Ticket.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—The committee appointed by the anti-snapper organization for the purpose of advising with the Democratic national committee on the subject of an independent local ticket held a meeting and unanimously decided to go ahead with their original intention of supporting an independent ticket.

Passed a Bad Night.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Mrs. Harrison passed a restless and uncomfortable night and is not feeling refreshed. Otherwise her condition remains unchanged.

BURIED IN A MINE.

Ten Men Get Caught in a Shaft at Ironwood, Mich.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 30.—A special to The News from Bessemer, Mich., says: A cave-in occurred at the East Norrie mine at Ironwood, at 4 o'clock a. m. Ten men are entombed, and it is impossible to tell at this writing whether they can be rescued alive. The mine is surrounded by weeping and frantic women and relatives, and the scenes are pitiful. Hundreds of men are working to rescue their companions. The company is driving pipes to get air to the men. If the water in the mine does not rise and drown the men they may be rescued.

At 8 o'clock the men were still entombed and their fellow workmen were working with might and main for their rescue. Captain Suthe, of the mine, is certain that the cave has not been molested in which the entombed men are supposed to be and they are all safe.

FIVE DEAD IN SIGHT.

Victims of the Norrie Mine Lie Crushed in a Heap.

IRONWOOD, Mich., Oct. 3.—The work of dislodging the bodies of the entombed miners is going on as rapidly as possible. Sand Sutton, the pit boss, came up the shaft at 10:45 p. m. He says "five bodies can be seen piled together among the heavy timbers, and our work is delayed on account of lack of air. Miners strike the bodies with picks when at work. Arms, heads, legs, protrude everywhere, making a horrible sight. If one body can be brought out whole then the others can be readily taken out."

SIX DEATHS IN ONE FAMILY.

Severe Epidemic of Diphtheria at Racine, Wisconsin.

RACINE, Wis., Oct. 1.—This city has experienced a most severe epidemic of diphtheria during the last two weeks which has caused the closing of several of the public schools. Two weeks ago the family of Peter Heldt, of 1000 Pearl street, consisted of father, mother and six bright, happy children. The oldest daughter contracted the disease at a funeral. She died on Sept. 19. The remaining children one by one came down with the disease and another died on the 22d and still another on the 26th. Friday morning the three remaining children lay stretched out in the house awaiting burial, having died Thursday night. The mother is almost crazed with grief and is in a precarious condition. With this exception the epidemic has been stayed and there has been no other fatalities from the disease the past few days.

COUNTY SEAT WAR.

Troops in Eastern Nebraska Held in Readiness to Move.

OMAHA, Oct. 3.—There was more trouble at Culbertson during the day in the Hitchcock county seat war, and a number of shots were exchanged between the Culberson and Trenton men. Nobody was wounded. The militia companies of Breatice, Kearney, Omaha and Lincoln are at their armories ready to move a moment's notice. In addition to this two Gatlings are in readiness to move. General Vifucane has left for the scene. Private advices from Culbertson are that the whole town is under arms guarding the remaining records against removal by force, and that Trenton people are armed against any move to capture the records now in their city.

TROOPS ASKED FOR.

Canadian Indians at the Turtle Mountain Reservation Threaten Trouble.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—The war department has been requested to send a detachment of troops to the Turtle Mountain Indian reservation in North Dakota to assist the government commission now there to carry out their instructions. It is reported that the Canadian Indians who were stricken from the agency roll because they are foreigners, now make open threats that they will prevent any course of action that does not include them in the deliberations. The troops will remain as it is necessary to keep peace, allow expressions of opinions and facilitate business.

FATAL PRIZE FIGHT.

"Billy the Kid" Dies Within an Hour of Leaving the Ring.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., Oct. 3.—William Duffy, better known as "Billy the Kid," was knocked out at the Fashion theatre, a notorious resort in Covington, Neb., by Jack Keefe, a heavyweight, after an easy five-round contest, and died within an hour after. Keefe and all the seconds are under arrest, awaiting the decision of the coroner's jury.

John L. Denies the Story.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—John L. Sullivan arrived in this city during the evening. He was asked by a United Press reporter if it was true that he had expressed a desire for another match with Corbett. He denied that he had any such intention. He was heartily sick of the ring he said. Speaking of the report that he had been drugged during the recent fight, he said that he was never in better condition in his life than when he stepped into the ring with Corbett.

Engineer and Fireman Blown to Pieces.

DUBOIS, Pa., Oct. 1.—A pusher engine on the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburg railroad was blown to fragments at midnight by an explosion of the boiler while standing on a sidetrack near Grove summit. Engineer Wise and Fireman Flynn were literally blown to pieces. They both resided in Dubois and leave families.

Over 7,000 Fatal Cases.

HAMBURG, Oct. 3.—Official figures just published give the total number of cholera cases in the last six weeks as 17,701, of which 7,586 were fatal. The abatement of the plague has been so encouraging in the last three days that less attention is now paid to it than to the starvation and fevers among the poor.

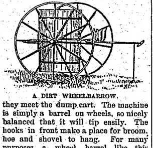
FARM AND GARDEN

TWO USEFUL TOOLS.

A Barrel on Wheels and a Device for Reeling Fence Wire.

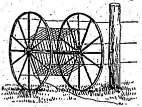
In the streets of New York city hundreds of workmen go about with implements like that shown in the first cut here reproduced from Rural New Yorker, which says:

"They brush up the dirt with stiff brushes, shovel it into the barrel and wheel it off to some central point where they meet the dump cart. The machine is simply a barrel on wheels, so nicely balanced that it will tip easily. The hooks in front make a place for broom, hoe and shovel to hang. For many purposes a wheel barrel like this is better for farm work than the usual wheelbarrow. One can take a heavier load with less work on two wheels. One novel use to which we saw one of these wheel barrels put was in planting potatoes. The barrel of seed was wheeled through the field and five or six rows were dropped at one trip, making short journeys to the barrel."



A DIRT WHEELBARROW.

A cheap and practical device for reeling fence wire, described by a correspondent of the journal mentioned, is also illustrated: "Two wheels of a light wagon were taken, attached to their axle. Four pieces of board were placed at regular intervals through the wheels and wired to the felloes. This makes a large reel, which may be rolled along by the side of the fence and which takes the wire up neatly and rapidly."



REEL FOR BARBED WIRE.

Waste of Corn Fodder.

It is always in order to call attention to the waste of corn fodder that takes place on so many of our farms every year, either by allowing it to rot in the fields or making some slight attempt to utilize it by pasturing. The Northwestern Farmer thinks this latter method is of questionable benefit, because the stock will do a good deal of damage to the soil if allowed to run upon it when wet, and they get at the best but a small portion of the full value of the fodder. The amount of labor involved in cutting and handling corn fodder has of course been the means of deterring many farmers from saving it. But it will so largely take the place of hay in feeding the farm stock that it will repay well the cost of harvesting. Within recent years farmers have been realizing the value of this fodder more than they formerly did, and now that we are getting harvesting machines that promise to lessen the labor, we shall hope soon to see the major portion of this great crop put by for winter feeding. As the case now stands, this waste of corn fodder is undoubtedly the largest single leak in our whole agricultural system.

Building a Compost Heap.

Market gardeners know the value of compost heaps, but farmers have not as much experience in this line as they should have, according to Farm Life, which says: "By composting it all stable and barnyard manure can be put in more available shape and be applied to better advantage directly to the crop than it can be in ordinary form. A good way to build a compost heap is to lay a foundation of thick sods, making the basis of such length and width as seem desirable. Put down sods, say, to a depth of six inches; then cover them with a layer of manure half as deep. Continue with alternate layers until the pile is five or six feet deep. Then finish with a basin in the center and pour water into this until the entire mass is well soaked. Fermentation will soon take place and assist in the decay of organic matter. After a few weeks cut the pile down from one end with a spade and throw it over, and repeat the operation at least once before using. A few months will suffice to give a fine mass of rich compost. The best time to build a compost heap is of course early in the autumn.

Crossing Tomatoes.

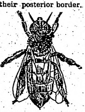
Mr. E. S. Carman, editor of The Rural New Yorker, considers the crossing of tomatoes one of the most interesting pieces of work he has ever been engaged in. He writes: "I began by using the Peach tomato as the mother plant three years ago. The two fruits crossed did not mature. They were green and deformed when frost occurred. I did not suppose the seed would germinate. On the contrary it germinated more freely than that of other varieties planted the same day, and the plants were marvels of thrift. These plants bore all sorts of tomatoes, from the Fig, Pear and King Humbert, Trophy, Victor and Conqueror to the shapelier kinds of later years; but there was not a Peach tomato to be found among them, nor one with the characteristic downy skin of the Peach. These crosses with the Peach were again crossed, using pollen of the popular varieties of last year, such as Ponderosa, Stone, Ignotum, Long Keeper, etc. I find, now that the Peach blood asserts itself. Some of the shapeliest specimens borne by the 200 crossbred plants have downy skins."

ITALIAN BEES.

An Illustrated Decription by Which They May Be Identified.

When buying bees it is important that one should be able to judge whether or not he is getting what he pays for. To enable a purchaser to identify Italian bees, when not familiar with them through actual experience, Professor Cook's illustrated description of them, as given in his "Beekeeper's Guide," is here appended:

The Italian worker bee is quickly distinguished by the bright yellow rings at the base of the abdomen. Perhaps "golden" would be a better term, as these bands are often bright orange. If the colony be pure, every bee will show three of these golden girdles. The first two segments or rings of the abdomen, except at their posterior border, and also the base or anterior border of the third, will be of this orange yellow hue. The rest of the back or dorsal surface will be much as in the German race. Underneath the abdomen, except for a greater or less distance at the tip, will also be yellow, while the same color appears more or less strongly marked on the legs.



ITALIAN WORKER BEE.

The workers have longer lingulæ or tongues than the German race, and their tongues are a little more hairy. They are also more active, and less inclined to sting.

The queen has the entire base of her abdomen, and sometimes nearly the whole of it, orange yellow. The variation as to the amount of color is quite striking. Sometimes very dark queens are imported right from the Ligurian hills, yet all the workers will wear the badge of purity—the three golden bands.

The drones are quite variable. Sometimes the rings and patches of yellow will be very prominent, then again quite indistinct. But the under side of the body is always, so far as I have observed, mainly yellow.

Poultry Items.

Chicks hatched during September and October will furnish hens that will lay next fall, when eggs are scarce and high in price, and the surplus cockerels will bring fancy figures as broilers and roasters from January to April, says the Philadelphia Farm Journal, authority also for the following items:

No vegetable makes better succulent food for hens in winter than the beet when boiled or pulped in a root cutter.

When shipping dressed fowls be sure all the animal heat is driven from the carcasses before they are packed.

More money can be got out of cheap wheat by feeding it to hens than by any other manner of disposing of it that we are aware of.

Try crimson clover as a source of green food for fall, winter and spring. Where seasons are not very severe it grows all winter.

If houses are to be erected the work should be done in the early autumn before the soil inside of the inclosure becomes wet and cold.

Milk and wheat will help the young birds to make bone and flesh and their winter coat of feathers. The same diet is equally adapted to the old birds.

Buckwheat that has been beaten down by rains and is gritty and unfit for domestic use is just as good as ever for pigeons and poultry. Let them have it.

Broadcasting and Drilling Seed.

A year ago an experiment was tried at the Rhode Island agricultural station comparing broadcast and drill seeding. The same was repeated this year, dividing every plot, sowing the north half broadcast and the south half with an Empire grain drill, using the same amount of seed in each case. The broadcast oats came up first and gave a little better appearance all through the growing season, but at harvest showed an increase over the drilled oats of only thirty-seven pounds per acre.

WANTED SALESMEN.
Local and Traveling
To represent our well-known house. You need no capital to represent a firm that warrants nursery stock first-class and true to name. WORK ALL THE YEAR. $100 per month to the right man. Apply quick, stating age.
L. L. MAY & CO.,
Nurserymen, Glosists and Seedsmen,
(This house is responsible.) St. Paul, Minn.

E. D. SCHREADER,
Veterinary Surgeon.

Horse Dentistry a Specialty.
All Calls receive Prompt Attention. Satisfaction guaranteed in all cases. Office: 319 North Main Street, in connection with Livery house.
CROOKSTON, MINN.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, COUNTY OF POLK ss. In Probate Court, Special Term Sept. 18th, 1892. In the matter of the estate of Erdras Roux, deceased: On reading and filing the petition of Onezime Noel, administrator of the estate of Esdras Roux, deceased, representing among other things, that he has fully administered said estate and praying that a time and place be fixed for examining, settling and allowing the final account of his administration, and for the assignment of the residue of said estate to the parties entitled thereto by law.

It is ordered, That said account be examined, and petition heard by this court, on Monday the 10th day of October, A. D. 1892, at 10 o'clock A. M. at the Probate office in the city of Crookston in said county.

And it is further ordered, That notice thereof be given to all persons interested, by publishing a copy of this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Polk County Journal a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston in said county.

Dated at Crookston the 18th day of September A. D. 1892.

By the Court,
C. M. BENSON, Judge of Probate

Crookston Business College
and INSTITUTE OF SHORTHAND.
DEPARTMENTS:—Commercial Shorthand, Typewriting and English.
TEACHERS:—Benj. A. Strawbridge, J. M. Latham and L. E. Gossman.
Summer Term began Monday, June 6th, 1892. Fall Term begins Monday, October 3rd, 1892. Send for new Catalogue.
CROOKSTON BUSINESS COLLEGE, Crookston, Minn.

We are Selling Now
For fall use a nice line of HARNESS, Single or Double, heavy and light, at prices which will surprise you. We are making a leader on double heavy harness, and invite you to give us a call before purchasing. We have just received another car of Rushford Wagons the lightest running and best finished wagon made. We can show you something in PLOWS that no one else can, and if you are in need of one and will call and look at our line of goods we can convince you we have something you want.
Merit Wins.
And to that reason more than anything else, do we assign our large and daily increasing trade. The Yankee and Scandia Gang Plows and Sulkies can't be beat. We have a few Buggies left that we are selling cheap to close out.
Good Goods at Reasonable Prices,
and fair treatment to all is what we aim, and our motto is MERIT WINS—every time.
Larsen, Carpenter & Co.
Opera Block, - - Crookston, Minn.

Great Reduction Sale!
Of White Goods, Embroideries, Challies,
AND
All Summer Goods!
FOR THE
NEXT TWO WEEKS.
Also bargains in Boots and Shoes and Groceries of all kinds.
If you have Wool, Shake Root, Eggs or Butter we will allow you the highest market pric in trade.
[OPERA HOUSE BLOCK, Crookston, Minn.] A. STURE.

TRY PEAKE,
THE MAIN STREET HARNESS MAKER,
FOR BARGAINS.

CHRISTIANSON BROS.,
Abstracters of Title, Loans,
Real Estate and Insurance:
N. B. FARM LOANS a specialty. Terms, three to five years. Lowest rate of interest, payable annually at our office.
☞ Choice FARM LANDS for sale cheap, on terms to suit purchasers. ☜
Office on Robert Street, - - CROOKSTON, MINN

NEW FEED MILL
CHRIS. ANDERSON, Prop.
I desire to annouce to the farmers of Polk County that I have rented the
LAURENCE BUILDING, ON MAIN STEERT,
Next to Brown's New Livery Stable, and am now prepared to grind feed of all kinds promptly. You can get your feed in two hours after you bring me your grain. Prices Reasonable
Try My New Mill!

McKINNON BROS.,
DEALERS IN
ALL OF THE LEADING
Agricultural Implements
MAIN STREET. McKINNON BLOCK.
☞ Before Purchasing, Give Us a Call. ☜

Polk County Journal.

BY COOKE & HAMMOND.

Devoted to the Welfare of Polk County.

OFFICIAL PAPER, CITY OF CROOKSTON.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Dollar and Fifty Cents if paid in advance to any address inside of Polk County. If outside of Polk County 15 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum to any address.

The date opposite your name on this paper shows the time your subscription is paid up to. The JOURNAL would like to have all those who are in arears, and can spare the money, remit as soon as possible, as the new management would like to get all the old accounts settled up.

THE REPUBLICAN TICKET.

National.

President—BENJAMIN HARRISON,
Of Indiana.

Vice-Pres.—WHITELAW REID,
Of New York.

State.

Governor—KNUTE NELSON,
Of Alexandria.

Lieut. Gov.—D. M. CLOUGH,
Of Minneapolis.

Sec. of State—F. P. BROWN,
Of Blue Earth County.

Atty-Gen.—H. W. CHILDS,
Of Otter Tail County.

Treas.—JOS. BOBLETER,
Of Brown County.

Supreme Court Judges—
C. E. VANDERBURGH,
D. A. DICKINSON,
WILLIAM MITCHELL.

Congressional.

Congressman 7th District—
HENRY FEIG,
of Kandiyohi County.

County.

Auditor.—W. A. LANCTOT,
Of Crookston.

Treasurer.—LEWIS LOHN,
Of Fosston.

Register of Deeds.—NIC NELSON,
Of Norden Township.

Attorney.—IRA C. RICHARDSON,
Of Thief River Falls.

Sheriff.—JAS. M. BAIN,
Of Fisher.

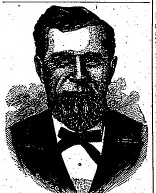
Judge of Probate.—
R. J. MONTAGUE,
Of Crookston.

Supt. of schools.—V. D. CARRUTH,
Of Crookston.

Surveyor.—GEORGE RALPH,
Of Crookston.

Coroner.—GEORGE HOLT,
Of Crookston.

Court Commissioner,
G. H. PALMER,
Crookston.



KNUTE NELSON,
Republican Candidate for Governor.

GRAND MASTER WORKMAN POWDERLY, aroused by the statement that the democratic national committee was distributing as a campaign document part of his article on "Labor and Protection" in the North American Review, has come out with a letter in which he emphatically denies any championship of the democratic party, which he denounces as the foe of labor, and incidentally pays his respects to Chairman Harrity and Gov. Pattison.

Mr. Powderly denounces Harrity as defeating the will of the people of Pennsylvania by opposing the constitutional convention. "It was Mr. Harrity," he says, "who framed that part of the democratic platform of 1891 which sidetracked a constitutional convention for everything except a change in the ballot numbering clause."

Mr. Powderly continues:

"Had this constitutional convention been held the people of this state would have been in a position to dethrone the imperial Reading combine, which dictates against organizations of workmen and organizes an insurance scheme for the purpose of robbing its employes. It deprives them of their rights as American citizens. It is an enemy to American labor, and on top of all of them it is supported and upheld by the chairman of the democratic national committee, who now attempts to make use of my words to help the cause that he is interested in and which he would have people believe to be friendly to American labor. In my North American Review articles I have not discussed the merits of protection; one phase of it alone is referred to, and in saying that it does not adequately protect the American workingman I state a state a truth which can in no way aid a party which dare not avow itself in favor of free trade—the opposite of protection."

LEGISLATIVE NOMINEES.

Last week the JOURNAL gave a short sketch of one of the legislative nominees on the republican ticket, Hon. Halvor Steenerson, showing him to be one of the leading lawyers of the Northwest. His running mates, Peter Ramstad and L. E. Nordby, of Norman county, though not lawyers, are equally good men. Mr. Ramstad was born in Norway in 1851 and came to America in 1865. In May, 1880, he came to Norman county where he has since resided. He is a farmer, owning and cultivating one of the best farms in the county, and he is thoroughly acquainted with all of the questions that affect the interests of the farmers. While he is not in any sense one of those political farmers who farm with their mouth for self aggrandizment only, he is a man of good sound practical common sense backed by a liberal education that would enable him, should he be elected, to work for the best interests of his constituents one and all. The writer has known Mr. Ramstad for twelve years and has always found him perfectly square and reliable in every particular.

L. E. Nordby was born in Norway and came to America in his youth. He has been identified with this country since its settlement, a part of which time he lived at Lake Park, in Becker county, and a part of the time in Norman county. He was for a time a wheat buyer and knows all about the true-inwardness of that business, and later on he was a postal clerk on the railroad. As a business man he is bright and capable, and should he be elected his voice and vote would always be found on the side of the people. He is a perfectly safe man to tie to.

Thus the republican ticket will be seen to be made up right—composed of a lawyer, a farmer and a business man, and all thorough-going business men, competent, upright, and alive to the requirements of the hour—men who, if elected, will be a credit to their constituents and to themselves.

W. W. ERWIN, according to the Duluth News, predicts the election of Knute Nelson by a majority of 30,000. The News says: "Mr Erwin was called upon by a News representative, who began his interview with the common everyday remark, "How's politics?" The great lawyer looked at the reporter a few seconds without saying anything, just to get a "good ready," and then began to express himself in slow, measured tones so natural to him. As he warmed up to his subject, his flow of language became more rapid and eloquent. He went back into ancient history to gather instances to prove his statement that the people's party has broken away from the principles that made the Alliance party what it was, the party of individual liberty. Plato and Zenophon had peculiar ideas as to the ideal state. Their government was upon an island. They advocated the exposure of infants and the killing of the old and weak. They utilized the strong for the sole purpose of building up a great state, to which everything, even the individuality of man was subordinated. That is just what the Populists are doing today. They would have the state monopolize everything. Not until the coming of Christ, who was the great advocate of personal liberty, was the human race put upon the right track, and now the Populists would turn their faces towards Macedon and their backs towards the hills of Judea. Mr. Erwin thinks the members of the old alliance party, which has temporarily disbanded, will support Knute Nelson for governor, and he places his plurality over Lawler at 30,000. "They will vote with the party whose traditions have been on the side of liberty, and while they are in favor of reform, prefer to vote for a man whom the republicans were constrained to nominate because of his bold stand against excessive protection, rather than to cast their lot with a party that is all at sea on the tariff question.

GEN. FIELD, the people's party candidate for vice-president, after traveling through the southern states, has come to the conclusion that there is no hope for his party down there unless they can have federal supervision of the polls—just exactly what the republicans have advocated in the passage of the so-called "force" bill. He is convinced that the democrats will always control the south unless a measure is passed which will allow a free ballot and a fair count. Read what he says on this subject:

"I am decidedly in favor of the appointment of federal supervisors at each polling place and the placing there, if necessary, of United States marshals. We are in this fight to get a full and fair count, and it is evidently not the intention to give us a fair showing. For this reason we have decided to appeal to the national government to protect our rights as voters through the medium of federal supervisors and marshals. In Arkansas, for instance, we were refused judges at the elections and the same policy is likely to prevail in other southern states. It is for this reason that we invoke the power of the federal government. Our boasted liberties will soon be valueless unless we can guarantee protection to the humblest voter in the fact that his vote will be properly received and properly counted.

ON another page will be found a sample of one of the ballots which will be used at the coming election. There will be two ballots used this fall—one will be printed on white paper and contain the names of the candidates for national and state offices. The other—which is the one we give—shall be printed on blue paper and contains the names of the candidates for congressional, legislative, judicial and county offices.

When a voter goes into a polling place he will be handed these two ballots—one white and one blue—and he will then go into one of the booths or compartments and proceed to mark his ballots by putting an x after the name of each candidate he wishes to vote for, in the little square space shown on the right hand side of the ballot.

He will have a choice of candidates representing three parties, the republican, democratic and people's party, and should he not be suited with any of these he will find a blank line opposite the name of each office to be filled, and he can there write the name of any person he pleases. In the case of an office to be filled by one person, should the voter place a mark opposite the names of two candidates for the same office, it will invalidate his vote for that office only. As there are three representatives to be elected to the legislature, and there are nine candidates, the voter must be careful and place an x opposite only three candidates for the legislature. After the voter has properly marked his ballots he will fold them up, give them to the judge of election and leave the polling place.

Voters should study these ballots, so that he may become familiar with them and know just what to do when he is handed his ballots to mark on election.

The candidates for county commissioners in the districts have all been put on the ballot shown in the JOURNAL, but the regular ballots to be voted will have only the candidates to be voted for in each district.

The sample ballot shown in the JOURNAL is the regulation size and form prescribed by law.

TERENCE V. POWDERLY, the master workman of the labor organization of the country, has always affiliated with the democrats, and his position this year has been problematical. He states that he is not in sympathy with the democratic party, as it is now on record, in this campaign as the foe of labor.

Thirteen Towns: The nomination of our esteemed and popular townsman, Lewis Lohn for the office of county treasurer by the Republican county convention, is received with universal favor by the people of this city. While Mr. Lohn was no active aspirant for the nomination, but was picked up for his well known worth and ability, he is nevertheless well equipped for the requirements of the office, and would make a conscientious and model official, all of which is equally true of our respected citizen Ed. Barness, who received the nomination for county commissioner at the hands of the same convention. In both instances the office purely sought the man, and both will undoubtedly receive the almost unanimous vote of this section of the county.

A Well-Fed People.

Americans—United States Americans at least—are the best-fed people on earth. Some nations cook well, but get little to cook. Others have a rude profusion of food, but spoil it in the cooking. The United States is the one country producing in its own borders about everything edible, and at the same time having millions of excellent cooks. The Thanksgiving dinner of the New Englander, the Christmas dinner of the Southerner, the every day profusion of the Westerner, are equalled in no other country of the world. The United States is the country of people who live well at home—and they want to live just the same when abroad. So our hotels are the wonder of all foreigners for their cuisine, and so the Burlington Route, traversing ten states which are the supply house of the nation, spreads before its patrons, in its peerless dining cars, meals embracing every known substantial and delicacy, served in the highest style of culinary art. If you wish to be well fed while traveling, of course you insist on your home agent giving you tickets via the Burlington route, or write to W. J. C. Kenyon, General Passenger Agent, St. Paul, Minn.

THE GRAND ENCAMPMENT.

Over 85,000 Old Vets in Line.

The 26th Annual National Encampment, which convened in Washington on Monday, Sept. 19th, will pass into history as the biggest event of the kind ever beheld. Of course it is impossible to say just how many men took part in the great parade on Tuesday, the 20th ult., but the best judgment of those who are used to computing such things, agree that there were 85,000 in the parade. Several attempts were made to count and in this way over 85,000 was the result. The parade commenced at 9 o'clock a. m., marching in company front, two columns wide from the capitol up Pennsylvania avenue as far as Washington circle, a distance of twenty-two blocks, and the last company passed the reviewing stand at 6:30 p. m. Up until Wednesday morning pleasant weather was the rule, but on Wednesday morning it set in to rain and continued rainy for the balance of the week to the great discomfiture of the thousands who were in attendance, which caused hundreds to return to their homes who had intended to make a week of it. The citizens of Washington evidently laid themselves out to provide entertainment for the old boys in blue, and right well did they discharge their duties, as the boys seemed to enjoy themselves to the fullest. Every state in the Union was well represented, though, of course, those most remote not so well as those adjacent. It is said that Washington never saw so big a crowd before, not even on inauguration days, but she handled the crowd well and used them very hospitably, and the boys voted it the best time they ever saw. Among other places of interest it was our privilege to visit the soldiers' home, which is an elegant institution and shows that a generous government intends to do justice by the survivors of the noble army that stood like a bulwark about the nation during the storm of war against which the hosts of treason beat in vain. The next meeting of the National Encampment is to be at Indianapolis, but it is hardly probable that so many will be present as upon this occasion as a peculiar interest seems to hang about the capital of the Nation, peculiarly attractive to the old vets.

THE COUNTY JAIL.

Is Now An Assured Fact As The Contract Has Been Let.

At their meeting this week the board of county commissioners opened the bids for the new jail and awarded the contract for the brickwork to Wm. Erdmann for $13,975. The work of excavation for the cellar was commended this morning and Mr. Erdmann says he will have his part of the work done before extreme cold weather sets in. The Diebold Safe and Lock Company are to put in the cells and such work for the sum of $4,790, and W. F. Porter & Co. will put in the steam heating apparatus for the sum of $2,090. When completed Polk County will have as complete a jail structure as can be found in the state.

PROPOSED CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS,

To be voted upon at the next General Election. Published in persuance of Chapter 157, General Laws of 1887

WHEREAS, it is made the duty by law of the Attorney General to prepare a synopsis of all amendments proposed to the constitution, notice is hereby given that the following amendments are submitted to the voters of the state of Minnesota, to be voted upon at the general election to be held in the year 1892:

FIRST—An act proposing to amend Section 33 of Article four, (4) to the Constitution of the State of Minnesota, prohibiting special legislation.

The following amendment to Section 33 of Article 4 of the Constitution of the State of Minnesota is hereby proposed, which section when so amended shall read as follows:

SEC. 33. In all cases when a general law can be made applicable no special law shall be enacted; and whether a general law could have been made applicable in any case is hereby declared a judicial question, and as such shall be judicially determined without regard to any legislative assertion on that subject. The legislature shall pass no local or special law regulating the affairs of, or incorporating, erecting or changing the lines of any county, city, village, township, ward or school district, or creating the offices or prescribing the powers and duties of the officers of, or fixing or relating to the compensation, salary or fees of the same, or the mode of election or appointment thereto; authorizing the laying out, opening, altering, vacating or maintaining roads, highways, streets or alleys, remitting fines, penalties or forfeitures; regulating the powers, duties and practice of justices of the peace, magistrates and constables; changing the names of persons, places, lakes or rivers; for opening and conducting of elections or fixing or changing the places of voting; authorizing the adoption or legitimation of children; changing the law of descent or succession; conferring rights upon minors, declaring any named person of age, giving effect to informal or invalid wills or deeds, or affecting the estates of minors or persons under disability; locating or changing county seats; regulating the management of public schools, the building or repairing of school houses, and the raising of money for such purposes; exempting property from taxation, or regulating the rate of interest on money; creating corporations, or amending, renewing, extending or explaining the charters thereof; granting to any corporation, association or individual any special or exclusive privilege, immunity or franchise whatever, or authorizing public taxation for a private purpose. Provided, however, That the inhibitions of local or special laws in this section shall not be construed to prevent the passage of general laws on any of the subjects enumerated.

The legislature may repeal any existing special or local law, but shall not amend, extend or modify any of the same.

The ballots to be used in voting upon said amendment shall have printed thereon:

"Amendment to Article Four (4) of the Constitution to prohibit special legislation."	YES
	NO

And each voter shall vote upon by placing a cross (X) opposite "yes," if he desires to vote in the affirmative, and opposite the word "no," if he desires to vote in the negative.

SECOND—The following amendment to Section three (3) of Article nine (9) of the Constitution of the State of Minnesota is hereby proposed to the people of said State for their approval or rejection, that is to say, to add at the end of said section the following words:

"And their may be levied and collected annually a tax upon the gross earnings in this State of all railroads, sleeping, parlor and drawing room car companies, or owners whose cars run in or into this State; on all telegraph and telephone campanies, or owners, whose lines are in or extend into this State; on all express companies, or owners, doing business in this State; on all foreign insurance companies doing business in this State; on all domestic insurance companies of this State, or on either or any of such companies. Or in lieu of such tax on the gross earnings of such companies, or either or any of them, an annual license fee or tax imposed on them, or either or any of them, but no tax upon the gross earnings of any carporation shall be construed to prevent the taxation by law of any real estate owned by said corporation not used in the business of the same. And there may be levied and collected in lieu of other taxation on mining properry, a specific tax upon the product of all mines in this State, and no such tax shall be construed to prevent the taxation by law of any real estate belonging to the owners of such mine not used in the business of mining or in connection therewith."

Section three (3) of Article nine (9) of the State Constitution which it is proposed to amend as above, now reads as follows:

SEC. 3. Laws shall be passed taxing all moneys, credits, investments in bonds, stocks, joint stock companies or otherwise, and also all real and personal property, according to its true value in money; but public burying grounds, public school houses, public hospitals academies, colleges, universities, and all seminaries of learning, all churches, church property used for religious purposes, and houses of worship, institutions of purely public charity, public property used exclusively for any public purpose, and personal property to an amount not exceeding in value two hundred dollars for each individual, shall, by general laws be exempt from taxation.

Ballots used in voting upon said section shall have printed thereon "Amendment to Section three (3) of Article nine (9) of the constitution providing for the taxation of sleeping car companies and other companies: YES—NO," and the voters in voting upon such amendment shall erase, mark across or scratch out one (1) of said words "yes" or "no." If he desires to vote in the affirmative he shall scratch out the word "no." If he desires to vote in the negative, he shall scratch out the word "yes,"

EXPLANATION

It will be seen that the matter of voting upon these two proposed amendments is entirely different. The reason for this is that the first amendment was proposed under an act of the legislature passed prior to the general election law of 1891, and is to be voted upon subject to the provisions of said general election law. But the second proposed amendment is submitted under an act of the legislature passed after the general election law of 1891, and in terms provides how it shall be voted upon, and as above indicated.

The object of the first proposed amendment is to restrict special legislation.

The object of the second proposed amendment is to regulate the taxation of railroads, sleeping, drawing room and parlor car companies, telegraph and telephone companies, express and insurance companies, by taxing the gross earnings or by a licensed fee; and authorizing a specific tax on mining property,

MOSES E CLAPP.
July 7 1892 Attorney General.
[25-27]

Fall Plowing.

Whether soil intended for spring crops will be sufficiently benefited by fall plowing to pay for so doing will depend entirely on the character of the soil. No rule can be laid down that will apply in all cases, nor as to whether deep or shallow plowing will be best adapted to the soil of different fields. In these particulars each farmer must determine for himself, and from his observation on the effect of deep or shallow plowing on soils similar to his own. Stiff clay soils will be benefited by late fall plowing from the freezing and thawing of the exposed rough surfaces, which will put them into a better condition to be well pulverized by the spring cultivation. A sandy soil is not likely to be benefited by much plowing or by deep cultivation, and no soil of any description should be plowed deeply, either in the fall or spring, if the result is the turning up to the surface of portions of a poor subsoil to be cultivated. Level lands will generally be benefited by fall plowing as an aid in changing the inert plant food they may contain into soluble forms, and by covering up and incorporating stubble and vegetable refuse in the soil.

The Angora Goat Industry.

The late Colonel Richard Peters, of Atlanta, was one of the original and most zealous breeders of Angora goats from valuable imported stock. It seems that there is need of new importations to improve the present breeds, and the government is now working up some kind of a plan to secure fresh importations from Turkey. The Pacific coast and Texas have the largest flocks, that of Farmer Bailey, of San José, Cal., comprising 9,000 common and 1,000 full blooded animals. Thirty states and all the territories have an interest in the Angora goat industry, and 600,000 pounds of hair a year are said to be clipped and sold to the Pullman Car company for making plush covers to their seats.—Southern Cultivator.

Read—and Then Vote.

The policy of reciprocity is an excellent illustration of Republican free trade, it being really the conditional free listing of articles in which, according to protection principles, there should be free trade. When you want genuine, profitable, American free trade you have to come to the Republican party to get it. If you want to aggrandize the British empire at the expense of the United States, vote the Democratic ticket.—Sioux City (Ia.) Journal.

CLEVELAND'S ACCEPTANCE.

A Coming Address to His Fellow Democrats on the Issues of the Day.

A correspondent sends the following as an advance copy of Mr. Cleveland's letter of acceptance:

FELLOW DEMOCRATS—
As your presidential candidate for eighteen ninety-two,
To the Democratic platform my allegiance I renew,
And congratulate the party on the declaration made
In favor of my theory of absolute free trade.
To protect a growing industry I see with great delight
We have in this free country no constitutional right.
And when I am elected, of which there is no doubt,
This tariff for protection will be knocked completely out.
Then wool and all its products from tariff taxes free,
We will raise our revenue from coffee and from tea.
As Democrats we mourn that great McKinley sin,
Of trying to keep out the plates of English tin;
And we will take the duty from all the iron ore,
And welcome every product that comes from foreign shore.
Our workingmen may growl. I think I hear you say,
For fear our glorious plan will soon reduce their pay;
But we must urge our organs to raise the hue and cry,
Of how very cheap our workingmen will buy.
As for reciprocity, inspired by Mr. Blaine,
Under such a banner no Democrat can train.
Our organs will denounce it as a humbug and a fraud,
A law that will repeal it all Democrats may laud.
The clause about the currency I heartily approve,
Let us once get back in the good old fashioned groove
Of which our party fathers so fondly still relate
When all the banks of issue were chartered by the state,
And money was as plenty as the sands upon the shore
And a counterfeit detector was kept in every store.
To regulate election by law we must oppose
As long as such a law will tread upon the toes
Of our Democratic friends, who majorities denote
If they can only count and calculate the vote,
For the tail end of the ticket all Democrats may shout,
If victory crowns our canvass, we'll turn the rascals out.
For Stevenson made a record that he never cared a straw
For any such a humbug as a civil service law.
Our party once in power, the record we will fill
With economic vetoes of every pension bill.
And if a great deficiency we're called upon to face
A tax on private incomes the Democrats will place,
And abolish every measure which to our mind appears
To have ruined this great land for more than thirty years.
Then rally round the flag for Cleveland and reform,
And when we hear the news on the bright November morn
May it bring us victory in answer to our prayer,
And Cleveland be restored to the presidential chair.

—Philadelphia Press.

HE IS NOT A DEMOCRAT.

Mr. D'Auby Tells Why in Twelve Good Reasons.

Here are a dozen reasons why I am not a Democrat:

First—Because the man that shot Lincoln was a Democrat.

Second—Because the Confederate constitution was written by Democrats.

Third—Because all free traders are Democrats.

Fourth—Because federal elections must be subject to federal laws.

Fifth—Because a strong central government is essential to a more perfect union.

Sixth—Because Democracy always fears the result of honest elections.

Seventh—Because with Democracy the constitution of the state is first and the constitution of the Union last.

Eighth—Because Democracy is divided as to its own cardinal principles.

Ninth—Because Democracy shows its own incompetency to govern in states where it has full control.

Tenth—Because Democracy kept in slavery 3,000,000 workingmen and today poses as their friend.

Eleventh—Because Democracy shows such a disregard for the rights of the people after election and manifests such deep concern in their welfare before it.

Twelfth—Because Democracy rejoices over bad crops, strikes, reductions of wages, failures of banks and individuals, and deplores and grieves over Commissioner Peck's report showing an increase in wages. L. J. D'AUBY.
—Exchange.

What Free Trade Would Do.

Free trade would encourage the foreign shop and discourage the American shop; it would increase the demand for workingmen abroad and diminish the demand for workingmen at home; it would give employment to those on the other side of the Atlantic and take employment away from those on this side; it would increase the spindles in foreign factories and diminish them in our own; it would build fires in their furnaces and extinguish them in ours.—Governor McKinley at Buffalo.

A SPECIAL SALE OF

Cloaks and Jackets

—FOR THE—

NEXT TWO WEEKS.

Ladies', Misses and children's } CLOAKS AND JACKETS.

Below Regular Prices.

Ladies' fur trimmed Jackets	from $5.75 up
Misses fur trimmed Jackets	from 5.50 up
children's cloaks	from 2.00 up

LOCKEN & HOLMBOE,

Opera House Department Store.

CITY COUNCIL.

Official Proceedings of a Regular Meeting and an Adjourned Meeting.

An Ordinance Passed Relating to the Crookston Gas Light and Heating Company.

John Wilcox Awarded the Contract for Grading Second Street.

Proceedings of an adjourned meeting of the city council of the City of Crookston held in the city hall Tuesday evening September 27th 1892.

Meeting called to order by President Cromb.

Roll call.

Aldermen present—Anderson, Childs, Jennings, Jerome, Morrisey, Marlette, Walker, Watts and Cromb.

Aldermen absent—Austin, McGlogan.

The finance committee reported favorably upon the assessment roll for the grading of Second street.

Alderman Childs offered the following ordinance which was seconded by Alderman Anderson.

An ordinance regulating the location and management of slaughter houses within the limits of the City of Crookston:

The city council of the City of Crookston do ordain:

Sec. I. That it shall be unlawful for any person or persons, firm or corporation to maintain, use or operate within one half mile from any dwelling house or place of business in the 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 4th and within the platted portion of the 5th ward of the City of Crookston, any slaughter house or building used for the purpose of killing or dressing any cattle, sheep, swine or other animal or animals.

Sec. II. It shall be the duty of all persons, firms or corporations, maintaining, using or operating any building within the corporate limits of the City of Crookston as a slaughter house or place in which to kill or dress any cattle, sheep, swine or other animal or animals, to keep said building and the premises surrounding the same free from offal, filth or nauseous substance, or any substance likely to be dangerous to the public health or comfort.

Sec. III. Any person violating any of the provisions of this ordinance shall, on conviction thereof be punished by a fine of not less than one or more than one hundred dollars, and costs of prosecution and in default in the payment of such fine may be imprisoned for a period not exceeding three months.

Sec. IV. All ordinances and parts of ordinances in so much and to such extent as they may conflict or be inconsistent with the provisions of this ordinance are hereby repealed.

Sec. V. This ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage, approval, publication and recording.

Aldermen voting in affirmative, Anderson, Childs, Jennings, Jerome, Morrisey, Walker, Watts, Cromb. Passed this 27th day of Sept. 1892.

Negatives. None.

Passed this 27th day of September, 1892.

JOHN CROMB.
President of Council,

Approved the 27th day of Sept. 1892.

WM. ANGLIM,
Mayor.
Attest E. C. CARRUTH,
Clerk.

The City Attorney reported on the matter of the ward funds at the court house and stated that the engineer was at work upon a complete map of the city and then the matter could be remedied.

Report of the committee upon the N. P. Ry. crossings read.

On motion the president appointed a committee consisting of Aldermen Anderson and Morrissey to work in connection with the other members of the committee and meet the officials of the N. P. Ry. and have the matter before the council at the meeting tomorrow night.

Moved by Alderman Morrissey seconded by Alderman Jennings that when we adjourn it be to meet tomorrow evening Sept. 28th. Carried.

On motion the papers relating to the matter were referred to the committee with instructions to report on the 28th.

Alderman Watts offered the following ordinance which was seconded by Alderman Anderson:—

The City Council of the City of Crookston do ordain as follows:

Sec. I. That the Crookston Gas Light and Heating Company, a corporation organized and doing business in Crookston Minnesota is hereby granted permission and authority, so far as the city council have a right to give the same, to maintain gas works and manufacture gas within said city, and lay gas mains and pipes and erect necessary posts and fixtures, under and above the surface of the streets and alleys within the limits of the said City of Crookston and to make all necessary excavations for the same and for the repair thereof, provided: that the same is commenced before July 1st, A. D. 1893 and is done so as to interfere as little as practicable with the use of streets and alleys and all excavations so protected as to prevent accidents and kept open no longer than necessary, and when completed that streets and alleys shall be put by said company in as good condition as they were in before ground was broken.

Sec. II. In case any person shall recover any sum against the City of Crookston for damages occasioned by the negligence of said company or their agents or assigns in any of the matters it is authorized to do by this ordinance and defense shall have been duly tendered by said city and said company allowed to defend the action in which such damages are obtained then said company or its assigns shall pay such judgment and hold the City of Crookston harmless from the same.

Seb. III. The said, the Crookston Gas Light and Heating Company or their assigns shall not charge more than the sum of two dollars ($2.00) per thousand feet of gas funished to private persons in the City of Crookston nor more than one dollar and seventy-five cents ($1.75) per thousand feet of gas furnished to the City of Crookston for such amount of gas, if any, it may contract to take from said company.

Sec. IV. Within thirty days after the passage of this ordinance the said, the Crookston Gas Light and Heating Company may file with the city clerk of the City of Crookston their acceptance hereof duly acknowledge and after the filing of such acceptance this ordinance shall have the effect of a contract between the Crookston Gas Light and Heating Company and the City of Crookston as to the matters stated in this ordinance. Provided that the Crookston Gas Light and Heating Company shall not acquire any right or permission or privilege until it has filed acceptance as aforesaid with the city clerk of said City and also filed with him a bond approved by the city council of said City of Crookston in the sum of five thousand (5000.00) dollars conditioned for the faithful performance of the provisions of the foregoing ordinance to be by it performed.

This ordinance shall take effect from and after its passage and publication and acceptance.

Aldermen voting in affirmative, Anderson, Jennings, Jerome, Watts, Walker, Cromb.

Negative, none.

Aldermen not voting, Childs, Morrissey, Marlette.

Approved Sept. 27th, 1892.

WM. ANGLIM,
Mayor.

Passed Sept. 27th, 1892.

JOHN CROMB,
President of Council.

Bids for grading Second street were opened.

Bids received from John R. McKinnon and John Wilcox.

On motion the bids were referred to a committee consisting of Aldermen Jennings, Jerome, Watts.

At an adjourned meeting of the city council of the city of Crookston, held the 27th day of September, 1892, Alderman Morrissey offered the following resolution, which was seconded by Alderman Watts:

The city council of the city of Crookston do hereby resolve: That the Crookston Waterworks, Power and Light Company be and hereby is directed, authorized and ordered to construct and lay a line of water main, suitable for fire and domestic purposes, at the proper depth below the surface of the earth to insure against frost, in and along Fifth street in said city from the westerly terminus of the water main at present therein; thence westerly along said Fifth street to Pine street in said city, and the said company is further directed to place one hydrant at the corner of said Fifth and Pine streets.

And be it further resolved that from the time of laying said water main and the location of said hydrant ready for use, the city of Crookston will pay to said company, its successors or assigns the sum of $80 per year as rental for said hydrant, in the same manner and for the same period of time as controls in the case of other hydrants now in use in the city of Crookston, and said hydrant is to be used for the same purpose and in the same manner as are said other hydrants.

Provided nothing herein contained shall be held to in any manner affect the respective rights of the parties hereto under any contract or purported contract heretofore entered into with regard to water and light to be furnished the city of Crookston, nor shall the contents of this resolution be held to annul, revise, legalize or invalidate any such contract or purported contract.

Upon the call of ayes and nays the vote stood as follows:

Aldermen voting in the affirmative: Anderson, Childs, Jennings, Jerome, Morrissey, Marlette, Walker, Watts, Cromb.

Aldermen voting in the negative: none.

Upon this vote the resolution was declared carried by the president of the council.

Passed this 27th day of September, 1892.

JOHN CROMB,
President of the Council.

Approved this 27th day of September, 1892.

WM. ANGLIM, Mayor.
Attest: E. C. CARRUTH, Clerk.

Complaint was made concerning the blocking of woodland Ave. in Sampson's addition.

Moved by Alderman Morrisey seconded by Alderman Jennings that the chief of police be instructed to notify parties who are obstructing Woodland Ave. in Sampson's addition to remove them from the streets of the city.

Aldermen voting in affirmative:—Jennings, Jerome, Morrissey, Marlette, Walker.

Aldermen voting in the negative: Cromb

Aldermen Aderson, Childs, Watts not voting.

Declared carried.

The city engineer recommended that Marcus Stoner be appointed as assist. city engineer. On motion same was granted.

Comptroller Walsh presented his estimate for the expenses for the coming year. On motion the report was referred back to the comptroller for further estimates.

Moved by Alderman Morrissey seconded by Alderman Watts that the amount of money now in the sewer fund be transferred to the credit of the per improvement fund. Carried.

On motion council adjourned.

E. C. CARRUTH,
Clerk.

Proceedings of an adjourned meeting of the city council of the City of Crookston held in the city hall on Wednesday evening Sept. 28th, 1892.

Meeting called to order by president Cromb.

Roll called.

Aldermen present:—Anderson, Austin, Jennings, Jerome, Morrisey, Marlette, Watts and Cromb.

Aldermen absent:—Childs, McGlogan and Walker.

The committee to whom was referred the bids of grading Second street reported in favor of letting it to John Wilcox. On motion the report was accepted and adopted.

Alderman Cromb offered the following resolution which was seconded by Alderman Morrisey. Resolved:—That the grading of second street be awarded to John Wilcox in accordance with bid, upon filing with the city attorney a sufficient bond in the sum of $150.00 for the faithful performance of the work and his signing the necessary contract in accordance with plans and specification on file in the engineer's office. Aldermen voting in the affirmative: Anderson, Austin, Jennings, Morrisey, Marlette, Cromb and Watts.

Negative—None.

Motion declared carried.

Moved by Alderman Watts seconded by Alderman Morrisey that when we adjourn it be to meet on Friday evening Oct. 7th, 1892. Carried.

At an adjourned meeting of the city council of the city of Crookston held on the 28th day of September, A. D. 1892, it is moved by Alderman Watts and seconded by Alderman Morrisey.

Resolved: That the City of Crookston by its proper officers enter into a contract with the Duluth, Crookston and Northern railroad company, as follows: That the said railroad company in consideration of the agreements of said city, hereinafter mentioned, will, whenever required by the city council, construct crossings over its right of way in said city, and construct and maintain all sidewalks required by said city council, on and over its right of way therein. And construct and maintain at the proper level all culverts required to carry water under its grade and tracks, and forever maintain and keep a passage way fourteen feet wide under its track on the north side of the Red Lake river, upon what is known as Dobson land, and forever maintain and keep in good repair the approaches and the bridge on Central Avenue in said city over the railroad track of said railroad company as it is now constructed, and make crossing on Washington Avenue not less than forty feet wide and grade the approaches to said crossing so that the same shall not be greater grade than three and one half feet per hundred feet, and convey on demand to said city that portion of certain lots in Jerome's addition to Crookston that lie west of railroad crossing over Robert street as may be found necessary to widen the same. Said company shall also remove earth embankments now located on each side of its right of way where its track crosses town line road between 4th and 5th wards for a distance of 200 yards on each side of said crossing in such manner as to give an unobstructed view of trains passing along said portion of track.

And, in consideration of the foregoing, the said city grants and gives to the railroad company in perpetuity the right to cross all streets and alleys of said city on its line of railroad as the same is now constructed in and through said city, and use all such crossings to the extent that may be required for railroad purposes. And, that the city council of said city will vacate streets wholly used by said railroad company hereinafter described, to-wit. All of Maple street as the same is laid out and designated in the recorded plat of the townsite of Crookston on file in the office of the register of deeds of Polk county Minnesota. And Fourth street from the centre line of block number 31 in the townsite of Crookston to the center line running north and south of section 30 in township 150 range 46. And that part of Albert street in McDonald's addition to Crookston that is between McDonald's Avenue and Central Avenue in said McDonald's addition to Crookston, and allow said railroad company to use said streets and parts of streets so vacated for railroad purposes.

Dated September 29th, 1892.

Aldermen voting in the affirmative; Austin, Jennings, Morrisey, Marlette, Watts and Cromb.

Aldermen voting in the negative; Jerome.

Alderman Anderson not voting.

Upon this vote the resolution was declared carried by the president of council. Passed the 28th day of September 1892.

JOHN CROMB,
President of Council.

Approvedthis 28th day of September, 1892.

WM. ANGLIM,
Mayor.
Attest E. C. CARRUTH,
City Clerk.

At an adjourned meeting of the city council of the city of Crookston, held the 28th day of September 1892, Alderman Morrisey offered the following resolution, which was seconded by Alderman F. Anderson:

The city council of the city of Crookston does hereby resolve: That the proportionate amount of cost of constructing sewer heretofore ordered constructed along centre of Front street from a point where the same is intersected by Sixth street to Red Lake river where the same intersects said Front street to be paid by special assessment, that is, the cost of a two foot sewer over said territory is three hundred and fifty (350) dollars per linear foot, and be it resolved that aforesaid sum be the measure of said special assessment.

Upon the call of ays and nays, the vote stood as follows:

Aldermen voting in the affirmative; Austin, Anderson, Jennings, Jerome, Morrisey, Marlette, Watts and Cromb.

Aldermen voting in the negative: None.

Upon this vote the resolution was declared carried by the president of the council.

Passed this 28th day of Sept. 1892.

JOHN CROMB,
President of the council.

Approved this 28th day of September, 1892.

WM. ANGLIM,
Mayor.
Attest: E. C. CARRUTH,
Clerk.

Moved by Aderman Watts seconded by Alderman Marlette that the president appoint a committee of three to look over the assessment lists for the ensuing year and report at the next meeting. Carried. President appointed as the committee Aldermen Watts, Morrisey and Austin.

On motion the president appointed Aldermen Jerome, Anderson, Morrisey as a committee of three to meet the supervisors of the town of Crookston and see if a new wagon road cannot be laid out to run into the city in Jerome's addition.

On motion the street commissioner was instructed to repair the sidewalk on Polk street at once.

On motion council adjourned.

E. C. CARRUTH,
Clerk.

The Westover—Martin Case.

Judge Christianson's court was occupied for a goodly share of the time last week in settling with one of Jim Westover's hired men. It was a sort of a double-header—in which Westover had brought action against one Joseph Martin, alleging assault with intent to do great bodily injury to the aforesaid Jeems, and the man had trumped the trick with a similar action backed up by a bullet through his hat. It transpired that the said Martin, some four weeks since, engaged to work for Westover for six weeks for $45; worked four weeks and wanted to quit, but Jeems wouldn't have it so—refused to pay him a cent unless he worked out his time. During the discussion Westover showed a gun, whereupon Martin left the place, came up town and procuring an old rusty revolver, went back, found James at work in the hayfield and secured $2 and a promise of the balance soon. Mr. Westover, after Martin left, went to town and secured a warrant for Martin, and when he had reached a point north of Collins' stable on his homeward journey he was suddenly accosted by Martin with a request for his pay. In the controversy that followed, the revolver that Westover carried in some way exploded sending a ball through Martin's hat in close proximity to his skull, and Martin downed Mr. W. and held him there until they were separated, when Martin went for a warrant for James, and both were raked in and cared for. Martin's trial resulted in his discharge, the evidence failing to substantiate the charge that he had assaulted Westover with a loaded revolver, and in Westover's case the evidence went to show that he had acted in self-defense, so he was allowed to go free, and after paying the wages the man claimed to be due he departed for his farm and Martin left for Dakota.

August Gustafson, a young man about 25 years of age, who had been employed as a section hand on the Great Northern at Euclid, in attempting to board the train on Tuesday evening, fell and sustained severe injuries. He was picked up and brought to Crookston for surgical attention. Dr. Denniston, assisted by Dr. M. Watts amputated several smashed toes and found one leg badly fractured but have hopes of saving that. The young man's parents live in Kittson county and he had only the day before left the employ of the railroad company. The doctors are of the opinion that he will get along all right.

For a disordered liver try Beecham's pills.

If you want a good pair of shoes, call at A. Sture's.

Thomas Nesbit, of Mallory, has returned home after an absence of about four weeks. He was in Dakota to care for a sick nephew until the death of the young man and then went with the body to the old home in southern Minnesota.

The song service at the Congregational church last Sunday evening was a very enjoyable meeting. The solos by Miss Laner were particularly pleasing. She has a very sweet voice with a good deal of range to it and she sings clear and distinct.

Before and After.

When it is remembered that before the McKinley bill was enacted every ounce of this tin was made by the Tin trust in Wales at their own prices, the Democrat who will not admit that a manufacture of 8,000,000 pounds a quarter in this country, and its sale at the same price or less than the Welsh asked, is a vast economy as well as a stimulus to industry, must be deaf, dumb and blind to truth.—Seattle (Wash.) Press-Times.

How About the First Visitation?

It may be remarked, now that the approach of the cholera is charged to the McKinley law, that when the cholera came to the United States and swept the country the Walker revenue tariff was in force. Instead of a quarantine to keep the disease out of the country the president announced a day of fasting and prayer that the pestilence might cease, and it did—when cold weather came.—Indianapolis Journal.

The Fruits of Democratic Rule.

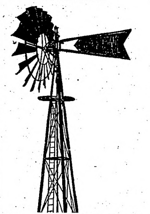
Gaze on the state of Tennessee, all who would observe the outcome of untrammelled Democratic rule. There is not enough room in the prisons for the convicts; they cannot be left to roam about and they cannot be protected at work except by a large and expensive body of soldiery. Could "negro domination" plunge Tennessee into worse depths of trouble?—Kingston (N. Y.) Freeman.

NEW CIGAR STORE
SIGN OF THE BIG INDIAN.
H. F. BROWN, Proprietor.
Second Street,
CROOKSTON, MINN

Cigars of every known brand, from a cheroot it a 25 center. Cigarettes, Chewing and Smoking Tobaccos of all kinds, Snuff, Pipes to suit he fancy of all, from a corn-cob pipe to a meerchaum.

CALL IN.

THE IMPERIAL



All Steel Windmill,
Can be set up on a Steel or Wood Tower.

We carry a
COMPLETE STOCK OF
WOOD AND IRON PUMPS,
including DOUBLE-ACTING,
ANTI-FREEZING
FORCE PUMPS.
IRON PIPE AND IRON PIPE FITTINGS.

Special attention given to the
2-in Plugged and Rimmed Well Casing.

PRICES AS LOW AS THE LOWEST.

Estimates given on all Plumbing Contracts in or out of the city.

CROOKSTON PLUMBING CO.,
Broadway, near Robert St, Crookston, Minn.

U. S. LAND OFFICE.
Crookston, Minn., October 3rd, 1892.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof be made before the Register or Receiver U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Novenmber 14th, 1892, viz: Isaac N. Kingsland, Hd. 12583 for the N. E.¼ Sec. 22, Tp. 148, R. 47. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of, said land, viz: William S. Rathary, Torson T. Sveen, James Miller, Lorenzo Judson, all of Crookston, Minn.

25-301 HUGH THOMPSON, Register.

SPECIAL BARGAINS
—AT THE—
NEW YORK STORE
Next Saturday,
October 8th, 1892.

Look at These Prices:

36 inch English Cashmeres	17½c	100 dozen all wool Hose	19c
10-4 all wool Blankets	$2.50	8-4 Sheeting	17c
2 cases of Prints	4¾	Sanitary Flannels	15c
10-4 Blankets	75c	40 inch Plush Sacque	$7.95
Velvet Brussels Carpet	$1.35	Cotton Flannels	5½c
All wool Carpet	65c	2,000 yards crash	5c
36 inch Dress Flannels	19c	Plush Jackets	$4.79
Tricots	19c

NEW YORK STORE,
A. CHABOT, Proprietor.

If you want a
STOVE OR RANGE
—FOR WOOD OR Coal, see the—

FAMOUS BRAND
STOVE

AT ALDERMAN & SYLVESTER'S.
They are the finest line of stoves ever brought to Crookston, and are sold at
REASONABLE PRICES.

TREASON CHARGED.

MEMBERS OF THE HOMESTEAD ADVISORY BOARD ARRESTED.

They Are Charged With an Attempt to Overthrow the Government of the State of Pennsylvania—More Arrests to Be Made.

HOMESTEAD, Oct. 1.—A great sensation was created here during the evening by the arrest for treason of a number of the members of the advisory committee of the Homestead strikers. Those arrested were Chairman Thomas J. C. Crawford, William Baird, George Reynolds, John Dierken and T. W. Brown. The arrests came like a thunderbolt to the strikers, they were so suddenly made and so unexpected. The prisoners were chatting at street corners when they were taken by the officers.

It was late in the afternoon when the warrants, based on the information of Chief Justice Paxson, reached Homestead and were placed in the hands of the officers to serve. They first caught Crawford and Dierken, who were hurried to the provost guard tents. The others were caught in quick succession before the strikers had time to realize what was happening. It was intended first to keep the prisoners all night and hunt for others, but through fear of an attempt at rescue they were taken to the city farm station, placed on the train, brought to Pittsburg at 11 o'clock and landed in jail.

MORE WARRANTS.

Advisory Board of the Carnegie Union Mills to Be Arrested.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 3.—It was learned at noon that warrants have been issued by the Carnegie Steel company against the members of the strikers' advisory board at the Union mills, this city. The charge preferred is that of conspiracy and treason, None of the members of this board have heretofore been called upon to answer charges of violation of law in connection with the present strike. It is also stated that during the afternoon attorneys representing those of the Homestead advisory committee already under arrest on the charges of treason will make application before Chief Justice Paxon for bail. Six of the defendants are now under arrest. In all thirty-five warrants on this charge have been issued. Judge Paxon will also instruct the grand jury with reference to the treason charges, and will occupy the court of oyer and terminer when these cases come to trial. The question has already risen that should the defendants appeal the case to the state supreme court, would Judge Paxton again have the conduct of the cases when they came before that body?

Gave Bail.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 4.—George Reylands, John Durkin, William Gaches, David Lynch and Thomas J. Crawford, members of the Homestead advisory board, who were under arrest on the charge of treason, have given bail in $10,000 each for their appearance at court. The treason charges will be tried under the Kings jury system, which virtually allows the prosecution to make their own jury. Attorney Breck, for the prosecution, says that the advisory committee of the Union mills strikers will not be arrested on the charge of treason.

MINERS CONVICTED.

Rioters at the Cœur d'Alene Mines Sentenced to Imprisonment.

SPOKANE, Wash., Sept. 30.—The trial of the Cœur d'Alene miners at Cœur d'Alene City on charges of conspiracy resulted in the conviction of four of the defendants and the acquittal of ten. Those convicted were George A. Pettibone, John Murphy, M. L. Devsne and G. Sinclair. The sentences were passed as follows: Pettibone, two years' imprisonment in the penitentiary; Devine and Sinclair, eighteen months each; Murphy, fifteen months. Pending an appeal the men were released on $4,000 bail each.

MADE A FLYING MILE.

Nancy Hanks Trots in 2:04 Flat, at Terre Haute, Ind.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Sept. 29.—The world's record for the light harness horse, either trotting or pacing, was lowered during the day when Nancy Hanks trotted the mile in 2:04. The 10,000 people who saw it sat breathless for a moment after the little mare passed under the wire and even Doble, always modest of speech, declared, when carried to the judge's stand on the shoulders of the crowd and called upon for a speech, that "he was hoarse and Nancy Hanks went so fast it took my breath away."

It was about 4:30 o'clock when the scrapers put the track on edge and Starting Judge Walker announced that Hanks would go to beat her record of 2:07 made over the regulation track at St. Paul. The clip was a terrible one. She was at the eighth in 15 1-2 seconds and at the full quarter in 31 seconds. The second, "an uphill quarter," was done in 31 3-4 seconds, the half being reached in 1:02. The excited crowd began to cheer, but at a word of admonition from the judge, lapsed into silence. This was only broken by murmured "ohs" when the third quarter was done in 29 3-4 seconds. Even her light hoof-beats sounded loud to the silenced crowd as Doble gathered her for the final effort. He touched her gently with the whip, gave two of those masterful lifts of his and the world's record for pace or trot was lowered 1 1-4 seconds and the record for regulation track 3 seconds.

A Permanent Station.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—Assistant Secretary Spaulding says that while the matter is not fully determined it is practically settled that the federal quarantine station at Camp Low will be maintained as a quarantine station as long as there is any occasion for its use.

HE HAS BEEN MALIGNED.

The German Catholic Congress Expresses Sympathy with Cahensley.

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 28.—About 7,000 people crowded into Caledonia Park at the last meeting of the German Catholic congress. The programme commenced by the singing in German of the "Star Spangled Banner." Resolutions were then read by Dr. Faeber, of St. Louis, and adopted.

The first was congratulatory to the pope on his approaching fiftieth anniversary of consecration as bishop and in connection stated the demand for all American Catholics to make use of all proper means in their power to restore to the pope his temporal power.

The second expressed heartfelt sympathy with the Columbus celebration, calling upon all Catholics to participate in the religious and civic celebration on that occasion.

The third regarded school questions and demanded full freedom and liberty to parents to educate their children in parochial schools and called upon Catholics to join only such societies as they were allowed to by the church and to keep away from all secret societies.

The fourth recommended St. Raphael's collect and expressed sympathy with Cahensley, inasmuch as he had been maligned; that the society to which he belonged had nothing in view except the betterment of Catholics.

The fifth warned Catholics against the sensational sheets of the country.

The sixth embodied a protest against any attempt of curtailing our liberty in using our mother tongue, whilst at the same time we fully understand the importance and value of the English language as the language of our country.

One plank, protesting against the absolute closing of the world's fair on Sunday, was hotly debated and in the end was thrown out.

CAUSED A BAD WRECK.

Two Trains on the Northern Pacific Crash Together at Full Speed.

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 4.—Passenger Train No. 7 of the Dakota express on the Northern Pacific road, which left St. Paul at 8 p. m., met Freight No. 58 from Staples about one mile west of Northtown Junction at 9:10 p. m., and the result was one man killed and six injured. The freight was two hours late, it is said, and was running fast to make up the lost time. The passenger train was also running at a high rate of speed. They came together just at a curve and there was only time for the engineers to reverse their levers when the shock came. The engines and tenders of both trains were smashed into kindling wood, and Fireman Bullman, of the passenger engine, was caught by his tender and horribly crushed about the body and almost cut in two. Engineer Carr escaped with serious injuries to his back and about the body. The engineer of the freight engine escaped with very slight injuries. The fireman was badly scalded. All the injured passengers were in the smoker. In front of this were two dead freight cars, which deadened the shock considerably, and doubtless it was due to these that there was not greater loss of life. As it was, the smoker crashed into and upon the dead cars and the passengers were roughly tumbled about, cut with broken glass and jammed against the seats. The freight train is a total wreck.

BLOODSHED LOOKED FOR.

Utes Committing Many Depredations Along the Colorado Line.

DENVER, Oct. 3.—Intelligence has been received that the Utes have crossed the Colorado state line and are commiting depredations. The telegram which conveyed this intelligence also stated that the settlers had become impatient and that bloodshed might be expected at any time inasmuch as great damage was being done and much game destroyed. The governor at once wired the agency at Unitah and also the department at Washington that unless the Indians were returned to their reservation he would not be responsible for their safety. These Indians have been on a marauding tour through the entire portion of the route. No collision has yet occurred, but a battle is hourly expected.

LATEST MARKET REPORT.

St. Paul Union Stock Yards.

SOUTH ST. PAUL, Oct. 3, 1892.

HOGS—Steady. $5.00@5.10.

CATTLE—Market slow Prime steers, $3.00@3.25; good steers, $2.40@3.00; prime cows, $1.90@2.20; good cows, $1.50@1.90; common to fair cows, 50c@1.70; light veal calves, $2.50@4.00; heavy calves, $2.00@3.00; stockers, $1.50@2.25; feeders, $1.80@2.40; bulls, $1.00@1.50.

SHEEP—Market steady. Muttons, $3.00@3.80; lambs, $3.25@3.85; stockers and feeders, $2.00@3.25; common and buck lambs, $2@$3.50

Receipts: Hogs, 200; cattle, 100; calves, 2; sheep, 250.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO UNION STOCK YARDS, Oct. 3, 1892.

CATTLE—Strong, 10c higher.

HOGS—Strong 10c higher. Choice to prime heavy shipping hogs, $5.55@5.70; best assorted light, $5.60; good to choice mixed and packing $5.25@5.60; inferior light and rough packing, $4.95@5.20;

SHEEP—Strong, 10@15c higher.

Receipts: Cattle, 1,800; hogs, 21,000; sheep, 7,000.

Chicago Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, Oct. 3, 1892.

OPENING PRICES.

WHEAT—October, 73¾c; December, 75¾; May, 80⅞@81.

CORN—October, 43¾c; November, 44⅝c; December, 44⅝c; May, 47⅛c.

OATS—October, 30¾c; November, 31¾c; May, 35¼c.

PORK—October, $10.65; November, $10.75; January, $12.02½.

LARD—October, $8.12½; November, $7.40; January, $6.95.

SHORT RIBS—October, $10.10; January $6.27½.

CLOSING PRICES.

WHEAT—October, 72⅝@¾c; December, 75⅜c; May, 80⅛.

CORN—October, 43⅝@¾c; November, 44¼c; December, 44⅛; May, 47⅛.

OATS—October, 31c; November, 32¼c; December, 32⅞c; May, 35⅝.

PORK—October, $11.87½c; November, 10.8⅞c; January, $11.97½c.

LARD—October, $8.20; November, $7.45; January, $6.97½.

SHORT RIBS—October, $10.15; November $6.90; January, $6.27½.

1892	OCTOBER.	1892
Su.	Mo.	Tu.	We.	Th.	Fri.	Sat.
						1
2	3	4	5	6	7	8
9	10	11	12	13	14	15
16	17	18	19	20	21	22
23	24	25	26	27	28	29
30	31

BRIEF NEWS ITEMS.

FOREIGN.

Paderewski, the pianist, is critically ill with rheumatic fever in Paris.

The Hawaiian government has adopted a new tariff schedule to take the place of the tariff of 1878.

The cattle pest has spread to thirty-four farms in Meckleburg and is causing widespread mortality.

A society is said to exist in China whose object is the assassination of the emperor of that country.

The Tageblatt states that the German government has decided to have a world's fair in Berlin in 1897.

Mrs. Parnell, formerly Mrs. O'Shea, and widow of the late Charles Stewart Parnell, is reported to be seriously ill.

The British consul at Mozambique has reported to the foreign office the drowning of two Englishmen and five Germans at the mouth of the River Moma on July 9.

POLITICAL NOTATIONS.

A big Republican meeting will be held in Chicago during the world's fair dedicatory exercises.

Judge Frank A. Hooker has been nominated by the Michigan Republicans for chief justice of the supreme court.

The Republicans of the Second Wisconsin district have nominated Lucian B. Caswell, of Fort Atkinson, for congress.

Democrats opposed to Tammany Hall have decided to put an independent county ticket in the field at the coming election.

Marcellus Audier, of Port Washington, has been nominated for congress from the Fifth Wisconsin congressional district by the People's party.

Judge Lambert Tree, ex-United States minister to the Netherlands under Cleveland, will act as collector of moneys in Chicago and the West for the Democratic national committee.

Senator David B. Hill is preparing a number of speeches. He will speak in Albany some time next month, thence to Virginia, and will devote the last two weeks of the campaign to New York, Indiana, Connecticut and New Jersey.

CRIMES AND CRIMINALS.

Edward S. Dann, the Buffalo (N. Y.) bank wrecker, killed himself to avoid trial.

At Rome, Ga., Lord Walter S. Beresford, alias Sidney Lascelles, the noted English forger, was sentenced to six years hard labor in the penitentiary.

The jury in the case of Burton C. Webster, of New York, charged with murdering Broker Charles Goodwin has returned a verdict of manslaughter in the first degree. Webster was remanded for sentence.

The circuit court at Columbus, O., refused a new trial to P. J. Elliott, one of the Elliott brothers, publishers, one of whom is serving a life sentence and the other twenty years sentence for precipitating a shooting affray last year.

Mrs. James Pike, who lives across the river from Gallipolis, O., became incensed at a remark made by her neighbor, Charles Bippers, and taking a shot gun, went to his house and killed his two children who were playing in the front yard. She has been arrested.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The international monetary congress will meet in Brussels on Nov. 22.

The "heresy" case of Professor Briggs will be tried publicly by the New York presbytery on Nov. 9.

Three men were killed and three seriously injured in a wreck on the Vandalia line near Greenville, Ills.

Minister Egan will be tendered a reception by the Irish-Americans of New York on his arrival from Chili.

Over a thousand head of cattle were burned to death and three persons fatally burned in a prairie fire in Idaho.

The estate of the late George William Curtis according to the will filed in the probate court, amounts to about $70,000.

A cloudburst visited Brunswick, Ga., Tuesday, damaging property $20,000. Many streets were inundated. Rain has fallen for twenty-two days.

At the annual school board election at Faribault, Minn., Saturday, the supporters of the "Faribault plan" were defeated by 200 votes. A heavy vote was polled.

Robert T. Lincoln, the United States minister to Great Britain, will sail for the United States this week on a short leave of absence. He will return with Mrs. Lincoln in November.

The postoffice department will place the new return postal card on sale early in October. Postmaster General Wanamaker has accepted two designs, one for domestic and one for foreign.

The Figaro publishes a letter from Cardinal Gibbons saying that what the young American nation admires most in Pope Leo is that the terms republic and democracy do not terrify him.

The Rome correspondent of The Catholic News has cabled that the pope has ordered the propaganda to carry out the necessary formalities for the erection of the diocese of Dallas, Tex., into an archbishopric.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

St. Paul dressed beef dealers have formed a combine.

Destructive forest fires are reported on the St. Cloud and Hinckley railway in Mille Lacs county.

Andrew C. Lee, a prominent farmer living near Moorhead, suicided last week. No cause known.

Several St. Paul warehouses were damaged by fire Tuesday of last week to the extent of $40,000.

The Minnesota woman's auxiliary of the world's fair, at a meeting in St. Paul, voted in favor of having the fair open on Sunday.

Several heavy damage suits have been filed against the City of St. Paul on account of the flood in West St. Paul last summer.

At Minneapolis last week Charles Baker, charged with stealing 95 cents from Emma Watson, was sentenced to three years at Stillwater.

The business portion of Bellingham was partially destroyed by fire. Every business house on both sides of Main street was destroyed, causing a loss of $55,000.

Since the opening of navigation 2,976 vessels have passed in and out of Duluth harbor, carrying on the average about 1,500 tons each, or nearly 5,000,000 tons of freight.

The miraculous window from the Catholic church at Canton has been removed by Bishop Cotter and taken to Winona for examination. The bishop believes the face is due to a flaw in the glass.

The South St. Paul distillery resumed active operations Monday. The concern has paid $320,000 to the internal revenue officers for September taxes. It uses 165,000 gallons of oil per month for fuel for its furnaces.

Minneapolis school children, to the number of about 20,000, enjoyed an outing at Lake Harriet and Minnehaha falls Friday. It was the first "Park Day" picnic and will hereafter be an annual holiday for the Minneapolis youth.

Maggie Deboe suicided at Stillwater last week. She was engaged to marry Fred Payette, who was killed by a falling log at Holyoke a day or two previous. On learning of his death she drowned herself in Lake St. Croix.

A horse owned by the Minnetonka Meat Supply company met with its death in a peculiar manner on Nicollet avenue, Minneapolis, the other night. It was frightened at its shadow in the street, and rearing, fell back upon the curb dead.

G. R. Bell, a vagrant, was arrested at Winona for stealing billiard balls, and confined in the city lockup. During the evening he set fire to the woodwork of the lockup and only for the smoke attracting attention he would have been cremated.

The officers of the Minnesota State Fair association have about completed the financial account of the late fair, and state that there will be a good margin in the profit column despite the unfavorable weather that attended the last two days.

A gang of burglars was at work in St. Paul last week. The residence of A. B. Stickney was burglarized and $3,500 worth of jewelry and diamonds were secured, and Dr. Stone's residence was robbed of jewelry and clothes to the extent of $1,500.

At Lake Elmo, Stefan Zecha, 33 years old, shot Mary Mendling, his sweetheart, in the back of the neck, and then, after running a hundred yards, placed the revolver to his head and blew out his brains. He was jealously insane of the girl, and accused her of flirting with other men just before shooting her.

St. Paul was visited by a severe hail storm Saturday. For twenty minutes the hail poured down in an incessant stream, covering the streets to the depth of three inches. A number of runaways occurred and several persons were injured. The storm was accompanied by terrific thunder and lightning.

Jacob Kiewell's brewery at Fergus Falls, burned Thursday. The origin of the fire is not known, but it started in the boiler room and the men employed in the building had barely time to escape. Nothing was saved, even the account books being destroyed. Five hundred barrels of beer were in the vaults.

Mrs. Ed Hathaway, wife of a farmer near Kimball station, Stearns county, was fatally injured last week in a strange manner. She was in company with her husband, who placed a loaded shotgun in the baby carriage, which Mrs. Hathaway was wheeling. Through some cause the gun was discharged, striking Mrs. Hathaway in the abdomen.

Major E. H. Evans, an old and well known settler, died at his home at Garden City last week. He has been a resident of Garden City since 1856. Upon the outbreak of the Sioux war he was appointed major of volunteers and had charge of affairs on the frontier. He went South and bought a pack of bloodhounds to track the Indians. He was marshal of the day when the thirty-eight Indians were executed at Mankato in December, 1862.

C. N. Gibson, formerly an architect on the world's fair buildings in Chicago, has decided to go into the sheep raising industry in the vicinity of Little Falls. A few months ago he fell heir to half a million dollars. He has just closed a deal whereby he becomes the owner of about one thousand acres on the shores of Swan lake, a short distance from that city. He intends building a handsome residence and starting out with a first class sheep ranch. About $50,000 will be invested in the enterprise at the start.

THIRTEEN TOWNS

FAIR,

At Fosston, Minn.

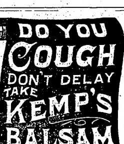
Wednesday, Thursday and Friday,

Oct. 5th, 6th and 7th.

HORSE RACING,
BASE BALL,
ATHLETIC SPORTS,
SPEECH MAKING.

$2,000 IN PURSES AND PREMIUMS.

For Premium List and further particulars, write to
W. H. AVERILL,
Sec. 13 Towns Fair Association,
FOSSTON, MINN.



It Cures Colds, Coughs, Sore Throat, Croup, Influenza, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis and Asthma. A certain cure for Consumption in first stages, and a sure relief in advanced stages. Use at once. You will see the excellent effect after taking the first dose. Sold by dealers everywhere. Large bottles 50 cents and $1.00.

S. L. COLLINS,

Proprietor of Main Street

Livery and Feed Stables.

Cor. Main and Fourth Sts., west side,

CROOKSTON, - - - MINNESOTA.

Horses bought and sold on commission. Everything neat and nobby. Feeding a specialty.

FINE HEARSE

in connection, which I will attend to in person.

C. HENDRICKSON, President. L. ELLINGTON, Vice President.
J. W. WHEELER, Cashier. H. STEENERSON, 2d Vice President.
A. P. HASSON, Assistant Cashier.

Scandia-American Bank,

Of Crookston, Minn. Organized under the State laws. Authorized capital $200,000. Paid up capital $50,000. Undivided profits $10,500. Buys Bonds, School and Town Orders. Special attention to collections. Interest on time deposits.

DIRECTORS—C. O. Christianson, E. P. Pierce, O. H. Lucken, A. G. Gallasch, H. Steenerson, J. H. Locken, C. Hendrickson, Max Ericsson, L. K. Aaker, J. W. Wheeler.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication Sept. 29th, 1892.]
[Last publication Nov. 10th, 1892.]

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE payment of nine dollars ($9.00) which became due on the first day of October, A. D. 1889, upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Daniel Bernard and Fannie Jane Bernard, his wife, to John Milton Oliver, bearing date the 3d day of October, A. D. 1888, which mortgage together with the power of sale therein contained, was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the county of Polk and state of Minnesota, on the 29th day of October, A. D. 1888, at 8 o'clock and 10 minutes a. m., in book 40 of mortgages, on pages 273, 274 and 275.

It is provided in said mortgage that if said mortgagors shall fail to pay any part of the sum of money thereby secured at the time and in the manner specified in said mortgage, then upon such default, the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage, may at the option of the mortgagee be declared due and payable; and the said John Milton Oliver, mortgagee, who is now the legal holder of said mortgage and of the notes thereby secured, has elected and does hereby elect and declare the whole sum secured by said mortgage to be due; and there is claimed to be due upon said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of forty-eight and 13-100 dollars, ($48.13), and no action or proceeding has been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Wherefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz:

The northeast quarter (ne¼) of Section fourteen, (14) in Township one hundred and fifty-four (154) north, of Range forty-six (46) west, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres more or less, according to the government survey thereof, in the county of Polk and state of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances thereto belonging; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said county of Polk at the front door of the Court House in the city of Crookston, in said county and state, on Saturday, the 12th day of November, A. D. 1892, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon of that day, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest and taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

Dated at Minneapolis, Minn., this 24th day of September, A. D. 1892.

JOHN MILTON OLIVER,
Mortgagee.
C. M. HERRIG,
Attorney for mortgagee. 24-30

Ripans Tabules cure constipation

Ripans Tabules are always ready

GREAT NORTHERN
Railway
TIME CARD.

MONTANA EXPRESS—Daily.

West		Station	East
7:40 p m	De.	St Paul	Ar. 6:55 a m
2:50 a m	"	Fergus Falls	" 11:25 p m
4:47 a m	"	Glyndon	" 9:36 p m
7:20 a m	"	CROOKSTON	" 7:25 p m
8:40 a m	"	Grand Forks	" 6:20 p m
9:45 a m	"	Larimore	" 5:06 p m
2: 1 p m	"	Devils Lake	" 2:55 a m
7:00 p m	Ar.	Butte	De. 7:30 a m

ST. VINCENT BRANCH—Daily except Sunday
Depart 7:30 a m Arrive 6:30 p m
FOSSTON BRANCH—Tues., Thurs. and Sat.
Depart 8:00 a m Arrive 5:30 p m
ST. HILAIRE BRANCH—Monday Wed. & Friday.
Depart 10:45 a m Arrive 4:30 p m
GRAND FORKS' ACCOMMODATION.
Arrive 9:50 a m Depart 7:55 p m

The scenic route to Spokane, Helena, and Butte on the west, and St. Paul, Minneapolis-Duluth and West Superior on the east. Dining and sleeping cars on all through trains. Tickets on sale to all principal places. Baggage checked through to destination.

W. W. FEGAN, Agent.

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.

TIME SCHEDULE.

	Leave Crookston Daily.	Arrive Crookston Daily.
For Duluth, Ashland, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Chicago, and all points East and South	7:05 p. m.	8:27 a. m.
For Grand Forks, Grafton, Pembina, Winnipeg and points in N. Dakota and Winnipeg	8:27 a. m.	7:05 p. m.

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.

THE

Great Transcontinental Route

Passes through Wisconsin, Minnesota North Dakota, Manitoba, Montana, Idaho, Oregon and Washington.

The Dining Car Line

Dining cars are run between Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Winnipeg, Butte, Helena, Tacoma, Seattle and Portland.

PULLMAN SLEEPING CAR ROUTE.

Pullman service daily between Chicago, St. Paul, Montana and the Pacific Northwest; and between St. Paul, Minneapolis and Minnesota, North Dakota and Manitoba points.

THE POPULAR LINE.

Daily Express Trains carry elegant Pullman Sleeping Cars, Dining Cars, Day Coaches, Pullman Tourist Sleepers and Free Colonist Sleeping Cars.

YELLOWSTONE PARK ROUTE.

The Northern Pacific R. R. is the rail line to Yellowstone Park; the popular line to California and Alaska; and its trains pass through the grandest scenery of seven states.

THROUGH TICKETS

Are sold at all coupon offices of the Northern Pacific Railroad to points North, East, South and West, in the United States and Canada.

For rates, maps, time tables, or special information, apply to
CHAS. A. SHARKEY,
Agent Northern Pacific R. R.,
Crookston, Minn.
CHAS. S. FEE,
Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent,
St. Paul, Minn.

A. A. JUST, M. D.,
Homoeopathic Physician and Surgeon
OFFICE IN
McKinnon Block, Crookston

A. H. DUNLAP, M. D.
Graduate McGill University, Montreal.
LICENSED COLLEGE PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS, QUEBEC.
Office in McKinnon Block.

Mortgage Sale.

(First publication Aug. 25, 1892.)
(Last publication Oct. 6, 1892.)

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of one hundred dollars ($100) and the sum of seventy-five dollars ($75) and interest on said sums from the 9th day of October, 1886, at the rate of 10 per cent per annum, which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Frederick Bieler to Francis J. Detling, bearing date the 9th day of October, A. D. 1886, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 2d day of December, A. D. 1886, at 9 o'clock a. m., in book 22 of mortgages, on page 96, which mortgage, together with the debt thereby secured, was duly assigned by said Francis J. Detling, mortgagee, to Joseph Z. Perron by written assignment, dated the 28th day of February, A. D. 1891, and recorded in the office of said Register of Deeds on the 24th day of March, 1891, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book 56 of mortgages, on page 119; and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: Lots numbered one, (1) two, (2) and three, (3) in block numbered forty, (40) in Kretzschmar's Addition to Red Lake Falls, Polk county, Minnesota, according to the plat thereof on file in the Register of Deeds office in and for said County and State, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the city of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 8th day of October, A. D. 1892, at 10 o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated August 20th, A. D. 1892.

JOSEPH Z. PERRON,
Assignee of Mortgagee.
P. G. FALARDEAU,
Attorney for Assignee,
Red Lake Falls, Minn.
[19-25]

TALKS WITH A BRUSH

AN ECCENTRIC OLD EVANGELIST OF WESTCHESTER, N. Y.

Winter and Summer He Wanders Along the Roads Painting Scripture Texts on Bowlders—Nothing Deters Him—Passive When Violence Is Used.

Who is the mysterious paint brush evangelist of Westchester county? Up and down the beautiful hills and along the rugged, rocky roads of Westchester for mile after mile his work can be seen. The wayfarer cannot escape it. At every fresh turn in the road the painted words of warning confront him. Even the most ungodly sinner in all New York, after walking a mile from the little village of White Plains, would think he was surely on the rocky road to the New Jerusalem.

Up in Westchester they call the mysterious evangelist the "Scripture Slinger," and they say "he slings it powerful thick." So he does, and with discrimination rare, in paint of the hue of heaven's own blue, mixed in oil.

All along those rocky roads the fences are made of huge bowlders, out of which rough walls are made, separating the pastures and bounding the roadsides. Besides there are still other bowlders jutting out of the soil along the roadway. On these, and on the stone fences, the mysterious evangelist unfolds his warnings. He is a little man, but energetic. He is a silent man, except with his brush, made out of hairs plucked from the necks of oxen. With it he speaks. His only name is "George."

He marches, a Salvation Army of one man, carrying a bugle to announce his coming. His sandy mustache bristles, and the lines of his face show sixty years. There hangs upon his head an old straw hat, summer and winter, and on the hat is a broad ribbon, bearing the legend, "Jesus is mighty to save." A cane, carved with innumerable inscriptions, helps him over the hills as he marches on, carrying the battered handbag in which repose his restless brush, his pot of paint, his Bible and other little things, such as a comb and cake of soap. through the use of which he keeps himself only a seminomad. They say there is no vanity in him, nor any glass with a quicksilver back in that battered bag

As he marches he spies a rock, big and brown, half hidden behind a clump of weeds, and on which he left no message when last along that way. In a moment the weeds are uprooted, and kneeling by the rock he paints, letter by letter, "O-b-e-y t-h-e L-o-r-d." Then he marches on reading the Bible. On a smooth worn bowlder in the stone fence, he prints, "Repent! Believe! And sin no more." Across the road he leaves the warning, "You must repent or go to hell." A little farther on he kneels again, and under his brush grow the words, "The wages for sinners is hell-fire."

There are painted words, though, along the roads more worldly than the ones he leave there. One of them says, "Spend your Sundays at Manhattan beach." On finding this it is said he bowed his head a moment. Then in a deeper shade of blue than usual, mixed on the spot, he painted right alongside the words, "Where will you spend eternity?"

Many of the farmers up in Westchester take summer boarders, and on a big tree in the front yard each of them nails up a sign which reads: "Pleasant summer home. Board by the day or week." Across the road from such as these the paint brush says, "Think of that beautiful home above."

So the strange evangelist goes on, fighting the world with blue paint, measure for measure, and covering the surplus space with admonition, exhortation and advice.

To him all things are of the world worldly, and therefore he knows naught of politics.

This strange man sleeps by the roadside, in a stable or where he may, and for months eats only what is given him. Money is nothing to him. For a little while each year he works on the Sound View stock farm, owned by William A. Sammis, and it is then he pulls the hair from the necks of oxen and makes his stock of brushes. His paint is given him and he mixes it himself.

He has been told to stop the task of covering the rocks of Westchester with blue paint, but he keeps on. By his action he says, "Shall a man not make his fellow man reflect?"

Township trustees threaten and resolve in vain. The mottoes multiply. Assaults do not terrify him. Once he was met by two men near the Westchester fair grounds and commanded to stop painting a sentence he had begun. He turned his back to them and kept on without reply. When he had finished he began a new sentence. Then the men rushed at him and struck him down senseless with clubs. The unfinished sentence read:

"Forgive thine"——

—New York Advertiser.

What a Widow Is.

It was a Sunday school class, and the teacher believed in asking questions to see how clearly the scholars understood their lessons. The widow of Ham was the subject, and the teacher thought she would be quickly answered when she asked, "What is a widow?" There was a silence until she nodded to the small boy at her left and said, "You know what a widow is, don't you?" for she knew the boy's mother was one. "Yes'm," he answered; "it's a lady what takes in washing."—New York World.

A Dining Room Motto.

In the dining room of a quaint old house seen lately was the inscription over the fireplace in flowing illuminated text:

Work the jaws,
A silent pause,
Frequent hawhaws.

This was an exceedingly apt reminder of the value of slow eating and cheerfulness at table.—West Chester News.

The Division of Time.

At the poles, where all meridians converge, there can be no natural standard time, for it is every hour of the day at once; but the regulation of time at these singular points has not yet become a burning question. Were the system of time reckoning recommended by the prime meridian conference carried out in its entirety, the minutes indicated on all well regulated clock dials throughout the world would be the same at a given instant, but the hours would differ at each 15 degs. of longitude by steps of one, twenty-four standards encircling the globe. Thus, for example, at twenty-five minutes past noon of the prime (or rather the zero) meridian, clocks 90 degs. E. would show twenty-five minutes past 6 p. m. (18h. 25m.); those 90 degs. W., twenty-five minutes past 6 a. m. (6h. 25m.), and those at 180 degs., twenty-five minutes past midnight.

The zero meridian adopted by the prime meridian conference is that of Greenwich, and definite time standards based on hourly intervals from this starting line have been used since 1883 on the railways of North America. The continent is divided into strips of 15 degs. in width, in each of which a separate time standard prevails from the Gulf of Mexico to Hudson bay. Atlantic time in the eastern province of Canada and in Newfoundland shows 8 a. m. at Greenwich noon; eastern time in the Atlantic states of the Union marks 7 a. m. at the same moment, while central, mountain and Pacific time indicate respectively 6, 5 and 4 a. m. The meridians which set the clocks across America are those of 60, 75, 90, 105 and 120 degs. W.—London Nature.

Commotions Produced by Electricity.

Many effects have been attributed to electrical commotions, but for some of these it would be hazardous to vouch. There are wells and springs which are thrown into a state of apparent ebullition on the approach of a storm. Fountains are said to pour out copious streams, even in times of drought, when Jupiter "media nimborum in nocte, corusca fulmina malitur dextra." Subterranean thunders have occasionally been heard preparatory to an aerial eruption. The sea has cast up volumes of water, as if volcanoes were exploding below. The ground has burst open, and floods of water have gushed forth from the sides of hills or from fissures in the rocks.

Taking another class of effects, cures have been performed by lightning; gouty men have been enabled to walk freely; epileptic persons have been healed; amaurosis has been removed and rheumatism dispelled by a flash. But one dare not look too closely into the subject of medical electricity, nor venture to recommend any one to tempt lightning in the hope of experiencing its curative powers, for its action is arbitrary and oftener than not hurtful. Three hundred persons were once struck in Charleston prison and clean robbed of their muscular strength.—Chambers' Journal.

Patti Sang for the Parrot.

In her castle at Craig-y-Nos Mme. Patti has a $6,000 parrot, which she cherishes and pets as if it were a child. One day there went to interview Patti a young man who had traveled long and far to view the beautiful Craig-y-Nos palace. "Mme. Patti will be here in a moment," said the door attendant.

Just then there was a rustle of skirts and Mme. Patti swept into a room adjoining. In a minute the most beautiful, birdlike notes rose upon the air, unmistakably from Patti's throat.

"She is singing to me," said the delighted listener to himself, "and she is too modest to come in and sing directly before me. She wants me to hear her as she sings at home. Oh, what joy to have this privilege!"

At this moment the heavy draperies were pulled aside and the attendant said:

"You may wait upon Mme. Patti now. She has been giving a short lesson to her parrot. She teaches him every day. This way, sir, if you please."—Chicago Post.

Won a Wife by His Skill.

Action was a Grecian painter of about the time of Alexander, and he won a wife by his great work. He painted a picture called "The Nuptials of Alexander and Roxane," which was exhibited at the Olympic games. It created such a stir that one of the judges cried in admiration, "I reserve crowns for the victorious athletes, but I give my daughter in marriage to the painter Action as a recompense for his picture." Action was one of the artists who excelled in the art of mixing his colors; he could not go to the nearest store and purchase them as artists do today.—Harper's Young People.

Lumber in Abundance.

The timber area of Washington is the most extensive in the United States, and combines a greater number of valuable commercial varieties than may be found anywhere else. The quantity of merchantable lumber standing in these forests from a conservative standpoint is estimated at 160,000,000,000 feet, sufficient to supply all the markets in America for untold years to come and yet send cargo after cargo into foreign lands.—Port Crescent Leader.

At Saint Cloud.

A beggar armed with a cornet stopped in front of a terrace on which a large number of persons were dining. One of their number asked him to give them a tune. The beggar humbly confessed that he could not play.

"What! You don't know how to play? Then what good is your instrument to you?"

With noble frankness, "It is only a threat!"—Gaulois.

Cheap Artificial Eggs.

James Storey, a Parsons (Kan.) inventor, claims that he has perfected an artificial egg equal to natural hen fruit in every respect. He coats his albuminous mixture with a shell so "true to life" as to defy detection. He says that he can make a carload a day at a cost of only three cents a dozen.—St. Louis Republic.

"FIREPROOF" MAIDEN LANE.

The Precious Metal District Almost Exempt from Big Conflagrations.

Maiden lane has been singularly free from destructive fires for many years, and there is a superstition among the jewelry and diamond merchants of that street that the lane will never succumb to flames or streams of water, and that the old rickety buildings lining it on both sides are pretty nearly "fireproof."

The records of the fire patrol, which go back to 1874, prove that in the last eighteen years 113 fires have taken place in that neighborhood, all of which were of little account. Those fires which affected jewelry establishments were the most insignificant of the lot, and their stock was never damaged by any fire.

This seems strange, for the reason that in the majority of houses occupied by jewelers numberless small and rickety rooms are used as smelting furnaces and workshops, with plenty of opportunities for creating heat and flames.

I talked with a number of merchants located in the precious metal district, between Broadway and William street, and all of them said they had never lost a cent by fire. One of the reasons for this happy state of affairs is their extreme cautiousness. They have watchmen constantly on the premises to guard against thieves, and these men are bound to look out for conflagrations likewise. Whenever there is the slightest cause for danger the thick doors of the safes are locked in a jiffy, and all hands in the building combine to remove that cause.

As one of the "Maiden laners" expressed himself, there is no inducement for fires either. All the wealth the jeweler's stock represents is kept in safes, the doors of which may be barred in an instant. Even if there was a firebug among that respectable class of merchants he would not dare set fire to his building in order to claim insurance on his stock, for such a thing would give him away in an instant. If a really destructive fire should occur in one of the large jewelry emporiums in the lane the safes would tumble down into the cellars, and the precious stock would be recovered as soon as they had cooled off.

And even if the safes were injured on their come down their contents would not necessarily be lost. We all remember the great fire in Bond street which destroyed a number of wholesale jewelry establishments. When the proprietors of those precious safes looked for them they were nowhere, only twisted and distorted fragments being found, but when they dug up the soil under the destroyed building, they turned up large chunks of precious ore that had once been watch chains, breastpins or wedding rings. The police were notified and formed a line all around the seat of the fire. Then a mining camp was established. A long gutter was run around two sides of the spot made vacant by the fire, a stream of water was led through these gutters, the earth was carefully washed and a fortune recovered, the proceeds of which were divided among the former occupants of the building according to the extent of their business.

Maiden lane is not the only down town street that of late years has been free from conflagrations, though no other has such a record to show as the lane.

Pearl, Williams, Beekman and Fulton streets were once notorious for big fires. That was in the times when the big paper warehouses and similar establishments made their headquarters there. The part of Maiden lane adjacent to the river still gives the fire department work from time to time. Oil and paint stores are mostly responsible for conflagrations in that vicinity.—New York Herald.

Dinners Must Be More Plain.

Physiological facts, no more than ill bred people, ought to be admitted into good society. There is one, however, that is of concern, since it seems to demand an important change in a long established precedent. The stomach of civilized man has shrunk to such an extent it appears something will have to be dropped from the menu. When meals were occasional, as now among savages, the elasticity of the stomach was capable of great deeds. In the days of fighting and knight errantry food was as precarious as now on the plains, and this created the stomach of the valiant trencher man on whose capacity the present orderly sequence of dinner was founded.

The passing away of the three and four bottle men has been remarked with the growth of the temperance movement and popularly ascribed to it. It is only recently that a side light has been thrown upon the real cause of their effacement. This is the insufficiency of what has come to be known as the tank. For a long time dinners of state have facetiously been held to be periods of gloom. It was the true word spoken in jest. It is now frankly admitted that the modern stomach is unable to wrestle with the procession of dishes at dinner.—New York Evening Sun.

Oppressed Nations Sing.

"Do you know that oppressed nations always sing?" asked J. W. Wurtenberg, of Boston, at the Tremont. "Victor Hugo makes such a statement somewhere, and I believe he is fully borne out by the facts. It is the periods of the greatest struggle for freedom and of the greatest tyranny that witness the birth of great musical composers. It was after the thirty years' war that the German choral was founded. Italy was in the throes of dissension, conflict and strife when Palestrina arose. Art, as represented by the paintings of the great masters, had been suppressed, and art in another form, that of music, took its place. I need not quote instances nearer at hand to prove the accuracy of my statements."—Chicago Herald.

A Contradiction of Terms.

"The popular impression is that some millionaires have more dollars than sense."

"How absurd, when there are 100 cents to every dollar!"—Kate Field's Washington.

AT BEDTIME I TAKE A PLEASANT HERB DRINK

THE NEXT MORNING I FEEL BRIGHT AND NEW AND MY COMPLEXION IS BETTER.

My doctor says it acts gently on the stomach, liver and kidneys, and is a pleasant laxative. This drink is made from herbs, and is prepared for use as easily as tea. It is called

LANE'S MEDICINE

All druggists sell it at 50c. and $1.00 a package. If you cannot get it, send your address for free sample. Lane's Family Medicine moves the bowels each day. In order to be healthy, this is necessary. Address, ORATOR F. WOODWARD, LeROY, N. Y.

Work Horses - - - and Mares.

FOR GOOD, SOLID WORK HORSES and MARES, go to

M. R. BROWN.

The old reliable dealer, who has sold horses in this county since 1878, and who is always on hand to make his guaranty good. Every man who ever sold horses here is ready (when he sells) to guaranty, but later, if you happen to want him to make his guaranty good you can't most always sometimes find him ready to make his recommend good. He handles only good young horses and has sold more than any dealer in the county. He is now prepared to supply the demand for good teams—he handles no other—and guaranty them just as recommended. Before you buy you will do well to call at

Brown's New Stables.

Main Street, one door north of the old M. E. church building.

Valley Roller Mills

MANUFACTURERS OF

FINE FLOUR

From Selected Red River Wheat.

QUOTATIONS.

Best	$2.25	per 98 lbs.
North Star	2.10	" "
Fife	1.90	" "
Skip Jack	1.25	" "
Bran	9.00	" ton.
Shorts	10.00	" "

Call early and get your supply of feed.

☞ We exchange flour for wheat on equitable terms.

LEE & HERRICK.

NEW CIGAR STORE

SIGN OF THE BIG INDIAN.

H. F. BROWN, Proprietor.

Second Street,
CROOKSTON, MINN

Cigars of every known brand, from a cheroot at a 25 center. Cigarettes, Chewing and Smoking Tobaccos of all kinds, Snuff, Pipes to suit the fancy of all, from a corn-cob pipe to a meerchaum.

CALL IN.

MARTIN O'BRIEN,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
{I. O. O. F. BUILDING.} Crookston. Minn.

FITS STOPPED FREE

Marvelous success. Insane Persons Restored. Dr. KLINE'S GREAT NERVE RESTORER for all BRAIN & NERVE DISEASES. Only sure cure for Nerve Affections, Fits, Epilepsy, etc. INFALLIBLE if taken as directed. No Fits after first day's use. Treatise and $2 trial bottle free to Fit patients, they paying express charges on box when received. Send names, P. O. and express address of afflicted to Dr. KLINE, 931 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa. See Druggists. BEWARE OF IMITATING FRAUDS.

MILLER & FOOTE,
ATTY'S-AT-LAW,
McKinnon Block. - Crookston, Minn.

THE PIONEER HARNESS SHOP,
M. RAUENBUEHLR, Proprietor.
A full supply of everything kept by the trade.
Cor. of Broadway and Third Sts,
CROOKSTON, MINN

IF YOU ARE GOING EAST OR SOUTH ASK YOUR NEAREST AGENT FOR TICKETS VIA THE BURLINGTON AND TAKE NO OTHER LINE.

W. A. ROBERTSON
D. D. S.
Graduate of Dental Department of the University of Maryland.
OPERATIVE AND MECHANICAL
DENTIST.
N. B. Nitrous Oxide Gas, (Laughing Gas) administered for the painless extraction of teeth.
OFFICE IN McKINNON BLOCK.

A word to the wise and money savers.

GERVAIS'--The Hustlers,

THE GREATEST AGGREGATION OF

Spring and Summer Goods

That Ever Landed in the Northwest, comprising

The Latest Novelties in Fancy and Domestic Goods.

Dress Goods and Trimmings,
Jackets, Cloaks and Cloakings,
Parasols and Umbrellas for rain and sunshine.
White Goods and Embroideries,
Wash Goods in all the newest weaves,
Jersey ribbed and muslin Underwear.
Ladies' Shirt Waists in many styles,
Spring Caps and Straw Hats.

CARPETS

In all grades and newest designs.
Lace and Chenille Curtains and Portiers,
House Furnishing Goods, of all kinds,
New departure in Boots and Shoes.

Call In and Get Prices.

I. O. O. F. Block, Crookston.
GERVAIS & GERVAIS, Leaders in Low Prices.

You Can Buy Reliable AGRICULTURAL MACHINERY OF

SYLVESTER & FINSETH,

—CHEAPER AND BETTER—

Than anywhere. We handle Buckeye and Osborne Binders with all extras for same, and Twine. Buckeye and Imperial Mowers with extras. Buckeye and Monitor Rakes, Eli, Oliver and Bradley Gang Plows, Stubble and Breaking Plows, the Standard Rotary Shuttle Sewing Machine, Nichols & Shepard New Vibrator Threshing Machine. Also the Jackson, Mitchell and Favorite Wagons, the Enterprise Buggies, Spring Wagons and Carts on all of which we can undersell Grand Forks and other places. We also carry everything that can be had in any first class Hardware Store and invite everybody to call and see us at the corner of Broadway and Fletcher Sts.

SYLVESTER & FINSETH, Crookston, Minn,

Schmidt, the Painter,

—CARRIES A FULL AND COMPLETE STOCK OF—

PAINTS,
OILS AND
VARNISHES.

—ALSO A FULL AND COMPLETE LINE OF—

☞ WALL PAPER. ☜

Painting in all its branches, and Paper Hanging artistically done.

Call at the Shop on Broadway.

M. LeGUEE.
Veterinary Surgeon
Residence and office on Jerome's Addition.
CROOKSTON, - - - MINN.

P. J. RUSSELL,
Attorney-at-Law
CROOKSTON, MINN.
Next to Merchants' Bank.

JOHN CROMB.
Attorney-at-Law.
SECOND STREET. CROOKSTON

THE NEW NORTHWEST

Home seekers will find the last of the public domain of agricultural and grazing value along the Great Northern Ry. in North Dakota and Montana. FARM LANDS

NEW TOWNS 100 or more, along the Great Northern Railway Line. Business chances. Write F. I. WHITNEY, St. Paul, Minn., for Books, Maps, &c. Write now.

Settlers on free Government lands along the Great Northern Ry. Line in North Dakota and Montana get low rates and find markets for products. LOW RATES

Montana produces the finest Horses and Cattle. Free ranges yet in Mouse, Milk and Sun River Valleys and Sweet Grass Hills. Horses, Cattle.

Health, Wealth. In the Northwest. Free Lands. New Towns. New Railways. New Mines. Low Rates. Largest area of good vacant land.

Sweetest Grass Hills, Milk and Sun River Valleys, Montana, reached only by the Great Northern Railway Line. The stock raisers' paradise. Sheep, Hogs.

Herds, Mines These have made Montana the richest State per capita in the Union. Plenty of room for more miners and stock raisers. Now is the time.

L. E. GOSSMAN,
Attorney-at-Law,
No. 2 Fournet Block } CROOKSTON, MINN.

First National Bank
OF CROOKSTON

PAID IN CAPITAL, - $100,000
SURPLUS, - - - $14,200

Interest on time deposits. Faithful attention to Collections and prompt remittance.

GEO. Q. ERSKINE, President.
WM. ANGLIM, Vice President.
CHAS. E. SAWYER, Cashier.

DIRECTORS:

Wm. Anglim,	K. D. Chase,	F. D. Childs
Geo. Q. Erskine.	J. B. McKinnon.	A. A. Miller
E. M. Walsh.	Chas. E. Sawyer	W. H. Crosby

FRANK IVES, Notary Public and U S. Coms'r.
D. E. HATLESTAD, District Court Commissioner

IVES & HATLESTAD,
Attorneys and Counselors at Law,
CROOKSTON, - - - - MINN.

Will practice in all the courts and before the U S. Land Office at Crookston and Washington. Pensions and Soldiers' Claims and Patents carefully and promptly adjusted.

We loan money on improved farms and city property and have facilities for placing large loans at low rate of interest. We give special attention to collection and all commercial business pertaining to our profession.

H. STEENERSON
ATTORNEY AT LAW
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA

NEW BARBER SHOP.
On Main St. C. E. MISNER, Prop.
Invites your patronage. Everything in the very latest style of the art.

RAZORS HONED. If you desire your Razor Honed and cannot bring it, send it to me with 30 cents and your name and address; and I will hone and return it.
Yours Respectfully,
C. E. MISNER.

'Round Home.

Wheat—1 Hard 62.
1 Northern 60.

Soft easy shoes for tender feet, at The Fair.

J. P. Foote was up at McIntosh last week a few days.

A Sture has put in a new plate glass window to replace the one destroyed by the storm last summer.

W. D. Pinkerton came over from Michigan City last week to look after his farming operations here.

Everybody calculates to visit the Fair at Fosston this week. A good time is announced to all who go.

Commencing next Sunday evening, service will be held at 7:30 in the evening at the Congregational church.

John O'Brien was observed on Saturday laying sidewalk in front of the plumbing establishment on Broadway.

Daily trains commenced running on the Fosston branch on Monday. This should be the case every day in the year.

Andrew J. O'Keefe and wife came over from Grand Forks on Saturday to spend the Sabbath with R. J. Montague and family.

U. S. Dist. Attorney Hay was in the city last week to prosecute a whiskey case before U. S. Commissioner, Judge Ives.

B. J. Duntley has bought an interest in the Queen City Laundry. Bert is A number 1 business man and will make a hustle for the work.

The M. E. church will be heated by steam. Men have been at work during the past week digging a cellar under the church to put in the apparatus.

Capt. Pat. Russell went out on a wild goose hunt last week accompanied by Bily Davis, Will Hoch, H. Bnrkhardt and Geo. Young. Cap shot nothing—not even his toe.

Ed. Gates has purchased the Board of Trade of R. B. Duntley and will continue business at the old stand. Billy Davis will still be found at his old place at the Board of Trade.

Wm. McManus was up from Duluth this week to observe the many improvements that have been going on in Crookston since he lived here. He has been making big money in iron stocks.

The enterprise of the Fosston people in getting up a fair deserves encouragement by a liberal patronage, and the JOURNAL hopes to see a big turnout from Crookston. Everybody go and enjoy a good time.

Great improvement is noticable on the Great Northern yard already, and the grading is only fairly commenced. When completed it will make a great change, not only in the yard itself, but also in the grade in and out of the city.

Mrs. R. J. Montague left for Rochester, Minn., Sunday evening. Mr. Montague accompanied her as far as Mankato, where he delivered an address Monday evening and has been speaking at different places in that section during the week.

Bob Leick has been having a severe time with felons—has had s'ten of 'em or such a matter in his fist and says he begins to have "that tired feeling." He bears up nobly under the infliction and will no doubt be on deck again at an early day.

Mrs. E. E. Bangs closes out her millsnery business this week and will soon leave for California where she goes to make her future home with a wealthy brother there. Her many friends here will regret to see her go and will unite with the JOURNAL in bidding her a heatry God speed and a safe journey.

The new Fournet block is rapidly approaching completion. The flats are nearly ready for occupancy and the JOURNAL learns that Conductor Copeland, Frank Gravel and J. F. Creamer have spoken for quarters therein. The rooms are very elegatly fitted up with all of the modern improvements. This block will be among the finest in the city when completed.

P. L. Ramstad, the republican candidate for the legislature, was up from Norman county on Monday. Mr. Ramstad owns and works a large farm near Ada and has a fine lot of thoroughbred Shropshire sheep, which, he says, is the the most profitable property a farmer can keep in this country. Elsewhere he gives notice in this issue of a number that he offers for sale. Write him for terms at Ada, Norman county.

Rev. R. H. Battey tendered his resignation as pastor of the Congregational church, on Sunday last, requesting immediate action. Mr. Battey has been an indefatigable worker, and it would be hard to find a man who could do more good, hard, solid work for the church than he has. What action the church will take in the matter we are unable to say. Mr. Battey has made many warm friends in this city who will regret to see him go should the church decide that it is best to make the change.

Fur trimmed jackets at A. Sture's, only $6.50.

Everybody agrees that this is lovely weather.

All wool ingrain carpets, 57cts. at Fontaine & Anglim's.

Arne Higdem was over from the west-side on Thursday.

An apprentice wanted at Mrs. I. U. Jennings' millinery store.

Our $1.00, $1.25 and $1.50 corsets for 72cts. at Fontaine & Anglim's.

A pleasant social hop was held at McKinnon's hall on Monday evening.

A 10-4 grey blanket will cost you only 69cts. at Fontaine & Anglim's.

You can buy a genuine lambskin biarritz glove for 59 cts. at Fontaine & Anglim's.

Quite a number of the residents of East Grand Forks were in the city on Tuesday.

Wm. Davidson, the manager of the Keystone farm, was doing business in the city Saturday.

I. U. Jennings will sell bedsteads for $2.25 until Oct. 15th, if you will bring this advertisement with you.

Do you want a good pair of blankets? If so, do not purchase before you have seen those at A. Sture's.

You can buy the new improved American sewing machine at I. U. Jennings' furniture store for thirty dollars.

Mrs. Chas. Stanton arrived last week from Salt Lake City for a visit with Mrs. C. E. Dampier and friends in the city.

Alderman J. E. Morrisey went up to Thief River Falls way for a big hunt on Monday. Expected to be gone several days.

Large stock of dry goods just received. Come in and look them over before you go elsewhere. Prices guaranteed. A. STURE.

Mayor McAdam, of East Grand Forks, has issued an order to the saloon keepers of that city to close their places of business at 11 o'clock p. m. each night.

N. W. Frame came up from Illinois last week to look after his interests in Polk county. He is well pleased with the improvements he notes in our city since his last visit.

You may never have such an opportunity again to purchase dry goods, clothing, carpets, boots and shoes, at sacrifice prices as you will have at A. Chabot's next Saturday.

Remember A. Chabot moves back to his former stand next Monday, and if you are in need of anything in his line, call next Saturday and you will get such bargains as you never heard of before.

Ladies, call at the fashionable millinery parlors of Veronneau & Adams and examine those pattern hats and their elegant stock of fall millinery. Opening days Friday and Saturday of this week.

The Wade—LeRoyle Comedy company will appear at the Grand opera house next Monday evening for a week's engagement. This company comes well recommended and our theatre-going people are promised a rare treat.

Do not wait for that statement of account, but if you are in arrears on subscription call and settle. Owing to the new partnership arrangement we are obliged to insist upon a settlement of all past due subscription accounts this fall.

Judge Benson was out to Mentor last Sunday and happened along just in time to help fight a terrible prairie fire which was sweeping over the country between Mentor and Grove Park. He reports that Louis Vallom's house, granary and stables were destroyed by the fire.

In the list of candidates nominated at the republican county convention, the name of G. H. Palmer for court commissioner, was inadvertently ommitted in the JOURNAL. It is the last nomination on the ticket but by no means the least. Mr. Palmer needs no introduction to the people of Polk county, and his election is assured.

Veronneau & Adams desire to call the attention of our lady readers to a nice new fall stock of millinery goods fresh from Chicago and eastern cities. All of the very latest novelties in stock and prices that cannot be duplicated in Crookston. We have no shop-worn goods to sell at cost but we are selling our new stock at prices as low as any in the city. Call and see us before you purchase, if you desire the latest styles at lowest figures. Our specialties this fall are the best goods at low prices.
VERONNEAU & ADAMS.

The centre wall between the stores formerly occupied by A. Chabot and J. E. O'Brien and Co., in the Fournet block, has been removed and the large, handsome apartment thus created will be occupied next Monday by A. Chabot, with his immense stock of dry goods. Mr. Chabot's motto is small profits and quick returns, and by square dealing he has built up his business until he has been forced to [illegible] his quarters in order to accommodate the trade.

THE RACES.

Secretary Wyatt Announces the Names of the Horses Entered For the Races.

A Long List of Flyers, that will Certainly be Here and Complete.

Don't Forget the Dates, Mon., Tues. and Wed., October 10, 11 and 12.

Announcement.

October 10, 11, and 12, 1892, has been set apart by the executive board of directors of the "No 1 hard racing circuit" for the fall meeting of the Northern Minnesota Agricultural and Driving Association of Crookston, Minn., to be held at Crookston. We expect to have the greatest trotting and pacing meeting the Crookston citizens have ever witnessed here. This association has left nothing undone to afford the public the highest type of amusement and all may attend and feel at home in their surroundings.

It is but little more than 18 months since this association was formed and today the grounds, stables, grand and judges stand and other accessories that are nearing completion are not excelled by those of any association in the Red River valley." Not only has this work been done in the short time mentioned, but work which had been done some twelve months ago had to be remodelled owing to the fact that it was not in accordance with the rules and regulations of the American Trotting Association of the United States and Canada. All this has cost thousands of dollars and unceasing toil. It has been done for the love of the noble horse and the grand sport racing affords when conducted and patronized by citizens and farmers who wish to promote the welfare of the people of Crookston and vicinity, by encouraging the farmer in his pursuits and to create a spirit of energy and enterprise among our citizens generally. We wish to bring the farmers together so that they may exchange ideas about matters concerning their interests.

We propose as soon as practicable to adopt a county fair in the interest of the farmer to assit him to display the product of the soil and exhibit his live stock and also to give the farmers wife an opportunity of displaying specimens of her handiwork and enjoying the amusement and recreation attainable on such an occasion. As yet we have been unable to give attention only to horse racing at these meetings owing to financial embarrassment, but in 1893 we feel confident that we will hold a county Fair.

At this time and while the work is nearing completion we are arranging for a meeting of trotting and pacing stock which not only be a credit to the promoters and members of this association, but that shall afford the citizens and lovers of the light harness horse an opportunity to see the best and fastest horses perform that have as yet visited Crookston. The entries to the coming meeting (except running) have just been closed, and while it is yet too early to give a detailed list of all that will be here, the following list (incomplete) insures us a meeting that will excel any yet given in this city.

Arrangements have been made with owners of livery and also hackmen as to fare to the grounds which are as follows:

Hacks	25 cents,	for adults,
Carriages	25 "	" "
Light wagons	15 cents	" "
Wagons	10 cents	" "

Admission to the grounds as follows:

Tickets for each person 15 years and over 50 cts.

Tickets for children under 15 yrs. 15c.

Tickets for one or two horse vehicle 25c.

Licenses for hacks; carriages; light wagons; wagons and vehicles for conveying passengers to and from the grounds will be issued free; provided charges for fare of passengers are not in excess of above list. Any driver who charges more than above will pay $5.00 per day for license to the association grounds.

In all cases no tickets will be given with licenses of any kind. No person shall be allowed to sell or give away articles on the fair grounds of this association during the meeting until the license for the privilege shall have been paid to, and a receipt therefore obtained from the secretary. Special police will be in and about the grounds to protect the association rights and the welfare of all who attend the meeting.

The entries for the one mile running and ½ mile pony race are not yet closed and will not be until the night proceeding running races. Will be pleased to receive local entries in these classes. Below is an incomplete list of entries in the trotting and pacing classes.

LIST OF ENTRIES.

2:29 CLASS, TROT.

Name	Color and Sex.	Entered By.	Residence.
Michael	Bay Geld.	M. T. Grattan.	Preston, Minn.
Billy Brown.	Black Geld.	George M Webb.	Winnipeg, Manitoba.
Alkali	Bay Geld	H. H. Budgett.	Long Prairie, Minn.
Keller V.		Mathews & Stringer.	Fergus Falls, Minn.
ONE-HALF MILE TROT AND PACE—FARMERS' HORSES OWNED IN POLK COUNTY.
Dick.	Sorrel Geld.	Thomas Young.	Crookston, Minn.
Belle B.	Brown Mare	F. Bivins.	Crookston, Minn.
Nellie.	Sorrel Mare	N. Erschfield.	Crookston, Minn.
Black Jack.	Black Geld.	J. Farewell.	Louisville, Minn.
Grey Ned.	Grey Geld.	Wm. Cousin.	Fisher, Minn.
2:35 CLASS PACE.
Sam Cox.	B. Geld.	W. Boran.	Independence, Iowa.
Alice Stanton.	Bay Mare.	H. H. Budgett.	Long Prairie, Minn.
Ned V.	Bay Stallion.	Charles Vesberg.	Utica, Michigan.
Perfection.	Bay Mare	P. Martin.	Farmington, Minn.
Billy Bashaw.	Ches Stallion.	L. F. Rowell	Tracey, Minn.
Jessy Green.	Buckskin Mare.	J. H. Brannon.	Millbank, South Dakota.
2:45 CLASS TROT.
Allie Graham.	Bay Geld.	J. Dennie.	Grand Forks, North Dakota.
Grey Prince.	Grey Geld.	Sheldon, Bros	Alexandria, Minn.
No-Ne.	Bay Mare.	Longstreet & Lindsay.	Winnipeg, Manitoba.
Louisa B	Black Mare.	L. Jacobsen.	St. Paul, Minn.
Lady Rab.	Black Mare.	James Curl.	Tracy, Minn.
Belle Lecroix	Brown Mare.	C. P. Gove.	Anoka, Minn.
Ladd.	Bay Geld.	C. Corby.	Park River, Minn.
2:34 CLASS TROT.
Allie Graham	By. Gelding	J. Dennie	Grand Forks N. D.
Madge.	By. Mare	H. H. Budgett	Long Prairie, Minn.
Billy Bashaw.	Chestnut Stal.	L. F. Rowell.	Tracey, Minn.
Avon Girl.	Bay Mare.	George M. Webb.	Winnipeg, Manitoba.
Nellie.	Black Mare	H. Thompson.	Crookston, Minn.
FREE FOR ALL PACE.
Sam Cox		W. Roran.	Independence, Iowa.
Tommy Lynn.	Brown Gelding.	H. H. Budgett.	Long Prairie, Minn.
Perfection.	Bay Mare.	P. Martin.	Farmington, Minn.
FREE FOR ALL TROT.
Lulo.	Bay Stallion.	Chas. Vosberg.	Utica, Michigan.
Captain Lee.	Bay Stallion.	C. G. Church.	Watertown, S. D.
King Princeps.		G. G. Mathews.	Fergus Falls, Minn.
THREE MINUTE CLASS TROT.
Pation Boy.	Bay Stallion.	Byers & Hill.	Grand Forks, N. D.
Belle Lecroix.	Brown Mare.	C. P. Gove.	Anoka, Minn.
Una Young.	Bay Mare.	George M. Webb.	Winnipeg, Manitoba.
Flossie D.	Bay Mare.	Jno. Causino.	Ben-on, Minn.
Louisa B.	Black Mare	L. Jacobsen.	St. Paul, Minn.
P. J.	Bay Gelding.	P. J. LaChapelle.	Crookston, Minn.
Ladd.	Bay Gelding.	C. Corby.	Park River, N. D.

With attractions like these we hope to see the meeting well attended by the citizens of Crookston and vicinity and the farmers of Polk County.

Yours truly,

J. V. E. WYATT, Secretary.

I. U. Jennings: While driving out last Sunday with Mrs. Jennings we came upon a large deer lying in the grass about ten miles south of Carman. "Max," our dog, chased it for about 80 rods, and then concluded he didn't want it.

A. J. Lindquist, the expert window trimmer of the Fair department store, left Tuesday night for Davenport, Iowa, where he has accepted a position as window trimmer for Hained, Pursell & Van Maur. Mr. Lindquist acquired the art of window dressing in The Fair, and has made such a success of it as to secure him a good position.

The Wilson Theatre Company closed a week's engagement at the Grand on Saturday evening in "Ticket of Leave Man." This is a piece that calls out the full power of the company and it was well played. The matinee on Saturday afternoon was well attended and Little Dot Farley as "Topsy" and little Flo Farley, as "Eva" won golden opinions, the balance of the company ably supporting them. The Wilson company is an excellent one, deserving of a much better patronage than they had here. They left on Sunday evening for a week's engagement at Fargo.

The largest assortment of new hanging lamps at Locken & Holmboe's.

Only one place in town where ladies' shoes are sold at cost. Locken's shoe store on Robert street.

I. U. Jennings has for sale at his furniture store, No. 21 Main street, 12 styles patent swing rockers 30 styles other rockers, 20 styles chamber sets, 15 styles bureaus, 20 center tables, 20 styles other tables, folding beds, book cases, hall racks, spring mattresses, pillows, mirrors, lounges, bed lounges, parlor suits, picture frames, and everything necessary to furnish a house in suitable style and guarantees to sell at from 5 to 10 per cent. less than the same goods can be bought for at any other place in this city. But how can you do this? you ask. Answer, because I buy for cash and pay twelve dollars per month rent as against fifty to seventy-five paid by other dealers.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report.

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

A large and elegant stock of fall and winter millinery has arrived at Mrs. I. U. Jennings' millinery store where she will be found ready to show you all the latest styles and novelties in that line. Japanese goods are an attraction at her store.

A two-year-old child of Henry Johnson, who lives near Maple Lake, was shot last Thursday, but it is still a mystery who shot him. His parents had gone out and left the child in the house with an older brother. In the corner of the room stood a loaded gun. When the parents returned they found the child dead on the floor, and they also found the gun in the corner, but it had been discharged.

Frank Arnold left for the east this week to accept a situation with a theatre company. Frank told our reporter that he had two offers, one from a company that starts from Chicago and another from one that starts from Philadelphia and he had not fully decided which to accept though he thought it probable that he would go out ahead of the Philadelphia company as had been with that company before and liked it.

Grand Opening.

Veronneau & Adams desire to announce to the ladies of Crookston and vicinity that they will have their grand fall opening of millinery on Friday and Saturday of this week and invite their lady friends to call and inspect their fine stock. Low prices a specialty.

The Wade-Leroyle company will be seen all next week at the Grand in a list of new plays. They will present on Monday evening "Linked By Law." A comedy drama in four acts. The following is what the Mankato Free Press has to say:

The Wade-Leroyle Comedy Company appeared at the opera house last evening and gave a good entertainment. Mr. Leroyle and Miss Wade are both artists in their particular lines. Miss Wade is especially pleasing. Her facility in characters impersonation is remarkable, and in last evening's entertainment she assured several different characters of costume and passed with many of the auditors for as many different persons. In this particular Miss Wade is superior to any actress who has appeared before a Mankato audience. Throughout the entertainment was pleasing, sparkling with fresh humor which kept the audience happy from start to finish. We heartily recommend the Wade-Leroyle party as worthy of the patronage of everyone who can enjoy a pure, pleasing and merry performance.—(Mankato "Free Press" Minn.)

Sale of seats, opens Saturday morning at Tom Morris' jewelry store.

Cloaks.

Two thousand one hundred dollars worth of women's, misses and children's cloaks and wraps were sent us this week by a wholesale cloak house that was overstocked, with instructions to sell them at any price. This is the best opportunity to secure a good winter cloak at your own price. Come early and secure a good choice. The Fair, corner Main and Robert streets.

$1.00

A WEEK WILL BUY ANY

CLOAK,

JACKET

or SACQUE

In our immense stock, and if you consider it a little too early for these goods, by making a cash payment of $1.00 we would be too pleased to reserve them for you until required.

WE QUOTE AS SAMPLE VALUES.

40 inch Plush Sacqes, satin lined.........................$9 50
Plush Jackets, 32 inches long, fur trimmed.......... 7 50
BlackDiagonal Jacket, 32 inches long, all wool... 4 50
Fancy Bk Cloth Jacket, Melton reefer, satin faced 8 50
Novelties in Colored Cloth Jackets...................... 6 00
$7.50, $10.00, $12.00, and by easy steps as high as $45.00.

Children's Garments.

Too, for the little ones of 1, 2, 3, 4, 6. 8, 10 and 12 years, and Misses garments for all ages. The cloths are right, the trimmings harmonize and the

GARMENTS WILL FIT.

Fontaine & Anglim.

IT MEANS BUSINESS.

I have never been so busy as at present, which speaks well for the manner in which my business is conducted. There is no friction. Mistakes do not pay, so I do not provide for them. I am giving satisfaction to all my customers. That means I am giving Prompt Service, Low Prices and Good Work. I have the handsomest and best selected stock, and if business is what I expect it to be this fall,

GOODS MUST MOVE.

C. H. SAAKE, Practical Watchmaker and Jeweler.

Polk County Journal.

Historical Society
MINNESOTA
HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

VOL. XVI. CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY, OCT. 13, 1892. NO. 26

Crookston Furniture Co.

Undertakers

—AND—

Funeral Directors.

SECOND STREET, Next to Times Office, CROOKSTON, MINN.

—COMPLETE STOCK OF—

CASKETS, COFFINS, ROBES, BURIAL SUPPLIES.

A Beautiful New Hearse has just been received. Parties desiring the use of the same will leave orders with us.

☞ Telegraph orders promptly and casefully filled. ☜

R. G. WOODHAM, Undertaker and Embalmer.

REPORT OF THE CONDITION

—OF THE—

Merchants' National Bank,

At Crookston, in the State of Minnesota, at the close of business, September 30th, 1892.

RESOURCES.

Loans and discounts	$182 095 92
Overdrafts, secured and unsecured	2,668 88
U. S. Bonds to secure circulation	19,000 00
Stocks, securities, etc	4.539 53
Due from approved reserve agents	15,864 74
Due from State Banks and bankers	3,165 29
Banking-house, furniture and fixtures	20,000 00
Other real estate and mortgages owned	22,180 70
Current expenses and taxes paid	4,750 68
Premiums on U. S. bonds	1,770 00
Checks and other cash items	497 78
Bills of other banks	630 00
Fractional paper currency, nickels, and cents	155 81
Specie	6,861 00
Legal-tender notes	2,500 00
Redemption fund with U. S. Treasurer (five per cent. of circulation)	855 00
Total	$287,034 31

LIABILITIES.

Capital stock paid in	$ 75,000 00
Surplus fund	2,500 00
Undivided profits	9,475 24
National Bank notes outstanding	17,100 00
Individual deposits subject to check	68,014 81
Demand certificates of deposit	79,635 16
Cashier's checks outstanding	9 60
Notes and bills re-discounted	35,300 00
Total	$287,034 31

STATE OF MINNESOTA, }
County of Polk, } ss.

I, A. D. Stephens, Cashier of the above-named bank, do solemnly swear that the above statement is true to the best of my knowledge and belief.

A. D. STEPHENS, Cashier.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 7th day of October, 1892.

{Notary Seal.} WM. A. LANCTOT,
Notary Public,
Polk County, Minn.

Correct—Attest:
JOHN CROMB,
HUGH THOMPSON, } Directors.
A. BRALEY,

The "Limited" train on The Northwestern Line," leaving Minneapolis 7:25 p. m., St. Paul 8:25 p. m. and arriving Milwaukee 7:25 a. m., Chicago 9:30 a. m., is now equipped with Wagner Compartment Cars in addition to Standard Sleepers, and also with Buffet Smoking and Library Cars.

This is the finest equipped train in America, is the only train of its kind west of Chicago, and no extra fare is charged on this "Northwestern Limited."

By "The Northwestern Line" you also have advantage of fast day train, leaving Minneapolis 7:15 a. m. and St. Paul 7:55 a. m., arriving Milwaukee 7:55 p. m., Chicago, 9:35 p. m., also an afternoon train, leaving Minneapolis 4:35 p. m., St. Paul 5:15 p. m., arriving at Chicago 8:00 a. m

"The Nortwestern Line" is also the only Pullman Car Line from St. Paul and Minneapolis, Sioux City, Omaha, Kansas City, Duluth and Ashland.

For luxury and comfort, best equipment and road bed, secure ticket via "The Northwestern Line," they are on sale at all stations. Illustrated Map Folder free on application to

T. W. TEASDALE
Gen. Pass. Agent,
[20tf] St. Paul, Minn.

Attention, Sheep Farmers!

The undersigned has a few thoroughbred

SHROPSHIRE RAM LAMBS

For sale at his farm near Ada, in county. Call on or address

PETER RAMSTAD, Ada,
[25-28] Norman Co., Minn.

REPORT OF THE CONDITION

—OF THE—

Scandia-American Bank

At Crookston, in the State of Minnesota, on the 30th day of September, 1892.

RESOURCES.

Loans and Discounts	$210,140.40
Overdrafts	1,347.74
Due from other banks	20,824.11
Furniture and fixtures	1,200.00
Current expenses and taxes paid	5,730.43
Cash on hand	11,096.93
Total	$259,339.63

LIABILITIES.

Capital stock	$50,000.00
Surplus fund	5,000.00
Undivided profits	23,019.67
Individual deposits subject to check	69,900.59
Demand certificates of deposit	78,919.37
Bills Payable	32,500.00
Total	$259,339.63

I. J. W. Wheeler, Cashier of the Scandia-American Bank, of Crookston, Minnesota, do solemnly swear that the above statement is true to the best of my knowledge and belief.

J. W. WHEELER, Cashier.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, }
County of Polk, } SS.

Sworn and subscribed to before me this 8th day of October, 1892.

{SEAL.} H. STEENERSON,
Notary Public.

Correct—Attest:
O. H. LUCKEN,
L. ELLINGTON.

U. S. LAND OFFICE.
Crookston, Minn., October 11th, 1892.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register or Receiver U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 28th, 1892, viz: Henry Huot, Hd. No. 12,003, for the ne¼ sw¼ and lots 4, 5 and 6, Tp. 151, R. 45. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Joseph Pepin, Joseph Boivin, Narcisse Mircault, Paul Mathew, all of Huot P. O., Minn.

[26-31] HUGH THOMPSON, Register.

FITS—All fits stopped free by Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. No Fits after first day's use. Marvelous cures. Treatise and $2.00 trial bottle free to Fit cases. Send to Dr. Kline, 931 Arch St. Phila., Pa. For sale by all druggists; call on yours.

COUGHING LEADS TO CONSUMPTION
Kemp's Balsam stops the cough at once.

Ladies, just examine those 89 cent kid gloves at the New York store. They're cheap in price but not in quality.

Cloaks! cloaks! at A. Sture's. Give us a call.

McIntosh News:—A. D. Stephens, of the Merchants' Bank, of Crookston, is doing business in the village today.—J. Wooden, one of the old residents of the town of King, is visiting his brother-in-law, Guy E. Pratt, this week.—I. K. Messelt, of the town of Winger, has sold his farm, and will sell his household goods and farm machinery at public auction on Saturday, Oct. 29th.—Andrew Adams has sold his farm near McIntosh, to Attorney Brattland and Knute Hofto. And so it goes; the farmers are letting their farms slip away from them and do not seem to understand why there is no profit in farming.—John R. McKinnon was nominated by the democratic party on Wednesday last, for representative from this district. John is losing no time campaigning but is selling threshing machines the same as ever. He was doing business in our village yesterday.—Erskine has now six general stores, two hardware stores and two hotels. L. F. Benson and P. A. Blackstad have just opened a large stock of general merchandise at their new store, while Ole Narveson carries one of the largest and best selected stocks of hardware in eastern Polk county. Erskine has a good class of farmers to do business with and will soon push to the front as one of the thriving villages of the county.

THE RACES.

The Fall Meeting of the Northern Minnesota Agricultural and Driving Association,

Was a Success in Every Way Except From a Financial Point of View.

Horses with Records were here From all Over the State of Minnesota.

The Weather was Perfect, the Racing Fine and the Attendance Miserable.

The fall meeting of the Northern Minnesota Agricultural and Driving Association, held October 10, 11, and 12, was not a howling success from a financial point of view.

The managers of the association have expended about $4000 on their grounds, buildings and track and the horsemen who attend the meeting acknowledged that the track is the fastest in the northwest.

A fine string of flyers were here from all over the country, and the racing was the best ever seen on the Crookston track, but the audience was very light and the association is much discouraged by the treatment accorded them by the citizens of Crookston. Just imagine the expense the association has gone to in fencing their grounds, building a splendid covered grand stand, putting up stables and grading the track—which latter has cost over $2000 alone—then the best horses in the country were provided as attractions, the weather was perfect, and the gate receipts the first day reached the magnificent sum of $40.00. Isn't that encouragement for an enterprise of this kind?

The object of the association is not personal gain. The promoters of the enterprise expected to share in the general benefit which accrues to the city from these race meetings. No one is to be benefitted more than another, and every citizen who is interested in the welfare of the city should be interested in these meetings.

FIRST DAY.

There were three entries in the first race—a 2:29 trot. Keller V. by G. G. Mathews, the veteran driver of the northwest; Allie Graham by T. Hill and Alkali by H. H. Budgett. Keller V. was the favorite and the bookmakers offered odds of 7 to 1 on Keller V. with scarcely any takers. The first and second heats were won by Keller V. but the third by Allie Graham. In the fourth heat Keller V. was sent around for a record, and ran right away from the other horses, making the mile in 2:29¼. It was a fine sight to see this horse going round the track, never once breaking but working like a piece of mechanism. Alkali looked like a horse that might do good work but his driver couldn't keep him on his feet. Keller V. took first money, Allie Graham second, Alkali third.

Four horses were entered in the farmers' ½ mile trot; Tom Young's Dick, Walter Bivens' Belle B., N. Erschfield's Nellie, and L. Charon's Sorry Sorrel. Dick was the favorite and he won the first and second heats in a way that made everybody think he had a sure thing on the race. But in the third heat Belle B. won by a neck, and in the fourth and fifth heats Dick had fallen so far behind that Nellie—the third horse in the race—crowded him for second place. Sorry Sorrel is a fine specimen of a family carriage horse but is not suited for the race track. Belle B. won the race. Dick second, Nellie third and Sorry Sorrel fourth. Time 1:29¼.

SECOND DAY.

There were four starters in the three minute trot: Patron Boy, Ladd, P. J. and Ole Olson. P. J. was withdrawn by his owner, P. J. La Chapelle, at the end of second heat on account of lameness. Four heats were trotted, and the race was won by Ole Olson, with Ladd second, and Patron Boy 3d. Time 2:41

The next event was the attraction of the day. For some time G. G. Mathews of Fergus Falls, the best horseman in the northwest, has had Hugh Thompson's mare Nellie in training, and has trotted her in the diffent towns in the No. 1 hard circuit. She made a record of 2:31 at Hillsboro N. D. and Mr. Mathews had guaranteed to make her lower this record on the Crookston track, and he kept his word. She trotted a splendid mile making a neat finish in 2:18 thus knocking three seconds off her record. This makes her a standard mare, and Mr. Thompson is justly proud of his mare and her record.

In the 2:25 pace there were two starters: Abdallah and Jessie Green. Four heats were paced, and the race resulted, Jessie Green 1st, Abdallah 2d. Time 2:29¼.

The ¾ mile dash for running horses was won by Crab Cider, with Little John second. Time 1:24.

DRAINING THE RED RIVER VALLEY.

The Red river valley embraces an extensive alluvial plain of exceedingly fertile soil, a large portion of it so nearly flat that it has no natural drainage, the few streams which permeate it performing that office only for a narrow belt along their courses. The result is that a large proportion of its richest areas is unavailable for agricultural purposes and in wet seasons farming over a large part of the cultivated areas is rendered unprofitable. In view of the extraordinary agricultural capabilities of this great level expanse if rendered available by a proper system of drainage a movement was organized six years ago in the Minnesota counties of the Red river valley to secure legislative aid for an extensive system of drainage. A convention was held at Crookston in July, 1886, to discuss the matter. At this session Mr. J. J. Hill, president of the Great Northern, proposed that a survey of the valley be made and offered to pay one-half of the expenses of such survey if the counties interested would pay the other half. This proposition was adopted. A committee was designated to see that a thorough topographical survey was made, and a drainage commission was appointed consisting of one representative of each of the counties concerned. The topographical survey was made by experienced hydraulic and drainage engineers, and in the December following their reports were made to the re-assembled convention, accompanied by maps and statistics showing the areas requiring drainage and the amount of money necessary to accomplish it. The survey covered the six Minnesota counties in the Red River valley, viz.: Wilkin, Clay, Norman, Polk, Marshall and Kittson, whose combined area is about 5,250,000 acres. Of this area the engineers found that at least two million acres would eventually require drainage to some extent, while one and a half million acres of the six counties will remain almost valueless until drained. A scheme of drainage was proposed consisting of main ditches which, if constructed, would reclaim over 808,600 acres at a cost of $746,288. These plans were subsequently modified so as to require less expenditure, and efforts were made at the next session of the legislature to procure a state appropriation based upon the very liberal offer of Mr. J. J. Hill, representing the Great Northern to pay one-half the cost of carrying out the plans of drainage if the state or the counties or both would pay the other half. Subsequently he made a still more liberal offer; but the attempt to secure legislative aid at that time failed.

The movement was not vigorously pushed in the following years partly, perhaps, owing to a succession of dry years; but the conditions of the present season have been such as to give it a new and powerful impulse. For there has never been a year in the history of the Red river valley when the necessity for a general system of drainage has been so apparent as the present. The spring was an exceedingly wet one, and seeding was delayed in the low and wet districts till it was too late. The reports from the threshing machines show that while the wheat yield reached from 20 to 25 bushels per acre in the areas adjacent to the rivers and coulies, it is exceedingly small elsewhere, often as low as 4 and 5 bushels per acre, so that the average yield of these counties will not exceed 7 or 8 bushels per acre. Over three million bushels of wheat was lost this year in five counties for want of drainage. The people of these counties never before felt so strongly the necessity of legislative aid for this purpose, and the republicans of Polk and Norman counties have accordingly nominated as one of the three representatives from that district one of the strongest and ablest men in that section, Mr. Halvor Steenerson, to represent them in the house, in the belief that he will be able to secure the needed legislation. He was nominated upon a platform and which gives a conspicuous prominence to these resolutions:

Third—That, whereas, it was provided by act of congress, granting swamp lands to this state as follows: "The proceeds of said lands, whether from sale or direct appropriation in kind, shall be applied exclusively so far as necessary to the reclaiming of said lands by means of levees and drains," and,

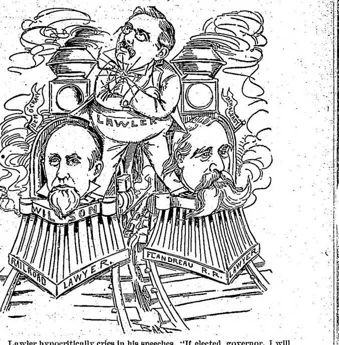
Whereas, large tracts of the lands so donated in trust to the state are located within this legislative district; and

Whereas, they have heretofore been appropriated by the state for other purposes than those expressed in the grant.

Now, therefore, we affirm that the sovereign state of Minnesota is morally and in good faith bound to make good this misapplication of these lands by adequate appropriations for the construction of requisite main drains, and clearing and widening of the natural channels and water courses of the state for proper drainage and reclamation of said lands, and we enjoin upon our legislative nominees (if elected) to use their best efforts and influence to induce the legislature to honor this our just claim.

Mr. Steenerson is an able lawyer and it will be seen from the above that he is prepared to base his claim for an adequate appropriation for the drainage of the Red river valley upon the invincibly strong position that the state has deliberately diverted the proceeds of the large areas of swamp lands in that valley, amounting to 250,000 acres, from the purpose to which they were dedicated by congress—that is, to the drainage of the swamp and overflowed lands—to devote them to purposes wholly alien to the subject and have been donated chiefly to railroads, and what was left to other purposes, but not an acre has been used to carry out the specific objects of the grant. They were granted to the state, we repeat, in trust for one purpose and one only—that their proceeds should be applied exclusively to the reclaiming of swamp and overflowed lands. The position of Mr. Steenerson, would, therefore, seem to be impregnable that the state is bound to make good to the counties of the Red river valley this misappropriation of its swamp lands by adequate appropriations for the construction of main drains and other expedients for the reclamation of those lands.

The people of those counties are very fortunate in the selection of so able an advocate as Mr. Steenerson to plead their cause before the representatives of the sovereign state of Minnesota in the legislature assembled. The question is one of the vital interest to the people of the Red river valley, and they will have already made a most hopeful progress towards the realization of a proper drainage system in the election of a man so capable of presenting all the economical as well as all the legal arguments in its favor. As a matter of fact, it can be shown that the reclamation of the lands would be worth to the state many times what it would cost to drain them. The arguments are so strong on every side for state aid that it only needs a man of first rate ability and forensic force and skill like Steenerson to present them to the legislature to give them a weight which ought to be decisive.—Pioneer Press.



Lawler hypocritically cries in his speeches, "If elected governor, I will enter the State house through the suffrages of the people and not on the cow catcher of a locomotive." Bah! Mr. Lawler, the voters know that your candidacy was conceived by railway magnates, and your election is now being earnestly advocated from the stump by the noted railroad attorneys, Judge Wilson and Judge Flandreau. If you enter the State house it will be on the cow catchers of two locomotives rather than one, and then you will be "no man's man and wear no man's collar" (in a horn).

Minton Holmes, a prominent citizen of St. Hilaire, died at his residence at St. Hilaire on Sunday of consumption. Mr. Holmes was one of the first settlers of that village and was for some time a partner with C. G. Rapp. Several years ago he was admonished that that insiduous disease, consumption had marked him for its victim so he went to California and later on to Norway in hopes to throw it off. He seemed to be successful and in Norway he married returning to St. Hilaire last September. The funeral services were conducted on Monday afternoon. Mr. H. leaves a young wife and many friends to mourn his untimely death.

Fertile Journal:—Trade is picking up with our merchants.—County Surveyor Hamery is doing some work in town.—The flag for the school house has arrived. It is 14 feet long and 8 feet wide and is made of standard wool bunting. It cost $11.20.—Freight Conductor Davis had his foot smashed while working in the yards at Winnipeg Junction one day last week. He was laid up for some time.—Mrs. X. Sohler and children are visiting in town a few days previous to starting for California, where Mr. S. has been for some time. Mr. Sohler has gone into the flouring mill business again.—Dr. A. Nelson will soon commence the erection of an elegant two story frame store building on Washington Ave. The building will be 24x60 and 24 foot high with flat roof. The lower room will be used for the drug store and post-office and the upper rooms for living apartments.

"Hail, Columbia!"

That is what old Christopher Columbus probably would have sung, on the 14th day of October, 1492. The way had been long and weary, groping in the dark for the unknown, and these shores, no doubt, seemed a "happy land" to him. Poor servant of an effete monarchy, he never could have believed, had he been told that four hundred years from that morning his discovery would be celebrated at a place to be called Chicago, by a people numbering sixty millions, who had no king over them. Christopher's mistake was that he did not become a citizen, and grow up with the country, instead of going back to Spain to feel the ingratitude of a monarchy. We shall celebrate on the 20th, because some few hundred years ago Pope Gregory turned forward the hands on the clock of time, and what was then the 14th is now the 20th. When you go to Chicago to witness the ceremonies Oct. 20th to 22nd. buy your tickets over the Burlington, at a reduced rate, as the best, quickest, and most comfortable line. Apply to your home agent, or address, W. J. C. Kenyon, General Passenger Agent, St. Paul, Minn.

A Sample of One of the Ballots to be Used at the Coming Election.

Congressional, Legislative, Judicial and County Ticket.

(To be printed on BLUE paper)

Put an X mark in the space indicated by the index ☞
Congressman Seventh District—HENRY FEIG—Republican.		Vote for 1 only
Congressman Seventh District—W. F. KELSO—Democrat.
Congressman Seventh District—H. E. BOEN—People's Party.
Congressman Seventh District—
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—HALVOR STEENERSON—Republican.		Vote for three only
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—LARS E. NORDBY—Republican.
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—PETER RAMSTAD—Republican.
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—JOHN R. McKINNON—Democrat.
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—OLE NYGAARD—Democrat.
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—JACOB H. NESS—Democrat.
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—J. D. KNUTESON—People's Party.
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—B. M. CHESLEY—People's Party.
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—O. E. OLSON—People's Party.
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—
Judge 14th Judicial District—IRA B. MILLS—Independent.		Vote for one only
Judge 14th Judicial District—FRANK IVES—People's Party.
Judge 14th Judicial District—
County Auditor—W. A. LANCTOT—Republican.		Vote for one only
County Auditor—J. M. HANSON—Democrat.
County Auditor—C. U WEBSTER—People's Party.
County Auditor—
County Treasurer—LEWIS LOHN—Republican.		Vote for one only
County Treasurer—L. C. COUVRETTE—Democrat.
County Treasurer—J. T. BEAUDRY—People's Party.
County Treasurer—
Register of Deeds—NIC NELSON—Repuplican,		Vote for one only
Register of Deeds—ADAM ZEH—Democrat.
Register of Deeds—J. AMUNDSON—People's Party.
Register of Deeds—
County Attorney—IRA C. RICHARDSON—Republican.		Vote for one only
County Attorney—P. G. FALARDEAU—Democrat.
County Attorney—A. R. HOLSTON—People's Party.
County Attorney—
Sheriff—JAS. M. BAIN—Republican.		Vote for one only
Sheriff—A. C. SCHMIDT—Democrat.
Sheriff—ARNE GRUNDYSEN—People's Party.
Sheriff—
Judge of Probate—R. J. MONTAGUE—Republican.		Vote for one only
Judge of Probate—P. J. RUSSELL—Democrat.
Judge of Probate—C. M. BENSON—People's Party.
Judge of Probate—
Superintendent of Schools—V. D. CARRUTH—Republican.		Vote for one only
Superintendent of Schools—A. A. LOMMEN—People's Party.
Superintendent of Schools—
Surveyor—GEO. RALPH—Republican.		Vote for one only
Surveyor—P. EMARD—Democrat,
Surveyor—
Surveyor—
Court Commissioner—G. H. PALMER—Republican.		Vote for one only
Court Commissioner—W. H. AVERILL—Democrat.
Court Commissioner—
Coroner—GEO. HOLT—Republican.		Vote for one only
Coroner—HENRY SHEPARD—Democrat.
Coroner—HENRY SHEPARD—People's Party.
Coroner—
County Commissioner, 1st District—E. D. BARNESS—Republican.		Vote for one only
County Commissioner, 1st District—EPHRIAM KING—Democrat.
County Commissioner, 1st District—JOHN E. OPPEGAARD—People.
County Commissioner, 1st District—
County Commissioner, 2d District—R. ERWIN—Republican.		Vote for one only
County Commissioner, 2d District—ANTON LINDEM—People's Party.
County Commissioner, 2d District—
County Commissioner, 3d District—E. D. CHILDS—Republican.		Vote for one only
County Commissioner, 3d District—M. E. KIRSCH—Democrat.
County Commissioner, 3d District—CHRIS. HANSON—People's Party.
County Commissioner, 3d District—
County Commissioner, 5th District ROBT. NESBIT—Republican.		Vote for one only
County Commissioner, 5th District—A. C. RHINEHART—Democrat.
County Commissioner, 5th District—ROBT. ANDERSON—People's Party
County Commissioner, 5th District—

National and State Ticket.

(To be printed on WHITE paper)

Put an X mark in the space indicated by the index ☞
President—BENJAMIN HARRISON—Republican		Vote for one only.
President—GROVER CLEVELAND—Democrat.
President—JAMES B. WEAVER—People's Party.
President—
Vice-President—WHITELAW REID—Republican.		Vote for one only
Vice-President—ADLAI STEVENSON—Democrat.
Vice-President—J. G. FIELD—People's Party.
Vice-President—
Justice Supreme Court—C. E. VANDERBURG—Republican.		Vote for three only.
Justice Supreme Court—D. A. DICKINSON—Republican.
Justice Supreme Court—WM. MITCHELL—Republican and Democrat.
Justice Supreme Court—DANIEL BUCK—Democrat and Peeple's Party.
Justice Supreme Court—THOS. CANTY—Democrat and People's Party.
Justice Supreme Court—W. N. DAVIDSON—People's Party.
Justice Supreme Court—
Justice Supreme Court—
Justice Supreme Court—
Governor—IG. DONNELLY—People's Party.		Vote for one only.
Governor—KNUTE NELSON—Republican.
Governor—D. W. LAWLER—Democrat.
Governor -
Lieutenant Governor—D. M. CLOUGH—Republican.		Vote for one only.
Lieutenant Governor—H. H. HAWKINS—Democrat.
Lieutenant Governor—SWAN NELSON—People's Party.
Lieutenant Governor—
Secretary of State—F. P. BROWN—Republican.		Vote for one only.
Secretary of State—PETER NELSON—Democrat.
Secretary of State—H. B. MARTIN—People's Party.
Secretary of State—
Treasurer—JOS. BOBLETER—Republican.		Vote for one only.
Treasurer—JOS. LEICH—Democrat.
Treasurer—P. M. RINGDAL—People's Party.
Treasurer—
Attorney General—H. W. CHILDS—Republican.		Vote for one only.
Attorney General—J. C. Nethaway—Democrat.
Attorney General—J. L. MACDONALD—People's Party.
Attorney General—

Amendment to Article Four (4) of the Constitution to prohibit Special Legislation.	YES
	NO

Amendment to Section Three (3) of Article Nine (9) of the Constitution, providing for the taxation of sleeping car companies and other companies: YES—NO.

How to Clean a Clock.

A fine eight day cuckoo clock stood in one corner of the kitchen, inside the case of which Jemmy kept his single barreled gun; a good one it was, and always kept ready loaded. "I like to have things ready and handylike," he was wont to remark; "you never know when they may be near"—the birds he meant. There was no gun license needed in those days, only a game certificate. The things that did come when Jemmy was about seldom went away again. The clock was a good one, but the bird had not shouted properly for some time; one day he would tune up all right and the next he was mute. Mother said she really must have it cleaned, but she never could make up her mind to let it go out of the house.

One day—the very day when this really was going to be done—a boy came rushing from the farmyard into the kitchen, where Jemmy was having his snack of lunch alone, to tell him, "Something had come, and he'd best be quick, for it was on the move like." Jemmy opened the clock case and hurriedly caught up the gun, as he had done scores of times before, but not with the same result. In the haste of the moment he touched one of the weights. It swayed. The hammer of his gun hit the bottom of the weight, which threw it back, and off she went, bang!—right through the works. Down fell the cuckoo. The mother was up stairs when she heard the report; her first thoughts were for Jemmy. "Jem, my boy, what have you done?" she cried. For a moment he looked speechless at the wreck; then he shouted back, "All right, mother; I've only cleaned the clock."—Cornhill Magazine.

Crime in Corea.

"They do not classify crime in Corea," said J. B. Winkler. "It is just as serious a matter to be convicted of stealing a pound of rice as of plotting treason or of committing wholesale murder. There is but one penalty for all crimes—to cut off the heads of culprits. During my visit to that queer country a pair of valuable sleeve buttons were stolen from me. I suspected a servant and he was taken before the tribunals and subjected to a rigorous examination. There was absolutely no evidence tending to fasten the crime upon him. I suspected the fellow of having swallowed the buttons to avoid discovery, and the authorities politely offered to cut him open in search of evidence if I said so."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

State of the Weather.

Housewife—Just go and look at the barometer to see what sort of weather we are going to have.

Servant Girl (on coming back)—Please, ma'am, it wants five minutes to set fair.—Humoristische Blatter.

WE ARE NOW STOCKING UP.

In Better shape than ever before with a

Handsomer and

Better Selected Line

Than ever before, and

As to Prices, we Shall Certainly Please You.

If you wish to save money. One of the many

RARE BARGAINS —ARE THE— Children's Suits

From ages 8 to 11. Don't fail to see them.

Men's, Boys' and Dhildren's OVERCOATS, Very Nobby and Very Cheap.
Fur Coats open for inspection.

BOSTON ONE PRICE CLOTHING HOUSE,
MOSSEFIN & LINDELL, Props.

IT'S A FACT

—THAT THE—

Journal Job Department

Is Equal to any in Northern Minnesota.

IT IS EQUIPPED WITH

New Material,

Quick Presses,

Cheap Power

—AND—

First-Class Workmen.

IF YOU have anything to sell, which some other person wants, advertise in the JOURNAL, and you will find a purchaser.

Judicious Advertising Pays,

Therefore place your advertisement in a paper which goes into the homes of the people and is carefully read.

SUCH A PAPER IS

—THE—

Polk County Journal.

FARM AND GARDEN

ENGLISH POULTRY METHODS.

Portable Houses and Systematic Killing Off of Fowls Where Many Are Kept.

English methods of managing poultry differ somewhat from our own. An excellent English authority, writing to The Country Gentleman, tells that in the great majority of cases it is found better to have a number of small houses rather than a large one. The expense is perhaps a little more at first, but not when it is taken into account that with portable houses fencing is unnecessary, and dispensing with that more than compensates for the greater cost. The advantages of keeping flocks of, say, fifty hens in one house, and placing these houses in different parts of the farm, must be obvious. For some unexplainable reason fowls thrive and lay better in small numbers than when a great many of them are massed together.

The writer referred to says: "I have never yet been able to find a reasonable explanation for this, but the fact is one that cannot be gainsaid. With a house such as I have mentioned placed in the corner of a field fifty fowls can be kept quite easily, and as it can be moved quickly there is no danger whatever from disease arising from foulness of the ground. I send you herewith illustrations showing some of the portable houses used in this country, and from them you will see what we have found best.

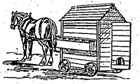

FIG. I—PORTABLE POULTRY HOUSE.

"Some time ago I was at a farm in the north of England, where 2,400 laying hens are kept. These were placed out in flocks of fifty, as suggested, and as the land upon which they were running was also occupied by dairy cattte there was no danger of the ground being contaminated. Around each house was placed a low fence to keep the cattle from rubbing themselves thereon. In this way so large a number of fowls as named are kept in perfect health, and I may say that in places where poultry are bred extensively this is the better plan.

"Of course there is a little more trouble involved, in the direction of feeding, cleaning collection of eggs and general oversight than if the hens were all placed in one house, but I am sure the additional trouble is compensated for by the fact that an attendant can better supervise a small number of fowls, seeing that all are healthy, than if there are several hundreds together. At any rate the additional labor is not found to be any drawback to the method I am advocating.

"One of the great dangers when keeping poultry in large numbers is caused either by great waste of food or starvation of the fowls, and as either is certain to bring evil in its train it is most important that careful attention be paid to these questions. I have been in poultry establishments where the amount of food lying about would have kept all the poultry for several days, and in others where every grain was almost begrudged, and the fowls had certainly at some seasons of the year scarcely enough to eat."

There is a further matter to which Mr. Beale calls attention—viz., the importance of killing off birds regularly. Concerning a place in Sussex, where this method is systematically carried out, he writes: "Here some hundreds of laying hens are kept, and in their second year, so soon as they show the slightest signs of ceasing to lay, they are fed up for a week and killed. The result is that they sell for fair prices because they are still in good condition and they make room for young stock which will be ready to lay later on in the year. In poultry keeping, as in all other departments of industrialism, the great point is to prevent leakages by such methods as that to which I have referred. If you feed a fowl three months without any return it is so much against what it has done before or will do again."

FIG. II—PORTABLE POULTRY HOUSE.

Advice to Market Gardeners.

In a lecture on market gardening, Professor Bailey tersely remarks: "Marketing is one-half of success; therefore study your market thoroughly; learn the conditions and demands. Failure is often brought about by ignoring such small differences as the color, size or flavor of certain varieties that please the public taste, or for some other reason, or for no reason, except because it is fashionable, it becomes popular. Boston wants a branched celery, while New York requires a tall, straight stalk; some markets desire red onions, while others prefer white ones. Find your market before the crop is ready. Send the produce to market in the neatest and most attractive condition. Be honest. Secure the same customers each year, so as to establish a reputation. In each city have one reliable dealer to whom you can send your stock."

SECURING THE CORN CROP.

A New Yorker's Plan as Described in The American Agriculturist.

Corn should be cut for fodder as soon as the kernels begin to glaze on most of the larger ears. At this time, if no frosts have occurred, the leaves are mostly green, and if put in stooks of from thirty-six to forty hills each and well tied at the top the fodder will cure in good condition. The juices in the stalks will be sufficient to ripen the unmatured ears, so that husking may commence in earnest in about fifteen days.

In dry sunny weather it will pay to leave the corn fodder spread on the ground for a day or so to dry out and harden, more especially if to put away in large bulk. It will also be found a good plan to sort the corn when husking, removing all silk and husks from the best, while the small ears and that intended for immediate feeding may be hauled without this precaution. If the best corn is cribbed without removing the litter it will make a fine nesting place for rats and mice.

When husking corn fodder many persons jerk the husks so spitefully as to remove them entirely, and being loose and short they are not bound in the bundle, but left in the field to become weather beaten, dirty and useless as fodder; hence caution should be exercised on this point. The best ears should be selected for seed. As the stalks contain a vast amount of moisture they should not be placed in large stacks or in close barns until late in the season, as they will be quite certain to heat and mildew unless a layer of dry hay or straw be placed between each layer of bundles.

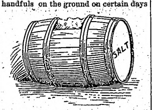
Winter Feeding of Bees.

The best method of feeding bees in winter is, according to a writer in The American Bee Journal, to give them a frame of honey. If all of the honey is in the hives, look over all of the colonies or a sufficient number of them to find combs of honey to give the starving colonies. It is well known that all colonies do not consume the same amount of stores, and the variation is so great that it often happens that enough combs of honey may be spared from those that have plenty to supply the needy.

If no honey is available, and some colonies must be fed, a candy made of granulated sugar is the best substitute. It may be caked in shallow dishes, and the thin cakes laid over the bees and covered with enameled cloth and two or three thicknesses of old carpet, or the candy may be "run" directly into the frames and the frames hung in the hives adjoining the clusters of bees. "Good" candy is also recommended for this purpose. Thin boards are tacked to one side of an empty brood frame, thus forming a shallow tray. It is then filled with candy and the other side covered with boards, except a small space at the top, which is left for the bees to enter.

Salting Stock.

Ohio Farmer gives a sketch of one way of furnishing salt to a herd of cattle in pasture. Instead of throwing it in handfuls on the ground on certain days of the week, after the old method, take a new, sound barrel out into the field, place it upon its side on some dry knoll, where there is no shade, saw out four or five staves between the large or middle hoops, thus giving the animals access to the salt at will and at the same time leaving a pretty fair protection from the rain to the contents of the barrel.



GIVING CATTLE ACCESS TO SALT.

After half or more has been eaten saw out another stave or two on each side of the opening, thus making it large enough for them to use all that remains. By this plan all the animals in the herd will help themselves to just the quantity they need, whenever they want it, and the waste is much less than by any other method.

Freshly Manured Land.

On land freshly fertilized with barnyard manure wheat will not make a fine grain, according to Professor A. E. Blount, because the manure has a tendency to make too much stalk and foliage, decidedly to the detriment of the grain. If barnyard manure is applied at all to wheat it should be old and well rotted, or what is far better, to a crop of corn or potatoes the preceding year and then follow with wheat. If fertilizers must be used directly to stimulate the wheat crop let them contain elements that make grain, not foliage, such as superphosphates, potash, nitrates, ashes, salt, etc., in proper proportions.

Farm Notes.

Vick says in his monthly that it is no use to reset old asparagus plants. Set out young plants where they are wanted and destroy the old bed.

The apple crop of England is reported very light; that of France is light and of Holland very small. Belgium has a good crop, Germany poor—not nearly enough for its own use.

Kansas will make at the World's fair a notable exhibit of its native animals. The specimens are being prepared by Professor L. L. Dyche, of the Kansas State university, a skillful taxidermist.

A North Carolinian tells in Orchard and Garden that he sowed the entire list of turnips in a leading seed catalogue the last week in September, and every variety made a good crop.

Aside from the honey stored by the busy bee the Rhode Island experiment station expresses the belief that the influence bees and insects exert in the proper fertilization of the flowers of fruits and vegetables is of far greater importance than is generally allowed.

THE FACTORY LASSES

SKETCHES OF THEIR LIVES IN THE GREAT LANCASHIRE MILLS.

Provisions Made by the Oxford Factory Owners for the Recreation of Their Employees—How the Girls Dress and Conduct Themselves.

For the recreation of their hands mills have no provision whatever—as a rule, that is. There are a few exceptions, and only a few. Unique certainly are the Oxford mills at Ashton-under-Lyne, in connection with which the late Mr. Hugh Mason founded a little colony. For outdoor sports there is a large play ground, with swings, etc., and a bowling green attached. When the weather is unfavorable the hands can go to the recreation rooms. On the ground floor of these is a reading room liberally supplied with newspapers and periodicals, and having a library of 700 volumes.

A coffee room leads off it, and from that again the baths are reached. Up stairs is a large lecture room fitted with desks and with a platform at the end. Busts of great men are on pedestals round the walls. Scott and Burns are in a niche together, as is fitting, and near them are Homer, Shakespeare, Dante and Milton. Michael Angelo looks at Raphael, Bright and Cobden. Newton and Watt, Franklin and Washington—all are there; and at intervals there are also hung portraits of inventors and improvers of cotton machinery. In connection with these rooms there is a good brass band. Sewing and other classes, too, are held, while during the winter months concerts and lectures are of frequent occurrence. Of all this it should be noted Messrs. Thomas Mason & Son defray the expenses.

From other portions of the district we take the following. The secretary of a cotton operative spinners' association is stated to have said:

"Any girl who wants work can have it in the mills. That labor market is never overstocked. At the present time, particularly in the spinning department, some firms are shorthanded. Nowadays many girls in Manchester do not care to go into the mills; they would rather work in the warehouses and shops."

"There has been an improvement in the lot of the factory workers?" asked the interviewer.

"Yes," replied the secretary, "in every way; wages are higher, hours shorter. But, mind you, hands have to work harder while they are at it, because the machinery runs faster and they have to look after more of it. Why, in my young days a weaver tended only two looms, now she tends four."

Throstle spinners, the writer adds, work with as little clothing as possible and generally in their bare feet, though some wear slippers. Cardroom hands wear straight pinafores, cut away at the neck and with short sleeves. The distinctive parts of the mill girl's dress are clogs on the feet and a small shawl—"handkerchief," they are called—on the shoulders.

Weavers, though there is nothing peculiar about their dress, can generally be distinguished from other factory girls. They have a personal trade mark—their front teeth are often bad, and besides many of them have at times a peculiar gesture. Drawing in the breath to suck weft through a shuttle causes the teeth to decay. The mannerism is similarly explained.

In a weaving shed the noise is deafening. You cannot hear your own voice. So the weavers attract one another's attention by a shrill "Whoo!" and converse by means of signs and by watching the movements of the lips. They are so proficient in labiomancy that they can follow a private conversation anywhere if they can see the speakers' faces. This circumstance explains a common observation that is otherwise enigmatical. "Mind what tha'rt sayin'" one gossip will remark to another, glancing suspiciously at the object of their talk, "oo's a wayver."

Some mill girls never do any housework; their ignorance in which branch of female education is consequently colossal. Hundreds cannot make a pudding or a pie for the life of them, and the writer has heard of a lass putting a rabbit in a dish whole and making a crust for it with suet. There are factory girls on the other hand—and these are in the majority—who take their full share of cleaning, cookery, needlework, etc.

As a rule, too, the lasses are in every way respectable. When a factory lass and her sweetheart go off on a trip or take a week at Blackpool or Southport or the Isle of Man, as often as not she pays the expenses. She it is who in due course buys the furniture—aye, and perhaps the ring and all the rest. Whether she will stand treat in this or not, the four loom weaver need never remain single. Among factory girls she corresponds to the heiress of ordinary life, and as such has no difficulty in obtaining a husband.

When offsprings become old enough they are sent to the mill, as their parents were before them. The typical Lancashire woman does not like the idea of their aiming higher. As they soon receive good wages their parents are rapidly placed in comfortable circumstances—more comfortable than they ever knew perhaps. This state is the factory operatives' summum bonum—the position beyond which he or she very rarely goes.—Cassell's Journal.

He Was a Pounder.

The millionaire was desirous of employing a slugger to protect him from dangerous visitors, and a big two fisted fellow applied for the place.

"How much will you charge for your services?" inquired the cautious millionaire.

"Aw, I don't know," said the slugger carelessly. "About fifty dollars a pound, I guess."

The millionaire looked at the applicant's knotted muscles and heavy hands and concluded that the figures were not too high.—Detroit Free Press.

PROPOSED CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS.

To be voted upon at the next General Election. Published in persuance of Chapter 157. General Laws of 1887.

WHEREAS, it is made the duty by law of the Attorney General to prepare a synopsis of all amendments proposed to the constitution, notice is hereby given that the following amendments are submitted to the voters of the state of Minnesota, to be voted upon at the general election to be held in the year 1892:

FIRST—An act proposing to amend Section 33 of Article four (4) to the Constitution of the State of Minnesota, prohibiting special legislation.

The following amendment to Section 33 of Article 4 of the Constitution of the State of Minnesota is hereby proposed, which section when so amended shall read as follows:

"SEC. 33. In all cases when a general law can be made applicable no special law shall be enacted; and whether a general law could have been made applicable in any case is hereby declared a judicial question, and as such shall be judicially determined without regard to any legislative assertion on that subject. The legislature shall pass no local or special law regulating the affairs of, or incorporating, erecting or changing the lines of any county, city, village, township, ward or school district, or creating the offices or prescribing the powers and duties of the officers of, or fixing or relating to the compensation, salary or fees of the same, or the mode of election or appointment thereto; authorizing the laying out, opening, altering, vacating or maintaining roads, highways, streets or alleys, remitting fines, penalties or forfeitures; regulating the powers, duties and practice of justices of the peace, magistrates and constables; changing the names of persons, places, lakes or rivers; for opening and conducting of elections or fixing or changing the places of voting; authorizing the adoption or legitimation of children; changing the law of descent or succession; conferring rights upon minors, declaring any named person of age, giving effect to informal or invalid wills or deeds, or affecting the estates of minors or persons under disability; locating or changing county seats; regulating the management of public schoosl, the building or repairing of school houses, and the raising of money for such purposes; exempting property from taxation, or regulating the rate of interest on money; creating corporations, or amending, renewing, extending or explaining the charters thereof; granting to any corporation, association or individual any special or exclusive privilege, immunity or franchise whatever, or authorizing public taxation for a private purpose. Provided, however, That the inhibitions of local or special laws in this section shall not be construed to prevent the passage of general laws on any of the subjects enumerated.

The legislature may repeal any existing special or local law, but shall not amend, extend or modify any of the same.

The ballots to be used in voting upon said amendment shall have printed thereon:

"Amendment to Article Four (4) of the Constitution to prohibit special legislation."

YES ☐

NO ☐

And each voter shall vote upon by placing a cross (X) opposite "yes," if he desires to vote in the affirmative, and opposite the word "no," if he desires to vote in the negative.

SECOND—The following amendment to Section three (3) of Article nine (9) of the Constitution of the State of Minnesota is hereby proposed to the people of said State for their approval or rejection, that is to say, to add at the end of said section the following words:

"And their may be levied and collected annually a tax upon the gross earnings in this State of all railroads, sleeping, parlor and drawing room car companies, or owners whose cars run in or into this State; on all telegraph and telephone campanies, or owners, whose lines are in or extend into this State; on all express companies, or owners, doing business in this State; on all foreign insurance companies doing business in this State; on all domestic insurance companies of this State, or on either or any of such companies. Or in lieu of such tax on the gross earnings of such companies, or either or any of them, an annual license fee or tax imposed on them, or either or any of them, but no tax upon the gross earnings of any carporation shall be construed to prevent the taxation by law of any real estate owned by said corporation not used in the business of the same. And there may be levied and collected in lieu of other taxation on mining properry, a specific tax upon the product of all mines in this State, and no such tax shall be construed to prevent the taxation by law of any real estate belonging to the owners of such mine not used in the business of mining or in connection therewith."

Section three (3) of Article nine (9) of the State Constitution which it is proposed to amend as above, now reads as follows:

SEC. 3. Laws shall be passed taxing all moneys, credits, investments in bonds, stocks, joint stock companies or otherwise, and also all real and personal property, according to its true value in money; but public burying grounds, public school houses public hospitals academies, colleges, universities, and all seminaries of learning, all churches, church property used for religious purposes, and houses of worship, institutions of purely public charity, public property used exclusively for any public purpose, and personal propersy to an amount not exceeding in value two hundred dollars for each individual, shall, by general laws be exempt from taxation.

Ballots used in voting upon said section shall have printed thereon "Amendment to Section three (3) of Article nine (9) of the constitution providing for the taxation of sleeping car companies and other companies: YES—NO," and the voters in voting upon such amendment shall erase, mark across or scratch out one (1) of said words "yes" or "no." If he desires to vote in the affirmative he shall scratch out the word "no." If he desires to vote in the negative, he shall scratch out the word "yes."

EXPLANATION.

It will be seen that the matter of voting upon these two proposed amendments is entirely different. The reason for this is that the first amendment was proposed under an act of the legislature passed prior to the general election law of 1891, and is to be voted upon subject to the provisions of said general election law. But the second proposed amendment is submitted under an act of the legislature passed after the general election law of 1891, and in terms provides how it shall be voted upon, and as above indicated.

The object of the first proposed amendment is to restrict special legislation.

The object of the second proposed amendment is to regulate the taxation of railroads, sleeping, drawing room and parlor car companies, telegraph and telephone companies, express and insurance companies, by taxing the gross earnings or by a licensed fee; and authorizing a specific tax on mining property.

MOSES E CLAPP.
Attorney General.

July 7 1892

125-27]

Valley Roller Mills

MANUFACTURERS OF

FINE FLOUR

From Selected Red River Wheat.

QUOTATIONS.

Best	$2.25 per 98 lbs.
North Star	2.10 " "
Fife	1.90 " "
Skip Jack	1.25 " "
Bran	9.00 " ton.
Shorts	10.00 " "

Call early and get your supply of feed.

☞ We exchange flour for wheat on equitable terms.

LEE & HERRICK.

W. A. ROBERTSON
D. D. S.
Graduate of Dental Department of the University of Maryland.
OPERATIVE AND MECHANICAL
DENTIST.

N. B. Nitrous Oxide Gas, (Laughing Gas) administered for the painless extraction of teeth.

OFFICE IN McKINNON BLOCK.

Schmidt, the Painter,

CARRIES A FULL AND COMPLETE STOCK OF

PAINTS,
OILS AND
VARNISHES.

ALSO A FULL AND COMPLETE LINE OF

☞ WALL PAPER. ☜

Painting in all its branches, and Paper Hanging artistically done.

Call at the Shop on Broadway.

Crookston Business College.
and INSTITUTE OF SHORTHAND.

DEPARTMENTS:—Commercial Shorthand, Typewriting and English.
TEACHERS:—Benj. A. Strawbridge, J. M. Latham and L. E. Gossman.
Summer Term began Monday, June 6th, 1892. Fall Term begins Monday, October 3rd, 1892. Send for new Catalogue.
CROOKSTON BUSINESS COLLEGE, Crookston, Minn.

We are Selling Now

For fall use a nice line of HARNESS, Single or Double, heavy and light, at prices which will surprise you. We are making a leader on double heavy harness, and invite you to give us a call before purchasing. We have just received another car of Rushford Wagons the lightest running and best finished wagon made. We can show you something in PLOWS that no one else can, and if you are in need of one and will call and look at our line of goods we can convince you we have something you want.

Merit Wins.

And to that reason more than anything else, do we assign our large and daily increasing trade. The Yankee and Scandia Gang Plows and Sulkies can't be beat. We have a few Buggies left that we are selling cheap to close out.

Good Goods at Reasonable Prices,

and fair treatment to all is what we aim, and our motto is MERIT WINS—every time.

Larsen, Carpenter & Co.

Opera Block, - - - Crookston, Minn.

TRY PEAKE,
THE MAIN STREET HARNESS MAKER,
FOR BARGAINS.

CHRISTIANSON BROS.,
Abstracters of Title, Loans,
Real Estate and Insurance:

N. B. FARM LOANS a specialty. Terms, three to five years. Lowest rate of interest, payable annually at our office.
☞ Choice FARM LANDS for sale cheap, on terms to suit purchasers. ☜
Office on Robert Street, - - - - CROOKSTON, MINN

NEW FEED MILL
CHRIS. ANDERSON, Prop.

I desire to annouce to the farmers of Polk County that I have rented the

LAURENCE BUILDING, ON MAIN STEERT,

Next to Brown's New Livery Stable, and am now prepared to grind feed of all kinds promptly. You can get your feed in two hours after you bring me your grain. Prices Reasonable

Try My New Mill!

McKINNON BROS.,
DEALERS IN
ALL OF THE LEADING
Agricultural Implements
MAIN STREET. McKINNON BLOCK.
☞ Before Purchasing, Give Us a Call. ☜

Polk County Journal.

BY COOKE & HAMMOND.

Devoted to the Welfare of Polk County.

OFFICIAL PAPER, CITY OF CROOKSTON.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Dollar and Fifty Cents, if paid in advance to any address inside of Polk County. If outside of Polk County 15 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum to any address.

The date opposite your name on this paper shows the time your subscription is paid up to. The JOURNAL would like to have all those who are in arears, and can spare the money, remit as soon as possible, as the new management would like to get all the old accounts settled up.

THE REPUBLICAN TICKET.

National.

President—BENJAMIN HARRISON,
Of Indiana.
Vice-Pres.—WHITELAW REID,
Of New York.

State.

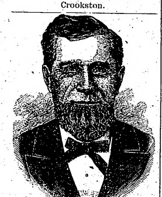
Governor—KNUTE NELSON,
Of Alexandria.
Lieut. Gov.—D. M. CLOUGH,
Of Minneapolis.
Sec. of State—F. P. BROWN,
Of Blue Earth County.
Atty-Gen.—H. W. CHILDS,
Of Otter Tail County.
Treas.—JOS. BOBLETER,
Of Brown County.
Supreme Court Judges—
C. E. VANDERBURGH,
D. A. DICKINSON,
WILLIAM MITCHELL.

Congressional.

Congressman 7th District—
HENRY FEIG,
of Kandiyohi County.

County.

Auditor.—W. A. LANCTOT,
Of Crookston.
Treasurer.—LEWIS LOHN,
Of Fosston.
Register of Deeds.—NIC NELSON,
Of Norden Township.
Attorney.—IRA C. RICHARDSON,
Of Thief River Falls.
Sheriff.—JAS. M. BAIN,
Of Fisher.
Judge of Probate.—
R. J. MONTAGUE,
Of Crookston.
Supt. of schools.—V. D. CARRUTH,
Of Crookston.
Surveyor.—GEORGE RALPH,
Of Crookston.
Coroner.—GEORGE HOLT,
Of Crookston.
Court Commissioner,
G. H. PALMER,
Crookston.



KNUTE NELSON,
Republican Candidate for Governor.

SEE the sample ballots in this issue. With the exception of the presidential electors, all the candidates to be voted for this fall are on these tickets. The presidential electors, the candidates for state offices and amendments to the state constitution, will be on one ballot, which will be printed on white paper. The candidates for congress, the legislature, the judiciary and for the county offices will be an another ticket, which shall be printed on blue paper. Every voter should become familiar with these ballots, so that on election day he can vote intelligently and without any hesitation.

Of Dan Lawler's speech in East Grand Forks the Review says:

"Would-be-governor Lawler spoke to the people of our city Wednesday on the political issue from a democratic standpoint. He made one bad break that should lose the vote of every "old soldier" with democratic ideas. He said "the time had come to relegate the old vets to the rear and fill up the ranks with new, young blood." Yes, the boys that saved the nation, are many of them dead and forgotten and the remainder should be, is good democratic doctrine."

Speaking of the situation in Norman county the Ada Index says:

A deep melancholy has settled down upon the crowd of Ada candidates who are running for office on the peoples ticket. Until recently they fondly imagined that Fish, Schilling and Donnelly would have followers enough to give them one and all a soft berth at the expense of the "dear people" for the coming two years. But now all is changed, and they are now hustling for dear life. Reports from all over the county show that the demagogic leaders of the state organization, are fast losing support and local defeat stares them in the face. In Ada it is almost impossible to find a follower of Fish and the surrounding towns are in nearly the same shape. Even from the solid alliance towns of 1890 comes the report that Knute Nelson is in the lead. No wonder the Fish candidates are sad."

AN IMPORTANT AMENDMENT.

In another column will be found two amendments to the state constitution which have to be voted upon at the coming election. The first is an amendment to section 33 of article 4 of the constitution prohibiting special legislation, and the second is to amend section 3 of article 9 of the constitution so as to tax the gross earnings of all railroads, sleeping, parlor and drawing room car companies, or owners whose cars run in or into this state; on all telegraph and telephone companies, or owners, whose lines are in or extend into this state; on all express companies, or owners doing business in this state; on all foreign insurance companies doing business in this state; on all domestic insurance companies of this state, or on either or any of such companies. Or in lieu of such tax on the gross earnings of such companies, or either or any of them, an annual license fee or tax imposed on them, or either or any of them, but no tax upon the gross earnings of any corporation shall be construed to prevent the taxation by law of any real estate owned by said corporation not used in the business of the same. And there may be levied and collected in lieu of other taxation on mining property, a specific tax upon the product of all mines in this state, and no such tax shall be construed to prevent the taxation by law of any real estate belonging to the owners of such mine not used in the business of mining or in connection therewith.

Here is an opportunity to make every corporation doing business in this state pay a tax not only upon their property in the state but upon their gross earnings. People are heard continually kicking about the corporations not paying their proportionate share of the taxes, and now that a remedy is within their reach the JOURNAL hopes every citizen will take advantage of it, or forever after hold his peace.

A great many voters stay at home on election day, and then complain all the year around about the country being misgoverned, about the wrong men being elected to office, and about our laws discriminating in favor of the corporations as against the poor man. If these kickers would only get out and work—attend the ward caucuses, the various conventions, and then vote on election day—they could remedy any wrongs that might exist, and then they would have nothing to kick about.

Don't fail to vote for this amendment taxing the gross earnings of railroads and other companies doing business in the state. It is of vital importance to every taxpayer.

Voters should note the difference in the manner of voting on these two amendments. In the first one the voter will make a cross after the word "yes" if he wants to vote for the amendment, and if he wants to vote against it he will put a cross after the word "no."

To vote for the second amendment the voter must scratch out the word "no" and to vote against it he must scratch out the word "yes." If you think the gross earnings of the railroads, the telegraph, the telephone, and mining companies should be taxed, then scratch out the word "no" in the second amendment.

A BRILLIANT(?) ARGUMENT

THE Crookston Tribune has evolved from its inner consciousness a brilliant editorial that does great credit to the genius that presides over the destination of that institution but does not reflect much credit upon the average intelligence of its readers. We refer to the reason it gives why E. D. Childs should not be elected county commissioner. The Tribune gravely remarks that Mr. Childs should not be elected commissioner because if he should be Mr. Childs would at once proceed to issue bonds for private purposes. This simple remark shows to what straits the Tribune is reduced while trying to find something to say against Mr. Childs but it also shows that the Tribune must think its readers a set of jays if it thinks anyone will believes that anyone commissioner—or in fact the whole caboodle of 'em could issue bonds without the sanction of the people. Mr. Childs is one of the ablest farmers in Polk county, a farmer who conducts his farming operations upon business principles. In every public position that he has ever filled he has been honest, capable and upright discharging his duties to the satisfaction of his constituents and with credit to himself. He has not sought the office of commissioner but should he be elected he will be one of the best officials the county of Polk ever had and the fact that only such silly charges as the above can be brought against him shows that the opposition knows full well what kind of a man he is. He is a thoroughly capable business man and would do honor to the office. If you want a good official elect Mr. Childs.

THAT DEMOCRATIC RALLY.

The democrats of Crookston—what few there are left, deserve great credit for their efforts to awaken enthusiasm enough to get up a grand rally under the circumstances. On Wednesday evening they expected their nominee for governor, Dan W. Lawler, and their nominee for congress W. J. Kelso so they procured several hundred torches, secured the opera house and just laid themselves out for a big time all the same as though they had a ghost of a show of electing anybody this fall. The streets were well filled with spectators—enough to have organized a parade of several hundred, but about 60 men and boys several torches and transparencies proceeded to march through several back streets—after a fruitless attempt to procure bearers for the several hundred torches that were left at the rendezvous they were loaded upon a dray and taken away out of sight. Arrived at the opera house the band discussed a bit of music to try and brace up the faithful and revive their drooping spirits and J. E. O'Brien arose and introduced the chairman of the meeting Harry Norrie, who in a few well chosen remarks attempted to enthuse the audience and introduced the big gun of the evening, Dan W. Lawler. Dan pulled himself together with the remark that maybe he would be a little dull this evening owning to the fact he had spoken twice a day since his nomination in in the vain endeavor to get people enough acquainted with him to elect him. His speech in the main was a rehash of the stereotyped democratic platitudes which say nothing and mean less with the additional information that he was "wearing no man's collar" would not ride into the gubernatorial chair "on a cow catcher" and if his corporosity ever lands there the millenium would strike Minnesota p. d. q. (pretty decidedly quick) if not sooner. As a rule Dan manages to awaken a good bit of enthusiasm when on the rostrum, but somehow his audience failed to thrill to his magnetism and we heard more than one expression of disappointment from the faithful who had expected great things. Mr. Lawler was followed by Mr. Kelso in a very few very brief remarks. He was evidently struck with stage-fright, lost his head in the start and did not regain it in time to make anything of a speech. Apologized for coming before this large audience to ask for votes but said if they would vote for him he would vote in congress just as he feels. As he did not enlighten his audience as to what his feelings are, it leaves them in doubt as to how he would vote if he ever should happen to be elected. When he subsided the chair introduced Judge McCafferty, of St. Paul who arose and complimented the ladies for being out in such large numbers, drew a great deal of consolation from the alleged disaffection of Judge Gresham and Wayne McVeigh and after whistling about in the grave yard of despairing hopes for awhile longer subsided and the audience—what was left of it—slowly filed out and went home wondering what it was all about anyhow.

COMMENTING upon Cleveland's letter of acceptance the New York Press says:

Almost at the head of Mr. Cleveland's letter of acceptance are these words:

"The protection of the people in the exclusive use and enjoyment of their property and earnings concededly constitutes the especial purpose and mission of our free government." This statement has escaped general notice on account of the grotesque doublings and twistings in which the perennial candidate has striven to illustrate Talleyrand's maxim that language is an instrument for the concealment of thought. Probably most of those who paid any attention at all to this sentence merely wondered at it as a specimen, rather more than usually heavy, of the Claimant's ponderous platitudes.

It is, in fact, either an inexcusable blunder or an inexcusable insult to the intelligence and moral sentiment of the country. Consider what it means: An ex-president of the United States, a third time candidate for the highest office in this or any land, presumes to tell the people that "the especial purpose and mission of our free government" is—what? To secure liberty and equality for all under the law? To protect the lives and promote the happiness of citizens? To guard the republic against foreign and domestic foes? None of these things. It is, he says, "the protection of the people in the exclusive use of their property and earnings." What says the Declaration of Independence, written by that Thomas Jefferson whom the democratic party of today brazenly claims as its founder and patron saint, while repudiating his most cherished faiths and clearest teachings? "Governments are formed among men" to secure these rights. What rights? Rights to the exclusive use and enjoyment of property? By no means. The "inalienble rights" to secure which governments are formed among men are immortal words of the Declaration, "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness." Later on, the American Magna Charta deals with rights of property, with the tyranny of taxation without representation; but at the outset, as the grand source of governmental authority, as the "especial purpose and mission" of governments formed among men, the supreme place is given to persons, not property. And so it is with every great authority in the world on the subject of human law. There is not a writer of recognized competence on the science of statesmanship who does not make the fundamental object of government to consist in protecting and promoting the personal welfare of the people, the protection of property being secondary and subsidiary.

This is not a trivial criticism. It is of serious importance. Mr Cleveland has been guilty of nothing less than assigning to goods and chattels the place that belongs to humanity; of proclaiming the doctrine that money is more than manhood.

WHO IS BACKING LAWLER ?

Speaking of the charge made by democrats that Knute Nelson is a paid tool of the Great Northern railroad, the Todd County Argus says:

"The democratic press of the state has persistently charged Knute Nelson with being the paid tool of Jas. J. Hill and the Great Northern railroad and so persistently has this been followed up that some people have been led to believe that Mr. Hill is a republican. We can conceive of the possibility of fooling some people who do not know Mr. Nelson into the belief that he is a tool of the Great Northern railroad, but up here where he has lived for years and is personally known it will not be possible to make people believe that he is other than the honorable, straightforward man he has proved himself to be, but nevertheless we find the Leader, the local democratic organ piping its feeble lay in the same strain and stating that Mr. Nelson has lived from the patronage of the Great Northern railroad. We do not admire this kind of political warfare, as we believe that most men put forward for such positions as governor of this great state, are not the tool of any one but the following from the Otter Tail County Alliance published at Henning has not been denied by the Globe which was challenged to do so, shows who of the two men, Nelson and Lawler, would be most likely to be influenced by Jas. J. Hill. Here is the article:

About 11 o'clock on the forenoon of July 29th, in O'Connor's saloon, opposite the Merchant's hotel, M. Doran made an appointment with J. J. Hill that they were to meet in M. Doran's office that afternoon to consult with other prominent democrats as to who should be nominated at the coming state convention. In that meeting were M. Doran, J. J. Hill, Lewis Baker, present chairman democratic state committee, P. J. Smalley, secretary democratic state committee, R. A. Smith and others representing D. Lawler, and a few outside delegates. At that meeting it was unanimously decided that Mr. Lawler should be the democratic candidate for governor, and Lewis Baker editor of the St. Paul Globe, knows that Hill, Doran and Kelly agreed to support Mr. Lawler."

A correspondent writing to the Fergus Falls Journal says:

One of the cardinal principles of the new reform movement in politics is that the office should seek the man. It is in all our platforms; it is mentioned by all speakers. But just look at the situation. For the year Mr. Boen, the people's party candidate for congress, has been working for the congressional nomination and for his election since getting the nomination. Not only is he breaking this plank of our platform, but he is a paid official of our county drawing $2,000 a year, yet he has practically abandoned his office and is running after office with a vigor and activity that would put to shame an old party politician. His office is the headquarters and meeting place of all politicians of the county. It is there that the jobs are put up and the slates made. If any good is to come out of our movement we must condemn by our votes at the polls such an outrage upon our principles.

THE DEMOCRATIC party has just awakened to the fact that there is something wrong with the wheat market in the Northwest. The JOURNAL, years ago pointed out the fact and has for years been laboring to see those evils abated and the republican party broke up the combination, the millers association, and provided a means for relief through the board of railroad and warehouse commissioners. The republican party provided for cars for individual shippers and in fact has done all all that has ever been done to provide relief and now the democrats have just awakened to the fact that any relief was needed. It is like a death-bed repentance—done through fear or a hope of a future reward and is not worthy of confidence.

ASSISTANT SUPERINTENDENT DICKSON informs the JOURNAL that the schools throughout the county are getting pretty well supplied with flags. This is as it should be as there is no better way to instil the love of freedom into the hearts of the rising generation then to see "Old Glory" floating from every school house in the land. Let the good work go on until every school house is supplied with a handsome flag.

THE News and Tribune of Duluth have consolidated. A sensible move and just what should have been done years ago. Now, if the good people of Duluth are wise they will not encourage the starting of any more morning papers but will give a hearty support to the News-Tribune and thus secure one rattling good paper that would be a credit to their enterprising city.

ATTENTION G. A. R.

Which Will You Support?

A faithful comrade who shared your toils and dangers in the field or a politician who sent a substitute to the front and stayed at home to croak and call the war a failure. During his four years in office Grover Cleveland signed 1,246 pension bills and vetoed 524, and took a malignant pleasure in adding to his pension vetoes every sneer of which his clumsy wit was capable. President Harrison, our loyal comrade, has signed 1,576 special pension bills and vetoed none, showing his loyalty to his country in her hour of deepest need and his loyalty to her defenders in their hour of need. Whom can you trust? Harrison, who by his very action has proven to be your friend or Cleveland, who by his very action has proven to be your subtle foe? Gen. Dan Sickles (a democrat) says "no old soldier true to himself or family can cast a vote for Grover Cleveland."

AT the last minute the democratic state central committee withdrew D. R. Hibbs, A. L. Sackett and James Brown from their electorial ticket and indorsed in their respective places William Meighen, James Dillon and A. B. Stromberg, the people's party nominees. They also indorsed A. H. Halloway of the people's party in place of John C. Oswald, who resigned some time ago. To the democrats of those districts—democrats who hoped to cast a vote for a Cleveland elector this must be a pleasant situation to be placed in. They have three alternatives: vote for the republican presidential electors, the people's party electors, or not vote at all. Great and wonderful are democratic principles!

"THE LAST SHALL BE FIRST."

In the drawing for position on the state ticket the People's party got first place, the Dems second, Prohibs third and Republicans last place, and "the last shall be first" on election day.

MONDAY, Oct. 10th was the last day for candidates for state offices to file their names with the state auditor and have their names printed on the ballots. The state furnishes the ballots, and each candidate must pay the state auditor $50 before his name can be enrolled as a candidate. On the date named, the candidates of the four political parties filed their certificates of nomination and paid their fees.

WITH the exception of the prohibition candidates for national and state offices, and the presidential electors, the national and state ticket published on another page is complete. The JOURNAL publishes these ballots this early that the voters may become acquainted with the Australian ballot and how to vote it.

Cash for Hides.

I will pay the highest market price in cash for hides, pelts and furs. Call at my office No. 14 Broadway, Crookston, Minn.

[26-tf] GEO. VINE.

A Painful Silence.

The Hallock News says that E. M. Stanton, of Crookston, delivered a very good address at Hallock during the fair but remarks that "One notable point about Mr. Stanton's speech was that when he eulogized in glowing terms W. F. Kelso for congress and paused for applause there was a painful silence.

JUST RECEIVED

—AT THE—

New York Store

A LARGE ASSORTMENT OF

CLOAKS

—AND—

JACKETS.

LOOK AT THESE FIGURES!

36 inch English Cashmeres...	17½c
10-4 all wool Blankets...	$2.50
2 cases of Prints...	4¾
10-4 Blankets...	75c
Velvet Brussels Carpet...	$1.35
All wool Carpet...	65c
36 inch Dress Flannels...	19c
Tricots...	19c
100 dozen all wool Hose...	19c
8-4 Sheeting...	17c
Sanitary Flannels...	15c
40 inch Plush Sacque...	$7.95
Cotton Flannels...	5½c
2,000 yards crash...	5c
Plush Jackets...	$4.79

A. CHABOT, Prop. Cor. Broadway and Robert Streets, CROOKSTON, MINN.

AM LOOKING FOR YOU!

Whether you want to buy much or little, I want to sell you. My stock of Ladies' and Gents' Fine Watches includes nearly every derisable style and variety, from the modest plain polished, to richly engraved.

Look at These!

A 3822

A3187

Hoping to hear from you soon, I am yours very truly,

C. H. SAAKE, The Leading Jeweler.

FOSSTON FAIR.

Fair Exceeded the Expectations of its Promoters in Every Respect.

A Fine Exhibit, A Large Attendance, Good Races and Good Weather.

FOSSTON, Minn., Oct., 8—[special correspondence]—The first annual fair of the Thirteen Towns Fair Association, held at Fosston, Minn., Oct. 5, 6 and 7, was a great success in every way. The weather could not be better, the attendance was large—larger than was expected—the exhibits were numerous and excellent and the racing and other attractions were all that could be desired or expected. The citizens of Fosston, who are noted for their hospitality, maintained their reputation in this respect and made every possible effort to please and entertain the visitors. The association starts out in excellent condition. They have paid for their building and track improvements in fact all their expenses—and have money in the bank. Too much praise cannot be given the managers of the fair for the manner in which they have handled their first exhibition.

The secretary, W. H. Averill, has worked late and early, and with some assistance from O. H. Bennett, has done all the clerical work connected with the secretary's office. About 225 entries were made, which is, we think, a good showing for a first fair in a comparatively new country.

Half of the exhibit hall was set apart for display by business houses, and among these were noticed the the following displays by Fosston business houses: Lamps and glassware, P. M. Mark; furniture, Fosston Furniture Co., overcoats and clothing, Hillestad & Blyberg, sewing machines, O. L. Larson, stoves Hillestad & Lade and Sorenson & Randklev.

Kops Bros. of Grand Forks had an exhibit of pianos and organs in charge of Howard, Farwell & Co. of St. Paul also had several fine instruments in charge of Miss Jennie Partridge.

Everyone was surprised with the collection of vegetables shown—large, juicy watermelons, huge pumpkins, mammoth beets, splendid looking potatoes, nice looking tomatoes, large onions, a variety of corn, etc. The farmers of the Thirteen Towns thoroughly demonstrated that they have as prolific soil in this section of country as there is in Minnesota.

The exhibit of stock was not large, but there was sufficient to show that the farmers have started in the right direction. The three Holsteins and two Shorthorns from the S. C. Bagley farm, shown by Timothy Moore, showed that the people have started raising the right kind of cattle. And right here the JOURNAL wants to say that the Bagley farm is one of the finest in the county, and Mr. Moore one of the best of managers.

There was a fair showing of horses, sheep, poultry, etc.

THE RACES.

Farmers trot—F. O. Sibley took first money with Bay Bill; D. C. Dusette, second with chestnut Dick and Lady Gray 3rd.

Pony running race—J. E. Campbell first with Black Billy; J. E. Campbell second with Nellie; and Midget 3rd. On the 2nd day of the fair there was a special running race for $500 between Black Bess, owned by J. E. Campbell of Fosston, and Live Oak a horse from North Dakota. But the Live Oak wasn't in it, and the backers of Black Bess realized on the race.

The trotting race on Friday was won by a horse from Park River, N. D., with P. J. LaChapelle's P. J. second. The running race was won by Jim Campbell's Black Bess.

AN INCIDENT.

Among the speakers requested by the fair managers to deliver addresses was M. Falk Gjertson, of Minneapolis, one of the best scholars and profoundest thinkers in the state. While speaking in the opera hall, Mr. Gjertson was repeatedly interrupted, and was finally hooted by someone in the hall. It was charged that Arny Grundysen, the sheriff of Polk county—the man above all others who should preserve order—was the person who started the disturbance. Mr. Grundysen afterwards denied this, and said he was trying to preserve order. There is one thing certain, whether Mr. Gundysen was guilty or not, he was blamed for it by parties who were in the hall and lost a good many votes by their discourteous treatment of one of the city's guests. The people's party have held innumerable public meeting in Fosston, and have never been molested or disturbed, and naturally the old parties expect the same treatment from the People's party which is accorded to them.

THE RALLY.

On Thursday evening a republican rally was held in the opera hall, and standing room in the building was at a premium during the evening. The Thirteen Towns has been the stronghold of the people's party for two years, and it had even been said that republican speakers would not come here this fall as they would not get an audience. But the sentiment of the people is changing and the meeting Thursday night showed that the republicans will get more votes in the Thirteen Towns than the most enthusiastic republican had hoped for.

Hon. Halvor Steenerson, of Crookston, was the first speaker, and he held the close attention of his hearers for two hours while he discussed the questions most nearly affecting the people of this section, viz: The elevators, the railroads, freight rates and grain grading. He contrasted the records of Knute Nelson and Ignatus Donnelly, and showed very plainly that the charges which the latter is continually making against Nelson and the whole republican party is simply a cloak to cover up his own cussedness. F. A. Husher, U. S. consul at St. Thomas, Canada, addressed the audience in the Norwegian language and discussed the national issues in a comprehensive manner.

To show the interest which was taken in the speeches it is not only necessary to say that of all those who stood in the aisles and around the walls for three hours scarcely a man left the room.

NOTES

The display of bead work by the Indians from White Earth was particularly creditable, and the amount of patience displayed in the making of this work is something wonderful.

Frank Gravel acted as starter of the races, and performed his duties like a professional.

Tom Young took up his trotting mare Kate, to trot in the farmers' trotting race, but was barred out on the grounds that Tom was not a farmer.

Four deer attracted considerable attention on the fair grounds.

The band is one of the institutions Fosston may well feel proud of, and the fact that the village purchased them elegant uniforms is proof that their work is appreciated. A fair would be a tame affair without a brass band and the Fosston band contributed much to the success of the exhibition by their excellent selections.

Billy Spears, the Red Lake Falls merchant, was helping the Fosston people entertain their visitors.

Thos. Johnstone, Felland Bros., manager at Fisher, was here during the fair, and was as busy as a bee looking after the comfort of visitors, and helping along the enterprise in every way he could. On the first day of the fair he went out around the country and gathered up some fine exhibits of stock and vegetables. "Tommy" is a great agricultural fair enthusiast, and no one understands better their management or their value to a community.

On Friday the Crookston base ball team came up and played an exciting game with the Fosston team, winning by a score of 15 to 14. The ground was rough and the playing was not as good as it otherwise would have been.

In the ball game Wilson of the Fair captured the crowd by his excellent work on first base. He didn't miss a ball, and he didn't even take his coat off.

The four new pianos on exhibition during the week were added to the homes of our citizens.

Much credit is due our twin sister McIntosh for the numerous display on exhibition.

The following towns were represented here by their leading citizens during the week, Crookston, Fisher, Fertile, Ada, St. Hilaire, McIntosh, Erskine, Mentor, White Earth, Red Lake, Grand Forks, Park River and numerous other places.

Our hotels and restaurants were taxed to their utmost and every available building was converted into sleeping apartments.

The Grand ball at the opera hall Friday evening under the management of Frank Gravel was the largest and most successful entertainment of the kind ever held in Thirteen Towns.

Of the Marshall county fair the Stephen Leader says:

"The Marshall county fair was a decided success. We were surprised at the large display of stock and the large vegetables, and were fairly speechless when we saw the display of ladies' work. It is a good thing we were not one of the judges or we should have bankrupted the society by giving them all prizes, that is the ladies. By a little more work next year we can have the best fair in the valley."

For Sale.

A scholarship in the Crookston Business College. Apply at the JOURNAL office. [10 t.f.]

Lane's Medicine Moves the Bowels Each Day. In order to be healthy this is necessary.

CITY COUNCIL.

Proceedings of an Adjourned Meeting of the City Council Held Oct. 7th.

Among the Resolutions Passed was one Relating to the Social Evil.

Proceedings of an adjourned meeting of the city council of the City of Crookston held in the city hall on Friday evening Oct. 7th, 1892.

Meeting called to order by president Cromb.

Roll called:

Aldermen present:—Anderson, Austin, Childs, Jennings, Morrisey, Marlette, Watts and Cromb.

Aldermen absent:—Jerome, McGlogan and Walker.

A communication was read from Alderman McGlogan resigning his position as alderman of the second ward. On motion the resignation was accepted.

Moved by Alderman Morrisey seconded by Alderman Cromb that John Monroe be elected as alderman of the second ward to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of J. H. McGlogan. Carried.

John Monroe being present was sworn in as alderman of said ward.

The finance committee reported favorably upon the bill of Olaf Johnson amounting to $2.50. On motion the report was accepted and the bill ordered paid.

Bond of John Wilcox with Chas. E. Sawyer and O. R. Williams as sureties was read and accepted.

The City Atty was requested to look into the matter of the $50,000 bonds in the Duluth Crookston and Northern Railway matter of the city to report at the next meeting.

Levies were made for the different ward and general funds also for grading and sidewalks and the levies ordered filed at the auditor's office.

Alderman Childs raised a point of order on the resolution passed at the last meeting. Point of order being that the records of the adjourned meeting of September 28th are incorrect in that it states that a certain resolution granting certain rights and privileges and proposes to vacate certain streets for the Duluth Crookston and Northern Railway Company, was passed. Whereas the record shows that only six votes were cast in the affirmative, see section three chapter eight of the charter requires two thirds of all members of the council to legally vacate any street or alley.

Chair ruled the point not well taken.

Alderman Childs appealed and called for the ays and nays.

Aldermen voting in favor of sustaining the chair, Jennings, Austin, Morrisey, Marlette, Monroe and Watts.

Not sustaining the chair, Anderson and Childs.

Chair sustained.

At an adjourned meeting of the city council of the city of Crookston, held the 7th day of October, 1892, Alderman Jas. E. Morrisey offered the following resolution, which was seconded by Alderman Watts: Be it

Resolved, That the levy on lot 24, block 15, in original townsite of Crookston be reduced from $281.62 to $238.95, the difference to be charged to the city's portion of said sewer.

Upon the call of ayes and nays the vote stood as follows:

Aldermen voting in the affirmative: Anderson, Austin, Childs, Jerome, Morrisey, Marlette, Watts, Cromb, Munroe.

Aldermen voting in the negative: none.

Upon this vote the resolution was declared carried by the president of the council.

Passed this 7th day of October, 1892.

JOHN CROMB,
President of the Council.

Approved this 7th day of October, 1892

JOHN CROMB,
Attest: Acting Mayor.
E. C. CARRUTH, Clerk.

On motion the clerk was instructed to notify the city printer that he must republish the resolution in which he says the tax levy per front foot is $350.00, and publish it to read $3.50 per front foot, and that in the future he comply with section 13, of chapter 11, of the city charter.

A petition was read from property owners and taxpayers in Jerome's addition relating to the house run by Mrs. Dufour.

Moved by Alderman Childs, seconded by Alderman Marlette, that the prayer of the petitioners be granted and that the proper officials be instructed to take all lawful means within their power to close the house as a house of ill fame and to bring the inmates to justice.

Moved by Alderman Jennings, seconded by Alderman Morrisey that the resolution be laid on the table.

Aldermen voting in the affirmative: Jennings, Morrisey.

Aldermen voting in the negative: Anderson, Austin, Childs, Marlette, Watts.

Alderman Munroe not voting.

Motion declared lost.

The vote on the original motion was taken and resulted as follows:

Aldermen voting in the affirmative: Anderson, Austin, Childs, Marlette, Watts.

Alderman voting in the negative: Jennings.

Aldermen not voting: Morrisey, Munroe, Cromb.

Motion declared carried.

Moved by Alderman Childs, seconded by Alderman Anderson that the petitioners in the matter of the Dufour house in Jerome's addition, be requested to present their proofs to the city attorney that he may be able to draw proper indictments and bring the matter stated in the petition before the proper courts.

Carried.

A communication was handed in by Alderman Childs from Mrs. Cox.

The assessment rolls were ordered filed in the court house, on Saturday.

Moved by Alderman Childs, seconded by Alderman Anderson, that the rules be suspended and permission be given me to move a reconsideration of the resolution passed at the last adjourned meeting, by which the council agree to contract with the Duluth, Crookston and Northern railway company to vacate certain streets and alleys. My justification for making the request being that the council have no right to contract by less than two-thirds vote to do something which the charter requires a two-thirds vote to perform.

Ayes: Anderson, Childs, Jennings.

Nays: Austin, Morrisey, Marlette, Munroe, Watts, Cromb.

Motion declared lost.

Alderman Childs asked to be excused. Granted.

At an adjourned meeting of the city council of the city of Crooksson, held the 7th day of October, 1892, Alderman Morrisey offered the following resolution which was seconded by Alderman Jennings:

Resolved, That the street commissioner is hereby ordered to construct sidewalks in front of lots 15, 18, 21, of block 16; the center 50 feet of lot 1, block 18, all in the original townsite of Crookston; also in South Crookston, in front of lots 3, 4, 5 and 6, of block 3, where they have not already been laid.

Upon the call of ayes and nays the vote stood as follows:

Aldermen voting in the affirmative: Anderson, Austin, Jennings, Morrisey, Munroe, Marlette, Watts and Cromb.

Aldermen voting in the negative: none.

Upon this vote the resolution was declared carried by the president of the council.

Passed this 7th day of October, 1892.

JOHN CROMB,
President of the Council.

Approved this 7th day of October, 1892.

JOHN CROMB,
Attest: Acting Mayor.
E. C. CARRUTH, Clerk.

On motion council adjourned.

E. C. CARRUTH,
City Clerk.

At an adjourned meeting of the city council of the city of Crookston, held the 28th day of September 1892, Alderman Morrisey offered the following resolution, which was seconded by Alderman F. Anderson:

The city council of the city of Crookston does hereby resolve: That the proportionate amount of cost of constructing sewer heretofore ordered constructed along centre of Front street from a point where the same is intersected by Sixth street to Red Lake river where the same intersects said Front street to be paid by special assessment, that is, the cost of a two foot sewer over said territory is three dollars and fifty cents ($3.50) per linear foot, and be it resolved that aforesaid sum be the measure of said special assessment.

Upon the call of ays and nays, the vote stood as follows:

Aldermen voting in the affirmative; Austin, Anderson, Jennings, Jerome, Morrisey, Marlette, Watts and Cromb.

Aldermen voting in the negative: None.

Upon this vote the resolution was declared carried by the president of the council.

Passed this 28th day of Sept. 1892.

JOHN CROMB,
President of the council.

Approved this 28th day of September, 1892.

WM. ANGLIM,
Mayor.
Attest E. C. CARRUTH,
City Clerk.

Democratic Courtesy.

Hallock News:—The St Vincent fair managers treated the republicans in a very unfair and insulting manner. They were invited to go there and hear a speaker, to meet Mr. Stanton, the democratic orator. Mr. Stanton was given the first chance to speak but as soon as he had finished, the band was called away and some sports commenced in other parts of the town, thereby drawing considerably from the crowd besides making considerable noise when the republican speaker, Mr. Shisler, made his address.

Warren Sheaf.—Congressman John Lind will speak in Warren on Columbus day, Oct. 21st, in the evening.—James O'Brien, of Stephen, was adjudged insane by the judge of probate, C. S. Hull, and sent to the asylum at Fergus Falls on Friday last.—A. B. Nelson has commenced to build a fine new residence on Nelson Ave, to be occupied by himself and family. He had to catch on to the boom.—Otta Rollis, who used to work for Mentzer in the machine business here, has again returned to this county with his family, after an absence of several years in the "wild and woolly west."—The city schools are making arrangements for an elaborate celebration of Columbus Day on Oct. 21st. The day is made a national holiday by act of congress. People who live in communities where no celebrations are held are cordially invited to join the Warren people in observing the day.

St. Hilaire Spectator:—L. Ellington, of Crookston, is in town today on business.—Farmers are progressing rapidly with their fall work and a few weeks will see all completed.—Minton Holmes had a severe hemorrhage of the lungs last Saturday and he has been very sick since then. Drs. Dunlop and Tillier, of Crookston, are in town today in attendance.—The construction train arrived here last Sunday with a crew of about seventy-five men and they commenced work on Monday laying track to Thief River Falls. They will have the steel laid into Thief River Falls this week. It will probably take a couple of weeks to surface the track after which regular trains will be run.

"WORTH A GUINEA A BOX."
Science
MEDICAL SCIENCE
has achieved a great triumph in the production of BEECHAM'S PILLS which will cure Sick Headache and all Nervous Disorders arising from Impaired Digestion, Constipation and Disordered Liver; and they will quickly restore women to complete health.
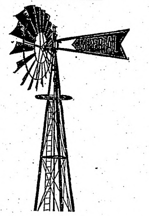
Covered with a Tasteless & Soluble Coating.
Of all druggists. Price 25 cents a box.
New York Depot, 365 Canal St.

If you want fresh groceries, go to A. Sture's.

From $2.00 to $5.00 saved by those who need a cloak this fall and read Locken & Holmboe's adv. in this issue.

THE IMPERIAL



All Steel Windmill,
Can be set up on a Steel or Wood Tower.
We carry a
COMPLETE STOCK OF
WOOD AND IRON PUMPS,
including DOUBLE-ACTING,
ANTI-FREEZING
FORCE PUMPS.
IRON PIPE AND IRON PIPE FITTINGS.
Special attention given to the
2-in Plugged and Rimmed Well Casing.
PRICES AS LOW AS THE LOWEST.
Estimates given on all Plumbing Contracts in or out of the city.
CROOKSTON PLUMBING CO.,
Broadway, near Robert St., Crookston, Minn.

A SPECIAL SALE OF
Cloaks and Jackets
—FOR THE—
NEXT TWO WEEKS.
Ladies', Misses and children's } CLOAKS AND JACKETS.
Below Regular Prices.
Ladies' fur trimmed Jackets..................from $5.75 up
Misses fur trimmed Jackets..................from 5.50 up children's cloaks..................from 2.00 up
LOCKEN & HOLMBOE,
Opera House Department Store,

NORTHWESTERN College OF Commerce
GRAND FORKS, NORTH DAKOTA.
THE GREAT CHAIN OF BUSINESS COLLEGES under the above name offers facilities superior to any school in the Northwest for obtaining a Practical Education. Four Courses, Commercial, Shorthand and Typewriting, Ornamental Penmanship and English. Students receive personal instruction and can enter at any time and take just such studies as they desire. Evening School now in session. Good board $2.00 per week. TUITION REASONABLE.
Three thousand Handsome Catalogues for Free Distribution. Send for one. Write for particulars.
H. L. RUCKER, President. J. J. SWENGEL, Principal.

If you want a
STOVE OR RANGE
FOR WOOD OR Coal, see the FAMOUS Stoves AND Ranges
FAMOUS
BRAND
STOVE
AT ALDERMAN & SYLVESTER'S.
They are the finest line of stoves ever brought to Crookston, and are sold at
REASONABLE PRICES.

A SOLDIER'S SECRET

BY CAPT. CHARLES KING, U.S.A.

COPYRIGHT, 1892, BY J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY, AND PUBLISHED BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH THEM.

[CONTINUED.]

CHAPTER XII.

"Aim well, men, but fire lively."

Before quitting the ambulance and its precious freight Ellis had made such examination of the neighborhood as was possible in the thick darkness, and discovered that they were close to the edge of a narrow, winding ravine with abruptly sloping banks, and it was in here that those sagacious mules had sought shelter from the force of the blast. The ambulance was standing on a veritable ridge, exposed to the full fury of the gale, the slope to the rapid running Wolf just in front, the ravine to the right rear. Shouting to the ladies to fear nothing, he had no difficulty, when aided by the driver, in starting the wheels, and the instant the vehicle was partially turned into the track of the storm it was blown backward down into the soft bed of snow, already thick and deep. Here, under the lee of the banks, the stout wagon was comparatively sheltered, for the top of the canvas cover was just a trifle below the general level of the prairie. The mules, startled from their fancied security by the rattle of wheels and canvas as the ambulance was run down the slope into their midst, seized with one of their unaccountable panics tore blindly away up the farther bank and out upon the storm swept level beyond.

Then in the whirling cloud of snow Ellis had remounted, shouted again a few encouraging words to the ladies within, assuring them he and his sturdy troop horse would have no difficulty in reaching camp and bringing aid, urging them meantime to keep snugly bundled in their robes; and with Mrs. Berrien's brave voice and cheery "God speed you, sergeant!" ringing in his ears, he rode gallantly away, forded the shallow stream at the mouth of the coulee and then, facing the gale, spurred forth upon his perilous mission. The driver and the already somnolent Pete, with what was left of the contents of the depleted flask, crawled into the snowbed beneath the wagon body, rolled themselves into their joint stock of robes and blankets and prepared to spend a comfortable night. It was an old story to both.

But, despite all the driver's efforts on the way, the gale had forced them far to the right of the main road and those which paralleled it, the only ones at all familiar to the Twelfth, and when Brewster and his little squad reached the ford, along toward two o'clock in the morning, they sought in vain in every ravine and break—shouted, fired their carbines and sounded their trumpet, all to no purpose. Not an answering cry rewarded their efforts. From Ellis' description Brewster knew that the ladies were so muffled in furs that within their canvas shelter they could hardly suffer greatly from the cold. He was assured that the driver and Pete were with them, also well provided with robes and blankets; and that they were in no immediate danger of freezing; but he could not bear the thought of the long, weary waiting, the dread anxiety, the darkness, the isolation in all that howling wilderness. He could picture Winifred nestled in her mother's arms, wondering, wondering, as the hours dragged by, when, if ever, human aid would come to their relief. At four o'clock he and his party had searched and scouted for half a dozen miles up and down the valley. Some of his best and stanchest men were giving out, and these, with Sergeant Brooks, he ordered to push along with the gale and seek news and shelter at the station.

Three others he posted near the main crossing of the Wolf, under the lee of a little bluff, where they and their horses speedily stamped a hole in the snowdrifts around the hospital ambulance and huddled for warmth—fires they could not light, even had there been a vestige of fuel—and then, with three undaunted campaigners at his back, he had once again turned down stream, following its wanderings in the darkness and feeling for ravines he could not see along the southern bank. Time and again they dismounted and ran beside their horses to restore circulation to the numbed and stiffened feet and fingers. Time and again they plunged waist deep into drifts and the horses floundered to their girths in the powdery snow. At last Brewster noted that here and there far in the northwestern skies the stars were beginning to peep: the clouds were driving away, the dawn was nigh, the hurricane abating. Broader and brighter the daylight stole over the storm swept prairie, streaked here and there with fleecy, winding veins, and when at last the sun arose in its unclouded splendor the gale had died away to a mere ghost of its furious self, and they rubbed the icy fringe from their battered eyelids and gazed long and wistfully up and down that shallow, winding valley, all heaped and tumbled with the driven snow, and saw not a sign of those whom they had rushed to save.

Never for an instant did Brewster relax his efforts. Giving each of his men a pull at the flask, he selected little Murphy as about the most compact and certainly the lightest of the trio, and bade him make his way to camp and tell the colonel that up to sunrise no vestige of the lost ones had been found, and suggest that additional parties be sent out at once.

"Tell somebody to bring my field glass," he added, as Murphy was about to ride away. "If I had dreamed we would have found nothing of the ambulance until this time, I never should have left it. Good luck to you now, corporal. Ride as lively as you can."

Murphy turned promptly away, spurred his unwilling horse through the ice into the black and racing waters of the Wolf and was presently following a little break in the north side which led by a more gradual ascent to the prairie beyond.

"Now, men, one of you ride back toward the party at the ford, poke into every ravine to your left—they're all full of snow; it may be the ambulance is so deep in the drift they could hear no sound. If you find anything, the faintest trace, ride up on the prairie and circle your horse to the left. Morse, you come with me."

"Beg pardon, lieutenant, I think Murphy see's something now," said Morse, indicating the farther shore with a nod of his fur covered head. Whirling eagerly about, Brewster was surprised to see his little Irishman, a hundred yards or so away, crouching low on his horse's back, still in the ravine and up to his girth in snow, and peering cautiously eastward, his eyes just level with the bank. Then he was plainly seen to signal. In an instant Brewster and his men were plunging into the rapid stream, crushing the ice that skirted the shores and bounding out upon the frozen ground beyond. Again Murphy held forth a hand—a warning gesture, not a a beckoning one. "Keep down, keep down," he signaled, and wondering, the little party of troopers cautiously followed into the ravine.

"What do you see?" queried Brewster, eager and agitated.

"Upon my soul, sir, I wish I knew; but it's more like Indians than anything I can think of."

"Indians? where away?" And with a wild fear at heart Brewster gazed over the bank in the direction indicated.

"Indians, and coming this way, sir, or I'm a tenderfoot," muttered Morse, a man who had served in the Twelfth for many a year.

"What on earth can they be doing so far south of the agency? You don't think any of the hostiles have got down this way?"

"They're all hostiles, sir, when there's only three or four ag'in them. It don't matter whether these are from the agency or the Bad Lands now, if they can catch a white man a-napping, and something has brought them out here."

"My God, man! you don't suppose they've heard of the ambulance?"

"They hear things quicker than we do, lieutenant. Day or night, calm or storm, those fellows can all around beat us in getting news."

"And they are coming from the northeast, lieutenant," chimed in Murphy. "That means if they are from the villages near the agency they've circled around our people."

Breathless the little party watched the coming dots. The stream bore to the northeast after a deep bend about half a mile away, and on the farther bank, moving nearly parallel with the valley, about a dozen dark objects could be seen moving at rapid lope, the springing, tireless gait of the Indian pony. Ponies they were unquestionably, and each with his rider. Every moment brought them nearer and nearer, until, as they spread out in extended order across the level surface, it was possible to count their number, eleven; possible to note that every now and then some one of the number in front or on the flanks would rein in suddenly and circle around and stop, as though examining tracks upon the prairie.

"It is not possible the ambulance can have got so far over as that," muttered Brewster. "It is not possible that they can have heard of it in all that fearful storm. Why, Morse, it's madness to think of it!"

"I don't know how far the team may have been driven out that way, sir, but the blizzard came from the northwest, from their left front; it beat across their path all the way and mules won't face it, and if it isn't the ambulance they're after, what can it be?"

"My God, if we only knew where it was!" groaned Brewster. "Come what may, men, we've got to stand 'twixt it and those scoundrels. Here, Murphy, lively now, slip back down into the valley and ride for all you're worth to the ford and bring those fellows back with you, every man of them. Tell them to keep under the bank and ride like hell. Off with you, now." And this time there was no recall; Murphy was out of sight in a flash.

Nearer and nearer rode the savage horsemen, now about a mile away. Already Morse and his silent comrade had swung their carbines out of their leathern buckets, thrust a cartridge in the chamber and loosened others in the woven thimbles. Brewster never for an instant quit his gaze, but his hand had stolen back and loosed the flap of the holster at his hip. The movements of the Indians had puzzled him; they were riding not as though moving on some point already determined, but rather as if searching, feeling their way. Every now and then, too, some of their number cantered to the edge of the bank and seemed to scrutinize the valley.

"Snowdrifts are too deep and plentiful in there, around that bend, sir. That's why they're up on the prairie."

Brewster's heart seemed almost to stand still. All on a sudden the leaders swerved; the blanketed riders could be seen bending low and over as they swung their nimble steeds in circle to the right. And then, then, an instant more, and, tossing the powdery snow all in a fleecy white cloud, there came tearing up out of the depths of some unseen coulee a lively herd of Indian ponies rejoicing in their unwonted freedom and determined not to be herded back to slavery without a struggle.

It was hard to repress the shout of joy that sprang to the soldiers' lips. Then it wasn't the ambulance after all; nothing but this frolicsome band of rascals that, after breaking away from the Indian boys the evening before, had doubtless been driven before the gale, demanding the sending forth of quite a party of the young men in search, even before the storm had fully abated. For a moment the troopers forgot their mission as they watched the chase. Fresh and unhampered by weight of any kind the scurrying band came sweeping along the edge of the distant bluff, following an active, mischievous leader and leaving their jaded pursuers far behind. The Indian knows too much to chase a running horse; he leaves him to his own devices, well knowing he will more quickly stop when unpursued and can then more readily be headed off and turned back to the ways he should go. On came the nimble herd full tilt toward the elbow in the shallow valley, where a broad white streak told of deep drifted snow, and there the leader veered to the left and south and would doubtless have stretched away at racing speed on that course but for one young warrior on a dun colored pony, who with the speed of the wind came darting out across the level surface beyond, gamely, skillfully heading him. Around went the leader once more in a wide circle westward, around the southernmost edge of the fleecy drift, and then, with thundering hoofs, the whole troop went bounding away to the west without a living soul to interpose between them and the bald, rolling heights at the far horizon, miles and miles away.

"Go it, pony! I'm glad to see a redskin done for once!" was Morse's jubilant shout. And then, suddenly and sharp, "Good God! What's that, Lieutenant? Look!"

Not six hundred yards away, now, the little band of ponies, following their spirited leader, had suddenly halted at the very edge of some dip or sink in the prairie that lay to the southeast of the snowy rift in which the troopers were crouching, still hidden, they and their horses, from the sharp eyes of the chasing Indians. Then as suddenly, tossing high their scraggy manes, as though with one accord, the nimble brutes whirled to the south, their leader indulging in a fine flourish of heels as he sped away. And now Morse lay against the bank pointing eagerly to a couple of black objects startlingly outlined on the glistening white of the snow, two objects that came plunging up from the invisible depths of the hollow, struggling breast deep in the drifts, and at last reached the edge of the prairie, and, followed instantly by another couple, with their long ears erect, with outstretched neck and eager brayings, clattered away in pursuit of the herd. Brewster knew them at a glance—Sterrett's ambulance mules. Indeed, the broken pole was still dangling between the two in rear and bounding with them over the frozen turf.

And that swerve, that sudden halt and turn to the south end, had cost the band their liberty. Darting along abreast of them, but nearly half a mile away to the south, the warrior on the dun colored pony had shot far out beyond them, and now, sweeping around in a wide circle to his right, rode between them and the broad wastes to the west. Two other Indians were circling in their front, barring the way to the low hills to the south. Others still, straggling far out eastward, reined up so as not to interfere with the "rounding" of the herd. And in a moment or two more these three experts had turned their runaway property in wide sweep back into the shining track of the sun, and in a very few minutes the matter was settled; the ponies were sulkily trotting along the bank beyond the bend, headed for home and hard work again, with the ambulance mules braying at their heels. Here the younger Indians, the boys, took charge, and from the distant slopes, from south and east and from the prairie to the west, the others came cantering toward that sharp angle half a mile away and gathered in eager consultation about one who seemed to be their leader.

All this, and much more, Brewster and his men were watching with bounding pulses, in breathless excitement, Brewster with feelings of mingled hope and despair. Now he knew that the ambulance must be somewhere near at hand, possibly up that long ravine on the south side that slanted in from the prairie not a hundred yards away below them. Surely the banks looked as though there were a good ford at that point. Might not that be the very one of which Ellis spoke? Now, if it were but possible to drop back out of the drifts in which they were hiding and recross the stream, they might yet creep unobserved into the mouth of that gully and feel their way afoot until, somewhere in the snow, they came upon, as he now felt sure they must, the stormbound wagon with its precious contents. From their crouching place it was impossible to see across the ridge that separated them from the ravine referred to; but to the southeast the prairie lay before them, and the keenest eye could detect no sign of hollow between that which lay so near them and that from which those vagabond mules had emerged far out upon the plain. Somehow Brewster felt certain that now at last he was actually within pistol shot of the ambulance, within speaking distance, almost, of the girl he so fondly loved, whose very life at this instant depended not only on his courage, but also on his judgment. One false move would ruin all.

So long as the Indians kept up their powwow at the bend, so long was Winifred safe. The longer they delayed the nearer would it bring Murphy and the men from the main crossing three miles away up stream. Then, six to six, he could laugh at the Sioux. But any one who knew Indians at all knew that the discovery of the mules would only set them to work to find the snow camp from which the animals had broken away. Aye, even as these things flashed through his mind, Brewster could see that they were signaling "halt" to the herd guard, and that two of the youngsters were lashing their ponies out in front of the band and gradually bringing it to a standstill. Almost at the same moment, too, those in consultation separated, three riding swiftly after the herd, while the other three, slowly and cautiously, began to advance toward the hollow whence the mules had emerged. Evidently they expected to find the white man's wagon there.

"Now is your time, men," muttered Brewster. "Quick! Off with your side lines and double them about your horses' fore feet so that they can't even hobble out of the drift. Keep them here. Take your lariat and hopple my horse, one of you. Throw him if need be. I'll watch those beggars down stream. Ah, I thought so," he muttered, "they've grabbed the mules and are examining the harness; that will tell them easily enough they were cut loose after breaking the pole. Quick, men! throw snow by the bushel all over your horses. Roll in it yourselves. Get all the white on you can; then run down the gully as soon as you have your horses hidden and watch for my signal. The moment I say go, bend double and scamper to the ice yonder, then make for the bluffs. I'll follow instantly."

Meekly the two troop horses, after having been led to a deeper point down the coulee, bent their heads and submitted to the lashing together of their fore feet, but Brewster's "Black Jack" was of different mold. He would not yield.

"Over with him, Morse. No time to lose now. Lash him tight or he'll break away," called Brewster. And poor Jack's plunging availed him nothing. A moment more, with a dismal groan he was on his side in the soft, cold bed, the lariat was being lashed and knotted so that even furious struggles could not free him, and then, to add to the indignity, his erstwhile friends and comrades were heaping new insult and a storm of snow upon him. Jack couldn't understand it.

"Ready, men! They're just peeping over in the hollow now. The moment they're fairly in it, I give the word."

Twenty—thirty seconds of breathless silence. Then a quick gesture; a quick, low toned, but imperative "Go!"

Go they did, skimming over the pool above the rapids, leaping the narrow chasm where the black waters, dancing and frothing, had defied the ice king; ducking under the opposite bank; carbines in hand, revolvers at the hip, cartridges gleaming in every belt; and after them, leaping, yet bending low, went Brewster. Another moment and they reached the mouth of the ravine, burst through the powdery drift, and then, Brewster leading, eyes everywhere, almost on all fours, they scurried along half way up the opposite slope, keeping well under the crest and just at the edge of the deep drifts to their right. Fifty—sixty yards they made their rapid way, and then around a little bend and among great heaps and mounds of glistening, shimmering white there rose an odd-shaped heap, only a trifle higher than its fellows, and from the midst of it there projected a dingy, whity-brown canvas, slanting to the north, and with a cry of delight half stifled in his lips Carroll Brewster leaped into the snow, floundered to his armpits in the powdery drift, and in a moment more had forced his way through the fragile white wall before him, had seized the handle of the door and Winifred Berrien, starting from her mother's clasping arms, blinded for an instant by the glare of radiant sunshine, barely able as yet to rally from the stupor like slumber into which she had fallen, heard her name called in the joyous tones she knew so well and saw her lover, a stalwart, glowing, rejoicing young snow god, all sparkling with the white crystals, all glistening in the glorious beams, gazing upon her with a love light in his brave blue eyes that brought instant glow to her own wan and pallid cheek. And then, before she could even speak, before her mother could emerge from the enfolding robes a shout was heard, then the sudden ring of a rifle shot, followed instantly by another, the spat as of a whiplash on the canvas top. Something tore its way through the roof and front with spiteful "zip."

"Down! down upon the floor! both of you, quick!" shouted Brewster, as he slammed the door, and the next instant they heard the order in his ringing tones, half stifled in the snow, "Fire, men! Keep 'em off! Fire!" They heard the quick bang! bang! of carbines close at hand, the prompt response of rifles distant as were the first, the whistle of lead through the icy air, the shrill yells of battling Indians, the furious gallop of bounding hoofs. Everywhere to their front the rapid fire increased. More yells, partly of triumph, partly summoning additional warriors to the spot, then the muffled beat of coming hoofs, and in the midst of it all Brewster's stern voice, calm and steady: "Aim well, men, but fire lively. Don't let them again get so close as to have a shot at the wagon. Watch that above all." Two—three minutes the sound of battle raged about them, increasing at the front. A soldier voice was heard to say: "There's more of them coming, sir. You can see them down there to the east." And Mrs. Berrien's heart grew faint with fear. Winifred had buried her face upon her breast and closed her ears to the horrid sounds. And then, all on a sudden, the yells of the charging Indians seemed to grow fainter, then sounds of dismay arose among them, then the cries were drowned in the clatter of ironshod hoofs and the chorus of soldier cheers. Murphy and his little squad came whirling up the bank, and Mrs. Berrien's heart poured forth in praise and thanksgiving at the joyous Milesian hail:

"To hell wid 'em, fellers! Sure all B throop's comin—not two miles behind!"

DO YOU COUGH
DON'T DELAY
TAKE KEMP'S BALSAM
THE BEST COUGH CURE

It Cures Colds, Coughs, Sore Throat, Croup, Influenza, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis and Asthma. A certain cure for Consumption in first stages, and a sure relief in advanced stages. Use at once. You will see the excellent effect after taking the first dose. Sold by dealers everywhere. Large bottles 50 cents and $1.00.

E. D. SCHREADER,
Veterinary Surgeon.

Horse Dentistry a Specialty.

All Calls receive Prompt Attention. Satisfaction guaranteed in all cases. Office: 319 North Main Street, in connection with Livery house.
CROOKSTON, MINN.

A. A. JUST, M. D.,
Homoeopathic Physician and Surgeon
OFFICE IN
McKinnon Block, Crookston

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication Sept. 29th, 1892.]
[Last publication Nov. 10th, 1892.]

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE payment of nine dollars ($9.00) which became due on the first day of October, A. D. 1889, upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Daniel Bernard and Fannie Jane Bernard, his wife, to John Milton Oliver, bearing date the 3d day of October, A. D. 1888, which mortgage together with the power of sale therein contained, was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the county of Polk and state of Minnesota, on the 29th day of October, A. D. 1888, at 8 o'clock and 10 minutes a. m., in book 40 of mortgages, on pages 273, 274 and 275.

It is provided in said mortgage that if said mortgagors shall fail to pay any part of the sum of money thereby secured at the time and in the manner specified in said mortgage, then upon such default, the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage, may at the option of the mortgagee be declared due and payable; and the said John Milton Oliver, mortgagee, who is now the legal holder of said mortgage and of the notes thereby secured, has elected and does hereby elect and declare the whole sum secured by said mortgage to be due; and there is claimed to be due upon said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of forty-eight and 13-100 dollars, ($48.13), and no action or proceeding has been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof,

Wherefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz:

The northeast quarter (ne¼) of Section fourteen, (14) in Township one hundred and fifty-four (154) north, of Range forty-six (46) west, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres more or less, according to the government survey thereof, in the county of Polk and state of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances thereto belonging; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said county of Polk at the front door of the Court House in the city of Crookston, in said county and state, on Saturday, the 12th day of November, A. D. 1892, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon of that day, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

Dated at Minneapolis, Minn., this 24th day of September, A. D. 1892.

JOHN MILTON OLIVER,
Mortgagee.
C. M. HERTIG,
Attorney for mortgagee.
[24-30]

Work Horses - - - and Mares.

FOR GOOD, SOLID WORK HORSES and MARES, go to

M. R. BROWN,

The old reliable dealer, who has sold horses in this county since 1878, and who is always on hand to make his guaranty good. Every man who ever sold horses here is ready (when he sells) to guaranty, but later, if you happen to want him to make his guaranty good you can't most always sometimes find him ready to make his recommend good. He handles only good young horses and has sold more than any dealer in the county. He is now prepared to supply the demand for good teams—he handles no other—and guaranty them just as recommended. Before you buy you will do well to call at

Brown's New Stables,

Main Street, one door north of the old M. E. church building.

IF YOU ARE GOING EAST OR SOUTH ASK YOUR NEAREST AGENT FOR TICKETS VIA THE AND TAKE NO OTHER LINE BURLINGTON

THE PIONEER
HARNESS SHOP,
M. RAUENBUEHLR, Proprietor.
A full supply of everything kept by the trade.
Cor of Broadway and Third Sts,
CROOKSTON, MINN

Ripans Tabules cure constipation.

GREAT NORTHERN
Railway
TIME CARD.

MONTANA EXPRESS—Daily.

West				East
7:40 p m	De.	St Paul	Ar.	6:55 a m
2:50 a m	"	Fergus Falls	"	11:25 p m
4:47 a m	"	Glyndon	"	9:36 p m
7:20 a m	"	CROOKSTON	"	7:25 p m
8:40 a m	"	Grand Forks	"	6:20 p m
9:45 a m	"	Larimore	"	5:06 p m
2: 1 p m	"	Devils Lake	"	2:55 a m
7:00 p m	Ar.	Butte	De.	7:30 a m

ST. VINCENT BRANCH—Daily except Sunday
Depart 7:30 a m Arrive 6:30 p m

FOSSTON BRANCH—Tues., Thurs. and Sat.
Depart 8:00 a m Arrive 5:30 p m

ST. HILAIRE BRANCH—Monday Wed. & Friday.
Depart 10:45 a m Arrive 4:30 p m

GRAND FORKS' ACCOMMODATION.
Arrive 9:50 a m Depart 7:55 p m

The scenic route to Spokane, Helena, and Butte on the west, and St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth and West Superior on the east. Dining and sleeping cars on all through trains. Tickets on sale to all principal places. Baggage checked through to destination.

W. W. FEGAN, Agent.

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.

TIME SCHEDULE.

	Leave Crookston Daily.	Arrive Crookston Daily.
For Duluth, Ashland, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Chicago, and all points East and South............	7:05 p. m.	8:27 a. m.
For Grand Forks, Grafton, Pembina, Winnipeg and points in N. Dakota and Winnipeg........	8:27 a. m.	7:05 p. m.

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.
THE
Great Transcontinental Route
Passes through Wisconsin, Minnesota North Dakota, Manitoba, Montana, Idaho, Oregon and Washington.

The Dining Car Line

Dining cars are run between Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Winnipeg, Butte, Helena, Tacoma, Seattle and Portland.

PULLMAN SLEEPING CAR ROUTE.

Pullman service daily between Chicago, St. Paul, Montana and the Pacific Northwest; and between St. Paul, Minneapolis and Minnesota, North Dakota and Manitoba points.

THE POPULAR LINE.

Daily Express Trains carry elegant Pullman Sleeping Cars, Dining Cars, Day Coaches, Pullman Tourist Sleepers and Free Colonist Sleeping Cars.

YELLOWSTONE PARK ROUTE.

The Northern Pacific R. R. is the rail line to Yellowstone Park; the popular line to California and Alaska; and its trains pass through the grandest scenery of seven states.

THROUGH TICKETS

Are sold at all coupon offices of the Northern Pacific Railroad to points North, East, South and West, in the United States and Canada.

For rates, maps, time tables, or special information, apply to
CHAS. A. SHARKEY,
Agent Northern Pacific R. R.,
Crookston, Minn.
CHAS. S. FEE,
Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent,
St. Paul, Minn.

WANTED SALESMEN.
Local and Traveling
To represent our well known house. You need no capital to represent a firm that warrants nursery stock first-class and true to name. WORK ALL THE YEAR. $100 per month to the right man. Apply quick, stating age.
L. L. MAY & CO.,
Nurserymen, Glorists and Seedsmen,
(This house is responsible.) St. Paul, Minn.

A. H. DUNLAP, M. D.
Graduate McGill University, Montreal.
LICENSED COLLEGE PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS, QUEBEC.
Office in McKinnon Block.

S. L. COLLINS,
Proprietor of Main Street
Livery and Feed Stables.
Cor. Main and Fourth Sts., west side,
CROOKSTON, - - MINNESOTA.

Horses bought and sold on commission. Everything neat and nobby. Feeding a specialty.

FINE HEARSE

in connection, which I will attend to in person.

C. HENDRICKSON, President.
L. ELLINGTON, Vice President.
J. W. WHEELER, Cashier.
H. STEENERSON, 2d Vice President.
A. P. Hanson, Assistant Cashier.

Scandia-American Bank,

Of Crookston, Minn. Organized under the State laws. Authorized capital $200,000. Paid up capital $50,000. Undivided profits $10,500. Buys Bonds, School and Town Orders. Special attention to collections. Interest on time deposits.

DIRECTORS—C. O. Christianson, E. P. Pierce, O. H. Lucken, A. G. Gallasch, H. Steenerson, J. H. Locken, C. Hendrickson, Max Ericsson, L. K. Aaker, J. W. Wheeler.

FALLACIES REFUTED.

A RIDICULOUS ARGUMENT PROMPTLY PUNCTURED.

The Wages of Europe Are Lower Absolutely and Not Relatively Than in the United States—Some Striking Statements Which Are Unanswerable.

The Tribune published a letter written to the New York World by Mr. J. Schoenhof, which it strongly indorsed, containing certain arguments in favor of free trade. It was intended that the following editorial should be printed in the same issue as the communication whose theories it controverted, but the two got disunited:

Mr. Schoenhof's main contention is that the productivity of the American workingman is far greater than that of his foreign competitor, and that this is why his wages are higher, but that he is paid no more than Europeans for the actual amount of work done.

Schoenhof says that he found in mining coal that the German miner is paid but little more than one-half per ton what the American is paid—70 cents against $1.46 to $1.63 in Illinois to $1.77 in Ohio per ton. Mining coal by the ton is piecework, and a workman makes wages in proportion to the amount of work he does. As the American gets about twice as much per ton he makes double the wages of the German coal miner. This simple fact places Schoenhof's arguments hors de combat, so to speak.

What is true of coal is true of all work paid for by the piece. Unless the head of the establishment is in a great hurry to fill orders it matters little to him that one man does his work more rapidly than another man. What he has to pay for work is the thing which interests him, and it is the sum he has to pay the workman, and not the number of hours or minutes the workman is employed, which fixes the price the employer asks for the goods made in his factory.

The wages of compositors in Chicago are nearly double what they are in England, and the price per 1,000 ems is also about double. Supposing it to be true, which it is not, that the American compositor working by the 1,000 ems is twice as swift as the English one, what difference would that make to the employer when he has to pay twice as much for filling a column as the English employer does? It would be for the interest of the newspaper to employ the English compositors at a shilling per 1,000 ems, which is about their pay. The quantity of matter to be set up would be the same in both cases, but the cost of composition would be reduced a half. The English printers might have to work longer hours or more of them might have to be employed, but neither of those things would affect the total cost of composition. That would depend solely on the rate per thousand.

It follows then that where work is paid for by the piece the employer is concerned only about what he pays for the work done, and not the length of time it takes the workman to do it.

It appears from the various reports on labor in foreign countries that all piecework is paid for at far lower rates there than here. Furthermore, the prices paid for piecework regulate and govern to a great extent those paid for work by the day or hour. The price paid a workingman for his day's labor is based on an estimate of what the average man would do if he worked by the piece. It is a midway figure between what the best and the poorer workman would earn.

Hence it will be seen that the lower wages of Europe are lower absolutely and not relatively. They are not lower because the men work slower, but because they get less for each yard of cloth they spin, each ton of coal they mine, each pound of steel or square foot of glass they make, each 1,000 ems of type they set, and so on to the end of the chapter.

It is claimed by the free traders that the operatives in American cotton mills tend more looms and spindles than those in foreign factories. Supposing it to be so, those operatives are but a very small per cent. of the total number of workingmen and women in the United States.

But to end this controversy with a final and convincing argument, the fact remains that nearly all the competitive goods made in Europe, no matter what their "cost of production" may be, are offered for sale by those who make them at prices much below those asked for similar goods made in this country. Why? Not because the foreign manufacturers are satisfied with much lower profits; not because they get their raw materials much more cheaply, or because transportation costs them less, but because they pay less per yard or pound to their labor for the products turned out. And that is just why they can undersell American manufacturers if the protective duties are taken off, and ruin their business, close them up and drive them from the field, unless American workmen will consent to reduce their wages about to the per cent. of the protection which Democratic free traders would repeal.—Chicago Tribune.

Lots of Noise; No Result.

The eastern Democratic organs that are chasing themselves around in a circle in a vain effort to raise the wind for a northwestern campaign are giving the country a very fair imitation of General Dyrenforth and his rainmakers. There is a great deal of noise about the performance, but the result is a continuation of the Democratic drought.—St. Louis Star-Sayings.

Cold Comfort for Democrats.

The Democratic national committee congratulates the Democratic party on holding Arkansas and not being worse beaten in Vermont and Maine. Is there no cause for felicitation to be found in Alabama? And are Rhode Island and Oregon not worth so much as a minor mention in this official bulletin of jollification?—Wheeling Intelligencer.

CAN CLEVELAND REVERSE THIS?

He Has No Authority to Change the Chicago Platform.

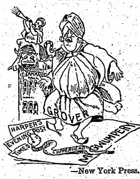
If Mr. Cleveland attempts to substitute a straddle of his own devising for the free trade plank of the Chicago Democratic platform, as it is reported that he contemplates doing, he will have to show his authority for the flop. The party did not nominate him and hand him pen and ink and a sheet of paper and tell him to write a platform to suit himself. First it adopted one, and then he was nominated because it was believed he would accept the principles ennunciated in it.

The vote by which the double construction straddle of the committee was rejected and the doctrine of free trade proclaimed was a decisive one. It was as follows:

States—	Yeas.	Nays.
Alabama	12	10
Arkansas	..	16
California	..	18
Colorado	8	..
Connecticut	..	12
Delaware	..	6
Florida	3	5
Georgia	22	4
Idaho	6	..
Illinois	33	15
Indiana	15	15
Iowa	26	..
Kansas	..	20
Kentucky	26	..
Louisiana	8	8
Maine	..	12
Maryland	7	9
Massachusetts	26	4
Michigan	28	..
Minnesota	..	18
Mississippi	11	6
Missouri	34	..
Montana	6	..
Nebraska	16	..
Nevada	6	..
New Hampshire	..	8
New Jersey	..	20
New York	72	..
North Dakota	6	..
North Carolina	17	5
Ohio	46	..
Oregon	7	1
Pennsylvania	..	64
Rhode Island	..	8
South Carolina	18	..
South Dakota	1	7
Tennessee	5	18
Texas	30	..
Vermont	..	8
Virginia	11	11
Washington	8	..
West Virginia	12	..
Wisconsin	..	24
Wyoming	6	..
Territories—
Alaska	..	2
Arizona	6	..
Indian Territory	2	..
Oklahoma	2	..
New Mexico	5	1
Utah	2	..
District of Columbia	..	2
Totals	564	342

It will be seen that New York cast 72 votes for the radical Neal plank, Ohio 46, Massachusetts 26, Texas 30, Missouri 34, Illinois 33, Michigan 28, Iowa 26, Georgia 22, Kentucky 26, North Carolina 17, Indiana 15, Nebraska 16, and West Virginia 12. Have any or all of those states held conventions and authorized Mr. Cleveland to change their votes and record them in favor of a straddle? Until he can show that he holds their proxy he has no authority to take one jot or tittle from or add it to the Chicago platform. If he attempts to do so it is an act of usurpation which will meet with swift punishment.—Chicago Tribune.

The Mugwump Idol Becomes a Howling Dervish.



—New York Press.

Democrats Are Free Traders.

It has been claimed that the Democrats in the east were not so well disposed toward free trade as the western wing of the party, but even this compromising position must be abandoned now so far as New England is concerned. The New Hampshire Democrats have nominated an out and out free trader for governor, and their platform condemns protection in no uncertain terms. Hon. John E. Russell, of Massachusetts, who was sent out by competent authority to stump Vermont, was an avowed free trader, and the committee who engaged his services in effect indorsed his free trade sentiments.—Burlington (Ia.) Free Press.

An Import Picture.

During the month of July, 1892, our imports of British tin plate were invoiced at 2.06 cents per pound, as against 3.38 cents per pound in July, 1891, the first month of the McKinley duty.—New York Press.

A Possible "Business Revival."

It will be a good thing for the men who print counterfeit detectors if the Democracy ever get into power and put their state bank scheme into operation. In the old days, "befo' the wah," when wildcat money from the state banks literally blanketed the country, every business man, merchant, banker, storekeeper, hotel man—in fact, pretty much everybody—had a counterfeit detector within easy reach, and it was a wise precaution.—York City (Pa.) Dispatch.

The Mugwump Idol Shattered.

Mr. Cleveland having extended the olive branch to Mr. Hill, with an unction that is more creditable to his judgment than is consistent with his past high mightiness, the Democrats will probably have less to say hereafter of the president's placation of Mr. Platt. But what will the Mugwumps do now that their idol has so incontinently dumped them?—Wilkesbarre (Pa.) Record.

SAD CALAMITYITES.

ONE REPORT AFTER ANOTHER DAZED THE DEMOCRATS.

This Has Been a Decidedly Bad Year for Them—Cleveland and the Mugwumps Have Unconditionally Surrendered to the "Gang"—What Curtis Has to Say.

This is a very bad year for the Democratic party. The hearts of the members of the British Cobden club may well be wrung with anguish as they contemplate the successive disasters that have befallen their American free trade allies. In the first place the excellent crops and the unparalleled industrial prosperity of the country were a great blow to the calamity party. Short crops and bad business always work for Democratic success. Then came the report of the United States senate committee, signed by the ablest Democrat in congress, John G. Carlisle, showing by incontrovertible proof that the wages of workingmen had increased while the prices of manufactured products had diminished under the McKinley law.

Then there followed in quick succession the official reports of Labor Commissioner Peck and Bank Superintendent Preston, both Democrats. The free traders had insisted, with all the noise and pertinacity of professional howling dervishes, that the McKinley tariff was oppressing industry and lessening the reward of labor. Commissioner Peck's report proved that in one year under this tariff there had been in the single state of New York an increase of industrial production amounting to $31,000,000, an increase in the total amount of wages paid to factory employees of more than $6,000,000, and an average individual increase of wages amounting to $23.11 for 285,000 workers in sixty-eight manufacturing industries. Superintendent Preston demonstrated that the savings banks deposits in New York state had increased from $615,889,796 on Jan. 1, 1889, to $710,112,873.48 on July 1, 1892, while the depositors had increased in number from 1,362,852 to 1,556,133.

These heavy blows sent the Democracy into a panic. They brought about a speedy and unconditional surrender on the part of Mr. Cleveland and the Mugwumps to Bosses Croker, Sheehan, Murphy and the "semicriminal organization" of Tammany Hall. But there was still more misfortune in store for the luckless Democracy. Mr. George Ticknor Curtis, the most eminent living Democratic authority on constitutional law, has publicly announced that he will not sanction, even by silence, the outrageous dogma that protection to American industry is unconstitutional.

More than this, Mr. Curtis, whose name commands respect and whose opinions carry weight among citizens of all parties in every state in the Union, has declared not only that protection is constitutional, but that it is in the highest degree beneficial to the nation at large. This veteran Democrat, whose constitutional opinions have been quoted as authority by the Democratic press for so many years, states his position with all the clearness and force that the English language can give to it. He says:

"In common with many other Democrats I cannot follow the leaders of the party in denouncing Republican protection as a fraud upon the labor of the great majority of the American people for the benefit of a few, nor can I subscribe to the doctrine that a protective tariff is unconstitutional. I have no pecuniary interest in manufactures, but I know what protection has done and is doing for this country. If it operates for the benefit of the few I am not one of that few. I am one of the many—one of the great majority benefited by it, including those who denounce it for the sake of obtaining political power. If the leaders of a political party assembled in national convention for the purpose of nominating candidates for the presidency and vice presidency choose to stultify themselves by falsifying history they cannot expect to be followed by others who have any habits of independent thought and action."

This last disaster is one of the worst that has yet befallen the Democratic politicians. The facts of the labor market and of the country's industrial development are all against them, and now they are openly denounced for their dishonesty and lack of patriotism by one of the most prominent and most highly esteemed Democrats in the United States. Mr. Cleveland and his followers may well wonder what is coming next.—New York Press.

Secessionists Are Highly Pleased.

Those of the leaders in the old secessionist movement who are still alive must feel mightily pleased at seeing their tariff views officially adopted by the national Democracy. It has taken a long time to convert the party from the strong protectionist principles of Jefferson and Jackson to the free trade notions of Calhoun, but under Grover Cleveland the task has finally been accomplished.—Boston Journal.

An Export Picture.

And still our exports grow. The total domestic exports for the first seven months of 1891 were $474,405,127

The total domestic exports for the first seven months of 1892 were $528,894,241

—New York Press.

Men with Memories.

Seneca, the wise, could repeat 2,000 words in the uninterrupted succession in which they were read to him. The greatest Roman orator before Cicero, Hortensius, could recite all the prices given at a public auction. Themistocles, who considered it a greater art to forget than to remember, learned the Persian language inside of a year.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Town Clerks.

The following is a list of the town clerks for the several towns in Polk county:

Andover,	E M Bivins	Crookston
Angus,	A B Carleton	Angus
Black River,	P A Eckstrom	Wylie
Bray,	Albert Wickstrom	Wylie
Badger	P N Savalrud	Sletten
Brandsvold,	Ole Nelion	Fosston
Belgium,	Henry Biever	Euclid
Brislet,	A P Frank	Warren
Bygland,	Thos. Benson	Fisher
Crookston,	E O Flanders	Crookston
Crookston, city,	E C Carruth	Crookston
Columbia,	R H Carr	Columbia
Chester,	O J Mattson	Lindsay
Emardville,	Peter Anderson	Emard
Euclid,	F Tiedt, Jr.,	Euclid
Eden,	Neri A Skeie	Olga
Fairfax,	Wm Himmelsback	Crookston
Farley,	Mark Congnon	Warren
Fanny,	Walter Latta	Buffington
Fisher,	Halvor Gunderson	Fisher
Fisher, vil.,	John Gleason	Fisher
Gd Forks,	John McCoy	E G Forks
Gd Forks, city,	John McCoy	E G Forks
Garfield,	Iver J Ingebretson	Fertile
Garden,	John Hanson	Ringdal
Gentilly,	H F Goudron,	Gentilly
Gervais,	John Deforge	R L Falls
Grand Park,	E E Abbott	Mentor
Goderey,	D T Mitchell,	Maple Bay
Hammond,	Ernest Hanna	Crookston
Higdem,	Ole Hendrickson	E G Forks
Hill River,	Fred S Syeverson	Lindsay
Huntsville,	O Osmundson	Mallory
Hubbard,	Frank Hanson,	Neilsville
Keystone,	D E Geddes	E G Forks
Kerlsonville,	Fred Benoit	Gentilly
King,	K C Norsving	McIntosh
Knute,	O H Dale	Erskine
Lake Pleasant,	Jos Perrault	R L Falls
Lambert,	Samuel Gebcau,	Lamber
Liberty,	Nelson Clementson	Fertile
Lessor,	H Helgeson	Ovetia
Lowell,	Ole Christianson,	Crookston
Louisville,	Louis Huot	Huot
Nesbit,	Robert Nesbit	Mallory
Norden,	O J Tweet	Tweet
North,	S T Johnson	T R Falls
Numedal,	Olaf Larson	Warren
Onstad,	W A Marin	Melvin
Parnell,	Thos Filban	Crookston
Poplar River,	J B Hebert	Brooks
Polk Centre,	Wm Wylie	Wylie
Queen,	Hans L Houkom	Fosston
R L F, village,	August Herard,	R L Falls
Red Lake Falls,	Ildaig Baril	R L Falls
Reis,	D C Hallock	Edna
River Falls,	K C Gigstad	St. Hilaire
Rocksbury,	P Englesiad	St. Hilaire
Roome,	P Boukon	Neby
Rosebud,	M E Randkler	Fosston
Russia,	Orens Simmons	Crookston
Sanders,	Nils K Anderson	St. Hilair
Sandsville,	Henry Nelson	E G Forkse
St. Hilaire,	L J Johnson	St. Hilaire
Sletten,	Ingebret Larson	Winger
Sullivan,	P A Hotvedt	E G Forks
Tabor,	F J Cernousek	Tabor
Terrebonne,	Edonor Perruse	Terrebonne
Tilden,	S J Furan	Dugdale
Tynsid,	A O Storiroen	Neby
Vineland,	John Thompson	Neby
Winger,	Albert Johnson	Winger
Woodside,	Joseph Tagley	Woodside
Wyandotte,	O J Johnson	St. Hilaire
Rhinehart,	Oscar Winck	E G Forks
Thief River Falls,	C J Knox	T R Falls

Cook's Cotton Root COMPOUND.

A recent discovery by an old physician. Successfully used monthly by thousands of Ladies. Is the only perfectly safe and reliable medicine discovered. Beware of unprincipled druggists who offer inferior medicines in place of this. Ask for COOK'S COTTON ROOT COMPOUND, take no substitute, or inclose $1 and 6 cents in postage in letter, and we will send, sealed, by return mail. Full sealed particulars in plain envelope, to ladies only, 2 stamps. Address Pond Lily Company, No. 3 Fisher Block, Detroit, Mich.

Sold in Crookston by A. G. Anderson, S. A. Wallace, F. L. Durand and druggists everywhere.

G. G HENAULT
Practical Dentist,
SECOND STREET,
CROOKSTON, - MINN
OFFICE IN DOBSON'S BLOCK,

All work in my line skilfully and promptly performed. Give me a call.
G. G. HENAULT.

NEW CIGAR STORE
SIGN OF THE BIG INDIAN.
H. F. BROWN, Proprietor.
Second Street,
CROOKSTON, MINN

Cigars of every known brand, from a cheroot to a 25 center. Cigarettes, Chewing and Smoking Tobaccos of all kinds, Snuff. Pipes to suit the fancy of all, from a corn-cob pipe to a meerchaum.

CALL IN.

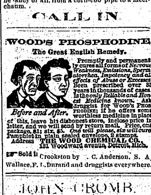
WOOD'S PHOSPHODINE.
The Great English Remedy.

Before and After.

Promptly and permanently cures all forms of Nervous Weakness, Emissions, Spermatorrhea, Impotency and all effects of Abuse or Excesses. Been prescribed over 35 years in thousands of cases. Is the only Reliable and Honest Medicine known. Ask druggist for Wood's Phosphodine; if he offers some worthless medicine in place of this, leave his dishonest store, inclose price in letter, and we will send by return mail. Price, one package, $1; six, $5. One will please, six will cure. Pamphlet in plain sealed envelope, 2 stamps. Address THE WOOD CHEMICAL CO., 131 Woodward avenue, Detroit, Mich.

Sold in Crookston by A. C. Anderson, S. A. Wallace, F. L. Durand and druggists everywhere.

JOHN CROMB.
Attorney-at-Law.
SECOND STREET. CROOKSTON



THE NEXT MORNING I FEEL BRIGHT AND NEW AND MY COMPLEXION IS BETTER.

My doctor says it acts gently on the stomach, liver and kidneys, and is a pleasant laxative. This drink is made from herbs, and is prepared for use as easily as tea. It is called

LANE'S MEDICINE

All druggists sell it at 50c. and $1.00 a package. If you cannot get it, send your address for free sample. Lane's Family Medicine moves the bowels each day. In order to be healthy, this is necessary. Address, ORATOR F. WOODWARD, LeROY, N. Y.

A word to the wise and money savers.

GERVAIS'--The Hustlers,
THE GREATEST AGGREGATION OF
Spring and Summer Goods
That Ever Landed in the Northwest. comprising

The Latest Novelties in Fancy and Domestic Goods.
Dress Goods and Trimmings,
Jackets, Cloaks and Cloakings,
Parasols and Umbrellas for rain and sunshine.
White Goods and Embroideries,
Wash Goods in all the newest weaves,
Jersey ribbed and muslin Underwear.
Ladies' Shirt Waists in many styles,
Spring Caps and Straw Hats.

CARPETS

In all grades and newest designs.
Lace and Chenille Curtains and Portiers,
House Furnishing Goods, of all kinds,
New departure in Boots and Shoes.

Call In and Get Prices.

I. O. O. F. Block, Crookston.
GERVAIS & GERVAIS, Leaders in Low Prices.

You Can Buy Reliable
AGRICULTURAL MACHINERY
—OF—
SYLVESTER & FINSETH,
—CHEAPER AND BETTER—

Than anywhere. We handle Buckeye and Osborne Binders with all extras for same, and Twine. Buckeye and Imperial Mowers with extras. Buckeye and Monitor Rakes, Elt, Oliver and Bradley Gang Plows, Stubble and Breaking Plows, the Standard Rotary Shuttle Sewing Machine, Nichols & Shepard New Vibrator Threshing Machine. Also the Jackson, Mitchell and Favorite Wagons, the Enterprise Buggies, Spring Wagons and Carts on all of which we can undersell Grand Forks and other places. We also carry everything that can be had in any first class Hardware Store and invite everybody to call and see us at the corner of Broadway and Fletcher Sts.

SYLVESTER & FINSETH, Crookston, Minn.

M. LeGUEE.
Veterinary Surgeon.
Residence and office on Jerome's Addition.
CROOKSTON. - - - MINN.

P. J. RUSSELL,
Attorney-at-Law
CROOKSTON, MINN.
Next to Merchants' Bank.

THE NEW NORTHWEST

FARM LANDS — Home seekers will find the last of the public domain of agricultural and grazing value along the Great Northern Ry. in North Dakota and Montana

NEW TOWNS — 100 or more, along the Great Northern Railway Line. Business chances. Write F. L. WHITNEY, St. Paul, Minn., for Books, Maps, &c. Write now.

LOW RATES — Settlers on free Government lands along the Great Northern Ry. Line in North Dakota and Montana get low rates and fine markets for products.

Horses, Cattle. — Montana produces the finest Horses and Cattle. Free ranges yet in Mouse, Milk and Sun River Valleys and Sweet Grass Hills.

Health, Wealth. — In the Northwest. Free Lands. New Towns. New Railways, New Mines, Low Rates. Largest area of good vacant land.

Sheep, Hogs. — Sweetest Grass Hills. Milk and Sun River Valleys, Montana, reached only by the Great Northern Railway Line. The stock raisers' paradise.

Herds, Mines — These have made Montana the richest State per capita in the Union. Plenty of room for more miners and stock raisers. Now is the time.

U. S. LAND OFFICE.
Crookston, Minn., October 3rd, 1892.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof be made before the Register or Receiver U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on November 14th, 1892, viz: Isaac N. Kingsland, Hd. 12583 for the N. E. ¼ Sec. 22, Tp. 148, R. 47. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of, said land, viz: William S. Rathary, Torson T. Sveen, James Miller, Lorenzo Judson, all of Crookston, Minn.

25-301 HUGH THOMPSON, Register.

KOPS BRO'S
105 Third Street,
GRAND FORKS, N. DAKOTA
PIANOS, ORGANS

WEBER, HAINES BROS., KURTZMANN, MATHUSHEK, McCAMMON PIANOS, Estey and Chicago Cottage Organs. New Upright Pianos from $250 to $1,000, on terms of $10 to $25 per month. New Organs from $60 to $250 on terms of $5 to $10 per month. Satisfaction guanteed. Write for catalogue and prices. KOPS BROS. Grand Forks, N. D.

First National Bank
OF CROOKSTON
PAID IN CAPITAL, - $100,000
SURPLUS. - - $14,200

Interest on time deposits. Faithful attention to Collections and prompt remittance.

GEO. Q. ERSKINE, President.
WM. ANGLIM, Vice President.
CHAS. E. SAWYER, Cashier.

DIRECTORS:
Wm. Anglim, K. D. Chase, R. D. Childs
Geo. Q. Erskine, J. R. McKinnon, A. A. Miller
E. M. Walsh, Chas. E. Sawyer, W. H. Crosby

FRANK IVES, Notary Public and U. S. Com's'r
D. E. HATLESTAD, District Court Commissioner
IVES & HATLESTAD,
Attorneys and Counselors at Law,
CROOKSTON, - - - - MINN.

Will practice in all the courts and before the U. S. Land Office at Crookston and Washington. Pensions and Soldiers' Claims and Patents carefully and promptly adjusted.

We loan money on improved farms and city property and have facilities for placing large loans at low rate of interest. We give special attention to collection and all commercial business pertaining to our profession.

H. STEENERSON
ATTORNEY AT LAW
CROOKSTON, - MINNESOTA

NEW BARBER SHOP.
On Main St. C. E. MISNER. Prop
Invites your patronage. Everything in the very latest style of the art.

RAZORS HONED. If you desire your Razor Honed and cannot bring it, send it to me with 30 cents and your name and address and I will hone and return it.
Yours Respectfully,
C. E. MISNER.

MARTIN O'BRIEN,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
{I. O. O. F. BUILDING.} Crookston. Minn.

FITS STOPPED FREE
Marvelous success.
Insane Persons Restored
DR. KLINE'S GREAT NERVE RESTORER
for all BRAIN & NERVE DISEASES. Only sure cure for Nerve Affections, Fits, Epilepsy, etc. INFALLIBLE if taken as directed. No Fits after first day's use. Treatise and $2 trial bottle free to Fit patients, they paying express charges on box when received. Send names, P. O. and express address of afflicted to DR. KLINE, 931 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa. See Druggists. BEWARE OF IMITATING FRAUDS.

MILLER & FOOTE,
ATTY'S-AT-LAW,
McKinnon Block, - Crookston. Minn.

L. E. GOSSMAN,
Attorney-at-Law,
No. 2 Fournet Block } CROOKSTON, MINN.

'Round Home.

Wheat—1 Hard 62.
1 Northern 60.

Lovely Indian summer weather.

Soft easy shoes for tender feet, at The Fair.

A. E. Brush was down from Angus on Saturday.

Frank Gravel has moved into the new Fournet block.

Jeweler Saake has added largely to his stock of goods and fixtures lately.

Look at the label on the address of your paper and if in arrears call and see us.

Mrs. Newland will move into the house on Fifth street just vacated by A. M. Silver.

A. M. Silver has moved into the house on Broadway, just vacated by Frank Gravel.

J. W. Bishop's man M. B. McClellan gave this office a pleasant call on on Thursday last.

Supt. V. D. Carruth has gone to Duluth to do jury duty in the United States circuit court.

Judge Ira B. Mills came up on Monday morning to take testimony in the Wyand case.

J. E. Morrisey went up to Thief River Falls this week to make some repairs on Mehan saw mill.

Mrs. Frank Barnum has returned from a pleasant visit with Mrs. J. D. Marshall, of Red Lake Fall.

Waxey Mathews showed up on Monday morning with four flyers for the great events of the week.

Henry Budget, of the Prospect Hill farm arrived with two of his best horses on Monday morning.

Rev. R. H. Battey goes to Minneapolis this week to attend the meeting of the Congregational National Council.

W. C. Andrew representing Wright, Barrett & Stilwell was interviewing the newspaper fraternity in this city on Thursday.

The tramps who broke into the box cars on the Great Northern were brought before Judge Spendley on Saturday and committed for trial.

Mrs. C. S. Spendley and her mother, Mrs. Newton, went over to Dakota last week to visit relatives. The Judge will keep house all alone meanwhile.

Anton Erickson has moved across the street into the building recently occupied by Anderson & Olson. This will give him more room for his increasing trade.

Ed. Erickson and John Carlson have formed a co-partnership in the butcher business and will occupy the building on Robert street just vacated by Anton Erickson.

The Barrette & Dufresne block is nearly completed and will be one of the handsomest blocks in the city when completed. Nearly every room in it is spoken for already.

The Republican League Club has secured room No. 1 in the Fournet block for headquarters during the campaign. Club meetings Friday evenings and at such other times as called by secretary G. H. Palmer.

Ladies, did you see the opening display of fine millinery at Veronneau & Adams? Such an elegant display of fine stock as they have is rarely ever seen in a city the size of Crookston and their prices are lower than ever before. They invite our lady readers to call.

Tom Harris put the jack-screws underneath the passanger depot on Tuesday morning and on Wednesday moved it north to second street where it will do duty for the coming winter. We are told that the water-tank will be moved 40 feet north of its present site.

The new Anderson-Olson block, on Robert street, now nearly completed, is a beauty. One of the rooms below is occupied by Anderson for drugs and Olsen for a jeweler shop, and we are told that the other room has been engaged for a general merchandise stock. One of the up stairs rooms is occupied by a doctor, another by a merchant tailor, a photographer is finishing off a suite of rooms and there are four rooms yet unoccupied. Anderson & Olson may well feel proud of their fine building.

A. C. Wilkinson, Chris Hoch, Martin O'Brien, A. Dufresne, W. N. Neff and J. N. Priester are away in the Devils Lake region chasing the festive wild goose this week. Judging by the amount of provisions we saw Bob Leick putting up for them ,it looks like they were intending to camp on the trail till the season is over.

The Great Northern road seems to be catching the spirit of enterprise that animates our city this year and seems bound to keep pace with her progress. The company is raising its tracks has moved its depot buildings to clear the site for a new brick passenger depot next spring. While they do not say that they intend to build a large brick passenger depot next spring, their need for such an institution to meet the demands of their growing business and their every movement indicates that such is their intention. They certainly do not intend to be backward in the march of progress.

Fur trimmed jackets at A. Sture's, only $6.50.

Miss Jennie Partridge spent the Sabbath in the city.

A. C. Schmidt went west on a wild goose chase this week.

There are at present eight patients in the county hospital.

Supt. V. D. Carruth took in the fair at Fosston last week.

Tom Morris has put electric lights in his handsome jewelry store.

An apprentice wanted at Mrs. I. U. Jennings' millinery store.

R. A. Wilkinson was in the city on Monday on his way home from a trip west.

Halvor Steenerson will speak at Red Lake Falls on Saturday, the 15th inst.

That genial boomer of Thief River Falls, F. H. Kratka, is in the city this week.

O. L. Larson proprietor of the twin stores at Fosston, was in the city this week.

I. I. Hillestad, the well known Fosston merchant, was doing business in the city on Tuesday.

Miss Violet Mason returned on Sunday morning from a six week's visit with friends in Minneapolis.

Only one place in town where ladies' shoes are sold at cost. Locken's shoe store on Robert street.

Do you want a good pair of blankets? If so, do not purchase before you have seen those at A. Sture's.

Mrs. E. E. Bangs went to Stephen Saturday morning to spend the Sabbath with Mrs. Frankie Dickinson.

I. U. Jennings will sell bedsteads for $2.25 until Oct. 15th, if you will bring this advertisement with you.

You can buy the new improved American sewing machine at I. U. Jennings' furniture store for thirty dollars.

Engineer Jack Bunnell contemplates taking a furlough in the near future to get acquainted with his family.

Tellef D. Oen, the McIntosh jeweler, died at the Polk county hospital, in this city, last Tuesday, of quick consumption.

B. S. Bennett, one of Fosston's most enterprising citizens, was in the city Monday, attended the races and acted as one of the judges.

Tom Harris has moved the Great Northern freight depot to its new site just south of where the Red River Valley flathouse stood.

E. D. Barness, the republican nominee for county commissioner in the 1st district, was doing business in the city Wednesday.

L. D. Marshall was in the city Tuesday night, having come in from North Dakota, where he had been looking after the company's interests.

Large stock of dry goods just received. Come in and look them over before you go elsewhere. Prices guaranteed.
A. STURE.

Miss Jennie Miller arrived last week to look after her Polk county property interests She will remain awhile with her sister, Mrs. D. McClellan.

A large and elegant stock of fall and winter millinery has arrived at Mrs. I. U. Jennings' millinery store where she will be found ready to show you all the latest styles and novelties in that line. Japanese goods are an attraction at her store.

C. H. Saake has bought the Chronicle building and lot of J. G. McGrew and will move the building off; also the one on his own lot adjoining and build a brick block next spring. This purchase gives him a nice large lot upon the corner of Broadway and Second, which will make a valuable property.

Several of our subscribers improved the lovely weather last week by coming in and renewing. We are prepared to appreciate such favors this fall and we trust that every one who is in arrears will give us an early settlement, as the expenses we have incurred and further contemplated improvements on the paper, calls for all of the money we have out. Moreover, the change in management renders a settlement of all past due accounts imperative, and we shall expect that all such will be adjusted this fall. Look at your label and if in arrears call and see us.

Mrs. Betsey Knutcson, mother of Halvor, Elias and Levi Steenerson of this city, died at her home in Vineland township, this county, on Wednesday night, Oct. 5th, in the 72d year of her age. She was buried Saturday, the Rev. Hillman of this city officiating at the services. She leaves a family of nine children—seven boys and two girls—who were all at her funeral. Mrs. Knutcson was left a widow about 10 years ago, and she took charge of her husband's property and managed it with such business tact that at her death the estate was worth at least $10,000. She was a woman of a kindly, generous disposition, and was never happier than when distributing comfort to her less fortunate neighbors.

A. G. Gallash was looking the city over on Tuesday.

Miss. Halvorsen's display of millinery was elegant.

Watch for the immense line of new goods at the New York store next week.

Mrs. John Bunnell entertains a number of her lady friends at cinch this afternoon.

Mrs. I. U. Jennings' millinery opening will take place, Friday and Saturday of this week.

W. Leman was down from Angus last week trying in vain to get up a little democratic enthusiasm.

S. M. McKee has sold his farm to a Mr. Rich, of Michigan, and next spring will return to his old home in Michigan.

The space between the Times building and the Reckitt block will be built up this fall. The work has already commenced.

Ladies, wait for the grand cloak opening at A. Chabot's some time this month, the exact date of which will be announced later.

Charles Rapp was in from St. Hilaire on Tuesday night. He expects his wife from the old country soon as she is on the ocean now on her way home.

Now that opening day is past, patterns will be sold at a discount until closed out. Some beautiful bargains still to be had at Mrs. Sempf's.

A. Chabot is constantly receiving supplies of new goods, and next week he will receive the largest invoice of goods ever opened at the New York Store.

E. D. Childs reports that he has his threshing all done, and gets an average yield of fifteen bushels of wheat where, in ordinary seasons, he gets over twenty bushels per acre. He is well along with fall plowing and expects to finish in good season.

The Womans' Relief Corps presents their compliments to Col. Cobham Post, G. A. R. and George W. Thomas Camp Sons of Veterans, and extend a cordial invitation to both organizations to attend a social to be held in Odd Fellows' hall, Monday evening, October 17th, 1892, at eight o'clock. ELSIE H. SPENDLEY, Sec.

Judge Montague returned from the southern part of the state on Tuesday. Says that the People's party ticket in Blue Earth County will drop from 1200 to 500, in Faribault county it is not known, but in Nobles and Pipestone it is quite strong. He predicts large republican gains in every southern county at the next election.

John A. Larson, Chris Matson and Louis Jenna were up before Judge Christianson Tuesday on a charge of gambling. Richard O. Bolden was the complainant, and he stated that he had engaged in a game of cards with the prisoners, who had beaten him out of $45. The prisoners pleaded guilty, returned the money, and paid a fine of $15 each.

Frank Barnum was on the sick list during the latter part of last week—reckon he howled too loud at the democratic rally. Well, we suppose somebody had to holler and there were so few to do it that it came pretty tough on them. Frank is too good a boy to be wasting the best years of his life in the cause of democracy.

Veronneau & Adams desire to call the attention of our lady readers to a nice new fall stock of millinery goods fresh from Chicago and eastern cities. All of the very latest novelties in stock and prices that cannot be duplicated in Crookston. We have no shop-worn goods to sell at cost but we are sellling our new stock at prices as low as any in the city. Call and see us before you purchase, if you desire the latest styles at lowest figures. Our specialties this fall are the best goods at low prices.
VERONNEAU & ADAMS.

I. U. Jennings has for sale at his furniture store, No. 21 Main street, 12 styles patent swing rockers 30 styles other rockers, 20 styles chamber sets, 15 styles bureaus, 20 center tables, 20 styles other tables, folding beds, book cases, hall racks, spring mattresses, pillows, mirrors, lounges, bed lounges, parlor suits, picture frames, and everything necessary to furnish a house in suitable style and guarantees to sell at from 5 to 10 per cent. less than the same goods can be bought for at any other place in this city. But how can you do this? you ask. Answer; because I buy for cash and pay twelve dollars per month rent as against fifty to seventy-five paid by other dealers.

Cloaks.

Two thousand one hundred dollars worth of women's, misses and children's cloaks and wraps were sent us this week by a wholesale cloak house that was overstocked, with instructions to sell them at any price. This is the best opportunity to secure a good winter cloak at your own price. Come early and secure a good choice. The Fair, corner Main and Robert streets.

McIntosh Items.

From our regular correspondent.

Threshing in this neighborhood is nearly completed and if the present fine weather continues, will soon be entirely finished.—New wheat is beginning to come in quite fast.—We have certainly had beautiful weather this fall, the only fault-finding to be heard is that it is too dry to plow, but they need this kind of plowing to kill some of the weeds so injurious to the growth of crops.—Some of our farmers who lost their crops by hail, and others who had but a small yield, feel very much discouraged and a few offer their farms for sale at a low figure, intending to leave for parts unknown. But in this we think them a little too rash, for this is the first year we have had hail in this part of the country and it may not occur again. We have had, as a rule, good crops, and most of our farmers have been successful; why would it not then be wise to retain their farms and follow the example of the spider —If you don't succeed, try again?

"Let us drive over to the lakes and shoot ducks this afternoon," is now beginning to be a popular remark among the boys; and many do go, only to come back forlorn and downhearted, having scared the poor creatures all away, and when asked where the game is, they have a thousand and one excuses to make as reasons why it could not be procured and brought home for supper. But they all know how to fetch them next time. The only man who can produce a huntsman's record of championship is Andrew Conquist, and it can be proven by J. P. Johnson who went out with him last Saturday and had the pleasure of witnessing his many wonderful exploits and magical maneuvers in—in what? Well, in scaring the life out of the poor things. Besides he shows great prowess in gaining proximity to them, as he will walk on his all fours for a half mile through the bullrushes and pounce upon them so unawares that they are taken entirely by surprise, and you can conjecture the consequences to the poor birds. They returned Sunday with lots of ducks, and have had fresh meat ever since. They bought them cheap, you see.

The Farmers' elevator at McIntosh will be ready to take in wheat in about a week. The machinery arrived last Monday, and as soon as it can be put in position, they will commence to buy. Mr. Helgeson, of Lessor, has been employed as buyer. Mr. Helgeson is a trustworthy and reliable man, and will no doubt try to perform his duties in the interest of his company to the best of his knowledge and ability.

Bishop Gilfillan, of White Earth, preached in the Congregational church at McIntosh last Sunday. This was the first sermon delivered in this church, as it is not quite ready for services yet, and there being no seats, they had to bring chairs from the different households, which was quickly done and the church was packed to its utmost. The audience had the pleasure of listening to the best sermon ever delivered in this place. The Bishop contemplates building an Episcopal church at McIntosh in the near future.

We are informed that our station agent, G. R. Glover, has resigned his position here, and is going to leave McIntosh in the near future. Mr. and Mrs. Glover have made numerous friends here who would very much regret their departure.

Several bids for building the new school house have already been received, but the contract will probably be let to Larson & Stadsvold of Fosston. They have had many contracts in McIntosh this past summer and their work has been satisfactorily done in every case. They fulfill their agreements to the letter, and they have the advantage over all other lumber firms in this country on account of manufacturing their own material. The contract will be for $4,000 all complete.

Report says that J. Bridstone is thinking of leaving for Grand Forks where he intends making his future home. We hope he may change his mind and remain with us, for he is a worthy citizen and a man that any town may feel proud of numbering among her business men.

McIntosh is taking on her wonted fall appearance again, the streets and alleys being filled with leaves, sidewalks crowded with men and women passing to and fro, and the stores and shops, in fact every place of business, packed with customers, and all our business men, from tailors to bankers, busy from morning till night. Would you believe it? If you don't just come and see for yourselves.

Gunder Bjorge has sold out his restaurant to Jack Shannon, of Fosston, who has taken possession.

The three nominees for governor, namely, Knute Nelson, D. W. Lawler and Ignatius Donnelly are billed to speak at McIntosh this month.

County Surveyor Hamery has been at work on Johnson & Stevens' addition the past week laying out lots. The demand for lots is increasing, and as all the lots surveyed are sold they were compelled to lay out new ones, and well they may, for in three years our town has grown to contain a population of about seven hundred, and it has never since it started grown as rapidly as this last summer. In another year or two we will reach 1,000.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report.

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Collectors Hall and Kelsey, of Crookston. have been sojourning in the Thirteen Towns for the last two weeks and made McIntosh their headquarters. Every one traveling through this part of the county should do likewise, for our town now affords first-class hotel accommodations. The smiling countenances of our two landlords, West and Solberg, you may behold at all hours.

JACK IN THE PULPIT.

McIntosh, Oct. 5,

[The above communication which should have appeared in our last issue was received too late for attention.—ED. JOURNAL.]

WITH OUR EXCHANGES.

Thief River Falls Press:—A. E. White went to Crookston Monday, on business.—O. H. Lucken, of Crookston, was registered at the Ogahmah, Tuesday.—Col. Wm. Crooks, superintendent of construction of the Great Northern road was in town Monday, looking after the work here.—J. E. Morrissey, the hustling machine and foundry man and prominent democrat of Crookston, was in town Tuesday.—H. M. Missaw, C. H. Newbury and N. P. Fordham, of St. Paul, government inspectors of survey, arrived last night and went out to the reservation to inspect the work being done by the surveying parties.—J. W. Wheeler has sold his farm two miles north of this city to a Mr. Reed, of Crookston. Mr. Reed will move his family there as soon as the place is vacated by Mr. Pashly, who, we reget to say, will undoubtedly leave this locality.—As we go to press today the iron horse is puffing its way into the city and by this afternoon the iron will be all laid. The ballasting and surfacing will be pushed as rapidly as possible, and preparations are being made for a grand blow-out when the first regular train arrives.—Hon. J. G. McGrew diffused republican sentiments at the school house Tuesday evening to a fair number of attentive listeners. Mr. McGrew is a very forcible, convincing speaker and one who does not go into extremes, but endeavors to confine himself to facts and good logic.

Polk County Review:—A sneak thief entered the Windsor house in this city on Monday and stole a suit of clothes from the landlord, a gold watch and about $40 in money from a railroad man boarding there.—Oliver Brandt or as he is most generally known, "Big Oliver," was assaulted on Wednesday morning by a large iron cuspador, knocked insensible, skull was crushed and but little hopes of recovery.—Thos. P. Johnson, of Fisher, called at our office last week to show us the English Shire stallion Masher, No. 5378, who weighs a little over 1800 pounds, is a beautiful bay and a very active motion for such a mountain of flesh. We have never seen a finer horse. Mr. Johnson will shortly go east for a carload of these important horses, which he will quarter at his barn in Fisher.

Warren Register:—J. H. Smith, of Ellsworth, Wis., who is a nephew of Mrs. L. R. Crooker, came in on Monday to work for G. A. Aubol as tinner.—The baby of Mrs. John Collins of Polk county, was buried in the Warren cemetery Monday afternoon. It was sick only a short time. Its father died four months ago. Mrs. Collins is doubly afflicted and has the heartfelt sympathy of her many friends in her sad bereavement.

Rev. L. W. Squire has been assigned by conference to Crookston whereat the M. E. folks here do greatly rejoice as they had come to like him very much during his stay here.

The Wade-Le Royle company are playing the week at the Grand to fair houses. We have heard many favorable comments about them. In her character impersonations Miss Wade is out of sight.

Bronson Strain was in the city on Tuesday in the interest of the republican congressional ticket. He says that Feig will come up to Glyndon with 6000 plurality—that Otter Tail county, (Boen's own county) will give Feig a big majority and he predicts Feig's election by a good comfortable majority.

The Minnesota conference of the M. E. church closed its annual session in Minneapolis Monday night. Some changes were made in the stationing of ministers in this part of the state. Rev. R. K. Chapman goes from St. Hilaire and Thief River Falls to Ada. He is followed at St. Hilaire by Rev. George Willett. Rev. Geo. West is followed at Fisher by Rev. Thomas Billings, formerly of Wadena. Mr. West goes to Paynesville. Rev. S. S. Farley remains at Warren and Rev. L. W. Squirer continued in charge of the First Methodist church in this city.

Hon. A. Thompson was up from Norman County on Wednesday attending to an important case before the U. S. Land Office. He is a candidate for the legislature on the prohibition ticket and he learns that the story has been circulated that he has declined to run. He wihes the JOURNAL to say for him that he has not declined to run but on the other hand he is very much in the field for all the the votes he can get. Thompson was so insistent on legislating in the interests of the people when he was an alliance member of the house that the Donnelly-Fish crowd had no further use for him so he was left off their ticket this trip.

A. A. JUST, M. D.,
Homoeopathic Physician and Surgeon
OFFICE IN
McKinnon Block, Crookston

A Question of Dollars and Cents.

Sensible persons are no longer carried away by sensational advertising. No matter how much is promised in the newspapers, the completion of a purchase resolves itself into a question of dollars and cents, and the wise buyer takes into account how much he can save before parting with his money. Knowing this, we merely ask you to read the following:

BARGAIN No. 1

Consists of fifty-seven black cloth Jackets, running from 32 to 40 inches in size, and ordinarily selling for $6.50, $8, $9, $9.50 and $12. Your choice of the lot for $4.39.

BARGAIN No. 2

Consists of Ladies' and Misses' Newmarkets, eighty-four in all, ordinarily selling for $8, $9.50, $11, $15, $18 and $20. Your choice of the lot for $6.79.

BARGAIN No. 3

Consists of Ladies' Plush Jackets, sizes from 23 to 40 inches, and ordinarily selling for $10, $12, $15 and $18. Your choice of the lot for $6.79.

BARGAIN No. 4

Consists of Ladies' 32-inch length Plush Jackets, sizes 34, 36 and 38, and ordinarily selling for $18, $22 and $25. Your choice of the lot for $11.65.

FONTAINE & ANGLIM.

Polk County Journal.

VOL. XVI. CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY, OCT. 20 1892. NO. 27

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.
Historical Society

Crookston Furniture Co.

Undertakers

—AND—

Funeral Directors.

SECOND STREET, Next to Times Office, CROOKSTON, MINN.

—COMPLETE STOCK OF—

CASKETS, COFFINS, ROBES, BURIAL SUPPLIES.

A Beautiful New Hearse has just been received. Parties desiring the use of the same will leave orders with us.

☞ Telegraph orders promptly and casefully filled. ☜

R. G. WOODHAM, Undertaker and Embalmer.

GREAT SALES OF FURNITURE!

Tables, Beds, Chairs, Sideboards, Office Furniture.

PARLOR FURNITURE.

BEDROOM FURNITURE.

Folding Beds, Mirrors, etc., etc. Repairing neatly and promptly done.

See our immense stock and examine our prices before buying furniture elsewhere.

The Scandia Furniture Co.,

GRAND OPERA BLOCK, Main St. CROOKSTON, MINN.

Cash for Hides.

I will pay the highest market price in cash for hides, pelts and furs. Call at my office No. 14 Broadway, Crookston, Minn.

[26-tf] GEO. VINE.

COUGHING LEADS TO CONSUMPTION
Kemp's Balsam stops the cough at once.

Lane's Medicine Moves the Bowels Each Day. In order to be healthy this is necessary.

Attention, Sheep Farmers!

The undersigned has a few thoroughbred

SHROPSHIRE RAM LAMBS

For sale at his farm near Ada, in county. Call on or address

PETER RAMSTAD, Ada,
[25-28] Norman Co., Minn.

FITS—All fits stopped free by Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. No Fits after first day's use. Marvelous cures. Treatise and $2.00 trial bottle free to Fit cases. Send to Dr. Kline, 931 Arch St. Phila., Pa. For sale by all druggists; call on yours.

U. S. LAND OFFICE.
Crookston, Minn., October 11th, 1892.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register or Receiver U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 28th, 1892, viz: Henry Huot, Hd. No. 12,003, for the ne¼ sw¼ and lots 4, 5 and 6, Tp. 151, R. 45. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Joseph Pepin, Joseph Boivin, Narcisse Mircault, Paul Mathew, all of Huot P. O., Minn.

[26-31] HUGH THOMPSON, Register.

A. A. JUST, M. D.,

Homoeopathic Physician and Surgeon

OFFICE IN

McKinnon Block, Crookston

OPERA HOUSE.

JUST ONE JOYOUS NIGHT!

Thursday, Oct. 20

The Banner Attraction of the Season.

| TURNERS || ENGLISH || GIRLS |

In the Crowning Glory of Burlesque,

CLEOPATRA,

Inspired and directed by the pick and flower of the Burlesque World.

20 Lovely Girls 20

—EXTRA—

The Original, Bewitching, Sensational,

SERPENTINE DANCE.

{4} SOLO DANCERS {4}

Reserved seats on sale at Tom Morris' Jewelry Store. Prices 25c, 50c, 75c and $1.00.

A LIE NAILED.

A Democratic Slander on the Railroad Employes at Red Lake Falls.

Who are Accused of Being Hired to Attend Republican Meetings.

And to Stay Away From Democratic Meetings—an Explanation.

The Crookston Times is doing as good work for the republican party as Doc. Fish, and both should be encouraged by the republicans. In the Times of the 17th inst. appears the following "special" from Red Lake Falls, which was undoubtedly written in the Times office:

"Another case of republican bribery has just been unearthed in this city, which shows better than anything has yet done the desperate straits they are being driven to in order to make a showing for their candidates. The particulars of the case are as follows:

"There are now about 400 men at work upon the Great Northern extension to this place. A large proportion of these men are democrats and many belong to the local democratic club, but when the democratic rally was held here last week not one of the men took part in the parade or attended the meeting at which Messrs. Lawler and Kelso spoke. Not much was thought about this at the time as the crowd was so large, as it was, that the hall could not begin to hold them. But on Saturday evening the republicans had a rally at which Halvor Steenerson and Henry Feig were the speakers, and to the surprise of the democrats nearly everyone of the railroad men turned out in command of the foreman of the different gangs, and not only attended the meeting but carried torches in the procession. In fact, there was not a dozen men in the parade outside of the railroad crew.

This created a suspicion that all was not right and yesterday one of the men belonging to the railroad crew told that a short time before the democratic meeting one of the officials of the Great Northern railway who is well known in this section visited the men and arranged to pay the foreman $200 to be divided up among the men upon condition that they refrain from attending the democratic rally and that they carry torches in the parade and attend the meeting in honor of Messrs. Steenerson and Feig. The statement of this man who had charge of one of the gangs has since been confirmed by several of the other men and some of them are prepared to make affidavit to it if necessary. Some of the men who are willing to go as a favor to their foremen were not paid anything; others got from 50 cents to $1 each."

Now for the facts. The brotherhood of locomotive engineers and the brotherhood of locomotive firemen had several bills introduced in the last legislature of Minnesota. Mr. Feig was a member of that legislature and worked hard and voted for the measures which the railroad employes wanted enacted. During the past summer these two labor organizations—the engineers and the firemen—had thousands of circulars printed and distributed among the railroad employees of this state. These circulars enumerated the measures which the brotherhood was trying to get enacted into laws—such as the anti-Pinkerton, the Iron Clad and the Three-year Bills—and then classified the members of the last legislature. They were divided into three classes, "Our Friends," "Our Enemies" and "Members not voting." The name of Henry Feig, Kandiyohi county, appears in the list of the friends of the brotherhood and this accounts for the grand reception which the railroad men gave Mr. Feig at Red Lake Falls. The railroad men are alive to their interests and do not have to be hired to carry torches for their friends. Every railroad employe in the Seventh Congressional district—irrespective of party—will vote for Henry Feig. If there were any democratic railroaders who had any hesitancy about casting their vote for a republican candidate, this insult which the democrats have put upon them will bring them into line, and they will not only vote for Henry Feig, but will take off their coats and work for him with a will.

If you want to touch a railroad man in a tender spot, just attack his honor. They pride themselves upon the fact that members of their organizations cannot be bought, and that they stick together and fight for their rights with more success than any other labor organization. And then for a democratic paper to assert that they were hired—at from 50 cents to $1 per head—to carry torches in a republican procession, is to offer them the rankest kind of an insult and they will resent it in no unmistakable terms at the polls on Nov. 8th. If the vote of the railroaders of the Seventh district will elect Mr. Feig, then he is already elected, for his work in their behalf in the last legislature proved to them that he is their friend and every last one of them is going to vote and work for him.

Raising Hogs on Millet.

EDITOR JOURNAL: I was much interested today listening to a farmer from near Mankato talk over some of his experience in raising hogs. He sold to-day three car loads at $5.00 per hundred live weight. One car of seventy, (nine months old) were his own raising for which he got $800 and all the corn he fed them to finish for market was about $200 worth, the rest being done with green feed (millet and red top) in fenced pasture.

He considers millet about as good as corn for winter feeding. He stacks it along side the pens and the hogs eat their way into the stacks and live and fatten there without any other food. They hardly ever come out unless to eat snow as a substitute for water.

You have been doing your best to influence the wheat raisers of your parish to become farmers and it seems as if they will have to make a virtue of necessity by trying other things besides wheat. Now might it not be well for some of them to give this a trial on a small scale by fencing in say three ten acre patches or less, two of them seeded with millet and red top for alternate pasture and one for millet alone or which need not be fenced, to be cut early and stacked along side the pens, yielding about four tons to the acre, and now that the acreage of barley for feeding purpose is likely to be larger in the future than formerly hogs intended for market in the fall could be finished off with it. He thinks a few sheep a good thing to have but that cattle do not compare favorably with hogs for profit the way he has of feeding them.

Respectfully submitted, hoping the foregoing is not immaterial, irrelevant or misleading.

S. L. DOBSON.

Minneapolis, Oct. 13th, 1892.

Where Do You Vote?

The city council has designated the Judges of election and the polling places in the city of Crookston as follows:

First ward—F. Anderson, Louis Fontaine and I. N. Simmons; vote at city hall.

Second ward—J. E. Morrisey, John Monroe and S. L. Collins; vote at McKinnon's building on Second street.

Third ward—W. E. Walker, W. Watts and M. R. Brown; vote at Commercial hotel sample room.

Fourth ward—F. Jerome, E. M. Walsh and F. Bivins; vote at St. Louis hotel sample room.

Fifth ward—R. G. Marlette, H. A. Stone and W. F. Hitchcock; vote at E. D. Childs Co's office.

The "Limited" train on The Northwestern Line," leaving Minneapolis 7:25 p. m., St. Paul 8:25 p. m. and arriving Milwaukee 7:25 a. m., Chicago 9:30 a. m., is now equipped with Wagner Compartment Cars in addition to Standard Sleepers, and also with Buffet Smoking and Library Cars.

This is the finest equipped train in America, is the only train of its kind west of Chicago, and no extra fare is charged on this "Northwestern Limited."

By "The Northwestern Line" you also have advantage of fast day train, leaving Minneapolis 7:15 a. m. and St. Paul 7:55 a. m., arriving Milwaukee 7:55 p. m., Chicago, 9:35 p. m., also an afternoon train, leaving Minneapolis 4:35 p. m., St. Paul 5:15 p. m., arriving at Chicago 8:00 a. m

"The Nortwestern Line" is also the only Pullman Car Line from St. Paul and Minneapolis, Sioux City, Omaha, Kansas City, Duluth and Ashland.

For luxury and comfort, best equipment and road bed, secure ticket via "The Northwestern Line," they are on sale at all stations. Illustrated Map Folder free on application to

T. W. TEASDALE
Gen. Pass. Agent,
[20tf] St. Paul, Minn.

For Sale.

A scholarship in the Crookston Business College. Apply at the JOURNAL office. [10 t.f.]

THE TRUTH ABOUT IT.

P. J. McGuire Explains the "Awful Corrupting" of Hunt.

Last week the JOURNAL didn't have time to investigate the "Hunt expose," but this week gives place to a statement of the case by P. J. McGuire. The people can form their own conclusions as to the heinousness of the crime charged against the republicans. The St. Paul Globe must certainly be about run out of campaign material when it devotes a page to an affair of this kind.

EDITOR JOURNAL:—The St. Paul Globe of October 11th contains copies of letters and an affidavit from one Hunt for the purpose of trying to show that the republican committee and some others, including myself, were trying to buy the McIntosh News, a paper published by Hunt in this county. The facts are as follows:

1st. Mr. Hunt's paper, the News, never supported the straight people's party ticket. It has during all the time since the Ada convention refused to support the candidate of that party for district judge and has strongly opposed that candidate.

2d. At the last election this man Hunt did not support the entire Alliance ticket.

3d. On or about October 1st inst., Mr. Hunt called on me in this city and asked me to furnish him some editorial and matter favoring the election of some of the republican ticket, to fill some space in his paper, in accordance with a contract which he said he had made with Mr. L. K. Aaker of this city, by which he was to be paid the sum of one hundred dollars for a certain amount of space in his paper, and asked me if he could safely rely on Mr. Aaker paying whatever he promised. I told him he could, that I would guarantee that Mr. Aaker would do as he agreed.

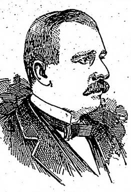
I furnished material for an editorial and told him where he would find our legislative platform. Then Hunt wrote me the following letter:

> McINTOSH, Minn., Oct. 4, 1892.
>
> P. J. McGUIRE:
>
> Dear Sir and Friend,—Your editorial received to-day, but that seems to be all. I wrote Mr. Aaker about this matter. You must understand my position. After I publish that article (as editorial) there will be no backing out for me, and I want some positive guarantee that your part of the contract will be fulfilled, more than I have got now. I have trusted you, and you seem to be afraid to trust me. If I do not get the hundred to-morrow I shall not publish the article, and will return the other, then the News will come out red hot.
>
> Hoping to hear from you, I remain,
> Yours truly,
> W. G. HUNT.

I wrote him in answer a direct refusal to comply, and in answer to his threats, I stated in that letter, that he "could do as he had a mind to about the matter." In this matter I had nothing to do except as above stated. I paid Hunt no money, promised him none, and would not consider that his paper wields very much influence among the intelligent voters residing in the vicinity of McIntosh.

Now, read the letters published in the Globe, and what do they show? They show that the democrats and people's party committees have large amounts of money to pay out for lithographing and publishing matters of that kind.

As to Hunt's affidavit I will simply say, take it for what it is worth. After examining it, and remembering that Hunt in that affidavit, confesses that he acted a wretch who sold himself, and was false to his friends and foes alike. An editor (?) who becomes a spy, who confesses he made a contract, and accepted pay to become a renegade, then holds the money and with the spoils in his pocket, tries to pose as a man, is not to say the least very reliable. For who that knows Hunt believes for a moment that he ever left $100 in St. Paul, except he got at least $100 from his own or the democratic party in place of it.



HENRY FEIG
Republican candidate for congress from the Seventh District.

Now consider the whole transaction as he states it:

Hunt was always trying to defeat a part of what he calls his party's ticket. The files of his paper show this. He offered to devote some of his space to the support of some other candidates, and he wanted pay for it. Pay was promised on certain conditions. The St. Paul Globe and other papers accept pay for like services.

If it is so wrong, why then did a candidate on the people's party state ticket buy out the "Tribune" a republican paper of this city, and transfer both the paper and its editor from the republican to the people's party cause.

The people's party will say that it was simply a matter of business, that they paid for it.

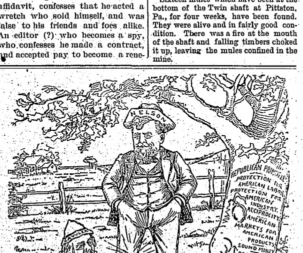
The republican committee of this county is not in that business however; the campaign fund collected, is scarcely able to defray the expenses of speakers who are assigned to this county.

P. J. McGUIRE,
Chair. Rep. Co. Com.

Inconsistency.

SCANDIA Alliance, at a meeting held October 8th, passed a resolution severely condemning the course of the Red River Dalen for supporting a candidate not on the people's party ticket and then immediately passed a resolution agreeing to support the Hon. A. Thompson who is the prohibition candidate for the legislature. They first insist that the Dalen must support the whole ticket and then resolve that they will only support so much of it as they happen to like! The fact that is very patent in these resolutions is that the people's party leaders have made a bad mistake and the farmers are beginning to be too independent to be led around by the nose by scheming politicians, and this resolution endorsing Mr. Thompson means that they mean to vote for the best men regardless of people's party lines.

Sixteen mules which have been at the bottom of the Twin shaft at Pittston, Pa., for four weeks, have been found. They were alive and in fairly good condition. There was a fire at the mouth of the shaft and falling timbers choked it up, leaving the mules confined in the mine.



NELSON
LAWLER
REPUBLICAN PRINCIPLES. PROTECTION FOR AMERICAN LABOR. PROTECTION FOR AMERICAN INDUSTRY. RECIPROCITY. AMERICAN MARKETS FOR AMERICAN PRODUCTS. SOUND MONEY. PROSPERITY AND PROGRESS FOR ALL.
DEMOCRATIC PRINCIPLES
FREE TRADE
WILDCAT MONEY
DEMOCRATIC MUD
CHICAGO WHEAT GAMBLER
DEMOCRACY

THE STUMPER STUMPED.

LAWLER:—Dang this rotten lever, how can a fellow stump the state with such implements as I have.

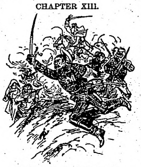
NELSON:—Struck a pretty live tree, that time, in your stumping, didn't you, my kid?

A SOLDIER'S SECRET
BY CAPT. CHARLES KING.
U. S. A.

COPYRIGHT, 1892, BY J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY, AND PUBLISHED BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH THEM.

[CONTINUED.]

CHAPTER XIII.



"Oh, God! My little ones!"

There was silence and anxiety in the long range of winter camps about the agency. The Twelfth were gone, nobody knew just where: but over to the north, over toward those frowning "Bad Lands"—all the more wild and treacherous now that the snow had filled every rift and crevice, for the jagged surface was one mass of pitfalls—other battalions of horse were also gone, and the vigilant watch over those Indians still clustering about their old haunts in the valley was redoubled. The heavier guns of the field battery commanded the smoky lodges, the lighter pieces were away with the cavalry. The infantry, muffled to their eyebrows, manned the rifle pits and guard line and threw their sheltering wings over the deserted camps. For good or for ill, the crisis was at hand. Whatsoever doubt had existed as to the almost universal hostility of the Sioux was banished by the events of the preceding week. The attempted ambush of Sergeant Ellis, of Berrien's advance guard, the attack upon the scouts and couriers at the Porcupine, and, lastly, the affair at the Wolf, in which Brewster a second time had gained distinction, all pointed unerringly to one conclusion: whatsoever might be their assurances to officials high in rank, to agents whose power would be at end were war to ensue, to self constituted framers of public opinion, every soldier on the spot knew, and well knew, that the Indians would be peaceable only in presence of a formidable force of bluecoats, but that nothing but ambush and massacre awaited the whites who ventured forth unguarded. Up to this moment, however, of all those gathered at the scene the only troops which had had actual collision with the Sioux were of Berrien's battalion.

Far away south at the Pawnee old Kenyon had been doing his utmost to still the anxious fears among the families of the absent soldiers. There had been lively excitement when the papers arrived giving sensational details of Berrien's wound and of the affair at the Porcupine, but it was as nothing to that which prevailed over the tidings of the imminent peril in which Mrs. Berrien and Winifred had been placed. That it was just like Mrs. Berrien to insist on joining her wounded husband at once was conceded by all, but opinions differed as to the propriety of her course in taking Winifred with her. This the major decided by prompt assertion that Miss Berrien doubtless refused to be left behind. "And, being a very lovely blending of the characteristics of both her parents," said he, "it would have been decidedly unlike Miss Berrien to have stayed at home."

And then came the dread news that a great band from the northeast, reinforced by a reckless gang of fanatical young ghost dancers from the Bad Lands, had broken away, and that all the regiments had gone to head them off. Far, without a fight, they could not go. The question was which regiment would be the first to meet them. Then the next night's mail brought the next day's papers, and the Twelfth, having swung loose and being absent from the neighborhood whence were derived the items on which correspondents based their reports and editors their comments, shared the usual fate of the absentee, and having sustained the only casualties and inflicted the only punishments yet heard of about the agency, was now coming in for its share of the "toujours tort" to which it was, of course, justly entitled. Kenyon first glared at and then exploded over a dispatch which read somewhat as follows:

"All hope of bloodless solution of the difficulty is now at an end. Even the most peacefully disposed among the reservation Indians are furious over what they do not hesitate to term the slaughter of their clansmen in the three affairs that have recently occurred, and it is an open secret that at general headquarters the gravest annoyance is felt over the total overthrow of carefully laid plans, all caused by the injudicious conduct of certain hot headed officers of cavalry. The friends of White Wolf, the principal 'brave' shot by Major Berrien's troopers, declare that he and those with him were friendly and were only striving to reach the major with the news that couriers were coming, hoping thereby to earn something to eat, for they were cold and hungry when they were fired on, without warning, and even while making signals of peace and friendship White Wolf was slain. Then the Brules who were with them could not be restrained and attacked the couriers in revenge.

"As for the affair at Wolf creek after the blizzard there is unspoken denunciation among the Indians, and the 'damnation of faint praise' in other quarters of the conduct of a cavalry officer present. The Indians declare they had gone out only to gather up their ponies. The sight of the mules told them there must be an ambulance stalled somewhere in the drifts, and they were eagerly searching for it to render succor and aid when they were fired upon from ambush by the lieutenant and his men, and two of their ponies were killed and one young Indian shot through the leg. The Indians declare they could easily have killed Major Berrien, but merely strove to defend themselves and explain, and that had they been hostile they could have finished the lieutenant and his little squad at the Wolf creek crossing long before reinforcements came. Altogether, there is something so plausible in their statements that it is understood that the conduct both of the major and at least one of his subalterns will be made the subject of official investigation."

"Well, well, well!" said Kenyon. "Thank God I'm not serving a grateful nation in the heart of the Indian country. It's bad enough to be shot and worse to be lied about, and that is all the comfort there is in being a cavalryman, if I do say it who am nothing but a cross grained old crank of a doughboy. If this is what the Twelfth is to get for 'a mere affair of outposts,' what the devil will be said of them if they should get into a regular pitched battle? Here, Mr. Adjutant, dump that paper in the fire, and don't let a woman at the post know anything about it. Know it already? How the mischief could they?"

"There were half a dozen of them, sir, at Mrs. Hazlett's reading another copy of that paper as I came down. And poor Mrs. Thorpe is crying her eyes out. She's been utterly upset since the news came that the Twelfth had been sent out. Good God, sir, she's coming in now!"

It was indeed poor Mrs. Thorpe who entered, pallid, her eyelids swollen with weeping. Old Kenyon was on his feet in an instant and leading her to a chair.

"My dear madam, my dear madam," he began, "you must not give way so. I assure you there is no cause for such dread and anxiety. Do strive to control yourself."

"I cannot! oh, Major Kenyon, I cannot! I have been through so much, such fearful scenes!" she sobbed, wringing her nervous hands, rocking to and fro in an agony of grief. "Oh, it is easy for those who have not lived the life we had to live in the old days to counsel patience, calmness. I was only a child then, kneeling at my mother's side when the news came in that widowed half the women in the post. I spent my girlhood in the regiment. How many are left of the officers who were so good to me then? Mother was only one of a dozen whose hearts were broken—broken as, oh, God! I feel mine is to be. They took my father long years ago, now they demand my husband, my babies' father, my all, their all! O God! O God!"

"Sobbing, rocking to and fro in her uncontrollable grief, the poor girl clung to Kenyon's hand, and the old fellow's eyes blinked and smarted with the tears he could not quite force back. He laid the other hand upon her bowed and swaying head.

"My child," he said brokenly, "for your babies' sake try to bear up. Be your father's daughter. I knew and loved him well—knew you when you rode your first pony at the old fort up the Missouri. You know well I wouldn't try to deceive you. I can't think the Twelfth is to bear the brunt of this business. They don't belong in that department at all. They are only borrowed from here, and surely there are troops enough there, more than enough, to overawe that pestilent gang. All that is necessary will be to surround the Indians, let them see what a force we have, and they'll knuckle down. Don't cry so, Mrs. Thorpe; don't cry, my child. Let me take you over home now. Just get the little ones around you tonight, and I'll bring over some famous oranges that came today, and—why, I don't believe the Twelfth will have to pull another trigger. Think how many other regiments and commands there are there."

"I do, I do, and I pray and pray, but no comfort comes. Did you ever know a time when they were not in the thick of the fight? Did you ever hear of any time when the loss did not fall heaviest on us?"

"Don't think of that now," he pleaded. "Don't borrow trouble from either past or future. Come, let me take you home, there's a good girl. I tell you if that band hasn't surrendered they've scattered all over creation, and you can no more catch them than you can—than you can—a newspaper lie. That's the strongest simile I can think of. Did you hear what they were saying about Berrien and Brewster?" he queried, eager to divert her thoughts from her own misery.

"I did. Isn't it cruel? But Major Berrien has his wife and Winnie with him, and they're bringing him home: but if poor George is shot, what can I do?"

"Do? Why, you shall go right to him if I have to give myself a seven days' leave and take you." And so, soothing, comforting as best he knew how, the veteran major led her home to her wondering brood, to the laughing, crowing baby leaping in the nurse's arms, delighted to see the little mother again, to the joyous children romping in the firelight, innocent of care or fear, and then striving for their sake to still her sobs, to dry her tears, he left her to put the little ones to bed, to clasp their folded hands in hers as the wee, white gowned girlies knelt at her side echoing—God only knew with what piteous entreaty—the lisping prayer for his divine protection for the loved father, the devoted husband, the gallant soldier who that very day had fought his last fight and lay lifeless on the frozen sod.

Over the eastward bluffs, cold and gray, the morning light had slowly crept to the zenith. Over the sky was spread one limitless pall of cloud, cheerless and repellent—a pall so dense that not one friendly star had peeped, not one rift of sunshine now could force its way. All below, bleak, frowning and sullen, a bare and blasted landscape; low hills and ridges east and west, low lying swale between, cheerless, treeless, shrubless, not even a veil of snow to hide its nakedness, to lend one pitying touch to break the dull, dead monotony of its wintry desolation; sweeps and slopes rolling away unbroken to the frowning horizon at the west, sterner, harsher lines among the bluffs across the tortuous stream bed, between whose ragged banks an icy, lonely and dismal rivulet is curdling now, spreading out into frozen shallows at the flats, moaning and complaining around its warped and sudden bends, desolate as the surrounding desolation, deserted as the Dead sea, its banks repellent even to such sharers of Dakota solitudes as the coyote and the cottonwood, shunned of man or beast or tree—a stream of silence and gloom at the dawn of this December day, and so cheerless is its every surrounding, so appalling the unnatural hush, that one would never dream of life upon its blasted banks.

Yet, listen! Unseen, but dominant, the sun has risen above the eastern hills, and, as the light broadens even where it cannot warm, there floats upon the air from far away at the southwest, faint and clear, a cavalry trumpet call; soft at first, then crescendo, it ceases suddenly in shrill high note. It thrills through and through a rare atmosphere unruffled by the fleeting wing of hardiest bird. Like the wistful call of scattered quail it seems to say, "Where are you?" And prompt, expectant of the coming of faithful mate, listen again! From the dim recesses to the north, somewhere among these bare and desolate slopes, the answer rises, quick, ringing, even imperative, and the signal reads, "This way."

Groping through the bitter darkness of the December night a cavalry column has sought and, just at the opening of this cheerless December day, has found its mate. The comrade battalions of the Twelfth are within hail.

"Forward!" rings the signal from the southwest. Forward with them, then, around that point at the low bluff to our front, and in the ghostly, gathering light the scene is before us, the tale is almost told.

There, thickly dotting the prairie and covering the low ground, its wigwams smoke begrimed and dingy, lies an Indian encampment; but even in such shelter as this the hostile horde has fared far better than they who through the long, freezing night have kept watch and ward lest again the wary chief should slip through the meshes. It has come at last. The big warrior's fanatical braves have made their rush, Berrien's men the tackle. Back flew the signal with the setting sun. Up through the night came Farquhar with "the guards."

Here in front the four old troops we know so well have shivered for hours about the village. Here, alert and determined, Rolfe and Hazlett, Thorpe and Gorham, have clung to front, flank and rear, well knowing that so soon as the colonel got the news he would not only speed the second battalion on its way, but, gathering any other forces he could find, would ride the long night through, if need were, to join his men.

Stern and silent Rolfe is standing at the bank of the stream, wearied enough, yet certain that there is no rest before them. On him as senior the command has devolved in the absence of the beloved major now being tenderly nursed and comfortably trundled homeward in the warm interior of a Pullman. No excitement, no cheer attends the coming of the column now at steady, soldierly gait winding into the shallow depression. Rolfe knows that without Farquhar and his re-enforcements attack upon or interference with so formidable a band would be worse than desperation. He knows that with Farquhar his own position will be only that of subordinate, and that he must obey. He knows how, were he supreme, a thousand troopers at his back, he would conduct matters now. But Farquhar is a soldier long accustomed both to obedience and to command; Rolfe is one to whom obedience comes with laggard grace, to whom command is opportunity for lavish vent of his imperious will.

Orders or no orders, if he had the power he would deal death to the rabid renegades before him. Orders to "bring on the Indians, but not bring on a fight," to his thinking are orders like those which should forbid a man's going to water until he had learned to swim. Orders to disarm but not molest are simply something to be laughed to scorn. When were the Sioux ever known to surrender those precious arms? Such things when reported in years gone by turned out to be as rusty shams as the arms turned in. Rolfe was in mood as sullen as the morn, and the signs about the now bustling village were not to his liking. Over among the tepees blanketed squaws were scurrying about, their shrill voices suppressed, but their black eyes flashing hatred at the silent squads of troopers, carbines ready in hand, watching every move within the guarded lines. Young women and boys were belaboring the gaunt and dejected ponies. Eager gestures and low exclamations called attention to the coming force, and in groups the warriors, shrouded to the very lips in their heavy robes, stood or sat in council; but all the while, darting from point to point with fierce declamatory gesture, went Mephisto himself in the Indian "medicine man." Mark! wheresoever he goes eager ears are bent to hear his exhortation.

"My God! why can't I arrest him at least? With that old scoundrel done for the rest might not be so hard," is Rolfe's impatient exclamation.

"Simply because the attempt would lead to instant fight," is Hazlett's cool reply.

"But, man, he's putting them up to organized resistance. He's giving them some instructions now; you can see it just as well as I do."

"Who doesn't? but"— A suggestive shrug of the shoulders indicates the brother captain's opinion. "You know the old saying, Rolfe. 'Ours not to make reply.'"

"Who's in command of those advanced men fronting that part of the village?" asks Rolfe after a moment's gloomy pause.

"Brewster. Don't you see? He's talking with Sergeant Ellis there now."

Rolfe grinds his heavy boot heel into the frosted bunch grass not more harshly than he grinds his teeth. "By heaven! Hazlett, bear me witness to this, for there's no telling how things will turn out today. If I had my way those two men would have been brought to book and made to explain instead of having posts of honor here. Farquhar refused to listen to another word on the subject until we got home again: then it may be too late."

"Well-l, I can't understand what you have against them both or either," is Hazlett's reply.

"And I can't explain here or now, but wait till we're home again, Hazlett, if we ever get there."

Farther down to the left two other troop commanders have been watching the symptoms among the swarming lodges.

"There'll be the devil's work this day, Thorpe," says Gorham at last with gloomy brow.

And Thorpe only bows his head.

Three hours later look upon the scene. The open prairie on the hither side of the village is no longer tenantless, as it was at dawn. Two parallel lines confront each other there.

In dogged submission to the orders of their captors and the mandate of the big white chief which has been laid before them, silent, sullen, muffled to the eyes in dingy robe or blanket, the braves have slowly moved out from their lurking places among the tepees and shuffled down the gentle slope until well away from the outskirts of their town, and just in front of a long, silent rank of dismounted troopers they squat upon the ground. No word is spoken by either side. Here crouch the savage leaders of the hostile tribe, and, in long extended line, scores of their fiercest and bravest. Others still lurk among the squaws and lodges. Others peer with glittering, malignant eyes from under heaps of foul smelling robes or parfleches. Those in the outing glance but furtively at the blue line before them. They are silent as the dead, yet the war cry trembles on their lips. They wait, but wait expectant. They crouch, but it is the tiger's crouch, ready for a spring. The word has been passed that all arms must be surrendered, and every arm is there, ready, hidden, but "with the lightning sleeping in it."

Back among those brown, dingy tepees, breathless with excitement, squaws are scurrying to and fro; children are being huddled away to the farther side. "Look at that, Curly," mutters Warren under his frozen mustache, as he passes rapidly along in rear. "Isn't that enough to show they mean mischief?" Some of the Indian police and interpreters are still searching for warriors in hiding. Yet has not the old chief bowed his assent to the orders and given his directions that his people should comply? Nothing must be, can be done so long as the Indian makes no overt move. The dismounted men of two troops are in long single rank. Some of the men shiver a little, for cold and excitement are telling now, as in many cases overcoats have been thrown aside, but brave men tremble ofttimes until the first shot comes, and then the nervous strain is gone, for the hot blood leaps and tingles through the veins. Back some distance the horse herders are aligned. Off to the flanks and rear comrade troops gaze silently on the scene. From the crest of a low bluff the black muzzle of the Hotchkiss gun peers from its knot of watchful batterymen. Farquhar, vigilant and grave, has just sent Warren with other orders. A halfbreed Indian steps forth, as though to carry its import to the chief. At him the eyes of the old maniac of a medicine man glare with tigerish fury. He lowers his feathered head. He crouches.

Then, suddenly, a catlike leap, a wild yell. Off goes every blanket, as though hurled by the explosion from within. In simultaneous crash the flame and lead have leaped upon the trooper line, and now through the veiling smoke every Indian is fighting like a demon. Down goes many a sturdy soldier, veteran sergeant, brave faced boy. The line reels with the sudden shock, but in an instant men like Thorpe and Brewster and Randolph leap forward among the men and their voices ring with the clamor of battle. Back up the slope, scurrying, stooping low, firing, dropping in their tracks, the Indians are making for the shelter of their tepees—for the skirts of the squaws. What Sioux woman fears to die in defense of her brave? What Sioux warrior disdains to shield himself from foeman's blow and to shoot from the covert of the sheltering form of his devoted wife?

"For God's sake, men, head 'em off! Don't let them back among the women," is the yell. But Indian tactics, stooping to anything, stopping at nothing, are too much for men trained to fight only as soldiers and gentlemen. Already squaws are rushing forward, knife and revolver in hand. Already the hidden savages are firing from under tent or travois. Already a score of the best and bravest of the Twelfth have bit the dust. Curly Brewster's arm is smashed by rifle bullet; Thorpe, cheering on his men, heading them in their rapid return fire plunges suddenly to earth with one gasping cry, "Oh, God! My little ones!" Rolfe, riding like mad a dozen yards ahead of his men in wild effort to cut off the backward move, tumbles in senseless heap at the very feet of a knife wielding fury of a woman, who is only laid low just as her clutch is on his hair, her gleaming blade at his throat. Aye, on this bleak and barren and cheerless field, under these leaden skies, beside the black waters, streaked now with curdling red the battle fiend is loose; there is, indeed, "the devil's work this day," but where the blame lies as between the soldier who must fight or die and those who, far and near, east and west, so promptly lashed him as squaw shooter, babe slayer, let the God of battles decide.

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

THE PIONEER
HARNESS SHOP,
M. RAUENBUEHLR, Proprietor.
A full supply of everything kept by the trade.
Cor of Broadway and Third sts,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

Work Horses - - - and Mares.

FOR GOOD, SOLID WORK HORSES and MARES, go to

M. R. BROWN,

The old reliable dealer, who has sold horses in this county since 1878, and who is always on hand to make his guaranty good. Every man who ever sold horses here is ready (when he sells) to guaranty, but later, if you happen to want him to make his guaranty good you can't most always sometimes find him ready to make his recommend good. He handles only good young horses and has sold more than any dealer in the county. He is now prepared to supply the demand for good teams—he handles no other—and guaranty them just as recommended. Before you buy you will do well to call at

Brown's New Stables,

Main Street, one door north of the old M. E. church building.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication Sept. 29th, 1892.]
[Last publication Nov. 10th, 1892.]

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE payment of nine dollars ($9.00) which became due on the first day of October, A. D. 1889, upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Daniel Bernard and Fannie Jane Bernard, his wife, to John Milton Oliver, bearing date the 3d day of October, A. D. 1888, which mortgage together with the power of sale therein contained, was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the county of Polk and state of Minnesota, on the 29th day of October, A. D. 1888, at 8 o'clock and 10 minutes a. m., in book 40 of mortgages, on pages 273, 274 and 275.

It is provided in said mortgage that if said mortgagors shall fail to pay any part of the sum of money thereby secured at the time and in the manner specified in said mortgage, then upon such default, the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage, may at the option of the mortgagee be declared due and payable; and the said John Milton Oliver, mortgagee, who is now the legal holder of said mortgage and of the notes thereby secured, has elected and does hereby elect and declare the whole sum secured by said mortgage to be due; and there is claimed to be due upon said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of forty-eight and 13-100 dollars, ($48.13), and no action or proceeding has been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof,

Wherefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz:

The northeast quarter (ne¼) of Section fourteen, (14) in Township one hundred and fifty-four (154) north, of Range forty-six (46) west, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres more or less, according to the government survey thereof, in the county of Polk and state of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances thereto belonging; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said county of Polk at the front door of the Court House in the city of Crookston, in said county and state, on Saturday, the 12th day of November, A. D. 1892, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon of that day, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

Dated at Minneapolis, Minn., this 24th day of September, A. D. 1892.

JOHN MILTON OLIVER,
Mortgagee.

C. M. HERTIG,
Attorney for mortgagee.
[24-30]

PROBATE NOTICE.

[First publication Oct. 20th, 1892.]

STATE OF MINNESOTA, COUNTY OF POLK ss. In Probate Court, Special Term October 13th, 1892. In the matter of the estate of Julia A. Griggs, deceased. On reading and filing the petition of James Elton, executor of said estate, setting forth the amount of personal estate that has come into his hands, the disposition thereof, and how much remains undisposed of; the amount of debts outstanding against said deceased, as far as the same can be ascertained; the legacies unpaid, and description of all the real estate, excepting the homestead, of which said deceased died seized, and the condition and value of the respective portions or lots thereof; the persons interested in said estate, with their residences; and praying that license be to him granted to sell the whole of the real estate of said deceased mentioned and described in his petition, and it appearing by said petition that there is not sufficient personal estate in the hands of said executor to pay said debts, the legacies or expenses of administration, and that it is necessary for the payment of such debts, legacies or expenses, to sell the whole of said real estate.

It is therefore ordered, that all persons interested in said estate, appear before this court on Monday, the 14th day of November, 1892, at 10 o'clock a. m., at the probate office in the city of Crookston, in said county, then and there to show cause (if any there be) why license should not be granted to said James Elton aforesaid to sell so much of the real estate of said deceased as shall be necessary to pay such debts, legacies and expenses.

And it is further ordered, that this order shall be published once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Polk County Journal, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston, in said county.

Dated at Crookston, the 13th day of October, A. D. 1892.

By the Court:

C. M. BENSON,
Judge of Probate

[27-29]

PROBATE NOTICE.

[First publication Oct. 20th, 1892.]

STATE OF MINNESOTA, COUNTY OF POLK ss. In Probate Court, special term, October 18th, 1892. In the matter of the estate of Ingeborg I. Loen, deceased: Letters of administration on the estate of said deceased being this day granted unto J. H. Loen of said county.

It is ordered, that all claims and demands of all persons against said estate be presented to this court for examination and allowance, at the Probate Office in the city of Crookston, on the third Monday in April, A. D. 1893, at 10 o'clock a. m.

It is further ordered, that six months from the date hereof be allowed to creditors to present their claims against said estate, at the expiration of which time all claims not presented to said court or not proven to its satisfaction, shall be forever barred, unless for cause shown, further time be allowed.

Ordered further, that notice of the time and place of the hearing and examination of said claims and demands shall be given by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to the day appointed for such examination, in the Polk County Journal, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston, in said county.

Dated at Crookston, the 18th day of October, A. D. 1892.

By the court:

C. M. BENSON,
Judge of Probate.

[27-29]

Ripans Tabules cure constipation.
Ripans Tabules cure the blues.
Ripans Tabules cure dyspepsia.

GREAT NORTHERN
Railway
TIME CARD.

MONTANA EXPRESS—Daily.

West		East
7:40 p m De.	St Paul	Ar. 6:55 a m
2:50 a m "	Fergus Falls	" 11:25 p m
4:47 a m "	Glyndon	" 9:36 p m
7:20 a m "	CROOKSTON.	" 7:25 p m
8:40 a m "	Grand Forks	" 6:20 p m
9:45 a m "	Larimore	" 5:06 p m
2: 1 p m "	Devils Lake	" 2:55 a m
7:00 p m Ar.	Butte	De. 7:30 a m

ST. VINCENT BRANCH—Daily except Sunday
Depart 7:30 a m Arrive 6:30 p m

FOSSTON BRANCH—Tues., Thurs. and Sat.
Depart 8:00 a m Arrive 5:30 p m

ST. HILAIRE BRANCH—Monday Wed. & Friday.
Depart 10:45 a m Arrive 4:30 p m

GRAND FORKS' ACCOMMODATION.
Arrive 9:50 a m Depart 7:55 p m

The scenic route to Spokane, Helena, and Butte on the west, and St. Paul, Minneapolis-Duluth and West Superior on the east. Dining and sleeping cars on all through trains. Tickets on sale to all principal places. Baggage checked through to destination.

W. W. FEGAN, Agent.

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.

TIME SCHEDULE.

	Leave Crookston Daily.	Arrive Crookston Daily.
For Duluth, Ashland, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Chicago, and all points East and South............	7:05 p. m.	8:27 a. m.
For Grand Forks, Grafton, Pembina, Winnipeg and points in N. Dakota and Winnipeg.......	8:27 a. m.	7:05 p. m.

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.

THE
Great Transcontinental Route

Passes through Wisconsin, Minnesota North Dakota, Manitoba, Montana, Idaho, Oregon and Washington.

The Dining Car Line

Dining cars are run between Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Winnipeg, Butte, Helena, Tacoma, Seattle and Portland.

PULLMAN SLEEPING CAR ROUTE.

Pullman service daily between Chicago, St. Paul, Montana and the Pacific Northwest; and between St. Paul, Minneapolis and Minnesota, North Dakota and Manitoba points.

THE POPULAR LINE.

Daily Express Trains carry elegant Pullman Sleeping Cars, Dining Cars, Day Coaches, Pullman Tourist Sleepers and Free Colonist Sleeping Cars.

YELLOWSTONE PARK ROUTE.

The Northern Pacific R. R. is the rail line to Yellowstone Park; the popular line to California and Alaska; and its trains pass through the grandest scenery of seven states.

THROUGH TICKETS

Are sold at all coupon offices of the Northern Pacific Railroad to points North, East, South and West, in the United States and Canada.

For rates, maps, time tables, or special information, apply to
CHAS. A. SHARKEY,
Agent Northern Pacific R. R.,
Crookston, Minn.
CHAS. S. FEE,
Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent,
St. Paul, Minn.

WANTED SALESMEN.
Local and Traveling
To represent our well known house. You need no capital to represent a firm that warrants nursery stock first-class and true to name. WORK ALL THE YEAR. $100 per month to the right man. Apply quick, stating age.
L. L. MAY & CO.,
Nurserymen, Florists and Seedsmen,
(This house is responsible.) St. Paul, Minn.

A. H. DUNLAP, M. D.
Graduate McGill University, Montreal.
LICENSED COLLEGE PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS, QUEBEC.
Office in McKinnon Block.

S. L. COLLINS,
Proprietor of Main Street
Livery and Feed Stables.
Cor. Main and Fourth Sts., west side,
CROOKSTON, - - - MINNESOTA.

Horses bought and sold on commission. Everything neat and nobby. Feeding a specialty.

FINE HEARSE

in connection, which I will attend to in person.

C. HENDRICKSON, President.
L. ELLINGTON, Vice President.
J. W. WHEELER, Cashier.
H. STEENERSON, 2d Vice President.
A. P. HANSON, Assistant Cashier.

Scandia-American Bank,

Of Crookston, Minn. Organized under the State laws. Authorized capital $200,000. Paid up capital $50,000. Undivided profits $10,500. Buys Bonds, School and Town Orders. Special attention to collections. Interest on time deposits.

DIRECTORS—C. O. Christianson, E. P. Pierce, O. H. Lucken, A. G. Gallasch, H. Steenerson, J. H. Locken, C. Hendrickson, Max Ericsson, L. K. Aaker, J. W. Wheeler.

CITY COUNCIL.

Official Proceedings of a Meeting of the City Council Held October 11th.

The Railway Given Permission to Grade Between Robert and Loring Streets.

The Judges of Election Appointed and Polling Places Designated.

Proceedings of a regular meeting of the city council of the City of Crookston held in the city hall on Tuesday evening Oct. 11th, 1892.

Meeting called to order by president Cromb.

Roll called.

Aldermen present:—Anderson, Austin, Childs, Jennings, Jerome, Marlette, Watts and Cromb.

Aldermen absent:—Munroe, Morrisey and Walker.

The minutes of the previous meetings were read and approved.

The city attorney reported that he had received a letter from Kellogg Severance and Davis relating to the Duluth Crookston & Northern Railway bonds and on motion the chair appointed Aldermen Childs, Watts and Anderson to meet the bond commissioners and have the bonds destroyed.

The finance committee reported favorably upon the following bills.

C. S. Spendley, justice fees	$ 8.80
C. S. Spendley, justice fees	5.70
C. S. Spendley, justice fees	5.70
C. S. Spendley, justice fees	5.70
C. S. Spendley, justice fees	8.80
C. S. Spendley, justice fees	5.70
Emil Moeckel, assisting city engineer	9.00
Ole H. Mortenson, special police	10.00
Cahoon & Lytal, draying	1.50
Ben Ralph, assisting city engineer	18.00
M. D. Stone, assisting city engineer	17.00
Stewart Lumber Company, lumber	143.66
Rolstad & Engen, boarding prisoners	10.00
Crookston Fire Department	97.00
Geo. O. Buhn, blacksmith	1.50
C. E. Pampler, medical attendance	6.00
D. F. McDonald, first ward	14.38
D. F. McDonald, second ward	8.12
D. F. McDonald, fourth ward	39.25
Red River Lumber Company, lumber	185.73
Ed. Ross, assisting city engineer	10.00

On motion bills reported upon favorably were ordered paid.

On motion bill number 1059 was allowed at $14.80. Carried.

Moved by Alderman Childs seconded by Alderman Anderson that bills 1056, 1053 and 1061 be laid over for further information. Carried.

Moved by Alderman Watts seconded by Alderman Anderson that bills number 1062 and 1066 be allowed and ordered paid. Carried.

Report of Justice Spendley handed in.

The city engineer presented the first estimate of John Wilcox on grading Second street.

Moved by Alderman Watts seconded by Alderman Marlette that John Wicox be paid the sum of $150.00 as the first estimate on his Second street grading contract.

Carried.

The commissioners report on grading Ash, Robert and Boadway was handed in.

The matter of grading Front street was brought up.

Moved by Alderman Childs seconded by Alderman Jerome that it is the sense of this council that the Great Northern Railway Company be permitted to grade between Robert and Loring steet as they may desire, to facilitate business with their freight house, conditioned upon the bringing the ends of Loring and Fletcher streets where it intersects with Front street, to a grade satisfactory to the city engineer and council and cover the greater portion of Fletcher, Front and Loring streets with gravel to a sufficient depth to carry a loaded team.

Aldermen voting in the affirmative:—Austin, Childs, Jerome, Marlette, Watts and Cromb.

Aldermen voting in the negative:—Anderson, Jennings.

Motion declared carried.

Moved by Alderman Childs seconded by Alderman Jerome, that a committee of five be appointed with power to act for the council, whose duty it shall be to enter into an agreement with the officials of the Great Northern railroad company as to the amount and character of grading to be done under the above resolution, which agreement shall be subject to the approval of the city engineer and mayor before becoming upon the city.

Alderman Jennings moved to amend, seconded by Alderman Watts, by striking out the words "with power to act for" and inserting the words "to report to." Ayes:—Anderson, Austin, Jennings, Watts. Nays:—Childs, Jerome, Marlette, Cromb. Amendment declared lost.

The vote on the original motion was then taken and resulted as follows:

Aldermen voting in the affirmative:—Anderson, Austin, Childs, Jerome, Marlette, Watts, Cromb.

Aldermen voting in negative:—Jennings. Motion declared carried.

Chair appointed as that committee:—Aldermen Watts, Childs, Jennings, Anderson, Jerome.

On motion the president and purchasing agent were instructed to purchase all necessary supplies for election purposes.

Alderman Anderson excussed.

The committe on vacating Barrett's addition asked for further time in which to report, which was granted.

At a regular meeting of the city council of the city of Crookston, held the 11th day of October, 1892, Alderman Watts offered the following resolution, which was seconded by Alderman Jerome:

Resolved, That the east and west alley in block five (5) in Fletcher & Houston's addition to Crookston be graded in accordance with specifications for the same to be furnished by city engineer, and that he be required to report same, with cost of such grading, to the council at the next meeting.

Upon the call of ayes and nays, the vote stood as follows;

Aldermen voting in the affirmative: Austin, Childs, Jennings, Marlette, Watts, Cromb.

Aldermen voting in the negative: none.

Upon this vote the resolution was declared carried by the president of the council.

Passed this 11th day of October, 1892.

JOHN CROMB,
President of the Council.

Approved this 11th day of October, 1892.

Attest: WM. ANGLIM, Mayor.
E. C. CARRUH, Clerk.

At a regular meeting of the city council of the city of Crookston, held the 11th day of October, 1892, Alderman Watts offered the following resolution, which was seconded by Alderman Jerome:

Resolved, That the following named persons be and are hereby appointed as Judges of Election for the respective election districts of said city;

First ward—F. Anderson. Louis Fontaine. I. N. Simmons.
Second ward—J. E. Morrisey. John Munroe. S. L. Collins.
Third ward—W. E. Walker. W. Watts. M. R. Brown.
Fourth ward—F. Jerome. E. M. Walsh. F. Bivins.
Fifth ward—R. G. Marlette. H. A. Stone. W. F. Hitchcock.

For the general election for said city to be held on the 8th day of November, A. D. 1892; and the following places are hereby established as polling places of said election districts at said election, to-wit: First ward, city hall; Second ward, McKinnon's building on Second street; Third ward, Commercial hotel sample room; Fourth ward, St. Louis hotel sample room; Fifth ward, E. D. Childs Co's office.

Upon the call of the ayes and nays the vote stood as follows:

Aldermen voting in the affirmative: Austin, Childs, Jennings, Jerome, Marlette, Watts, Cromb.

Aldermen voting in the negative: none.

Upon this vote the resolution was declared carried by the president of the council.

Passed this 11th day of October, 1892.

JOHN CROMB,
President of the council.

Approved this 11th day of October, 1892.

WM. ANGLIM, Mayor.

Attest:
E. C. CARRUTH, Clerk.

Moved by Alderman Watts seconded by Alderman Jennings that when we adjourned it be to meet on Tuesday evening October 18th at 7:30 p. m. Carried.

On motion council adjourned.

E. C. CARRUTH,
Clerk.

A DISGUSTED People's Party man says in the Fergus Falls Journal:

"One of the cardinal principles of the new reform movement in politics is that the office should seek the man. It is in all our platforms; it is mentioned by all our speakers. For the past year Mr. Boen, the People's party candidate for congress, has been working for the congressional nomination and for his election since getting the nomination. Not only is he breaking this plank of our platform, but he is a paid official of our county, drawing $2,000 a year, yet he has practically abandoned his office and is running after office with a vigor and activity that would put to shame an old party politician.

His office is the headquarters and meeting place of all politicians of the county. It is there that the jobs are put up and the slates made. If any good is to come out of our movement we must condemn by our votes at the polls such an outrage upon our principles."

SPEAKING of the veteran soldier vote, the Duluth News-Tribune, says: "The soldier vote will be given to the Republican party in November with a solidity that has never been equalled since the campaign nearly thirty years ago, when the Democratic national convention declared the war a failure and placed even so personally clean a man as Gen. George B. McClellan at the head of its ticket. It was in no idle boast that Gen. Sickles declared that no old soldier would vote for Mr. Cleveland. Few men of today are more in touch with survivors of the war than are Gen. Sickles and Gen. Slocum, and they know that no soldier will stand the insults heaped upon him by the ex-president. To them it is a question of loyalty to country. They have both been lifelong Democrats, and neither would desert the party now unless he felt the necessity of rebuking it for its deliberate insult to the brave men who died that this country might live, as well as the survivors of the war, in placing in nomination a man who has so openly shown his hostility to any recognition of the services they and their fellows gave the country when needed. The most Soldiers will follow Benjamin Harrison, Gen. Sickles and Gen. Slocum in 1892 as they followed them in the days of 1861."

COMMISSIONERS PROCEEDINGS.

The Minutes of the Last Meeting of the County Board.

The Board of County Commissioners convened in special session at the auditor's office, October 3d, 1892.

Present, Commissioner Kirsch, Rhinehart, Demers and Erwin.

On petition of A. Sture the interest and penalty on the Swedish Lutheran church property on Sampson's Woodland addition was abated for the years '87, '88, '89 and '90.

The committee on repairs on the county bridge at Fisher reported that the repairs had been duly made at a cost of $1,171.50.

The contract for the brick-work for the county jail was awarded to Wm. Erdmann, whose bid was $13,975; the contract for the steel and cell work was awarded to K. D. Osborne, of St. Paul, for the sum of $4,690, and for steam heating apparatus to H. T. Porter & Co., of Minneapolis, for $2,080.

A. E. Permain was appointed to superintend the work of construction, his compensation therefor to be two per cent. of the aggregate cost of the jail.

The site for the new jail was located upon the court house block.

McKinnon Bros. were awarded the contract for furnishing coal at $9.65 per ton.

The following bills were allowed:

Munn & Filiatrult, repairing Jail floor	$ 9 50
D. McDonald, sewer to County hospital	206 10
Red River Dalen, printing	19 48
Red River Dalen, 500 envelopes	3 50
Michel Brouillet, witness fees	10 21
Red Lake Falls Gazette, printing notice	2 40
S. A Wallace, medicine	3 65
Dr. C H. Denniston, med. services	18 00
Ole Norland, witness fees	4 48
W. Marin, hauling plank	6 00
Swan Swanson, witness fees	9 60
Larson Bros., mdse	1 50
Wm. Anglim, canvas for jail	3 00
Crookston Furniture Co., coffin	14 50
John Locken, postage	5 85
Ole and Peter Holt, witness fees	12 80
A. Grunderson, cleaning jail vault	20 00
Nils Muus, postage	2 40
Arny Grundysen, sheriff's fees	18 75
Arny Grundysen, boarding prisoners	187 84
A. Sture, groceries	36 75
C. S. Spendley, justice fees	20 00
Pioneer Press Co., books and blanks	24 00
E. Work, services at hospital	15 00
C. A. Pickney	7 85
W. Cunningham, milk at hospital	9 00
Mrs. Freeman, nurse	29 00
Mrs. A J. Streeter, vegetables	3 15
Gervais & Gervais, mdse	48 28
T. Erwin, fees and mileage	85 80
C. P. DeMers, fees and mileage	23 50
M. E. Kirsch, fees, mileage and commissioner work	58 40

The Alliance Advocate, which is published at Henning under the supervision of a board of managers consisting of Senator John B. Hompe, Hon. Hans P. Bjorge, Hon. Thos. Cole, Hon. Michael J. Daly, A. S. Paulson, George Poulsen and O. A. Fetyedt, contains an article accusing Mr. H. E. Boen, the people's party nominee for congress, with taking illegal fees as register of deeds. It specifies an instance where it claims that Mr. W. B. Milne, the Henning banker was over charged and insinuates that he has collected about $1,500 illegally.

Mr. Boen claims that he has simply charged for doing things outside of his regular work. The Fergus Falls Journal, in commenting upon the matter says:

"Mr. Boen has given his version of the matter of the illegal charges he made as register of deeds. He simply charged his constituents for doing what he had to do for them outside of his regular work. That is when he was asked to leave his office and go accross the hall to secure certificates he charged 25 cents for his trouble. This was probably not illegal; it was certainly unwise. It was outside of his regular work and he was not obliged to do it, and if people asked him to they must pay him if he saw fit to charge them. But now we will suppose a thing or two. Suppose that Mr. Boen was elected to Congress. The law says he shall attend the sessions and the salary is $5,000 a year. Now, Mr. Boen would not be obliged to leave his seat. He could sit there day after day and legislate for the nation. But this is not all that is expected of a congressman. Suppose an old soldier, whose pension had been hung up, should write to him and ask him to go over to the pension department and see what the matter was. The pension bureau is several blocks away, and if he charges 25 cents to step across the hall to get a certificate, he would charge an old soldier about $4 for looking up his pension matter. The same rate would probably hold in case a farmer wrote to him to see what the matter was with the title to his land, which might be delayed in the land department. The charges would be legal, for a member of congress is not obliged to leave his seat. But Henry Feig will not charge his constituents for doing little favors for them. If he goes to congress it will be a pleasure to him to oblige an old soldier by looking up his pension or to help a farmer who has settled on disputed land whom some railroad is trying to beat. Henry Feig will be glad to do these things, and the fact that he is this kind of a man is what is going to send him to Congress."

The various type foundries of the country have consolidated under the name of the American Type Founders company. The capital is $9,000,000.

A furious gale is prevailing on the Lancashire (England) coast, and it is feared much damage to shipping and loss of life may result.

Policeman McBride, St. Paul, was seriously and perhaps fatally injured in a fight with a thug named Barney Kelly, whom he was attempting to arrest.

The Parnellite convention in Dublin passed a resolution in favor of placing the Paris fund in the hands of a committee consisting of three Parnellites and three anti-Parnellites.

Town Clerks.

The following is a list of the town clerks for the several towns in Polk county:

Andover,	E M Bivins	Crookston
Angus,	A B Carleton	Angus
Black River,	P A Eckstrom	Wylie
Bray,	Albert Wickstrom	Wylie
Badger	P N Savalrud	Sletten
Brandsvold,	Ole Nellon	Fosston
Belgium,	Henry Biever,	Euclid
Brislet,	A P Frank	Warren
Bygland,	Thos. Benson	Fisher
Crookston,	E O Flanders	Crookston
Crookston, city,	E C Carruth	Crookston
Columbia,	R H Carr	Columbia
Chester,	O J Mattson	Lindsay
Emardville,	Peter Anderson	Emard
Euclid,	F Tiedt, Jr.,	Euclid
Eden,	Neri A Skele	Olga
Fairfax,	Wm Himmelsback	Crookston
Farley,	Mark Congnon	Warren
Fanny,	Walter Latta	Buffington
Fisher,	Halvor Gunderson	Fisher
Fisher, vil.,	John Gleason	Fisher
Gd Forks,	John McCoy	E G Forks
Gd Forks, city,	John McCoy	E G Forks
Garfield,	Iver J Ingebretson	Fertile
Garden,	John Hanson	Ringdal
Gentilly,	H F Gondron,	Gentilly
Gervais,	John Deforge	R L Falls
Grand Park,	E E Abbott	Mentor
Goderey,	D T Mitchell,	Maple Bay
Hammond,	Ernest Hanna	Crookston
Higdem,	Ole Hendrickson	E G Forks
Hill River,	Fred S Syeverson	Lindsay
Huntsville,	O Osmundson	Mallory
Hubbard,	Frank Hanson,	Neilsville
Keystone,	D E Geddes	E G Forks
Kerlsonville,	Fred Benoit	Gentilly
King,	K C Norsving	McIntosh
Knute,	O H Dale	Erskine
Lake Pleasant,	Jos Perrault	R L Falls
Lambert,	Samuel Gebcan,	Lamber
Liberty,	Nelson Clementson	Fertile
Lessor,	H Helgeson	Ovetia
Lowell,	Ole Christianson,	Crookston
Louisville,	Louis Huot	Huot
Nesbit,	Robert Nesbit	Mallory
Norden,	O J Tweet	Tweet
North,	S T Johnson	T R Falls
Numedal,	Olaf Larson	Warren
Onstad,	W A Marin	Melvin
Parnell,	Thos Filban	Crookston
Poplar River,	J B Hebert	Brooks
Polk Centre,	Wm Wylie,	Wylie
Queen,	Hans L Houkom	Fosston
R L F, village,	August Herard,	R L Falls
Red Lake Falls,	Ildaig Baril	R L Falls
Reis,	D C Hallock	Edna
River Falls,	K C Gigstad	St. Hilaire
Rocksbury,	P Englestad	St. Hilaire
Roome,	P Boukon	Neby
Rosebud,	M E Randkler	Fosston
Russia,	Orens Simmons	Crookston
Sanders,	Nils K Anderson	St. Hilair
Sandsville,	Henry Nelson	E G Forkse
St. Hilaire,	L J Johnson	St. Hilaire
Sletten,	Ingebret Larson	Winger
Sullivan,	P A Hotvedt	E G Forks
Tabor,	F J Cernousek	Tabor
Terrebonne,	Edonor Perruse	Terrebonne
Tilden,	S J Furan	Dugdale
Tynsid,	A O Stortroen	Neby
Vineland,	John Thompson	Neby
Winger,	Albert Johnson	Winger
Woodside,	Joseph Tagley	Woodside
Wyandotte,	O J Johnson	St. Hilaire
Rhinehart,	Oscar Winck	E G Forks
Thief River Falls	C J Knox	T R Falls

Cook's Cotton Root COMPOUND.

A recent discovery by an old physician. Successfully used monthly by thousands of Ladies. Is the only perfectly safe and reliable medicine discovered. Beware of unprincipled druggists who offer inferior medicines in place of this. Ask for Cook's Cotton Root Compound, take no substitute, or inclose $1 and 6 cents in postage in letter, and we will send, sealed, by return mail. Full sealed particulars in plain envelope, to ladies only, 2 stamps.

Address Pond Lily Company, No. 3 Fisher Block, Detroit, Mich.

Sold in Crookston by A. G Anderson, S A. Wallace, F. L. Durand and druggists everywhere.

G. G. HENAULT
Practical Dentist,
SECOND STREET,
CROOKSTON, - - MINN
OFFICE IN DOBSON'S BLOCK,

All work in my line skilfully and promptly performed. Give me a call.
G. G. HENAULT.

NEW CIGAR STORE
SIGN OF THE BIG INDIAN.
H. F. BROWN, Proprietor.
Second Street,
CROOKSTON, MINN

Cigars of every known brand, from a cheroot to a 25 center. Cigarettes, Chewing and Smoking Tobaccos of all kinds, Snuff, Pipes to suit the fancy of all, from a corn-cob pipe to a meerchaum.

CALL IN.

WOOD'S PHOSPHODINE
The Great English Remedy.

Before and After.

Promptly and permanently cures all forms of Nervous Weakness, Emissions, Spermatorrhea, Impotency and all effects of Abuse or Excesses. Been prescribed over 35 years in thousands of cases; is the only Reliable and Honest Medicine known. Ask druggist for Wood's Phosphodine; if he offers some worthless medicine in place of this, leave his dishonest store, inclose price in letter, and we will send by return mail. Price, one package, $1; six, $5. One will please, six will cure. Pamphlet in plain sealed envelope, 2 stamps. Address THE WOOD CHEMICAL CO., 131 Woodward avenue, Detroit, Mich.

Sold in Crookston by A. C. Anderson, S. A. Wallace, F. L. Durand and druggists everywhere.

JOHN CROMB.
Attorney-at-Law.
SECOND STREET. CROOKSTON

IF YOU ARE GOING EAST OR SOUTH ASK YOUR NEAREST AGENT FOR TICKETS VIA THE BURLINGTON AND TAKE NO OTHER LINE.

E. D. SCHREADER,
Veterinary Surgeon.

Horse Dentistry a Specialty.

All Calls receive Prompt Attention. Satisfaction guaranteed in all cases. Office: 319 North Main Street, in connection with Livery house. CROOKSTON, MINN.

A word to the wise and money savers.

GERVAIS'--The Hustlers,
THE GREATEST AGGREGATION OF
Spring and Summer Goods
That Ever Landed in the Northwest. comprising

The Latest Novelties in Fancy and Domestic Goods.
Dress Goods and Trimmings,
Jackets, Cloaks and Cloakings,
Parasols and Umbrellas for rain and sunshine.
White Goods and Embroideries.
Wash Goods in all the newest weaves,
Jersey ribbed and muslin Underwear.
Ladies' Shirt Waists in many styles,
Spring Caps and Straw Hats.

CARPETS

In all grades and newest designs.
Lace and Chenille Curtains and Portiers,
House Furnishing Goods, of all kinds,
New departure in Boots and Shoes.

Call In and Get Prices.

I. O. O. F. Block, Crookston.
GERVAIS & GERVAIS, Leaders in Low Prices.

You Can Buy Reliable
AGRICULTURAL MACHINERY
OF
SYLVESTER & FINSETH,
CHEAPER AND BETTER

Than anywhere. We handle Buckeye and Osborne Binders with all extras for same, and Twine. Buckeye and Imperial Mowers with extras. Buckeye and Monitor Rakes, Eli, Oliver and Bradley Gang Plows, Stubble and Breaking Plows, the Standard Rotary Shuttle Sewing Machine, Nichols & Shepard New Vibrator Threshing Machine. Also the Jackson, Mitchell and Favorite Wagons, the Enterprise Buggies, Spring Wagons and Carts on all of which we can undersell Grand Forks and other places. We also carry everything that can be had in any first class Hardware Store and invite everybody to call and see us at the corner of Broadway and Fletcher Sts.

SYLVESTER & FINSETH, Crookston, Minn,

M. LeGUEE.
Veterinary Surgeon.

Residence and office on Jerome's Addition.
CROOKSTON. - - - MINN.

P. J. RUSSELL,
Attorney-at-Law
CROOKSTON, MINN.
Next to Merchants' Bank.

THE NEW NORTHWEST

FARM LANDS: Home seekers will find the last of the public domain of agricultural and grazing value along the Great Northern Ry. in North Dakota and Montana

NEW TOWNS: 100 or more, along the Great Forthern Railway Line. Business chances. Write F. I. WHITNEY, St. Paul, Minn., for Books, Maps, &c. Write now.

LOW RATES: Settlers on free Government lands along the Great Northern Ry. Line in North Dakota and Montana get low rates and fine markets for products.

Horses, Cattle.: Montana produces the finest Horses and Cattle. Free ranges yet in Mouse, Milk and Sun River Valleys and Sweet Grass Hills.

Health, Wealth.: In the Northwest. Free Lands, New Towns, New Railways, New Mines, Low Rates. Largest area of good vacant land.

Sheep, Hogs.: Sweetest Grass Hills. Milk and Sun River Valleys, Montana, reached only by the Great Northern Railway Line. The stock raizers' paradise.

Herds, Mines: These have made Montana the richest State per capita in the Union. Plenty of room for more miners and stock raisers. Now is the time.

U. S. LAND OFFICE.
Crookston, Minn., October 3rd, 1892.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof be made before the Register or Receiver U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Novevmber 14th, 1892, viz: Isaac N. Kingsland, Hd. 12583 for the N. E¼ Sec. 22, Tp. 148, R. 47. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of, said land, viz: William S. Rathary, Torson T. Sveen, James Miller, Lorenzo Judson, all of Crookston, Minn.

25-301 HUGH THOMPSON, Register.

KOPS BRO'S
105 Third Street,
GRAND FORKS, N. DAKOTA
PIANOS, ORGANS

WEBER, HAINES BROS., KURTZMANN, MATHUSHEK, McCAMMON PIANOS, Estey and Chicago Cottage Organs. New Upright Pianos from $250 to $1,000, on terms of $10 to $25 per month. New Organs from $60 to $250 on terms of $5 to $10 per month. Satisfaction guaranteed. Write for catalogue and prices. KOPS BROS. Grand Forks, N. D.

First National Bank
OF CROOKSTON

PAID IN CAPITAL, - $100,000
SURPLUS. - - $14,200

Interest on time deposits. Faithful attention to Collections and prompt remittance.

GEO. Q. ERSKINE, President.
WM. ANGLIM, Vice President.
CHAS. E. SAWYER, Cashier.

DIRECTORS:
Wm. Anglim, K. D. Chase, F. D. Childs
Geo. Q. Erskine. J. R. McKinnon. A. A. Miller
E. M. Walsh. Chas. E. Sawyer W. H. Crosby

FRANK IVES, Notary Public and U S. Coms'r
D. E. HATLESTAD, District Court Commissioner

IVES & HATLESTAD,
Attorneys and Counselors at Law,
CROOKSTON, - - - - MINN.

Will practice in all the courts and before the U S. Land Office at Crookston and Washington. Pensions and Soldiers' Claims and Patents carefully and promptly adjusted.

We loan money on improved farms and city property and have facilities for placing large loans at low rate of interest. We give special attention to collection and all commercial business pertaining to our profession.

H. STEENERSON
ATTORNEY AT LAW
CROOKSTON, - MINNESOTA

NEW BARBER SHOP.
On Main St. C. E. MISNER. Prop

Invites your patronage. Everything in the very latest style of the art.

RAZORS HONED. If you desire your Razor Honed and cannot bring it, send it to me with 30 cents and your name and address and I will hone and return it.
Yours Respectfully,
C. E. MISNER.

MARTIN O'BRIEN,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
{I. O. O. F. BUILDING.} Crookston, Minn.

FITS STOPPED FREE
Marvelous success.
Insane Persons Restored
Dr. KLINE'S GREAT NERVE RESTORER
for all BRAIN & NERVE DISEASES. Only sure cure for Nerve Affections, Fits, Epilepsy, etc. INFALLIBLE if taken as directed. No Fits after first day's use. Treatise and $2 trial bottle free to Fit patients, they paying express charges on box when received. Send names, P. O. and express address of afflicted to Dr. KLINE, 931 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa. See Druggists. BEWARE OF IMITATING FRAUDS.

MILLER & FOOTE,
ATTY'S-AT-LAW,
McKinnon Block. - Crookston, Minn.

L. E. GOSSMAN,
Attorney-at-Law,
No. 2 Fournet Block } CROOKSTON, MINN.

Polk County Journal.

BY COOKE & HAMMOND.

Devoted to the Welfare of Polk County.

OFFICIAL PAPER, CITY OF CROOKSTON.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Dollar and Fifty Cents, if paid in advance to any address inside of Polk County. If outside of Polk County 15 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum to any address.

THE REPUBLICAN TICKET.

National.

President—BENJAMIN HARRISON,
Of Indiana.

Vice-Pres.—WHITELAW REID,
Of New York.

State.

Governor—KNUTE NELSON,
Of Alexandria.

Lieut. Gov.—D. M. CLOUGH,
Of Minneapolis.

Sec. of State—F. P. BROWN,
Of Blue Earth County.

Atty-Gen.—H. W. CHILDS,
Of Otter Tail County.

Treas.—JOS. BOBLETER,
Of Brown County.

Supreme Court Judges—
C. E. VANDERBURGH,
D. A. DICKINSON,
WILLIAM MITCHELL

Congressional.

Congressman 7th District—
HENRY FEIG,
of Kandiyohi County.

County.

Auditor.—W. A. LANCTOT,
Of Crookston.

Treasurer.—LEWIS LOHN,
Of Fosston.

Register of Deeds.—NIC NELSON,
Of Norden Township.

Attorney.—IRA C. RICHARDSON,
Of Thief River Falls.

Sheriff.—JAS. M. BAIN,
Of Fisher.

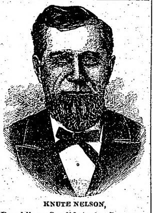
Judge of Probate.—
R. J. MONTAGUE,
Of Crookston.

Supt. of schools.—V. D. CARRUTH,
Of Crookston.

Surveyor.—GEORGE RALPH,
Of Crookston.

Coroner.—GEORGE HOLT,
Of Crookston.

Court Commissioner,
G. H. PALMER,
Crookston.



KNUTE NELSON,
Republican Candidate for Governor.

DON'T forget to register next Tuesday. It insures your vote.

VOTERS should not forget that they must put an x opposite the name of every candidate on the ticket that they want to vote for. See the sample ballots in this issue and learn how to vote.

THE death of Lord Tennyson has caused more feelings of regret and grief throughout the civilized world than the death of any man since the time of the old masters. His remains were laid to rest beside those of Poet Browning in Westminster abbey.

ALTHOUGH this has been a dry fall, there is more plowing done already than the average amount done during the entire fall, and there is no sign of the freeze-up yet. In Polk county there will be double the acreage ready for crop next spring that there was last spring.

"You are robbers," shouted Wolcott to the wheat ring which formerly hired him. "You're another," shouts back the ring. Thus the pot merrily calls the kettle black, and the kettle blithely reciprocates, while honest men for once believe them both.—The Globe.

Thus does the Globe admit that this man Wolcott—the originator of the Globe's great campaign document—is not an honest man. The Globe's frankness is certainly refreshing.

THE rank and file of the democrats throughout the state have protested at their caucuses, conventions and other gatherings against fusion with the people's party. It remains to be seen whether they will repudiate the action of Chairman Baker of the democratic state central committee, in withdrawing the democratic presidential electors and putting on people's party electors—or will they quietly submit to this disfranchisement, and walk up to the polls and vote for Weaver electors?

THE democratic and people's party papers reason thusly, If you see a paper change its politics and support the republican ticket, it has been bought up. How is it then about all the republican and democratic papers which the people's party claims to have changed to their way of thinking. The people's party must have had an unlimited amount of money at their command for this purpose.

THAT the democratic leaders have all along intended to make the farmers a tail to their kite the JOURNAL became fully convinced some time ago, and recent fusion proves the truth of our conclusion. How the honest voters in the people's party can reconcile this action with their professions of belonging to that party from principle we cannot tell, for the only object of the fusion is to win the offices.

WHILE Minnesota and the northwest is reveling in such delightfully pleasant weather—with the thermometer 60 degrees above zero every day—it is hard to realize that there has been snow storms in the east, and also out west in Colorado, where trains have been blockaded for two days at a time by snow drifts. But it is a fact just the same, and those who are kicking about their lot in the northwest, should think of these things.

IN all cities in this state containing 2,000 inhabitats and not more than 12,000, the judges of election shall meet at the various polling places at 9 a. m. on Tuesday, Oct. 25th, and shall continue in session until 9 p. m., for the purpose of making corrections in the poll list and registering names of new voters. On Tuesday, November 1st, they will meet again in the same places and for the same length of time, and this will be the last opportunity the voter will have of registering. If a voter fails to register on these two days, then he must produce evidence which satisfies a majority of the judges that he has the qualifications of an elector in said district, and is entitled to vote at such election, but that his name has been omitted from the register, then his name shall be added to the list and he shall be allowed to vote. Voters should remember the days of registration, October 25th and November 1st, and see that their names are on the list, and thereby save themselves much trouble and delay on election day.

WHEN the democratic state central committee of North Dakota sold out to the people's party, and endorsed the national and state ticket of the latter, they little dreamt what a disruption they would cause in the democratic party in that state. The old-time democrats—men who are democrats from principle—are up in arms against the disfranchisement and are vowing vengeance on their party leaders, and declaring they will vote the republican ticket this fall. They refuse to have their liberty and manhood traded off like a transfer of so many cattle, and will vote the republican ticket to rebuke their party leaders for depriving them of the privilege of voting for democratic candidates and democratic principles. The democratic committee of this state has perpetrated a similar outrage, on a smaller scale, upon their followers by withdrawing four democratic electors and substituting four people's party electors in their places. It remains to be seen whether the democrats of Minnesota who have any principles—there must surely be some—will vote for the people's party electors or not. Many of them have already declared that they will vote for five electors only and positively refuse to vote for Meighen, Stromberg, Dillon and Holloway, the people's party electors. A vote for either one of these candidates means a vote for Weaver and people's party principles. This is the dose the democratic leaders have put up for their faithful adherents to swallow. The question is, will they swallow it?

DAN LAWLER, who is working hard for the success of the democratic ticket—making one, two and even three speeches a day—is said to be very much disgusted by the action of the democratic committee in withdrawing the four democratic electors and endorsing four people's party electors. In his speeches Dan has been telling the people that there was just two parties in the field—republicans and democrats—and that the democrats were certain to carry the state, and he already calls himself "the governor of Minnesota;" and now comes this acknowledgement from democratic headquarters that they have given up every hope of carrying the state, and with this blow they effectually knock the wind out of all Mr. Lawler's bombastic speeches, for no one will now, believe that if the democrats had the slightest hope of success, they would withdraw any of their candidates and endorse the candidates of a party which Mr. Lawler claims not to recognize at all. Mr. Lawler is very hot in the collar because he wasn't consulted about the combine, and the democratic committee are in consternation lest he resign from the ticket.

FRANK IVES' RECORD

The JOURNAL had hoped that this campaign would be one of party issues, and not personalities, but the opposition have decided otherwise. Last week the Crookston Tribune, the organ of Frank Ives and the people's party, contained a scurrilous attack on Judge Mills, which embraced charges which the facts in the case do not warrant. The JOURNAL can therefore not be charged with commencing the attack when it republishes in another column a few communications—all matters of public record—which show the character of the people's party candidate for judge of this district. And what is the substance of them? Simply that on June 7th, 1881, Mr. Ives was disbarred from practicing before the United States land office, on account of making fraudulent land entries. In a letter to Secretary Windom, Mr. Ives acknowledges taking the false affidavit in question, but gives as an excuse for doing so, that there were other attorneys doing likewise, and says that the firm of Ives & McLean did much less of this fraudulent business than others "because we were here but a few months during the time it prevailed." If they didn't take as many fraudulent entries as others, it was only for lack of opportunity. Mr. Ives very magnanimously takes all the blame to himself and says that his partner had nothing whatever to do with taking the false affidavit. Another point that might also be noticed is that in his communication to Secretary Windom, Mr. Ives contradicts himself. He opens his letter by saying that his disbarment was caused by "political spite and jealousy," and in the last sentence of his letter he says that "when Bond (the man for whom he made the false affidavit) saw the land he had entered he did not like it and took this method of clearing himself of it so as to get a new entry." That doesn't look as though there was any "political spite and jealousy" connected with his disbarment. Three and a half years after his disbarment, Mr. Ives was reinstated, as it was thought he had been sufficiently punished. But it is needless to go into details. Every old settler is acquainted with the facts in this case.

The JOURNAL wants the voters to think this matter over, and ask themselves: "Is Frank Ives a safe man to elect to the judgeship of this district?" Can you trust this most important office to a man who stands convicted by his own testimony of committing fraud by taking false affidavits? Can you conscientiously vote for a man who while practicing as an attorney, sold his honor for the paltry sum of which his fees in each fradulent entry amounted to? Our courts are the safeguard of every citizen's life and property. Our judges should be men whose characters are stainless, men who are known to be honest and who cannot be swerved from the line of duty by bribe or threat. Does Frank Ives' record prove that he is such a man? Are you sure that he has got the necessary qualification to fill the judicial bench? In this connection it is significant to note that during the whole time Mr. Ives served as county attorney of Polk county, only ONE conviction was made. Is that a good record to stand on? The natural inference from it is that Mr. Ives was not qualified for the position, or else—there was something wrong somewhere.

Let the voters investigate these things before they vote to place their lives and liberty in the hands of a man whose character is not above reproach.

VOTE FOR A SAFE CURRENCY.

New York Press: Very few voters will go to the polls on election day without an intelligent grasp of the tariff question. The discussion that has raged during the last eight or ten years has left no one an excuse for ignorance on this subject. But there is another question to be passed upon in November which, though in prominence second only to the tariff in this campaign, and in its vital importance to all American interests second to none at all, is not so well understood. It is the currency question.

No legislation that can possibly be enacted comes so close to the private citizen or affects so positive and powerfully his most vital interests as do laws dealing with the country's monetary system. That this is so need no other proof than to consider thats on the volume and stability of our currency depend the price of every yard of cloth, every ounce of food, every foot of land, every day's labor in the country. This is not merely a partisan assertion, but an economic fact recognized by all parties and by all economists, not in this country alone, but the world over.

There are not merely the direct specific effects of the blight of a fluctuating medium of exchange to be considered. Only in a broader view do its worse consequences appear. Manufacturers, investors and bankers will be terrified by the ever-changing and uncertain markets. They will prefer hoarding their capital to investing it in productive enteprises. This means that the wheels of industry will be blocked, labor thrown out of employment, bankruptcies multiplied and a reign of industrial paralysis inaugurated. The rich can stand that sort of thing. They will save enough at the first alarm to live upon. But the poor, who depend for what they eat to-morrow upon what they earn to-day, they are the ones who will suffer.

The Republican party has always been the friend of sound and safe money. Never in the history of the country have we enjoyed so long a period of unbroken prosperity and commercial confidence as under our present currency system, devised, inaugurated and sustained against repeated Democratic assaults, by the Republican party. It is not perfect and no Republican statesman claims it is. Even now a commission exists, appointed by President Harrison, which goes to Europe soon to confer with the representatives of the other principal commercial countries, to try to devise some safe and effective method by which its defect can be remedied. But the one thing we can surely depend upon is that whateve remedy is tried it will be a safe one. There will be no commercial disturbances, no stagnation of industry, no loss to anyone growing out of it. Our monetary system and the great interests dependent upon it can be safely intrusted to the care of the Republican party.

Not so with the Democrats. They have consistently opposed every wise measure of monetary reform that has been enacted during the past thirty years. To-day they recommend in their platform the abolition of the tax on State bank issues, which is, in effect, to demand the return of the chaotic currency of the years before the war. They are not worthy of the great trust of regulating the currency. The American people ought not to take the tremendous risk involved in placing them in power. If no other issue were involved in the coming election, this question of sound, safe and staple money ought to be enough to continue President Harrison in the White House for four years more.

Frank Ives' Disbarment.

Department of the Interior}
June 7th, 1881.}

The Acting Commissioner of the General land office.

SIR: I acknowledge the receipt of the letter of the commissioner of the general land office dated 14th ult. in which he recommended that the firm of Ives & McLean of Crookston Minnesota, be disbarred from practice as attorneys before U. S. land offices upon evidence that they procured fraudulent entries of certain public lands at the land office at Detroit (now Crookston) Minn. in the name of one Charles Bond.

The recommendation is approved. You will please notify the officers of the land offices that Messrs Ives & McLean should not be recognized as attorneys after this date.

A copy of your letter and the papers referred to therein will be furnished to the Governor of Minnesota by letter of this date for his information concerning the notary and the clerk of court who appeared to be implicated in the perpetration of these frauds.

Very Respectfully,
A. BELL,
Acting Secretary.

CROOKSTON, June 14th, 1881.
HON. WM. WINDOM, Secretary of the Treasury, U. S. A.

I am sorry to have to ask you to intercede in my behalf to free me from an imputation that political spite and jealously have cast upon me, but so it is, and this is the history of the matter:

Some time ago, in the year 1878, when the land excitement in this valley was running, high an application for a homestead and timber culture entry was made by our firm for one Bond for lands in this county. I will say that I have no recollection of the fact but presume it was so. It was the common and well known fact at that time for land agents and attorneys to make applications for parties living abroad, it being done solely to save the expense of a long journey to this country coming, and the practice was not confined to a few men in the immediate vicinity of the land but was almost universal throughout the whole northwest, we doing much less of it than others because we were here but a few months during the time it prevailed, and when the land office was moved to Crookston, the practice was wholly discontinued. I know of more than thirty men in the circle of my acquaintance from St. Paul to the extreme northern boundary who were then and for a long time prior had been engaged in the business, but shall under no circumstances mention their names, because the technical infraction of a law involves no moral turpitude.

Now in the first place this is an injustice to my partner, Mr. McLean, who, as the papers show, had nothing to do with the case, Bond's affidavit showing that I took the false affidavit. It seems that when Bond saw his land he did not like it and took that method of clearing himself of it so as to get a new entry.

FRANK IVES.

General Land Office,}
January 14th, 1885.}

Hon. H. M. Teller Secretary of the Interior.

SIR: By your reference of the 12th inst. I am in receipt of an application by Frank Ives, Crookston, Minnesota, for restoration as attorney before the local offices and the department.

Said application is endorsed by Hon. Knute Nelson, M. C.

Mr. Ives was disbarred by order of Acting Secretary Bell, June 7th, 1881.

As applicant seems to be a citizen in good standing now, and as more than three and one half years have elapsed since date of the order of disbarment I am of the opinion that Mr. Ives has been sufficiently punished and that the relief asked for should be granted.

The papers accompanying your reference are herewith returned.

Very Respectfully,
N. C. MCFARLAND,
Commissioner.

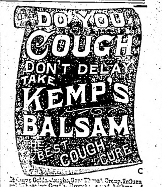
Department of Interior,}
January 16th, 1885.}

To the Commissioner of the General Land Office.

SIR: In compliance with the recommendation contained in your letter of the 14th inst. the order of the department dated June 7th, 1881 disbarring Frank Ives of Crookston Minn. from practice before your office and local land offices is hereby rescinded.

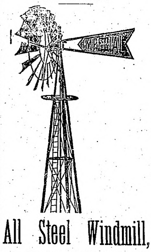
Very Respectfully,
M. L. JOSLYN,
Acting Secretary.

THE last hope of the democrats of electing any the candidates on their state ticket, was gone when they withdrew four of their presidential electors, and put in their stead four people's party electors.



[illegible] Colds, Coughs, Sore Throat, Croup, Influenza, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis and Asthma. A certain cure for Consumption in first stages, and a sure relief in advanced stages. Use at once. You will see the excellent effect after taking the first dose. Sold by dealers everywhere. Large bottles 50 cents and $1.00.

THE IMPERIAL



All Steel Windmill,

Can be set up on a Steel or Wood Tower.

We carry a
COMPLETE STOCK OF
WOOD AND IRON PUMPS,
including DOUBLE-ACTING,
ANTI-FREEZING
FORCE PUMPS.
IRON PIPE AND IRON PIPE FITTINGS.

Special attention given to the
2-in Plugged and Rimmed Well Casing.

PRICES AS LOW AS THE LOWEST.
Estimates given on all Plumbing Contracts in or out of the city.

CROOKSTON PLUMBING CO.,

Broadway, near Robert St., Crookston, Minn.

JUST RECEIVED

—AT THE—

New York Store

A LARGE ASSORTMENT OF

CLOAKS

—AND—

JACKETS.

LOOK AT THESE FIGURES!

36 inch English Cashmeres...	17½c
10-4 all wool Blankets...........	$2.50
2 cases of Prints..................	4¾
10-4 Blankets........................	75c
Velvet Brussels Carpet..........	$1.35
All wool Carpet.....................	65c
36 inch Dress Flannels...........	19c
Tricots..................................	19c
100 dozen all wool Hose.........	19c
8-4 Sheeting.........................	17c
Sanitary Flannels..................	15c
40 inch Plush Sacque.............	$7.95
Cotton Flannels.....................	5½c
2,000 yards crash..................	5c
Plush Jackets........................	$4.79

A. CHABOT, Prop.
Cor. Broadway and Robert Streets,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

I AM LOOKING FOR YOU!

Whether you want to buy much or little, I want to sell you. My stock of Ladies' and Gents' Fine Watches includes nearly every derisable style and variety, from the modest plain polished, to richly engraved.

Look at These!

A 3822

AG187

Hoping to hear from you soon, I am yours very truly,

C. H SAAKE, The Leading Jeweler.

THE CROW LANDS.

THEIR RESERVATION IN SOUTHERN MONTANA OPENED

To Immediate Settlement by a Proclamation of the President—Nearly Two Million Acres Given to Settlers Under the Agreement of Aug. 22.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17. — President Harrison has issued a proclamation opening to immediate settlement the surplus lands of the Crow Indian reservation in Southern Montana, aggregating about 1,800,000 acres, ceded to the government under the agreement of Dec. 28, 1890, as modified by the agreement of Aug. 27, 1892.

Under the terms of these agreements the ceded lands, except mineral lands, must be disposed of only to actual settlers under the provisions of the homestead laws, except section 2,301 of the revised statutes, which gives to ex-soldiers and sailors the benefit of the time they served in the army or navy of the United States. Provision is made that all white persons who located on the reservation by reason of an erroneous survey shall have three days in which to renew their filings.

ALL WERE KILLED.

Eight Idaho Horse Thieves Surprised by a Vigilance Committee Last August.

BOISE, Ida., Oct 17.—Wilson Marvin, just in from Deer Flat, in the Northern portion of Idaho, has given Deputy Sheriff Lorton, of Emmitt, details of a battle that resulted in the complete obliteration of a large gang of horse thieves who had long been a source of great loss to farmers and stockmen.

The battle occurred on Aug. 12 near Deer Flats. The thieves were eight in number, well mounted and heavily armed. When discovered the rustlers were cooking dinner and the posse came up and surprised them. They were surrounded, but that fact only made them fight more desperately. The shooting was all at long range, and after an hour's battle no fatalities, save to the horses, had resulted. The posse then drew off and held a consultation, after which a majority of the pursuers ranged themselves in a long line half a mile to the leeward of the thieves. Then the few men left on the windward side set the prairie grass afire. The hunted men started for a distant gulch in an attempt to escape the double danger that threatened them. Three of their number were wounded, and these the other rustlers left to perish. The rustlers dropped everything except their rifles, ran toward a ravine, firing as they went, but were shot down before they had gone a thousand yards. The prairie fire did not destroy the wounded rustlers left at the spring, though it singed off their hair, beards and eyebrows and burned their faces and hands very badly. They begged piteously to be allowed to die in peace, but they were, with their six companions, strung to the different limbs of a tree and allowed to remain there to become the prey of buzzards.

LONG AND SHORT HAUL.

Decision Handed Down by Justice Brewer of Far Reaching Effect.

ST. PAUL, Oct. 17.—A decision which will affect every railroad in the United States was filed in the United States circuit court of appeals. The decision was delivered by David J. Brewer, chief justice of the court of appeals for the Eighth district and associate justice of the United States supreme court. The case was the Chicago and Northwestern railway vs. John Osborne.

The far-reaching effects and the national importance of the decision consist in it being a reversal of the hitherto prevailing construction of the "long and short haul" clause of the "interstate commerce law." It thus upsets the basis on which rests the tariff charges of every railroad in the country, and in so doing necessitates a revision of the rates; it declares the foundation supporting the railroad legislation of the Western states to rest on an erroneous view of the meaning, intent and legal effect of the much discussed clause; and it wipes out of existence the vast code of rules and regulations that has been adopted for the regulation of railroad matters. The decision is final so far as the particular case is concerned, and the principle established will have a bearing upon all questions arising under the "long and short haul" clause.

The decision holds that no railroad is required to arrange its local rates on the basis of its through rates, and that through rates are entirely distinct from local rates whenever the through rate is established by a combination between two or more roads. In other words, that if a railroad has a through rate from a point west of Chicago to the seaboard, and the part of the through rate given the road from Chicago westward to the shipping point was less than the rate the same railroad charged for similar freight between the shipping point and Chicago, yet such a state of facts constituted no violation of the "long and short haul clause."

To Meet in San Francisco.

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 17.—The next meeting of the national Congregational council will be held in October, 1895, in San Francisco. The decision was reached during the afternoon by the committee in charge.

No Change Noted.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—No change is noted in Mrs. Harrisen's condition. She passed a comfortable day and is resting easily.

Sale of Thoroughbreds.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—At a sale of thoroughbred stock at Tattersall's, the chestnut mare All Hands Round was sold for $4,000 to J. S. McDonald; the bay mare Belle of Maywood for $5,500 to J. E. Green, and the mare Ella, dam of Tea Tray, for $7,000 to W. Lakeland.

PROHIBITIONISTS ARE OUT

Their Candidates in South Dakota Fail to Get a Place on the Ticket.

PIERRE, S. D., Oct. 15.—There is consternation among the Prohibition ranks in this state. In fact, they are not in it owing to their inability to get their ticket on the official ballots. According to the new ballot law passed two years ago certificates of nomination must be sent to the secretary of state thirty days before election. This time was up last Saturday, and at that time, when the certificates were presented to the secretary of state it was found that the Prohibition certificates failed to give the place of residence and the business address of the nominees according to law. The secretary refused the certificates, but agreed to refer the matter to the attorney general for his opinion. The attorney general now comes with his opinion, and says that the secretary has no choice in the matter; that the law is arbitrary, and provides that the certificates shall contain the residence and business address of the candidates, and as these certificates from the convention fail in this they cannot be accepted and the names of the candidates cannot be placed on the ticket. This is favorable to the Republicans, as there are 3,000 or 4,000 Prohibitionists who will have to vote the Republican ticket, and as the Republican majority would have been rather small these votes will be hailed with delight.

A STEAMER SUNK.

The Bokhara, of the Oriental Line, Founders in a Typhoon.

LONDON, Oct. 17.—The Peninsular and Oriental Steamship company's office here has received the following dispatch:

Hong Kong, Oct. 17.—The Peninsular and Oriental steamship Bokhara has been totally wrecked. The steamer struck on a sand island of the group known as the Pecadores, or Fisher's islands, called Peng Ho by the Chinese, in the channel of Fiken in the China sea. The weather was terrible and the raging waters quenched the fires on the steamer. She became unmanageable and sank and the commander and a majority of the officers and the crew were lost. Twenty-three persons only were saved. It is feared that those who were lost were mostly Europeans. The steamer Anchoria has proceeded to the scene of the wreck.

IT IS CONSTITUTIONAL.

The Federal Supreme Court So Decides the Michigan Electoral Law.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—Michigan will divide her electoral vote this year, between the candidates of the two great parties. By a unanimous decision the supreme court of the United States has decided that the Miner law passed by the last legislature dividing the state into districts for the election of electors of president and vice president was valid and constitutional, being inoperative only so far as it conflicted with the provisions of the action of congress fixing the time of the meeting of the electors. The views of the court will be written at length later. The opinion is by Justice Fuller.

GRESHAM DENIES.

He Says He Never Said He Would Vote for Cleveland.

PORT TOWSEND, Wash., Oct., 17.—Judge W. H. Calkins, formerly of Indiana, has received a letter from Judge Walter Q. Gresham saying that the statements that he would vote the Democratic ticket and take the stump against Harrison were made wholly without his authority. He says the statements are unauthorized and purely gratuitous.

Wisconsin Legislature Meets.

MADISON, Oct. 17.—The legislature met in special session during the evening in response to a call by the governor for the purpose of passing a law apportioning the state into legislative districts. Quorums were present in both houses. The assembly re-elected J. J. Hogan, of La Crosse, speaker; George W. Porth, of Milwaukee, chief clerk; Patrick Whalen, of Kaukauna, sergeant-at-arms. After the organization and usual formalities the assembly adjourned until morning. In the senate President Jonas was in the chair and called that body to order. An adjournment until morning was taken without delay.

No Trains Moving.

DENVER, Oct. 17.—The situation on the Rio Grande remains unchanged. The trainmen are still out and not a train has moved from Saliday to Grand Junction since 7 o'clock Saturday morning. A committee of strikers left Saliday at 7 p. m. for Denver to confer with President Jeffries and will reach here in the morning. It is hoped that some agreement can be reached. The yards at Grand Junction are filling up with freight and to make matters worse the switchmen have gone out in sympathy with the trainmen.

May Live Three Months.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—Mrs. Harrison's rally Saturday was of brief duration and was followed by weakness so prevalent in such diseases. The patient's condition, while slightly weaker, remains practically the same. Dr. Gardner, in answer to questions, said that while Mrs. Harrison's condition may fluctuate from day to day, that unless some unforsen complication arises she might live three months.

Will Stand by Briggs.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—A statement by E. M. Kinsley, secretary of the board of directors of the Union Theological Seminary is to the effect that the institution's charter does not allow the directors to delegate their powers to another body and that the seminary will stand by Dr. Briggs and support him, regardless of this trial, as long as he retains his present position on the theological points.

BRIEF NEWS ITEMS.

FOREIGN.

Herr Miquel, Prussian minister of finance, is very ill. He has not left his bed since Friday noon.

The Aaron Meyer bank at Buckebourg, Lippe, founded 107 years ago, has failed, with liabilities of 1,500,000 marks.

D.L. Ruiz, consul general of Ecuador, has been arrested in New York for forgery, committed to raise money for his extravagant mistress.

France and Germany are likely to engage in a serious diplomatic dispute over German interference on behalf of the Dahomeyans in their war with the French.

The German emperor has signed Von Caprivi's military bill and has empowered the chancellor to dissolve the reichstag in case it refuses to approve the measure.

There were nineteen fresh cases of cholera and five deaths in Hamburg Sunday. In the hospitals 588 patients are under treatment. The city probably will be declared free at the end of the month.

The crews of ten British sealing vessels which had been seized by Russian cruisers and brought to Vladivostock complain bitterly of the barbarous treatment which they were subjected to by their captors.

POLITICAL NOTATIONS.

Hon. Benjamin Butterworth is to deliver Republican speeches throughout Ohio, Illinois and Iowa.

Charles F. Joy has been nominated for congress by the Republicans of the Eleventh Missouri district.

The Cotton Plant, organ of the Alliance in South Carolina, has fallen under the control of the Democrats.

Mrs. Victoria Woodhull Martin has given out her letter of acceptance as the presidential candidate of the woman suffragists.

The New York Democratic state committee has endorsed the Republican nomination of Judge Charles F. Andrews for the court of appeals.

Postmaster General Wanamaker has issued an order prohibiting postmasters or other postal officials from furnishing to inquirers the names and addresses of persons who receive mail through their respective offices.

CRIMES AND CRIMINALS.

In Louisville, Conrad Bender, a German tinner, shot his wife through the lungs and then cut his own throat with a razor. Both are expected to die.

City Collector L. B. Sides, of Little Rock, Ark., is $20,000 short in his accounts. An investigation of his books is going on, and it is feared further shortage will be developed. Sides bet on the races. He shows signs of insanity now.

The Italian-Hungarian race war, which has been going on between these elements, culminated at Meadsville, Pa., in a pitched battle Sunday. All kinds of weapons were used, and the result is one man dead, three mortally wounded and some seriously hurt.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A state good roads convention will be held at St. Paul some time during December.

A waterspout in Texas flooded 400,000 acres to the depth of two feet, and destroyed much live stock.

The Boston granite manufacturers and the Boston branch of the granite cutters' union have settled their differences.

The United States Express company has declared a dividend of 2 per cent., payable Nov. 15. The last dividend paid was in May, 1891.

In Kansas City a Santa Fe engine crashed into a cable car, killing William Barber, gripman; Cynthia Bevis, Ed McKinney and Jefferson Secrist.

The justices of the United States supreme court, with the exception of Justices Field and Lamar, have decided to attend the Columbian celebration in Chicago.

The tenth annual convention of the Roadmaster's Association of America, which was to have been held at Chattanooga, Tenn., Oct. 18 to 20, has been postponed for four weeks.

At Lockport, N. Y., fire broke out in George Chester's flouring mill and spread to John Little's flour and feed mill adjoining, and totally destroyed both. Loss estimated at $150,000.

Charles H. White, representative of the London Illustrated News, was arrested in New York Saturday, charged with the embezzlement of $50,000. The charge is preferred by his wife, formerly Mrs. Magle, who resides in Cheyenne, Wy.

A bulletin giving a summary of the manufacturing census of Philadelphia for the year 1890 will be issued by the census bureau. It shows an increase in the average annual wages in the decade 1880-1890, from $346 lo $529, or 52.89 per cent., the greatest so far shown in any city.

The postmaster general has executed contracts for ocean mail service with the New York and Brazilian Steamship company. The service will begin December, 1893, and three steamers will leave the port of New York on that day and twice each month thereafter.

The board of education of Detroit, Mich., has adopted a resolution declaring that hereafter the teachers in the public schools of that city must be persons who have received their entire education within the public schools and the high school of Detroit. No others are to be eligible.

John Dougherty, a young man living near Leavenworth, Kan., boasted that he could drink all the whisky anybody would pay for. Somebody offered to settle for the drinks, whereupon Dougherty drank twenty-one glasses and died in fifteen minutes. A post mortem examination revealed a cooked brain.

THE GREAT DAY.

New York's Biggest Parade in Honor of Columbus Takes Place.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—The military parade capped the climax of the most successful series of consecutive public demonstrations in the nation's history. Everything in this wonderful week of Columbian celebration has progressed in a sliding scale of increasing merit. The governors of five great states—New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Connecticut and Massachusetts—two ex-presidents—Cleveland and Hayes—the entire state national guard of New York, and powerful provisional brigades from Pennsylvania, Connecticut and New Jersey, strong forces of United States troops and blue jackets, reinforced by such a majestic civic parade as only the great cosmopolitan city of New York can produce, all combined to do honor to the occasion.

Two thousand troops of the United States army, composed the first division, while the naval brigade followed them. After these came the New York militia, 5,000 strong; the Pennsylvania militia, 8,000 strong; the Connecticut national guard, 2,000 strong; troops from New Jersey to the number of 2,500, Grand Army posts 1,750 strong, fire departments, Italian, German and French uniformed societies, and other independent military organizations.

The parade was reviewed by vice president and the notables mentioned above.

TEXTILE INDUSTRIES.

Census Bulletin Showing the Increase in Products Since 1880.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—The census bureau has issued a bulletin on the condition of the textile industries of the United States for the census year 1890 which will attract general attention. The increase of silk manufacture since 1880 was most striking, being 112.75 per cent. in the value of products. The increase in cotton manufacture ranked second, being 39.51 per cent., and the wool manufacture third, being 26.39 per cent. The increase in the entire textile industry was 38.51 per cent. The relative rank in importance of these industries has been changed. The wool manufacture in all its branches, including all descriptions of hosiery and knit goods, now stands first on the list, with products valued at $337,768,524. Cotton is second with products valued at $267,931,724 and silk manufacture third with products valued at $87,298,454. The actual increase in the value of products was $70,515,611 in wool, $75,891,614 in cotton and $46,265,409 in silk, the total increase being without parallel in any country.

RETURNED TRUE BILLS.

The Pittsburg Grand Jury Indicts Strikers and Carnegie Officials.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 11.—The grand jury has returned indictments against the Homestead rioters, charging them with treason. The grand jury also handed down true bills against the Carnegie company officials charging them with aggravated riot, murder, etc. The finding of the grand jury against the Carnegie firm includes the Pinkerton brothers, of the Pinkerton agency, as well as a number of other Pinkerton men.

USED A REVOLVER.

Tommy Warren, the Pugilist, Commits a Murder in Texas.

WACO, Oct. 17.—Tommy Warren, ex-welterweight champion, entered the St. Charles saloon where Skeeter Root, a young gambler, and two women were drinking and opened fire with a revolver, apparently trying to hit Root. This he did not succeed in doing, but one of his bullets passed through the body of Clement Stoway, an attache of the saloon, causing death. Warren disappeared after the shooting and has not been captured.

Tom Reed Will Speak.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—It is announced at Republican headquarters that ex-Speaker Reed had telegraphed his willingness to speak on Oct. 22 and 24 in New York. Chairman of Speakers Hahn has assigned him to Albany on Oct. 22 and Syracuse on Oct. 24.

LATEST MARKET REPORT.

St. Paul Union Stock Yards.

SOUTH ST. PAUL, Oct. 12, 1892.

HOGS—10c higher. Range of prices, $5.10@5.15.

CATTLE—Slow. Prime steers, $3.00@3.40; good steers, $2.50@3.00; prime cows, $2.00@2.25; good cows, $1.50@2.00; common to fair cows, 75c@1.50; light veal calves, $3.50@4.25; heavy calves $2.00@3.25; stockers, $1.35@2.20; feeders, $1.80@2.50; bulls, $1.00@1.75.

SHEEP—Market steady. Muttons, $3.00@4.10; lambs, $3.00@4.10; stockers and feeders, $2.00@3.50.

Receipts: Hogs, 500; cattle, 500; sheap, 258.

Minneapolis Grain.

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 17, 1892.

WHEAT—May opening, 76⅝c; highest, 77c; lowest, 76¼c; close, 77c; December opening, 70¾c; highest, 71c; lowest, 70½c; close, 71c. On track—No. 1 hard, 72c; No. 1 northern, 70½c; No. 2 northern, 65@67c.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO UNION STOCK YARDS, Oct. 17, 1892.

CATTLE—Weak.

HOGS—Strong 10c higher. Heavy, $5.15@5.75; mixed and medium, $5.25@5.72½; light, $5.00@5.55.

SHEEP—Market strong.

Receipts: Cattle, 23,000; hogs, 22,000; sheep, 9,000.

Chicago Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, Oct. 17, 1892.

OPENING PRICES.

WHEAT—November, 75⅛c; May, 80⅛c.

CORN—October, 42c; November, 42⅛c; December, 42⅛c; May, 45⅛@45⅝c.

OATS—November, 29⅝c; December, 30c; May, 33⅞c.

PORK—November, $11.65; January, $12.91.

LARD—Oct. $9.37½; Novembe, $7.70; January, $7.27½.

SHORT RIBS—October, $9.00; January, $6.70.

CLOSING PRICES.

WHEAT—October, 73¾c; December, 75⅝@75¾c; May, 80¾c.

CORN—October, 43c; November, 43¼c; December, 43¼c; May, 45½@45⅝c.

OATS—October, 29½c; November, 30c; December, 31c; May, 33¾c.

PORK—October, $11.87½; November, $11.90; January, $12.95.

LARD—October, $9.55; November, $8.05; January, $7.45.

SHORT RIBS—October, $10.47½; November, $7.02½; January, $6.65.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Minnesota Baptists met in St. Paul last week.

August Brecker, a well borer, was asphyxiated in an old well at Montgomery Saturday.

At a meeting of the Duluth presbytery Mr. Wheeler deeded twenty acres, worth $50,000, in Duluth, to start a Presbyterian academy.

Charles Konda, a prominent farmer living near Montrose, was thrown from his wagon by a runaway team, breaking his collar bone and seriously injuring him.

Mrs. Urich Ladd, of Cottage Grove, Washington county, was fatally burned by the explosion of a lamp which she had in her hands. She lived but a few hours.

The drawing for positions on the state ticket took place last week. The People's party secured first place, Democrats second, Prohibitionists third, and Republicans last.

Mrs. Christopher Hyton, a bride of two weeks, suicided at Minneapolis Friday. A belief that her husband did not love her with his old time fervor is given as the cause.

Lewis Nelson, while unloading potatoes in the Union railway yards at Albert Lea, had one horse killed by the switching of cars. He and the other horse narrowly escaped destruction.

James Carey, who was recently removed from the Stillwater penitentiary to the St. Peter insane asylum and escaped from that institution, has been captured at Chicago and returned to Stillwater.

Windom institute, the Congregational seminary, was dedicated at Montevideo last week, with appropriate ceremonies. Governor McGill delivered an oration on William Windom, after whom the institute is named.

Malcolm McLean, a wheat buyer at Delhi for the Interstate Grain company, of Minneapolis, has departed with $1,000 of the company's funds, leaving besides many creditors behind. His bondsmen are well off and will pay the full amount to the company. McLean was a fireman at one time in St. Paul.

"WORTH A GUINEA A BOX."

STOP THIEF.

Dyspepsia is stealing the roses from many ladies' cheeks, and making many men's faces blanch.

BEECHAM'S PILLS will arrest the rascal, and restore health, vigor and color; they will cure Sick-Headache, acting like a charm on the Stomach, Liver and Kidneys.

Covered with a Tasteless and Soluble Coating.

New York Depot, 365 Canal St.

AT BEDTIME
I TAKE A PLEASANT
HERB
DRINK

THE NEXT MORNING I FEEL BRIGHT AND NEW AND MY COMPLEXION IS BETTER.

My doctor says it acts gently on the stomach, liver and kidneys, and is a pleasant laxative. This drink is made from herbs, and is prepared for use as easily as tea. It is called

LANE'S MEDICINE

All druggists sell it at 50c. and $1.00 a package. If you cannot get it, send your address for free sample. Lane's Family Medicine moves the bowels each day. In order to be healthy this is necessary. Address, ORATOR F. WOODWARD, LeROY, N. Y.

THE PIONEER HARNESS SHOP,

M. RAUENBUEHLR, Proprietor.

A full supply of everything kept by the trade.

Cor of Broadway and Third Sts,

CROOKSTON, MINN

We Have too many SHOES

WE MUST SELL A GOOD MANY

SHOES

This fall as we cannot afford to keep them over the next season. We have therefore decided for the next

Three Weeks

TO SLAUGHTER OUR SHOE STOCKS

At both our Robert street and Main street stores. All are urged to and supply themselves with SHOES At a saving of 25 per cent.

TAKE ADVANTAGE

Yours Respectfully,

LOCKEN & HOLMBOE,

NORTHWESTERN College of Commerce

GRAND FORKS, NORTH DAKOTA.

THE GREAT CHAIN OF BUSINESS COLLEGES under the above name offers facilities superior to any school in the Northwest for obtaining a Practical Education. Four Courses, Commercial, Shorthand and Typewriting, Ornamental Penmanship and English. Students receive personal instruction and can enter at any time and take just such studies as they desire. Evening School now in session. Good board $2.00 per week. TUITION REASONABLE.

Three thousand Handsome Catalogues for Free Distribution. Send for one. Write for particulars.

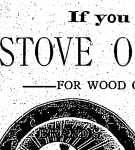
J. J. SWENGEL, Principal.

H. L. RUCKER, President.

If you want a

STOVE OR RANGE

—FOR WOOD OR Coal, see the—



FAMOUS

BRAND

STOVE

AT ALDERMAN & SYLVESTER'S.

They are the finest line of stoves ever brought to Crookston, and are sold at

REASONABLE PRICES.

A Sample of One of the Ballots to be Used at the Coming Election.

Congressional, Legislative, Judicial and County Ticket.

(To be printed on BLUE paper)

Put an X mark in the space indicated by the index ☞

Congressman Seventh District—HENRY FEIG—Republican.	X	Vote for 1 only
Congressman Seventh District—W. F. KELSO—Democrat.
Congressman Seventh District—H. E. BOEN—People's Party.
Congressman Seventh District—
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—HALVOR STEENERSON—Republican.	X	Vote for three only
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—LARS E. NORDBY—Republican.	X
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—PETER RAMSTAD—Republican.	X
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—JOHN R. McKINNON—Democrat.
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—OLE NYGAARD—Democrat.
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—JACOB H. NESS—Democrat.
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—J. D. KNUTSON—People's Party.
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—B. M. CHESLEY—People's Party.
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—O. E. OLSON—People's Party.
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—
Judge 14th Judicial District—IRA B. MILLS—Independent.	X	Vote for one only
Judge 14th Judicial District—FRANK IVES—People's Party.
Judge 14th Judicial District—
County Auditor—W. A. LANCTOT—Republican.	X	Vote for one only
County Auditor—J. M. HANSON—Democrat.
County Auditor—C. U WEBSTER—People's Party.
County Auditor—
County Treasurer—LEWIS LOHN—Republican.	X	Vote for one only
County Treasurer—L. C. COUVRETTE—Democrat.
County Treasurer—J. T. BEAUDRY—People's Party.
County Treasurer—
Register of Deeds—NIC NELSON—Repuplican,	X	Vote for one only
Register of Deeds—ADAM ZEH—Democrat.
Register of Deeds—J. AMUNDSON—People's Party.
Register of Deeds—
County Attorney—IRA C. RICHARDSON—Republican.	X	Vote for one only
County Attorney—P. G. FALARDEAU—Democrat.
County Attorney—A. R. HOLSTON—People's Party,
County Attorney—
Sheriff—JAS. M. BAIN—Republican.	X	Vote for one only
Sheriff—A. C. SCHMIDT—Democrat.
Sheriff—ARNE GRUNDYSEN—People's Party.
Sheriff—
Judge of Probate—R. J. MONTAGUE—Republican.	X	Vote for one only
Judge of Probate—P. J. RUSSELL—Democrat.
Judge of Probate—C. M. BENSON—People's Party.
Judge of Probate—
Superintendent of Schools—V. D. CARRUTH—Republican.	X	Vote for one only
Superintendent of Schools—A. A. LOMMEN—People's Party.
Superintendent of Schools—
Surveyor—GEO. RALPH—Republican.	X	Vote for one only
Surveyor—P. EMARD—Democrat,
Surveyor—
Surveyor—
Court Commissioner—G. H. PALMER—Republican.	X	Vote for one only
Court Commissioner—W. H. AVERILL—Democrat.
Court Commissioner—
Coroner—GEO. HOLT—Republican.	X	Vote for one only
Coroner—HENRY SHEPARD—Democrat.
Coroner—HENRY SHEPARD—People's Party.
Coroner—
County Commissioner, 1st District—E. D. BARNESS—Republican.	X	Vote for one only
County Commissioner, 1st District—EPHRIAM KING—Democrat.
County Commissioner, 1st District—JOHN E. OPPEGAARD—People.
County Commissioner, 1st District—
County Commissioner, 2d District—T. ERWIN—Republican.	X	Vote for one only
County Commissioner, 2d District—ANTON LINDEM—People's Party.
County Commissioner, 2d District—
County Commissioner, 3d District—E. D. CHILDS—Republican.	X	Vote for one only
County Commissioner, 3d District—M. E. KIRSCH—Democrat.
County Commissioner, 3d District—CHRIS. HANSON—People's Party.
County Commissioner, 3d District—
County Commissioner, 5th District ROBT. NESBIT—Republican.	X	Vote for one only
County Commissioner, 5th District—A. C. RHINEHART—Democrat.
County Commissioner, 5th District—ROBT. ANDERSON—People's Party
County Commissioner, 5th District—

KNUTE NELSON'S CAMPAIGN.

Minneapolis Tribune: It is just one month ago today that Knute Nelson commenced his campaign tour of this state. During that time he has met the people of some thirty counties, shaken hands with thousands of fellow soldiers, farmers and old settlers, and addressed the voters of Minnesota at some forty meetings. His campaign tour has been a continuous ovation. Political meetings were never more crowded or enthusiastic. At almost no meeting has the hall been large enough to accommodate the throng. Overflow meetings have not been infrequent. It has been a common occurrence for farmers in attending the meetings to drive fifteen to twenty-five miles and back, in order to hear and shake hands with the famed "Little Norwegian"—the sturdy, plain and plucky man of the masses, who for three successive terms in congress so ably and faithfully represented the people of the "Old Fifth," and for so many years in the state legislature and on the state university board of regents, has been identified with Minnesota's public interests.

On the stump Mr. Nelson employs no flowers of rhetoric, and burdens his plea with no second-hand stories to tickle the crowd; but makes a clean and strong, unpainted and unvarnished argument worthy of the earnest and clear-headed statesman that he is. He leaves the clouds of imaginative oratory and the mud of cheap stories to his competitors, and proceeds by direct lines to win the confidence of his hearers by plain, frank and clean-cut logic. In so doing he may be heaping up laurels for cheap eloquence, but he is winning the respect of the people and making votes; and the respect, support and votes of the people are the things that count.

Against the implicit faith and confidence which Nelson's presence and sturdy earnestness inspire the attacks of the opposition have fallen vain and flat. Farmers, soldiers, workingmen see in him an unpretentions, plain-spoken and hard-working commoner, like themselves—one from the ranks, in boyhood a farm hand, in the war a private and a corporal, and in public and private life a humble and faithful worker, and a true and cordial neighbor. Against such a man the sickly campaign balderdash about his being a "monopolist," a companion of "railroad kings," "robber barons" and "plutocrats," simply reflects on those who lend themselves to such idle and puerile malice.

The "race issue" which certain fool partisans were good enough to raise against Mr. Nelson because of his Norwegian birth, has long since been dropped like a hot potato, and those who were most active in the attempt to create race prejudice on that score are now the loudest in their protests that they never thought of making a political capital of that issue. When the democratic machine discovered that Knute Nelson was on American soil seven years before young Mr. Lawler was born, and was fighting under the American flag for his adopted country while the infant Dannie was learning his A, B, C's, the attempt to besmirch Knute Nelson's Americanism suddenly ceased.

Sixty per cent. of the voters of Minnesota are citizens by adoption rather than birth. Minnesota is pre-eminently an agricultural state. Northern Minnesota and the foreign born citizens have never yet seated a representative in the gubernatorial chair. The voters of Minnesota therefore recognize the pre-eminent justice and courtesy of the republican party in placing at the head of the state ticket, for the campaign of 1892, Knute Nelson, of the state's great north central wheat belt; and not only the agricultural yeomanry, but townsmen and the "dinner pail brigade," are marshaling to swell the majority of the little giant of Alexandria.

The Real Issue at the Front.

Speaking of the desperate efforts being made by democrats to hide the real issues the New York Press tersely says:

The stupid and dishonest "Force bill" shriek is growing fainter. It has been so universally discredited by the intelligence of the American people, and its utterance has brought down such public contempt on the unprincipled organs that tried to force it into prominence in the campaign; that there is manifest a disposition in many democratic quarters to drop the sham altogether. Of all the attempts which the impudent tricksters of the democratic party have made to cheat the people, this was perhaps the most brazen. Utterly without justification it was put forward in the desperate hope of distracting popular attention from protection, honest money and reciprocity, the real issues of the campaign.

The voters have refused to allow the democracy to retreat from its confederate free trade plank and its declaration for wildcat currency under cover of this absurd scarecrow. As the campaign progressess these questions, with the great dominating issue of republican protection against democratic destruction of American industries, always at the front, have taken practical possession of the political arena. The main question to be decided is whether American or European wages shall be paid to American workingmen. The present attitude of the American people shows what their answer at the polls will be. We want neither the wages nor workhouses of Europe in the United States. No Free Trade! No Paper Labor!

McIntosh Items.

McIntosh, Oct. 10th.—In another week, if the weather continues favorable, most of the threshing in this section will be finished.

Some of our farmers whose crops were destroyed by hail are a little discouraged and are talking about leaving the country. Everyone who sells his farm now will always regret it.

The farmers elevator, seems to meet with many hindrances in nearing completion. It is over a month ago since the machinery was ordered, and part of it arrived as per order, but the balance they are unable to procure. And although numerous telegrams have been sent to the company to forward at once, they have not even received an answer, and Mr. Helgeson, their buyer, has gone below to find out if possible the reason for the delay.

Very little wheat is coming in because they are waiting for the farmers elevator to open up, and if the machinery had come as ordered, the house would have commenced buying two weeks ago. This keeps business back and it will come with a rush when it does come, but then the merchants are expecting it and are ready for it.

Jim Scott, J. A. Drew and P. O. Maud took last Thursday's train for an extended trip to Galgary and Edmonton, Canada, where they have gone to look the country over, and hunt up new locations. We understand that if they find the country according to expectations they will remove thither with their families next spring.

Rev. Ryding has bought J. Bridstone's house and property. Mr. Bridstone leaves for Grand Forks in a short time where he intends making his future home. Mr. Bridstone and family have made numerous friends during their stay in McIntosh who will very much regret their departure, and unite in wishing them prosperity wherever they go.

Quite a number of buildings have been completed during the past two weeks, many are well under way, and several will be commenced in the near future. If McIntosh continues growing like it has this summer, in five years Crookston will not be in it. The town is only about three years old, and contains a population of about 700. In another year we will reach a thousand, and when we get the county seat we will double that amount in one year.

John Boen is erecting a neat little cottage in Johnson and Stovern's addition.

Ole Espeland will commence the building of a spacious residence in Johnson and Stovern's addition soon.

Christ Moen has also decided to erect a dwelling this fall, having bought the corner lot on Broadway and Sherman streets. He is not going to batch it but will have a housekeeper as a better half.

I. K. Messelt, of Winger, has been employed as clerk in J. P. Johnson's big store.

The excavation for the basement of the new school house has already commenced and as soon as the lumber arrives work on the building will be started. The school house when fully completed will cost five thousand dollars.

Refreshments were served at Bjorgo's hall last Monday evening. This time it was on Ole Storvens bouncing boy who arrived a few days since.

JACK.

WE ARE NOW STOCKING UP.

In Better shape than ever before with a

Handsomer and

Better Selected Line

Than ever before, and

As to Prices, we Shall Certainly Please You.

If you wish to save money. One of the many

RARE BARGAINS

—ARE THE—

Children's Suits

From ages 8 to 11. Don't fail to see them.

Men's, Boys' and Dhildren's OVERCOATS, Very Nobby and Very Cheap.
Fur Coats open for inspection.

BOSTON ONE PRICE CLOTHING HOUSE,

MOSSEFIN & LINDELL, Props.

IT'S A FACT

—THAT THE—

Journal Job Department

Is Equal to any in Northern Minnesota.

IT IS EQUIPPED WITH

New Material,

Quick Presses,

Cheap Power

—AND—

First-Class Workmen.

IF YOU have anything to sell, which some other person wants, advertise in the JOURNAL, and you will find a purchaser.

Judicious Advertising Pays,

Therefore place your advertisement in a paper which goes into the homes of the people and is carefully read.

SUCH A PAPER IS

—THE—

Polk County Journal.

HONOR COLUMBUS.

NEW YORK GIVEN OVER TO GAY FESTIVITIES.

Public School Day, Second in the Order of Festivities, enthusiastically Celebrated. Many Thousand Children March in the Parade.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—Every nationality under the sun, excepting possibly the Hottentots and Chinese, will take part in the celebration commemorative of the discovery of America by Columbus, to be held in this city during the next six days.

And, to judge by the programme prepared, it will surpass in grandeur and size anything any of the numerous nationalities taking part ever before beheld.

The programme has been completed. The order of each day's exercises has been arranged, each official has been assigned his duty, the last ticket to the grand banquet has been sold and the great machinery set in motion, and it will continue to grind out wonders until Thursday night. It will be a celebration

Long to Be Remembered.

Nothing like it has ever before been seen, and this generation will not see it again. It will be an epoch in history, and if the children of today become gray grandfathers they will tell the children of the generation to come of the grand celebration in New York on the 400th anniversary of the discovery of America by Christopher Columbus.

PUBLIC SCHOOL DAY.

Thousands of School Children in the Parade at New York.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Public School day, in the order of festivities of New York's Columbian celebration, was the second movement in the grand symphony arranged for the occasion.

The prayers and religious exercises on Saturday and Sunday—participated in by all creeds and denominations—were fitly followed by an equally cosmopolitan demonstration of the educational forces which have given the new world its strongest upward impetus.

Results of more than 250 years of educational work were represented in the parade, for the first school founded by the old Dutch settlers in 1633, in that part of "New Amsterdam," now known as West Seventy-seventh street, is still in existence, and is called the school of the Reformed church. Today New York owns 100 school houses, representing an estimated value in sites and buildings of over $15,000,000, and provides education in its grammar schools for more than 260,000 pupils, boys and girls.

How They Marched.

Twenty regiments of grammar school boys, of New York and Brooklyn and Long Island Jersey City, each regiment at least 500 strong, marched with swinging step and perfect alignment in the parade, every boy proudly carrying the flag of his country, prepared to honor and defend it. And this was only one division of the parade. They had been preparing for weeks past, drilling in the armories of the Sixty-fifth and Twelfth regiments and in other buildings placed at their disposal and in the open squares so that their discipline should be complete and their marching faultless. Every boy entered into the patriotic spirit of the occasion. There were three other divisions of equal patriotic purpose.

The Second Division.

In the second division came the pupils of the parochial schools, academies and colleges of the Catholic church in New York and adjacent cities, over 5,000 strong, each pupil also carrying the national flag in connection with the emblems and banners of the churches and academies to which they belong. After them followed the uniformed schools, and last the students of maturer years from the different colleges of law and medicine, engineering and the arts, about 4,500 strong—1,000 from Columbia college; 1,200 from the University of New York; 1,200 from the undergraduates college; 250 from the college of dentists, etc.

Third Division.

In the third division of the procession was a medley composed of numerous "institutes." It comprised Hebrew orphan asylums, German, Italian and French institutions of various characters, intermixed with trades schools, business colleges, military institutions and mechanics' societies, with 1,000 "young Dalton volunteers," whatever they may be, and sixty "glittering spears."

Altogether it is probable there were fully twenty-five thousand scholars and students in the procession. The din of the different bands was at times confusing and discordant in the extreme—unavoidably so from the large number of bands and the small intervals of separation. Cappa's fine Seventh regiment band led with fifty pieces, but there were also military bands of the Eighth, Ninth, Twelfth, Fourteenth, Twenty-second, Thirty-second and Seventy-first New York regiments, all ranging from thirty-five to fifty pieces; the band of the First New Jersey regiment, the navy yard band, numerous private bands and innumerable drum corps.

At the Reviewing Stands.

The presidential reviewing stand in Madison square, opposite the Worth statue, was pleasantly shaded by pink striped awnings, supplementing the fall foliage of the trees in the square. The stands, stretching to right and left of the presidential dais, and the opposite side of the avenue the [illegible] of the square was thronged w[illegible] [illegible] who were admitted by [illegible] and who gathered early and waited patiently for the passing show. Brilliant gonfalons and bannerets were hung across the streets from Twenty-third to Twenty-sixth street, the Hoffman House, the Madison Square bank building and other imposing edifices facing the reviewing party were fairly covered with artistic decorations, making the scene a very brilliant one. At 10:25 the first division came to the waiting crowd. The carriage of Governor Roswell P. Flower, New York's chief executive, drawn by a pair of spanking bays, drove up rapidly to the reviewing stand and the governor alighted accompanied by Adjutant General Porter in full dress uniform and followed by Generals Earle, Barnum, Jenks, Halsy and other members of the governor's staff. The spectators cheered the governor, and renewed the cheering when immediately afterwards the guest of the day, Vice President Morton, representing President Harrison, drove up in an open barouche and was received at the entrance to the stand by Governor Flower, who conducted him to the seat set apart for the president. Mr. Morton was accompanied by Mr. Hugh R. Garden, president of the Southern society, and Mr. Howard Carroll. He entered into a pleasant chat with Governor Flower and those around him and with a number of prominent politicians who came up and shook hands with the governor and the vice president.

Each company carried its company flag to the right and every boy had pinned on his left breast a tiny United States flag. The captains carried canes and gave their orders in a shrill, boyish treble pleasant to hear.

Heads up, eyes front, looking neither to the right nor left, not even when they passed the vice president, the soldier ing to the Children's Aid society waved their miniature American flags as the procession passed on.

The last organized body passed the grand stand at 1:30 o'clock. A little over two hours in passing. Gov. Flower held an impromptu levee and introduced many friends to a mysterous stranger in a slouch hat who had stood by his side until recognized and who turned out to be Gov. Tillman of South Carolina.

Wonderful Illuminations.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—The illuminations and fireworks on the Brooklyn bridge during the evening were grand and realistic and almost beggars description. The crowds that witnessed the spectacle were beyond precedent.

FUSION IN MINNESOTA.

The Democratic State Committee Endorses People's Party Electors.

ST. PAUL, Oct. 11.—The Democrats and People's party have fused on their electoral tickets. Each party will have an electoral ticket in the field, but the Democratic ticket will include the names of five Democrats and four Populists. The People's party ticket will remain as at present, that is bearing the names or nine Populists upon it. It is stated that the Populists are not parties to this deal, and that it is a move on the part of the Democratic state central committee to carry out the so-called Gorman policy, that is, in states where a majority of the voters are Republican or where there is certain to be a Republican plurality, the Democrats shall endorse a certain number of the People's party electors, where fusion is not practicable. The object of this is to secure at all hazards a sufficient number of anti-Harrison votes in the electoral college to throw the election of president into the house of representatives where there is a Democratic majority. This is presuming that the People's party electors so elected will not vote for Harrison.

WILL GO IT ALONE.

The South Dakota Democratic Committee Fails to Sanction Fusion.

HURON, S. D., Oct. 10.—No fusion will be had by South Dakota Democrats with the Independents by sanction of the Democratic state executive committee. The committee left the question with individual candidates to fuse or not as they deemed advisable. An effort will be made to induce M. M. Price, the Independent candidate for lieutenant governor, to withdraw in favor of S. A. Ramsey, and Mrs. Hassell, nominated for superintendent of public instruction and endorsed by the Prohibitionists, to withdraw in favor of Dr. Styles, the Democratic nominee. It is not likely the request will be complied with, as the lady has already made a partial canvass of the state, and her backers will not allow her to withdraw. The electoral position of neither ticket will be disturbed.

PECK'S REPORT.

It Is Confirmed by the United States Census Bureau.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—The official bulletin of the census office on New York manufacturers demonstrates that Labor Commissioner Peck gave statistics wholly reliable in his report of the increase of manufacturing interests in the Empire state since the passage of the McKinley bill. This bulletin is prepared from statistics collected before the celebrated report of Commissioner Peck was published. It is thus officially established that the growth of manufacturers was not over estimated by the labor commissioner.

COLLISION AT SEA.

Five Men Killed and Seventeen Others Badly Injured.

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 10.—The tug Goliah, which arrived here at an early hour, brings news of a terrible collision between the steam collier Willamette and the Canadian Pacific Navigation company's steamer Premier. Five persons are dead as a result of the accident, and almost a score of others are badly hurt.

A War Ended.

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—J. T. Barry, commission merchant, of 85 Broadway, received the following cable from his Curacoa agent, M. Zerpa: "Crespo entered Caracas at the head of his army, 15,000 strong. There is great rejoicing among the people."

Hallock News: When W. F. Kelso had finished his speech on Thursday, a party remarked to us "Is that the first speech he ever made?"

Mr. Kelso's first speech in this campaign was made in Crookston when he accepted his nomination. He had a few words written out for him, and it was really pitiful to see him try to say his little piece, and the thought uppermost in the minds of all was; What kind of a figure would this man Kelso cut in the house of representatives at Washington? When asked what qualification Mr. Kelso has for congress, his friends will tell you that he is a good wire-puller and a local politician of considerable repute. If a man can round up votes in his own balliwick then he is fit to send to congress, say the democrats. Mr. Kelso may be a successful farmer, a nice gentleman and a good political wire-puller in his own county, but the JOURNAL does not think these accomplishments fit him for congress.

Where the Wealth Is.

It is a popular, but fallacious idea that gold and silver mines are the chief wealth-producing sources of any nation, and particularly of the United States. The yields of such famous mines as the Comstock, with its $175,000,000 of gold during its life, and the discovery of new mines are heralded to the world by the press until the average man has his attention so taken up by them that he thinks of them as the great source of wealth. Since 1793, the product of gold in the United States has been about one billion dollars, an average of ten millions a year. In 1891, in only ten states of this Union (traversed by the Burlington Route lines) the production of wheat for that single year was 260 million bushels valued at two hundred million dollars. Five such years would equal the value of the gold mine in a hundred years. Do you see where the riches of our country are? To reach the true Eldorado, take the Burlington Route which runs trains daily to our principal cities and towns of these states. Call on your home agent for tickets, or address for ony information W. J. C. Kenyon, General Passenger Agent, St. Paul, Minn.

The November number of Peterson's Magazine is admirable in point of illustrations, contents, and general appearance. "Charlotte Corday," by Virginia G. Sully, is a most interesting record, and is beautifully illustrated. "A Mountain Passion-Flower," by Ella Higginson, is an intensely dramatic story, and the accompanying pictures are very effective. Among the other illustrated articles are "Preserved in Pictures," by Harriet Latham, and "About Pincushions," by Mrs. Saward, the latter giving numerous novel designs that would make lovely Christmas presents. "A County Parlor," by Dorthy Hasbrouck, is full of capital suggestions, as is "An Afternoon Tea," by Sarah Atherton. "Breaking His Fetters," by Frank H. Sweet, is an exceptionally good story, but indeed both stories and poems are all away above the average magazine standard. The most noticeable feature of the month is, however, the statement that with this number "Peterson" will close its record as a fashion periodical, after having stood at the head of such publications for over fifty years. A fresh management takes control, and the future magazine will be devoted solely to literature and art, under the title of "The New Peterson." For several years past, the magazine has been rapidly progressing toward this evolution, and the time has for the change, as we all feel that a combination of literature and fashion is no longer desirable.

The editorial staff embraces Frank Lee Benedict, editor; with Miss M. G. McClelland, Octave Thanet, and Howard Seely, associates. Names that will prove a guaranty for its excellence; while the low subscription rate of $2.00 per year will appeal to the common sense of the reading public. Our readers should send five cents and procure a sample number. Address, The New Peterson Magazine, 112-114 So. Third Street, Philadelphia.

Bishop Potter, of New York, states there is no truth in the rumors that Rev. Dr. Heber Newton, rector of All Souls Protestant Episcopal church, of New York, is to be tried for heresy.

The lighthouse board is engaged in preparing plans and specifications for four lightships to be stationed on the great lakes—three in Lake Michigan and one at Bar Point, Lake Erie.

The Wisconsin Grand Lodge Good Templars at Oshkosh adopted a resolution petitioning the legislature for the repeal of all laws against drunkenness, setting forth drunkenness as no crime.

Miss Francis Willard and Miss Gordon, accompanied by Lady Henry Somerset, have sailed from Liverpool, arriving in New York about Oct. 15. Lady Somerset will attend the national W. C. T. U. convention at Denver.

J. T. Conley, passenger agent in St. Paul for the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railway announces that his company proposes to make reduced rates on round trip tickets Oct. 20 to 22, during the dedicatory ceremonies of the world's fair buildings in Chicago.

PROPOSED CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS.

To be voted upon at the next General Election. Published in persuance of Chapter 157. General Laws of 1887.

WHEREAS, it is made the duty by law of the Attorney General to prepare a synopsis of all amendments proposed to the constitution, notice is hereby given that the following amendments are submitted to the voters of the state of Minnesota, to be voted upon at the general election to be held in the year 1892:

FIRST—An act proposing to amend Section 33 of Article four (4) to the Constitution of the State of Minnesota, prohibiting special legislation.

The following amendment to Section 33 of Article 4 of the Constitution of the State of Minnesota is hereby proposed, which section when so amended shall read as follows:

"SEC. 33. In all cases when a general law can be made applicable no special law shall be enacted; and whether a general law could have been made applicable in any case is hereby declared a judicial question, and as such shall be judicially determined without regard to any legislative assertion on that subject. The legislature shall pass no local or special law regulating the affairs of, or incorporating, erecting or changing the lines of any county, city, village, township, ward or school district, or creating the offices or prescribing the powers and duties of the officers of, or fixing or relating to the compensation, salary or fees of the same, or the mode of election or appointment thereto; authorizing the laying out, opening, altering, vacating or maintaining roads, highways, streets or alleys, remitting fines, penalties or forfeitures; regulating the powers, duties and practice of justices of the peace, magistrates and constables; changing the names of persons, places, lakes or rivers; for opening and conducting of elections or fixing or changing the places of voting; authorizing the adoption or legitimation of children; changing the law of descent or succession; conferring rights upon minors, declaring any named person of age, giving effect to informal or invalid wills or deeds, or affecting the estates of minors or persons under disability; locating or changing county seats; regulating the management of public schoosl, the building or repairing of school houses, and the raising of money for such purposes; exempting property from taxation, or regulating the rate of interest on money; creating corporations, or amending, renewing, extending or explaining the charters thereof; granting to any corporation, association or individual any special or exclusive privilege, immunity or franchise whatever, or authorizing public taxation for a private purpose. Provided, however, That the inhibitions of local or special laws in this section shall not be construed to prevent the passage of general laws on any of the subjects enumerated.

The legislature may repeal any existing special or local law, but shall not amend, extend or modify any of the same.

The ballots to be used in voting upon said amendment shall have printed thereon:

"Amendment to Article Four (4) of the Constitution to prohibit special legislation."	YES |
	NO |

And each voter shall vote upon by placing a cross (X) opposite "yes," if he desires to vote in the affirmative, and opposite the word "no," if he desires to vote in the negative.

SECOND—The following amendment to Section three (3) of Article nine (9) of the Constitution of the State of Minnesota is hereby proposed to the people of said State for their approval or rejection, that is to say, to add at the end of said section the following words:

"And their may be levied and collected annually a tax upon the gross earnings in this State of all railroads, sleeping, parlor and drawing room car companies, or owners whose cars run in or into this State; on all telegraph and telephone campanies, or owners, whose lines are in or extend into this State; on all express companies, or owners, doing business in this State; on all foreign insurance companies doing business in this State; on all domestic insurance companies of this State, or on either or any of such companies. Or in lieu of such tax on the gross earnings of such companies, or either or any of them, an annual license fee or tax imposed on them, or either or any of them, but no tax upon the gross earnings of any carporation shall be construed to prevent the taxation by law of any real estate owned by said corporation not used in the business of the same. And there may be levied and collected in lieu of other taxation on mining properry, a specific tax upon the product of all mines in this State, and no such tax shall be construed to prevent the taxation by law of any real estate belonging to the owners of such mine not used in the business of mining or in connection therewith."

Section three (3) of Article nine (9) of the State Constitution which it is proposed to amend as above, now reads as follows:

SEC. 3. Laws shall be passed taxing all moneys, credits, investments in bonds, stocks, joint stock companies or otherwise, and also all real and personal property, according to its true value in money; but public burying grounds, public school houses public hospitals academies, colleges, universities, and all seminaries of learning, all churches, church property used for religious purposes, and houses of worship, institutions of purely public charity, public property used exclusively for any public purpose, and personal propersy to an amount not exceeding in value two hundred dollars for each individual, shall, by general laws be exempt from taxation.

Ballots used in voting upon said section shall have printed thereon "Amendment to Section three (3) of Article nine (9) of the constitution providing for the taxation of sleeping car companies and other companies: YES—NO," and the voters in voting upon such amendment shall erase, mark across or scratch out one (1) of said words "yes" or "no." If he desires to vote in the affirmative he shall scratch out the word "no." If he desires to vote in the negative, he shall scratch out the word "yes,"

EXPLANATION.

It will be seen that the matter of voting upon these two proposed amendments is entirely different. The reason for this is that the first amendment was proposed under an act of the legislature passed prior to the general election law of 1891, and is to be voted upon subject to the provisions of said general election law. But the second proposed amendment is submitted under an act of the legislature passed affer the general election law of 1891, and in terms provides how it shall be voted upon, and as above indicated.

The object of the first proposed amendment is to restrict special legislation.

The object of the second proposed amendment is to regulate the taxation of railroads, sleeping, drawing room and parlor car companies, telegraph and telephone companies, express and insurance companies, by taxing the gross earnings or by a licensed fee; and authorizing a specific tax on mining property.

MOSES E. CLAPP,
Attorney General.

July 7 1892

(25-27)

Valley Roller Mills

MANUFACTURERS OF

FINE FLOUR

From Selected Red River Wheat.

QUOTATIONS.

Best	$2.25	per 98 lbs.
North Star	2.10	" "
Fife	1.90	" "
Skip Jack	1.25	" "
Bran	9.00	" ton.
Shorts	10.00	" "

Call early and get your supply of feed.

☞ We exchange flour for wheat on equitable terms.

LEE & HERRICK.

W. A. ROBERTSON
D. D. S.

Graduate of Dental Department of the University of Maryland.

OPERATIVE AND MECHANICAL

DENTIST.

N. B. Nitrous Oxide Gas (Laughing Gas) administered for the painless extraction of teeth.

OFFICE IN McKINNON BLOCK.

Schmidt, the Painter,

—CARRIES A FULL AND COMPLETE STOCK OF—

PAINTS,

OILS AND

VARNISHES.

—ALSO A FULL AND COMPLETE LINE OF—

☞ WALL PAPER. ☜

Painting in all its branches, and Paper Hanging artistically done.

Call at the Shop on Broadway.

Crookston Business College

and INSTITUTE OF SHORTHAND.

DEPARTMENTS:—Commercial Shorthand, Typewriting and English.

TEACHERS:—Benj. A. Strawbridge, J. M. Latham and L. E. Gossman.

Summer Term began Monday, June 6th, 1892. Fall Term begins Monday, October 3rd, 1892. Send for new Catalogue.

CROOKSTON BUSINESS COLLEGE, Crookston, Minn.

We are Selling Now

For fall use a nice line of HARNESS, Single or Double, heavy and light, at prices which will surprise you. We are making a leader on double heavy harness, and invite you to give us a call before purchasing. We have just received another car of Rushford Wagons the lightest running and best finished wagon made. We can show you something in PLOWS that no one else can, and if you are in need of one and will call and look at our line of goods we can convince you we have something you want.

Merit Wins.

And to that reason more than anything else, do we assign our large and daily increasing trade. The Yankee and Scandia Gang Plows and Sulkies can't be beat. We have a few Buggies left that we are selling cheap to close out.

Good Goods at Reasonable Prices,

and fair treatment to all is what we aim, and our motto is MERIT WINS—every time.

Larsen, Carpenter & Co.

Opera Block, - - Crookston, Minn.

TRY PEAKE,

THE MAIN STREET HARNESS MAKER,

FOR BARGAINS.

CHRISTIANSON BROS.,

Abstracters of Title, Loans,

Real Estate and Insurance:

N. B. FARM LOANS a specialty. Terms, three to five years. Lowest rate of interest, payable annually at our office.

☞ Choice FARM LANDS for sale cheap, on terms to suit purchasers. ☜

Office on Robert Street. CROOKSTON, MINN

NEW FEED MILL

CHRIS. ANDERSON, Prop.

I desire to annouce to the farmers of Polk County that I have rented the

LAURENCE BUILDING, ON MAIN STEERT,

Next to Brown's New Livery Stable, and am now prepared to grind feed of all kinds promptly. You can get your feed in two hours after you bring me your grain. Prices Reasonable

Try My New Mill!

McKINNON BROS.,

—DEALERS IN—

ALL OF THE LEADING

Agricultural Implements

MAIN STREET. McKINNON BLOCK.

☞ Before Purchasing, Give Us a Call. ☜

Round Home.

Wheat—1 Hard 62.
1 Northern 60.

Hon. Robt. G. Evans, of the Republican National Committee, will deliver an address at McKinnon hall to-morrow, Friday, evening.

Soft easy shoes for tender feet at The Fair.

Mr. A. Boddy was up from Edna on Saturday last.

Turner's English Girls at the Grand opera house to-night.

Have you seen the carload of stallions at M. R. Brown's barn.

Contractor Wilcox has the grading of Second street almost completed.

Conductor J. B. Copeland has moved into the new Fournet block.

Miss Dollie Bunnell entertained a number of her friends on Friday evening.

Secretary of State, F. P. Brown, was calling on his friends in the city on Friday last.

Geo. A. Ralph went up to the reservation last week to complete his work of surveying.

Reserve your seats at Tom Morris' at once for the performance to-night, Turner's English Girls, remember.

Farmers are nearly through with their fall work. There has hardly been a day this fall that they could not work.

Miss Cora Rudesell, who has been visiting Mrs. Eber Cameron, returned to her home at Glenwood, Wis., on Friday last.

Mrs. C. L. Dyer is visiting friends in the city, the guest of Mrs. Geo. W. Peake. She is en-route to join her husband at Spokane Falls.

If you want to see a good spectacular burlesque on the "Spider and Fly" order, only a little better, come to the performance to-night.

It will pay all persons to call at M. R. Brown's barn and see the fine lot of stallions for sale by C. M. C. Stewart, of Mason City, Iowa.

C. M. C. Stewart, of Mason City, Iowa, can show the finest lot of draft stallions ever brought to this country, if you call at M. R. Brown's barn, Crookston, Minn.

The building occupied by Sam Wallace as a drug store on the corner of Broadway and Second street, is being lowered to the level of Second street, which has been graded down.

Eber Cameron is buying wheat as an independent buyer this fall, also shipping for all who desire his service. Mr. C. says he will make it an object for farmers to deal with him.

The old proverb that "a penny saved is a penny made" could not be better illustrated than by a visit to Locken & Holmboe's store. Not pennies but dollars are saved there to their customers.

L. S. Nelson, of Luverne, and Hon. Halvor Steenerson, delivered addresses at Fertile Oct. 17th, Rindal Oct. 18th, Winget Oct. 19th, and will speak at McIntosh tonight, Oct. 20th and Mr. Nelson will speak at Fosston Oct. 21st.

Sylvester & Finseth took possession of their new quarters in the Barrette and Dufresne block last Saturday. They wish to call the attention of the JOURNAL readers to their new line of stoves of which they have just received a car load and are prepared to sell at a great bargain. They invite a call in their new quarters.

Mr. E. Winslow dropped in to set his subscription ahead another year on Thursday of last week and reports that he raised 2300 bushels of No. 1 hard and No. 1 northern wheat this year. He has rented his farm near Fertile for a term of years and will go to Grand Rapids or Aitken to work in the lumber woods for the coming winter and perhaps longer.

The Serpentine Dance, which has never been seen in this opera house, and which was the greatest feature with "Sinbad" in the large cities in the east and west will be a feature presented to-night, by Miss Nellie Russell, whose costume for this dance contains 130 yards of the finest gauzy glittering white silk. Miss Russell, also will be seen in her musical specialties, playing fifteen different musical instruments.

The republican rally at Red Lake Falls last Saturday night was a rousing affair. There was a grand procession half a mile long headed by the Thief River Falls brass band, and over 200 torch bearers. The hall where the speaking took place was not large enough to accommodate half the crowd, and an overflow meeting was held in another place. The meetings was addressed, by Henry Feig, Halvor Steenerson and S. H. Crossfield, the latter gentleman speaking in the French language. It was an enthusiastic gathering and was a surprise to everyone, as Red Lake Falls has always been considered a democratic stronghold.

Cloaks! cloaks! at A. Sture's. Give us a call.

If you want fresh groceries, go to A. Sture's.

Fur trimmed jackets at A. Sture's, only $6.50.

An apprentice wanted at Mrs I. U. Jennings' millinery store.

Look at the label on the address of your paper and if in arrears call and see us.

Do you want a good pair of blankets? If so, do not purchase before you have seen those at A. Sture's.

Ladies, just examine those 89 cent kid gloves at the New York store. They're cheap in price but not in quality.

You can buy the new improved American sewing machine at I. U. Jennings' furniture store for thirty dollars.

Large stock of dry goods just received. Come in and look them over before you go elsewhere. Prices guaranteed. A. STURE.

When looking for millinery do not forget to give Mrs. Sempf, the Broadway milliner, a call. Something new each week and prices to suit all.

The fire department announce a grand ball for Thursday evening, Oct. 27th. The boys always have a good time and promise that this will be no exception.

A large and elegant stock of fall and winter millinery has arrived at Mrs. I. U. Jennings' millinery store where she will be found ready to show you all the latest styles and novelties in that line. Japanese goods are an attraction at her store.

Something should be done to stop the throwing of papers on the streets. Last Monday the air was literally filled with flying paper—newspapers, wrapping papers, paper boxes, etc. It is not only annoying to pedestrians, but is liable to be responsible for runaway teams.

Henry Feig, the republican candidate for congress from the 7th district, was in the city last Saturday, and in company with Halvor Steenerson Hugh Thompson and A. S. Crossfield, went out to Red Lake Falls, where addresses were delivered by Messrs Steenerson, Feig and Crossfield.

It is no use denying it. Crops are poor and the price of wheat is too low. The question arises for every farmer how to make ends meet and have some money to spare. We have one suggestion to make. It is this "read Locken & Holmboe,s adds" or better still visit their store and see how far a dollar goes at that place.

The Wade-LeRoyle comedy company finished their week's engagement at the Grand on Saturday evening in "Squabbles" a farcical skit that has no plot but is full of fun all the way through. The piece was put on Wednesday night and so well liked that it was reproduced by request. The company, which is a good one, appears at its best in "Squabbles."

Thos. Johnston, of Fisher, who was in the city last Monday, says that last week he completed the sale of the famous black Percheron stallion Cassagnac (13449) the property of Felland Bros., of Fisher, to a company of farmers at Reynolds, N. D. for $2000. This horse is a son of the world-renewed shire horse Gilbert and should prove a benefit to his owners and the community where he was purchased.

I. U. Jennings has for sale at his furniture store, No. 21 Main street, 12 styles patent swing rockers 30 styles other rockers, 20 styles chamber sets, 15 styles bureaus, 20 center tables, 20 styles other tables. folding beds, book cases, hall racks, spring mattresses, pillows. mirrors, lounges, bed lounges, parlor suits, picture frames, and everything necessary to furnish a house in suitable style and guarantees to sell at from 5 to 10 per cent. less than the same goods can be bought for, at any other place in this city. But how can you do this? you ask. Answer; because I buy for cash and pay twelve dollars per month rent as against fifty to seventy-five paid by other dealers.

H. E. Wilson, who is government superintendent of schools on the Red Lake Reservation arrived in the city on Friday evening of last week on his way to Fort Totten N. D. with four pupils for the Indian training school at that place. He says it is very difficult to persuade the Indians to place their children in the training school owing chiefly to the opposition of one chief who does not desire to have the Indian children educated. Mr. W. has been on the reservation some three or four years and seems to be doing a good work there. He was formerly connected with the Minneapolis Tribune and used to visit Crookston occasionally. His wife will be remembered by some of our citizens as a very pleasing elocutionist who gave several entertainments in our city some years since. Mr. W. says our city is improving wonderfully since his last visit here.

Rev. Battey is expected home to-day or to-morrow.

Rev. R. H. Battey preached in St. Louis, Mo., last Sabbath.

Geo. W. Smith brought in some nice fat cattle from Mentor last Friday.

Comrade Wm. Carlton was down from Angus to attend the banquet on Monday evening.

Pretty near time to put up storm windows again as we are reminded by the weather this week.

Mrs. W. E. McKenzie and Mrs. E. C. Carruth entertained their lady friends at 5 o'clock tea yesterday afternoon.

Dr. Dunlop took a bit of a hunt up near Thief River Falls last week. As a result he brought home a lot of dead geese.

John Monroe, who was appointed to fill the vacancy in the city council caused by the resignation of John McGlogan, is right at home in the council chamber.

In setting up the write-up of the Fosston fair last week, the compositor omitted the name of D. S. Horwitz, who had charge of Kopps Bros. exhibit of pianos.

Friday, Oct. 21st, being a legal holiday the post-office will be open for the delivery of mail only from 8 a. m. till 9 a. m. and then from 12 o'clock noon till 1 p. m.

J. E. Morrisey returned from a business trip to Thief River Falls. Says the report that he shot plenty geese is incorrect. While there are lots of geese they are shy.

Farmer J. J. S. Nichols was up from Fertile on Tuesday. Nichols asserts, beyond aperadventure, the election of the people's party state ticket next month, but many a good man has been mistaken before now and he may be.

C. M. C. Stewart, of Mason City, Iowa, has a carload of Clydesdale stallions at M. R. Brown's barn in this city. They are fine-looking animals and considering their pure blood and excellent quality, he offers them at extraordinarily low prices.

Pierre Dulude will offer at public vendue at his residence on section 34, in Gentilly, on Monday, October 31st, 1892, his horses, cattle, hogs and machinery to the highest bidder. Sale to commence at 10 o'clock a. m. and continue until all is sold; also has a lot of potatoes which will be offered on that day. A good chance to buy at your own figures.

Major C. H. Mix returned on Friday morning from a pleasant trip to Washington, New York and other cities. Says he enjoyed his trip immensely and says the 26th annual encampment at Washington last month was the biggest crowd of its kind that ever occurred or ever will. The major was on the staff of the state commander in the parade.

Last week we sent out our statements of account on subscription. The replies so far have been many and encouraging, for which we wish to return our thanks as well as for the words of good cheer that many have spoken. We shall be encouraged to try to keep the JOURNAL in the front ranks of journalism and to conduct it in the interests of the people.

Salesmen wanted to travel in surrounding districts, by team or otherwise, soliciting orders on commission from retail dealers for rubber boots and shoes, to be shipped direct from factory. Those already traveling with another line of goods could make this a valuable addition to their business. Address stating particulars and references. Colchester Rubber Co., Colchester, Conn.

Engineer Pat Cleary enjoyed a visit from his brother Mike last week. Mike was an engineer on the Great Northern road years ago when it was the St. Paul & Pacific, and he has been in the employ of the road ever since. Mike is an old-time democrat, but he told our reporter on the quiet that he proposes to vote for Harrison and Feig next month if he lives to vote at all. He left for home on Friday's belated train.

The Ladies' Relief Corps gave a banquet to the members of Col. Cobham Post in the banquet hall of the Odd Fellows in McKinnon block, on Monday evening. The old vets demonstrated the fact that their gastronomic qualities are unimpaired by doing full justice to the viands spread before them. Comrade J. G. McGrew, Comrade Wm. Carlton and Commander I. U. Jennings responded to invitations to speak and waxed eloquent in attempting to thank the ladies of the Relief Corps, but all of the eloquence wasted on that occasion was inadequate to fully express the feelings of the old boys as they disposed of the excellent repast—the eloquence of their motions during the meal was far more expressive. After speeches, music and the banquet a few pleasant hours were spent in cards and chatting and the company broke up voting the affair a splendid success in every particular.

Frank Bivins says he had his plowing all done over a week ago. Has plowed over 300 hundred acres this fall the pleasant weather allowing him to put in full time.

Ten or twelve carloads of steel and iron material have arrived for the Great Northern railway bridge over the Red Lake river at this place, and work will commence on the bridge in a few days.

Andrew Hanson's team took a lively spin on Robert street on Tuesday, wrecking the buggy completely, and cutting one horse pretty badly. Andrew says if the prohibition party could run like that every candidate would be elected without a doubt.

The coroner was summoned to East Grand Forks on Monday to hold an inquest on the body of A. C. Barrett who was found dead on Sunday. The coroner being ill deputized John Wyatt to go and hold the inquest. The jury rendered a verdict of suicide.

Dennis Kelley, a Polk county old timer, was in the city this week on his way home from Niagara, N. D., where he had been to bury his wife who died at their home in Superior Wis., on the 11th inst. Mrs. Kelly was a sister of Jack McLaren, of this city. She leaves many friends in Polk county to morn her loss.

This office acknowledges a pleasant call from Ira B. Richardson, republican candidate for county attorney and Nic Nelson republican candidate for register of deeds, on Wednesday. Both men are well qualified for the office to which they aspire and should they be elected would do credit to themselves and their constituents.

Lars E. Norby, republican candidate for the legislature, was in the city Tuesday night enroute for home from a trip through the Thirteen Towns. Says he finds a great many who are going to vote independant of what politicians say. They have made up their minds to vote for whom they consider the best men. Mr. N. is well acquainted with the needs of this country and if elected will make an excellent legislator.

Last Tuesday night a republican rally was held at Fisher, which was addressed by L. H. Crossfield, R. J. Montague, Ira G. Richardson and N. Nelson. Despite the fact that through some misunderstanding the meeting was not properly advertised, the hall was comfortably filled, and everybody said it was the best meeting held this fall in Fisher. Mr. Crossfield is an entertaining talker, and one whom you can listen to with profit. Mr. Montague, who is thoroughly posted on the tariff, discussed that subject, and Mr. Richardson and Mr. Nelson talked local politics.

And now the Tribune comes out and says it was only "a quiet little joke" on its part when it said that it would not do to elect Mr. Childs because he would at once issue bonds in his own selfish interests. Well if THAT is true then they have nothing to urge against him why he should not be elected although they searched high and low to find one and only succeeded in finding "a joke." The fact is that Mr. Childs is one of the best business men up for the position. He is a practical farmer and understands fully the needs of the farmers and should he be chosen commissioner he will use his influence to see that the affairs of the county are run economically and in the interest of the people. The office of commissioner is one requiring a great deal of business tact and executive ability and these Mr. Childs possesses in an eminent degree as his record in Polk county well shows.

The only Ignatius Donnelly delivered one of his political harangues in the opera house, Crookston on Friday evening the 14th inst. The house was crowded to the doors, and the audience seemed to be made up of equal numbers of the three parties. Many of his audience had never heard him before, and to them he was a great disappointment. They expected to learn something from a man of Mr. Donnelly's ability. They expected him to discuss the platform of the people's party and compare it with those of the old parties. They thought he would elucidate the principles of the people's party for the benefit of the unconverted. But he shrewdly abstained from going into these delicate questions. Instead of this he kept up a running fire of jokes at the expence of the two old parties. Mr. Donnelly is a good story-teller and kept his audience in good humor from start to finish. But he gave his hearers no food for thought and he gave his followers not a single argument nor an ounce of ammunition of any kind to help them carry on the battle; but he didn't forget to tell them to vote for I. Donnelly, and when he was elected governor he promised them to get a long pole and "stir up the pot till they could smell the sulphur." Perhaps the people's party men know what that means, but it is beyond the ken of the uninitiated.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report.

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

H. P. Gallup, traveling salesman for the Farwell, Ozmun & Kirk company, of St. Paul, was robbed of all his sample outfit at the Northern Pacific depot at St. Cloud. He had left them on the platform awaiting the train. They consisted of cutlery, revolvers, knives, etc., and were valued at $500.

The total number of manufacturing industries reported in St. Paul for the census of 1890 was 116 against 89 in 1880; capital, $21,438,538, against $3,738,791 in 1880; value of product, $31,068,300, against $10,286,363 in 1880: hands employed, 17,485, against 5,230 in 1880; wages paid, $9,731,588 against $2,254,340 in 1880; number of establishments. 1,421, against 593 in October.

The dedication of a soldiers' monument took place at Spring Valley last week, in the presence of a large assemblage. Last February the Grand Army post, Women's Relief Corps and Sons of Veterans decided to erect a monument in honor of the Union soldiers and sailors of the rebellion. The necessary amount, nearly $1,000, was soon subscribed by the public, and the monument secured.

Charles Smith, otherwise known as Indian Charlie, a somewhat noted character in this state, was killed by a Kansas City train near Inver Grove Saturday. Smith was a halfbreed and was captured as a boy during the Indian massacre at New Ulm by a man named Smith, who adopted him and brought him up. After Mr. Smith's death Charlie removed to Inver Grove where he has since resided.

The Minneapolis mills last week made their banner run as to output. They ground 230,380 barrels of flour, or an average of 38,397 barrels per day. The greatest amount ever made before was 214,930 barrels, for the week ending June 11, 1892. Last week's work was done with two mills idle, whose daily capacity is 2,000 barrels. For the corresponding week in 1891, 194,875 barrels were made, and in 1890, 151,400 barrels.

Say They Won't Count Minnesota.

ST. PAUL, Oct. 17.—A Washington special to The Pioneer Press says: Some of the Democrats here closely identified with the house of representatives assert that the Democratic house will refuse to count the vote of Minnesota should the secretary of state persist in his refusal to duplicate the names of the Peoples' party electors on the election ballots. This may be merely a threat, but it is asserted the Democrats would be glad of any opportunity to throw out the vote of any Republican state, and would quickly seize upon such a pretext as that offered in the present action of Secretary Brown.

Strange Cattle Disease.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Ia., Oct. 17.—News has been received in this city that there are three or four herds of cattle in Garner township afflicted with some strange unknown disease which has been taking them off quite rapidly. The cattle appeared to be mad, pawed the earth and dashed at each other, and at persons who came near them. A number had died. Sheriff Hazen sent an officer to Garner township and several of the animals were killed. A telegram has been sent to the state veterinary surgeon and he will make an examination.

Object to a Dyke.

BOISE CITY, Ida., Oct. 18.—Word comes from Bonner's Ferry that the Kootenai Indians will probably make serious trouble in that country on account of the dyking of the Kootenai river by an English company. The other day a band of twenty Indians, all fully armed, went to the workmen and forced them to quit working on the dyke. The Indians say they will shoot any one who attempts to resume work.

Blaine Will Write a Letter.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Mr. Blaine and Whitelaw Reid arrived at the Grand Central and were at once driven to the Fifth Avenue hotel. Mr. Reid subsequently informed the United Press reporter that the rumor that Mr. Blaine might write a letter was true. He said that Mr. Blaine would write one after he had reached Washington. Mr. Reid also stated that he was at work on his letter of acceptance and added "I will give it to the national committee this week.

Dr. Welch, assistant superintendent of the Middleborough (Mass.) insane asylum, will probably be appointed superintendent of the Fergus Falls insane hospital, in place of Dr. Williamson, resigned.

The Minnesota railroad and warehouse commissioners have received official notice that the Duluth, Mesaba and Northern railway had been completed and will make a tour of inspection over the new line at once.

Mrs. Margaret Rice, widow of Banker John Rice, well known in Northern Minnesota, was killed in a runaway accident at Tower Sunday. She attempted to jump from the carriage and was thrown, breaking her neck.

Norman B. Stevens, one of the pioneers of Winona county, died Thursday, having been stricken with paralysis. Mr. Stevens was one of the company that went out to California in the early days against the notorious bandit, Murietta.

At Breckenridge one night last week as a man was sitting on the platform waiting for the Great Northern train for St Paul, some unknown person drew a revolver on him, marched him to a lumber yard made him lie down and went through his pockets. Fortunately the man had placed his ticket and a roll of bills under the lining of his hat and the robber found nothing but a little silver.

Cloaks.

Two thousand one hundred dollars worth of women's, misses and children's cloaks and wraps were sent us this week by a wholesale cloak house that was overstocked, with instructions to sell them at any price. This is the best opportunity to secure a good winter cloak at your own price. Come early and secure a good choice. The Fair, corner Main and Robert streets.

Advertised Letters.

List of letters remaining unclaimed at the Crookston postoffice for the week ending Oct. 15st, 1892.

Alexandria, Joseph
Anderson, Axel
Clousen, John E.
Fverberg, C. J.
Pulls, John
Tomlin, C. H.
Anderson, Aron Mrs 2
Anderson, Andrew
Flaskind, Ottine
Martin, Joseph
Stostad, Olsen Anders 2
Wilson, E. W. Mrs.

Persons calling for the above letters please say advertised.

WM. B. DAWLEY, P. M.

In Favor of Childs.

The contest case of E. D. Childs vs. Thos. T. Brown, which has been pending so long in the interior department, has been decided in favor of Childs. The land involved is the southeast quarter of section 30, town 143, range 47.

A Question of Dollars and Cents.

Sensible persons are no longer carried away by sensational advertising. No matter how much is promised in the newspapers, the completion of a purchase resolves itself into a question of dollars and cents, and the wise buyer takes into account how much he can save before parting with his money. Knowing this, we merely ask you to read the following:

BARGAIN No. 1

Consists of fifty-seven black cloth Jackets, running from 32 to 40 inches in size, and ordinarily selling for $6.50, $8, $9, $9.50 and $12. Your choice of the lot for $4.39.

BARGAIN No. 2

Consists of Ladies' and Misses' Newmarkets, eighty-four in all, ordinarily selling for $8, $9.50, $11, $15, $18 and $20. Your choice of the lot for $6.79.

BARGAIN No. 3

Consists of Ladies' Plush Jackets, sizes from 23 to 40 inches, and ordinarily selling for $10, $12, $15 and $18. Your choice of the lot for $6.79.

BARGAIN No. 4

Consists of Ladies' 32-inch length Plush Jackets, sizes 34, 36 and 38, and ordinarily selling for $18, $22 and $25. Your choice of the lot for $11.65.

FONTAINE & ANGLIM.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

MINNESOTA
HISTORICAL
Historical Society
SOCIETY.

Polk County Journal.

VOL. XVI. CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY, OCT. 27, 1892. NO. 28

Knute Nelson will speak at Grand Opera House, Crookston, November 5th, 8 p.m.

Crookston Furniture Co.

Undertakers

—AND—

Funeral Directors.

SECOND STREET, Next to Times Office, CROOKSTON, MINN.

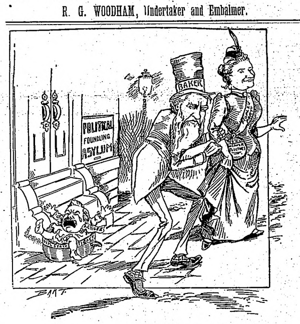
—COMPLETE STOCK OF—

CASKETS, COFFINS, ROBES, BURIAL SUPPLIES.

A Beautiful New Hearse has just been received. Parties desiring the use of the same will leave orders with us.

Telegraph orders promptly and casefully filled.

R. G. WOODHAM, Undertaker and Embalmer.



ABANDONED.

Chairman Baker of the Democratic party deserts Lawler and the State ticket and elopes with the People's party.

The "Limited" train on The Northwestern Line," leaving Minneapolis 7:25 p. m., St. Paul 8:25 p. m. and arriving Milwaukee 7:25 a. m., Chicago 9:30 a. m., is now equipped with Wagner Compartment Cars in addition to Standard Sleepers, and also with Buffet Smoking and Library Cars.

This is the finest equipped train in America, is the only train of its kind west of Chicago, and no extra fare is charged on this "Northwestern Limited."

By "The Northwestern Line" you also have advantage of fast day train, leaving Minneapolis 7:15 a. m. and St. Paul 7:55 a. m., arriving Milwaukee 7:55 p. m., Chicago, 9:35 p. m., also an afternoon train, leaving Minneapolis 4:35 p. m., St. Paul 5:15 p. m., arriving at Chicago 8:00 a. m

"The Nortwestern Line" is also the only Pullman Car Line from St. Paul and Minneapolis, Sioux City, Omaha, Kansas City, Duluth and Ashland.

For luxury and comfort, best equipment and road bed, secure ticket via "The Northwestern Line," they are on sale at all stations. Illustrated Map Folder free on application to

T. W. TEASDALE
Gen. Pass. Agent,
[20tf] St. Paul, Minn.

For Sale.

A scholarship in the Crookston Business College. Apply at the JOURNAL office. [10 t.f.]

COUGHING LEADS TO C NSUMPTION Kemp's Balsam stops the cough at once.

Lane's Medicine Moves the Bowels Each Day. In order to be healthy this is necessary.

Lawler Elected.

Tom Morris says he does not know whether Lawler will be elected or not but he does know that you can find a larger stock of holiday jewelry at Tom Morris' store than anywhere else in Polk county.

Cloaks.

Two thousand one hundred dollars worth of women's, misses and children's cloaks and wraps were sent us this week by a wholesale cloak house that was overstocked, with instructions to sell them at any price. This is the best opportunity to secure a good winter cloak at your own price. Come early and secure a good choice. The Fair, corner Main and Robert streets.

It is no use denying it. Crops are poor and the price of wheat is too low. The question arises for every farmer how to make ends meet and have some money to spare. We have one suggestion to make. It is this "read Locken & Holmboe,s adds" or better still visit their store and see how far a dollar goes at that place.

U. S. LAND OFFICE.
Crookston, Minn., October 11th, 1892.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register or Receiver U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 28th, 1892, viz: Henry Huot, Hd. No. 12,003, for the ne¼ sw¼ and lots 4, 5 and 6, Tp. 151, R. 45. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Joseph Pepin, Joseph Boivin, Narcisse Mircault, Paul Mathew, all of Huot P. O., Minn.

[26-31] HUGH THOMPSON, Register.

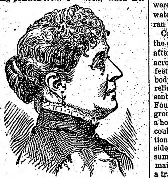
Ripans Tabules cure constipation.

SUFFERING ENDED.

MRS. HARRISON'S LONG STRUGGLE WITH DEATH TERMINATES.

Her Last Moments as Peaceful as a Child in Sweet Repose—The President Overcome with Grief by the Loss of His Life Partner.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—Mrs. Harrison died at 1:40 a. m. Dr. Scott, Mrs. Harrison's venerable father, was the only member of the family now in Washington, not present when she died. Dr. Gardner was in an adjoining room and was not present when his patient passed to the dark valley. From 1 o'clock Mrs. Harrison was to all intents a corpse, her breathing being hardly preceptible and her respiration gradually decreased until 1:40 when she passed away. Her death was as peaceful as a child in sweet repose. President Harrison was at the right side of his wife in a reclining position from 1 o'clock, when Dr. Gardner notified the family that the end was close at hand. In this position he remained until 1:40 when life was thought to be extinct, and Lieutenant Parker, who was at the bedside, called in Dr. Gardner, and the experienced eye of the physician soon detected that Mrs. Harrison was no more. The president gave way to an almost



MRS. HARRISON.

Audible Outburst of Grief,

but soon suppressed his emotion and endeavored to console Mrs. McKee, his daughter. All the members of the family remained in the room for fifteen or twenty minutes after the death and then, overcome by grief, they repaired to their respective rooms and were alone in their great sorrow. The first intelligence of Mrs. Harrison's death was communicated to the newspaper representatives who were grouped in a room assigned to the clerical force of the executive mansion by Mr. Montgomery, an employe. Lieutenant Parker, who was present when Mrs. Harrison passed away, said, in speaking to the newspaper men, that it occurred without a struggle. Mr. Halford immediately notified all the cabinet officers who are now out of town of Mrs. Harrison's death.

Immediately after Dr. Gardner left the mansion the newspaper men followed and at 2:30 the doors were closed and the lights extinguished. Mrs. Harrison will be buried Thursday morning in Crown Hill cemetery, Indianapolis. Private services will be held in the White House Wednesday morning.

The Last Hours.

At 11:30 o'clock Dr. Gardner said to Mr. Halford that if Mrs. Harrison passed the midnight hour alive, she would in all probability live until 4 o'clock in the morning. The patient's respiration then was scant twelve to the minute. Until it decreased to 10 a minute Dr. Gardner said that there was no immediate danger of collapse. In the course of the disease he said Mrs. Harrison's respiration had been as high as forty-five or fifty a minute for brief intervals. At midnight all the members of the family were surrounding the bedside. The patient lay in a semi-conscious and motionless position and there were indications that an immediate dissolution was at hand. The doctor then made a hasty examination and learned that the respiration was gradually decreasing and there were other signs that the patient was in the throes of death. He made an almost inaudible communication to the bereaved ones, using the words, "I don't think she will last half an hour." At 1:30 she was scarcely breathing and the respirations had fallen to eight per minute.

The navy department has received from the state department the indemnity of $75,000 brought from Chili to be distributed among relatives of sailors of the Baltimore that were killed in Chili.

Mrs. Alice Princle, aged 22, was shot and instantly killed by her husband while she was walking along a street in St. Louis in company with two young ladies. Her husband drank and she had left him. The murderer escaped.

THE BRIDGE GAVE WAY.

Serious Accident on the Great Northern Road Near Seattle, Wash.

SPOKANE, Wash., Oct. 24.—An appalling accident occurred on the construction line of the Great Northern road, resulting in the death of seven men and fatally injuring five more, and seriously injuring six others. The dead are John Leonard, conductor, of St. Paul; John Johnson, James Wright, Daniel Wakhux, Nels Nelson, J. Brady, A. Olsen, laborers. Fatally injured are J. Gilmon, J. Robertson, G. Nelson, J. J. Campbell and J. Linville. The track laying crew employed by Shepard, Seems & Co. had finished up work to Wenatchee river, and started to lay rails across that stream. The east approach and the first span were crossed safely, but when the middle span was reached the false work under the span collapsed and the track machine, together with two car loads of ties and three cars loaded with rails, fell into the river, sixty feet below. The men were thrown in every direction and some of them were buried under ties and rails. The water was about three feet deep and ran through a solid rock channel.

Conductor Leonard was standing on the end of the train, and his body was afterwards found with a heavy rail lying across his head and another across his feet, holding him under the water. His body was badly mangled. The work of relief began at once and telegrams were sent to the surrounding towns for aid. Four physicians were soon on the ground, and the injured were taken to a hospital car and cared for as best they could be with the limited accommodations. The bodies were laid side by side on the bank and an undertaker summoned from Rock Island. The remains were afterward placed on board a train and taken to Wenatchee. The accident was due to the undermining of the false work of the bridge by water. That part of the road is now under the control of the contractors.

SEVEN DEAD.

Frightful Accident at a Celebration at Los Angeles.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 22.—A frightful explosion attended a Columbus celebration here. A large number of people, including many children, had crowded around the spot where preparations were being made to explode a six-inch gas pipe loaded with powder. The contrivance exploded prematurely and caused dreadful havoc.

Seven persons whose names are known were killed outright or received injuries from which they died soon afterwards. Besides these, it is believed that least five others were killed or fatally injured and a number of others were seriously injured. One man, named Theodore Rapp, was standing near by holding his two little daughters by the hands. Both girls were instantly killed, the side of one of them being entirely blown away.

Verdict of Acquittal.

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 24.—William H. Irvine, of Salt Lake City, who has been on trial here for a week for shooting and killing Charles E. Montgomery in the dining room of the Hotel Lincoln, May 26 last, was acquitted during the afternoon. The trial created widespread interest in the city and state. The defense was that Montgomery had seduced Irvine's wife and that Irvine was so wrought up over his ruined home that he was not responsible for his act.

No Apportionment Bill Yet.

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 24.—Both houses of the legislature held short sessions during the evening but did nothing. While the bill which will be introduced is not entirely complete, it is nearly so. Few changes will in any event be made. It insures fourteen sure Democratic senatorial districts and three virtually sure, making seventeen in all or a majority of the whole. The assembly apportionment will give the Democrats about fifty-five of the 100 members.

Both Parties Take a Hand.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 24.—Both the great political parties made a handsome showing of strength in Indianapolis Monday night. Bourke Cochrane was the chief speaker for the Democrats and Messrs. Depew and Reid did the talking for the Republicans. Two immense torchlight processions preceded the speaking.

Seventeen Speeches in Two Days.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 24.—Governor McKinley, of Ohio, has begun his two days flying trip through Missouri, in which he will make seventeen speeches. He spoke Monday at Macon, Brookfield, Chillicothe, Hamilton, Cameron and St. Joseph, at each of which places he was greeted by large crowds. He arrived in Kansas City at 8 o'clock and at 8:30 he addressed, at the Auditorium, the largest political meeting ever seen in this city, 4,000 people being packed into the building, while twice as many more were turned away. Major McKinley's speech was confined to national issues and was enthusiastically received.

That Joke on Hixson.

Some of our loyal democratic friends were smiling (they do sometimes) all over their face on Monday morning at what they considered a huge joke on A. N. Hixson at the same time reporting that "Hixson has joined the democracy; he presided over a democratic rally last Saturday evening." It seems that notice had been given that a "ditch meeting" would be held in the Liebert school-house and Hixson, like every enterprising public spirited citizen went to see and hear what was to be seen and heard. Arriving there he found a crowd of his neighbors and a wagon-load of Crookston people. As soon as he appeared somebody proposed his name as chairman of the meeting and he was unanimously voted in. Of course he accepted the chairmanship of a ditch meeting; what public spirited man would not? So he duly acknowledged the compliment tendered him and then asked what was the pleasure of the meeting? Nothing said. He then remarked that he supposed the object of the meeting to be ditches "and asked if there was anybody in the house who was anxious to shoot off his mouth in the cause of ditches! No one responding for a few minutes a timid voice in the rear part of the house called out "E. M. Stanton." Mr. Stanton arose and said he didn't understand this meeting to be a ditch constructor unless peradventure it was to build a ditch for the repubs. and pops.—he came out to talk politics and straightway he sailed in and gave a rale ould dimecratic speech right from the shoulder. Other speakers followed in the same line of thought and Hixson, seeing the meeting had rather got away rom him, decided to make the best of a bad job and presided with what grace and dignity he could muster. He was called upon to speak but did not intrude any of his republican sentiments upon them to produce discord, but at the close, after he had proclaimed the meeting adjourned, he arose and said that he guessed he had been a little mixed in the real object of this meeting when he came to it, and stated that if the audience would return on the following Saturday evening he would see that speakers were forthcoming to build a ditch from a republican standpoint, a genuine protected ditch; said he believed in protection and would give his reasons therefor next Saturday evening. The audience promised to be on hand, including the few democrats in it, who had come from Crookston, and Hixson will show them (if they go) that he is chuck full of republicanism yet.

Where Do You Vote?

The city council has designated the Judges of election and the polling places in the city of Crookston as follows:

First ward—F. Anderson, Louis Fontaine and I. N. Simmons; vote at city hall.

Second ward—J. E. Morrisey, John Monroe and S. L. Collins; vote at McKinnon's building on Second street.

Third ward—W. E. Walker, W. Watts and M. R. Brown; vote at Commercial hotel sample room.

Fourth ward—F. Jerome, E. M. Walsh and F. Bivins; vote at St. Louis hotel sample room.

Fifth ward—R. G. Marlette, H. A. Stone and W. F. Hitchcock; vote at E. D. Childs Co's office.

WEISSERT'S AIDES.

The Commander-in-Chief of the G. A. R. Appoints Members of His Official Family.

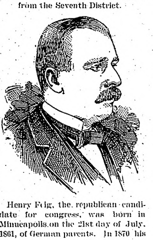
MILWAUKEE, Oct. 25.—Commander-in-Chief Weissert, of the Grand Army of the Republic, has issued General Order No. 2 from national headquarters in this city, in which he announces the appointment of five members of his official family, as follows:

Adjutant General E. B. Gray, Milwaukee; quartermaster general, John Taylor, Philadelphia; inspector general, George L. Goddle, Boston; assistant auditor general, George Bennett, Chicago; senior aide-de-camp, Ford H. Roberts, Detroit.

Mr. S. G. F. Davis, private secretary of Senator Jones, has been selected as official stenographer of the international monetary conference. He will leave for Brussels in company with Senator Jones and Mr. Henry W. Cannon, two of the United States commissioners, on the Etruria Nov. 2.

HENRY FEIG

Republican candidate for congress from the Seventh District.



Henry Feig, the republican candidate for congress, was born in Minneapolis on the 21st day of July, 1861, of German parents. In 1870 his parents removed to Kandiyohi county, where they settled on a farm, and where they still reside. Thus it can be truly said that Mr. Feig was brought up on a farm. His parents gave him a good education in both the English and German languages, and he speaks both fluently. He also reads, writes and speaks Norwegian, Swede and Danish, and can correctly interpret the same, and if elected to congress his constituents can address him in either of the above languages and a reply will be forthcoming.

When 22 years of age Mr. Feig was married to Miss Elizabeth Damerow and at that time commenced farming on his own account in Harrison township, Kandiyohi county. He still lives on his farm, where he works himself, being in every sense of the word an actual farmer. His wife died three years ago, leaving him with a family of three small children.

Mr. Feig has been honored by his fellow townsmen from the time he attained his majority. He was town clerk for seven years until he resigned. He was at one time secretary of the Kandiyohi county alliance, which position he held until it went into politics, and he is to-day the secretary of the Willmar Farmers Mutual Fire and Lightning Insurance company.

In 1890 he was elected to the Minnesota legislature from Kandiyohi county, and at once became one of the republican leaders in the house. By parliamentary experience attained while an officer in the state legislature, Mr. Feig was at once enabled to successfully cope with much older members of the house. He was always one of the first to raise his voice in advocacy of measures pending in the interests of the agriculturists. He led the fight for the Currier railroad bill, the bill to reduce interest and punish usury, he stubbornly fought for the passage of senate file No. 76 [the elevator site bill] which suffered defeat through the efforts of Speaker Champlin and Mr. Moore. Let every farmer carefully examine Mr. Feig's legislative record, and if it is not found that all legislation intended to benefit farmers and laboring men generally has had the undivided support of Mr. Feig; if it is not found that his vote was recorded on the right side, then vote for some one else; but if it is found that he was a faithful member, always working and voting on the right side of every question, then give him your vote for congressman, and rest assured that in the halls of congres, on all questions affecting the interests of the farmer or laboring man, you will find him on the right side.

The whirligig near Schreader's barn furnishes the kids with lots of solid fun afternoons and evenings.

Tuesday night a "Knute Nelson" club was organized, A. R. Erickson was elected president and J. J. Molstad secretary. The club starts with a good membership, and embraces men of all political parties.

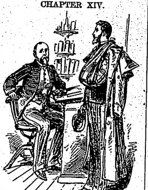
The Red River Elevator company, having moved their house to a point near Collins' livery barn, and fixed it up in elegant style are now prepared to purchase wheat and invite the farmers to see them before selling. Don't forget the elevator, near Collins' barn.

A SOLDIER'S SECRET
BY CAPT. CHARLES KING.
U.S.A.

COPYRIGHT, 1892, BY J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY, AND PUBLISHED BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT WITH THEM.

[CONTINUED.]

CHAPTER XIV.



"How's the arm today, Ellis?"

A month later and Holden has his wounded safely housed under the roof of the hospital at old Pawnee, many severely shattered or suffering great pain. Many will bear to their dying day mementos of that savage December battle. Some of the twoscore are doing very well; others perhaps have done better, and are sleeping under the flag. A busy man is Holden, and a very proud one, as he has the right to be, for one and all the troopers love to speak of him as their "fighting sawbones." He was in the thick of it all when the rush of the rearward mounted troops swept into and through those fire spitting lodges, and the Indians—warriors, squaws and children—were scattering, fighting fiercely all the way to the shelter of the ravines among the bluffs. Tireless as ever he and his assistants are constantly at the bedsides of the wounded. So is the chaplain, one of the church militant, whose "soul's in arms and eager for the fray," for his friends of the Twelfth are under two fires.

Gallantly and well have they withstood that which, with sudden treachery at the hands of their savage foes, flashed in their very faces. But they have no redress as against this—this civilized lashing at their very backs. The parson's sermon Sunday morning in answer to the driveling sentimentality of certain misguided ecclesiastics far from the scene of conflict almost lifted old Kenyon and his comrades out of their seats. The major hugged his chaplain after service and stopped to shake hands with him every time he met him during the afternoon. In many a pulpit east of the Missouri with tearful fervor was the picture drawn of those helpless, pleading Indian mothers, those shrieking, terrified little Indian babes, ruthlessly slaughtered by a brutal and infuriated soldiery. Nor were the clergy without warrant for their "bottom facts," since in some mysterious way the representatives of the press, hovering about that impersonal section of military anatomy known as headquarters, were flooding the columns of their journals with paragraphs about the wanton killing of women and children in the fight in front of the Twelfth.

"Holy Joe," as the parson had been termed, knew well the day when, in the seclusion and simplicity of his seminary life, he would have swallowed whole just such statements and turned up the whites of his eyes in sympathetic horror at the recital. But the man of God on the banks of the Merrimac and his brother in the cross on the upper Missouri see very different sides of the vexing Indian question. "Holy Joe" at Pawnee this sparkling month of January was mad clear through at the indignities and aspersions cast upon his blue-coated comrades. He wrestled with the brethren of his cloth and downed them. He even dared to establish a censorship of the press and to keep from the hands of his precious wounded those journals which had assailed the Twelfth.

He had had his hands full, poor fellow, long before the wounded came, for those were dire days and nights after the news was flashed to the post and the widowed and fatherless in their affliction were thrown upon his hands. Poor Mrs. Thorpe! Ah, she was only one of several. There was wailing among the wives and little ones down where once the soldiers' families were so thickly clustered. There were other households in dread anxiety. There were women broken down with grief and sleepless watching. There was one so ill she could not even now be told she would never look upon the face of her gallant soldier again. But draw the veil. It was on such bleeding hearts and on the men who bore the brunt of the fiercest fighting of the campaign that the lash of press and pulpit fell.

But old Kenyon was in his element. To the best and kindliest of men there is in being able to say "Didn't I tell you so?" a joy that surpasses the sweets of religious consolation. It was something to hear him declaiming among the artillery and infantry officers during the days that followed the completion of official investigation at the expense of the Pawnee battalions. "Why, gentlemen," said he, "I have never ceased to thank God I didn't take the chance for promotion that came in the reorganization twenty years ago. I was one of the senior captains of infantry then. I could have got one of those cavalry vacancies just as well as not—been a yellow major ten years before the leaves dropped on my shoulders in the blue; but if by any chance I were ordered into the dragoons today I'd swap out or quit for good. From the time those Bloods and Piegans got their deserved thrashing at the hands of Tim Baker's battalion I've known enough to steer clear of it. You know those facts as well as I do. You know those Indians had been murdering, robbing, burning, pillaging, for two years. You know how all Montana begged and implored General Sheridan to put a stop to it. There was no catching them until winter, and then when he sent those Second cavalry fellows up there with orders to thrash sheol out of them, what was the result? Didn't the papers east and west turn to and damn him and them? Didn't they dub him 'Piegan Phil' from that time forth? No, sir, no cavalry service for me. There's only one thing harder than the knocks that they have been getting for the last twenty years on the frontier, and that's the knocks they've had to bear at home."

But toward the end of January the old post was beginning to pluck up heart again, and to the keen delight of Mrs. Berrien and Winifred their particular major was able to drive with them, bundled up in his furs, and lolling back in the cushions of Berengaria's barouche, as he termed his wife's comfortable carriage, with that rejoicing matron by his side distributing smiles and sunshine and joyous nods of recognition wherever she went, everybody waving hand or hat or handkerchief as they bowled along, and Winifred—bonny Winifred—beaming upon her father from the front seat. Very, very sweet Miss Berrien was looking just now, said all who saw her; yet there was a shade of wistfulness in her face, a constant expression about those deep, dark eyes that seemed to tell they were ever on watch for one who never came. Shattered as was his saber arm, Curly Brewster had scoffed at the idea of being sent back to Pawnee.

"What's the use?" he said. "I would be utterly alone there, while here I have all the fellows about me. What better care do I need?"

In the midst of all their trials and annoyances, in the thick of the whirl of events that followed their sharp and sudden fight, the officers and men of the Twelfth found themselves more closely drawn together even than before. Very little was said when outsiders were by as to the depth of feeling aroused in their ranks by the unaccountable criticism of the press. Very little had to be said in the official investigation of the affair to clear them, one and all, of the array of allegations lodged at their doors. But that every man, from the colonel down, bore away from the field of their winter's travail a sense of injury beyond the scar of savage missile, who could doubt, who could blame? It did not prevent their having some quiet fun of their own, however. Gray haired Farquhar was whimsical in his sympathy with Rolfe, whose scalp had been saved by the man of all others he had most reviled—Sergeant Ellis. Randolph from the recesses of the hospital tent poked no end of gibes at Ridgeway, who had lost his eyeglasses in the morning fight and had been nearly run off with by the Sioux. As for Rolfe's plight, "he lost all the skin from the side instead of the top of his head," laughed Gorham.

It was pitiable enough to make the boys forget the austerity of his past, for to his dying day Rolfe would carry the marks of his involuntary "scrap with a squaw," as Randolph termed it. "Rolfe's scars have come to the surface," chimed in Warren, who never could get along with him. They all hoped that he would go back to Pawnee with the wounded train, and he did. So, too, did Ellis, wearing on the arm in a sling the new chevrons of a first sergeant, won, as said his colonel in presenting them, "together with the heartiest recommendation for a medal of honor I could write, for bravery on the field of battle." Rolfe turned his bandaged head away when Holden gave him all the story. He knew not what to think, much less what to say. Ellis had leaped through the swarm of fighting braves and with the butt of his carbine dashed aside the unsexed fiend whose clutching claws were in the captain's hair, and then had fought like a tiger over the prostrate body and saved the life of the man who had maligned him.

"One half second more and you were gone, Rolfe," said Holden gravely.

"I never said he wasn't a fine soldier," answered Rolfe faintly. "Perhaps I didn't know him aright."

"That isn't all there is to it, Rolfe," was the doctor's reply. "He is more than a soldier. He is a gentleman, and I know it."

Yet when Rolfe expressed a desire to see and speak with Ellis later he calmly begged the doctor to excuse him.

But just why Brewster would not go home with the wounded the boys could not quite understand. He would not be off duty for months. He might not swing saber again for a year. Miss Berrien was there, all readiness, no doubt, to thank him warmly for all he had done to save her and her mother from the blizzard, from the Indians, and heaven knows what all—to bless him for his rescue of papa—to beam upon him with those wondrous dark eyes, thought poor Ridgeway, who felt somehow that, after all, his cake was all dough. And yet Curly wouldn't go. What was more, he had never so much as exchanged one word with Winifred Berrien from the moment of the discovery of the ambulance. It was "Bithroop," as Murphy said, that had the honor of conveying the ladies on to camp and the bedside of the astonished major. It was a blow to Winifred to learn that within twelve hours after their arrival the old battalion had ridden away, Brewster with it.

"I know why Curly doesn't dare go back," said one of the sages of the bachelor mess. "He's afraid Knowles will come out and insist on lugging him off to town to be nursed under his roof or else, after going out to nurse him. Begad! it may be tough, but it's a heap safer here." And so "Antinous" remained with his fellows in the wintry field, and old Berrien, who never could [illegible] found he could stand it no longer. He bade Berengaria "write and say"—well, something—something really must be said about how they appreciated his conduct; "bygones be bygones;" something, anything; he didn't know; she did; she always knew just what to say. "So write, Bess."

"But I have, Dick."

"Berengaria! And without my consent?"

"Richard Plantagenet, Cœur de Lion, Tete de Veau, of course—ten days ago."

"What did you say?"

"Everything that was proper, I trust."

"What did he say?"

"Nothing."

"Didn't he answer?"

"How could he, Dick? You can't with two hands: he has but one, the left at that."

"He might have got somebody to write for him. I did."

"So did he."

"Thought you said he didn't say anything."

"Well, he didn't. He said everything that was gentlemanly courteous, appreciative, and yet—nothing. A model letter, Dick."

"What does Winnie say?"

"Nothing."

"Didn't she see it?"

"Why should she, Dick? Two months ago you practically forbade their meeting."

"Oh, I know, but—I didn't know him then."

"Not even after seven years' service with him, Dick?"

"Oh, well, that—that party in petticoats there in town, I didn't know her as well as—well, as after I heard all about her from those fellows in the Eleventh."

"But I knew her, Dick, from the start."

"I know you did, Bess. You said so, and I suppose I've been an ass," said Berrien ruefully.

"You sometimes do cross the danger line, Dick, dear. That is, when I let you."

The major had nothing to say in response to this accusation. He pondered in silence a moment. "Well, a fellow can change his mind, can't he, as well as a woman?"

"Not as well as a woman, Dick. Still he can change. And suppose a certain fellow were to change his mind now and take six months' leave and go away to be cured?"

"What! Brewster change his mind?—about Winnie, do you mean? Why, confound him! I'd round him up so quick—. The idea of his going back on Winnie! Why if I thought such a thing possible I'd have him here on his knees at her feet inside of a week."

"Oh, no, you wouldn't, Dick," said she, laughing softly.

"Wouldn't? Why not?"

"Just because two women wouldn't let you—I for one, Winnie for two."

"You still think she cares for him?"

"I won't answer that, Dick. But this," with sudden change from her laughing manner, "I will say, no matter what she cared or how she suffered, neither you nor I, Dick, nor any one of us on this wide earth, would ever wring one word from her lips."

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

A Curious Northern Legend.

On the coast of Kamchatka there is an island known as "The Island of Talking Dogs." The curious story connected with this little spot of land, and the one which gives it the name it bears is this; according to an odd Asiatic legend:

The first inhabitants of the far north did not employ dogs, but drew their walrus rib sleds themselves. After ages had elapsed men made an attempt to use the dogs of that region—which, by the way, talked just as men do—as beasts of burden. The talking dogs, however, argued the case with their would be masters and were not long in proving that they had enough to do to catch game for themselves and the children of men. But the men soon learned the use of the bow and the spear, thus ruining the occupation of the talking dogs. Again an attempt was made to harness them to sledges, but the talking canines rebelled, and all swam out to the island, afterward known by the title given in the opening. Here game was scarce and the dogs soon turned cannibals, and by the end of the first winter there were only seven left.

Some human Kamchatkans volunteered to row out to the island and bring off the remnant of the dog colony. But the dogs refused to leave their barren island, each earnestly asking: "What people are you? We have never seen you before." For this untruth Chani, the dog god, took their voices from them, and until this day they have been the dumb servants of man.—St. Louis Republic.

The Tomb of Eve.

The Arabs claim that Eve's tomb is at Jiddah, the seaport of Mecca. The temple, with a palm tree growing out of a crack in the rock roof, which is of itself one of the wonders of the orient, is supposed to be built directly over the resting place of the first woman. According to Arab tradition Eve measured over 200 feet in height, which, unlikely as it may seem, strangely coincides with an account of our first parents written by a member of the French academy, who also claimed a height of over 200 feet for both of the tenants of the garden of Eden.

Eve's tomb, which is a burying ground that is surrounded by a high wall, the gate to which has not been opened for a single interment for over 1,000 years, is the shrine of thousands of devoted Ishmaelites, who make a pilgrimage to the spot once every seven years. Once each year, on June 3, which is, according to Arabian legends the anniversary of the death of Abel, the doors to the tomb of our first mother remain open all night, no odds what precautions are taken to keep them closed. Terrible cries of anguish are said to emit from the tomb, as though the memory of the first known tragedy still haunted the remains which blind superstition believes lie buried there.—Philadelphia Press.

SPEECH BY BLAINE

THE EX-SECRETARY BREAKS HIS SILENCE BY A SHORT ADDRESS.

Residents of White Plains Serenade Him Him and Manage to Draw Him Out. Present Administration Given the Endorsement of the Man from Maine.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Oct. 15.—James G. Blaine has spoken. The magnetic man of Maine has thrown the weight of his utterances into the campaign. His speech was delivered under unique circumstances. There were no cut and dried arrangements, no public hall, no set programme, but when informed at 5 p. m. that the residents of White Plains and the surrounding villages intended serenading him at Ophir Farm, the residence of Whitelaw Reid, the ex-secretary turned to his host and said, "Then I will speak to them."

Mr. Reid invited rather a formidable gathering to dine with Mr. Blaine, but it was a congenial party and a very pleasant one. There were present Chauncey M. Depew, Charles W. Hackett, chairman of the Republican state executive committee; William Brookfield, chairman of the New York county committee; National Committeemen Hobart of New Jersey, Kerens of Missouri, and Hahn of Ohio; W. H. Robertson, ex-collector of the port of New York; Solomon Hirsch, ex-minister to Turkey, and Patrick Egan, minister to Chili.

A Gathering of Citizens.

While they were dining, word was passed that Mr. Blaine was to be given a reception by the citizens of White Plains. The news went by telephone to Portchester, Coscob, and even to Rye, eight miles away. The result was remarkable. At 8 o'clock buggies began to arrive from all directions. Many ladies were present and men of all walks in life from the retired merchant to the town blacksmith. The broad porch was soon filled with ladies and their escorts, while the men stood in groups on the lawn. At 9 o'clock a brass band, followed by a torchlight procession marched up the driveway from the south. It was the colored Republican club of White Plains. They were followed by the Portchester Republican club, also led by a band and carrying torches. The two bodies of men ranged in line in front of the entrance to the Reid mansion. Mr. Blaine was loudly cheered on his appearance. He spoke as follows:

FELLOW CITIZENS OF NEW YORK—I should be churlish, indeed, if I did not make response to your call after you have come to this beautiful home of Mr. Reid, on a pleasant October evening. At the same time I am not making speeches in this canvass for reasons that are well known to my friends and which have no connection whatever with politics. Generally, administrations in a presidential election are challenged on account of the condition of business of the country and I submit the Republican administration of President Harrison can triumphantly endure such a test. I doubt if, since the government of the United States was instituted, anybody at any time has seen what we call "good times" so general, taking in so many interests, and spreading prosperity throughout the whole domain of trade.

The opponents of the Republican party always represent New York as a commercial city and not a manufacturing one, and yet the products of the manufactories of that city alone are $700,000,000. Anything that would cripple that great interest would cripple the metropolis seriously and to a very hurtful extent. More men in New York get their living from pursuits protected by the tariff than from any other source. I know New York is the centre of our commerce, but all the men engaged in commercial affairs in and about New York are smaller in numbers than the men engaged in manufactures. Nor if you go West, where the Democrats say they are making considerable effort and doing a vast amount of boasting, will you find it different. Take Michigan, Ohio, Indiana or Illinois and the products of manufactories are greater in pecuniary amount than the products of agriculture in those four great agricultural states. We learn from the Democratic party that these Western states are in a desperate condition. The amount of their farm mortgages roll up into the millions. You would suppose it fabulous that the amount of money they embrace could ever have been so invested. This is not so among the farmers in New York; it is not so among the farmers in New Jersey; it is not so among the farms of Connecticut; it is not so among the farmers of Pennsylvania; it is not so among the farmers of any state near by whose condition can easily be learned, but by a singular fatality it is the Western states that have got all these farm mortgages burdening them and taking the life out of the people. I do not like to state that these gentlemen have voluntarily misrepresented the facts, but before accepting them as such you will do well and wisely to demand the proof. The tariff, so the Democratic papers say, is the origin of a plutocratic government when wealth shall rule and the poor man shall not get their rights. I shall venture to challenge all statements of that character, and I shall make the Democratic accusers the judges in the case. A careful estimation of the list of wealthy men in this country [illegible] more than one would be considered as derived from manufacturing investments.

I have a word to say about the Irish vote. I see it stated that the Democrats boast of having the Irish in their ranks. That they would render England such a favor by voting the Democratic ticket is one of the mysteries of politics. By voting for protection they can defy all the machinations of the Democratic party for free trade and put their influence in favor of honest home markets against the foreign market of England.

I know my appeal has been frequently made to the Irish voters, but I make it with emphasis now, for I am unwilling to believe that with the light of the knowledge before them they will deliberately be on the side of their former oppressors. I think I shall rely on my good friend, Egan, the brilliant and successful minister to Chili—whom I feel especially glad to meet at Mr. Reid's table this evening—I think I must rely on him to intercede with his countrymen—his countrymen in two senses—not to aid the Democratic party in lowering the standard and the wages of American labor by their potential votes and their potential numbers.

Mr. Depew and Mr. Egan were called upon and made short speeches.

Adele Grant's Newport Raiment.

One of Miss Adele Grant's prettiest Newport toilets thus far this summer is an ivory serge skirt, with narrow gold braid wrought into anchors and cable cord about the bottoms. With it is donned a cornflower blue serge coat, with revers and pockets of ivory. A narrow gold cord girdle holds the bodice full at the waist, and the small, straight brimmed blue straw sailor hat is trimmed with ivory ribbons.—Newport Letter.

Work Horses - - - and Mares.

FOR GOOD, SOLID WORK HORSES and MARES, go to

M. R. BROWN,

The old reliable dealer, who has sold horses in this county since 1878, and who is always on hand to make his guaranty good. Every man who ever sold horses here is ready (when he sells) to guaranty, but later, if you happen to want him to make his guaranty good you can't most always sometimes find him ready to make his recommend good. He handles only good young horses and has sold more than any dealer in the county. He is now prepared to supply the demand for good teams—he handles no other—and guaranty them just as recommended. Before you buy you will do well to call at

Brown's New Stables,

Main Street, one door north of the old M. E. church building.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication Sept. 29th, 1892.]
[Last publication Nov. 10th, 1892.]

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE payment of nine dollars ($9.00) which became due on the first day of October, A. D. 1889, upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Daniel Bernard and Fannie Jane Bernard, his wife, to John Milton Oliver, bearing date the 3d day of October, A. D. 1888, which mortgage together with the power of sale therein contained, was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the county of Polk and state of Minnesota, on the 29th day of October, A. D. 1888, at 8 o'clock and 10 minutes a. m., in book 40 of mortgages, on pages 273, 274 and 275.

It is provided in said mortgage that if said mortgagors shall fail to pay any part of the sum of money thereby secured at the time and in the manner specified in said mortgage; then upon such default, the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage, may at the option of the mortgagee be declared due and payable; and the said John Milton Oliver, mortgagee, who is now the legal holder of said mortgage and of the notes thereby secured, has elected and does hereby elect and declare the whole sum secured by said mortgage to be due; and there is claimed to be due upon said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of forty-eight and 13-100 dollars, ($48.13), and no action or proceeding has been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof,

Wherefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz:

The northeast quarter (ne¼) of Section fourteen, (14) in Township one hundred and fifty-four (154) north, of Range forty-six (46) west, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres more or less, according to the government survey thereof, in the county of Polk and state of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances thereto belonging; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said county of Polk at the front door of the Court House in the city of Crookston, in said county and state, on Saturday, the 12th day of November, A. D. 1892, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon of that day, at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

Dated at Minneapolis, Minn., this 24th day of September, A. D. 1892.

JOHN MILTON OLIVER,
Mortgagee.

C. M. HERTIG,
Attorney for mortgagee. [24-30]

PROBATE NOTICE.

[First publication Oct. 20th, 1892.]

STATE OF MINNESOTA, COUNTY OF POLK ss. In Probate Court, Special Term October 18th, 1892. In the matter of the estate of Julia A. Griggs, deceased. On reading and filing the petition of James Elton, executor of said estate, setting forth the amount of personal estate that has come into his hands, the disposition thereof, and how much remains undisposed of; the amount of debts outstanding against said deceased, as far as the same can be ascertained; the legacies unpaid, and description of all the real estate, excepting the homestead, of which said deceased died seized, and the condition and value of the respective portions or lots thereof; the persons interested in said estate, with their residences; and praying that license be to him granted to sell the whole of the real estate of said deceased mentioned and described in his petition, and it appearing by said petition that there is not sufficient personal estate in the hands of said executor to pay said debts, the legacies or expenses of administration, and that it is necessary for the payment of such debts, legacies or expenses, to sell the whole of said real estate.

It is therefore ordered, that all persons interested in said estate, appear before this court on Monday, the 14th day of November, 1892, at 10 o'clock a. m., at the probate office in the city of Crookston, in said county; then and there to show cause (if any there be) why license should not be granted to said James Elton aforesaid to sell so much of the real estate of said deceased as shall be necessary to pay such debts, legacies and expenses.

And it is further ordered, that this order shall be published once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Polk County Journal, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston, in said county.

Dated at Crookston, the 18th day of October, A. D. 1892.

By the Court:
C. M. BENSON,
Judge of Probate.
[27-29]

PROBATE NOTICE.

[First publication Oct. 20th, 1892.]

STATE OF MINNESOTA, COUNTY OF POLK ss. In Probate Court, special term, October 18th, 1892. In the matter of the estate of Ingborg L. Loen, deceased. Letters of administration on the estate of said deceased being granted to Iver J. H. Loen of said county.

It is ordered, that all claims and demands of all persons against said estate be presented to this court for examination and allowance, at the Probate Office in the city of Crookston, on the third Monday in April, A. D. 1893, at 10 o'clock a. m.

It is further ordered, that six months from the date hereof be allowed to creditors to present their claims against said estate, at the expiration of which time all claims presented or not proven to its satisfaction shall be forever barred, unless for cause shown, further time be allowed.

Ordered further, that notice of the time and place of the hearing and examination of said claims and demands shall be given by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to the day appointed for such examination, in the Polk County Journal, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston, in said county.

Dated at Crookston, the 18th day of October, A. D. 1892.

By the court:
C. M. BENSON,
Judge of Probate.
[27-29]

NEW CIGAR STORE

SIGN OF THE BIG INDIAN.

H. F. BROWN, Proprietor.

Second Street,
CROOKSTON, MINN

Cigars of every known brand, from a cheroot to a 25 center. Cigarettes, Chewing and Smoking Tobaccos of all kinds, Snuff, Pipes to suit the fancy of all from a corn-cob pipe to a meerschaum.

CALL IN.

GREAT NORTHERN Railway
TIME CARD.

MONTANA EXPRESS—Daily.

West			East
7:40 p m	De.	St Paul	Ar. 6:55 a m
2:50 a m	"	Fergus Falls	" 11:25 p m
4:47 a m	"	Glyndon	" 9:36 p m
7:20 a m	"	CROOKSTON	" 7:25 p m
8:40 a m	"	Grand Forks	" 6:20 p m
9:45 a m	"	Larimore	" 5:06 p m
2:1 p m	"	Devils Lake	" 2:55 a m
7:00 p m	Ar.	Butte	De. 7:30 a m

ST. VINCENT BRANCH—Daily except Sunday
Depart 7:30 a m Arrive 6:30 p m
FOSSTON BRANCH—Tues., Thurs. and Sat.
Depart 8:00 a m Arrive 5:30 p m
ST. HILAIRE BRANCH—Monday Wed. & Friday.
Depart 10:45 a m Arrive 4:30 p m
GRAND FORKS' ACCOMMODATION.
Arrive 9:50 a m Depart 7:55 p m

The scenic route to Spokane, Helena, and Butte on the west, and St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth and West Superior on the east. Dining and sleeping cars on all through trains. Tickets on sale to all principal places. Baggage checked through to destination.

W. W. FEGAN, Agent.

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.

TIME SCHEDULE.

	Leave Crookston Daily.	Arrive Crookston Daily.
For Duluth, Ashland, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Chicago, and all points East and South	7:05 p. m.	8:27 a. m.
For Grand Forks, Grafton, Pembina, Winnipeg and points in N. Dakota and Winnipeg	8:27 a. m.	7:05 p. m.

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.

THE

Great Transcontinental Route

Passes through Wisconsin, Minnesota North Dakota, Manitoba, Montana, Idaho, Oregon and Washington.

The Dining Car Line

Dining cars are run between Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Winnipeg, Butte, Helena, Tacoma, Seattle and Portland.

PULLMAN SLEEPING CAR ROUTE.

Pullman service daily between Chicago, St. Paul, Montana and the Pacific Northwest; and between St. Paul, Minneapolis and Minnesota, North Dakota and Manitoba points.

THE POPULAR LINE.

Daily Express Trains carry elegant Pullman Sleeping Cars, Dining Cars, Day Coaches, Pullman Tourist Sleepers and Free Colonist Sleeping Cars.

YELLOWSTONE PARK ROUTE.

The Northern Pacific R. R. is the rail line to Yellowstone Park; the popular line to California and Alaska; and its trains pass through the grandest scenery of seven states.

THROUGH TICKETS

Are sold at all coupon offices of the Northern Pacific Railroad to points North, East, South and West, in the United States and Canada.

For rates, maps, time tables, or special information, apply to
CHAS. A. SHARKEY,
Agent Northern Pacific R. R.,
Crookston, Minn.
CHAS. S. FEE,
Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent,
St. Paul, Minn.

WANTED SALESMEN,
Local and Traveling.

To represent our well known house. You need no capital to represent a firm that warrants nursery stock first-class and true to name. WORK ALL THE YEAR. $100 per month to the right man. Apply quick, stating age.

L. L. MAY & CO.,
Nurserymen, Florists and Seedsmen,
(This house is responsible.) St. Paul, Minn.

A. H. DUNLAP, M. D.
Graduate McGill University, Montreal.
LICENSED COLLEGE PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS, QUEBEC.
Office in McKinnon Block.

S. L. COLLINS,
Proprietor of Main Street
Livery and Feed Stables.

Cor. Main and Fourth Sts., west side,
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

Horses bought and sold on commission. Everything neat and nobby. Feeding a specialty.

FINE HEARSE

in connection, which I will attend to in person.

C. HENDRICKSON, President.
L. ELLINGTON, Vice President.
J. W. WHEELER, Cashier.
H. STEENERSON, 2d Vice President.
A. P. Hanson, Assistant Cashier.

Scandia-American Bank,

Of Crookston, Minn. Organized under the State laws. Authorized capital $200,000. Paid up capital $50,000. Undivided profits $10,000. Buys Bonds, School and Town Orders. Special attention to collections. Interest on time deposits.

DIRECTORS—C. G. Christianson, E. F. Pierce, O. H. Locken, A. G. Gallasch, H. Steenerson, J. H. Locken, C. Hendrickson, Max Ericsson, L. K. Aaker, J. W. Wheeler.

DEFECTIVE PAGE

COCKRAN ANSWERED.

CLEVELAND DENOUNCED IN JUNE AND EULOGIZED IN SEPTEMBER.

Upon Which Occasion Did the Great Tammany Hall Orator State the Truth? Extracts from Both Speeches—Cockran's Present Ungrateful Task.

The Hon. Bourke Cockran formally opened the Democratic campaign in the interior of the state by a speech at Albany. With some of the assertions regarding the issues of the campaign which Mr. Cockran impetuously made before an excited crowd of Democrats on that occasion The Press proposes to deal later. At present we will only discuss the portion of the eloquent Tammany orator's remarks directly concerned with the personality and prospects of Grover Cleveland. It is a characteristic of Mr. Cockran to do with all his might what he undertakes. Hence his panegyric of the perennial candidate was fervid, not to say flamboyant. According to Mr. Cockran, speaking on Sept. 15, Grover Cleveland is a most remarkable and exalted personage. He said:

"The people of this country believe that he typifies today the highest form of development which American citizenship has reached, because in all his life and all his career there is not a single act which needs explanation, and though enemies may criticise him the whole people admire and respect him."

This is fine, very fine. It is the natural language of enthusiastic oratory in which Mr. Cockran is an adept. The Press will not attempt to answer Mr. Cockran. We will allow him to answer himself. Here, for instance, are a few of his statements regarding Mr. Cleveland in that famous and thrilling speech which he made in the hall of the Chicago convention:

"I believe that Mr. Cleveland is a very popular man, a most popular man. I have said that I believe that he is a most popular man—let me say a man of extraordinary popularity every day in the year except one, and that is election day—a popularity which I might describe as tumultuous, but not reducible to votes. It is delusive. So it is calculated to arouse enthusiasm four months before election and to produce disappointment for four years after election.

"I have heard it stated here, I think by the gentleman from Pennsylvania, that in 1884 the state of New York protested against the nomination of Mr. Cleveland, and foretold his probable defeat. The gentleman from Pennsylvania is mistaken in his history. The state of New York voted for Mr. Cleveland in 1884. The state of New York, by an overwhelming majority, presented his name to this convention. A minority of the delegation protested in the hearing of the nominating body against the great folly of imperiling prospects that looked as fair as any that dawned over the Democracy. Now, the prophecy was not carried out or realized. But why? We are told that Cleveland carried the state. We are told that he was successful at the polls, but do not the gentlemen remember that the victory was due to Burchard rather than to this amazing popularity, which appears to be so great before the eye in springtime and so impalpable in the colder lights of November?"

These sentences are taken directly from the version of the Chicago speech revised by Mr. Cockran personally. They show that the opinion of Cleveland's popularity entertained by Mr. Cockran in June differs widely from the opinion expressed by him in September. At Albany Mr. Cockran declared that "we enter tonight on a canvass which must be prosecuted upon lines laid down by him (Cleveland) five years ago." What were Mr. Cockran's views at Chicago regarding the chances of Democratic success upon the "lines laid down five years ago?" Here they are:

"I oppose him (Cleveland) in this convention because he comes between my party and the light of success at the polls. I oppose him in this convention because his candidacy imperils the success of a party which is now visited with bright and alluring prospects.

"I warn this convention, from the experience of every Democrat who has carried the state of New York—and none has failed to do it in nine years except Mr. Cleveland—that you cannot get one Mugwump vote without driving away a hundred Democratic votes.

"We have a homogeneous party now. For God's sake, leave it to us. If we be not accorded the nomination that we ask for from the state of New York, give us any citizen in this United States who is a Democrat. Give us some man who will not raise up against us any active hostile force within our own ranks.

"I believe it was the distinguished military hero from Massachusetts, General Collins, who declared there was no Democrat in this Union that would vote against that ticket, but there sit behind him two soldiers whose deeds have not escaped the attention of history, two heroes who have led the Union armies to victory, but who have never made faces at the vanquished foe, and they will tell you here, comrades who fought with them, heroes who sustained them and heroes who lowered their swords to them on the field of battle—they will tell you that the soldier vote of New York—of whom there are 25,000 at least Democratic—will not support the nomination of Mr. Cleveland. Gentlemen, I submit to you, is it wise to antagonize that vote, to antagonize it without reason, to antagonize it blindly, defiantly, recklessly?"

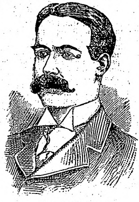
The Press tenders to Mr. Cockran the assurance of its sympathy. The task of acting as eulogist to the candidate whom he denounced so mercilessly in the Chicago convention must be highly ungrateful to him. And we have his own word to show that he expects from his present efforts nothing but disaster and defeat.—New York Press.

A PROBABLE GOVERNOR.

John Kean, Jr., Whom the New Jersey Republicans Have Nominated.

Congressman John Kean, Jr., of Elizabeth, N. J., was recently nominated by the Republicans of New Jersey for governor, and it is confidently expected that he will defeat Judge Werts, the Democratic candidate. Perhaps an idea of Mr. Kean's remarkable strength, politically speaking, may best be gained by the following sketch of his personality, taken from the New York World, a rank Democratic paper:

John Kean, Jr.—you mustn't forget the "Jr." because John, pater, is still to the fore—was born one fine morning about thirty-eight years ago, and there was a gold spoon in his mouth. He is of medium height, stoutly built and decidedly blond, with what the Scotch call a sandy mustache. Blushing is one of his weaknesses, and when that feeling is on him his face is as rosy as that of the ideal country boy. He could easily be a dude if he wanted to, but his tastes don't run in that direction. When he was old enough to comprehend things his father asked him if he intended to keep the golden spoon in his mouth. John rolled the article up, put it away safely, and then said he was conceited enough to imagine that he could do something in the world.



JOHN KEAN, JR.

The old gentleman was pleased to hear that, and he gave John a few thousand dollars to start on. The money was shrewdly invested and reinvested until today John Kean, Jr., is worth $500,000 in his own right. When his parents die he will be a millionaire. He runs two banks, a water company, a gas company, a street car company and other institutions in Elizabeth, not to speak of concerns elsewhere in which he is interested. He is so boyish in his frankness and good nature that casual acquaintances don't give him credit for knowing much about practical affairs. Individuals of that class would have their eyes opened if they were to accompany him on his rounds for a day or even a few hours.

Without referring to a note he can tell you what business the banks and the gas company are doing now and how it compares with last year; he can tell you what is spent in this department and in that, and he knows just what is needed and what is not. He believes in spending money for improvements if there is even a remote prospect of any return.

He lives with his parents at the family homestead on the outskirts of the city. It was formerly the Livingston mansion and is a handsome domicile. John rises between 6 and 6:30 o'clock every morning, and an hour later he is at the office of the water company. From that time until 5 or 6 o'clock in the evening he is about as busy a man as can be found in Union county. He has a standard reputation for generosity.

A Conservative Position.

Mark the language. The president does not say that he will recommend the enactment of any particular measure, but merely that he will urge upon congress the appointment of a nonpartisan commission to investigate the subject and report what can be done to secure free and fair elections in the choice of national officers. In the light of this moderate, just and conservative position, how absurd is the Democratic assertion that the president is madly bent on congressional legislation that will take the control of elections out of the hands of the states! He shows that the force bill spook is purely a creature of the Democratic imagination—a hobgoblin for campaign purposes only.—Indianapolis Journal.

A. A. JUST, M. D.,
Homoeopathic Physician and Surgeon
OFFICE IN
McKinnon Block, Crookston

THE PIONEER
HARNESS SHOP,
M. RAUENBUEHLR, Proprietor.
A full supply of everything kept by the trade.
Cor. of Broadway, and Third Sts,
CROOKSTON, MINN

FITS—All fits stopped free by Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. No Fits after first day's use. Marvelous cures. Treatise and $2.00 trial bottle free to Fit cases. Send to Dr. Kline, 931 Arch St. Phila., Pa. For sale by all druggists; call on yours.

L. E. GOSSMAN,
Attorney-at-Law,
No. 2 Fournet Block } CROOKSTON, MINN.

MILLER & FOOTE,
ATTY'S-AT-LAW,
McKinnon Block, - Crookston, Minn.

"WORTH A GUINEA A BOX."
JARS
In the family are more often the result of disordered digestion than most people know.
BEECHAM'S PILLS will keep peace in a family, by curing Sick Headache, Weak Stomach, Impaired Digestion, Disordered Liver, Constipation and all Bilious and Nervous Disorders arising from these causes.
Covered with a Tasteless & Soluble Coating.
Of all druggists. Price 25 cents a box.
New York Depot, 365 Canal St.

The date opposite your name on this paper shows the time your subscription is paid up to. The JOURNAL would like to have all those who are in arears, and can spare the money, remit as soon as possible, as the new management would like to get all the old accounts settled up.

Town Clerks.

The following is a list of the town clerks for the several towns in Polk county:

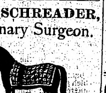
Andover,	E M Bivins	Crookston
Angus,	A B Carleton	Angus
Black River,	P A Eckstrom	Wylie
Bray,	Albert Wickstrom	Wylie
Badger	P N Savalrud	Sletten
Brandsvold,	Ole Nelson	Fosston
Belgium,	Henry Biever	Euclid
Brislet,	A P Frank	Warren
Bygland,	Thos. Benson	Fisher
Crookston,	E O Flanders	Crookston
Crookston, city,	E C Caruth	Crookston
Columbia,	R H Carr	Columbia
Chester,	O J Mattson	Lindsay
Emardville,	Peter Anderson	Emard
Euclid,	F Tiedt, Jr.,	Euclid
Eden,	Nerl A Skeie	Olga
Fairfax,	Wm Himmelsback	Crookston
Farley,	Mark Congdon	Warren
Fanny,	Walter Latta	Buffington
Fisher,	Halvor Gunderson	Fisher
Fisher, vil.,	John Gleason	Fisher
Gd Forks,	John McCoy	E G Forks
Gd Forks, city,	John McCoy	E G Forks
Garfield,	Iver J Ingebretson	Fertile
Garden,	John Hanson	Ringdal
Gentilly,	H F Gendron,	Gentilly
Gervais,	John Deforge	R L Falls
Grand Park,	E E Abbott	Mentor
Godfrey,	D T Mitchell,	Maple Bay
Hammond,	Ernest Hauna	Crookston
Higdem,	Ole Hendrickson	E G Forks
Hill River,	Fred S Syeverson	Lindsay
Huntsville,	O Osmundson	Mallory
Hubbard,	Frank Hanson,	Neilsville
Keystone,	D E Geddes	E G Forks
Kertsonville,	Fred Benoit	Gentilly
King,	K C Norsving	McIntosh
Knute,	O H Dale	Erskine
Lake Pleasant,	Jos Perrault	R L Falls
Lambert,	Samuel Cebean,	Lambert
Liberty,	Nelson Clementson	Fertile
Lessor,	H Helgeson	Ovetla
Lowell,	Ole Christianson,	Crookston
Louisville,	Louis Huot	Huot
Nesbit,	Robert Nesbit	Mallory
Norden,	O J Tweet	Tweet
North,	S T Johnson	T R Falls
Numedal,	Olaf Larson	Warren
Onsted,	W A Marin	Melvin
Parnell,	Thos Filbau	Crookston
Poplar River,	J B Hebert	Brooks
Polk Centre,	Wm Wylie,	Wylie
Queen,	Hans L Houkom	Fosston
R L F, village,	August Herard,	R L Falls
Red Lake Falls,	Aldaig Baril	R L Falls
Reis,	D C Hallock	Bina
River Falls,	K C Gigstad	St. Hilaire
Rocksbury,	P Englestad	St. Hilaire
Roome,	P Boukon	Neby
Rosebud,	A E Randkler	Fosston
Russia,	Orens Simmons	Crookston
Sanders,	Nils K Anderson	St. Hilaire
Sandsville,	Henry Nelson	E G Forks
St. Hilaire,	L J Johnson	St. Hilaire
Sletten,	Ingebret Larson	Winger
Sullivan,	P A Hotvedt	E G Forks
Tabor,	F J Cernousek	Tabor
Terrebonne,	Edonor Perruse	Terrebonne
Tilden,	S J Furan	Dugdale
Tynsid,	A O Stortroen	Neby
Vineland,	John Thompson	Neby
Winger,	Albert Johnson	Winger
Woodside,	Joseph Tagley	Woodside
Wyandotte,	O J Johnson	St. Hilaire
Rhinehart,	Oscar Winck	E G Forks
Thief River Falls	C J Knox	T R Falls

Cook's Cotton Root
COMPOUND.
A recent discovery by an old physician. Successfully used monthly by thousands of Ladies. Is the only perfectly safe and reliable medicine discovered. Beware of unprincipled druggists who offer inferior medicines in place of this. Ask for Cook's Cotton Root Compound, take no substitute, or inclose $1 and 6 cents in postage in letter, and we will send, sealed, by return mail. Full sealed particulars in plain envelope, to ladies only, 2 stamps.
Address Pond Lily Company,
No. 3 Fisher Block, Detroit, Mich.
Sold at Crookston by A. G. Anderson, A. Wallace, F. L. Durand and druggists everywhere.

WOOD'S PHOSPHODINE
The Great English Remedy.
Promptly and permanently cures all forms of Nervous Weakness, Emissions, Spermatorrhea, Impotency and all effects of Abuse or Excesses. Been prescribed over 35 years in thousands of cases; is the only Reliable and Honest Medicine known. Ask druggist for Wood's Phosphodine; if he offers some worthless medicine in place of this, leave his dishonest store, inclose price in letter, and we will send by return mail. Price, one package, $1; six, $5. One will please, six will cure. Pamphlet in plain sealed envelope, 2 stamps.
Before and After.
Address THE WOOD CHEMICAL CO., 131 Woodward avenue, Detroit, Mich.
Sold at Crookston by . C. Anderson, S. A. Wallace, F. L. Durand and druggists everywhere.

JOHN CROMB.
Attorney-at-Law.
SECOND STREET. CROOKSTON

IF YOU ARE GOING EAST OR SOUTH ASK YOUR NEAREST AGENT FOR TICKETS VIA THE BURLINGTON AND TAKE NO OTHER LINE.



E. D. SCHREADER,
Veterinary Surgeon.
Horse Dentistry a Specialty.
All Calls receive Prompt Attention. Satisfaction guaranteed in all cases. Office: 319 North Main Street, in connection with Livery house.
CROOKSTON, MINN.

Ripans Tabules cure dyspepsia.
Ripans Tabules cure constipation.

M. LeGUEE.
Veterinary Surgeon
Residence and office on Jerome's Addition.
CROOKSTON, - - - MINN.

P. J. RUSSELL,
Attorney-at-Law
CROOKSTON, MINN.
Next to Merchants' Bank.

THE NEW
NORTHWEST
Home seekers will find the last of the public domain of agricultural and grazing value along the Great Northern Ry. in North Dakota and Montana. FARM LANDS
NEW TOWNS 100 or more, along the Great Northern Railway Line. Business chances. Write F. I. WHITNEY, St. Paul, Minn., for Books, Maps, &c. Write now.
Settlers on free Government lands along the Great Northern Ry. Line in North Dakota and Montana get low rates and fine markets for products. LOW RATES
Montana produces the finest Horses and Cattle. Free ranges yet in Mouse, Milk and Sun River Valleys and Sweet Grass Hills. Horses, Cattle.
Health, Wealth. In the Northwest. Free Lands. New Towns, New Railways, New Mines, Low Rates. Largest area of good vacant land.
Sweetest Grass Hills. Milk and Sun River Valleys, Montana, reached only by the Great Northern Railway Line. The stock raisers' paradise. Sheep, Hogs.
Herds, Mines These have made Montana the richest State per capita in the Union. Plenty of room for more miners and stock raisers. Now is the time.

U. S. LAND OFFICE.
Crookston, Minn., October 3rd, 1892.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof be made before the Register or Receiver U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on November 14th, 1892, viz: Isaac N. Kingsland, Hd. 12583 for the N. E. ¼ Sec. 22, Tp. 148, R. 47. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of, said land, viz: William S. Rathary, Torson T. Sveen, James Miller, Lorenzo Judson, all of Crookston, Minn.

25-301 HUGH THOMPSON, Register.

KOPS BRO'S
105 Third Street,
GRAND FORKS, N. DAKOTA
PIANOS, ORGANS
WEBER, HAINES BROS., KURTZMANN, MATHUSHEK, McCAMMON PIANOS, Estey and Chicago Cottage Organs. New Upright Pianos from $250 to $1,000, on terms of $10 to $25 per month. New Organs from $60 to $250 on terms of $5 to $10 per month.
Satisfaction guanteed. Write for catalogue and prices. KOPS BROS.
Grand Forks, N. D.

First National Bank
OF CROOKSTON
PAID IN CAPITAL, - $100,000
SURPLUS. - - - $14,200
Interest on time deposits. Faithful attention to Collections and prompt remittance.
GEO. Q. ERSKINE, President.
WM. ANGLIM, Vice President.
CHAS. E. SAWYER, Cashier.
DIRECTORS:
Wm. Anglim, K. D. Chase, E. D. Childs
Geo. Q. Erskine. J. R. McKinnon. A. A. Miller
E. M. Walsh. Chas. E. Sawyer W. H. Crosby

FRANK IVES, Notary Public and U S. Com's'r
D. E. HATLESTAD, District Court Commissioner
IVES & HATLESTAD,
Attorneys and Counselors at Law,
CROOKSTON, - - - - MINN.
Will practice in all the courts and before the U. S. Land Office at Crookston and Washington. Pensions and Soldiers' Claims and Patents carefully and promptly adjusted.
We loan money on improved farms and city property and have facilities for placing large loans at low rate of interest. We give special attention to collection and all commercial business pertaining to our profession.

H. STEENERSON
ATTORNEY AT LAW
CROOKSTON, - MINNESOTA

MARTIN O'BRIEN,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
{I. O. O. F. BUILDING.} Crookston, Minn.

FITS STOPPED FREE
Marvelous success.
Insane Persons Restored
Dr. KLINE'S GREAT NERVE RESTORER
for all BRAIN & NERVE DISEASES. Only sure cure for Nerve Affections, Fits, Epilepsy, etc. INFALLIBLE if taken as directed. No Fits after first day's use. Treatise and $2 trial bottle free to Fit patients, they paying express charges on box when received. Send names, P. O. and express address of afflicted to DR. KLINE, 931 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa. See Druggists. BEWARE OF IMITATING FRAUDS.

G. G. HENAULT
Practical Dentist,
SECOND STREET,
CROOKSTON, - - MINN
OFFICE IN DOBSON'S BLOCK,
☞ All work in my line skilfully and promptly performed. Give me a call.
G. G. HENAULT.

A word to the wise and money savers.
GERVAIS'--The Hustlers,
THE GREATEST AGGREGATION OF
Spring and Summer Goods
That Ever Landed in the Northwest, comprising
The Latest Novelties in Fancy and Domestic Goods.
Dress Goods and Trimmings,
Jackets, Cloaks and Cloakings,
Parasols and Umbrellas for rain and sunshine.
White Goods and Embroideries,
Wash Goods in all the newest weaves,
Jersey ribbed and muslin Underwear.
Ladies' Shirt Waists in many styles,
Spring Caps and Straw Hats.
CARPETS
In all grades and newest designs.
Lace and Chenille Curtains and Portiers,
House Furnishing Goods, of all kinds,
New departure in Boots and Shoes.
Call In and Get Prices.
I. O. O. F. Block, Crookston.
GERVAIS & GERVAIS, Leaders in Low Prices.

You Can Buy Reliable
AGRICULTURAL MACHINERY
—OF—
SYLVESTER & FINSETH,
—CHEAPER AND BETTER—
Than anywhere. We handle Buckeye and Osborne Binders with all extras for same, and Twine. Buckeye and Imperial Mowers with extras. Buckeye and Monitor Rakes, Eli, Oliver and Bradley Gang Plows, Stubble and Breaking Plows, the Standard Rotary Shuttle Sewing Machine, Nichols & Shepard New Vibrator Threshing Machine. Also the Jackson, Mitchell and Favorite Wagons, the Enterprise Buggies, Spring Wagons and Carts on all of which we can undersell Grand Forks and other places. We also carry everything that can be had in any first class Hardware Store and invite everybody to call and see us at the corner of Broadway and Fletcher Sts.
SYLVESTER & FINSETH, Crookston, Minn.

We Have too many SHOES
WE MUST SELL A GOOD MANY SHOES
This fall as we cannot afford to keep them over the next season. We have therefore decided for the next
Three Weeks
TO SLAUGHTER OUR SHOE STOCKS
At both our Robert street and Main street stores. All are urged to TAKE ADVANTAGE
and supply themselves with SHOES At a saving of 25 per cent.
Yours Respectfully,
LOCKEN & HOLMBOE,

NORTHWESTERN College of Commerce
GRAND FORKS, - - - - - NORTH DAKOTA.
THE GREAT CHAIN OF BUSINESS COLLEGES under the above name offers facilities superior to any school in the Northwest for obtaining a Practical Education. Four Courses. Commercial, Shorthand and Typewriting, Ornamental Penmanship and English. Students receive personal instruction and can enter at any time and take just such studies as they desire. Evening School now in session. Good board $2.00 per week. TUITION REASONABLE. Three thousand Handsome Catalogues for Free Distribution. Send for one. Write for particulars.
H. L. RUCKER, President. J. J. SWENGEL, Principal.

Valley Roller Mills
MANUFACTURERS OF
FINE FLOUR
From Selected Red River Wheat.
QUOTATIONS.

Best	$2.25	per 98 lbs.
North Star	2.10	" "
Fife	1.90	" "
Skip Jack	1.25	" "
Bran	9.00	" ton.
Shorts	10.00	" "

Call early and get your supply of feed.
☞ We exchange flour for wheat on equitable terms.
LEE & HERRICK.

W. A. ROBERTSON
D. D. S.
Graduate of Dental Department of the University of Maryland.
OPERATIVE AND MECHANICAL
DENTIST.
N. B. Nitrous Oxide Gas, (Laughing Gas) administered for the painless extraction of teeth.
OFFICE IN McKINNON BLOCK.

NEW BARBER SHOP.
On Main St. C. E. MISNER, Prop
Invites your patronage. Everything in the very latest style of the art.
RAZORS HONED. If you desire your Razor Honed and cannot bring it, send it to me with 30 cents and your name and address and I will hone and return it.
Yours Respectfully,
C. E. MISNER.

Ripans Tabules cure the blues.

Polk County Journal.

BY COOKE & HAMMOND.

Devoted to the Welfare of Polk County.

OFFICIAL PAPER, CITY OF CROOKSTON.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Dollar and Fifty Cents, if paid in advance to any address inside of Polk County. If outside of Polk County 15 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum to any address.

THE REPUBLICAN TICKET.

National.

President—BENJAMIN HARRISON,
Of Indiana.
Vice-Pres.—WHITELAW REID,
Of New York.

State.

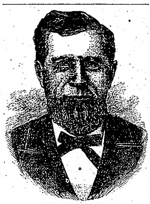
Governor—KNUTE NELSON,
Of Alexandria.
Lieut. Gov.—D. M. CLOUGH,
Of Minneapolis.
Sec. of State—F. P. BROWN,
Of Blue Earth County.
Atty-Gen.—H. W. CHILDS,
Of Otter Tail County.
Treas.—JOS. BOBLETER,
Of Brown County.
Supreme Court Judges—
C. E. VANDERBURGH,
D. A. DICKINSON,
WILLIAM MITCHELL

Congressional.

Congressman 7th District—
HENRY FEIG,
of Kandiyohi County.

County.

Auditor.—W. A. LANCTOT,
Of Crookston.
Treasurer.—LEWIS LOHN,
Of Fosston.
Register of Deeds.—NIC NELSON,
Of Norden Township.
Attorney.—IRA C. RICHARDSON,
Of Thief River Falls.
Sheriff.—JAS. M. BAIN,
Of Fisher.
Judge of Probate.—
R. J. MONTAGUE,
Of Crookston.
Supt. of schools.—V. D. CARRUTH,
Of Crookston.
Surveyor.—GEORGE RALPH,
Of Crookston.
Coroner.—GEORGE HOLT,
Of Crookston.
Court Commissioner,
G. H. PALMER,
Crookston.



KNUTE NELSON,
Republican Candidate for Governor

MISTAKES OF THE ALLIANCE.

When the farmers alliance was formed it was composed wholly of farmers. It was formed by farmers, of farmers and for the farmers. It was a business organization wholly and so remained for several years growing slowly but surely and accomplishing the work whereunto it was established until in an evil day a few sharp designing politicians saw what they considered a golden opportunity to further their own schemes and feather their own nests and straightway they began to manifest a lively interest in the "poor down-trodden suffering farmer." But these were not farmers and of course could not belong to the organization so they moved to change the constitution of the alliance to allow them to get in their work and that body has been a tempest in a tea-pot ever since. These marplots soon found that they could not accomplish their ends by simply depending upon the farmers so they moved to make an independent political party out of the alliance which was done at their instance and then when this was done and a state ticket was put into the field they turned loose upon the ticket and defeated it because it was not composed of men whom they could control—because it was not composed of their tools. Later on they saw that their schemes could not be carried out by the farmers alone so they moved to wreck the alliance and on its neglected grave to build up an organization purely political—in the interests of no one except the leaders—and even here they were successful or appeared to be, for the people's party was formed and the alliance lives only in the hearts of a faithful few who are too sensible to be hood-winked by scheming politicians. The strength of the alliance in northern Minnesota lay in the conditions that existed in our wheat market whereby the elevators, the millers and the wheat buyers were enabled to so control matters that they made an undue proportion of the profits. The farmers imagined that if they combined into an organization they could devise some means to protect themselves and so they could have done had they stuck to that plan—but this would not do for the scheming politicians—who would not be benefited by a deal of that kind, so they conspired together to wreck the alliance and unfortunately for the farmers they were successful. They brought out all sorts of impossible schemes for converting the whole United States, schemes which if they were not intended to thwart the very object the northern Minnesota farmer needs. certainly can have no other effect, for the schemers well know that their peculiar tenets have no followers in a large majority of the states and they know that they never can have. That these are facts is proven in many ways and notably in their efforts to keep the members of their party in ignorance as to what is going on. On the stump and through their organs they urge their followers not to read any papers except those devoted especially to their own peculiar views. They urge them not to go to hear any other speakers except people's party speakers, they urge them to blindly vote the people's party ticket no matter who or what may be on it. Instead of trying to educate the masses they are trying all they can to blind their eyes with the dust of bigotry and for what? Why simply and solely in order that through the dust they raise they may secure what they are after—the offices! But we can see one good that will come out of it all. As we have said before it will be the means of setting the farmers to thinking and as soon as a man begins to think he begins to read and post himself up and as soon as he begins to think for himself he begins to act for himself—in his own interests and not simply because some glib-tongued political office-seeker tells him what he must or what he must not do. The farmers are thinking and the country will be safe.

HENRY FEIG, the republican candidate for congress, while in the city on Monday gave the JOURNAL a call and we enjoyed a pleasant chat with him. Mr. Feig is one of the intelligent farming farmers of Minnesota, but a man who is not so narrow-minded that, should he be elected, would go to congress to represent simply the interests of only one class of people, but the interests of all alike would be sacred in his eyes. When the alliance was first formed as a business organization, he entered into it heart and soul and was instrumental in organizing his county, but when schemers took control of the organization and attempted to make it merely a political machine, he did all in his power to prevent them, and of course did not follow the alliance into the people's party. He recognized the fact that the alliance, used as it was intended to be used when it was organized, would have been the means of accomplishing much good for the farmers, but as a political machine it would be worse than useless as far as doing the farmers any good was concerned. He saw that it was not necessary to convert the whole world to a new, strange doctrine in order to regulate Minnesota's wheat markets—but so far as politics were concerned it was only necessary to use it as a balance of power to accomplish all that can be accomplished by legislation. Mr. Feig is a farmer—an intelligent farmer and a good legislator, as his course in the Minnesota legislature amply proves—he understands the needs of farmers, and being an experienced legislator, would be better able to help them than would a man who knows nothing about legislation. Our democratic friends tell us that Mr. Kelso is a "farmer, an honest, intelligent farmer," and while this may be true it is also true that Mr. Kelso is not an experienced legislator and if elected all he could do would be to vote with his party, and his party has never been known to pay much attention to the interests of farmers, or anything else save their own selfish schemes. Farmers, if you want an honest, upright representative in congress, vote for Henry Feig.

C. C. WALCOTT, the man who tried to blackmail the millers and elevator men of the northwest, and failing in that, went into a combination with the wheat gamblers of Chicago and issued his pamphlet of charges against the millers and elevator men—this man Walcott is the same man who organized and conducted the Skandinavian Elevator Co., which was the biggest swindle ever perpetrated upon the farmers of the northwest. He got the farmers to subscribe for stock in the company, and a few elevators were built. Walcott got what money he could out of it and then skipped out. Now the assignee of the company, Geo. H. White, has brought suit against over 200 defendants throughout the state, in the district court, who are farmers for the most part. The action is to force them to pay, as stockholders of the company, about $12,000 liabilities under the law of the double liability of stockholders. A demurrer was interposed against the assignee instituting the suit instead of a creditor, but was set aside.

Around Redwood Falls, a number of farmers claim that they never received certificates of stock in the company, and they refused to pay notes and take their certificates when some were sent to a bank in Redwood Falls three years ago, and the notes and certificates were returned to the company. Then the notes were cancelled and sent back to them. They say C. C. Wolcott promised them he would erect an immense elevator at the Falls; pay 1 cent to 5 cents more per bushel for wheat; store it free of charge to stockholders, and gave them glittering promises of big dividends. No elevator was built there and Wolcott departed, and his victims say this is one of his many swindles upon the farmers of this state. At New London, also, 50 or 60 alleged farmer stockholders say they were victimized in the same way. These two points were the ones that apparently suffered the most.

DRAINAGE.

A very important question that should be brought before the coming legislature is the question of drainage. The experience of the past year—when a great deal of our land has been forced to lie idle and very much of that which was sown did not yield a full crop because of too much moisture, shows our need of drainage. To obtain the means it will be necessary to send to the legislature men who are not only familiar with our needs, but men who by reason of experience in legislation know how to obtain the aid necessary. In nominating Hon. Halvor Steenerson the republicans have put up just the kind of a man that the situation demands, and should he be elected he will be a host in himself. His running mates are also men of experience, capable and good workers, men who will ably supplement his efforts. No better men for the purpose could be found.

BE SURE to register on Tuesday next if you are not already registered. If there is any doubt about it, go and make sure of it.

MOSES E. CLAPP, Henry Feig and C. A. Severance will deliver addresses in McKinnon's hall next Saturday. Go and enjoy a treat.

NOT long ago the Press, a republican paper at Thief River Falls, endorsed P. J. Russell, the democratic nominee for Judge of Probate, and straightway thereafter Mr. Russell pulled off of the ticket. We are not sure whether the first part influenced the second.

THE McIntosh Times calls W. G. Hunt a self-confessed boodler and blackmailer, and says his "word is so entirely unreliable that no well-posted man in this community would accept it under oath." And to this blackmailer and his story the St. Paul Globe devotes about a page. The Globe can be truthfully called the blackmailer's organ.

THE nominees for judge of probate on the republican and democratic county tickets—R. J. Montague and P. J. Russell—have withdrawn in favor of Frank Montague, who will run as an independent candidate. Frank was deputy clerk of the court for five years, and was clerk in the probate court for about three years, and is thoroughly familiar with the work in that office and well qualified for the position.

THE qualification of a voter in Minnesota is that he is a citizen of the United States or alien who has declared intention or a civilized Indian, and all such must have resided in the state four months, in the county 10 days or in the precinct 10 days. Any one seeking registration who cannot show himself thus qualified should be excluded. That is all there is about it. And it is the duty of registration officers to keep the books clear of the unqualified, even if the democrats howl.

IN another column Judge Mills pays his respects to N. L. Nelson, of Norman county, who accused him of taxing up too much costs against the plaintiffs in several suits brought by farmers against the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba railway company. Everybody who has ever had any experience in court matters knows that the attorneys in a case fix up a bill of costs and file it with the clerk of the court, and the judge has about as much to do with fixing up the costs as the man in the moon.

THE populist leaders urge their adherents to "vote for their own interests." Well, that is all right, but in the same breath they urge them to keep away from all meetings except people's party meetings, to read no papers except people's party papers. Well, how is a man to vote for his own interests unless he studies all sides of the question carefully in order to find out what is for hist best interest? The populist leaders MIGHT be hodest in nheir peculiar notions, and yet they MIGHT make mistakes, and a man might not discover those mistakes until too late, if he blindly votes as they dictated without due idquiry into the merits of their cause. They assert that grave evils exist, but do not point out one single remedy. Not one effective remedy. Consult your own interests by posting yourselves.

THE biggest rally of the campaign will be held by the republicans on the evening of November 5th, when Knute Nelson will deliver an address in the Grand opera house, Crookston. The grandest torchlight procession ever seen in Crookston—headed by the Republican Flambeau club—will be a feature of the demonstration.

P. J. Russell was mystified on Tuesday at receipt of a letter from Dakota which said:

"Hould aisy. Be phwist, but av yees come over, COME afther darruk and kape mum. The game's up and ye'll be arristed at soight, &c."

The document was signed simply "H." and had no doubt been opened by mistake, as Pat aint that kind of a Russell. It was very evidently intended for some of the light fingered gentry now hovering about. It was addressed to E. J. Russell.

AS A RULE the people are very liable to act in their own interest in whatever they undertake. The act of voting seems a very simple thing to do and yet what great results depend upon voting right. People should do that just as they do other things—for the best results to all concerned, and they should be well enough posted upon the questions involved to be able to vote intelligently. Consider all sides of the question and then vote as your judgment and your conscience dictates and you will not go far wrong.

JUST so soon as the people begin to insist upon qualification for office in their candidates, just so soon will political parties be particular whom they nominate. If it is an object to have a party ticket voted for solidly, then it should be incumbent upon the party to put up only such men as are thoroughly qualified to fill the office for which they are nominated. In nominating Mr. E. D. Childs for commissioner the republican party put up the best man that has been nominated for the position—a man who is thoroughly conversant with the needs of the people, and who will if elected have the courage of his convictions and work for economy in the administration of county affairs. No better man could have been selected for that important position, and the JOURNAL hopes to see Mr. Childs elected to represent this commissioner district on the board.

Judge Mills Replies.

Judge Mills has written the following letter which was published in the Red River Valley News, in answer to the recent attack on him in the Crookston Tribune by N. L. Nelson, of Norman county. Judge Mill's letter shows that Nelson's charges are entirely groundless and was written solely for the purpose of prejudicing the people against him.

To the voters of the Fourteenth Judicial District:

A sense of duty to the position I hold, and to several hundreds of voters of this judicial district by whose petition my name has been presented as an independent, nonpartisan candidate for judge of the district court at the coming election, prompts me to make a brief statement in answer to the article published in the Crookston Tribune of the 11th inst., over the signature of N. L. Nelson.

The article above referred to charges me with having in my capacity of judge of the district court, allowed certain bills of costs, and directed the taxation thereof, against the plaintiffs in several cases brought by certain farmers against the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba railway company, in the court over which I preside; that those bills of costs were illegal and unjust, and were so allowed by me in the interest of the said railway company. Such charges, it seems to me, must originate either in a wilful intent to mislead, or in a possibly excusable ignorance of the fact that the judge of the district court has absolutely nothing to do with the allowance or taxation of costs in any case, unless the same is brought before him for hearing on an appeal from the action of the clerk of the court. At this point I desire to quote the rule of court, based upon the laws of the state, which governs all proceedings in such matters, viz: Rule 35, of the rules of practice in the district courts of this state, the language of which is as follows:

> "Rule XXXV. Costs and charges to be inserted in a judgment shall be taxed in the first instance by the clerk upon two days notice. And an appeal therefrom may be taken to the court within 30 days after such taxation by the clerk, and not afterwards. When such appeal is taken, either party may bring the same on for determination before the court on notice, or by an order to show cause. On such appeal the court shall only review the items objected to, and upon the grounds specified before the clerk."

The railroad cases referred to in the Tribune article were nine in number, and among the parties bringing these suits appears the name of N. L. Nelson. The agreement referred to in that article contained no statement of a purpose to save expense, or to make the decision in one case control all the others. By the article we are referred to the records of the court as showing such an agreement. An examination of those records shows the agreement to have been in the following words, after reciting the title of the cases:

> "It is hereby stipulated that a trial by jury in the above cases be waived, and that the same be tried by the court, viz: Hon. Ira B. Mills, district judge, and such other judges, not to exceed two besides himself, as he may invite to sit with him upon the hearing; such trial to be had of said actions upon ten days notice.
>
> Dated June 23, 1888. (Signed). O. MOSSNESS.
> Att'y for Plaintiffs.
> W. E. SMITH,
> M. E. GROVER,
> Atty's for Defendant."

Judges L. L. Baxter of Fergus Falls and C. L. Brown of Morris. were invited to sit upon such trial, and the cases were submitted to these judges by agreement between all the parties, and as will be seen no agreement was made as to costs or expenses. The decisions rendered by the court were concurred in by all the judges named, and no appeals were ever taken from such decisions.

On the 11th day of May, 1889, a motion was made before me by the attorneys for the railway company asking that each expert witness who testified upon the trial be allowed $10 per day for five days attendance in each of said cases. By an order made by the court on that motion it will be found that such expert witnesses were allowed $1.15 per day in addition to the fee of $1 fixed by law. That order is on file as are the other papers in the case and is the best answer to any charge of the allowance of unreasonable fees.

With the exception of the allowance of fees as above stated, to expert surveyors and civil engineers who were actually in attendance and who spent valuable time on the cases, I never had occasion to, and never did pass upon, fixed or in any way have any part in the adjustment or allowance of any item of costs or disbursements of any of those cases.

The records of the court in Clay county show that on May 11th, 1889, the attorneys for the railway company presented to the clerk of court their bills of costs in each of the cases mentioned and the same were taxed and allowed by the clerk as stated in the certificate of the clerk found in the Tribune article. Every person of any experience, or who has taken any pains to inform himself upon these matters, knows perfectly well that the judge of the court has nothing to do with the bills of costs when presented to the clerk of court, that they are taxed by the clerk of court, and judgment entered by him without either the presence or knowledge of the judge. The same court records show that notice of appeal was filed with the clerk of court and served on the defendants, but no such appeal was ever brought before this court for argument or consideration at any time or in any manner, and the record of the judgments and of the taxation of costs in each of these cases stands today and has always stood just as it was made and entered on the day the costs were taxed by the clerk of court.

Mr. Nelson called at my office some time after the judgments were entered and complained of the amount of costs. I informed him that I could not act as his attorney, and advised him to see Mr. Mosness and have the appeal brought on for hearing. As judge of the court I had no right to advise Mr. Nelson or any other person as to his rights or remedies in matters which might come before me for decision, and whatever was said to Mr. Nelson was only to remind him of that fact. I never had any other conversation with Mr. Nelson concerning the matter. This court has at all times been ready, and now is so ready to hear and determine any appeal which may be brought before it in a proper manner in regard to the costs in these cases. Until such hearing is asked I cannot determine the rights of the parties or furnish redress for their grievances, and I am of the opinion that the foregoing statement of facts will be sufficient to satisfy all fair minded people that there has been no corrupt or unfair proceedings had in the cases referred to so far as this court is concerned.

Dated, Moorhead, Oct 19, 1892,
IRA B. MILLS.

Warren Sheaf: Knute Nelson is being enthusiastically received wherever he goes to speak. The people come long distances to see and hear him. He appeals to the sound sense and honest judgment of the people, not to their vanity or their prejudices. His presentation of the issues in this campaign is truthful and sincere, and gains for him the respect and confidence of the voter. The people will not be long in choosing between Donnelly and Nelson. Nelson's election is certain.

Advertised Letters.

List of letters remaining unclaimed at the Crookston postoffice for the week ending Oct. 22nd, 1892.

Fowler Frank W.
Harper: John
Larson. Dortha
Mullarky, James
Paulson. Lena
Shults, John
Shaughnesy, T. C.
Voyt, J. F.
Gunderson Jasy Miss,
Harvey, James.
Mullen, Libbie Miss.
Money, Will
Randolph, Wm. Mrs.
Shofer, Emma 2
Ubvestad, Martha

Persons calling for the above letters please say advertised.

WM. B. DAWLEY, P. M.

Cloaks At Cost

This is no bluff. We have an immense line of Cloaks, and must dispose of them, even if we don't lay up a cent. What we mean by cost is what the goods cost us laid down in our store.

We Mean What We Say.

And if you will come in and price our Cloaks you will be convinced that we can save you money.

Williams & Roberts.

McKINNON BLOCK——MAIN STREET——CROOKSTON.

Before it gets to be cold and stormy, drop around and give your order for your

Winter's Supply of Fuel

We handle only the best quality of Lehigh Coal and will deliver same promptly. Good quality and full weight guaranteed. We aim to please.

We carry a full and well selected line of

HARNESS

Both heavy and light, and sell at Very Low Figures.

We have one or two

BUGGIES

Left which we will sell at your own figure, almost, to close out and clean up for the year.

If you want a

WAGON

Remember we have the Rushford, which cannot be beaten. You will always find our prices reasonable and the goods the best that money can buy.

Remember,

Merit Wins.

Larsen, Carpenter & Co., Opera Block, Crookston.

CITY COUNCIL.

The Official Proceedings of a Meeting Held on Tuesday Evening, October 18th.

A Resolution Passed Vacating Barrett's Addition to the City of Crookston.

The City Engineer's Estimate for Grading Alley in Block 5, F. & L. Addition.

Proceedings of an adjourned meeting of the city council of the city of Crookston, held in the city hall, Tuesday evening Oct. 18th, 1892,

Meeting called to order by President Cromb.

Roll call.

Aldermen present: Austin, Childs, Jennings, Jerome, Morrisey, Marlette, Monroe, Watts, Cromb.

Aldermen absent: Anderson and Walker.

The committee to whom was referred the matter of the vacation of Barrette's addition to the city of Crookston reported, and recommended that the prayer of the petitioner be granted. On motion the report was accepted.

At an adjourned regular meeting of the city council of the city of Crookston, held the 18th day of October, 1892, Alderman Watts offered the following resolution, which was seconded by Alderman Morrisey:

Whereas, The petition of Emma Walsh heretofore and on the 17th day of August, 1892, filed and presented to the council asking that Barrette's addition be vacated and set aside, was referred to a special committee, and said committee having reported in favor of granting said petition, and the notice of the hearing of said petition ordered by the council having been given, and sufficient cause therefor appearing, therefore be it

Resolved, That the plat of Barrette's addition to Crookston be and the same hereby is vacated, annulled and set aside, and all the streets and alleys of said addition be and they hereby are vacated and set aside.

Upon the call of the ayes and nays the vote stood as follows:

Aldermen voting in the affirmative: Austin, Childs, Jennings, Monroe, Morrisey, Marlette, Watts, Cromb.

Aldermen voting in the negative: none.

Upon this vote the resolution was declared carried by the president of the council.

Passed this 18th day of October, 1882.

JOHN CROMB,
President of the Council.

Approved this 18th day of October, 1892.

Attest: WM. ANGLIM, Mayor.
E. C. CARRUTH, Clerk.

On motion the bill of Ed. Allard was allowed and ordered paid.

On motion the bill of W. W. Fegan was allowed and ordered paid.

The committee to whom was referred the matter of grading Front, Loring and Fletcher streets in the neighborhood of the Great Northern freight house, reported that they had met the officials of the road and received a letter from them which was read to the council and referred back to the committee.

The city engineer presented an estimate upon the grading of the alley in block 5, Fletcher & Houston's addition. Totol cost being $78.

At an adjourned meeting of the city council of the city of Crookston, held the 18th day of October, 1892, Alderman Morrisey offered the following resolution, which was seconded by Alderman Watts:

ALLEY IN BLOCK FIVE, FLETCHER & HOUSTON'S ADDITION.

The city of Crookston doth hereby assess and levy upon and against the several lots and parcels of land below described, the respective sums set opposite each lot or parcel.

This assessment is levied to pay the expenses of the city of Crookston in grading along the alley running east and west in block five (5) in Fletcher & Houston's addition to the city of Crookston, and said lots and parcels of land are assessed upon the basis of an equal sum per front foot along the line of such improvements, same being benefits and damages for same duly assessed.

Fletcher & Houston's Addition.

Names of Owners.	Block.	Lot.	Front.	Cost.
Geo. W. Peake	5	1	25	$3 25
John Alderman	5	2	25	3 25
Anderson & Olson	5	3 and 4	50	6 50
Walter Alderman	5	5	25	3 25
J. H. Thomas	5	6	25	3 25
John C. Olmsted	5	7	25	3 25
H. Halvorson	5	8	23	3 25
Felix Fournet	5	9,10,11,12	100	13 25
Fontaine & Anglim	5	13	140	18 20
City Hall and Alley	5	19	160	20 80

Upon the call of the ayes and nays the vote stood as follows:

Aldermen voting in the affirmative: Austin, Childs, Jennings, Jerome, Morrisey, Marlette, Monroe, Watts, Cromb.

Aldermen voting in the negative: none.

Upon this vote the resolution was declared carried by the president of the council.

Passed this 18th day of October, 1892.

JOHN CROMB,
President of the Council.

Approved this 18th day of October, 1892.

Attest: WM. ANGLIM, Mayor.
E. C. CARRUTH, Clerk.

Moved by Alderman Watts, seconded by Alderman Morrisey, that the purchasing agent have the surplus earth from the alley in block 5, Fletcher & Houston's addition placed as the aldermen of the Fourth ward and the city engineer may direct.

The bond and acceptance of the Crookston Gas Light and Heating company was read and ordered filed.

Moved by Alderman Watts, seconded by Alderman Cromb, that the bond of the Crookston Gas Light and Heating company be accepted and approved. Carried.

On motion Aldermen Morrisey, Jennings and Austin were appointed as a committee to look into the repairs of sidewalks during the past year and have the proper assessment rolls made out and to report at the next meeting.

Moved by Alderman Morrisey, seconded by Alderman Marlette, that the committee having in charge the grading of Front, Loring and Fletcher streets be authorized to expend not to exceed $100 in preparing Robert street on the river bank to receive the clay to be hauled from Front street.

Ayes: Austin, Childs, Jennings, Jerome, Morrisey, Marlette, Monroe, Watts, Cromb.

Nays: none.

Declared carried.

Moved by Alderman Cromb, seconded by Alderman Jennings, that the engineer be instructed to take the necessary steps to protect the approach on the west side of Robert street bridge, by piling and planking where necessary.

Ayes: Austin, Childs, Jennings, Jerome, Morrisey, Marlette, Monroe, Watts, Cromb.

Nays: none:

Carried.

On motion council adjourned.

E. C. CARRUTH, Clerk.

AT WOODSIDE.

Halvor Steenerson and N. S. Nelson Held an Enthusiastic Meeting.

EDITOR JOURNAL:—Today we had a rousing republican rally—it was the first public assembly in our beautiful new town hall—and it was largely attended. Hon. Halvor Steenerson first addressed the meeting in a splendid speech which was well received and attentively listened to by all. He was followed by Judge L. S. Nelson, of Luverne, who is an orator of great power and eloquence. Mr. Nelson's address was worthy of a great occasion and left a very deep impression especially that part of it dealing with the financial questions. He showed that the silly charge of the populists that the republicans of 1862 and 1873 had sold the country to the "pluocrats" and "gold bugs" was the silliest trash, and not only that but it reflected upon the good name of Abraham Lincoln and his contemporaries.

Mr. Steenerson showed that so far as relief to the farmers from legislation is concerned that nothing can be expected from the democratic party nor did the populists offer anything practical—that their their theories of state ownership of railroads could not be realized and was a delusion that the record of the alliance party and democratic combine that controlled the last legislature was bad—that they gave the people little or no remedial legislation and defeated some of the best measures for the farmers—that about the only thing they did that the farmers could appreciate was to spend so much money as to necessitate a heavier tax levy in the state—a raise in the farmers taxes of seven mills from previous years.

At the close of the speeches the speakers were given a hearty applause—and the venerable Dr. Elliot who presided at the meeting proposed three cheers for the speakers which were given with a will. This closed the meeting in the midst of the greatest enthusiasm.

Mr. Editor: I am satisfied that Mr. Steenerson will get a strong support here regardless of party ties for the reason that he is the man that can be of service to the people by reason of his experience and ability. The idea of sending a man like John D. Knutson to the legislature! Why last year he was assessor and the rule was adopted by all assessors to assess elevators at $3000 a low value—but what did Knutson do? Why he assessed the elevator at McIntosh at $1250—it was an outrage upon the tax payers of the county they will not soon forget. Why this same Knutson is not even able to speak the English language understandingly, and how can he serve the people in the legislature?

Yours Truly,
T. J. FARDEN.

WOODSIDE, Minn., Oct. 25, 1892.

A Grand Musical Event.

Arrangements have been made to have the famous Norwegian violinist Herr A. Aamold appear at the opera house in this city, Monday, November 7th, 1892. This world-renowned violinist comes to us with the most flattering notices from the principal cities of Europe and America. He plays on his favorite Gaarnesius violin valued at $5,000. No music lover can afford to miss this artistic treat.

Money to Loan.

On good farms by the Red River Valley Loan and Investment company. Call at their office in the Bjoin block, Main street, Crookston. Minn. [28tf]

REPUBLICAN ENTHUSIASM.

The Meeting Addressed by R. G. Evans and R. J. Montague in McKinnon's Hall, Crookston.

Was the Most Enthusiastic yet Held, and the Addresses Were Excellent.

The most enthusiastic republican gathering which has been held in Crookston during this campaign was the meeting in McKinnon's hall last Friday evening, which was presided over by C. E. Sawyer and addressed by R. J. Montague and R. G. Evans.

Mr. Montague confined himself to a brief discussion of the sub-treasury scheme, and cited the history of France, where cheap money has twice been tried, and twice that country was ruined by it. Every device that human ingenuity could invent was resorted to in order to make the scheme successful, but it was of no avail. For two years each time there was apparent prosperity, everyone borrowed money from the government and went to speculating, industry ceased, good money left the country, wages decreased, necessaries increased in price, the rich grew richer and the poor grew poorer, when finally the money began to depreciate. The government kept issuing money as fast as printing presses could turn it out, and even passed laws making it a crime to refuse this fiat money. But it was all no use, and the whole scheme of fiat money and the laws upon which it was based were abandoned. Metallic money returned to the country, and the people started anew to build up the ruined country. The last time this scheme was tried in France 7,000,000,000 francs of this worthless money was left in the hands of the common people of France, who had given something for it. The Argentine Republic is now paying dearly for their experiments with the sub-treasury scheme, and yet in the light of these terrible lessons, the people's party propose this scheme which has brought ruin wherever it has been tried, and will bring ruin to the United States if tried here.

It is seldom that the people of Crookston have had an opportunity of listening to as stirring and patriotic an appeal as the address by the Hon. Robt. G. Evans. Mr. Evans is the republican national committeeman for Minnesota and his talk was of course on national affairs. He spoke of the nation as a whole, and said that in framing laws for the whole country, we should not look upon it in a local sense but that the greatest good for the greatest number was the principle which should govern the people in national law-making. The tariff is the principal national issue in this campaign and Mr. Evans discussed it in a more convincing manner than it has ever been presented to a Crookston audience. He pointed out the fact that even if the tariff was a tax—as the democrats claimed it was—the duties collected last year only amounted to $2.65 per capita of the people of this country, or $13.75 to an average family of five persons. To offset this, the protection which the laboring man pays $13.75 per year for, makes his wages almost double those of workmen in the same occupations in free trade England. Suppose he received $300 per year in England, he will receive about $600 for the same labor in this country. Therefore he can well afford to pay his $13.75 per year and have a snug balance to his credit in favor of protection.

The 170 million dollars raised in duties last year were necessary to carry on the government, and if it hadn't been raised in that way would have been raised by direct taxation. As these duties are imposed on the luxuries, and not upon the necessaries of life, the burden of this tax falls upon those who are best able to pay it. Mr. Evans was cheered repeatedly during his address, and at its conclusion three rounds of cheers were given for Benjamin Harrison, Knute Nelson and Halvor Steenerson.

A Musical Event.

A great treat is in store for all lovers of violin playing, as A. Aamold, the noted Norwegian violinist, will appear at the opera house on Monday, November 7th. He ranks on a par with any who have appeared in either Europe or America.

Prairie Fire.

A severe prairie fire is reported from Fisher by which Tom Erwin loses 100 tons of hay, Auditor U. Webster 40 tons, John Stoughton 40 tons, Carl Widenhoeffer 50 tons, Philip Murphy 50 tons, Ole Strande 40 tons, R. T. Webster 50 tons and H. Nesbit 200 tons of straw. It was only by the earnest efforts of hundreds of men that much farm property consisting of buildings and hay was saved.

CHICAGO EN FETE.

DEDICATORY EXERCISES OF THE WORLD'S FAIR BUILDINGS

To the Purposes for Which They Were Erected—Joy, Jubilation and Gladness Unconfined—Speeches by Watterson and Depew.

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—The past three days in Chicago have been given over to celebration. Wednesday and Thursday were preliminary to the dedication proper of the world's fair buildings. Wednesday was Children's Day and exercises were held in all the school buildings in Cook county.

The official reception to the distinguished guests from other portions of the country and from abroad was held in the evening and was one of the most elaborate affairs ever witnessed in this country. Governors were as plentiful as Kentucky colonels, while senators, representatives, cabinet officers and diplomats were still more numerous. Vice President Morton, as the representative of the president, was was the central fiugre.

On Thursday occurred the great civic parade. There were eighty to ninety thousand men in the line of march.

General Miles was grand marshal of the day, and some twenty prominent citizens of Chicago acted as his aides.

First in the line as usual came the mounted police, then a platoon on foot and following them notables in carriages. Among these were the visiting governors and members of their staff. Some of them were mounted, but the majority preferred to use the vehicles that were placed at their disposal. The second division was made up of civic societies and the third of Catholic organizations.

Although the route of the parade was less than three miles long the procession was fully ten miles in length. Rough estimates of men in line varied from 80,000 to 90,000.

THE GREAT DAY.

World's Columbian Exposition Buildings Formally Dedicated.

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—The empty structures of the world's Columbian exposition have been dedicated to the purposes for which they have been designed, by the people of the greatest and grandest, and noblest republic that has ever existed on the face of God's earth. It was the nation's day, a day set apart by proclation of the chief magistrate, a proclamation as rigorously observed as were the pronunciamentos of the magistracy of ancient Europe, as a brief season of thanksgiving and of festivity in commemoration of the man and the discovery of four centuries since. Chicago kept holiday, and not only Chicago, but every nook and corner of the big, bustling, tearing, driving, striving republic.

Joy, Jubilation and Gladness were unconfined. Patriotism, the safety valve of a people enlightened and determined to be free, had full vent. In city and town, in village and hamlet, the people, to quote the proclamation of President Harrison, "devoted themselves to such exercises as may best express honor to the discoverer and appreciation of the great achievements of the four complete centuries of American life." Joy and gladness envelop the nation as a mist, a joy and gladness unknown to nations over which limited or absolute monarchies exercise full sway.

A Parade of State

inaugurated the exercises of the day. Cannon boomed at daybreak—a national salute on the nation's holiday—starting the tired million or two from their slumbers, serving notice that the crowning event of the occasion was at hand. The very air was strongly tinted with holiday ozone. One felt instinctively that this was not a day for toil or for drudgery, that it was a day dedicated to the people and for the country. The day had barely dawned when Michigan boulevard from the Auditorium southward to Jackson park, a distance of over seven miles, commenced to be fringed on either side with men and women. Each moment added its quota to the early risers, up town and down town. It was very much such a crowd as that which passed judgment on the civic procession, but reinforced with a decidedly large scattering of members of local "polite society," between whose imposing mansions and tasteful villas the line of march had been mapped out. There were times when it seemed as though the entire population of the Windy City, reinforced by its quarter million or more of visitors from far and near, were on the streets between the lake front and Jackson park.

Took Time by the Forelock.

Fortunate holders of invitations entitling them to a participation in the exercises of the day, began to move southward at an abnormally early hour, apparently determined to take time by the forelock, and to secure a point of vantage, and the trains on the suburban branch of the Illinois Central as well as as the cable cars leading to the grounds were crowded from their initial trip. Soon after 7 o'clock those intending to participate in the procession began to mass themselves at the Auditorium, while the vehicles were massed in columns of four on the other side of the hostlery on Wabash avenue. Little time was occupied in assigning the distinguished visitors to their respective places in the parade, and a few minutes after 9 o'clock the order was given for the head of the column to move. The escorting military comprised three batteries of artillery from Fort Ripley, Major Randolph commanding, one from Fort Sheridan, four companies of the Fifth and Sixth cavalry, U. S. A. After the military the procession of carriages with their occupants moved with the following order, save that the carriage allotted to the vice president was not occupied until the procession reached the Higginbotham mansion at Twenty-ninth and Michigan avenue, at which point the vice president, amid a salvo of cheers from the crowds that banked the four corners of the thoroughfare, was escorted to the vehicle.

The vice presidential carriage was drawn by four white horses, ridden by postillions in scarlet. Over the doors of the carriage were draped two of the finest flags that were ever made, and which came a few days ago from the manufactory of a Philadelphia firm at a cost of $500.

From the street the procession moved south on Michigan avenue and by way of Thirty-fifth street, to the Grand boulevard, and thence to Washington park, the occupants of every carriage being greeted with a volley of cheers as block after block was traversed. At Washington park a brief halt was made, while the United States troops and the visiting militia deployed before the vice presidential carriage.

After a lunch had been served the line of march was resumed to the Manufactures and Liberal Arts building. Here seats had been provided upon the floor for 100,000 participants. Every chair had its occupant, and an immense crowd, variously estimated at from 10,000 to 15,000, would fain be contented with standing room. The guests that had participated in the procession were escorted to their seats upon the platform with the utmost dispatch, Vice President Morton being seated in front, with President T. W. Palmer on his right, President Higinbotham on his left, and Cardinal Gibbons, Bishop Ireland, Bishop Fowler, Mayor Washburne, Henry Watterson, Chauncey M. Depew occupying seats on either side. To the east and west upon the same platform were seated the members of the cabinet, the diplomatic corps, the judges of the supreme court, governors of the states, and other distinguished guests. Mind cannot conceive, nor pencil describe the scene that was presented when the last of those who had participated in the parade were seated. On the platform were representatives of every country on the civilized globe; before them the largest audience that has ever assembled since that day upon which the Creator said "Let there be light." Little time was occupied in preliminaries. Without waiting for a signal the orchestra broke forth with the opening strains of the "Columbia March," arousing the audience to a high pitch of enthusiasm. As the strains of the music died away Bishop Charles H. Fowler, of California, one of the most eminent divines of the Methodist church, arose in his place. The immense audience, which stretched back as far as the eye could reach, followed his example. And heads were bowed and hands clasped, while the eminent divine gave thanks to the Almighty for what had already been accomplished, and besought the blessing of the great ruler of all upon what remained to be done. A hundred and fifty thousand throats voiced a fervent amen as the bishop resumed his seat. The task of making the formal announcement that the work of preparing the buildings and grounds had been completed, had been assigned to Hon. George R. Davis, director general, and who was received with a burst of applause that went up to the roof of the structures and reverberated as from the firing of a cannon in the distance.

After Mr. Davis came Mayor Washburne with a welcome on behalf of Chicago. The Columbian ode was read by Mrs. Sarah C. Le Moyne, interspersed with choral selections from the same. Mrs. Potter Palmer made a brief address on the part of the board of lady managers, and President Higginbotham then tendered the buildings on behalf of the exposition to President Palmer of the Columbian commission. President Palmer responded briefly, and then Vice President Morton was introduced to dedicate the buildings on behalf of the United States.

The conclusion of Mr. Morton's speech was the signal for loud and long continued applause, and when the vice president stepped forward to bow his thanks one eighth of a million men and women rose to their feet and gave him a salvo of applause that he is likely to remember so long as he has breath and life. The "Hallelujah Chorus" was rendered at this point.

A good old-fashioned reception of cordiality was extended to Henry Watterson when he came to the front of the stage to deliver the dedicatory address.

When the eminent Kentuckian had resumed his seat, and the applause that greeted his peroration had subsided the choir rendered the "Star Spangled Banner," and "Hail Columbia," with orchestra accompaniment. This incentive to a patriotic outburst was not needed to serve as an introduction to the next speaker. When Chauncey M. Depew stepped forward the audience went into ecstacies, and would not be quieted. Comparative silence at last was restored, however, and the eminent national orator proceeded with his oration.

The oration was repeatedly punctuated with applause, and when it was concluded three cheers were called for and responded by all of those within hearing. After the chorus had rendered Beethoven's "In Praise of God," Cardinal Gibbons arose, a wave of his hand and every head was bowed at the throne of grace, while the eminent prelate delivered himself of a fervent supplication.

After this there was more music. The audience, which had been remarkably still and patient, began to manifest tokens of fatigue at this point, and an exodus from the south door was inaugurated. The exercises, however, were close to an end. A blessing was pronounced by Rev. Dr. A. P. Cook, of the First Presbyterian church of Philadelphia, and almost before his closing words had died away the band struck up the familiar strains of "America" and the audience joined in the second stanza.

In the evening Archbishop Ireland, of St. Paul, delivered an address upon the aims and ends of the various congresses which will meet during the world's fair.

Three Questions.

One of our modern philosophers says that the three most important questions any man can ask himself are: Whence came I? Where am I? Where am I going? It would pass the wisdom of most of us to answer all three. The first is a poser for any body. The second we cannot always answer. The third will have almost as many answers as the number of people to whom it is addressed. It all depends on the circumstances of the case. Specially important are the answers when one is traveling. If you are journeying by the Burlington Route, you came from Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, Omaha, St. Joseph, Denver, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Deadwood or Cheyenne; you are riding on an elegant train of vestibuled chair cars, dining cars and Pullman sleepers; and you are going easily, swiftly and safely to some one of the cities above named, or some one of a hundred others reached by the Burlington Lines. If you are traveling by some other line——but it is useless to speculate on that, since you always buy tickets of your home agent via the Burlington Route. Maps, and any information as to rates and routes can be had by addressing W. J. C. Kenyon, Gen. Pass. Agent, St. Paul, Minn.

THE

Crookston Plumbing Co.

Carry the Largest and Most Complete Stock of

WOOD and IRON PUMPS AND Iron Pipe

IN THE CITY.

PRICES AS LOW AS THE LOWEST

AT BEDTIME
I TAKE
A PLEASANT
HERB
DRINK

THE NEXT MORNING I FEEL BRIGHT AND NEW AND MY COMPLEXION IS BETTER.

My doctor says it acts gently on the stomach, liver and kidneys, and is a pleasant laxative. This drink is made from herbs, and is prepared for use as easily as tea. It is called

LANE'S MEDICINE

All druggists sell it at 50c. and $1.00 a package. If you cannot get it, send your address for a free sample. Lane's Family Medicine moves the bowels each day. In order to be healthy, this is necessary. Address, ORATOR F. WOODWARD, LeROY, N. Y.

DO YOU COUGH
DON'T DELAY
TAKE KEMP'S
BALSAM
THE BEST COUGH CURE

It Cures Colds, Coughs, Sore Throat, Croup, Influenza, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis and Asthma. A certain cure for Consumption in first stages, and a sure relief in advanced stages. Use at once. You will see the excellent effect after taking the first dose. Sold by dealers everywhere. Large bottles 50 cents and $1.00.

U. S. LAND OFFICE.
Crookston, Minn., October 24th, 1892.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register or Receiver U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on December 12th, 1892, viz: Rudolf Wadekamper, Hd. No. 17,542, for the se¼ Sec. 33, Tp. 150, R. 43. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Joseph Martell, Peter Toupin, John Zeuzel, Joseph Geaudette, all of Mentor, Polk county, Minn.

[28-33] HUGH THOMPSON, Register.

A Sample of One of the Ballots to be Used at the Coming Election.

Congressional, Legislative, Judicial and County Ticket.

(To be printed on BLUE paper)

Put an X mark in the space indicated by the index ☞	☞
Congressman Seventh District—HENRY FEIG—Republican.	X	Vote for 1 only
Congressman Seventh District—W. E. KELSO—Democrat.
Congressman Seventh District—H. E. BOEN—People's Party.
Congressman Seventh District—
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—HALVOR STEENERSON—Republican.	X	Vote for three only
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—LARS E. NORDBY—Republican.	X
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—PETER RAMSTAD—Republican.	X
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—JOHN R. McKINNON—Democrat.
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—OLE NYGAARD—Democrat.
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—JACOB H. NESS—Democrat.
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—J. D. KNUTESON—People's Party.
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—B. M. CHESLEY—People's Party.
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—O. E. OLSON—People's Party.
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—
Judge 14th Judicial District—IRA B. MILLS—Independent.	X	Vote for one only
Judge 14th Judicial District—FRANK IVES—People's Party.
Judge 14th Judicial District—
County Auditor—W. A. LANCTOT—Republican.	X	Vote for one only
County Auditor—J. M. HANSON—Democrat.
County Auditor—C. U WEBSTER—People's Party.
County Auditor—
County Treasurer—LEWIS LOHN—Republican.	X	Vote for one only
County Treasurer—L. C. COUVRETTE—Democrat.
County Treasurer—J. T. BEAUDRY—People's Party.
County Treasurer—
Register of Deeds—NIC NELSON—Republican.	X	Vote for one only
Register of Deeds—ADAM ZEH—Democrat.
Register of Deeds—J. AMUNDSON—People's Party.
Register of Deeds—
County Attorney—IRA C. RICHARDSON—Republican.	X	Vote for one only
County Attorney—P. G. FALARDEAU—Democrat.
County Attorney—A. R. HOLSTON—People's Party.
County Attorney—
Sheriff—JAS. M. BAIN—Republican.	X	Vote for one only
Sheriff—A. C. SCHMIDT—Democrat.
Sheriff—ARNE GRUNDYSEN—People's Party.
Sheriff—
Judge of Probate—R. J. MONTAGUE—Republican.	X	Vote for one only
Judge of Probate—P. J. RUSSELL—Democrat.
Judge of Probate—C. M. BENSON—People's Party.
Judge of Probate—
Superintendent of Schools—V. D. CARRUTH—Republican.	X	Vote for one only
Superintendent of Schools—A. A. LOMMEN—People's Party.
Superintendent of Schools—
Surveyor—GEO. RALPH—Republican.	X	Vote for one only
Surveyor—P. EMARD—Democrat.
Surveyor—
Surveyor—
Court Commissioner—G. H. PALMER—Republican.	X	Vote for one only
Court Commissioner—W. H. AVERILL—Democrat.
Court Commissioner—
Coroner—GEO. HOLT—Republican.	X	Vote for one only
Coroner—HENRY SHEPARD—Democrat.
Coroner—HENRY SHEPARD—People's Party.
Coroner—
County Commissioner, 1st District—E. D. BARNESS—Republican.	X	Vote for one only
County Commissioner, 1st District—EPHRIAM KING—Democrat.
County Commissioner, 1st District—JOHN E. OPPEGAARD—People.
County Commissioner, 1st District—
County Commissioner, 2d District—T. ERWIN—Republican.	X	Vote for one only
County Commissioner, 2d District—ANTON LINDEM—People's Party.
County Commissioner, 2d District—
County Commissioner, 3d District—E. D. CHILDS—Republican.	X	Vote for one only
County Commissioner, 3d District—M. E. KIRSCH—Democrat.
County Commissioner, 3d District—CHRIS. HANSON—People's Party.
County Commissioner, 3d District—
County Commissioner, 5th District. ROBT. NESBIT—Republican.	X	Vote for one only
County Commissioner, 5th District—A. C. RHINEHART—Democrat.
County Commissioner, 5th District—ROBT. ANDERSON—People's Party
County Commissioner, 5th District—

A Population Picture.

Three years ago Elwood, Ind., was a country village, with a population of 600

The McKinley tariff was enacted, industrial development took a new start, and great plate glass and tin plate factories were erected in Elwood. Today it is a busy manufacturing town, with a population of 12,000

No intelligent person can deny that this progress is due to the McKinley law.—New York Press.

A Destructive Party.

The Democratic party has never shown itself to be a constructive party; it is always obstructive and destructive. The peace party of 1861 insisted that the war for the defense of the Union could not be carried on constitutionally. The revenue reform party of 1892 insists that American industries cannot be protected constitutionally. Now, as then, the Democrats are confirmed dissenters.—Newark (N. J.) Advertiser.

Grover and John L.

Mr. Cleveland will wake up on the morning of Nov. 9 voicing the eager inquiry of Mr. Sullivan at New Orleans, "Am I licked?" Mr. David Bennett Hill, with listening ear, will catch the query, and with wicked tongue will send the answer, "Well, I should smile!" —St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Finely powdered Peruvian bark is recommended to keep bangs in curl in moist weather. It is applied with a powder puff. Unfortunately this suggestion is valuable only to persons with blond or light brown hair. On black hair the powder shows a fine dust and cannot be used.

Don't give up your steamer chair when your European trip is over. It still has possibilities. Let it go along with the luggage to the country boarding place or summer hotel. There, stretched out with a shawl and cushions, it will be found a most comfortable lounging place.

His Version for Her.

A small genius, aged four, was being taught by his grandmother a new prayer the other night. It was in verse and ran thus:

> Jesus, gentle shepherd, lead me;
> Keep thy little lamb tonight.

"Grandma," said the boy, "do you say that prayer?"

"Well, not exactly," she answered. "Why?"

"'Cause if you said it you'd have to let the 'little lamb' go and say 'keep the old sheep.'"—Boston Transcript.

As Maudie Understood It.

"Mamma, does Mrs. Brown want to sell her baby?" asked Maudie.

"I don't think so, my dear. Why?"

"I was at Nancy Brown's house this afternoon and her mother was singing, 'Buy, oh, my baby!' all the time."—Harper's Bazar.

A Fashionable Miss.

Mamma—What under the sun are you doing with little Dot's clothes on?

Little Dick (despondently)—Well, Dot said she wanted to be in th' fashion and she's gone off with all of mine.—Good News.

Numbers of skirt supporters are coming in the market. They are something like little chips in the form of flower-de-luce and other devices with chains and rings for the finger.

Colored glass bowls with silver mountings are for berries. Some have brackets for the berry spoons. The greater number have crumpled edges and are often of fanciful shape.

Scented orris powder is rubbed into the hair and carefully brushed out again, leaving a faint fragrance impossible of attainment by any other process

---

A large Egyptian shaped vase, simple and severe in outline, with solid handles like wings, is one of the novelties.

It is reported that a company composed of northern Vermont farmers are to establish a colony in Canada for agricultural purposes.

JUST RECEIVED

—AT THE—

New York Store

A LARGE ASSORTMENT OF

CLOAKS

—AND—

JACKETS.

LOOK AT THESE FIGURES!

36 inch English Cashmeres	17½c
10-4 all wool Blankets	$2.50
2 cases of Prints	4¾
10-4 Blankets	75c
Velvet Brussels Carpet	$1.35
All wool Carpet	65c
36 inch Dress Flannels	19c
Tricots	19c
100 dozen all wool Hose	19c
8-4 Sheeting	17c
Sanitary Flannels	15c
40 inch Plush Sacque	$7.95
Cotton Flannels	5½c
2,000 yards crash	5c
Plush Jackets	$4.79

A. CHABOT. Prop. Cor. Broadway and Robert Streets, CROOKSTON, MINN.

I AM LOOKING FOR YOU!

Whether you want to buy much or little, I want to sell you. My stock of Ladies' and Gents' Fine Watches includes nearly every derisable style and variety, from the modest plain polished, to richly engraved.

BOSS
14K
A 3822

BOSS
14K
A9187

Look at These!

Hoping to hear from you soon, I am yours very truly,

C. H. SAAKE, The Leading Jeweler.

WE ARE NOW STOCKING UP.

In Better shape than ever before with a

Handsomer and Better Selected Line

Than ever before, and

As to Prices, we Shall Certainly Please You.

If you wish to save money. One of the many

RARE BARGAINS —ARE THE— Children's Suits

From ages 8 to 11. Don't fail to see them.

Men's, Boys' and Dhildren's OVERCOATS, Very Nobby and Very Cheap. Fur Coats open for inspection.

BOSTON ONE PRICE CLOTHING HOUSE,

MOSSEFIN & LINDELL, Props.

IT'S A FACT

—THAT THE—

Journal Job Department

Is Equal to any in Northern Minnesota.

IT IS EQUIPPED WITH

New Material,

Quick Presses,

Cheap Power

—AND—

First-Class Workmen.

IF YOU have anything to sell, which some other person wants, advertise in the JOURNAL, and you will find a purchaser.

Judicious Advertising Pays,

Therefore place your advertisement in a paper which goes into the homes of the people and is carefully read.

SUCH A PAPER IS

—THE—

Polk County Journal.

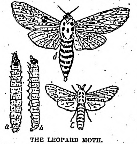
FARM GARDEN

THE LEOPARD MOTH.

It Greatly Damages Elms, Maples and Other Trees and Shrubs.

An insect pest which threatens to be as formidable as the gypsy moth is the leopard moth, or Zeuzera pyrina. Its preference seems to be for the various kinds of elms and maples, but it includes in its ravages the oak, linden, ash, tulip and other forest trees, as well as apples, pears and currants among the fruits.

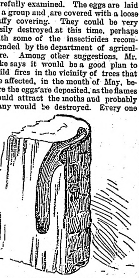
The leopard moth is large and white, with black markings, and is easily recognizable. The larva is also white, with black markings, a brown head and posterior segments also of brown. The moth deposits her eggs in or near the crotch of a tree, and the young bore into the heart of the tree. The damage done by them is generally the first warning of their presence.



THE LEOPARD MOTH.

Concerning this comparatively new insect Mr. Nicholas Pike, of Brooklyn, tells in Insect Life that he first noted its appearance about five years ago. A number of maple trees near his house were somewhat injured by boys (as he then supposed) breaking numerous branches, particularly on some young trees. The next year he noticed branches broken near the top of some old trees quite out of reach of the boys. These he had cut off, and after careful examination discovered the work of the insect, which he later identified as the leopard moth, Zeuzera pyrina. In 1891 it had begun its ravages all over the city of Brooklyn, and it has already spread to numerous surrounding towns.

The hatching of young takes place early in June and they at this time cluster together for some hours before they separate and begin life each on its own account, and this is the time when trees known to be affected should be carefully examined. The eggs are laid in a group and are covered with a loose fluffy covering. They could be very easily destroyed at this time, perhaps with some of the insecticides recommended by the department of agriculture. Among other suggestions, Mr. Pike says it would be a good plan to build fires in the vicinity of trees that are affected, in the month of May, before the eggs are deposited, as the flames would attract the moths and probably many would be destroyed. Every one who has shade trees and ornamental shrubs near his dwelling should use his influence next spring to help in saving them.



LARVAL BURROW.

In the first cut, a, is larva, dorsal view; b, larva, side view; c, male moth; d, female moth. The second cut represents the larval burrow.

Why Barnyard Fowls Lay Well.

It often happens that a flock of common hens belonging to some neighbor lays more eggs than a well bred flock that has been carefully fed and provided for. The fact is that in a majority of cases the pure bred flock has been too well treated. It is a mistake to suppose that common hens that are in the barnyards have no advantages. The waste grain and the pickings from the droppings of cattle, as well as the constant and vigorous work on the manure heap, not only permit them to secure a goodly supply of food, but the compulsory method demands exercise. If pure bred fowls were in the same circumstances they would lay more eggs than common hens. It is the pampering of pure bred hens that causes them to fail when they should be laying, and which also causes lack of fertility of the eggs.—New Hampshire Farmer.

The Honey Crop of 1892.

By collecting all answers by states and condensing the replies of all regarding the honey crop, Gleanings in Bee Culture gives the following by states up to date:

Alabama, fair; Arkansas, fair; California, very poor; Colorado, average; Delaware, very poor; Illinois, fair to good; Iowa, very good; Michigan, good; Kansas, good; Kentucky, poor; Maine, average; Maryland, poor; Minnesota, prospects good; Mississippi, very poor; Missouri, poor to fair; New Hampshire, poor; New Jersey, poor; New York, poor to fair; North Carolina, poor, prospects good; Ohio, poor to very good; Pennsylvania, fair to good; Tennessee, very poor; Vermont, poor to fair; Virginia, medium; West Virginia, fair; Wisconsin, very poor to poor.

Capons are said to make excellent nurses for turkeys and chicks.

STORING VEGETABLES.

The Harvesting and Care of Vegetables for Winter Consumption.

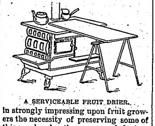
As sweet potatoes are readily injured by frost this crop is among the first to be dug. Great care is necessary in lifting sweet potatoes in order to avoid bruising them. Cut off the vines close above the ground; lift out the roots by means of the spading fork. Leave on the ground for a few hours to dry, and then store in a dry, warm loft or other dry place where the roots will not be exposed to great changes of temperature. To keep well these tubers should not be exposed to a lower temperature than 50 or 55 degs.

Beets and carrots are lifted early. A supply of the former for table use may be stored in boxes or barrels or heaps in the cellar, and should be covered with sand to prevent evaporation and wilting. When the root crops are large, they are readily carried over in pits out of doors. Turnips will stand considerable frost, but a good freeze seriously injures them. Cabbage will stand a freeze, while salsify and parsnips can be left out all winter if desired, although usually it is best to dig and store a supply to use during the winter before hard freezing weather sets in. Vegetables to be stored for long keeping must be sound. Store in a place where there is a good circulation of air and yet in a place where they can be readily protected in case a sudden change of weather should make it necessary. In this way a good opportunity will be given them to dry out before storing away, and they will keep much better than if they are dug and stored away immediately.

On the subject of harvesting Irish potatoes American Cultivator says: "The potatoes should be dug as soon as the weather is such that they can dry off fit to take to market or to be put in the cellar. They should be well dried but not sunburned before being carried in, and should be kept in a dry but cool place, with good ventilation, and away from the direct influence of the sunlight or moonlight. Select some of those that ripen earliest for seed, and do not take any misshapen or scabby potatoes for seed. Good shape, smooth skin and early ripening are more important in seed stock of almost any vegetable than large size."

Fruit Drying.

When there is a surplus of fruit which the grower cannot sell in a green state or work up into jam or preserves, the value of the drying process is most apparent. The New England Homestead, in strongly impressing upon fruit growers the necessity of preserving some of this surplus by the process of drying, illustrates the following simple device for so doing:



A SERVICEABLE FRUIT DRIER.

It consists of a water tight tin vessel, or rather pan, 2½ feet wide and from four to five feet long and three inches deep. The usual method of using is to place one end of the pan on the stove, the outer end being supported by the light bench, as shown in the engraving. At or near one corner of the top is soldered a small funnel, through which water is poured into the pan, which is partly filled. A cork is then placed in the funnel, leaving a small hole for the escape of steam should too much be formed.

The fruit is spread evenly over the upper surface of the pan, the juice being evaporated from sliced apples in two or three hours' time even with a moderate fire. This arrangement can be and is often used, and the cooking and baking progressing at the same time, as indicated in the accompanying sketch. Those who do not have a large stove often build a simple arch out of doors, upon which the pan is set.

Seeding Wheat.

The Ohio agricultural experiment station has for several years been investigating such problems in wheat culture as the quantity of seed per acre, the depth of seeding, drilling versus broadcasting, the mixing of different varieties, cross drilling and the use of the roller press. The average results favor sowing at the rate of five to seven pecks per acre of thoroughly cleaned seed, and sowing this not to exceed two inches deep. In favorable seasons broadcast seeding has produced about as large a crop as drilling, but if the seeding season be hot and dry, drilling is likely to give the best results. No advantage has yet been discovered in the mixing of different varieties. There has been a slight increase of crop where the wheat was cross drilled, the same quantity of seed being used in each case. This increase may be partly due to the more thorough pulverization of the soil accomplished by the double drilling. The roller press—a wheel following each hoe of the drill—has not increased the yield sufficiently to warrant its use.

Agricultural Briefs.

Light crops of sweet potatoes are reported from many sections of the south.

In proportion to its weight the goat is the best manure maker on earth, says The Rural New Yorker.

Three thousand dollars in premiums will be offered by the Aberdeen-Angus association at the World's fair.

Asparagus beds can be made in October to advantage and will be ready to start at the opening of spring, says Vick.

The hornfly is injuring dairy cattle in New York state.

The sixth annual convention of the Association of American Agricultural Colleges and Experiment Stations will meet in New Orleans Nov. 15.

Sensible Words About Eating.

Perhaps popular medical literature is partly to blame for the growing habit of overnursing organs which are quite able to stand ordinary work. Health articles are written by doctors, and these, seeing people only when they are ill, forget that the papers they write for—the "family journals"—are read by men and women, especially women, who are perfectly well. "Avoid pastry," writes the doctor, thinking of the confirmed dyspeptic who left his consulting room half an hour ago, and thereupon a hundred folks who were never a whit the worse for their tarts avoid pastry conscientiously and take to unending sago puddings, whose monotony their weary palate loathes. If we were to renounce all that we see or hear condemned as overstraining or misusing our digestive apparatus, we should probably take nothing but pepsin, with perhaps a little milk to exercise it on.

There are times when after a too rigid dieting the most mature of us longs for the green apples and raspberry tarts of youth, and such a longing is an honest rebellion of the digestion against a regimen which keeps it weak for lack of proper exercise. To give a fair and reasonable consideration to the food we eat is a matter of common sense, but to make ourselves mentally the parallels of the monks of Mount Athos and concentrate our attention on all that we should avoid, is to lay ourselves open to the chance of indigestion as much as if we indulged every day in the banquets of a Lucullus.—London Hospital.

Franklin's Exercise.

At a time when so much attention is given to physical education, it is of interest to remember that Benjamin Franklin told John Adams that he made it a point of religion to exercise. When sixty-six years old, Franklin wrote to his son as follows:

"Exercise to prevent diseases, since the cure of them by physic is so precarious.

"The quantum of each kind of exercise is to be judged by the degree of warmth it produces in the body rather than by time or distance.

"There is more exercise in one mile's riding on horseback than five in a coach, and more in one mile's walking on foot than in five on horseback; more in walking one mile up and down stairs than in four on a level floor.

"This last may be had when one is pinched for time, as containing a great quantity of exercise in a handful of minutes.

"The dumbbell is another exercise of the latter compendious kind; by the use of it I have in forty swings quickened my pulse from sixty to 100 beats in a minute, counted by a second watch, and I suppose the warmth generally increases with quickness of pulse."—Youth's Companion.

The Prizes of Literary Work.

When not long ago a statement was made in The Author that there were fifty men and women in Great Britain and the states who were making £1,000 a year and upward by writing novels, the statement was received with derisive laughter. Fifty novelists making £1,000 a year? Impossible! Preposterous! The statement, however, was made by one who knew what he was saying. It is a true statement; it represents the real prizes of the profession.

There are in London alone, it is said, 15,000 people who in some branch or other exercise the literary profession. Fifty of them by writing novels make over £1,000 a year. The number of men who actually live by the production of original work, apart from journalism in any of its branches, is comparatively small. There are half a dozen dramatists; about a hundred novelists; a few successful writers of educational books, which are indeed a mine of wealth if one can succeed, and a few publishers' hacks. The greatest prizes are those of the dramatists.—Walter Besant in Forum.

Sir Boyle Roche's Famous "Bulls."

Sir Boyle Roche, too, whose bulls made him famous, on one occasion assured a wonder stricken body of voters that, if elected, he would put a stop to smuggling practices in the Shannon by "having two frigates stationed on the opposite points at the mouth of the river, and there they should remain fixed, with strict orders not to stir, and so, by cruising and cruising about, they would be able to intercept everything that should attempt to pass between them."

Another time, when on the hustings, he observed, "England, it must be allowed, is the mother country, and therefore I would advise them (England and Ireland) to live in filial affection together like sisters, as they are and ought to be." This was only equaled by his—when opposing his antiministerial motion—wishing the said motion "was at the bottom of the bottomless pit."—London Standard.

Mountain Peasants in New York.

The mountaineer peasants of northern Italy and the Tyrol are unusual among the immigrants to this country, but one now and then encounters them upon the streets of New York, where they are easily recognized by their great stature, sturdy legs and shoulders, hard, sun browned features and felt hats, creased in imitation of Kossuth's headgear, and ornamented with the scimitar like cock's feather. Their footgear, too, is distinctive, being coarse legged boots, with pointed toes and high, tapering heels, such an article of apparel as it seems no man would dare venture out with in a region of difficult footing.—Philadelphia Ledger.

A Chance for a Sore Tongue.

Mrs. Poots—What are you looking so glum about?

Poots—Oh, there's a confoundedly tender spot on my tongue from resting against a broken tooth.

"Humph! You're always grunting about something. Funny I never have anything like that the matter with my tongue."

"Nothing funny about it. Your tongue is never at rest."—Texas Siftings.

AT FIFTY-ONE.

Jesting is over with me forever—
Life is too sober at fifty-one;
No longer I worship the witty and clever;
Things that amuse me I loathe and shun.
I have come to the summit and now begun
To sink to the vale on the other side;
There's a damp in the air, there's a gloom on the sun,
Whose waning the vapors of Orcus hide.

And my fellow travelers, left and right,
Fall away from the track, as we downward hie,
To their several homes; they are not in sight,
But I hear the bells as they bid goodby!
How lonely I feel as I get more nigh
To my destined inn—a dismal place
Shut from all glimpse of the goodly sky
And the sunshine of every friendly face!

Yet what is to dread? There's a Master there,
Full of pity, to welcome the weary guest,
Who will bind the footsore and have good care
Of every poor soul who seeks his rest.
I tremble to go to him, unconfessed;
I bear him no letters from priest or pope,
But I carry a passport within my breast
Of his own sure word, and a deathless hope.
—Thomas W. Parsons in Boston Journal.

Proper Names.

Whether it is well to keep a single name in a family for generation after generation may be doubted from several points of view, but certainly this multiplication of Georges and Williams is confusing and of small utility. Young George and old George invariably result from the fond parent's desire to perpetuate his own name, and no special good comes about in a majority of cases. Let us have a more reasonable selection that is now customary. We need a Matthew Arnold to inveigh against our "uninteresting" personal names as well as those of our towns and cities. The mental mediocrity and laziness that has scattered Jenkinsvilles and Jonestowns, Homers and Virgils indiscriminately over the map of the United States is simply on a par with that which seems to take the name that comes handiest for the individual of every succeeding generation. Away with Angelina and Gladys on the one hand and with Miltiades and Gershom on the other, and let us have instead the good old English names of Arthur and Harold perhaps, and the Biblical names Esther and Ruth.—Providence Journal.

Bishop Brooks' Sermons.

Bishop Phillips Brooks devotes hardly more time to the composition of his sermons than did the late Henry Ward Beecher. Mr. Beecher used sometimes to delay that essential proceeding till Sunday morning after breakfast, and on occasions, when in the pulpit he would discard the material thus prepared for a new idea that had struck him after the services had begun. Bishop Brooks devotes an hour or two during the week to thinking about the text he has selected for use on the approaching Sunday, and hunts up a few references, but he makes no notes and does not even touch his pen to paper for that purpose. But when he is in the pulpit his discourse flows from his lips without hesitation, and with a rapidity that strains the attention of the congregation to the utmost. His tendency then is to preach beyond the limit of time set for his sermons.—Harper's Weekly.

All the Advantages of a Hotel.

A sea water bath in our own homes has long been a commonplace privilege, but now we are approaching a day when the ingenuity of man will make possible that trinity of luxuries—the salt water, the sea air and the glorious sunburn after it, all within one's own bathroom, for the new electric light bath browns the complexion of the bather while it invigorates his system almost like the real article, which involves a hotel bill of alarming size. It is evidently only a matter of time when we may all enjoy a summer vacation on the penny-in-the-slot plan without even paying car fare.—New York Sun.

Effect of Invention on Fishing.

Doubtless the india rubber worm is only a beginning of the marvels in the fishing line. From artificial flies and artificial worms it is only a step to other kinds of artificial bait. The time is not far distant when bogus frogs, crickets, dobson, snails, grasshoppers and grubs will form a part of every sporting outfit, with perhaps artificial trout and bass for the returning fisherman who dislikes to pass down the street dangling a single sunfish.—Troy (N. Y.) Times.

Perfectly Harmless.

Lady—I hear you fought a duel with Mr. Meyer yesterday.

Gent—That is so.

Lady—But did you not feel afraid when standing before a loaded revolver?

Gent—Not in the least when Mr. Meyer holds it, for he is my insurance agent.—Gewerbeblatt.

What Did She Mean?

He—Did you see me on the street yesterday?

She—Yes.

He—Have you quit speaking to your friends?

She—Oh, no.—Detroit Free Press.

A portable sundial is not an uncommon object in Spanish shops, and it is still in current use in Spain. At Burgos no less than three different kinds are offered for sale at prices varying from nine to seventeen cents.

The highest type of character is that which is made up of feelings so luminous that the man takes a more elevated path than he could ever do if he were bound down to rules and precedents.—Henry Ward Beecher.

The average length of life is greater in Norway than in any other country on the globe. This is attributed to the fact that the temperature is cool and uniform throughout the year.

A big patron of the shoe market is Allen Milton Browning, of Huntington, W. Va. He has led six wives to the altar and is the father of sixty-seven children.

The municipality of Vienna has 600 clocks, regulated from four main centers, so that standard time is assured in all parts of the city.

If you want a
STOVE OR RANGE
—FOR WOOD OR Coal, see the—
FAMOUS
BRAND
STOVE
FAMOUS Stoves and Ranges
AT ALDERMAN & SYLVESTER'S.
They are the finest line of stoves ever brought to Crookston, and are sold at
REASONABLE PRICES.

Schmidt, the Painter,
—CARRIES A FULL AND COMPLETE STOCK OF—PAINTS,
OILS AND
VARNISHES.
—ALSO A FULL AND COMPLETE LINE OF—
WALL PAPER.
Painting in all its branches, and Paper Hanging artistically done.
Call at the Shop on Broadway.

Crookston Business College
and INSTITUTE OF SHORTHAND.
DEPARTMENTS:—Commercial Shorthand, Typewriting and English.
TEACHERS:—Benj. A. Strawbridge, J. M. Latham and L. E. Gossman.
Summer Term began Monday, June 6th, 1892. Fall Term begins Monday, October 3rd, 1892. Send for new Catalogue.
CROOKSTON BUSINESS COLLEGE, Crookston, Minn.

TRY PEAKE,
THE MAIN STREET HARNESS MAKER,
FOR BARGAINS.

CHRISTIANSON BROS.,
Abstracters of Title, Loans,
Real Estate and Insurance:
N. B. FARM LOANS a specialty. Terms, three to five years. Lowest rate of interest, payable annually at our office.
Choice FARM LANDS for sale cheap, on terms to suit purchasers.
Office on Robert Street. - - - - CROOKSTON, MINN

NEW FEED MILL
CHRIS. ANDERSON, Prop.
I desire to annouce to the farmers of Polk County that I have rented the
LAURENCE BUILDING, ON MAIN STEERT,
Next to Brown's New Livery Stable, and am now prepared to grind feed of all kinds promptly. You can get your feed in two hours after you bring me your grain. Prices Reasonable
Try My New Mill!

McKINNON BROS.,
—DEALERS IN—
ALL OF THE LEADING
Agricultural Implements
MAIN STREET. - - - McKINNON BLOCK.
Before Purchasing, Give Us a Call.

'Round Home.

Wheat—1 Hard 58.
1 Northern 56.

Moses E. Clapp, Henry Feig And C. A. Severance Will Speak at McKinnon Hall Saturday Ev'g, October 29, At 8 O'Clock.

Buy your diamonds of Tom Morris.

Mrs. A. C. Wilkinson has returned from a visit to friends in Wisconsin.

Herb Mason left for St. Paul on Monday evening to purchase holiday goods.

Bob Evans made the best speech of the season at McKinnon's hall last Friday evening.

Miss Lizzie Zarracher, who is teaching school at St. Hilaire, spent the Sabbath in the city.

August Wentzel reports that he raised 16 bushels of No. 1 hard wheat per acre this season.

NEXT Tuesday is the last day of registration. Don't fail to register and thus insure your vote.

W. H. Averill was in from Fosston last Friday and took in the meeting at McKinnon's hall in the evening.

Jim Meyers was up from the west side on Friday and went to hear Bob Evans, speech in the evening.

Tom Edison, bonanza farmer of Larimore, N. D. and all-around politican, was in the city Monday.

Mrs. Dr. C. E. Dampier and Mrs. A. Braley entertained a number of their lady friends at cinch on Tuesday evening.

L. S. Nelson made this office a pleasant call on Monday morning. He is doing good work for the republican party on the stump.

Henry Burkhardt, whose severe illness was the cause of his father's visit, was so much improved on Sunday that the senator felt safe to leave or home.

Napoleon Rapin has been rather under the weather for five or six weeks and now proposes to hire an extra man and take a lay-off for a while in hopes to recruit his wasting strength.

Tom Morris' holiday stock of jewelry, silverware, watches etc., is beginning to arrive. A larger and more complete stock than ever before brought to Crookston. He invites a call.

Marcus Johnson was in the city this week and went over to Fisher to see the improvements being made in the Thompson-Johnson flour mill at that place. He is just as confident of Harrison's election as he was of his nomination.

C. T. Lanman, of the McIntosh Times was in the city on Thursday last. In his last issue he roasted Hunt, of the News to the queen's taste and yet lived to make one more trip to the county seat.

C. M. Lowe returned from his southern trip last week, glad to get back to civilization. Thinks Polk county the best place to get a living of any he has seen and by far the healthiest country to live in.

Angus Kennedy died at his residence in this city on Sunday last and was buried on Tuesday. Mr. K. has been a resident of Polk county about nine years and was at one time proprietor of the Box hotel in this city.

The JOURNAL is in receipt of an invitation from Capt. Eberhart to take a trip to the Red Lake agency on the steamer Viking and some day we may be on deck to accept but probably not this fall owing to lack of time. The trip is said to be a very delightful one by those who have made it and the boat has been well patronized.

The steamer "Viking," owned by Capt. Eberhart, plying between Thief River Falls and Red Lake, is fitted up comfortably for the accommodation of passengers, making the trip one of the most delightful that can be made at this season of the year. The Viking leaves Thief River Falls for the Red Lake agency every Tuesday, returning on Friday and will make regular trips until navigation closes. [28 tf]

The Methodists gave a reception for their pastor at the church parlors on Friday evening of last week which proved a very enjoyable affair.

See Saake before you order your holiday jewelry.

Charlie Misner was on the sick list last week. Had to stop at home for several days.

J. P. Paradis, of St. Paul, was in the city this week talking politics from a republican stand-point.

Comrade Zarracher displayed the star-spangled banner from the palace hotel windows on Columbus day.

Republicans, remember the meeting at the club rooms on Friday night. All republicans cordially invited.

I Benoit is moving into the new Barrette-Dufresne block where he will have as slick a little grocery store as is in the city.

Lots of hay coming to the market these days but not lots of wood. A few hundred cords of that article would be appreciated.

When you want a good photograph of yourself, go to P. E. Lynne's new gallery in the Anderson-Olson block—second floor.

A. E. Brush was in from Angus on Tuesday and called to renew his subscription. Very many are doing that and yet there is room for more.

P. E. Lynne has removed his photograph gallery to the Anderson-Olson block and now occupies the entire rear end of the second floor, where he has a splendid light for photographic work.

T. G. Thompson went out to Devils Lake last week to hunt the festive wild goose and every train that came from there while he was away was loaded down with the results of his hunt.

Our reporter called at the stables of M. R. Brown on Monday and saw the beautiful Clyde horses that Mr. Stewart has there for sale. There are six of them, as fine samples of horse-flesh as one would wish to see. The Clyde makes a valuable farm horse besides being a good stylish driver.

John P. Bray, postmaster of Grand Forks and ex-auditor of North Dakota, was in the city Monday. He predicts success for the state and national ticket in North Dakota. The fusion which the democrats made with the people's party has disgusted most of the democrats and they will not support the ticket.

Dr. A. Nelson was up from Fertile on Friday to meet national committee man, Bob Evans, and hear him speak. The doctor is enjoying excellent health this fall and says his business is better than ever before. The doctor is a staunch republican and while he thinks the town of Garfield will not be responsible for it, he predicts a rousing republican victory in the state this fall.

Senator Burkhardt came up last week to see his son Henry who has been very sick. He left for his home in Wabasha on Sunday evening, his son being considered out of danger. Mr. B. says the southern part of the state is all right and predicts Mr. Nelson's election by 10,000 majority at least. Says he has been doing some great work for Feig while here, also for the balance of the ticket.

That free-thought lecturer seemed to be out of luck in Crookston. The first night the lecturer failed to show up, the next night a very small audience showed up, and the next nobody at all appeared to hear what he had to say. What he did say was only a rehash of Tom Paineism and disgusted the most of his hearers, we are told. Free-thoughtism may be all right in its place but the doctrine don't seem to have much place in Crookston.

Adolph Rauch reports a little 2x4 burglary at his store which occurred sometime in the afternoon on Sunday. He went down to his store at 5 o'clock p. m. and found the door to the shed in the rear of the store room open and a shovel lying near showed how it had been accomplished. Upon further investigation he found that the cash drawer had been robbed of about $1.50 in small change consisting mostly of nickels and pennies, and two pocket knives missing. Why the thieves did not help themselves to more is a mystery as yet unsolved.

Grand Forks Herald—Our friends the enemy are circulating among the farmers a document which undertakes to tell them how calamitous is their situation when they hitch a taxed horse to a taxed wagon by means of taxed harness and drive it through town, where they buy such and such, taxed so and so. They omit to say, however, that the the wagon now costs $50 instead of $125, as it did a few years ago; that the lumber it brings back from town costs $12 where then it cost $30; that it is put together with nails costing $2.75 a keg instead of $7; that it is painted with paint costing $7 per 100 pounds instead of $11, and mixed with linseed oil costing 45 cents a gallon where then it cost $1. These phases of republican taxation do not get into democratic documents.

R. Tiedeman was down from Euclid on Tuesday.

Be sure you are registered if you want to vote.

Dick and Ted Plumb came up from Fisher on Monday looking as jolly as ever.

Miss Inez McGrew returned on Tuesday morning from a visit to friends in Minneapolis.

J. T. Knight, the independent rustler from Red Lake Falls, was in the city on Wednesday.

Will Clements has rented a store in the Rickett block and will occupy it about the middle of November.

Saake wants your trade in jewelry or in anything in his line and will make it an object for you to call on him.

August George, for so long time auditor of Norman county, will move to Crookston and be a Polk county resident for the future.

Mrs. W. E. McKenzie and Mrs. E. C. Carruth entertained a number of their friends at progressive cinch on Thursday evening of last week.

Another burglary is reported for last week. The Germania house was the scene of operations and two silver watches the property purloined.

For rent—the front or rear room in the public reading room building. Suitable improvements will be made according to the business going into it.

The Commercial house has changed owners. Mr. Clements has sold it to A. J. Stoeser of Grafton, N. D. Mr. Clark will still continue to run it, however.

The residence of Fred Mix was entered on Wednesday night of last week by burglars who stole Fred's pants getting only $1.10 for their trouble.

C. H. Saake is constantly adding to his stock of jewelry such things as are needed and is prepared to show the finest stock he ever had. He invites a call.

The work of grading up the railroad yards goes forward lively and at this rate will soon be completed. When done it will make an expensive and a very great improvement.

Our next governor, Hon. Knute Nelson, will speak in this city on the evening of Saturday, November 5th. Everybody cordially invited to come and see and hear Minnesota's next governor. Remember the date.

Photographer Lynne now occupies his new quarters on the second floor of the Anderson-Olson block, and is better equipped than ever to turn out first-class work, for which he is famous.

Saake's jewelry store on Robert street is the place to buy jewelry, watches, clocks, silverware and everything in that line. He allows no competetor to discount his prices. Call and see his holiday goods.

Hoch Bros. have just purchased a new cash register that is the most perfect machines of the kind we ever saw. It operates automatically and adds up the amount of the day's sales at the close of each day's business.

C. H. Saake thinks of building a large three-story brick block on the corner of Second street and Broadway, next summer. The plans show an elegant building, with a fine town clock in the steeple. We trust the plans will be carried out.

The Ladies' Society of the Congregational church have secured the services of the noted violinist, Herr A. Aamold, to give a concert. He will be assisted by some of the best singers in the city. This is a musical event that none should miss.

Turner's English Girls appeared at the Grand on Thursday evening of last week playing to a fair house. As the company could not make the next place billed for, Hillsboro, N. D., in time for Friday evening they played here on Friday night also to a small audience.

Chabot is getting his goods back into his old place in the Fournet block, but what a different looking place it is. The room formerly occupied by O'Brien's hardware is added, and both fixed up in elegant style. He will have as fine a store as any in the city.

M. E. Bartlett: McManus & Farley have the largest and best feed mill ever run in this city. They can grind a thousand bushels in a day, and have the best conveniences for handling I ever saw. I took fifty bushels of barley there last week and almost before I had turned around they had it ground and ready for me to take home. I know it did not take them over half an hour to do it.

Peter Larson was up from Fisher on Tuesday and called to set that subscription ahead a peg. Mr. Larson is one of the old-time patrons of the JOURNAL, commencing in '78 or '79, and is one of the kind we like—very prompt to put up the needful to make a good paper. He says his experience convinces him that millet is better for the land than summerfallowing and henceforth he summerfallows no more.

Soft easy shoes for tender feet, at The Fair.

Cloaks! cloaks! at A. Sture's. Give us a call.

If you want fresh groceries, go to A. Sture's.

Fur trimmed jackets at A. Sture's, only $6.50.

John Hart was in the city from Montana this week.

B. M. Chesley was up from Ada this week on political business.

New furniture constantly arriving at I. U. Jennings' furniture store.

Mrs. Halvor Steenerson returned this week from a visit to Minneapolis.

Look at the label on the address of your paper and if in arrears call and see us.

I. U. Jennings keeps every variety of furniture and guarantees to undersell them all.

Do you want a good pair of blankets? If so, do not purchase before you have seen those at A. Sture's.

The lovely fall weather still continues with the prospects good for lasting through November at least.

Mr. Wilcox has the grading of Second street nearly completed and the sidewalk along the north side is laid.

Policeman Robinson went to Wisconsin this week on a visit to the old home, expecting to be gone two or three weeks.

John N. Hager who was in the city visiting friends and relatives for a fortnight, returned to his home in Maiden Rock, Wis., last week.

Don't fail to hear Moses E. Clapp, Henry Feig and C. A. Severance at McKinnon's hall, next Saturday evening, Oct. 29th.

Yes, my son, Eli is a very talented man—a very smart man—yet we think the Tribune rather over-estimates his capacity.

Large stock of dry goods just received. Come in and look them over before you go elsewhere. Prices guaranteed. A. STURE.

Rev. R. H. Battey returned on Wednesday and there will be services at the Congregational church at the usual hours on Sunday.

Andrew Swanson was in from Wylie on Monday. Says the crops were not extra in his neighborhood this year and the price of wheat discouraging.

Mrs. Newland moved from the rooms over Mrs. Bangs' old store to the house on the corner of Broadway and Fifth street, last week and is getting nicely settled this week.

Owing to the rally at the Liebert schoolhouse next Saturday evening, at which Henry Feig will speak, A. N. Hixson has decided to postpone his meeting until the evening of Nov. 4th.

H. E. Boen was up looking after his fences on Monday. Mr. Boen is a nice, jolly sort of a fellow, just the kind to keep at home—where he will doubtless stay for the next two years.

Dr. J. H. Thomas has purchased the Box hotel property and next summer intends building a fine brick block upon the site now occupied by the old Minnesota house. Doc. is a rustler.

A. Chabot now occupies his old stand on the corner of Robert street and Broadway, which he has remodeled and doubled in size, and is now one of the handsomest business places in the city.

Mr. Carl Hardle, of Belgium, was stricken with paralysis on Friday of last week and has been very ill since. He is father of Mrs. Theo. Greenhalgh and this week Mr. and Mrs. Greenhalgh went up to care for him.

Will Carlton, Jr., moved into the rooms on Second street just vacated by the Newlands and will henceforth be a resident of Crookston. Mrs. Carlton will be remembered by our citizens as Maggie Cruikshanks who was for some time one of the popular school teachers of Polk county.

Locken & Holmboe have moved their stock of goods which they had in the Locken & Solberg store, across the street into the new Anderson-Olson block. They still continue their department store in the opera house block, and the Robert street store will be devoted to clothing, boots and shoes and gents' furnishings.

Our German Ward presented by the Middaugh Company on Monday evening was well-attended and highly enjoyed. The company is composed of artists and Allen Wightman in the title role is a howling success. May Woods takes the character of Malinda Briggs, the old maid, perfectly, as in fact does each actor take his or her character. The band is one of the finest ever brought to the city and Crookston people were highly delighted with it and with the Middaugh Company as a whole. Never has a company given better satisfaction and if a good house is any satisfaction to a company this company should be satisfied with their business in Crookston.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report.

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

I. U. Jennings does not advertise a few articles at "way down prices" to catch you on the balance but sells everything at "way down prices."

Knute Nelson will hold three meetings in Polk county—Fertile Nov. 4, at 8 p. m.; McIntosh Nov. 5, at 12 o'clock noon; and Crookston Nov. 5th, at 8 p. m.

Veronneau & Adams find their business increasing so fast that extra help was needed so they have engaged Miss Selma Sampson and Miss Alice Childs for the season.

Grand closing out sale of jewelry watches, clocks and silverware at A. D. Morris store on Robert street. Remember, anything you want in jewelry you can get at a bargain.

M. S. Converse, member of the republican state central committee gave this office a pleasant call on Wednesday. He reports prospects good for republican success wherever he has been.

Mrs. I. U. Jennings can always be found at her old stand on Robert street ready to show you the latest and most approved styles of millinery and will sell at prices corresponding to the times.

On Tuesday the judges of election assembled in the various wards to attend to registering names. They will meet again next Tuesday to complete the work. BE SURE THAT YOU ARE REGISTERED.

Owing to his wife's contined illness A. D. Morris has decided to go out of the jewelry business in this city and offers his entire stock for sale at prices away down. Call early for choice. (28tf)

Will Peterson took a trip to Thief River Falls and Red Lake Falls this week. While enroute home from the latter place on Thursday the buggy broke down and Will had to go and hire a farmer to haul him home in a lumber wagon.

See A. D. Morris' ad and call at his store on Robert street for bargains in jewelry. He expects to leave Crookston about Nov. 15th, and will dispose of his stock regardless of cost. Now is the time to catch on while they go at any price.

If you need anything in the line of watches, clocks, silverware or jewelry of any kinds, call on A. D. Morris' at his jewelry store and take advantage of his great closing out sale. They go without regard to cost to close out. It will pay you to bear this in mind and call.

At last the sad blow for which the nation has awaited with bated breath for the past few weeks has fallen and Mrs. Harrison has gone from earth. She died at the executive mansion in Washington at 1.40 on Tuesday morn surrounded by mourning friends and relatives, and the nation mourns the death of a true and noble woman who had endeared herself to all by her many graces by her manifold virtues, qualities that will cause her memory long to survive in the hearts of her many friends.

It beats all, the number of sales Veronneau & Adams are making these days, and yet it is not so very wonderful either when you come to see their elegant goods and learn how cheaply they sell them. Why, every day is special sale day with them. They invite our lady readers to call and take advantage of the many opportunities for bargains that are afforded.

Cash for Hides.

I will pay the highest market price in cash for hides, pelts and furs. Call at my office No. 14 Broadway, Crookston, Minn.

[26-tf] GEO. VINE.

A Benefit for L. J. Columbus.

Arrangements are being completed to secure a company to play for the benefit of Manager L. J. Columbus, which event will occur some time in November, probably about the 15th. Mr. Columbus, since he took charge of the opera house, has been indefatigable in his efforts to secure the very best attractions for his house, and it is through his efforts that such stars as Marie Frohmann, Margaret Mather, Haverly's Minstrels and the like have been induced to come here, and he is entitled to credit for what he has done for the theatre-going people. He has taken great pains to secure good plays and good companies, and if we have had any "rocky" shows here Mr. C. has been as badly fooled beforehand as anybody, for he has tried to avoid all such. The JOURNAL hopes to see a big turnout to Manager Columbus' benefit.

For Sale.

Two solid gasoline barrels for sale at this office. The very best of material and well made. Call at the JOURNAL office. [28 tf]

Lost.

By the undersigned, between Crookston and Beltrami, Minn., four (4) promissory notes, as follows, viz: One for $75, dated August or September, 1890, due November 1st, 1891; one for $40, dated August or September, 1890, due November 1st, 1890 or November 1st, 1891, given by Ole Iverson and payable to the order of the undersigned. One for $40, given by Herman Viken to Ole Brye, and endorsed by him; and one for $20 given by Ole Tofte to said Ole Brye and endorsed by him.

The payment of these several notes is hereby stopped. The finder will be liberally rewarded for the return of these notes to the owner, J. A. Bakkene, or to Christianson Bros., Crookston, Minn.

Oct. 22, 1892. [28-30]

U. S. LAND OFFICE.
Crookston, Minn., October 24th, 1892.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register or Receiver U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on December 12th, 1892, viz: John Sensel, Hd. No. 2546, for the w½ nw¼ and w½ sw¼ Sec. 12, Tp. 149, R. 43. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz: Rudolf Wadekamper, Peter Toupin, David Robinson, Wentzel Luxemburger, all of Mentor, Polk county Minn.

[28-33] HUGH THOMSON, Register.

Blankets and Bedding

Have been poor lately. The weather seems to have taken the life all out of them. The prices we are quoting ought to move them.

3-pound, 62x72, gray blanket for	$ 69
5-pound, 72x82, all wool gray for	3 00
7-pound, 84x144, all wool gray for	5 00
5-pound, 72x82, all wool scarlet for	3 00

15 all wool white blankets, all sizes, and prices, at a discount of 15 per cent. These are a very little soiled on the outside fold, and we trust the excuse for the discount will be more apparent.

Why Shake and Shiver from Wintry Blasts?

8-pound, 64x72, quilts for	$ 72
8-pound, 72x84, quilts for	1 00
7 pound, 72x84, quilts, cotton filled, reversible, and made of best satine	4 00
Elder down quilts for	9 00

They are of good silk, beautiful and cheap. We have comfortables made by the ladies of the different church societies, and we know what goes into them—no shoddy, no trash, nothing but pure, clean cotton. The price is marked plain figures and speak up quite loud enough. Witness our display window.

For 60 cents we will sell you a 2¾ pound feather pillow, covered with the best feather ticking. Why pay more?

Fontaine & Anglim.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL

Polk County Journal.

VOL. XVI. CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY, NOV. 3, 1892. NO. 29

Knute Nelson will speak at Grand Opera House, Crookston, November 5th, 8 p.m.

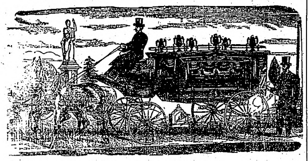
Crookston Furniture Co.

Undertakers

—AND—

Funeral Directors.

SECOND STREET, Next to Times Office, CROOKSTON, MINN.



—COMPLETE STOCK OF—

CASKETS, COFFINS, ROBES, BURIAL SUPPLIES.

A Beautiful New Hearse has just been received. Parties desiring the use of the same will leave orders with us.

☞ Telegraph orders promptly and casefully filled. ☜

R. G. WOODHAM, Undertaker and Embalmer.

The Flambeau Club.

The republican flambeau club made a nice appearance last Saturday night when the members turned out as an escort for Attorney General Clapp. Their uniforms consists of a red helmet with a torch in it, and a white cape. It was through the efforts of Secretary Palmer of the republican club that the uniforms were secured, and a more striking campaign uniform could not have been had. During the parade the company was in charge of Captain Zarracher and Lieut. Jefferson.

The following item, which we have from the Lake City Republican will be a surprise to some of George's friends in this city, though some have had their suspicions for some time. George and his fair bride will be welcomed home by hosts of friends. The Republican says:

Mr. George E. Lipscomb of Crookston, and Miss Lizzie Copp were married at the home of the bride's brother, Mr. Harry Copp, in the town of Gillford on October 25th, 1892, by Rev. C. L. Demster of this city. The young couple will make their future home in Crookston. The young lady has a large circle of friends in Gillford who will wish her and her husband many years of happy wedded life.

Notice.

All those who are indebted to us are requested to settle up their accounts at once, as we must have money to buy a new stock of goods. We hope our friends will respond promptly and thus enable us to get on our feet as soon as possible.

WILLIAMS & ROBERTS.

Lost.

By the undersigned, between Crookston and Beltrami. Minn., four (4) promissory notes, as follows, viz: One for $75, dated August or September, 1890, due November 1st, 1891; one for $40, dated August or September, 1890, due November 1st, 1890 or Nobember 1st, 1891, given by Ole Iverson and payable to the order of the undersigned. One for $40, given by Herman Viken to Ole Brye, and endorsed by him; and one for $20 given by Ole Tofte to said Ole Brye and endorsed by him.

The payment of these several notes is hereby stopped. The finder will be liberally rewarded for the return of these notes to the owner, J. A. Bakkene, or to Christianson Bros., Crookston, Minn.

Oct. 22, 1892. [28-30]

COUGHING LEADS TO CONSUMPTION Kemp's Balsam stops the cough at once.

For Sale.

A scholarship in the Crookston Business College. Apply at the JOURNAL office. [10 t.f.]

FITS—All fits stopped free by Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. No Fits after first day's use. Marvelous cures. Treatise and $2.00 trial bottle free to Fit cases. Send to Dr. Kline, 931 Arch St. Phila., Pa. For sale by all druggists; call on yours.

Beecham's Pills cure bilious and nervous ills.

Cash for Hides

I will pay the highest market price in cash for hides, pelts and furs. Call at my office No. 14 Broadway, Crookston, Minn.

[26-tf] GEO. VINE.

Money to Loan.

On good farms by the Red River Valley Loan and Investment company. Call at their office in the Bjoin block, Main street, Crookston. Minn.. [28tf]

Lawler Elected.

Tom Morris says he does not know whether Lawler will be elected or not but he does know that you can find a larger stock of holiday jewelry at Tom Morris' store than anywhere else in Polk county.

Cloaks.

Two thousand one hundred dollars worth of women's, misses and children's cloaks and wraps were sent us this week by a wholesale cloak house that was overstocked, with instructions to sell them at any price. This is the best opportunity to secure a good winter cloak at your own price. Come early and secure a good choice. The Fair, corner Main and Robert streets.

It is no use denying it. Crops are poor and the price of wheat is too low. The question arises for every farmer how to make ends meet and have some money to spare. We have one suggestion to make. It is this "read Locken & Holmboe's adds" or better still visit their store and see how far a dollar goes at that place.

A New Cycle Company.

A company entitled the "S. C. Heath Cycle Co." has been incorporated in Minneapolis, with a capital stock of $50,000, for the purpose of manufacturing and repairing bicycles, typewriters, sundries and accessories thereto, and the owning, holding and selling patents to and within the scope of this business. The names of the incorporators are S. F. Heath, of Minneapolis, and J. W. Hack of Minneapolis, and F. M. washburn, Minneapolis. These men are men of means and have the necessary enterprise to make the institution a success.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, } ss.
COUNTY OF POLK }

The State of Minnesota, to Edward Arneson Defendant.

You are hereby summoned to be and appear before the undersigned, one of the Justices of the Peace in and for said County, on the first day of December 1892 at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at my office in the City of Crookston in said County, to answer to T. B. Maurland in a a civil action. Should you fail to appear at the time and place aforesaid, judgement will be rendered against you upon the evidence adduced by said T. B. Maurland for such sum as he shall show himself entitled to.

Given under my hand this 29th day of October 1892.

STEENERSON & STANTON, C. O CHRISTIANSON,
Atty's for Plff.s. Justice of the Peace.
[29-31]

Lane's Medicine Moves the Bowels Each Day. In order to be healthy this is necessary

McKENZIE'S MOTIVE.

Halvor Steenerson Gives Editor McKenzie's Motive for Continually Abusing Him.

ED. JOURNAL: To those who know what a contemptible, spiteful seven by nine calumniator the editor of the Crookston Times is, no refutation of his effusions against me are required, but as there may be persons unacquainted with his real character, I will say that the motive for his abuse of me in his disgraceful sheet is no secret. Ever since he failed in his scheme to plunder the city treasury, by means of exhorbitant printing charges, he has been hounding me in the most spiteful and unjust manner. He has made his boasts that because I refused to aid him in robbing the city treasury, he would get even with me. This I have from his own employes, who heard him say it.

Now, as to his attack on my legislative record. He first says that I voted for Windom for United States Senator. To this charge I plead guilty. I was elected as a Windom man and pledged to his support, and I always believe in keeping my pledges.

The charge that I advocated the bill for a grant of swamp land to the Lake Park, Crookston & Northern, is a falsehood. I never heard of such a bill in the legislature or elsewhere, and I was never required to vote upon it. The whole thing is a falsehood from beginning to end. I did favor the Duluth & Winnipeg, which was a road projected into the Red River valley, as against the Iron Range road running north of Duluth and every paper in my district did the same.

The statement that I got $1,500 appropriated for a state road to Beltrami county, is not correct. I obtained an appropriation of $3,000 to be expended under the direction of the Board of County Commissioners of Polk county, and I am told that that body spent every cent of it between Maple Lake and the east line of Polk county. I also obtained $2,000 for a bridge at St. Hilaire. and also for bridges in Norman, Marshall and Kittson counties—more than has been obtained since in three sessions. As to the Normal school, Crookston never asked for any such institution until after my term expired, in the session of 1887, and after Moorhead had got one established there.

Hastily yours,
H. STEENERSON.

Fosston Ripples.

From our Regular Correspondent.

Hon. Henry Feig delivered a political oration from a republican standpoint to a large house at opera hall, Friday evening.

Mrs. W. B. Sheffield is visiting friends and relatives at Ada.

Deputy Sheriff Losey was doing official duty in this vicinity last week.

Wood and potatoes are bringing good prices in our market, but wheat is way down.

Chas. Lowe, of Crookston, tarried a few days among his numerous friends here the first of the week.

James Sutor and family of Wylia are visiting his brothers Samuel and Robert of this place.

A number of the leading citizens of McIntosh partook of the Masonic supper at the Commercial Saturday evening, and all agree that mine host Sutor never does things on a small scale.

Hallowe'en was duly observed by the young urchins of this place and some of the older ones have a gently appearing countenance.

School opened in the new building last week with an enrollment of nearly one hundred, and Prof. Shelly can congratulate himself on being domiciled in the most commodious building in the Thirteen Towns.

And So Cheap Too !

Ladies, have you seen that elegant stock of millinery at Veronneau & Adams' Parisian millinery store? It is really the most superb and with a corps of efficient trimmers they can turn out a love of a bonnet while you wait, and so cheap, too. The ladies say it rests the eyes to gaze on these lovely goods, and that it is a real pleasure to trade with Veronneau & Adams.

A STUBBORN FIRE.

A Blaze Starts in the Crookston Mercantile Co's Store in McKinnon's Block.

The Firemen Work for Six Hours before the Fire was Completely Extinguished.

The Mercantile Co., Williams & Roberts and McKinnon Bros. the Losers.

About half past 4 o'clock last Monday morning fire was discovered in the McKinnon block occupied by the Crookston Mercantile Co., and soon after the alarm was sounded the fire department was on the ground and had five streams of water playing on the fire which by this time had burned into the basement of the building which was filled with empty boxes and barrels and a large quantity of tea and butter, and when the latter article got afire it was almost impossible to put it out. Great volumes of smoke rolled out and the firemen were unable to enter the building or locate the fire, and all they could do was to pour thousands of gallons of water into the building. The fire communicated to the store occupied by Williams & Roberts—filled with general merchandise—and two streams of water were turned into that room from the front and rear, and soon everything in the store was on the floor completely saturated with water and almost ruined. But the fire in the basement of the Crookston Mercantile company's store still continued to rage and volumes of the blackest kind of smoke continued to roll out. The fire had got a good start in the under side of the floor and it was impossible to get at it. Soon the large cellars underneath the two stores were almost filled with water and yet it was impossible to put out the fire, and it was not till about half past ten o'clock that the fire was got entirely under control, and the firemen ceased their efforts. It was the most obstinate fire ever seen in Crookston and the firemen displayed a heroism seldom manifested by salaried firemen anywhere. For about six hours they worked amidst the smoke and water, and not a man flinched from doing his duty. And the chief—the man whom the boys all love and respect, Archie McKinnon—worked as he never worked before. First at the front of the building, then at the rear, directing and encouraging the boys, Archie was on the jump all the time He had a double double object to work for. He had the credit and reputation of the fire department to sustain, and he had the incentive also of saving the handsome brick block belonging to his brothers, and backed by the noble lads of the fire department he succeeded in both.

THE LOSSES.

The damage to the building will be covered by insurance.

Williams & Roberts put their loss at $13,000, with $7000 insurance divided as follows: Liverpool & London & Globe $1000; North British & Merchantile $1000; London Assurance Corporation $2000; Underwriters of New York, $1000; German of Freeport, $2000.

The Crookston Mercantile Co., place their loss at $12,000, with $7000 insurance divided as follows: Underwriters, $2000; National fire Insurance of Hartford, $2000; and $3000 in the Continental.

NOTES.

Alderman Morrisey has the spirit of a fireman. While the fire was burning the floor on the lower side, and it was impossible to get the water on it unless some one go down in the basement in which was about seven feet of water. Morrisey volunteered to do down, and after tying a rope around his body and giving the end of it to some of the firemen, he went down in the water and turned on the hose on the fire as long as he could stand it. Then he would shout and the boys would pull him out to get a breath of air. Three times he repeated this, and by this means succeeded in putting out the fire in the basement.

Pastor Squier of the Methodist Episcopal church did good service by bringing round a bucket of hot coffee for the firemen about 9 o'clock.

The McKinnon building was fully insured and will be put in good shape again as soon as possible.

Williams & Roberts were comparatively a new firm having been in business scarcely a year, but they had already worked up a good trade, and they will undoubtedly resume business again.

Among the valient outsiders who deserve great credit for heroic efforts, L. S. Hondesholdt occupies a foremost position for the efforts he put forth gratuitously to save the property of others.

The habit which some have of driving over the hose with heavy wagons is reprensible and can not be too severely condemned. The council should pass an ordinance previding for a heavy fine fof any person driving over the hose when laid for a fire and then perhaps some people would have sense enough to use a little common sense on such an occasion. If the company had not detailed a man to watch every point the hose would have been in danger of being utterly ruined by heavy loads being driven over it.

Aleck McDonald was one of the outsiders who did good service. He constituted himself a hose guard to prevent numbskulls from the ruining the hose by driving over it.

Chief McKinnon: On behalf of the department I want to extend thanks to the Rev. Squier for his kindness in furnishing coffee to the firemen while they were fighting the fire. It was very much appreciated by the boys,

THE ATTORNEY'S MISTAKE.

N. L. Nelson Finds that Judge Mills was Entirely Blameless.

Moorhead Independent: N. L. Nelson, who recently wrote the letter concerning Judge Mills, was in the city Tuesday and made the Independent a pleasant call. He looked up the court records in the flowage cases and found the fault with his attorney, who had not appealed the cases to Judge Mills, as the records show, but the cases can be appealed at any time.

Gay Halvorson has decided not to go into the theatrical business, and Prof. Casad will have sole management of the company which he has gotten up to play "Olson's Troubles." The professor will leave here about the 9th of November, get his company together, and probably start on the road about the middle of November. He is going to carry a band of 16 pieces and in the street parade each musician will be dressed in the costume of a Swede just arrived in this country. This feature will be a drawing card, and as the play is new and novel, and the company all artists—embracing the greatest of all Swedish impersonators. Professor Casad will have a show that is bound to be a winner and a money-maker.

AN IMPORTANT CHANGE.

The Valley Roller Mills Purchased by the North Dakota Milling Association.

The Valley Roller mills of this city which were built by Lee & Herrick and operated by them until the sad fate which overtook these gentlemen, rendered it necessary for Mr. Lee's father to assume the management, have been purchased by the North Dakota Milling Association, and will hereafter be operated to their fullest capacity. This association owns and operates 16 mills, with a combined daily capacity of 4,000 barrels. These mills are located at Mandan, Bismarck, Mayville, Northwood, Devils Lake, Grand Forks, Park River, Casselton and Minto, N. D., and Moorhead, Fisher and Crookston, Minn.

A new set of officers have been elected by the directors of the association, and Mr. Hugh Thompson, although but recently having acquired stock in the company, was selected as president. A better choice could not have been made, for Mr. Thompson is one of the most levelheaded business men of Minnesota, and has been successful in the milling business as well as everything else he has undertaken. The following are the officers:

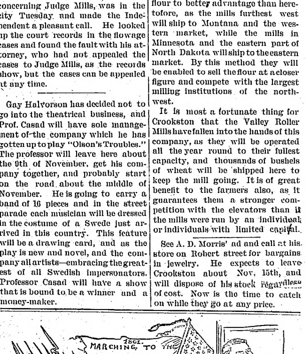
President—Hugh Thompson. General Manager—Jno. M. Turner. Vice-president—L. B. Gibbs. Secretary and treasurer—Geo. F. Honey. Board of Directors—Hugh Thompson, Jno. M. Turner, L. B. Gibbs, W. F. Honey, Walter Dohney together with two Boston and one Newark, N. J. stockholder.

The present force at the mill here will be retained, with Frank Brown as head book-keeper, and Will Bugg as head-miller. The mill will be run by water in about thirty days or less.

The association can now handle flour to better advantage than heretofore, as the mills furthest west will ship to Montana and the western market, while the mills in Minnesota and the eastern part of North Dakota will ship to the eastern market. By this method they will be enabled to sell the flour at a closer figure and compete with the largest milling institutions of the northwest.

It is most a fortunate thing for Crookston that the Valley Roller Mills have fallen into the hands of this company, as they will be operated all the year round to their fullest capacity, and thousands of bushels of wheat will be shipped here to keep the mill going. It is of great benefit to the farmers also, as it guarantees them a stronger competition with the elevators than if the mills were run by an individual or individuals with limited capital.

See A. D. Morris' ad and call at his store on Robert street for bargains in jewelry. He expects to leave Crookston about Nov. 15th, and will dispose of his stock regardless of cost. Now is the time to catch on while they go at any price.



1861.
MARCHING TO THE DEFENSE OF THE UNIO
NELSON
US
US
BAKER
WHEELING REGISTER PUBLISHED BY LEWIS BAKER

THEIR WAR RECORD.

While Knute Nelson was marching to meet his country's enemy in 1861, manager Baker of the Democratic party, then editor of a rebel sheet, sat back and sneeningly dubbed the Union forces, "Chained gangs of glory," and declared the war a failure.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

The new water works system at Aitkin is in operation.

Louis Hohmann, aged 78, a resident of St. Cloud for thirty-eight years, is dead.

The 11-year-old son of O. C. Wheeler, living near Staples, was accidentally shot and killed while duck hunting.

Two immense barrels, each having a capacity of 100 ordinary barrels, have been constructed by a St. Paul firm for an Eau Claire brewery.

Grant & Dougherty's store at Fergus Falls was robbed of $200 worth of shoes and fine plush goods. This is the second time within at month.

It is estimated that over one hundred thousand bushels of potatoes have been marketed at Albert Lea this fall and have brought from 40 to 50 cents per bushel.

A number of prominent business men of Redwood Falls have been arrested for attending a prize fight near there about a month ago. Consternation reigns in the social circle.

The Red Wing grand jury has returned six indictments against one of the alleged blind pig operators at Goodhue, and five against the other, besides several miscellaneous indictments.

A big tin plate mill, to employ 300 men, is to be established at St. Paul Park, a suburb of St. Paul. The company has a capital stock of $200,000. Work on the buildings will begin at once.

The body of the 3-year-old child of Frank Haberman, that was lost Aug. 27, at Fulda, was found in a slough not far from the residence of the parents. The remains were in a good condition.

Dr. M. H. Wickersham, of Mankato, died Wednesday night. He has been a resident of Mankato thirty-six years. In 1861 he was appointed physician for the Winnebago Indians and accompanied them to Nebraska.

Charles H. Hind, a brakeman, fell between two cars at Janesville and was instantly killed. His head was severed from his body and the body otherwise frightfully mangled. The deceased was 22 years of age and resided at New Ulm.

Ex-Public Examiner H. M. Knox has presented the state historical society with a volume containing several sketches of George Washington, accompanied by a short story regarding each artist. The book possesses considerable historic value.

The residence of John Shannes, near New Prague, Minn., nine stacks of grain and farm machinery, were destroyed by fire. Loss, $4,000; no insurance. Jacob Havorka, a farmer, was thrown from his wagon, and his collar bone and three ribs were broken. His condition is critical.

For some time past great trouble has been experienced by Winona firemen from false alarms sent in. The city offered recently a reward of $50 for the apprehension and conviction of any person caught sending in a false alarm. Last week John Jeretschek was detected in the act and was arrested and lodged in jail.

Superintendent O. C. Gregg, of the state farmers' institute, will issue his annual about the middle of November. It promises to be of more interest to those engaged in agricultural matters than any previous number. The publication consists of 355 pages and 20,000 copies will be ready for distribution before the winter institute circuit.

E. E. Gross, a school teacher at Round Lake, about ten miles south of Worthington, Minn., was accidentally shot and killed. He and another man were hunting in a boat. Gross shot, and the gun kicked so that he lost his balance and caused the boat to rock, and the other man's gun was accidentally discharged, taking effect in Gross' head, killing him almost instantly.

Will Kenna, of Clontarf, had Conductor Cunningham, of the Great Northern, arrested at Benson, Minn., on a charge of larceny. Kenna boarded the train at Clontarf and tendered payment of fare, but refused to pay additional 10 cents usually charged, whereupon Cunningham took possession of a suit of clothes to cover fee. Cunningham furnished bond and the case was continued until Nov. 1.

USED SCALPING KNIVES.

Indians at White Earth, Minn., Engage in a Fight Among Themselves.

WHITE EARTH, Minn., Oct. 29.—The Indians of the White Earth reservation are in a turmoil. At a war dance Thursday night Chief White Cloud, the most noted Indian in Minnesota, made a murderous attack with a scalping knife on his son, William Wright, wounding him a such a terrible manner about the heart and lungs that he lies dying in his tepee. In the general fight which ensued several other braves were seriously wounded. Agent Schuler telegraphed to St. Paul for assistance in getting the reds under subjection, and received an answer that several deputy United States marshals had left for this point.

Finishers Organize.

PITTSBURG. Nov. 1.—Representative finishers from all of the iron and steel mills in and about Pittsburg met and perfected their new organization, to be known as the Finishers' union. All necessary preliminaries as well as a constitution were adopted. Hereafter the finishers will exist as an organization independent of the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers, but will at times work in harmony with the latter. The new organization resolved to contribute to the support of the Homestead strikers and to aid them in every possible way. Lodges will at once be organized in every mill employing this class of workmen.

A Puzzling Outlook.

Duluth Herald:—The quietness of the present presidential campaign in which feature it differs entirely rom any campaign for many years past, is puzzling the politicians who are trying to size up the situation. The people will not enthuse to any great extent this year. Parades and torches are all very well in their way, but they do not make votes this year, because the people resolutely decline to shout and cheer in mad frenzy upon the slightest provocation. This is the direct result of the recent campaigns of education. Facts, argument and reason, not meaningless cheers and dazzling processions, are in popular favor in the present campaign. The people are thinking. They are studying the issues between the great parties. They are reading and listening and are weighing the arguments pro and con, and deciding what is right and what is wrong.

In the face of this state of affairs the politicians are at sea. The political prophets are distracted in their endeavors to find signs upon which to prognosticate the result. Only a few of the more reckless have dared to express any confident predictions. The conservative, careful observers, men whose prescience has been verified in past political contests, frankly acknowledge their inability to make any definite predictions. The interview with Col. A. K. McClure, of the Philadelphia Times, which is published to-day, runs along this line. Col. McClure is a good judge of the political situation under ordinary conditions. This year, however, he says the quietness of the campaign is so puzzling that he can predict nothing definite. The contest, in his opinion, is close. Further than that, he dare not predict, although he is inclined to regard the quietness and lack of outward enthusiasm as ominous and would not be astonished at a veritable landslide in one direction or the other.

For Sale.

Two solid gasoline barrels for sale at this office. The very best of material and well made. Call at the JOURNAL office. [28 tf]

Madison Press—For weeks the people's party folks have been advertising a big meeting to take place at Bellingham to be addressed by Dr. Fish. Wednesday of this week was the appointed time and the dear good doctor was on hand, but alas! the people, where were they? That's what Mr. Fish wanted to know and an accommodating gentleman, it is said, took him out upon the streets and thus addressed him: "Do you see this little village with every man in it, both business and laborers profitably employed! Do you see those hundreds, aye, thousands of wheat stacks, those barns, granaries, farm houses nestling in groves of trees? Do you not see that on every hand there is life, activity, prosperity and happiness where but a few short years ago there was naught but a wide expanse of prairies, and do you suppose our people want you or any other man to come out here and tell them they are beggars, that they are surfs, when all our surroundings prove that you are telling falsehoods? We have no use for you!" And the fact that there was no meeting for the doctor to address emphasized the truth of what the gentleman said.

PROBATE NOTICE.

[First publication Nov. 3rd. 1892.]

STATE OF MINNESOTA, COUNTY OF POLK ss. District Court, 14th Judicial District.

In the matter of the estate of David L. Lusian —Insolvent.

It appearing to the court that Adolph F. Rauch, the assignee of the above named insolvent, has converted all the property and assets of said insolvent into money and is now ready to render a final account of his proceedings as such assignee and pay to the several creditors who have proved their claims the amount they may be entitled to. it is therefore ordered: That said assignee make a final account of his proceedings before this court at general term thereof to be held at Warren, Marshall county, Minn., on the 21st day of November A. D. 1892, at the opening of the court on that day or as soon thereafter as counsel can be heard: and that all creditors and the insolvent debtor then and there show cause why the account of said assignee should not be allowed as presented and why he should not be discharged from said trust upon the payment to the several creditors of the amount of dividend that is found due them by the court.

Let this order be served on the insolvent debtor and the creditors who have proved their claims, by a publication of this order in the Polk County Journal for two weeks, commencing November 3rd 1892 and by mailing a copy thereof to the insolvent debtor and to said creditors if their address is known to said assignee.

Dated Oct. 29th 1892.

By the court.

EDWARD GEORGE, Atty. for Assignee.
IRA B. MILLS District Judge.

U. S. LAND OFFICE.
Crookston, Minn.. October 24th, 1892.

Notice is hereby given, that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register or Receiver U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on December 12th, 1892, viz: John Sensel, Hd. No. 12,546, for the w½ nw¼ and w½ sw¼ Sec. 12, Tp. 149, R. 43. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz: Rudolf Wadekamper, Peter Toupin, David Robinson, Wentzel Luxemburger, all of Mentor, Polk county Minn.

[28-33] HUGH THOMPSON, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE.
Crookston, Minn., October 26th, 1892.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the register or received U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Dec., 9th, 1892, viz: Frank Hanson, Hd. No. 11701 for the e½ ne and e½ s e¼ sec. 8, tp. 147 n, r 48 w. He names the following witness to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of, said land, viz: Halvor Steenerson of Crookston, Minn., Gunder G. Dale, Michael G. Wood, K. S. Akker, all of Neillsville, Minn.

[28-33] HUGH THOMPSON, Register.

THE

Crookston Plumbing Co.

Carry the Largest and Most Complete Stock of

WOOD and IRON

PUMPS

AND

Iron Pipe

IN THE CITY.

PRICES AS LOW AS THE LOWEST

C. HENDRICKSON, President.
L. ELLINGTON, Vice President.
J. W. WHEELER, Cashier.
H. STEENERSON, 2d Vice President.
A. P. Hanson, Assistant Cashier.

Scandia-American Bank,

Of Crookston, Minn. Organized under the State laws. Authorized capital $200,000. Paid up capital $50,000. Undivided profits $10,500. Buys Bonds, School and Town Orders. Special attention to collections. Interest on time deposits.

DIRECTORS—C. O. Christianson, E. P. Pierce, O. H. Lucken, A. G. Gallasch, H. Steenerson, J. H. Locken, C. Hendrickson, Max Ericsson, L. K. Aaker, J. W. Wheeler.

First National Bank
OF CROOKSTON

PAID IN CAPITAL. - $100,000
SURPLUS. - - - $14,200

Interest on time deposits. Faithful attention to Collections and prompt remittance.

GEO. Q. ERSKINE, President.
WM. ANGLIM, Vice President.
CHAS. E. SAWYER, Cashier.

DIRECTORS:

Wm. Anglim, K. D. Chase, R. D. Childs
Geo. Q. Erskine. J. R. McKinnon. A. A. Miller
E. M. Walsh. Chas. E. Sawyer W. H. Crosby

Work Horses and Mares.

FOR GOOD, SOLID WORK HORSES and MARES, go to

M. R. BROWN,

The old reliable dealer, who has sold horses in this county since 1878, and who is always on hand to make his guaranty good. Every man who ever sold horses here is ready (when he sells) to guaranty, but later, if you happen to want him to make his guaranty good you can't most always sometimes find him ready to make his recommend good. He handles only good young horses and has sold more than any dealer in the county. He is now prepared to supply the demand for good teams—he handles no other—and guaranty them just as recommended. Before you buy you will do well to call at

Brown's New Stables,

Main Street, one door north of the old M. E. church building.

S. L. COLLINS,
Proprietor of Main Street

Livery and Feed Stables.

Cor. Main and Fourth Sts., west side,
CROOKSTON, - - - MINNESOTA.

Horses bought and sold on commission. Everything neat and nobby. Feeding a specialty.

FINE HEARSE

in connection, which I will attend to in person.

U. S. LAND OFFICE.
Crookston, Minn., October 11th, 1892.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register or Receiver U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 28th, 1892, viz: Henry Huot, Hd. No. 12,003, for the ne¼ sw¼ and lots 4, 5 and 6, Tp. 151, R. 45. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Joseph Pepin, Joseph Boivin, Narcisse Mircault, Paul Mathew, all of Huot P. O., Minn.

[26-31] HUGH THOMPSON, Register.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication Sept. 29th, 1892.]
[Last publication Nov. 10th, 1892.]

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE payment of nine dollars ($9.00) which became due on the first day of October, A. D. 1889, upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Daniel Bernard and Fannie Jane Bernard, his wife, to John Milton Oliver, bearing date the 3d day of October, A. D. 1888, which mortgage together with the power of sale therein contained, was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the county of Polk and state of Minnesota, on the 29th day of October, A. D. 1888, at 8 o'clock and 10 minutes a. m., in book 40 of mortgages, on pages 273, 274 and 275.

It is provided in said mortgage that if said mortgagors shall fail to pay any part of the sum of money thereby secured at the time and in the manner specified in said mortgage, then upon such default, the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage, may at the option of the mortgagee be declared due and payable; and the said John Milton Oliver, mortgagee, who is now the legal holder of said mortgage and of the notes thereby secured, has elected and does hereby elect and declare the whole sum secured by said mortgage to be due; and there is claimed to be due upon said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of forty-eight and 13-100 dollars, ($48.13), and no action or proceeding has been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof,

Wherefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz:

The northeast quarter (ne¼) of Section fourteen, (14) in Township one hundred and fifty-four (154) north, of Range forty-six (46) west, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres more or less, according to the government survey thereof, in the county of Polk and state of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances thereto belonging; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said county of Polk at the front door of the Court House in the city of Crookston, in said county and state, on Saturday, the 12th day of November, A. D. 1892, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon of that day, at public auction to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale as provided by law.

Dated at Minneapolis, Minn., this 24th day of September, A. D. 1892.

JOHN MILTON OLIVER, Mortgagee.

C. M. HERTIG, Attorney for mortgagee. [24-30]

PROBATE NOTICE.

[First publication Oct. 20th, 1892.]

STATE OF MINNESOTA. COUNTY OF POLK ss. In Probate Court, Special Term October 13th, 1892. In the matter of the estate of Julia A. Griggs, deceased. On reading and filing the petition of James Elton, executor of said estate, setting forth the amount of personal estate that has come into his hands, the disposition thereof, and how much remains undisposed of; the amount of debts outstanding against said deceased, as far as the same can be ascertained; the legacies unpaid, and description of all the real estate, excepting the homestead, of which said deceased died seized, and the condition and value of the respective portions or lots thereof; the persons interested in said estate, with their residences; and praying that license be to him granted to sell the whole of the real estate of said deceased mentioned and described in his petition, and it appearing by said petition that there is not sufficient personal estate in the hands of said executor to pay said debts, the legacies or expenses of administration, and that it is necessary for the payment of such debts, legacies or expenses, to sell the whole of said real estate.

It is therefore ordered, that all persons interested in said estate, appear before this court on Monday, the 14th day of November, 1892, at 10 o'clock a. m., at the probate office in the city of Crookston, in said county, then and there to show cause (if any there be) why license should not be granted to said James Elton aforesaid to sell so much of the real estate of said deceased as shall be necessary to pay such debts, legacies and expenses.

And it is further ordered, that this order shall be published once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Polk County Journal, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston, in said county.

Dated at Crookston, the 13th day of October, A. D. 1892.

By the Court:

C. M. BENSON, Judge of Probate.

[27-29]

PROBATE NOTICE.

[First publication Oct. 20th, 1892.]

STATE OF MINNESOTA, COUNTY OF POLK ss. In Probate Court, special term, October 18th, 1892. In the matter of the estate of Ingebor, I. Loen, deceased: Letters of administration on the estate of said deceased being this day granted unto J. H. Loen of said county.

It is ordered, that all claims and demands of all persons against said estate be presented to this court for examination and allowance, at the Probate Office in the city of Crookston, on the third Monday in April, A. D. 1893, at 10 o'clock a. m.

It is further ordered, that six months from the date hereof be allowed to creditors to present their claims against said estate, at the expiration of which time all claims not presented to said court, or not proven to its satisfaction, shall be forever barred, unless for cause shown, further time be allowed.

Ordered further, that notice of the time and place of the hearing and examination of said claims and demands shall be given by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to the day appointed for such examination, in the Polk County Journal, a weekly newspaper printed and published at Crookston, in said county.

Dated at Crookston, the 13th day of October, A. D. 1892.

By the court:

C. M. BENSON, Judge of Probate.

[27-29]

U. S. LAND OFFICE.
Crookston, Minn., October 24th, 1892.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register or Receiver U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on December 12th, 1892, viz: Rudolf Wadekamper, Hd. No 12,542, for the se¼ Sec. 33, Tp. 150, R. 43. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Joseph Martell, Peter Toupin, John Zeuzel, Joseph Geaudette, all of Mentor, Polk county, Minn.

[28-33] HUGH THOMPSON, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE.
Crookston, Minn., October 3rd, 1892.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof be made before the Register or Receiver U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Novemnber 14th, 1892, viz: Isaac N. Kingsland, Hd. 12583 for the N. E.¼ Sec. 22, Tp. 148, R. 47. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of, said land, viz: William S. Rathary, Torson T. Sveen, James Miller, Lorenzo Judson, all of Crookston, Minn.

25-30] HUGH THOMPSON, Register.

THE NEW NORTHWEST

FARM LANDS — Home seekers will find the last of the public domain of agricultural and grazing value along the Great Northern Ry. in North Dakota and Montana

NEW TOWNS — 100 or more, along the Great Northern Railway Line. Business chances. Write F. I. WHITNEY, St. Paul, Minn., for Books, Maps, &c. Write now.

LOW RATES — Settlers on free Government lands along the Great Northern Ry. Line in North Dakota and Montana get low rates and fine markets for products.

Horses, Cattle. — Montana produces the finest Horses and Cattle. Free ranges yet in Mouse, Milk and Sun River Valleys and Sweet Grass Hills.

Health, Wealth. — In the Northwest. Free Lands. New Towns, New Railways, New Mines, Low Rates. Largest area of good vacant land.

Sheep, Hogs. — Sweetest Grass Hills. Milk and Sun River Valleys, Montana, reached only by the Great Northern Railway Line. The stock raisers' paradise.

Herds, Mines — These have made Montana the richest State per capita in the Union. Plenty of room for more miners and stock raisers. Now is the time.

WE ARE NOW STOCKING UP

In Better shape than ever before with a

Handsomer and Better Selected Line

Than ever before, and

As to Prices, we Shall Certainly Please You.

If you wish to save money. One of the many

RARE BARGAINS —ARE THE— Children's Suits

From ages 8 to 11. Don't fail to see them.

Men's, Boys' and Dhildren's OVERCOATS, Very Nobby and Very Cheap.
Fur Coats open for inspection.

BOSTON ONE PRICE CLOTHING HOUSE,
MOSSEFIN & LINDELL, Props.

IT'S A FACT

—THAT THE—

Journal Job Department

Is Equal to any in Northern Minnesota.

IT IS EQUIPPED WITH

New Material,

Quick Presses,

Cheap Power

—AND—

First-Class Workmen.

IF YOU have anything to sell, which some other person wants, advertise in the JOURNAL, and you will find a purchaser.

Judicious Advertising Pays,

Therefore place your advertisement in a paper which goes into the homes of the people and is carefully read.

SUCH A PAPER IS

—THE—

Polk County Journal.

We Have too many SHOES

WE MUST SELL A GOOD MANY

SHOES

This fall as we cannot afford to keep them over the next season. We have therefore decided for the next

Three Weeks

TO SLAUGHTER OUR SHOE STOCKS

At both our Robert street and Main street stores. All are urged to

TAKE ADVANTAGE

and supply themselves with SHOES At a saving of 25 per cent.

Yours Respectfully,

LOCKEN & HOLMBOE,

A SAMPLE SHOWING.

The St. Paul Globe Prints Another Palpable Lie Regarding Polk County Politics.

(St. Paul Globe)

Polk county, the whilom stronghold of republicanism, has undergone such a complete political change of heart that the republicans could not with a brass band scrape up enough men in it to erect a flagpole. The evidences of this fact are apparent on every hand, and there is no longer a reason to doubt it. Prominent republican speakers who have campaigned the county spoke to empty houses everywhere. One popular Scandinavian who, four years ago, spoke to crowded houses all over the county says that at one point he had an audience of six, at another point only three, and the largest audience he met any place was twenty-five. His meetings had been extensively advertised, and at every place every man, woman and child knew of the meeting. At some of the points where he had almost nobody out he made appointments to speak again, and set on foot the best means possible to get the people out, but in every case he met the identical few who were present at his first appearance. He was so completely surprised that he quit speaking and went out among the houses to labor with the people personally. He was not able to bring a man back to the fold.

Other speakers, both Scandinavian and American, met the same experience. The republicans have practically given that county up as lost; and so far as can be learned, no republican is speaking any place in the county.

To be doubly assured of the great political flop, Andrew Trovatson, of McIntosh, has made a house to house canvass of many portions of the county. He was in St. Paul yesterday and gave a couple of samples of the situation. In the town of Knute, which was named in honor of Knute Nelson, he found only ten men who still adhere to the republican party, and furthermore they are the only men in the town who will vote for Knute Nelson. In the village of Sletten he found only three adherents to the old party, and they are the only men in the village who will vote for Nelson. He says that in both these places four years ago the republican party made a clean sweep, not a man voting any other ticket. Two years ago the republican party received a handsome majority in both places. These, he says, are fair samples of the situation all over the county. He estimates that the republican ticket, including Nelson, will not receive at the outside over 10 per cent. of the vote of the county; the rest will be divided between Lawler and Donnelly.

The situation in Polk county makes certain two things: The Norwegians, also the Swedes, have gone back not only on the republican party, but Knute Nelson. They have not only done so in Polk county, but they have done so almost everywhere in the state.

The above, from the St. Paul Daily Globe shows to what straits the the democrats are reduced when they have resort to such wholesale lying to bolster up a forlorn hope; while it is true that great dissatisfaction existed in the republican ranks two years ago, the statement that republican speakers are addressing empty benches is a gratuitous lie out of whole cloth, and if the writer himself believes what he says, he will be the worst fooled man in Minnesota after the votes are counted. As to the statement in regard to the town of Knute and the village of Sletten that is as transparent a lie as the balance of the entire article and had the writer taken the pains to verify the statement by referring to the official count two years ago then he need not have been silly enough to have printed the statement. In the first place the "village of Sletten" has no existence except in the fertile imagination of the man who told it and the gullible fool who swallowed the whole yarn without taking the pains to verify it and in the second place the town of Knute and the town of Sletten did not give a majority for the republican ticket two years ago. The blue book gives the official vote of Knute: "Owen 110; Wilson 3 and Merriam nothing." In the town of Sletten the official count shows: "Owen 107, Wilson 1 and Merriam 2.

That is the official record as any honest, thinking man can easily ascertain for himself and is indeed "A Sample Showing" of democratic campaign methods, showing that democracy, having abandoned all hope of winning on its merits has entered upon a campaign of bold unblushing deceit and hopes to win by publishing such lies as to the above. If the voters of the great State of Minnesota are such gullible fools as to be caught by such chaff they are not deserving of much sympathy and it is only the unthinking ones who will be caught. When a cause gets so desperate that its voters have to depend on such a silly tissue of lies as is contained in the Globe article it richly deserves to be beaten as it will be soundly on Tuesday next.

If you want a

STOVE OR RANGE

FOR WOOD OR Coal, see the

FAMOUS BRAND STOVE

BRAND'S FAMOUS STOVES AND RANGES

AT ALDERMAN & SYLVESTER'S.

They are the finest line of stoves ever brought to Crookston, and are sold at

REASONABLE PRICES.

Ready for Business.

The Red River Loan and Investment company is a company which is composed of some of our most honorable, prominent, live business men who have the utmost faith in the growth of Crookston and the Red River Valley. That the company will be a grand success, of benefit to the city and its surroundings, there can be no doubt. The object and business of the company is to loan money on good farms on reasonable terms. Sell farm lands and city property. Offices in the opera house block.

The officers and stockholders of the company are

A. G. Gallasch, President.
C. O. Christiansen, Vice-President.
A. F. George, Secretary.
O. H. Locken, Treasurer.

J. W. Wheeler, H. Steenerson L. Ellington, Wm. Anglim, T. H. Bjoin, J. R. McKinnon, Geo. O. Buhn, W. E. McKenzie, A. Chabot, J. R. Clements, O. O. Christianson, Crookston; H. L. Melgaard, O. L. Melgaard, Olsen & Holen, Argyle; John E. Ostrom, Otto Edwardh, Warren; Ben Sundberg, Kennedy; Carl Hendrickson, Grafton; W. H. Mathews, banker, Minneapolis; Joseph Lockey, banker, A. L. Alness, banker; J. A. Swenson, banker, T. L. Shurmeier, wholesale dry goods, D. Brown, wholesale stationer, Tams Bixby, Gov. Merriam's private secretary, A. E. Johnson, immigration agent, Olaf O. Searle, immigration agent St. Paul; C. E. Freidrich; Fred Otto, Red Wing; B. J. Borlaug, banker Kenyon; O. H. Myron, Sylvester Peterson, J. G. Herringer, Garret L. Thorpe, W. C. Calkins, A. J. Vangsness, Eliza O. Aikin, Ada; Norman Hanson, Fertile.

The "Limited" train on The Northwestern Line," leaving Minneapolis 7:25 p. m., St. Paul 8:25 p. m. and arriving Milwaukee 7:25 a. m., Chicago 9:30 a. m., is now equipped with Wagner Compartment Cars in addition to Standard Sleepers, and also with Buffet Smoking and Library Cars.

This is the finest equipped train in America, is the only train of its kind west of Chicago, and no extra fare is charged on this "Northwestern Limited."

By "The Northwestern Line" you also have advantage of fast day train, leaving Minneapolis 7:15 a. m. and St. Paul 7:55 a. m., arriving Milwaukee 7:55 p. m., Chicago, 9:35 p. m., also an afternoon train, leaving Minneapolis 4:35 p. m., St. Paul 5:15 p. m., arriving at Chicago 8:00 a. m

"The Nortwestern Line" is also the only Pullman Car Line from St. Paul and Minneapolis, Sioux City, Omaha, Kansas City, Duluth and Ashland.

For luxury and comfort, best equipment and road bed, secure ticket via "The Northwestern Line," they are on sale at all stations. Illustrated Map Folder free on application to

T. W. Teasdale
Gen. Pass. Agent,
[20tf] St. Paul, Minn.

Tracy Republican: Free trade can be illustrated by this comparison. Buy everything you can outside of the United States especially if you can get it a trifle cheaper than you can get it here. That will soon kill the United States. Buy everything you can outside the state and that will soon kill Minnesota. Buy everything you can away from Tracy and it will kill Tracy. Buy at home, whether in the nation, state or your town and it will build it up. The first is the Democratic idea, the latter is the Republican idea. Choose ye which plan you will adopt.

Reached the Bottom.

It has remained for the St. Paul Daily News to reach the bottom price. Emulating the example of successful eastern papers, the News has put its subscription price right down within reach of the poorest farmer or tradesman. Think of it, an eight page daily paper, containing all the news of the world, and especially all that of the northwest, for $3.00 a year in advance. Only a few years ago that was the price of of an ordinary weekly paper. Or $3.50 per year for The Daily News and The Chicago Ledger, the best weekly family story paper in the world. This offer will remain open to January 1, 1893.

After Nov. 1st, it will issue a weekly edition at seventy-five cents a year, or with the Chicago Ledger, for $1.00 per year. This offer will remain open to January 1st. 1893.

A Billionaire

Some years ago the brilliant but unprosperous John Swinton said in his New York paper that the early part of the twentieth century would see a billionaire in the United States—a person with a thousand millions of money. There is an Astor baby in New York who is the only heir to one hundred and fifty millions. The possessions of the Vanderbilt family amount to two hundred and fifty millions, and if they increase as rapidly as since the Commodore died, not many years will be needed for a billion. When such people travel, they have trains of superb private cars. But you do not need to be a billionaire, or even a millionaire, to ride in the luxurious and splendid Pullman sleepers run on the Burlington Route train. And if for any reason you do not care to take a Pullman, this line provides reclining chair cars, elegant in furnishings and the acme of comfort, for seats in which no extra charge is made. These cars are in service on the morning and evening trains from Minneapolis and St. Paul to Chicago and St. Louis, and returning. For tickets by this line, apply to your home ticket agent, or write to W. J. C. Kenyon, Gen. Pass. Agent, St. Paul, Minn.

KNUTESON REPLIES.

He Indignantly Denies the Charges Made by Mr. Farden.

Ed. Journal: In your last issue is an article signed by T. J. Farden, and with your permission, Mr. Editor, I will answer his falsehoods, which could only originate in the brain of T. J. Farden. Last year I did not attend the meeting of the assessors, so I do not know what rule was adopted in regard to the assessment of elevators, but one thing I do know and that is I took an oath to assess all the property in the township of King impartially, according to the best of my judgment and ability. I came to Crookston after the assessors had finished their meeting. Mr. F. says they made a rule to assess elevators at $3,000 and then adds—"a low value." If an elevator cost $50,000, you are right, it is a low value when you assess it for $3,000. If an elevator cost $1,000 it is also low value when assessed at $3,000, according to Mr. Farden's estimation. His theory is this: Assess an old crippled horse at $50, no matter if he is not worth $20. If you find a horse worth $1,000 assess him for $50 also. Mr. F. says I assessed the elevator at McIntosh for $1,250. Which one? We had three elevators here at that time and four now: I will say to Mr. F. that I know about what it cost to build those elevators and assessed them according to their value as I assessed all other property. If a horse worth $150 is assessed for $50, how much did I favor the elevator company by assessing a $2,000 elevator for $1,250? How much money in the shape of taxes did Mr. F. put into the county treasury by assessing a $2,000 elevator at $3,000, and then having his figures cut down by the board of equalization so as to be even with mine? I will further inform Mr. F. that I have been assessor for six years in this town and that during all this time there has not been a single complaint presented to the town board of review, that the board have looked over my figures carefully and found no fault with my assessment, and I think this is a pretty good record in my own town. I will also refer Mr. F. and all others interested to O. E. Stoven, J. J. Dahl, J. B. Hanson, C. C. Ostby, E. C. Oppegaard, Ole Lee, Paul King, Charles McCarty and O. E. Qualey who have been on the board during the years that I have been assessor, so Mr. F. can find out more thoroughly my record as an official in my own town. I will also inform Mr. F. that the town of King have men competent to run their own affairs without the slightest assistance from him, and if an assessor or any other officer is doing his duties to the fullest satisfaction of all the people of the township, then I think there is no need of Mr. F. troubling himself about it. But Mr. F. is working for his masters and he had to use the best argument he could pick up against me and this was the best he could find.

J. D. Knuteson.

McIntosh, Oct. 28th, 1892.

The above communication is just as we received it except the portions of it that were of a decidedly personal nature. We take the liberty of doing that because we eliminated from Mr. Farden's communication the portions of it that were too personal, because, while we do not think Mr. Knuteson the best man to represent the district, we are willing to bank on his perfect honesty.

If you want a loan, talk to Red River Valley Loan and Investment company.

New York Press: Since the republican party came into power the country has had a currency whose notes were worth as much in Vermont as in Texas. Not a dollar was ever lost to their holders, and their value was never destroyed by the failure of a bank whose name they bore. It is a national currency, and it is as good as gold in every part of the world. The democratic party proposes to destroy this currency and establish in its place a state bank currency of rags—a thing of shreds and patches. The proposition is an insult to the commercial intelligence and the business integrity of the country.

Where Do You Vote?

The city council has designated the Judges of election and the polling places in the city of Crookston as follows:

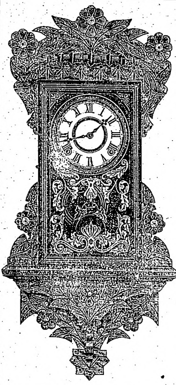
First ward—F. Anderson, Louis Fontaine and I. N. Simmons; vote at city hall.

Second ward—J. E. Morrisey, John Monroe and S. L. Collins; vote at McKenzie's building on Second street.

Third ward—W. E. Walker, W. Watts and M. R. Brown; vote at Commercial hotel sample room.

Fourth ward—F. Jerome, E. M. Walsh and F. Bivins; vote at St. Louis hotel sample room.

Fifth ward—R. G. Marlette, H. A. Stone and W. F. Hitchcock; vote at E. D. Childs Co's office.



THE BIGGEST VALUE For the Money IN THE WORLD Saake's Jewelry Store.

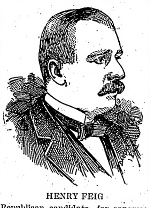
Eight Day, Strike, Alarm Clocks, only $4.85

Every one warranted by special certificate for Five Years.

Don't Wait, but Buy Now.

Remember!

This beats everybody's Prices.



HENRY FEIG
Republican candidate for congress from the Seventh District.

A Grand Musical Event.

Arrangements have been made to have the famous Norwegian violinist Herr A. Aamold appear at the opera house in this city, Monday, November 7th, 1892. This world-renowned violinist comes to us with the most flattering notices from the principal cities of Europe and America. He plays on his favorite Gaarnesius violin valued at $5,000. No music lover can afford to miss this artistic treat.

Stopped His Paper.

Minneapolis Evening Journal—Some one at Hamilton, N. D.—his name is not written legibly—writes the Journal in a perfectly squelching tone of voice, ordering his paper stopped because of a statement made by the Journal about the prices of certain commodities in this country as compared with prices elsewhere. He says he recently came from Scotland and that he knows better. And then he goes on to enlarge on the idea that things of ordinary consumption are very much cheaper in Great Britain than in this country. There is one answer for these kickers, and it is sufficient. It is the question: Why were you so foolish as to come to this country if you were so much better off where you came from? Nobody compelled you to come: nobody compels you to stay. And how are we to account for the enormous immigration from these countries where, according to these critics, they do things so much better than we do upon any other ground than that either the critics lie or else the people who come are very much mistaken as to what is to their best interest? And if the latter, surely a great many would go back as soon as they found out their mistake. They don't seemed to be going in very large crowds.

Fall Dress Goods for Ladies.

The autumn and winter exhibit of dress fabrics is novel, elegant, most bewildering in variety and suited to all purses and tastes. Plain and fancy camel's-hair serges, a gorgeous array of changeable velvets, velours ecossais, veloutine ombree, Scotch plaids, new stuffs in gay Persian, Turkish and Russian colors, silk and wool jacquards, fancy satines and benga-lines that are short, striped, plaided, basket-woven and iridescent are some of the novelties from over the sea. These fabrics come in such an artistic diversity that they require an abundance of appropriate models. To this end new designs, from the picturesque, historic and classic modes, to the plain and practical tailor gowns, are constantly created. The McDowell Fashion Journals, published at 4 West 14th St., New York, are the first to publish these models and present them in an infinite variety, intended to meet all tastes and circumstances of life. "Paris Album of Fashion" and "La Mode de Mode" ased by the most stylish dressmakers. The price of each is only $3.50 a year. "La Couturiere" is a great favorite and has attained an immense success, being $3.00 a year. "La Mode" is the best fashion Journal ever offered for the yearly subscription price of $1.50. If you cannot get these journals from your newsdealers send to the publishers direct.

NEW CIGAR STORE

SIGN OF THE BIG INDIAN.

H. F. BROWN, Proprietor.

Second Street,
CROOKSTON, MINN

Cigars of every known brand, from a cheroot it a 25 center. Cigarettes, Chewing and Smoking Tobaccos of all kinds, Snuff, Pipes to suit he fancy of all, from a corn-cob pipe to a meerchaum.

CALL IN.

Before it gets to be cold and stormy, drop around and give your order for your

Winter's Supply of Fuel

We handle only the best quality of Lehigh Coal and will deliver same promptly. Good quality and full weight guaranteed. We aim to please.

We carry a full and well selected line of

HARNESS

Both heavy and light, and sell at Very Low Figures.

We have one or two

BUGGIES

Left which we will sell at your own figure, almost, to close out and clean up for the year.

If you want a

WAGON

Remember we have the Rushford, which cannot be beaten. You will always find our prices reasonable and the goods the best that money can buy.

Remember,

Merit Wins.

Larsen, Carpenter & Co., Opera Block, Crookston.

Polk County Journal.

BY COOKE & HAMMOND.

Devoted to the Welfare of Polk County.

OFFICIAL PAPER, CITY OF CROOKSTON.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

One Dollar and Fifty Cents, if paid in advance to any address inside of Polk County. If outside of Polk County 15 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum to any address.

THE REPUBLICAN TICKET.

National.

President—BENJAMIN HARRISON,
Of Indiana.

Vice-Pres.—WHITELAW REID,
Of New York.

State.

Governor—KNUTE NELSON,
Of Alexandria.

Lieut. Gov.—D. M. CLOUGH,
Of Minneapolis.

Sec. of State—F. P. BROWN,
Of Blue Earth County.

Atty-Gen.—H. W. CHILDS,
Of Otter Tail County.

Treas.—JOS. BOBLETER,
Of Brown County.

Supreme Court Judges—
C. E. VANDERBURGH,
D. A. DICKINSON,
WILLIAM MITCHELL.

Congressional.

Congressman 7th District—
HENRY FEIG,
of Kandiyohi County.

County.

Auditor.—W. A. LANCTOT,
Of Crookston.

Treasurer.—LEWIS LOHN,
Of Fosston.

Register of Deeds.—NIC NELSON,
Of Norden Township.

Attorney.—IRA C. RICHARDSON,
Of Thief River Falls.

Sheriff.—JAS. M. BAIN,
Of Fisher.

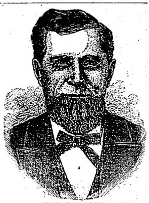
Judge of Probate.—
FRANK MONTAGUE,
Of Crookston.

Supt. of schools.—V. D. CARRUTH,
Of Crookston.

Surveyor.—GEORGE RALPH,
Of Crookston.

Coroner.—GEORGE HOLT,
Of Crookston.

Court Commissioner,
G. H. PALMER,
Crookston.



KNUTE NELSON,
Republican Candidate for Governor

N. L. NELSON, the man who made the outcry against Judge Mills now acknowledges that his grievance is against his attorney and not against Judge Mills, as he supposed. This confirms what the JOURNAL has said before on this subject.

FRANK MONTAGUE who is running as an independent candidate for probate judge, says he is meeting with plenty of encouragement from the voters, and feels pretty confident of election if the people vote as they talk. Frank is in every way qualified for the position, having clerked in the probate office for about three years. Against his opponent, C. M. Benson, the JOURNAL has heard no complaint, and has no kick to register. Mr. Montague will probably receive the republican and democratic vote, and Mr. Benson the people's party vote and the result is pretty hard to foretell.

AT Elbow Lake an attempt was made to break up a republican meeting in a row not long since. While Mr. Nelson was speaking, a great burly fellow, larger than Mr. Nelson, kept interrupting, until finally Mr. Nelson told the fellow if he did not cease his racket he would put him out of the hall if no one else would do it. Whereupon the bully replied that Mr. Nelson nor any other ——— ——— could put him out doors. Jumping from the platform Mr. Nelson seized the fellow by the neck and told him to sit down and be quiet, which advice the fellow followed and Mr. Nelson was disturbed no more that evening. And for this the great St. Paul Globe calls Knute a slugger and a common bully and tries to make political capital out of it.

IT was not a very great while ago that the Great West used to score the bucket-shop gamblers in wheat and assert that if option gambling in wheat could be suppressed the farmers would have a free and open wheat market. Senator Washburn has introduced a bill in congress that would abolish the bucket-shops suppress option gambling and give the farmers a free and open wheat market and yet the Great West opposes the bill. Why? Well, that is something no feller can find out. If the Great West is honest in its professions of interest in the welfare of the farmers it should hail with delight any measure that gives promise of relief to them from what ever source it originates but the Great West says the bill should not pass. Why? Because it is no good? No, simply "because it was introduced by Bill Washburn and Bill is a bold, bad man!" Well there is logic for you! Because Mr. Washburn introduces a bill to prohibit gambling in wheat, which the Great West says is a crying evil, the farmers should all turn loose and defeat the bill and wait for 99 or 100 years until the populists can get into power and pass a similar bill! It would be a sin to accept relief from any other source. Guess not.

OCTOBER 26th was the last day of grace for candidates on the congressional, judicial, legislative or county ticket to qualify, and on the 27th the county auditor in the presence of representatives of the various parties running candidates, drew lots for the positions which the candidates should occupy on the ballots. The independent candidates got first place,, the people's party second, the republicans third, the prohibitionists fourth, and the democrats last. The republican ticket stands as nominated, with the exception of R. J. Montague, candidate for probate judge, who resigned. On the democratic ticket there were five resignations. Ole Nygaard and Jacob Ness, legislative candidates; L. C. Couvrette, for county treasurer, P. J. Russell for probate judge, and Ephraim King for commissioner in the first district. Henry Shepard, candidate for coroner on both the democratic and people's party tickets, failed to qualify as a people's party candidate. Frank Montague was put on as independent candidate for probate judge, he having secured the necessary number of names to a petition. This completes the ticket.

THE democratic sensation maker has been unusually active during this campaign. Almost every week he has got in his work. The latest one is the democratic account of the republican rally which Knute Nelson addressed last week at Elbow Lake. It seems that some people's party men had deliberately planned to break up the meeting, and when they raised a disturbance in the hall they were ejected, and it appears that Mr. Nelson went off the platform and helped quiet the fracas. The leading democrats of Elbow Lake are indignant at the treatment accorded Mr. Nelson and denounce the whole business in no uncertain terms. The democratic papers recount the occurrence thus: "During Mr. Nelson's speech some one in the audience asked him a question. Mr. Nelson couldn't answer it and the questioner insisted upon an answer. Mr. Nelson then told him to shut up and ran down into the audience and took this quiet, peaceable citizen by the neck and choked him." A very probable story, isn't it? And yet there are democrats, who profess to believe this yarn. Such men are too unsophisticated for this country.

THE motive and object for the assault of the wheat gamblers of Chicago upon the republican party of Minnesota is no longer concealed. The lion's skin is no longer able to conceal the tremendous ears of the ass that has been parading as the king of the forest, and who was going to destroy the "wheat combine" and "robbers of the farmers." The fusion of the populist and democratic legislative tickets, coming as it does contemporaneously with the announcement of the candidacy of Michael Doran for United States Senator, lays bare the whole infamous plot to hoodwink the farmers to place their worst enemy in power. Mr. Doran is the head and front of the wheat gambling business in the Northwest. He runs the biggest gambling shop in St. Paul or the Northwest. He has his special wire to Chicago where he executes option deals in grain to an enormous amount every day. With Mike Doran in the senate, the death of the anti-option bill would be a foregone conclusion, and the farmers of the Northwest would be left to the tender mercies of the wheat gamblers of Chicago to be fleeced as never before. Farmers, are you going to let yourselves be led into this trap? If so, vote the fusion ticket; if not, vote for the republican party which alone has offered relief and remedies for the evils that have oppressed you.

THE prohibitionists have issued an appeal to the prohibition and independent voters of the state urging them to vote for Wm. Mitchell, C. A. Vanderburgh and D. A. Dickinson as supreme court Judges, as these gentlemen have proven themselves worthy of the support of every law-respecting citizen. In regard to the democratic candidates, Thomas Canty and Daniel Buck, they have this to say:

"During this campaign, however, an appeal to the selfish interests of voters is made by misrepresenting the character and work of the present Judges, and putting forward one, Thomas Canty, as the special friend of the farmer and laborer, while in truth and in fact he is backed by the worst monopoly that curses the country, viz: The Liquor Dealers Association, and Saloon Keepers whose attorney he has been. The 'working men' who are industriously managing his canvass, are such reformers as the notorious Arctander, J. C. Oswald and Lars M. Rand of Minneapolis, and others of their sort. It is their influence in conjunction with the liquor dealers backed by the money of the latter as we believe, which is being used to change the character of our supreme bench, which has hitherto been true to the best interests of society and a just interpretation of the laws. When the saloon power undertook to break down the ordinances establishing patrol limits and closing saloons on Sunday, this court stood firmly for the right of the city and state to prescribe the limits of place and time beyond which the traffic in intoxicants should not go, and by inference established the principle that under the constitution the state might prohibit it altogether. In the attempt which was made to defeat the temperance legislation of 1887. Mr. Canty was the advisor and counsel of the liquor men as the records of the court show. As to Daniel Buck of Blue Earth county, his record as a legislator and politician is against him. He has always been on the side of the saloon. And there is nothing in all his past history to warrant temperance men in voting for him."

THE object that the average farmer of Polk county sought in joining the farmers' alliance was protection in his business. He realized the force of combination among other business interests; he saw that while every other interest was fully organized, the farmer was trying to go it alone, and for that reason was at the mercy of every other organization. For this reason the alliance obtained a strong foothold and became a power, but before it had had a chace to fairly demonstrate the good it might do, designing politicians saw the opportunity to further their own political schemes and laid their plans to capture the alliance and make of it a political machine. The conservative, thinking farmers saw this attempt with alarm and did all they could to prevent the accomplishment of the scheme, knowing full well that it would wreck the alliance and defeat the object of the farmers, but in vain. The plans of the schemers were too well laid and their wily tongues too smooth to be resisted, and there was a feeling among many that a change, no matter what, could be no worse. The farmers sought relief from a system that prevented his receiving a reasonable share of the profits of his wheat-raising, so when the schemers told him if he would go to work and elect a farmers legislature and pass laws to regulate railroads and elevators and to prohibit option gambling, he very naturally fell in with the idea and did it. But this was only the entering wedge on the part of the schemers, whose plan was to make a political machine of the alliance, and when they had succeeded in once inducing the farmers to take independent action they became more bold and straightway laid the wires for the organization of the people's party. In the farmers' legislature the schemers did all they could to prevent legislation that would benefit farmers; they managed also to pile up a greater bill of expenses than any legislature ever did, so that they might go before the people and say that legislation was no good unless the farmers would combine and capture the government. This kind of argument they used as an excuse for the formation of the people's party, but as yet they have neglected to tell the farmers how the people's party would ever give them the slightest relief. The republican party has recognized the evils that existed in our grain service and they created the board of railroad and warehouse commissioners and have tried to make its operations perfect. The republican party passed the law requiring railroads to furnish cars; also have endeavored to pass a law to prevent option gambling, almost every one of which the schemers that organized the peole's party have opposed. Had the alliance stuck to its first principles, and, as far as politics are concerned, used itself as a balance of power, it would have been a grand good thing for farmers, but the only good the people's party can accomplish if it should be successful is to provide offices for its candidates.

THE Northwestern College of Commerce at Grand Forks has issued their annual prospectus—a neat little pamphlet setting forth the advantages of the institution. This college is one of the great chain of business colleges under the above name, consisting of six of the leading commercial colleges of the northwest, with central office at the University of Commerce and Finance. Minneapolis, and the facilities for acquiring a practical business education is unexcelled.

ENGLISH MEN ARE DEMOCRATS.

London Evening Post: The great interest that we have in the American tariff question no longer permits us to be indifferent to the cause of American politics. Americans are accustomed to complain of British ignorance concerning the minuter differences of political opinion as they exist in the United States. That we should ignore what so keenly excites their attention assumes in their eyes almost the proportions of a slight put upon their national vanity. But the McKinley bill has altered all this. Directly the public here found that one party was pledged to support the bill and the other to repeal it, we were no longer in doubt as to which side to cast our sympathies with. Consequently from the American point of view, we are all democrats. It is no wonder, therefore, that as there must be an important electoral contest in the autumn, we are now looking across the Atlantic with some anxiety. The idea widely prevails that the defeat of the republicans will stimulate trade here and we are, consequently, hardly able to stand by with a feeling of neutrality.

THE democrats are very much worked up over the fact that Henry Feig was indorsed by the alliance of Otter Tail county and upon their petition to the county auditors in the seventh district, his name appears on the ballots as a republican and alliance candidate. The democratic candidate for congress from this district. W. F. Kelso, has filed with the different county auditors of this district a protest against Feig's name appearing on the ballots as an alliance candidate. If the alliance wish to indorse Mr. Feig, that is their privilege, and as they made their request to the county auditors in the proper form the auditors are obliged to have Mr. Feig's name appear as their candidate also—Mr. Kelso to the contrary notwithstanding. It was unnecessary for Mr. Kelso to make himself ridiculous in this matter, because it will not affect his chances of election in the slighest. Mr. Kelso is just as sure of election to congress as he is of becoming the emperor of China.

BEFORE another issue of the JOURNAL the important battle of ballots will have been fought and Harrison will have been re-elected president and Nelson will have been elected governor, together with the entire republican ticket, if republicans everywhere have done and continue to do their duty and the JOURNAL believes they will do it. The campaign has developed no good reasons for a change in the government on the other hand many good and sufficient reasons have been given why it should be continued in power, and from all over the United States comes assurances that it will be if every republican will do his duty at the polls.

THE extraordinary depression in the price of wheat this fall seems to emphasize the need of the passage of Washburn's anti-option bill in a manner too forcible to be misunderstood. We have it from as good authority as the Great West that only for option gambling wheat would be sold on its merits. Washburn's bill would paralyze option gambling so why not try it once? Let us have the Washburn bill passed say we.

THE great St. Paul Globe has dropped the cry for an "educational campaign" that we used to hear so much about and has resorted to a campaign of lies and billingsgate, unequalled by any paper in the United States. The voters this year are not to be caught with such chaff. They are determined to vote for their own interests and have thoroughly studied and are studying the questions that effect them in order to vote understandingly.

THE JOURNAL would suggest to Secretary of State Brown that he bring an action for libel against the artist who perpetrated the alleged portrait of him and palmed it off on the republican press of the state. The cut looks as though it had been made with a sausage machine.

A correspondent writing to the Fergus Falls Journal says:

One of the cardinal principles of the new reform movement in politics is the office should seek the man. It is in all our platforms; it is mentioned by all our speakers. But just look at the situation. For the past year Mr. Boen, the people's party candidate for congress, has been working for the congressional nomination and for his election since his nomination. Not only is he breaking this plank of our platform, but he is a paid official of our county drawing $2,000 a year, yet he has practically abandoned his office and is running after office with vigor and activity that would put to shame an old party politician. His office is the headquarters and meeting place of all politicians of the county. It is there that the jobs are put up and the slates made. If any good is to come out of our movement we must condemn by our votes at the polls such an outrage upon our principles.

Keeping Track of Passengers.

"How do I remember which passengers have given up their tickets?" said a Western railroad conductor. "I have no way in particular, but just get used to it. While I may not recognize every one who has paid, I can spot one from whom I have not received a ticket at once. Then if I am in doubt a sharp look usually does the business. Most people would like to have the collector skip them, but they are so impressed with the idea that we know they have not paid that a sharp look acts like a lodestone to draw out the cash.

"Of course it is possible for a hardened sinner to bluff a collector, but few try it. After we have once made a round there is no trouble, for at stations we stand where we have a full view of the train and see exactly what persons go in and out of every car."—Cincinnati Times-Star.

She Didn't Indulge.

They were enjoying a moonlight walk in the park. His was a nature strongly tinged with romance. Her nature leaned decidedly toward the practical side of life.

"Is this not positively enchanting?" he exclaimed rapturously. "We can now drink to our fill of the beauties that nature has so lavishly bestowed upon this lovely retreat!"

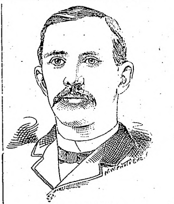
"Yes; but, George, I don't drink," replied the young lady prosaically.—New York Herald.

Teaching Dancing.

In some of the private schools of the city teaching the minuet is a part of the course of physical culture. Skirt dancing will be an easy translation from this, and it may expected to be included in the course shortly.—New York Times.

Amurath III killed five of his brothers; his mother in grief took her own life; and he was shortly after taken off by poison.

Checkers or draughts were known to the ancient Egyptians, and pictures 4,000 years old represent a quarrel over the game.



N.W. PHOTO ENG. CO.

I A C RICHARDSON.

The republican candidate for county attorney is a lawyer of more than ordinary ability and a gentleman of excellent qualities. When he was county attorney of Marshall county, he was the unanimous choice of all parties, and hadn't a single opponent. He has received many assurances of support from voters outside of his own party and in parts of the county where he is known he will poll almost the entire vote. If elected he would be a credit and an honor to the county, and the people could then point with pride to their county attorney.

Reminding Him of a Fact.

A few days ago an elderly gentleman and his wife came down Broadway together. A lady crossing the street fell down. The old gentleman rushed to her assistance and helped her in every possible way. When he returned to his wife she shook her fist at him. "It's all right; it's all right," he whispered. "Yes, I know it's all right," she replied hotly. "Here's an unknown woman falls down and you plow across the street to help her, and the other day I fell down stairs and you wanted to know if I was practicing for a circus."—New York World.

An Innovation.

A south Georgia schoolma'am has introduced a new feature in her school. When one of the girls misses a word the boy who spells it gets permission to kiss her. As a result the girls are becoming very poor spellers, while the boys are improving.—Atlanta Constitution.

SPECIAL SALE

Cloaks,
Shawls
AND Blankets

For a short time, at

GERVAIS & GERVAIS,

Robert St., - Crookston, Minn.

SPECIAL CLOAK OPENING.

Friday and Saturday,

NOV. 4 AND 5.

Mr. Jos. Conhaim, representing Jos. Beifield & Co., of Chicago, one of the most complete and most reliable wholesale cloak companies in the United States, will be at the NEW YORK STORE on the above dates and will have for display the largest and best assortment of Cloaks, Jackets and Reefers ever seen in Crookston. He will also have for display an elegant line of Ladies' Fur Goods. Measurements for special garments taken and the delivery of the goods guaranteed in ten days.

The Regular Fall Opening will occur some time next week, the exact date of which will be given later.

NEW YORK STORE,

A. CHABOT, Prop. Cor. Broadway and Robert Streets, CROOKSTON, MINN.

THE FIREMEN'S BALL.

A Large Attendance, and a Good Time Enjoyed at the Firemen's Tenth Annual Ball.

The Crookston fire department is the pride of the city, and every loyal citizen takes an interest in the organization.

A more efficient volunteer company does not exist in any city the size of Crookston, and one principal reason of its efficiency lies in the fact that the department is not broken up into three or four companies, thereby engendering strife and jealousy between the members. But as one organization the boys pull together and the best of feeling prevails among them.

Every year a grand ball is given by the fire department, and everybody looks forward to the firemen's dance as the local event of the season. Everybody buys a ticket whether he attends or not, for each citizen feels it an individual duty to contribute something to the organization. Their annual dance is always a pleasant affair where social reserve is thrown aside and everybody has a good time. The tenth annual ball of the Crookston fire department, given in McKinnon hall on Thursday evening, October 26th, was in every way equal if not better than any similar event in the history of the department.

THE PARADE.

On Thursday afternoon the department turned out in dress parade uniform and marched around the principal streets. The procession was headed by a platoon of police and the Quean City band, and then came the chief—A. A. McKinnon, the pride of the department—in his buggy, followed by the fire laddies marching in two long files. The boys presented a fine appearance and many were the compliments heard all along the line of march. Following the firemen came the hose carts and fire apparatus, drawn by fine looking horses. When the procession arrived at the fire hall, Mayor Anglim delivered an address to the firemen, in which he took occasion to compliment them upon maintaining their splendid organization and in showing such good judgment in their selection of a chief.

C. E. Sawyer, whose duty as judge, it was to present a whip to the driver of the best looking team in the parade, said it was hard to make a choice, but gave it to Henry Castle.

THE BALL.

The ball was all that was expected. The hall was beautifully decorated with flags and bunting, while trumpets, hose and other paraphernalia were hung up around the room. The hall was crowded with merry dancers, the music was excellent, the calling good, and everybody had a good time. Supper was served in a couple of rooms on the second floor of the building, and was thoroughly enjoyed by all those who had the good fortune to attend the firemen's annual ball.

The Republican Rally.

McKinnon's hall was crowded to its utmost seating capacity on Saturday evening of last week to listen to speeches by Attorney General Moses E. Clapp, our next congressman, Henry Feig, C. L. Smith, editor of the Farmers Tribune of Minneapolis, and W. N. Severance Esq., of Appleton, Minn. At 7:30 the republican flambeau club met at republican headquarters from whence, headed by the band they proceded to the Palace hotel to escort the speakers to the hall. This was the first public appearance of the boys since their caps and uniforms arrived and they made a very fine and imposing appearance. Arriving at the hall the speakers were conducted to the platform through one of the biggest crowds ever gathered in the hall. After music by the band and two rattling campaign songs by Mr. R. C. Jones, C. O. Christianson introduced Atty. Gen'l. Clapp who spoke for an hour and a half. He commenced by feelingly alluding to the sad scenes recently enacted at the White House, paying a high compliment to the intrinsic qualities of Mrs. Harrison as a wife and mother, spoke of the tariff at length and calmly and dispassionately discussed the vital issues of the day. He was frequently interrupted by applause and when he sat down Judge Christianson introduced Hon. Henry Feig, who spoke for only a short time as he was suffering with a severe cold rendering it almost impossible for him to articulate. C. L. Smith was then introduced who paid his compliments to Donnelly and Fish in a very vigorous and forcible manner. He kept the audience in an uproar for an hour or more and at the close of his talk Mr. Christianson introduced W. N. Severance who said that he would only tell a small story as the hour was late. However he did manage to drop a few very valuable pointers before he told his story and sat down at 11 o'clock. At this time the audience was nearly as large as when Gen. Clapp commenced his speech, showing conclusively that republicans are very entertaining talkers or else that people are very much interested in politics from the republican standpoint. We have heard very many favorable comments upon the speeches and are of the opinion that republicanism is not quite dead yet in Polk county the Globe to the contrary notwithstanding.

A People's Party Rally.

A correspondent at St. Hilaire sends us the following account of a people's party rally at that place.

St. Hilaire, October 26—The people's party had a very enthusiastic meeting here to-day. The hall contained nine populists, five democrats and the orator A. O. Taveitmore. Frank Ives was billed to speak but when he saw the crowd he took the train for Crookston.

Evidently people's party enthusiasm must be at a low ebb in St. Hilaire—the home of Harry Ives—when only nine populists turned out to hear the intellectual looking associate editor of the Crookston Tribune. The St. Hilaire people must be willing to grope along in ignorance of the great problems which are stirring the nation, when they let such an opportunity of acquiring information pass by unheeded. They are the victims of neglected opportunity. Mr. Tweitmoe takes rank with such oratorial whirlwinds as Holston, Grundysen et al, and to think that only fourteen people should assemble to listen to the words of wisdom as they dropped from his lips!

WAGES RISING.

The Incontrovertible Evidence Afforded by the Census Reports.

Every indication deserving the notice of intelligent men which has hitherto appeared has pointed unerringly to the fact that the people, especially the working people of this country, were never before so well off as now in the midst of the campaign of calamity waged by the Democratic party. Commissioner Peck's report and the senate report on prices and wages showed this, and they were backed up by the statements of half a dozen other official reports from various states on industrial conditions.

Unfortunately the complete census returns of the progress made since 1880 are not yet available, but the partial reports which have appeared corroborate in every particular the reports from other sources. Most significant are the census figures given out from Washington. They relate to some of the principal industrial centers in the country and tell a story not at all comforting to the free trade Democracy.

It appears that in Chicago average annual wages per capita increased from $436 to $589, or 35.09 per cent., in the census period; in Buffalo average wages increased from $413 to $502, or 21.55 per cent.; in Rochester from $357 to $512, or $43.22 per cent.; in Denver from $535 to $793, or $48.22 per cent.; in Lynn from $470 to $609, or 29.57 per cent. Two cities in the south—the stronghold of American Cobdenism—are considered. Both show a far greater increase than any of the others. Wages in Nashville increased from an average of $274 in 1880 to $449 in 1890, a gain of 63.87 per cent., while Atlanta shows an increase from $242 to $420, or $73.55 per cent., in the yearly earnings per capita of its working people.

A recent census report has shown that in the Democratic city of New York average wages per capita increased more during the census period than in any of the northern or western cities mentioned above. They were $427 in 1880 and $653, or 52.93 per cent. greater, in 1890.

The eminent free trader, Edward Atkinson, in The Forum of last May said

"There has never been a period in the history of this or any other country when the general rate of wages was as high as it is today, nor a period when the workman, in the strict sense of the word, has so fully secured to his own use and enjoyment such a steadily and progressively increasing proportion of a constantly increasing product."

This statement is borne out by the official figures of the census office and the reports of the different state bureaus of labor statistics.

American workingmen have in the figures here given a fairly accurate gauge of the rate at which their condition has improved and is improving. There is little likelihood that they will stop the process of improvement by their votes on election day. They are not yet tired of progress and prosperity. No free trade! No pauper labor!—New York Press.

Reid's Development as a Speaker.

No American ever advanced more rapidly to the front as a graceful, forcible and effective public speaker than Hon. Whitelaw Reid, Republican candidate for vice president, has done. When nominated he was known only as an excellent writer and occasional after dinner orator. Since then he has delivered perhaps a dozen speeches, beginning with a good one and improving every time, until now no speeches are listened to or read with more pleasure than his. Mr. Reid has fully vindicated the wisdom of his nomination.—Indianapolis Journal.

The Story of Steel Rails.

The story of steel rails is the story of protection. Industrial history of the kind, however, has repeated itself in a score of other lines of production. In 1867 the average price of American steel rails was $166 per ton. In 1891 the average price had fallen to $30 a ton. In other words, $1 will now buy as much steel rail as $5.50 would twenty-five years ago. A Republican protection indeed works industrial miracles.—Norristown (Pa.) Times.

Straight Republican Ticket.

In voting the straight Republican ticket you must put X marks in the exact place where they appear below on this list.

Congressional, Legislative, Judicial and County Ticket.

(To be printed on BLUE paper)

Put an X mark in the space indicated by the index ☞	☞
Congressman Seventh District—H. E. BOEN—People's Party.		Vote for 1 only
Congressman Seventh District—HENRY FEIG—Republican. —Alliance.	X
Congressman Seventh District—F. L. HAMPSON—Prohibitionist.
Congressman Seventh District—W. F. KELSO—Democrat.
Congressman Seventh District—
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—J. D. KNUTESON—People's Party.		Vote for three only
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—B. M. CHESLEY—People's Party.
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—O. E. OLSON—People's Party.
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—HALVOR STEENERSON—Republican.	X
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—LARS E. NORDBY—Republican.	X
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—PETER RAMSTAD—Republican.	X
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—AND. THOMPSON—Prohibitionist.
Representative 51st Sen. Dist—H. O. RASK—Prohibitionist.
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—JOHN R. McKINNON—Democrat.
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—
Representative 51st Sen. Dist.—
Judge 14th Judicial District—IRA B. MILLS—Independent.	X	Vote for one only
Judge 14th Judicial District—FRANK IVES—People's Party.
Judge 14th Judicial District—
County Auditor—C. U. WEBSTER—People's Party.		Vote for one only
County Auditor—W. A. LANCTOT—Republican.	X
County Auditor—J. M. HANSON—Democrat.
County Auditor—
County Treasurer—J. T. BEAUDRY—People's Party.		Vote for one only
County Treasurer—LEWIS LOHN—Republican.	X
County Treasurer—
Register of Deeds—J. AMUNDSON—People's Party.		Vote for one only
Register of Deeds—NIC NELSON—Repuplican.	X
Register of Deeds—ADAM ZEH—Democrat.
Register of Deeds—
County Attorney—A. R. HOLSTON—People's Party.		Vote for one only
County Attorney—IRA C. RICHARDSON—Republican.	X
County Attorney—P. G. FALARDEAU—Democrat.
County Attorney—
Sheriff—ARNE GRUNDYSEN—People's Party.		Vote for one only
Sheriff—JAS. M. BAIN—Republican.	X
Sheriff—A. C. SCHMIDT—Democrat.
Sheriff—
Judge of Probate—FRANK MONTAGUE—Independent.	X	Vote for one only
Judge of Probate—C. M. BENSON—People's Party.
Judge of Probate—
Superintendent of Schools—A. A. LOMMEN—People's Party.		Vote for one only
Superintendent of Schools—V. D. CARRUTH—Republican.	X
Superintendent of Schools—
Surveyor—GEO. RALPH—Republican.	X	Vote for one only
Surveyor—P. EMARD—Democrat,
Surveyor—
Surveyor—
Court Commissioner—G. H. PALMER—Republican.	X	Vote for one only
Court Commissioner—W. H. AVERILL—Democrat.
Court Commissioner—
Coroner—GEO. HOLT—Republican.	X	Vote for one only
Coroner—HENRY SHEPARD—Democrat.
Coroner—
County Commissioner, 1st District—JOHN E. OPPEGAARD—People.		Vote for one only
County Commissioner, 1st District—E. D. BARNESS—Republican.	X
County Commissioner, 1st District—
County Commissioner, 2d District—ANTON LINDEM—People's Party.		Vote for one only
County Commissioner, 2d District—T. ERWIN—Republican.	X
County Commissioner, 2d District—
County Commissioner, 3d District—CHRIS. HANSON—People's Party.		Vote for one only
County Commissioner, 3d District—E. D. CHILDS—Republican.	X
County Commissioner, 3d District—M. E. KIRSCH—Democrat.
County Commissioner, 3d District—
County Commissioner, 5th District—ROBT. ANDERSON—People's Party		Vote for one only
County Commissioner, 5th District THOS. NESBIT—Republican	X
County Commissioner, 5th District—A. C. RHINEHART—Democrat.
County Commissioner, 5th District—

Democracy's Aids Are Sly.

But where are the "combines" and "monopolies," foreign and domestic, which have hitherto filled the treasury of the Democracy? Why do they not now come to its relief? Where is the Sugar trust, and where the Standard Oil company? Where is the Foreign Steamship trust, which in 1888 contributed $50,000 to the Democratic campaign fund, and had a representative on the campaign committee? Where is the huge concern which has just gobbled up the Nova Scotia coal mines? Where is the English Salt trust, the English Chemical union, the Bradford Worsted trust, and last, but not least, the Tin Plate trust of South Wales and Monmouthshire? Why is it that Mr. Whitney cannot persuade these beneficiaries of "tariff reform" to "do something" for the party which promises them legislative favors? Is it because they realize that the Democracy is playing a losing game this year, and that it is foolish to throw good money away in fighting the inevitable?—Boston Journal.

Cleveland's Predicament.

We have pointed out that upon the one great question affecting the welfare of the whole people of the nation—the destruction or maintenance of the protective system—Mr. Cleveland beats no bush. He led his party in its first honestly declared assault upon protection and he is not lagging behind now that the Democratic party has put into its platform a denunciation of the protective tariff as unconstitutional. Upon the other equally pronounced demand of that platform for a repeal of the 10 per cent. tax upon currency for state banks and the consequent overwhelming of the country with bank notes having no common security, the leader of the Democratic party does not speak with similar clearness. It is easy to write phrases about honest money and plenty of it. It would have been braver to have denounced as iniquitous the scheme which the Democrats have chosen to make as their own.—Philadelphia North American.

Democracy's Financial Bulwarks.

It is not charged that President Cleveland was in active personal sympathy with the polygamists in the territories. His removals and appointments in Utah and Idaho were doubtless dictated by the leading members of his party at the west, where it is closely allied with the Mormon church. All the Mormons are Democrats, and outside of the territories the saints have important Democratic affiliations. The Salt Lake Tribune, the Gentile organ, said of a Democratic leader in Nebraska, calling him by name, "He is in the employ of the Mormon church, and has been working in its interest for years." The Standard Oil company in the east and the Mormon church in the west are the chief financial bulwarks of modern Democracy.—Buffalo Express.

Protection a Means, Not an End.

This country has been proudly called the granary of the world. It is destined to be the manufacturing center of the world. As the day of that approaches this economic law of surplus behind the phenomena to which Mr. Carnegie refers will rise to more and more importance. Protection is a means, not an end. Every protectionist looks forward to the day when, in this country, it will no longer be useful or desirable. It is a means of enabling Americans to reach a level where they will be on equal footing with other industrial peoples. But that this means will have sometimes served its end does not justify the opinion that the end has been served already.—Pittsburg Times.

Cleveland and the Veterans.

PROFESSIONS.	PERFORMANCE.
The American people are generous and grateful, and they have impressed these characteristics upon their government. Therefore all patriotic and just citizens must commend liberal consideration for our worthy veteran soldiers and for the families of those who have died. No complaint should be made of the amount of public money paid to those actually disabled or made dependent by reason of army service. — Cleveland's Letter.	Pension bills vetoed by Cleveland, 524. Pension bills vetoed from Washington to Cleveland, 133. Pension bills vetoed by Harrison, none.

The Republicans' Only Danger.

Danger to the Republican cause reposes in the marvelous prosperity of the country. Business is so prosperous, trade is so good, farm produce is yielding such fair returns, that the business man, the merchant and the farmer may say: "There is no need of our putting ourselves out to vote. Everything is lovely and will continue so if we stay at home." A few Republicans of this kind in every election district of New York state would lose the election to Cleveland, free trade, calamity.—Utica (N.Y.) Herald.

Democracy Means Free Trade.

The fact remains that the Democratic party is fully committed to English free trade; that the great majority of its members have come to believe in it firmly, thanks to Mr. Cleveland's teachings, and that if he is elected and congress is Democratic a free trade bill will be passed by it and signed by him. Therefore no one should be deceived by the present "lightning changes" and metamorphoses of Democratic office seekers on the stump regarding the tariff.—Chicago Tribune.

Never-to-be-hatched Chickens.

The Democrats always carry the whole country and most of the rest of the universe during the months of July and August of a presidential year. They are now engaged in that pleasing task, and the majorities they are figuring out are scarcely limited by the population of the states they are counting on. It is a harmless pastime, this counting never-to-be-hatched chickens, and we wish our Democratic friends much joy.—Rochester (N. Y.) Democrat and Chronicle.

A Reciprocity Picture.

During the year preceding our treaty of reciprocity with Cuba we exported to that island goods worth $11,920,214

The treaty had been in force for a year on the 31st of August last, and under it we had exported to Cuba goods worth $19,684,720

—New York Press.

I've Always Been a Democrat.

I've always been a Democrat,
And been a straight one, too;
I've done a heap of sneakin work
To help the party through.
I've 'tended campaign meetins
And everything about,
But lately, for some reason,
They want to kick me out.

For since I've joined the meetin house
And try hard to do right—
Quit smokin and a-chewin,
And quit a-gittin tight
On beer and pizen whisky
And actin like a beast—
Why, sirs, the party snubs me
From biggest to the least.

I've always been a Democrat,
Because I was, I guess—
I have no other good excuse
For bein one, unless
The sin of father livin still
And those that used to be,
In generations past and gone,
Was visited on me.

I hardly see, though, how it was Inherited by me—
In substance, Revelations say
As plainly as can be,
"Let the unjust remain unjust,
The filthy, filthy still"—
Unless I have been smuggled through
On "whosoever will."

From observations taken now,
The only thing I see
Is just to pack my telescope
And leave Democracy.
So, since I've joined the meetin house,
The meetin folks may lead,
And as a rule they're goin straight
For Harrison and Reid.

—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Fear Before the Fight.

Testimony differs as to the feeling of the soldier on going into a fight, and the many experiences related by Grand Army men to their always willing listeners show that in their war histories there was no uniformity of either fear or daring. The major of a New Hampshire regiment said: "I always felt timid when the shot began to reach us, but as soon as we got into action I was carried away by excitement. I am not usually a profane man, and I have no recollection of talking roughly to my troops, yet a good many of them have assured me that all through a fight I would swear like—well, like a trooper."

Another man, a colonel, said: "It's all nonsense to say that a man doesn't feel afraid in the beginning of a fight and all through it. Of course he does. He has reason. Sherman said of General Sumner that he was the only man who grew bolder as he grew older, but the only man I ever saw who really seemed to want to fight, and to enjoy it after he was in it, was Custer."—New York Sun.

A Lawn Game.

Tetherball is a new game of English origin which possesses the pronounced advantage of being played in a few feet of lawn or courtyard. A post eight feet high is set up, and to this is attached a cord having at its end a ball. The space of the grounds may influence somewhat the length of the string, which should be, however, not less than eight nor more than ten feet long. The ball is set in rotary motion, and with tennis racquets the two players endeavor in turn to hit it. The game is said to be exciting, and decidedly a warm contest, as the ball proves very elusive.—Exchange.

Libraries, Museums and Methods.

Modern museum methods applied to libraries will result in a vast extension of their general usefulness and availability for the purposes of instruction, and in the modern museums the exhibition of books has become almost as important as the display of the conventional museum specimens.—Philadelphia Ledger.

The Truth About Girls.

A small boy in a Brooklyn grammar school has furnished the latest information about girls in a recent composition: "Girls is pretty and afraid of guns. They wear toe rubbers and look at the clouds and say, 'Oh, how perfickly lovely!'"—New York Times.

Of the 218 suicides reported in New York city in one year, shooting was most popular with 77 cases, to 48 by poison, 37 by hanging, 23 by gas, 16 by knife, 10 by drowning, 4 by jumping from a roof and 3 by jumping from a window.

DANGEROUS SCHEME.

DEMOCRATIC SUCCESS MEANS WILDCAT AND REDDOG CURRENCY.

The Democratic Platform Either Contemplates a Return to the Unsafe State Bank System or Else Was Intended to Deceive Confiding Voters.

Democrats are extremely anxious to have voters believe that Democratic victory would not bring back the era of wildcat and reddog currency. They dodge discussion of the question as far as possible, having found out that no sophistry will induce the people to vote for the abolition of the simple, uniform and absolutely safe national currency now in use. It is the Democratic habit to sneer at the question when it cannot be entirely ignored, as if it were absurd to suppose that the national platform meant anything or that practical business men who are Democrats would ever permit the national currency to be abolished.

This is dishonorable evasion. There are Democrats who are practical and successful business men and extremely practical politicians also who are desperately determined to revive the state bank system. They know the enormous political power which can be exerted through state banks authorized to issue circulating notes. They reason that a safe system can be provided in some states, and particularly their own. They know that the inferior currency which other states are sure to authorize will put those states and the business men of those states far behind in the struggle for commercial advantage and profit. For the incalculable losses and infinite trouble to which the people would be subjected by having more than forty different kinds of paper in circulation instead of only one these Democrats care nothing in comparison with the partisan and personal advantages sought.

Many influential Democrats are openly arguing for the adoption of the state bank system, pretending to believe that it would be safe everywhere, though they must know perfectly well that in most of the states it would result—just as it did in old Democratic times—in the authorization of political banks of issue by the hundred without any real security for the people. They caused the adoption of the plank in the Democratic platform which deliberately proposes the repeal of the prohibitory tax on state bank circulation. The platform was scrutinized with the greatest care by some of the shrewdest friends of Mr. Cleveland, who were every hour in telegraphic communication with him. That plank would never have been permitted to be reported or adopted if these managers on behalf of Mr. Cleveland, and Mr. Cleveland himself, had not been willing to take the responsibility of the change proposed.

It is simply an insult to these gentlemen to suggest that they suffered a pledge to be given in the platform which they and the candidate they represent never intended to carry out. If they believed the change impracticable, dangerous or wrong, and yet without objection allowed the platform to go as it stands, they conspired with Mr. Cleveland to cheat the voters. The only other alternative is to suppose that they calculated upon evading the issue successfully in eastern states and in commercial centers, and carrying the country on other issues, and believed that the party could then secure through the state banks political power enough to defy public indignation after the change had been made. Nor can any man tell how great a political power the monopoly of note issuing would possess if transferred from nonpartisan national hands to the hands of partisans in control of state government.

The people do not want to abolish a simple, uniform and safe national currency; the Democratic managers are quite aware of that. Experience has proved and all the people know that the management of the banking system under the national government has been absolutely free from partisan bias. When it is urged that the national bank system must go down, the people answer, with Senator Sherman, "that we can prevent if we see fit by providing that national banks may issue notes upon other securities than government bonds."

But the provision ought to be by the national government the same for all the states, so that the notes of all the banks shall have the same security, and all the banks shall have the same national supervision and the same absolutely nonpartisan control. It is not safe for the business men of the country to take it for granted that this part of the Democratic platform means nothing and threatens no evil. The only security they can have against the threatened revolution in the currency is by the defeat of the Democratic party, and the election of a president who is publicly committed to resist such a change.—New York Tribune.

The Triumph of Reciprocity.

In the case of reciprocity, as in that of free sugar, we must take the McKinley act as a whole. Whatever may be objected to some of the duties imposed, it must be remembered that this same act gave us reciprocity—an arrangement which, notwithstanding the sneers and the clamors of its enemies, has increased the trade, the wealth, the importance, the commercial standing of the United States in a ratio hitherto unknown. The triumph of reciprocity will not be forgotten by the people in their judgment upon the work of a Republican administration.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

Happy When American Enterprise Fails.

The American free trader is untruthful despite of every noble impulse urging him to tell the truth, for the truth reveals a condition of affairs that is beneficial to his country. But noble impulse does not seem to affect him. He is happy only when an American enterprise fails, and proud only when some foreign country gains an advantage over this republic.—Bangor (Me.) Whig and Courier.

CAMPAIGN VERSES.

Some of the Best Efforts of the Campaign Versifiers.

Harrison is right, we know;
Every action proves him so;
Through another term he'll show
That protection still will go,
And free trade is far too slow
To answer Yankee Doodle, oh.
Peck serves out a dish of crow,
England gets another blow.

CHORUS.

Grover is in dismay;
Grover will lose the day.
He has been beat before,
Now he'll be beaten more;
For Ben, who beat him then,
Will do it soon again;
For while he grows each day,
Poor Grover fades away.

Dictionary miscreant,
On deluding voters bent,
To the world a letter sent (Stilted nonsense prevalent).
But his gas is poorly spent,
Every schoolboy knows he meant
To deceive the ignorant,
And he can't be president.

Dear "Old Glory" on the height,
With its constellation bright,
Cheers the toiler with delight—
Grover's left, for we are right.
Union is the word of might,
And protection wins the fight,
Relegating out of sight
Error into darkest night.

None e'er felt the halter draw
With good opinion of the law;
What the nation gained by war
Will be sacred evermore.
Every man from shore to shore
Shall vote once, but vote no more;
Then it's counted in the store
Which chooses Darling Ben.
—New York Recorder.

Campaign Song.

[Air—"When Johnny Comes Marching Home."]

We're all in line for Uncle Ben,
Hurrah! Hurrah!
We'll knock old Grover out again,
Hurrah! Hurrah!
We'll knock him out as sure as fate;
We'll give him a dose of eighty-eight,
And we'll all shout for Harrison
As we go marching by.

CHORUS.

And we'll all shout for Harrison
As we go marching by.

The drafted man got left before,
Hurrah! Hurrah!
We'll leave him out for four years more,
Hurrah! Hurrah!
We'll leave him out; he'll never suit;
We don't want him or his substitute;
And we'll all shout for Harrison
As we go marching by.

Harrison is brave and true,
Hurrah! Hurrah!
He's fit for me, he's fit for you,
Hurrah! Hurrah!
He's fit for all; no doubt of that,
He's fit to wear his grandpa's hat,
And we'll all shout for Harrison
As we go marching by.

The people seem to have agreed,
Hurrah! Hurrah!
To vote for Harrison and Reid,
Hurrah! Hurrah!
To vote for reciprocity,
Protection and the G. O. P.,
And we'll all shout for Harrison
As we go marching by.
—New York Press.

Ben Am Gwine Away to Stay.

Oh, sing dat tune we sung befo'
Ben am gwine to stay;
In the White House pa'lor fo' years mo'
Ben am gwine to stay;
He hang 'im hat upon de peg,
Ben am gwine to stay;
He light 'im pipe and he cross 'im leg,
An Ben am gwine to stay.
G'way dar, Grover.
Keep off'n de grass, sah?
Skip along home, now,
Ben am gwine to stay.

De na'bors hens done stole de co'n,
Ben am gwine to stay;
Says he, "I'll stop that suah's yo' bo'n,"
Ben am gwine to stay;
He barred 'em out so dey couldn't come,
Ben am gwine to stay;
An 'is chickens took de premi-yum,
Ben am gwine to stay.
Heah, you, Adlai,
Whar dat rabbit hoof?
No good anyhow,
Ben am gwine to stay,

He pay 'im bills in honest cash,
Ben am gwine to stay;
No wildcat stuff or state bank trash,
Ben am gwine to stay;
His papah money go' at sight,
Ben am gwine to stay;
'N dey take 'is coin 'idout no bite,
Ben is gwine to stay.
Say, you, 'Si Quincy,
Want any mo' 'stistics?
Got 'em by de Peck, sah;
Ben am gwine to stay.

He load 'im gun an he look aroun,
Ben am gwine to stay;
An de chilly coon say, "I'll cum down,"
Ben am gwine to stay;
He put he foot down mighty flat,
Ben am gwine to stay;
Da's no white fedder in 'im "gran'fadder's hat,"
Ben am gwine to stay.
Hi, Boss Harrity!
Scoop dem rainbows.
Grover anxyus,
Ben am gwine to stay.

He fit in de wa' fo' he had de san,
Ben am gwine to stay;
He didn't sen a boughten man,
Ben am gwine to stay;
He lift 'im hat to de boys in blue,
Ben am gwine to stay;
Don't veto 'im bill and kick 'im, too,
Ben am gwine to stay.
Wha' you, Don Dick'son?
Cum out'n dem whiskers,
Yo' gittin musty,
Ben am gwine to stay.

De nation want 'im, sur as fate,
Ben am gwine to stay;
Wid 'is han on de helm ob de ship ob state,
Ben am gwine to stay;
While Grover 'n Adlai, sad and so',
Dey am gwine to stay—
'N fish for gudjuns fo' yeahs mo'
Down at Buzzard's Bay.
Drat dat platfo'm,
Drat dat Peck,
Drat dat rabbit hoof,
Ben am gwine to stay.
—Buffalo News.

Democracy's Appeal.

Why don't you fall in line,
David Hill?
For you we yearn and pine,
Hoping still;
You sulk and mope and pout
Till the party's most worn out
With anxiety and doubt,
David Hill.

This agony must end,
David Hill;
Make your own terms and send
In your bill.
We'll honor all your checks—
But say, David, do not vex
Us with any more hard Pecks,
David Hill.
—Kansas City Journal.

Republicans Welcome the Tariff Issue.

The fact that Governor McKinley has 200 invitations to speak during the campaign does not show that the Republicans are afraid of the tariff issue. On the contrary, they want that issue kept right at the front. Under that sign they will conquer.—Baltimore American.

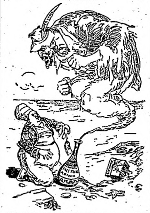
Union Veterans, Attention.

In his letter of acceptance Grover Cleveland makes a bid for the soldier vote by devoting a paragraph of hypocritical praise to the men who saved the nation in the hour of danger. The veterans know Mr. Cleveland. They know Benjamin Harrison. No amount of flattery by the Democratic candidate or of falsification by his party organs can obliterate the record. The Press herewith presents the first absolutely accurate statement published showing the facts in regard to the treatment of the Union veterans by Mr. Cleveland and President Harrison.

During his four years of office Mr. Cleveland signed 1,246 pension bills and vetoed 524. Up to the present time Benjamin Harrison has signed 1,576 special pension bills and vetoed none.

Veterans of the Union, which will you support, the politician who sent a substitute to the front and as president took a malignant pleasure in adding to his pension vetoes every sneer of which his clumsy wit was capable, or the loyal comrade who shared your perils with you, and whose pen has gladly signed every bill to relieve your needs that has come before him?—New York Press.

Uncorked.



The "Arabian Nights" improved: The fisherman of Buzzard's bay uncorks a vagrant bottle found upon the beach, and thereby liberates a demon which he vainly implores to return to the vessel.—Frank Leslie's Weekly.

Where Powderly Stands.

Mr. Powderly may not be in full accord and sympathy with the Republican party, but he certainly leaves little room to doubt that as between the two old parties he recognizes in the general policy and purposes of the Republican party more to commend than in the Democratic party. Mr. Powderly has at least the courage of his convictions, and is always able to give reasons for whatever position he takes. Two years ago he gave his support to Pattison, and without doubt contributed more to his election than any half dozen out and out Democratic leaders. He gave his reasons for supporting Pattison. He is not with the Democrats this year.—Scranton (Pa.) Republican.

A Terrific Brain Clout.

Mr. Powderly has brains and intelligence enough to know that the policy of the Democratic party is inimical to the interests of the laboring man, and he says so in no uncertain language. His condemnation of free trade and other heretical doctrines of the Democratic party will be heard from in wage earning centers, and its effect upon organized labor in America will doubtless be great. It was a bad thing for the Democratic national committee to stir up Mr. Powderly in this matter, and it has received a brain clout from which it will not speedily recover.—Harrisburg Call.

They Will Be Repudiated Again.

The same men and the same party that in 1877 declared that ruin would follow the resumption of specie payments if made at the time it was carried into effect by the Republicans and who urged the abolition of national banks and the issue of unlimited greenbacks are now advocating free trade and wildcat banking as essential to the welfare of the people. They are no wiser now than they were then, no honester now than they were then, and the people now as then will repudiate them and their mischievous policies at the ballot box.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

What Does Stevenson Mean Anyway?

Candidate Stevenson announces that he is fully in accord with the principles contained in ex-President Cleveland's letter of acceptance. This declaration does not require much bravery on Mr. Stevenson's part, as it really commits him to nothing in particular. The closest perusal of Mr. Cleveland's letter will fail to show whether Mr. Stevenson has pledged himself to protection or to a tariff for revenue only, or whether he must be for or against the repeal of the state bank tax.—Boston Advertiser.

A Malicious Trick of Expression.

When Senator Hill declaims against the protection of "private" industries he means American industries—all of which are "private." This little malicious trick of expression will not fool anybody. The question is whether the tariff shall be adjusted in favor of home or foreign industries. Republicans prefer the former—Democrats the latter. The voters of the United States must indicate which they prefer on the 8th of next November.—Rochester (N. Y.) Democrat and Chronicle.

An "Annual Wage" Picture.

The average annual wages of the industrial workers at Lynn in 1880 was $479

In 1890 the average wages paid in Lynn was $609

This is one of the reasons why the electoral vote of Massachusetts will be Republican.—New York Press.

NORTHWESTERN College of Commerce

GRAND FORKS, - - - - - - NORTH DAKOTA.

THE GREAT CHAIN OF BUSINESS COLLEGES under the above name offers facilities superior to any school in the Northwest for obtaining a Practical Education. Four Courses. Commercial, Shorthand and Typewriting, Ornamental Penmanship and English. Students receive personal instruction and can enter at any time and take just such studies as they desire. Evening School now in session. Good board $2.00 per week. TUITION REASONABLE.
Three thousand Handsome Catalogues for Free Distribution. Send for one.
Write for particulars.

H. L. RUCKER, President. J. J. SWENGEL, Principal.

Crookston Business College

and INSTITUTE OF SHORTHAND.

DEPARTMENTS:—Commercial Shorthand, Typewriting and English.
TEACHERS:—Benj. A. Strawbridge, J. M. Latham and L. E. Gossman.
Summer Term began Monday, June 6th, 1892. Fall Term begins Monday, October 3rd, 1892. Send for new Catalogue.
CROOKSTON BUSINESS COLLEGE, Crookston, Minn.

Schmidt, the Painter,

CARRIES A FULL AND COMPLETE STOCK OF

PAINTS,
OILS AND
VARNISHES.

ALSO A FULL AND COMPLETE LINE OF

WALL PAPER.

Painting in all its branches, and Paper Hanging artistically done.

Call at the Shop on Broadway.

TRY PEAKE,

THE MAIN STREET HARNESS MAKER,

FOR BARGAINS.

CHRISTIANSON BROS.,

Abstracters of Title, Loans,
Real Estate and Insurance:

N. B. FARM LOANS a specialty. Terms, three to five years. Lowest rate of interest, payable annually at our office.
Choice FARM LANDS for sale cheap, on terms to suit purchasers.
Office on Robert Street, - - - - CROOKSTON, MINN

NEW FEED MILL

CHRIS. ANDERSON, Prop.

I desire to annouce to the farmers of Polk County that I have rented the

LAURENCE BUILDING, ON MAIN STEERT,

Next to Brown's New Livery Stable, and am now prepared to grind feed of all kinds promptly. You can get your feed in two hours after you bring me your grain. Prices Reasonable

Try My New Mill!

McKINNON BROS.,

DEALERS IN

ALL OF THE LEADING

Agricultural Implements

MAIN STREET. McKINNON BLOCK.

Before Purehasing, Give Us a Call.

You Can Buy Reliable
AGRICULTURAL MACHINERY
OF
SYLVESTER & FINSETH,

CHEAPER AND BETTER

Than anywhere. We handle Buckeye and Osborne Binders with all extras for same, and Twine. Buckeye and Imperial Mowers with extras. Buckeye and Monitor Rakes, Eli, Oliver and Bradley Gang Plows, Stubble and Breaking Plows, the Standard Rotary Shuttle Sewing Machine, Nichols & Shepard New Vibrator Threshing Machine. Also the Jackson, Mitchell and Favorite Wagons, the Enterprise Buggies, Spring Wagons and Carts on all of which we can undersell Grand Forks and other places. We also carry everything that can be had in any first class Hardware Store and invite everybody to call and see us at the corner of Broadway and Fletcher Sts.

SYLVESTER & FINSETH, Crookston, Minn,

Town Clerks.

The following is a list of the town clerks for the several towns in Polk county:

Andover,	E M Bivins	Crookston
Augus,	A B Carleton	Angus
Black River,	P A Eckstrom	Wylie
Bray,	Albert Wickstrom	Wylie
Badger'	P N Savalrud	Sletten
Brandsvold.	Ole Nelion	Fosston
Belgium,	Henry Biever	Euclid
Brislet,	A P Frank	Warren
Bygland,	Thos. Benson	Fisher
Crookston,	E O Flanders	Crookston
Crookston, city,	E C Carruth	Crookston
Columbia,	R H Carr	Columbia
Chester,	O J Mattson	Lindsay
Emardville,	Peter Anderson	Emard
Euclid,	F Tiedt, Jr.,	Euclid
Eden,	Neri A Skele	Olga
Fairfax,	Wm Himmelsback	Crookston
Farley,	Mark Congnon	Warren
Fanny,	Walter Latta	Buffington
Fisher,	Halvor Gunderson	Fisher
Fisher, vil.,	John Gleason	Fisher
Gd Forks,	John McCoy	E G Forks
Gd Forks, city,	John McCoy	E G Forks
Garfield,	Iver J Ingebretson	Fertile
Garden,	John Hanson	Ringdal
Gentilly.	H F Gondron,	Gentilly
Gervais,	John Deforge	R L Falls
Grand Park,	E E Abbott	Mentor
Goderey,	D T Mitchell,	Maple Bay
Hammond,	Ernest Hanna	Crookston
Higdem,	Ole Hendrickson	E G Forks
Hill River,	Fred S Syeverson	Lindsay
Huntsville,	O Osmundson	Mallory
Hubbard.	Frank Hanson,	Neilsville
Keystone,	D E Geddes	E G Forks
Kerlsonville,	Fred Benoit	Gentilly
King,	K C Norsving	McIntosh
Knute,	O H Dale	Erskine
Lake Pleasant,	Jos Perrault	R L Falls
Lambert,	Samuel Gebcau,	Lamber
Liberty,	Nelson Clementson	Fertile
Lessor,	H Helgeson	Ovetia
Lowell,	Ole Christianson,	Crookston
Louisville,	Louis Huot	Huot
Nesbit,	Robert Nesbit	Mallory
Norden,	O J Tweet	Tweet
North,	S T Johnson	T R Falls
Numedal,	Olaf Larson	Warren
Onsted,	W A Marin	Melvin
Parnell,	Thos Filbau	Crookston
Poplar River,	J B Hebert	Brooks
Polk Centre,	Wm Wylie,	Wylie
Queen,	Hans L Houkom	Fosston
R L F, village.	August Herard,	R L Falls
Red Lake Falls,	Ildaig Baril	R L Falls
Reis,	D C Hallock	Edna
River Falls,	K C Gigstad	St. Hilaire
Rocksbury,	P Englesiad	St. Hilaire
Roome,	P Boukon	Neby
Rosebud,	M E Randkler	Fosston
Russia,	Orens Simmons	Crookston
Sanders,	Nils K Anderson	St. Hilair
Sandsville.	Henry Nelson	E G Forkse
St. Hilaire,	L J Johnson	St. Hilaire
Sletten,	Ingebret Larson	Winger
Sullivan,	P A Hotvedt	E G Forks
Tabor,	F J Cernousek	Tabor
Terrebonne,	Edonor Perruse	Terrebonne
Tilden,	S J Furan	Dugdale
Tynsid,	A O Stortroen	Neby
Vineland,	John Thompson	Neby
Winger,	Albert Johnson	Winger
Woodside,	Joseph Tagley	Woodside
Wyandotte,	O J Johnson	St. Hilaire
Rhinehart,	Oscar Winck	E G Forks
Thief River Falls	C J Knox	T R Falls

GREAT NORTHERN Railway TIME CARD.

MONTANA EXPRESS—Daily.

West				East
7:40 p m	De.	St Paul	Ar.	6:55 a m
2:50 a m	"	Fergus Falls	"	11:25 p m
4:47 a m	"	Glyndon	"	9:26 p m
7:20 a m	"	CROOKSTON	"	7:25 p m
8:40 a m	"	Grand Forks	"	6:20 p m
9:45 a m	"	Larimore	"	5:06 p m
2:1 p m	"	Devils Lake	"	2:55 a m
7:00 p m	Ar.	Butte	De.	7:30 a m

ST. VINCENT BRANCH—Daily except Sunday
Depart 7:30 a m Arrive 6:30 p m

FOSSTON BRANCH—Tues., Thurs. and Sat.
Depart 8:00 a m Arrive 5:30 p m

ST. HILAIRE BRANCH—Monday Wed. & Friday.
Depart 10:45 a m Arrive 4:30 p m

GRAND FORKS' ACCOMMODATION.
Arrive 9:50 a m Depart 7:55 p m

The scenic route to Spokane, Helena, and Butte on the west, and St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth and West Superior on the east. Dining and sleeping cars on all through trains. Tickets on sale to all principal places. Baggage checked through to destination.

W. W. FEGAN, Agent.

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.

TIME SCHEDULE.

	Leave Crookston Daily.	Arrive Crookston Daily.
For Duluth, Ashland, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Chicago, and all points East and South............	7:05 p. m.	8:27 a. m.
For Grand Forks, Grafton, Pembina, Winnipeg and points in N. Dakota and Winnipeg........	8:27 a. m.	7:05 p. m

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.

THE
Great Transcontinental Route

Passes through Wisconsin, Minnesota North Dakota, Manitoba, Montana, Idaho, Oregon and Washington.

The Dining Car Line

Dining cars are run between Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Winnipeg, Butte, Helena, Tacoma, Seattle and Portland.

PULLMAN SLEEPING CAR ROUTE.

Pullman service daily between Chicago, St. Paul, Montana and the Pacific Northwest; and between St. Paul, Minneapolis and Minnesota, North Dakota and Manitoba points.

THE POPULAR LINE.

Daily Express Trains carry elegant Pullman Sleeping Cars, Dining Cars, Day Coaches, Pullman Tourist Sleepers and Free Colonist Sleeping Cars.

YELLOWSTONE PARK ROUTE.

The Northern Pacific R. R. is the rail line to Yellowstone Park; the popular line to California and Alaska; and its trains pass through the grandest scenery of seven states.

THROUGH TICKETS

Are sold at all coupon offices of the Northern Pacific Railroad to points North, East, South and West, in the United States and Canada.

For rates, maps, time tables, or special information, apply to
CHAS. A. SHARKEY,
Agent Northern Pacific R. R.,
Crookston, Minn.
CHAS. S. FEE,
Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent,
St. Paul, Minn.

MILLIONS IN ASHES

A DISASTROUS CONFLAGRATION AT MILWAUKEE.

Twenty Blocks in the Southeastern Portion of the City a Mass of Ruins—Five Lives Lost and Seven Millions of Property Destroyed.

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 29.—Morning broke on a scene of desolation such as the Cream City has never before witnessed during its corporate existence. Twenty blocks, twelve hours before covered with magnificent buildings devoted to manufacture, trade and commerce, were a mass of smouldering ruins, and where 600 residences, the homes of 8,000 people stood, there was nothing save piles of blackened bricks and smoking rafters. The loss in money will probably not exceed $7,000,000, on which there is about $2,500,000 insurance; but the collateral damages, the immense shock to business, and the inconvenience and positive suffering entailed upon residents and business men cannot be computed. Every effort will be made, however, to relieve distress, and even while the conflagration was at its height, Mr. P. Bacon, president of the chamber of commerce, issued a call for a meeting of citizens of Milwaukee at the chamber of commerce at 9 o'clock a. m., to take measures for the relief of people left homeless and destitute by the fire. The call was not addressed to the members of the chamber of commerce only, but to all citizens who are ready to join in this work of imminent necessity. Hundreds of families are left shelterless and with nothing but the clothing worn when they fled from the swift pursuit of the devastating flames. Immediate measures for their relief must be adopted and the meeting showed an attendance and a spirit worthy of the city. Prompt and generous action was demanded to prevent great numbers of worthy people from suffering for lack of food and shelter.

The Germania society also held a meeting and decided to turn over all the money received at its fair next week to the citizens' committee to be used for the benefit of the fire sufferers.

Half the Third Ward Gone.

Mayor Somers said: "At least one-dalf of the Third ward is burned away, and I think that fully three thousand people are homeless. The loss cannot be estimated. We are especially thankful to the cities of Chicago, Kenosha, Racine and Oshkosh for their prompt aid in sending fire apparatus. The citizens have organized a relief committee."

The history of the fire, great as it was, may be briefly recounted as follows:

There were several alarms during the afternoon for fires, all of them the result of the heavy gale of wind that sprang up shortly before noon and increased until at 8 o'clock it reached a velocity of about fifty miles per hour. Between 5 and 6 o'clock there were five alarms, and the fire department, including the fire tug, was called in various parts of the city, when shortly before 6 o'clock an alarm was sent in from the box at the corner of Detroit and East Water streets. It was for a fire in the Union Oil Company's store at 275 East Water street, situated on the west side of the street about midway between Detroit and Buffalo streets, the rear of store being on the river. The fire originated from an explosion of something in the cellar. Fed by the inflammable stock it soon spread through the three upper floors. It was ten minutes before the first fire engine coming from a smaller fire some distance away, had reached the scene, and by that time the entire building was in flames. From this point the flames spread until the lower part of the Third ward was burned over, causing a loss of nearly $7,000,000. The insurance is estimated at $2,500,000. At least three thousand people are homeless.

At 2:40 a. m. it was announced that the fire was under control, having burned over about twenty squares, destroying about sixty stores and factories and about five hundred residences.

Loss of Life Very Small.

Notwithstanding the marvelous rapidity with which the fire spread and the numerous fall of brick walls the injuries and loss of life were surprisingly small, and it is believed that not more than four or five persons lost their lives, although the removal of the debris may disclose other victims. Those known to be killed are: Henry Pruddenbuck and Charles Stahr, firemen; Mrs. Callahan, a widow, and an unknown woman, who was suffocated by smoke. There are many persons at the emergency hospital. Two of these are seriously injured and may die.

Like the Chicago Fire.

Those who saw the Chicago fire can realize what Milwaukee has suffered. It was the same thing on a smaller scale. The cold wind was furious, and before a building had been half burned it would totter and fall, a cloud of burning brands and sparks going high above the smoke to show where it had fallen. The great flames would reach out a hundred feet or more, envelop a building for an instant and be blown another way by the wind. But a building once touched by the flame would need no further urging, but would flash up in flames, which in turn would leap and ignite the next building. And so the fire swept on, devouring everything.

Moving Goods of No Avail.

There was so much warning for everyone that efforts were made in many places to save articles that could not possibly be moved a hundred yards. There were a lot of threshing machines lined up on Menominee street, for instance, and their removal only saved them from the flames an hour or two. Wagons loaded with furniture, stoves, bedding, clothing and various household articles, filled the streets and invariably the horses were headed one way. The drivers had no particular destination, they simply wanted to get out of reach of the flames as soon as possible. Every available truck, express and delivery wagon was called into requisition. Occasionally a large load of household goods would be seen moving at a lively rate, propelled by man power instead of horses. Everybody who was in the vicinity seemed anxious to assist those in distress, and if the flames had not spread so rapidly, much of the household goods along the north line of the fire would have been saved by the willing workers. In spite of all efforts toward saving property, however, many lost everything except the clothes on their backs, and the efforts of the charitable will be devoted to relieving those whom the fire has rendered homeless and destitute.

Militia Called Out.

Measures have been taken to stop the depredations of thieves who always hunt the scene of fires. The militia are patrolling the district. Fifty members of the Milwaukee Light Battery responded promptly to the call for assistance. Nearly as many more from the Light Horse squadron, and enough of infantry to make up a total of 150 men, are on duty. If it is found necessary Governor Peck will order out additional troops. The city police are also to be kept on duty night and day, and altogether the police arrangements are excellent. The work of clearing away debris preparatory to rebuilding, will be commenced at once. Already many property owners are looking over the ruins, and as soon as the bricks have cooled sufficiently to be handled hundreds of laborers will be set to work removing the rubbish, and within a few days new buildings will be rising from the ruins.

Owe a Debt of Gratitude.

Several hundred homeless Third ward people owe a deep debt of gratitude to Manager A. L. Chase, of the Plankington house. When he learned of the dire distress among them he circulated about in the suffering throngs and offered the free hospitality of his hostlery to alleviate their wants. There were 100 disengaged rooms in the Plankington house, and in these were quartered more than two hundred of the homelesss ones. Not content with such a noble act of charity, Mr. Chase and Chief Clerk Walsh directed a corps of assistants in furnishing the police and fire department force with hot coffee and food.

AID FOR SUFFERERS.

Money Coming in Rapidly for the Benefit of Fire Victims.

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 31.—People from all parts of the city, from neighboring towns and even from places some distance away crowded around the scene of Friday night's fire during the day and looked at the clouds of smoke and steam which covered the sites of the buildings. The work of relieving the sufferers whose household property was destroyed is still going on. The relief committee has its quarters in the Third ward school house close to the edge of the burned district, and there clothing and food and meal tickets are being given away to those in need. Money is being raised on all sides. Already about $80,000 has been secured. On Sunday collections were taken up in all churches for the benefit of the destitute and a considerable sum was netted.

A HUNDRED DEAD.

An Achor Line Steamer Wrecked Off the Coast of Portugal.

LISBON, Oct. 29.—The Anchor line steamship Roumania went ashore early Thursday morning at the mouth of the Arnoya near Penche, and 113 of the 122 persons on board were lost. The Roumania left Liverpool last Sunday for Bombay. She carried 55 passengers, a crew of 67 men and a full cargo of valuable merchandise. She experienced heavy weather early on Monday morning. On Tuesday she ran into a furious storm. All her passengers were ordered below and were not allowed on deck again until Wednesday noon. After a few hours of clear sailing the Roumania ran into a thick fog in about 42 degrees north latitude. She proceeded at half speed and was supposed well out from the coast but another storm came on after several hours in the fog. When the storm struck her the Roumania was but a few miles from shore. The ship made but little progress and the captain was unable to keep her bow to the wind. She went on the rocks almost without warning for up to the last few minutes the ship's officers did not realize their peril. Heavy seas broke over the decks and many of the passengers who ran on deck in a panic were Swept Overboard and Drowned.

A lifeboat was cut away and an attempt was made to lower, but the boat was swamped by the waves. For two hours further attempts were abandoned. The storm abated and another boat was lowered. This boat was loaded with passengers. A hundred yards from the ship it capsized and all were drowned. Two boats were started out from the shore, but put back, as the men were convinced that they could not live in such a heavy sea. Another boat was lowered from the Roumania, but when half lowered was dashed against the ship sides and capsized. Thirteen persons who had descended to her were drowned. Meantime wave after wave had broken over the Roumania, smashing her decks and carrying away her smokestacks and masts and sweeping away many of the passengers and seamen. Those still left decided to wait until the storm abated further before attempting to get ashore. After an hour of suspense the seven men and two women who had remained on board lowered the last boat. The storm had subsided, and although obliged to ride through a heavy surf they reached shore in safety. The two women were the only passengers saved. Captain Young is reported to be among the lost.

EARTH TO EARTH.

FUNERAL SERVICES OVER THE REMAINS OF MRS. HARRISON.

Those at the White House and at Indianapolis Are Simple But Impressive. Business in the Latter City Suspended. Interment at Crown Hill Cemetery.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—The funeral services at the White House this morning were severely simple and quite brief. They began promptly at 10 o'clock and continued not longer than twenty minutes. Rev. Mr. Hamlin opened the services by a recitation of a few verses of the scriptures adapted to the occasion, closing with a short invocation. Rev. Dr. Bartlett then read the scripture lesson, following which the boys' choir of St. John's Episcopal church sang, "I Heard the Voice of Jesus Say Come Unto Me and Rest." Dr. Hamlin offered a closing prayer and as those present were leaving the room, the choir rendered Cardinal Newman's hymn, "Lead Kindly Light." The floral emblems were numerous and beautiful.

RETURNED TO EARTH.

Remains of Mrs. Harrison Laid in Their Last Resting Place at Indianapolis.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 28.—Mrs. Harrison's remains have been laid at rest in Crown Hill cemetery. The services in the church and at the grave were brief and without display. Business was practically suspended by order of the mayor and the city was in mourning garb for its favorite daughter. Its business streets, bright but a few days since with decorations in honor of the discoverer of the continent, mutely told of the general sorrow. Flags were displayed at half mast from roof and window, and for block after block there was hardly a building that was not draped to a more or less elaborate extent. Some of the biggest structures had streamers of black and white reaching from roof to sidewalk, or stretched across from window to window on every story. On other streets goods had been removed from the show windows and displaced by mourning emblems and devices of various kinds, while mourning rosettes were displayed on many of the residences along the route of the funeral procession to the cemetery.

Arrival of the Train.

On the arrival of the funeral train the casket was borne to the church and after the funeral party was conducted to carriages the cortege moved by way of Illinois avenue and thence on Pennsylvania avenue to the church. A message from Washington had been received intimating that it was the president's desire that the arrangements be so changed as to dispense with the soldiers from the United States arsenal who had been selected to act as active pall bearers. The request was due to the wish of the president to avoid anything savoring of display or ostentation and the honorary pall bearers who had been selected were notified of the change and attended in active capacity. They were as follows: Judge W. A. Woods, Thomas R. Sharpe, W. P. Fishback, Moses G. McLain, Dr. H. R. Allen, John B. Elam, Hugh Hanna, E. B. Martindale, General Lew Wallace of Crawfordsville, Hon. W. E. Niblack of Vincennes, John R. Elder, Theodore P. Haugey.

At the Church.

About one-third of the seating capacity of the church had been reserved for the immediate family, relatives and friends and those of the general public who were first on the ground were then admitted until every seat was occupied. An exception to this rule was made in behalf of about sixty members of General Harrison's old regiment, the Seventieth, and they were given seats in the south aisle. The total seating capacity of the church is only about 800, so only a comparative few of the thousands who were anxious to participate in the exercises were able to gain admittance. The church presented a somber and yet handsome appearance as the cortege passed through its doors. The front of the big organ behind the pulpit platform had been entirely hidden with folds of drapery festooned in black and white, while above were three shields similarly festooned and so arranged as to typify a burst of sunlight, the entire effect being extremely striking. Wide drapings of black ran the entire length of the edifice over the stained glass windows and were relieved at each panel with monster rosettes of white. Two American flags were draped over the front of the gallery and beneath which the procession passed on entering the church. The ten side lights were festooned in black and white and smilax, while from each depended a cluster of carnations, roses and palm leaves. Back of the pulpit and surrounding the organ a profusion of plants, palms and flowers in bloom filled the air with fragrance.

The Services.

In accordance with the president's wishes the services over the remains were very simple. When the cortege reached the front of the church the casket was placed near the pastor's table and at its head stood a vase filled with Jessica chrysanthemums, eight feet in height. Services were commenced by the rendering of Cardinal Newman's hymn, "Lead Kindly Light," by the choir, and Rev. Mr. Haynes, Mrs. Harrison's pastor during the latter years of her residence in this city, delivered a short invocation. A selection of scripture was then read and the pastor made a brief address, paying a tribute to the Christian life of the deceased.

The mourners were led in prayer by Rev. Dr. Hyde, of the Congregational church, and after the rendition of the hymn commencing, "One Sweetly Solemn Thought," Dr. Haynes pronounced the benediction. At the grave a short passage of scripture was read and a prayer was offered as the casket was lowered into the vault.

The funeral procession was headed by a detachment of police, then came carriages containing the officiating divines and pall bearers. The hearse followed and directly behind it were the president and the immediate relatives, followed by the members of the cabinet and their ladies. After these followed Governor Chase and the state officials, the ladies' board of the orphans' home, the members of the state supreme court, intimate lady friends and carriages in general. All traffic was suspended on the thoroughfares over which the cortege passed.

PASSED A BILL.

Wisconsin Legislature Makes Another Apportionment Law.

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 27.—The apportionment bill as adopted by the Democratic caucus, with a single exception, passed both houses during the afternoon, all Democrats voting for it excepting Senator Jerger and Assemblyman Brown. The single exception is the case of Fond du Lac county where the Republican arrangement prevailed. In both houses Republicans offered every objection possible, submitting a score of amendments and making as many speeches. The bill got through the upper house by the narrow majority of 16 to 15.

In the house the Republicans were reinforced in their opposition by Neal Brown, one of the Democratic leaders, and at the present time a nominee for the state senate. He thought the assembly bill contrary to the constitution. Generally he endorsed the bill, but a few sections he thought inequal in division. Senator Jerger fought against the Eau Claire division, he representing that district. The Republicans will probably not attempt to bring this apportionment act into court.

NOT FINALLY SETTLED.

The Matter of Sunday Closing of the World's Fair to Be Reopened.

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—At their next meeting the directors of the world's fair will probably declare that the exposition must be kept open on Sunday and formally inaugurate the campaign which is expected to end in the repeal by congress of the Sunday clause put in the appropriation bill. As the case now stands both national and local boards are on record as committed to Sunday closing. The Chicago directors months ago accepted the $2,500,000 appropriation with the closing clause attached and last week the national commission voted that the exposition should be locked on Sunday. In neither case, however, can it be said that the action taken was final or that it fairly represented the sentiment of either board. It is likely that an address will soon be issued and given the widest possible circulation. It will take the form of an appeal to laboring men and other organized bodies asking them to express their sentiments to congressmen and senators.

FATAL FLAMES.

Five Perish in a Burning Dwelling Near Des Moines.

DES MOINES, Nov. 1.—The residence of George Cage, one mile southwest of this city, was burned at 4 o'clock a. m. John Cage inhaled the flames and will die. Mrs. John Cage and a child 6 months old, perished also. Two children of George Case, aged 2 years and 5 days, respectively, also perished.

STRUCK BY A TRAIN.

Two Men Killed and Another Fatally Injured in Iowa.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., Nov. 1.—Two men were killed and another will die as the result of a collision of a train with a car on the Omaha road near Sigley. The names of the dead and injured men are unknown.

Quarantine Raised.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—The secretary of state has been informed by a cablegram from the United States minister at Rio Janerio that the Brazilian government has raised the quarantine on vessels sailing after the 20th of October.

LATEST MARKET REPORT.

St. Paul Union Stock

SOUTH ST. PAUL. Oct. 31 1892.

HOGS—Not enough received to make a market.

CATTLE—Steady. Prime steers, $3.00@3.40; good steers, $2.50@3.00; prime cows, $2.15@2.35; good cows, $1.60@2.00; common to fair cows, 50c@1.50; light veal calves, $3.00@4.25; heavy calves $1.40@2.75; stockers, $1.40@2.15; feeders, $1.60@2.50; bulls, $1.00@1.70.

SHEEP—Market seady. Muttons, $3.00@4.00; lambs, $3.00@4.00; stockers and feeders, $2.00@3.50.

Receipts: Hogs, 50; cattle, 300.

Minneapolis Grain.

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 31, 1892.

WHEAT—Close—May opening, 73¾c; highest, 74⅛c; lowest, 73⅝@73⅛c; closing 73⅝c; December opening, 67⅞c; highest, 68c; lowest, 66⅝c; closing, 67¾c. On track—No. 1 hard, 69½c; No. 1 northern, 67½c; No. 2 northern, 64@65c.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO UNION STOCK YARDS, Oct. 31, 1892.

CATTLE—Firm for choice, poor to medium grades weak.

HOGS—Market firm. Heavy, $5.85@5.65; mixed and medium, $5.35@5.60; light, $5.25@5.60.

SHEEP—Firm.

Receipts: Cattle, 20,000; hogs, 32,000; sheep, 7,000.

Chicago Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, Oct. 31, 1892.

OPENING PRICES.

WHEAT—December 72c; January, 72⅝c; May 78c.

CORN—November, 41¼c; December, 41½c; May 45⅝c.

OATS—May, 34¾c.

PORK—November, $11.85; January, $13.15.

LARD—January $7.45.

SHORT RIBS—January, $6.70.

CLOSING PRICES.

WHEAT—October, 70½c; December, 72⅝c; May, 78@78⅛c.

CORN—October, 41⅞c; November, 42c; December, 41¾c; May, 46c.

OATS—October, 29½c; November, 29½c; December, 30⅝c; May 35⅛c.

PORK—October, $11.50; November, $11.50; January, $13.82½.

LARD—October, $8.35; November, $7.70; January, $7.30; May, 7.87½.

SHORT RIBS—October, $12.00; January, $6.57½.

"WORTH A GUINEA A BOX."
SPECIAL NOTICE
Complying with general request,
BEECHAM'S PILLS
will in future for the United States be covered with A Tasteless and Soluble Coating, completely disguising the taste of the Pill without in any way impairing its efficacy.
Price 25 cents a Box.
New York Depot 365 Canal Street.

WOOD'S PHOSPHODINE
The Great English Remedy.

Before and After.

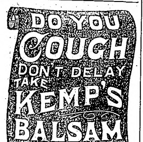
Promptly and permanently cures all forms of Nervous Weakness, Emissions, Spermatorrhea, Impotency and all effects of Abuse or Excesses. Been prescribed over 35 years in thousands of cases; is the only Reliable and Honest Medicine known. Ask druggist for WOOD'S PHOSPHODINE; if he offers some worthless medicine in place of this, leave his dishonest store, inclose price in letter, and we will send by return mail. Price, one package, $1; six, $5. One will please, six will cure. Pamphlet in plain sealed envelope, 2 stamps.
Address THE WOOD CHEMICAL CO.,
131 Woodward avenue, Detroit, Mich.
Sold at Crookston by A. G. Anderson, A. Wallace, F. L. Durand and druggists everywhere.

Cook's Cotton Root Compound

Cook's Cotton Root
COMPOUND.
A recent discovery by an old physician. Successfully used monthly by thousands of Ladies. Is the only perfectly safe and reliable medicine discovered. Beware of unprincipled druggists who offer inferior medicines in place of this. Ask for COOK'S COTTON ROOT COMPOUND, take no substitute, or inclose $1 and 6 cents in postage in letter, and we will send, sealed, by return mail. Full sealed particulars in plain envelope, to ladies only, 2 stamps.
Address Pond Lily Company,
No. 3 Fisher Block, Detroit, Mich.
Sold at Crookston by A. C. Anderson, S. A. Wallace, F. L. Durand and druggists everywhere.

AT BEDTIME I TAKE A PLEASANT HERB DRINK

THE NEXT MORNING I FEEL BRIGHT AND NEW AND MY COMPLEXION IS BETTER.
My doctor says it acts gently on the stomach, liver and kidneys, and is a pleasant laxative. This drink is made from herbs, and is prepared for use as easily as tea. It is called
LANE'S MEDICINE
All druggists sell it at 50c. and $1.00 a package. If you cannot get it, send your address for a free sample. Lane's Family Medicine moves the bowels each day. In order to be healthy, this is necessary. Address ORATOR F. WOODWARD, LeROY, N. Y.



It Cures Colds, Coughs, Sore Throat, Croup, Influenza, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis and Asthma. A certain cure for Consumption in first stages, and a sure relief in advanced stages. Use at once. You will see the excellent effect after taking the first dose. Sold by dealers everywhere. Large bottles 50 cents and $1.00.

FITS STOPPED FREE
Marvelous success.
Insane Persons Restored
Dr. KLINE'S GREAT NERVE RESTORER
for all BRAIN & NERVE DISEASES. Only sure cure for Nerve Affections, Fits, Epilepsy, etc. INFALLIBLE if taken as directed. No Fits after first day's use. Treatise and $2 trial bottle free to Fit patients, they paying express charges on box when received. Send names, P. O. and express address of afflicted to Dr. KLINE, 931 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa. See Druggists. BEWARE OF IMITATING FRAUDS.

E. D. SCHREADER,
Veterinary Surgeon.

Horse Dentistry a Specialty.
All Calls receive Prompt Attention.
Satisfaction guaranteed in all cases.
Office: 319 North Main Street, in connection with Livery house.
CROOKSTON, MINN.

WANTED SALESMEN.
Local and Traveling
to represent our well known house. You need no capital to represent a firm that warrants nursery stock first-class and true to name.
WORK ALL THE YEAR. $100 per month to the right man. Apply quick, stating age.
L. L. MAY & CO.,
Nurserymen, Florists and Seedsmen,
(This house is responsible.) St. Paul, Minn.

NEW BARBER SHOP.
On Main St. C. E. MISNER, Prop
Invites your patronage. Everything in the very latest style of the art.
RAZORS HONED.
If you desire your Razor Honed and cannot bring it, send it to me with 30 cents and your name and address and I will hone and return it.
Yours Respectfully,
C. E. MISNER.

Ripans Tabules cure the blues.

H. STEENERSON
ATTORNEY AT LAW
CROOKSTON, - MINNESOTA

MARTIN O'BRIEN,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
{I. O. O. F. BUILDING.} Crookston, Minn.

A. A. JUST, M. D.,
Homoeopathic Physician and Surgeon
OFFICE IN
McKinnon Block, Crookston

L. E. GOSSMAN,
Attorney-at-Law,
No. 2 Fournet Block} CROOKSTON, MINN.

MILLER & FOOTE,
ATTY'S-AT-LAW,
McKinnon Block, - Crookston, Minn.

W. A. ROBERTSON.
D. D. S.
Graduate of Dental Department of the University of Maryland.
OPERATIVE AND MECHANICAL
DENTIST.
N. B. Nitrous Oxide Gas, (Laughing Gas) administered for the painless extraction of teeth.
OFFICE IN McKINNON BLOCK.

G. G. HENAULT
Practical Dentist,
SECOND STREET,
CROOKSTON, - - MINN
OFFICE IN DOBSON'S BLOCK,
☞ All work in my line skilfully and promptly performed. Give me a call.
G. G. HENAULT.

JOHN CROMB,
Attorney-at-Law,
SECOND STREET. CROOKSTON

M. LeGUEE.
Veterinary Surgeon.
Residence and office on Jerome's Addition.
CROOKSTON. - - - MINN.

P. J. RUSSELL,
Attorney-at-Law
CROOKSTON, MINN.
Next to Merchants' Bank.

FRANK IVES, Notary Public and U S, Com'sr
D. E. HATLESTAD, District Court Commissioner
IVES & HATLESTAD,
Attorneys and Counselors at Law,
CROOKSTON, - - - MINN.
Will practice in all the courts and before the U S. Land Office at Crookston and Washington. Pensions and Soldiers' Claims and Patents carefully and promptly adjusted.
We loan money on improved farms and city property and have facilities for placing large loans at low rate of interest. We give special attention to collection and all commercial business pertaining to our profession.

A. H. DUNLAP, M. D.
Graduate McGill University, Montreal.
LICENSED COLLEGE PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS, QUEBEC.
Office in McKinnon Block.

KOPS BRO'S
105 Third Street,
GRAND FORKS, N. DAKOTA
PIANOS, ORGANS

WEBER, HAINES BROS., KURTZMANN, MATHUSHEK, McCAMMON PIANOS, Estey and Chicago Cottage Organs. New Upright Pianos from $250 to $1,000, on terms of $10 to $25 per month. New Organs from $60 to $250 on terms of $5 to $10 per month. Satisfaction guaranteed. Write for catalogue and prices. KOPS BROS.
Grand Forks, N. D.

THE PIONEER
HARNESS SHOP,
M. RAUENBUEHLR, Proprietor.
A full supply of everything kept by the trade.
Cor of Broadway and Third Sts,
CROOKSTON. - - MINN

Ripans Tabules cure dyspepsia.

'Round Home.

Wheat—1 Hard 57.
1 Northern 55.

Buy your diamonds of Tom Morris.

Soft easy shoes for tender feet, at The Fair.

If you want fresh groceries, go to A. Sture's.

See Saake before you order your holiday jewelry.

S. C. Bagley, the timber contractor of Fosston, was in the city Tuesday.

I. U. Jennings keeps every variety of furniture and guarantees to undersell them all.

J. T. Knight, the enthusiastic boomer of Red Lake Falls was in the city chatting with friends last week.

C. Hendrickson, of Grafton, N. D., who is president of the Scandia-American of Crookston, was in the city Monday.

The flambeau club has an invitation to go to Fertile on Friday evening of this week and intends to go if possible to arrange it.

For rent—the front or rear room in the public reading room building. Suitable improvements will be made according to the business going into it.

Tom Morris' holiday stock of jewelry, silverware, watches etc., is beginning to arrive. A larger and more complete stock than ever before brought to Crookston. He invites a call.

Prof. Casey and W. C. Davis, superintendent and principal of the Red Lake Falls schools came to the city last Friday. Mr. Davis is a comparatively new man in Polk county but the JOURNAL learns that he is a good one.

Mr. James H. Lee, father of Walter C. Lee, who has managed the Lee & Herrick mill property since the distressing times of last spring, will leave soon for his home in Buffalo N. Y. Mr. Lee has made many warm friends while here.

D. S. Harwitz, the genial agent of Kopps Bros., of Grand Forks, was on the streets Tuesday morning, wearing a seven by nine smile, and when asked why he was feeling so good said he "had sold a piano this morning and it isn't 10 o'clock yet."

W. F. Bugg received a box of fine cigars from Leslie McDonald one day last week. That the cigars were good ones we are prepared to vouch and we are thinking some of taking a trip to Tacoma in hopes that he might invite us to try another one.

Frank Montague has announced himself as an independent candidate for judge of probate and Judge Montague the republican candidate and P. J. Russell the democratic nominee have withdrawn. Frank, if he should be elected would be a model judge of probate as he is an A 1 business man.

A. Chabot has found his new quarters inadequate to accommodate his immense stock, and has secured a store in the Fournet block, between O'Brien's hardware store and Mercil's grocery store, and has it filled with clothing, gents. furnishings, gents boots and shoes, trunks, valises, etc. O. Mercil Jr., will have charge of this department.

Judge Ira. B. Mills spent the Sabbath in the city on his way home from a trip north through Kittson and Marshall counties. The judge, when asked what his prospects for election were, good naturedly replied that he was very much too busy to make a regular canvass but said "If I can rely upon what men tell me and what they write me, and I have no reason to doubt their words, I should think that I have a very good fighting chance. I have a great many good friends among the farmers who assure me of their good will and say they will support me." Judge Mills has made an excellent judge and if a faithful guardianship over the interests of the people deserves endorsement he deserves to be reelected and the JOURNAL expects to see him elected.

Postmaster Dawley estimates that by March 31, 1893, Crookston will have free delivery of mails, with three or four carriers and the service will be complete in every respect. A postoffice must do $10,000 worth of business per year in order to secure free delivery, and Mr. Dawley figures that if business continues for the next four months as it has for the past eight months, the receipts of this office will amount to more than $10,000. The business of the office for the year ending March 30th, 1892, was $8,250 so that there would have to be an increase of $1,750 this year in order to reach the $10,000 limit. During the past eight months the receipts have increased $1400 over the receipts for the same period last year leaving but $350 to be made up in the next four months, and it is only necessary for the volume of business to continue as it has to make the receipts for the year ending March 30th, 1893, more than $10,000 and thus secure free delivery.

Fur trimmed jackets at A. Sture's, only $6.50.

New furniture constantly arriving at I. U. Jennings' furniture store.

Chas. Ward of the Ada Index was in the city last week calling on friends.

Girl wanted for general housework. Apply at Wm. Beck's in Loring's addition. [29-30]

W. R. Spears, Geo. B. Read and Jno P. Burkhard passed through the city Tuesday on their way east.

Saake wants your trade in jewelry or in anything in his line and will make it an object for you to call on him.

Henry Burkhardt, who has been very ill with typhoid fever is reported out of danger and doing nicely.

A. Kaiser, of the bank of Fosston, was in the city Thursday and attended the firemen's dance in the evening.

A. C. Rhinehart and M. Wolf came down from the reservation Thursday and left for East Grand Forks Thursday morning.

Herb Mason returned on Tuesday morning and very soon holiday goods will begin to appear. Inquire for his bouquet button.

When you want a good photograph of yourself, go to P. E. Lynne's new gallery in the Anderson-Olson block—second floor.

Knute Nelson will hold three meetings in Polk county—Fertile Nov. 4, at 8 p. m.; McIntosh Nov. 5, at 12 o'clock noon; and Crookston. Nov. 5th, at 8 p. m.

C. H. Saake is constantly adding to his stock of jewelry such things as are needed and is prepared to show the finest stock he ever had. He invites a call.

Grand closing out sale of jewelry watches, clocks and silverware at A. D. Morris store on Robert street. Remember, anything you want in jewelry you can get at a bargain.

Some of the best singers in our city are preparing themselves to assist in the concert to be given next Monday evening under the auspices of the ladies of the Congregational church.

Fred Rauch Sundayed in Barnesville and arrived home just in time to help at the big fire. Fred asked us not to tell why he went to Barnesville so we will not—moreover we don't know for sure./

R. E. Netzer sends us a picture of his candidate for governor (of Washington) which picture looks so much like D. W. Lawler that we have been accused by some of disloyalty to the republican ticket.

Fontaine & Anglim open to-day an exceptionally exclusive assortment of ladies and children's cloaks, novelties in styles and patterns, which they would be pleased to have you see and make a selection while the agent is here. Measures taken for special orders.

If you need anything in the line of watches, clocks, silverware or jewelry of any kinds, call on A. D. Morris' at his jewelry store and take advantage of his great closing out sale. They go without regard to cost to close out. It will pay you to bear this in mind and call.

The responses to our statements have not been quite as many as we desired and we trust that our friends will bear in mind that we do not wish to make them trouble but we are compelled to know what each can do for us this fall. A word to the wise should be sufficient.

The ladies of the Gentilly parish will give a grand dinner for the benefit of the church, at Gentilly, Sunday, November 6th, 1892. Dinner served from 12 to 3 p. m. and supper from 5 to 7 p. m. at 25 cents. Refreshments and amusements upon the grounds during the afternoon.

Officer H. N. Tweten is too modest altogether. A few days since he went out to Maple Bay where he was united for life to Miss. Synoba A. Trufto and then came back and resumed his place on the police force all the same as though getting married was an every day occurrence.

The steamer "Viking," owned by Capt. Eberhart, plying between Thief River Falls and Red Lake, is fitted up comfortably for the accommodation of passengers, making the trip one of the most delightful that can be made at this season of the year. The Viking leaves Thief River Falls for the Red Lake agency every Tuesday, returning on Friday and will make regular trips until navigation closes. [28 tf]

The Times prates of the democracy "preferring to remain true to their principles than to take advantage of any temporary gain that might result from a combination." How is it about the deal on state electors Mac? How much "principle" do you remain true to there, where the only object of the deal is simply for office? The amount of "principle" that your party don't have would make a mighty large sized book.

Cloaks! cloaks! at A. Sture's. Give us a call.

Mrs. W. B. Sheffield, of Fosston, was in the city last Friday.

M. H. Novotny, of Argyle, was doing business in the city last week.

Dauser employs nothing but the best of help and can turn out a picture of any style or size

Do you want a good pair of blankets? If so, do not purchase before you have seen those at A. Sture's.

There will be an elegant line of ladies fur goods on exhibition at the New York store next Friday and Saturday.

Andrew Thoreson and Julia Knudson, of the town of Lessor, were married on the 26th inst., by Judge Christianson.

"Have a smoke," said R. G. Woodham last Saturday morning. "A nice big girl arrived at our house last night."

The new boiler for the Fournet block has arrived and is being placed in position, and very soon the heating apparatus will be in order.

Ladies, if you want to see something handsome in the way of cloaks, reefers and jackets, visit the New York store to-morrow and Saturday.

K. O. Gigstad was in from St. Hilaire on Tuesday. He is one of the unfortunate ones who lost their crops in the big hail storm up there last summer.

If you want a cloak or jacket made to order, A. Chabot will guarantee a fit, and will agree to deliver the goods in ten days from the time the order is taken.

Tickets for the concert next Monday evening can be obtained next Saturday and Monday at Tom Morris.' The box sheet will be open there at the same time.

Mrs. Sempf keeps experienced help and you will find your work done in the latest and most approved style as well as cheap. A complete line of millinery always on hand.

Herr A. Arnold, the celebrated violinist, whom the ladies of the Congregational church have been so fortunate as to secure, to give one of his concerts here will bring his own accompanist.

A bit of a blaze at the Red River Lumber Co's planing mill called out the department on Saturday afternoon, but the flames were subdued before the boys arrived on the spot. The loss was about $200.

Don't forget the great cloak opening at the New York store next Friday and Saturday, November 4th and 5th. It will be the grandest display of cloaks, jackets and reefers ever made in the Queen city.

Fontaine & Anglim open to-day an exceptionally exclusive assortment of ladies' and children's cloaks, novelties in styles and patterns, which they would be pleased to have you see, and make a selection while the agent is here. Measures taken for special orders.

Rev. R. H. Battey preaches next Sunday at the Congregational church. In the morning he will conduct the communion of the Lord's Supper with the church, and with the evening sermon close his pastoral labors here. Attendance of all the members at these services is particularly desired.

A Chabot is making preparations for opening at the New York store, on Friday and Saturday of this week, the greatest assortment of cloaks ever seen in Crookston. A represeneative of the great cloak establishment of Jos Beifeld & Co., of Chicago, will be here on those days, and everybody is invited to call and examine the immense line of cloaks which will be displayed.

Frank Cernousek, one of the leading farmers of Tabor, made this office a pleasant call on Wednesday. Frank says that the town of Tabor will cast its vote as it always used to—for the republican and democratic candidates. He is positive that Harrison and Nelson will get a good vote in Tabor but that for commission Nesbit will divide the vote with Anderson instead of Rhinehart.

The Red River Valley Elevator company, in their new location, between Third and Fourth streets, are now prepared to buy or ship for farmers, at reasonable rates, their wheat or other grain. Mr. Wm. Munch, their representative here for the last five years, is still with them and requests all his old friends and patrons to call on him in his new place of business. All others he would ask to give him a trial.

The Shunk Calhoun Opera Company, one of the largest theatrical organizations in the country, appear for one night only, Friday, Nov. 25th, for which occasion the beautiful opera "Bohemian Girl" will be produced on a magnificent scale. This is the greatest treat Crookston has ever been favored with. Seats are selling by subscription at one dollar. Excursions will be run from the surrounding towns and the largest house in the history of the opera house is looked for.

Dauser guarantees his photographs to be second to none.

Ed. McManus, brother of Geo. J. was up from Duluth last week.

Eber Cameron was in from Thief River Falls this week in time to see the big fire.

The taking of children's photographs a speciality at Dauser's corner gallery.

Mrs. A. J. Streeter went to St. Paul last week on business connected with the hospital.

A first-class crayon given away with every dozen cabinets at Dauser's corner gallery.

Isaac Mills of this county had his house and all its contents burned on the 2.th of October.

Money to loan by Red River Valley Loan and Investment Co., opera house block.

Mrs. J. G. McGrew and Miss. Inez went to Fosston last week on a business and pleasure trip.

If you have a farm or city property to sell, list with Red River Valley Loan and Investment company.

Mrs. H. D. Pinkerton and children, of Michigan City, N. D., was in the last week visiting friends and relatives.

Large stock of dry goods just received. Come in and look them over before you go elsewhere. Prices guaranteed. A. STURE.

I. U. Jennings does not advertise a few articles at "way down prices" to catch you on the balance but sells everything at "way down prices."

A first-class crayon given away with every dozen cabinets at Dauser's corner gallery.

E. E. Abbott was in from Mentor on Wednesday. Says he got 25 bushels of wheat per acre on some of his land.

Geo. Lipscomb and bride arrived at their new home on Wednesday morning. The JOURNAL extends a hearty welcome.

Minor Rood was in from Mentor on Wednesday with some garden stuff to sell. Minor always makes a good spec on his garden truck.

John Miller has rented the Germania house and taken possession. He will endeavor to sustain the reputation of that excellent hostelry.

L. K. Aaker returned last Saturday from a trip to Madison, where he had been on business connected with the Normal school at that place.

A first-class crayon given away with every dozen cabinets at Dauser's corner gallery.

Do you know Herb carries a full stock of musical goods from a mouth organ to a guitar? Everything it that line you need he has and he invites you to call and look him over.

Mrs. I. U. Jennings can always be found at her old stand on Robert street ready to show you the latest and most approved styles of millinery and will sell at prices corresponding to the times.

Fontaine & Anglim open to-day an exceptionally exclusive assortment of ladies' and children's cloaks, novelties in styles and patterns, which they would be pleased to have you see, and make a selection while the agent is here. Measures taken for special orders.

P. M. Dauser has removed his photograph establishment to the gallery recently vacated by P. E. Lynne, on the corner of Broadway and Robert street. He has got nicely fixed up and is working hard to keep up with his orders.

Owing to his wife's contined illness A. D. Morris has decided to go out of the jewelry business in this city and offers his entire stock for sale at prices away down. Call early for choice. (28tf)

M. M. Rood of Mentor brought in 35 bushels of white beans last Wednesday and realized $2.35 per bushel for them. He has raised a considerable quantity of vegetables this season and has found ready sale for all his produce. He says it pays better than raising wheat at 55 cents per bushel.

W. N. Severance, one of the republican speakers of Saturday evening attended services at the Congregational church on Sunday morning. In conversation with the writer he remarked, "I consider you very fortunate in having a lovely little church edifice and a most excellent pastor—a combination that not every church possesses. Under such favorable circumstances you ought to be very prosperous."

People are admiring C. H. Saake's new stock of jewelry displayed in his show cases, and it is evident there is where people will go to buy their holiday jewelry. Gold and silverware of every description adorn his store. But do not take our statement for it. Just see his great stock of jewelry for yourselves. Mr. Saake is also a skillful repairer of clocks and watches, and his prices are right too.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report.

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

1892			November.			1892
Su.	Mo.	Tu.	We.	Th.	Fri.	Sat.
		1	2	3	4	5
6	7	8	9	10	11	12
13	14	15	16	17	18	19
20	21	22	23	24	25	26
27	28	29	30

BRIEF NEWS ITEMS.

FOREIGN.

The Columbus historical exhibition was opened at Madrid Sunday.

Six new cases and four deaths from cholera are reported by the authorities of Vienna for the day.

Erastus Wyman is making a tour of Canada, speaking in favor of closer relations with the United States.

Snow has fallen in the Black Forest district of Germany to a depth of four feet and railway traffic is blockaded.

Mr. Gladstone will attend the lord mayor's banquet on Nov. 9, if his physician, Sir Andrew Clarke, consents.

Hamburg citizens are jubilant over the fact that there was not a single case of cholera nor a death in that city Sunday.

Premier Greenway, of Manitoba, and his supporters, are now safe in their legislative seats, the decision of the chief justice completely bowling out the opposition.

The London Observer announces that it has learned on the best authority that at the last cabinet meeting it was definitely decided not to retire from Uganda.

The court of queen's bench at Dublin has issued a writ of execution against William O'Brien for 3,000 pounds, the amount of a judgment given against him in a libel suit.

Kaiser William has refused permission to the German military bands to go to the Chicago world's fair, the refusal being based, it is rumored, on the ground that he may have use for them in a different field.

A sensational trial is promised at Gratz, the capital of Styria, where a respected district judge has been arrested on the charge of murdering his wife. The woman died Sunday and the circumstances of her death lead to the arrest of her husband.

POLITICAL NOTATIONS.

The Oregon Democrats and Populists have fused.

Jerry Simpson imagines that there is a scheme on foot to assassinate him.

Adlai E. Stevenson, Democratic candidate for Vice President, has given out his letter of acceptance.

The Minnesota Democratic state committee is credited with an intention to abandon the five Democratic nominees for electors left on their ticket and urging Democrats to vote for all the nine Populist electoral candidates. The Nebraska Democrats are expected to take similar action.

CASUALTIES.

An epidemic of typhoid fever is raging at Ishpeming, Mich.

The schooner E. Phipps was wrecked off the coast of Newfoundland and sixteen sailors were drowned.

A dispatch from Hong Kong states that the same storm which wrecked the Peninsular and Oriental steamship Bokhara, at the Fishers islands, off the coast of Fokien, wrecked at the same time a Norwegian steamer, the Normann, in the same vicinity. It is believed that only two of those who were on board the Normann survived.

CRIMES AND CRIMINALS.

Mrs. Russell under sentence of imprisonment for life at Eau Claire for murder, has been granted a new trial.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Boston and Maine and the Reading system have consolidated.

Harry Vane Milbank, the noted duelist, died in Switzerland Tuesday.

General Poe's plan for a twenty-foot waterway between Duluth and Buffalo has been approved in Washington.

The new return postal cards were placed on sale Wednesday at the postoffices throughout the United States.

Police Officer White, of Tacoma, has received information from New York of the death of his uncle, and he is one of ten heirs to a fortune of $3,000,000.

Green Morris' promising 3-year-old colt Rex, for which he recently refused $10,000, was so badly injured in the mile handicap race at Hawthorne Park, Chicago, Wednesday, that he was shot.

Edwin Gould, second son of Jay Gould, and Miss Sarah Cantice Sprady, daughter of George F. Sprady, were married Wednesday night at the home of the bride's parents, 80 East Sixty-sixth street, New York city.

The fight in New York city between the steamship companies and grain shippers over the form of a bill of lading has ended in a victory for the steamship companies and an advance of freights from 2 to 4 cents.

Preliminary steps towards the organization of a naval militia have been taken in Pennsylvania and Vermont. There are already eight states with properly equipped and creditable naval forces organized in conformity with the national law.

The Nebraska grand lodge, Knights of Pythias, has just discovered that it lost $3,000 by the failure of the Ainsworth bank. The grand treasurer of the order was cashier of the bank and had the funds on deposit. His bondsmen are involved, so that the order will lose the entire sum.

Terms for the Electric Force.

About the middle of the last century, through the genius of Franklin, lightning became identified with common or frictional electricity, but the language referring to this great natural force continued to be the same as when men were ignorant of its nature. They spoke, as we still speak, of a thunderstorm, and of thunder and lightning, and thus, as in other cases, mistook, as we continue to do, at least in our mode of speech, the effect for the cause. It is commonly said that the thunder turns to sourness the milk and the beer; that there is thunder in the air, and the singeing of a tree by lightning "was due to the thunder last night," as its owner informed me a few weeks ago. Even Scott, in "The Heart of Midlothian," speaks of "the shattered and thunder splitten peaks of Arran."

Our gratitude is due to those gifted men who have been able to divest natural phenomena of the ignorance and superstition that formerly encumbered them, and so to bring them under the dominion of scientific laws which appeal to the good sense of all students of nature.—Notes and Queries.

Blankets and Bedding

Have been poor lately. The weather seeme to havetaken the life all out of them. The prices we are quoting ought to move them.

3-pound, 62x72, gray blanket for..................$ 69
5-pound, 72x82, all wool gray for.................. 3 00
7-pound, 84x144, all wool gray for.................. 5 00
5-pound, 72x82, all wool scarlet for.................. 3 00
15 all wool white blankets, all sizes, and prices, at a discount of 15 per cent. These are a very little soiled on the outside fold, and we trust the excuse for the discount will be more apparent.

Why Shake and Shiver from Wintry Blasts?

8-pound, 64x72, quilts for..................$ 72
8-pound, 72x84, quilts for.................. 1 00
p ound, 72x84, quilts, cotton filled, reversible, and made of best satine.................. 4 00
Elder down quilts for.................. 9 00
They are of good silk, beautiful and cheap. We have comfortables made by the ladies of the different church societies, and we know what goes into them—no shoddy, no trash, nothing but pure, clean cotton. The price is marked plain figures and speak up quite loud enough. Witness our display window.

For 60 cents we will sell you a 2½ pound feather pillow, covered with the best feather ticking. Why pay more?

Fontaine & Anglim.

Polk County Journal.

VOL. XVI. CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA, THURSDAY, NOV. 10, 1892. NO. 30

Historical Society
MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

Crookston Furniture Co.
Undertakers
—AND—
Funeral Directors.
SECOND STREET, Next to Times Office, CROOKSTON, MINN.

—COMPLETE STOCK OF—
CASKETS, COFFINS, ROBES, BURIAL SUPPLIES.

A Beautiful New Hearse has just been received. Parties desiring the use of the same will leave orders with us.

Telegraph orders promptly and casefully filled.
R. G. WOODHAM, Undertaker and Embalmer.

Advertised Letters.

List of letters remaining unclaimed at the Crookston postoffice for the week ending Nov. 7th, 1892.

Boner, James
Horton, Knute
Herrick, J. W.
Peterson, Frank
Harrison, Mr.
Halyson, Louis
McArthur, Weil

Persons calling for the above letters please say advertised.

WM. B. DAWLEY, P. M.

Special Sale of Millinery.

On and after Tuesday, November 15th, Veronneau & Adams will offer the balance of their fall stock of millinery at special sale. In order to close out everything they will make such prices as will dispose of the entire stock.

Flour, Bran and Shorts.

Farmers, call at the Valley Roller Mills and get your flour, bran and shorts.

Lost.

On Tuesday, October 25th, an English Setter dog, white, with red spots on both sides and both ears red, answers to the name of "Bird." Had collar on when last seen by owner. A liberal reward will be paid for his return to Dr. A. H. Dunlap, Crookston, Minn. [30-32]

Notice.

All those who are indebted to us are requested to settle up their accounts at once, as we must have money to buy a new stock of goods. We hope our friends will respond promptly and thus enable us to get on our feet as soon as possible.

WILLIAMS & ROBERTS.

Lost.

By the undersigned, between Crookston and Beltrami, Minn., four (4) promissory notes, as follows, viz: One for $75, dated August or September, 1890, due November 1st, 1891; one for $40, dated August or September, 1890, due November 1st, 1890 or November 1st, 1891, given by Ole Iverson and payable to the order of the undersigned. One for $40, given by Herman Viken to Ole Brye, and endorsed by him; and one for $20 given by Ole Tofte to said Ole Brye and endorsed by him.

The payment of these several notes is hereby stopped. The finder will be liberally rewarded for the return of these notes to the owner, J. A. Bakkene, or to Christianson Bros., Crookston, Minn.

Oct. 22, 1892. [28-30]

For Sale.

Two solid gasoline barrels for sale at this office. The very best of material and well made. Call at the JOURNAL office. [28 tf]

BEECHAM'S PILLS sell well because they cure.

If you want to purchase a half section of land, all under cultivation, at a great bargain call and see us. We know of such a place within two miles of the city limits that can be had cheap, as the owner wishes to put the proceeds into other business. One hundred acres of the land was broken last year. Good buildings, good well and good fences on the place. One of the best farms for a stock farm we know of in this vicinity. It is a bargain. [30tf]

Ready for Business.

The Red River Loan and Investment company is a company which is composed of some of our most honorable, prominent, live business men who have the utmost faith in the growth of Crookston and the Red River Valley. That the company will be a grand success, of benefit to the city and its surroundings, there can be no doubt. The object and business of the company is to loan money on good farms on reasonable terms. Sell farm lands and city property. Offices in the opera house block.

The officers and stockholders of the company are

A. G. Gallasch, President.
C. O. Christianson, Vice-President,
A. F. George, Secretary.
O. H. Lucken, Treasurer.

J. W. Wheeler, H. Steenerson L. Ellington, Wm. Anglim, T. H. Bjoin, J. R. McKinnon, Geo. O. Buhn, W. E. McKenzie, A. Chabot, J. R. Clements, O. O. Christianson, Crookston; H. L. Melgaard, O. L. Melgaard, Olsen & Holen, Argyle; John E. Ostrom, Otto Edwardh, Warren; Ben Sundberg, Kennedy; Carl Hendrickson, Grafton; W. H. Mathews, banker, Minneapolis; Joseph Lockey, banker, A. L. Alness, banker; J. A. Swenson, banker, T. L. Shurmeier, wholesale dry goods, H. D. Brown, wholesale stationer, Tams Bixby, Gov. Merriam's private secretary, A. E. Johnson, immigration agent, Olaf O. Searle, immigration agent St. Paul; C. E. Freidrich; Fred Otto, Red Wing; B. J. Borlang, banker Kenyon; O. H. Myron, Sylvester Peterson, J. G. Herringer, Garret L. Thorpe, W. C. Calkins, A. J. Vangsness Eliza O. Aikin, Ada; Norman Hanson, Fertile.

Cash for Hides

I will pay the highest market price in cash for hides, pelts and furs. Call at my office No. 14 Broadway, Crookston, Minn.

[26-tf] GEO. VINE.

Money to Loan.

On good farms by the Red River Valley Loan and Investment company. Call at their office in the Bjoin block, Main street, Crookston, Minn. [28tf]

Cloaks.

Two thousand one hundred dollars worth of women's, misses and children's cloaks and wraps were sent us this week by a wholesale cloak house that was overstocked, with instructions to sell them at any price. This is the best opportunity to secure a good winter cloak at your own price. Come early and secure a good choice. The Fair, corner Main and Robert streets.

COUGHING LEADS TO CONSUMPTION
Kemp's Balsam stops the cough at once.

For Sale.

A scholarship in the Crookston Business College. Apply at the JOURNAL office. [10 t.f.]

FITS—All fits stopped free by Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. No Fits after first day's use. Marvelous cures. Treatise and $2.00 trial bottle free to Fit cases. Send to Dr. Kline, 931 Arch St., Phila., Pa. For sale by all druggists; call on you

STATE OF MINNESOTA, } ss.
COUNTY OF POLK. }

The State of Minnesota, to Edward Arneson Defendant.

You are hereby summoned to be and appear before the undersigned, one of the Justices o the Peace in and for said County, on the first day of December 1892 at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at my office in the City of Crookston in said County, to answer to T. B. Maurland in a a civil action. Should you fail to appear at the time and place aforesaid, judgement will be rendered against you upon the evidence adduced by said T. B. Maurland for such sum as he shall show himself entitled to.

Given under my hand this 29th day of October 1892.

STEENERSON & STANTON, Atty's for Plff.s
C. O. CHRISTIANSON, Justice of the Peace.
[29-31]

Lane's Medicine Moves the Bowels Each Day. In order to be healthy this is necessary.

CITY ELECTION.

Complete Report of all the Votes Cast in the City Last Tuesday.

The Republicans Gain 151 Over the Vote Cast for Merriam Two Years Ago.

The Democrats Gain 105 and the People's Party lose 157

The People's Party County Ticket Elected With one Exception.

Both the republicans and democrats are gratified with the result of last Tuesday's election in the city. Both made gains over their vote of two years ago, the republicans 151 and the democrats 105. The people's party show a loss of 157. The fact that the republicans made such a magnificent gain in spite of the disreputable tactics of the democrats, is doubly gratifying and shows what the republicans could do if they were thoroughly organized and had a fair show. Except in one precinct the republicans failed to take advantage of the provision in the law which allows each political party running candidates to have a challenger at each polling place. But the democrats were alive to the situation and had challengers at each polling place, and in some wards—notably the First and Fourth—almost every Scandinavian voter who presented himself was changelled by these democratic censors of the ballot box—presumably on the grounds that they thought every Scandinavian was going to vote for Nelson. Scandinavians were challenged right and left, and made to swear in their vote, or were rejected altogether and thus a great deal of time was wasted, and when the polls were closed there were men waiting for a chance to vote. Many Scandinavians who went to vote in the First ward were unable to speak or understand the English language very well, and when they saw how hard it was for a Scandinavian to cast a vote left the polling place without voting. But in spite of all this the republicans made a gain of 151 votes over the vote cast for Merriam two years ago, and are naturally feeling satisfied.

The cold weather made a good many stay-at-home votes among the republicans, as the register will show.

Much dissatisfaction was expressed with the Australian ballot, one objection being that it was too cumbersome, another was that the great object sought to be accomplished—secrecy—was not carried out. Voters were allowed to call in any elector to mark his ballot, and so the voter marked his ballot as the person called in directed him to do. If everybody understood the ballot, and were able to vote intelligently, the Australian ballot would be an ideal ballot.

The indications are that the entire people's party county ticket will be elected, with the exception of G. H. Palmer, republican, for court commissioner, and Henry Shepard, democrat, for coroner.

Kelso for congress has a majority in the city, with Henry Feig second. John McKinnon, for the legislature, and Ira B. Mills for district judge, ran like wildfire. Frank Ives ran behind his ticket more than was expected.

V. D. Carruth for county superintendent polled a handsome vote in the city, outside of the ladies' vote, which was considerable. It was amusing to see some of the ladies come into the polling places, secure their ballot, mark it, fold it up, and then start home with it. The judges had to watch them closely and call some of them back to keep them from carrying their ballots away. This wasn't owing to a lack of intelligence, but because they got rattled.

In the Third ward the judges and clerks of election got through canvassing the vote about 2 o'clock Wednesday morning; in the Second ward it was about 4 p. m. Wednesday; in the First about 6 o'clock, and in the Fourth about 8 o'clock before they had the votes thoroughly canvassed, the judges and clerks were almost worn out by their long and tedious labors.

There is one thing certain, better accommodations should be provided for voting—more booths should be provided and more judges of election retained. It has been suggested that instead of this two polling places be provided in large wards like the First, Second and Fourth.

THE VOTE IN THE CITY.

	1ST WARD.	2ND WARD.	3D WARD.	4TH WARD.	5TH WARD.
Harrison Electors—
John S. Carlson	73	66	43	125	11
Patrick Fox	64	63	34	116	9
Archibald D. Gray	66	62	39	117	8
Ebenezer C. Huntington	65	62	39	116	8
Samuel P. Jennison	64	62	40	115	8
Ernest L. Hospes	65	62	39	116	8
Henry F. Brown	65	62	39	117	8
William E. Culkin	65	60	39	115	8
Hugh W. Donaldson	67	62	39	117	8
Bidwell Electors—
Hugh Harrison	7	6	1	18	4
Martin Mahoney	8	3		16	4
James E. Childs	9	4		17	3
S. S. Johnson	8	4		18	3
A. T. Conley	7	3		18	3
C. B. Marshall	6	4		17	3
Frank Peterson	6	8		17	3
David Murdock	6	4		16	3
B. B. Haugan	6	4		18	3
Cleveland Electors—
Robert A. Smith	77	90	58	110	10
Benjamin F. Nelson	74	83	49	105	10
David N. Jones	77	84	47	101	10
William Quinn	73	83	48	101	9
Martin Shea	71	84	48	102	9
Weaver Electors—
H. W. Norton	23	33	10	34	4
Peter McGrath	20	33	9	34	5
Ole H. Thoen	23	33	10	34	4
E. F. Clark	21	31	8	32	5
C. E. M. Brown	23	31	8	33	4
Fusion Electors—
Wm. Meighen	83	100	45	119	13
A. L. Stromberg	81	98	44	114	12
James Dillon	81	93	42	113	13
A. H. Holloway	79	91	41	113	12
Governor—
Ignatius Donnelly	40	44	11	45	7
Daniel W. Lawler	83	94	53	106	10
William J. Dean	5	3	2	13
Knute Nelson	69	57	40	121	7
Lieut. Governor—
Swan Nelson	43	33	17	42	6
H. H. Hawkins	70	84	45	100	10
Ole Kron	9	6	4	15	4
David M. Clough	59	55	33	120	6
Secretary of State—
Henry B. Martin	42	38	16	43	5
Peter Nelson	72	87	42	91	9
H. H. Aaker	12	4	6	16	5
F. P. Brown	57	55	37	121	7
State Treasurer—
Peter M. Ringdal	67	47	25	65	6
Joseph Leicht	70	80	42	91	9
D. H. Evans	4	3	2	18	3
Joseph Bobleter	46	57	32	111	5
Attorney General—
John L. MacDonald	48	39	14	44	4
John C. Nethaway	70	84	47	100	9
Robert Taylor	8	4	4	15	3
H. W. Childs	56	60	33	121	8
Associate Judge Supreme Court—
Wm. N. Davidson	40	46	20	47	3
Daniel Buck	90	105	45	117	13
Thomas Canly	99	93	50	111	12
Wm. Mitchell	100	99	58	165	19
Daniel A. Dickinson	54	42	34	118	9
C. E Vanderburgh	53	43	33	115	11
Amendment to Article four—
Yes		45	41	92	4
No		34	33		7
Amendment to Sec. three of Article nine—
Yes		33	31	53	5
No		40	48	97	7
Congressman, 7th District.
H. E. Boen	46	36	17	50	5
Henry Feig	50	63	30	117	9
F. L. Hampson	11	7	4	15	2
W. F. Kelso	75	82	46	107	8
Representative, 51st Sen. Dist.—
J. D. Knuteson	45	47	20	58	10
B. M. Chesley	41	46	15	49	8
Hans Juelson	40	38	17	49	4
Halvor Steenerson	67	68	37	133	5
Lars E. Nordby	46	46	27	88	3
Peter Ramstad	41	48	22	99	8
And. Thompson	10	14	8	26	6
H. O. Rask	4	7	7	14	4
John R. McKinnon	102	106	61	148	13
Judge, 14th Judicial Dist.—
Ira B. Mills	107	110	72	177	15
Frank Ives	67	50	18	83	6
County Auditor—
C. U. Webster	58	54	28	82	8
W. A. Lanctot	83	63	47	140	10
J. M. Hanson	43	68	28	68	7
County Treasurer
J. T. Beaudry	105	89	49	148	14
Lewis Lohn	58	56	35	109	6
Register of Deeds—
J. Amundson	68	57	31	94	8
Nic Nelson	44	50	26	90	5
Adam Zeh	67	78	41	94	10
County Attorney—
A. R. Holston	57	42	12	59	4
Ira C. Richardson	51	57	46	120	9
P. G. Falardeau	72	86	41	105	10
Sheriff—
Arne Grundysen	63	52	32	86	6
Jas. M. Bain	34	37	14	75	6
A. C. Schmidt	94	110	59	126	14
Judge of Probate—
Frank Montague	88	114	64	154	10
C. M. Benson	94	69	28	108	11
Supt. of Schools—
A. A. Lommen	57	46	30	109	4
V. D. Carruth	129	126	103	272	52
Surveyor—
George Ralph	104	58	62	181	14
O. L. Hamery	67	96	27	75	8
Court Commissioner—
G. H. Palmer	91	93	60	177	11
W. H. Averill	69	70	36	89	11
Coroner—
George Holt	103	75	60	176	16
Henry Shephard	61	96	40	101
County Com'r, 3d Dist.—
Chris Hanson	45	48	20	57	3
E. D. Childs	45	38	22	97	18
M. E. Kirsch	90	98	58	189	4

In the first ward although the vote was 100 short of the registration, the judges were kept busy all day and it would have bothered them to have taken the entire vote had it been offered. This was owing in a great degree to the challenging—which in a great many cases was entirely needless and only resulted in wasting time—in fact it seemed in a majority of cases that the only object sought was to waste time in order to prevent a full vote being taken.

If you want a watch that will keep absolutely correct time, call on Saake, the Robert street jeweler He has that kind of a watch and it don't cost a farm to buy one, either. In fact, for anything in jewelry, call on Saake.

The train from the west on the Great Northern road that should have reached here on Saturday night did not arrive until 8 o'clock on Monday morning.

Saake has a full supply of jewelry of every description and invites the inspection of JOURNAL readers. Call early for choice as it goes off like hot cakes. SAAKE, THE JEWELER.

Texas Returns.

AUSTIN, Tex., Nov. 9.—Democrats in this state were badly divided on state issues and the result is still in doubt. The party was united on the presidential ticket, so that Cleveland will have an old-time majority. In 1888 Cleveland had 145,000 majority.

IT WAS A LANDSLIDE.

Democrats Have Evidently Elected Elected Their National Ticket by a Safe Majority.

NEW YORK GIVES THEM A GOOD START,

And Other States, Including Illinois and Indiana, Fall in Line.

THE PEOPLE'S PARTY WEAK.

WEDNESDAY, Nov. 9.

The St. Paul Pioneer Press says: The elections Tuesday resulted unmistakably in the election of Cleveland and Stevenson. Cleveland carried New York, Indiana, New Jersey, Connecticut and Illinois, as well as the solid South, and perhaps Wisconsin also. Weaver, latest reports indicate, has carried Nebraska and Nevada, and perhaps Kansas. According to the returns as they now stand, Cleveland has upwards of 250 of the 444 electoral votes.

WEDNESDAY, Nov. 9.

The New York Tribune, Republican, says:

Returns from many states are not yet complete enough for basing results, but there are strong probabilities that Harrison and Reid are defeated.

New York state is Democratic by not less than 80,000 and has elected a Democratic assembly. New Jersey has probably gone for Cleveland by from 5,000 to 8,000, but Kean, Rep., claims his election as governor.

Connecticut is believed to be Democratic by a plurality above 10,000 on the presidential ticket, with the governorship and legislature in doubt.

Indiana is claimed by both parties by a small plurality.

Congress is Democratic by a large majority.

FROM DEMOCRATIC AUTHORITY.

WEDNESDAY, Nov. 9.

The Sun, Democratic, says:

The election resulted in sweeping Democratic victories.

Mr. Cleveland was elected president and a Democratic house of representatives was chosen.

Some of the features of the election were the great majorities rolled up by New York and Brooklyn, overcoming the majorities in the Republican strongholds in the interior.

In the South the third party cut a sorry figure, their most crushing defeat, perhaps, being in Georgia, where Tom Watson was beaten by 4,000 by his Democratic opponent. Not a third party congressman was elected in Georgia.

ILLINOIS.

Democrats Claim the State by 8,000 to 10,000—Also Twelve Congressmen.

CHICAGO, Nov. 9.—The returns from Illinois are still incomplete, but all indications point to the carrying of the state by Cleveland and Stevenson by a plurality of from 8,000 to 10,000. The entire Democratic state ticket is also elected and shows a majority for the congressional delegation and have apparently gained control of both branches of the state legislature. The Republicans, while generally conceding the state to Cleveland and the Democratic state ticket, still insist there is a possibility of Republican supremacy in the lower house of the general assembly. It is probable that the Democrats will retain their majority in the congressional delegation. There is no doubt of the election of the Democratic candidates for congressmen-at-large and the indications are that in addition to the election of John C. Black and Andrew J. Hunter the Democrats have elected twelve other congressmen.

INDIANA.

The Vote in the State Very Close—Both Sides Claim It.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 9.—Both parties are claiming Indiana. The vote in the state is close. Secretary Reilly, of the Democratic state committee, makes a statement acquiesced in by Chairman Taggart, that Cleveland will have the state by 5,000. This is based upon returns from county chairmen. Republican state headquarters were not open until late. Chairman Gowdy arose with the impression that the state had gone for Harrison. He will not concede that the Democrats have it. The legislature is Democratic and they probably have elected eight congressmen with a possibility of one more. Returns are not entirely satisfactory because the count is so close. The Republican gains over 18 have been constant and if maintained would give the state to Harrison by a few hundred. There are 2,995 precincts in the state. The gain must be seven to the precinct over 1890 to give Indiana to the Republicans.

MICHIGAN.

Republicans Elect the State Ticket and All but Six Electors.

DETROIT, Nov. 9.—In Michigan the Republicans carry the state for Rich for governor by 8,000, the whole Republican ticket having the same majority. The probabilities are that the Republicans have the legislature, though the Democratic and Populist fusion may give them a majority. On congressional districts the following are elected:

First, Chipman, Democrat; Second, Gorman, Democrat; Third, Burrows, Republican; Fourth, Thomas, Republican; Fifth, Richardson, Democrat; Sixth, Aitken, Republican; Seventh, Whiting, Democrat; Eighth, Linton, Republican; Ninth, Wheeler, Democrat, probably elected; Tenth, both sides claim congressmen; Eleventh, disputed by both parties; Twelfth, Republican elected.

Cleveland gets the Eastern, First, Second, Third, Fifth and Ninth electoral districts.

Wayne county, in which Detroit, a Democratic city, is located, elects possibly one Democratic county officer. All others are elected by Republicans by majorities of from 2,000 to 6,000.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Seventy-five Thousand Majority for Harrison and All but Nine Congressmen.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 9.—Pennsylvania has gone for Harrison and Reid—the returns at this hour indicating that the majority will not be less than 75,000 and more complete returns may make it considerably larger. The Republican state ticket, including John Deane for justice of the supreme court and William Tilly and Alexander McDowell for congressmen at large, has received about the same majority. An important part of the Republican victory in the state is the election of twenty-one congressmen out of a total of thirty. The legislature is also strongly Republican, the majority on joint ballot promising from the returns so far received to range from 85 to 90.

OHIO.

Harrison's Majority Probably 30,000. Fifteen Republican Congressmen.

COLUMBUS, Nov. 9. — The returns come in very slowly from Ohio, the necessary slowness in counting the blanket ballots making the reports unusually late, but from all points come news of Republican gains, only a few precincts showing Democratic gains. Indications from these meager returns are that Harrison has carried the state with a plurality between 25,000 and 30,000. S. M. Taylor, Republican candidate for secretary of state, defeats W. A. Taylor, Democratic candidate, by the same plurality. Democratic congressmen are elected in six districts and the indications are that the Republicans elected the fifteen other members of the Ohio delegation.

The Democratic state committee and W. A. Taylor, Democratic candidate for secretary of state, concede Ohio to Harrison by not less than 15,000. S. M. Taylor, Republican, for secretary of state, claims that the Republican plurality in this state will be 30,000.

NEW YORK.

Cleveland's Majority in the Empire State Over Thirty Thousand.

BROOKLYN, Nov. 9.—Kings county complete with seven wards in Brooklyn estimated gives Cleveland a plurality of 94,475.

Total in New York City.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—The total vote for president in New York city with three election districts missing is Cleveland, 174,884; Harrison, 99,100. Plurality for Cleveland 75,100.

Claims the State by 40,000.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 9.—Governor Flower claims the state by over 40,000.

NEW JERSEY.

Cleveland's Plurality Estimated at About 7,000.

TRENTON, Nov. 9.—The New Jersey returns are scattering and meagre at midnight. It is estimated that Cleveland has carried the state by 7,000 plurality. The result of the gubernatorial contest is in doubt. H. S. Loundenstager, Rep., for congress in the First district, and Judge Gardner in the Second are elected. J. Gardiner, Rep., in the Third district is elected. The complexion of the legislature is in doubt.

THE PALACE CAR.

WHAT IT COSTS AND HOW IT IS USUALLY EQUIPPED.

A Combination Hotel on Wheels in One Car or a Train of Several Cars—If You Have the Money You Can Take Your Ease—Linen for Palace Cars.

It costs only $50 a day to hire a completely furnished and palatial dwelling house on wheels, containing seventeen beds. In front is an "observation room." Next come two drawing rooms, both fairly spacious. Behind these is a dining room twelve feet long. The middle part of the car is occupied by berths, which are comfortable sofas during the day. In the rear are a good sized kitchen, a china closet, a pantry, a bathroom and a cold storage closet. All linen for table and beds, tableware, crockery and every other necessary are supplied. Three servants are provided also without extra charge—a skilled cook, a waiter and a porter, who are under the orders of a tenant. Heating and lighting are thrown in. After ten days the rental is five dollars less per diem. Thus luxuriously housed, the occupant can travel wherever he wishes all over the continent by paying the railways eighteen fares for transportation. However, if more than eighteen passengers are carried in the car, so many extra fares must be paid. He can stop at whatever points he desires and have his car side tracked, making his home in it during his stay.

If he chooses he can bring along his own servants, linen, tableware and wines. He is at liberty to furnish the commissariat himself, or the company will supply everything in that way for him, charging only 15 per cent. over and above cost and rendering to him the bills. The latter is by far the better plan, inasmuch as trouble is saved and affairs are attended to more satisfactorily by the company, which understands the business and can buy food cheaper besides. The cook is always a capable person, and, having a time schedule for a journey across the continent, he will telegraph ahead to various points for such luxuries as may be obtainable at the markets in different cities, thus arranging for fresh fruits, butter and eggs, and even for a newly cut bouquet to be put on the table every morning at breakfast. All of this is susceptible of variation. One can engage an ordinary sleeping car for $40, a sleeping car with buffet for $45, or dining and observation car combined for $40. A hunting car, provided with kennels for dogs, racks for guns, fishing tackle, etc., costs only $35 a day. Service and all incidentals are in every case thrown in.

But one can do better than this if he has plenty of money to spare. He can hire a complete traveling hotel for $210 a day, in the shape of an entire train, consisting of four sleeping cars, a dining car and a buffet smoker. An observation car may be added at an expense of $40 more. The buffet smoker represents in some respects the highest development of the modern parlor car. It includes a bar, a barber shop, a bathroom and a library, wherein can be found books, writing materials and the newest magazines and pictorial and daily papers.

In short, it is a small club on wheels. There is no other country in the world where luxury in traveling is so highly appreciated as it is in the United States. Abroad it is said that the only people who go by rail "first class" are the nobility and the Americans. Of course the person who charters a whole train must pay the railways for transportation at least eighteen fares per car, though west of the Mississippi the minimum rate is usually fifteen fares. No car can be rented for the prices above given for less than three days.

It has recently become the fashion for actresses to travel in private cars. Nowadays a conspicuous star usually insists on being provided with such a conveyance as part of the contract for the tour which she signs with her manager. Bernhardt always carries a small menagerie with her, which could not very well be accommodated in a public vehicle. Theatrical companies very commonly hire one or more cars while traveling, that being a convenient and agreeable method of transportation.

Dining cars are usually owned by the railways and are managed by the palace car companies. Ordinarily they are run at a considerable loss, being attached to trains merely as an attraction to passengers. The expense of conducting them is enormous.

Arrangements made between the palace car companies and the railways regarding sleeping cars vary very much. Sometimes the latter pay as much as two or three cents a mile for the use of each sleeper, where, as is particularly apt to be the case in the south, the passenger traffic is not sufficient to repay the car companies. In such cases a railroad is often obliged to provide the necessary convenience at a loss to itself. The item of washing is a very costly one in the running of sleeping cars, inasmuch as no piece of linen is ever used twice without going to the laundry. A sleeper, on leaving New York for Chicago or St. Louis, receives a "stock" of 120 linen sheets, 120 pillowslips and 120 towels. This gives change for two nights. Fifteen or twenty clean towels are always kept on the washstand. The washing is done in New York, Boston, Buffalo, Chicago, St. Louis and other cities, being given out in great quantities at the low rate of one dollar per hundred pieces. An equipment of linen lasts about one year, at the end of which it must be renewed. It is purchased by wholesale—$50,000 worth at a time.—Philadelphia Times.

The Snail's Eyes.

The little black spots on the end of the snail's horns are the animal's eyes. He can see with them very little, but they serve to distinguish for him light from darkness and enable him to observe objects at a distance of an inch or two.—Exchange.

NORTHWESTERN College OF Commerce

GRAND FORKS, - - - - - - NORTH DAKOTA.

THE GREAT CHAIN OF BUSINESS COLLEGES under the above name offers facilities superior to any school in the Northwest for obtaining a Practical Education. Four Courses, Commercial, Shorthand and Typewriting, Ornamental Penmanship and English. Students receive personal instruction and can enter at any time and take just such studies as they desire. Evening School now in session. Good board $2.00 per week. TUITION REASONABLE.
Three thousand Handsome Catalogues for Free Distribution. Send for one.
Write for particulars.

H. L. RUCKER, President. J. J. SWENGEL, Principal.

Crookston Business College.

and INSTITUTE OF SHORTHAND.

DEPARTMENTS:—Commercial Shorthand, Typewriting and English.

TEACHERS:—Benj. A. Strawbridge, J. M. Latham and L. E. Gossman.

Summer Term began Monday, June 6th, 1892. Fall Term begins Monday, October 3rd, 1892. Send for new Catalogue.

CROOKSTON BUSINESS COLLEGE, Crookston, Minn.

Schmidt, the Painter,

—CARRIES A FULL AND COMPLETE STOCK OF—

PAINTS,
OILS AND
VARNISHES.

—ALSO A FULL AND COMPLETE LINE OF—

☞ WALL PAPER. ☜

Painting in all its branches, and Paper Hanging artistically done.

Call at the Shop on Broadway.

TRY PEAKE,

THE MAIN STREET HARNESS MAKER,

FOR BARGAINS.

CHRISTIANSON BROS.,

Abstracters of Title, Loans, Real Estate and Insurance:

N. B. FARM LOANS a specialty. Terms, three to five years. Lowest rate of interest, payable annually at our office.

☞ Choice FARM LANDS for sale cheap, on terms to suit purchasers. ☜

Office on Robert Street, - - - - CROOKSTON, MINN

NEW FEED MILL

CHRIS. ANDERSON, Prop.

I desire to annouce to the farmers ot Polk County that I have rented the

LAURENCE BUILDING, ON MAIN STEERT.

Next to Brown's New Livery Stable, and am now prepared to grind feed of all kinds promptly. You can get your feed in two hours after you bring me your grain. Prices Reasonable

Try My New Mill!

McKINNON BROS.,

—DEALERS IN—

ALL OF THE LEADING

Agricultural Implements

MAIN STREET. McKINNON BLOCK.

☞ Before Purchasing, Give Us a Call. ☜

You Can Buy Reliable

AGRICULTURAL MACHINERY

—OF—

SYLVESTER & FINSETH,

—CHEAPER AND BETTER—

Than anywhere. We handle Buckeye and Osborne Binders with all extras for same, and Twine. Buckeye and Imperial Mowers with extras. Buckeye and Monitor Rakes, Eli, Oliver and Bradley Gang Plows, Stubble and Breaking Plows, the Standard Rotary Shuttle Sewing Machine, Nichols & Shepard New Vibrator Threshing Machine. Also the Jackson, Mitchell and Favorite Wagons, the Enterprise Buggies, Spring Wagons and Carts on all of which we can undersell Grand Forks and other places. We also carry everything that can be had in any first class Hardware Store and invite everybody to call and see us at the corner of Broadway and Fletcher Sts.

SYLVESTER & FINSETH, Crookston, Minn.

Town Clerks.

The following is a list of the town clerks for the several towns in Polk county:

Andover,	E M Bivins	Crookston
Augus.	A B Carleton	Angus
Black River,	P A Eckstrom	Wylie
Bray,	Albert Wickstrom	Wylie
Badger'	P N Savalrud	Sletten
Brandsvold.	Ole Nellon	Fosston
Belgium,	Henry Biever	Euclid
Bris'et,	A P Frank	Warren
Bygland,	Thos. Benson	Fisher
Crookston,	E O Flanders	Crookston
Crookston, city,	E C Caaruth,	Crookston
Columbia,	R H Carr	Columbia
Chester,	O J Mattson	Lindsay
Emardville,	Peter Anderson	Emard
Euclid,	F Tiedt, Jr.,	Euclid
Eden,	Neri A Skeie	Olga
Fairfax,	Wm Himmelsback	Crookston
Farley,	Mark Congnon	Warren
Fanny,	Walter Latta	Buffington
Fisher,	Halvor Gunderson	Fisher
Fisher, vil.,	John Gleason	Fisher
Gd Forks,	John Mc oy	E.G Forks
Gd Forks, city,	John McCoy	E G Forks
Garfield,	Iver J Ingebretson	Fertile
Garden,	John Hanson	Ringdal
Gentilly,	H F Goudron,	Gentilly
Gervais,	John Deforge	R L Falls
Grove Park,	E E Abbott	Mentor
Goderey,	D T Mitchell,	Maple Bay
Hammond,	Ernest Hanna	Caookston
Higdem,	Ole Hendrickson	E G Forks
Hill River,	Fred S Syeverson	Lindsay
Huntsville,	O Osmundson	Mallory
Hubbard,	Frank Hanson,	Neilsville
Keystone,	D E Geddes	E G Forks
Kerlsonville,	Fred Benoit	Gentilly
King,	K C Norsving	McIntosh
Knute,	O H Dale	Erskine
Lake Pleasant,	Jos Perrault	R L Falls
Lambert,	Samuel Gebcan,	Lamber
Liberty,	Nelson Clementson	Fertile
Lessor,	H &elgeson	Ovetia
Lowell,	Ole Christianson,	Crookston
Louisville,	Louis Huot	Huot
Nesbit,	Robert Nesbit	Mallory
Norden,	O J Tweet	Tweet
North,	S TJohnson	T R Falls
Numedal,	Olaf Larson	Warren
Onsted,	W A Marin	Melvin
Parnell,	Thos Filban	Crookston
Poplar River,	J B Hebert	Brooks
Polk Centre,	Wm Wylie.	Wylie
Queen,	Hans L Houkom	Fosston
R L F, village,	August Herard,	R L Falls
Ked Lake Falls,	Ildaig Baril	R L Falls
Reis,	D C Hallock	Edna
River Falls,	K C Gigstad	St. Hilaire
Rocksbury,	P Englestad	St. Hilaire
Roome,	P Boukon	Neby
Rosebud,	M E Randkler	Fosston
Russia,	Orens Simmons	Crookston
Sanders,	Nils K Anderson	St. Hilair
Sandsville.	Henry Nelson	E G Forkse
St. Hilaire,	L J Johnson	St. Hilaire
Sletten,	Ingebret Larson	Winger
Sullivan,	P A Hotvedt	E G Forks
Tabor,	F J Cernousek	Tabor
Terrebonne,	Edonor Perruse	Terrebonne
Tilden,	S J Furan	Dugdale
Tynsid,	A O Stortroen	Neby
Vineland,	John Thompson	Neby
Winger,	Albert Johnson	Winger
Woodside,	Joseph Tagley	Woodside
Wyandotte,	O J Johnson	St. Hilaire
Rhinehart,	Oscar Winck	E G Forks
Thief River Falls	C J Knox	T R Falls

GREAT NORTHERN Railway TIME CARD.

MONTANA EXPRESS—Daily.

West		East
7:40p m De.	St Paul	Ar. 6:55 a m
2:50 a m "	Fergus Falls	" 11:25 p m
4:47 a m "	Glyndon	" 9:36 p m
7:20 a m "	CROOKSTON	" 7:25 p m
8:40 a m "	Grand Forks	" 6:20 p m
9:45 a m "	Larimore	" 5:06 p m
2: 1 p m, "	Devils Lake	" 2:55 a m
7:00 p m Ar.	Butte	De. 7:30 a m

ST. VINCENT BRANCH—Daily except Sunday
Depart 7:30 a m — Arrive 6:30 p m

FOSSTON BRANCH—Tues., Thurs. and Sat.
Depart 8:00 a m — Arrive 5:30 p m

ST. HILAIRE BRANCH—Monday Wed. & Friday.
Depart 10:45 a m — Arrive 4:30 p m

GRAND FORKS' ACCOMMODATION.
Arrive 9:50 a m — Depart 7:55 p m

The scenic route to Spokane, Helena, and Butte on the west, and St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth and West Superior on the east. Dining and sleeping cars on all through trains. Tickets on sale to all principal places. Baggage checked through to destination.

W. W. FEGAN, Agent.

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.

TIME SCHEDULE.

	Leave Crookston Daily.	Arrive Crookston Daily.
For Duluth, Ashland, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Chicago, and all points East and South..............	7:05 p. m.	8:27 a. m.
For Grand Forks, Grafton, Pembina, Winnipeg and points in N. Dakota and Winnipeg........	8:27 a. m.	7:05 p.

NORTHERN PACIFIC R.R.

THE

Great Transcontinental Route

Passes through Wisconsin, Minnesota North Dakota, Manitoba, Montana, Idaho, Oregon and Washington.

The Dining Car Line

Dining cars are run between Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Winnipeg, Butte, Helena, Tacoma, Seattle and Portland.

PULLMAN SLEEPING CAR ROUTE.

Pullman service daily between Chicago, St. Paul, Montana and the Pacific Northwest; and between St. Paul, Minneapolis and Minnesota, North Dakota and Manitoba points.

THE POPULAR LINE.

Daily Express Trains carry elegant Pullman Sleeping Cars, Dining Cars, Day Coaches, Pullman Tourist Sleepers and Free Colonist Sleeping Cars.

YELLOWSTONE PARK ROUTE.

The Northern Pacific R. R. is the rail line to Yellowstone Park; the popular line to California and Alaska; and its trains pass through the grandest scenery of seven states.

THROUGH TICKETS

Are sold at all coupon offices of the Northern Pacific Railroad to points North, East, South and West, in the United States and Canada.

For rates, maps, time tables, or special information, apply to

CHAS. A. SHARKEY,
Agent Northern Pacific R. R.,
Crookston, Minn.

CHAS. S. FEE,
Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent,
St. Paul, Minn.

We Have too many SHOES

WE MUST SELL A GOOD MANY

SHOES

This fall as we cannot afford to keep them over the next season. We have therefore decided for the next

Three Weeks

TO SLAUGHTER OUR SHOE STOCKS

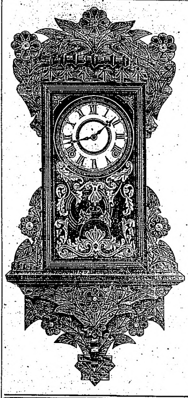
At both our Robert street and Main street stores. All are urged to

TAKE ADVANTAGE

and supply themselves with SHOES At a saving of 25 per cent.

Yours Respectfully,

LOCKEN & HOLMBOE,



THE BIGGEST VALUE For the Money IN THE WORLD

Saake's Jewelry Store.

Eight Day, Strike, Alarm Clocks, only $4.85

Every one warranted by special certificate for Five Years.

Don't Wait, but Buy Now.

Remember!

This beats everybody's Prices.

Work Horses - - and Mares.

FOR GOOD, SOLID WORK HORSES and MARES, go to

M. R. BROWN,

The old reliable dealer, who has sold horses in this county since 1878, and who is always on hand to make his guaranty good. Every man who ever sold horses here is ready (when he sells) to guaranty, but later, if you happen to want him to make his guaranty good you can't most always sometimes find him ready to make his recommend good. He handles only good young horses and has sold more than any dealer in the county. He is now prepared to supply the demand for good teams—he handles no other—and guaranty them just as recommended. Before you buy you will do well to call at

Brown's New Stables,

Main Street, one door north of the old M. E. church building.

U. S. LAND OFFICE.
Crookston, Minn., October 11th, 1892.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register or Receiver U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn, on Nov 28th, 1892, viz: Henry Huot, Hd. No. 12,003, for the ne¼ sw¼ and lots 4, 5 and 6, Tp. 151, R. 45. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Joseph Pepin, Joseph Boivin, Narcisse Mircault, Paul Mathew, all of Huot P. O., Minn.

[26-31] HUGH THOMPSON, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE.
Crookston, Minn., October 24th, 1892.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register or Receiver U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on December 12th, 1892, viz: John Sensel, Hd. No. 12,546, for the w½ nw¼ and w½ sw¼ Sec. 12, Tp. 149, R. 43. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land viz: Rudolf Wadekamper, Peter Toupin, David Robinson, Wentzel Luxemburger, all of Mentor, Polk county, Minn.

[28-33] HUGH THOMPSON, Register.

IF YOU ARE GOING EAST OR SOUTH ASK YOUR NEAREST AGENT FOR TICKETS VIA THE BURLINGTON AND TAKE NO OTHER LINE.

If you want a

STOVE OR RANGE

—FOR WOOD OR Coal, see the—

FAMOUS BRAND STOVE

FAMOUS
Stoves AND Ranges

AT ALDERMAN & SYLVESTER'S.

They are the finest line of stoves ever brought to Crookston, and are sold at

REASONABLE PRICES.

AMAZONIAN FLOODS.

FEATURES OF THE ANNUAL DELUGE OF THE GREAT RIVER.

Then the "Wild Hog River" Becomes a Paradise of the Swamp Loving Brutes. Floating Islands Filled with Refugees of the Brute Creation.

The worst inundations of Louisiana and eastern Arkansas are but spring freshets compared with the monster floods that visit the Amazon valley every year with a regularity equaled only by astronomical events and tax collections. The rainfall of northern Brazil is about three times that of the webfootiest counties of Oregon, and in midsummer the thunder showers that drench the woods every afternoon resemble a daily cloudburst. On the Northern Pacific no other word would be applied to an atmospheric waterfall, darkening the air like a London winter fog for hours together, and swamping a house, if the roof should leak, through an aperture of a few square inches.

Rains of that sort are apt to occur day after day for a series of weeks, and their effect on the lowlands can be only imperfectly indicated by the fact that the Amazon river drains an area of more than 2,000,000 square miles. The Mississippi, too, drains half the eastern slope of a country larger than Brazil; but its largest affluents are dwarfed by the third class tributaries of the South American father of waters.

Not such flowing lakes only as the Rio Negro and the Madera, but the Purus, the Yavari, the Qurua, the Hingo, the Papajos and dozens of other streams rarely mentioned on this side of the isthmus, enter the main river through a delta miles in width and deep enough for the largest river steamers of the St. Lawrence.

About the middle of summer these streams begin to rise, those from the southwest first, those from the northwest and north a few weeks later, and a fortnight after the arrival of the second, supplement the valley of the Maranon, the "wild hog river," as the early colonists called the Amazon, becomes a paradise of swamp loving brutes. The tapis, the peccari and the fish otter celebrate the picnic season of their summer life, and herds of wild deer begin their westward exodus. Near Monte Beira, in the province (now state) of Matto Grosso, the woods in midsummer get full of game as a hundred years ago the foothills of the Southern Alleghanies swarmed with wild pigeons when the forests of the north were buried in snow.

A more than usually sudden rise of the flood cuts off many of these fugitives, who are thus reduced to the alternative of making for the highest accessible ground, further east, till every knoll becomes a hill of refuge, crowded with timid brutes whose survival depends on their escape from the giant cats and boas who may approach their stronghold by swimming, if the water should have submerged too large a portion of the continuous forest.

About two months after the beginning of the rainy season the deluge of the lowlands reaches its maximum. Thousands of square miles are submerged so effectually that canoes can be paddled through forests apparently free from underbrush, since only the taller trees, with their network of climbing vines, rise like islands above the surging waters. The swollen rivers have found new currents; the broad gurgling streams twist and eddy through the leafy wilderness, tearing off whole groups of trees, with all their roots, but making amends by depositing hillocks of driftwood, which soon get covered with tufts of new vegetation.

The pressure of the surging flood against these mounds of alluvium soon becomes enormous, but the deep rooted stems of the adansonia and the canolio tree may resist till new deposits of driftwood consolidate a number of mounds, thus forming good sized islands, with a down stream base of perhaps half a mile, but a narrow head deflecting the current left and right, like the wedge shaped front of a stout bridge pier. At the time of their incipiency these new islands may be tenanted only by river lizards, but necessity is the mother of successful exploration, as well as of invention, and a week after its birth the driftwood hill swarms with animal refugees, hogs, deer and capybaris jostling each other in their struggle for a base of operations, thus often getting noisy enough to attract the prowling carnivora.

The climbing talent of the great cats saves them the trouble of emigration. The jaguar and the ocelot become entirely arboreal, traveling like monkeys from branch to branch, and making themselves at home in the tree tops—so much indeed that some of them go to housekeeping and raise a litter of cubs in the cavity of a hollow tree.

Their larder is replenished by all sorts of pheasants and wood hens, who make their headquarters in the underbrush, but who are now obliged to take up lodgings on the lower branches of the unsubmerged trees. By climbing around the stem and rising suddenly in view an ocelot can scare a roost of gallinaceous fowl out of their wits and strike down two or three of the clumsy youngsters before the whole flock contrives to take wing.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Securing a Widow.

Young Walter de Umfraville, son of Gilbert, had left a widow, Emma, presumably in the very blush of her charms. Peter de Vaux had fallen at her feet, but he declined to obtain her in border fashion, and this fact is the earnest pledge of the chivalry of his love. If he would not steal her he was bound to buy her, and coin with the de Vaux was always a scarcity. So he offered the king five palfreys for her, "if she wished it," and with what would read as a graceful acknowledgment of the borderer's pure chivalry, John absolutely drops the commercial from his reply and simply orders Robert Fitz Roger, the sheriff, "to permit it to be done."—Gentleman's Magazine.

Glaciers.

Glaciers plunge into the sea in many cold countries and perish by drowning, their dismembered remains floating away as bergs. But their end is by dissolution where the annual mean temperature rises considerably above the freezing point. At some certain level they melt faster than they can flow, and so terminate.

The level indeed is a fluctuating one. Icelandic glaciers are now steadily advancing. Swiss glaciers, according to M. Forel, have undergone during the present century five alternating periods of diminution and growth.

The meteorological changes occasioning and emphasized by these oscillations are very slight. Their character, however, is unmistakable, and such as might have been anticipated. That is to say, glacial decrease accompanies a warm and dry cycle; glacial increase, one that is damp and cold.

Without one additional degree of cold it is conceivable that a persistently augmented deposit of snow upon the Gerstenhorner and the Schneestock, although otherwise scarcely perceptible, might enable the Rhone glacier to overwhelm Brieg.

But this would be an exceedingly small step toward the restoration of a former state of things, when an ice stream close upon 250 miles in length, starting from the same source, crossed the frozen or nonexistent lake of Geneva, and debouched by Culoz upon Lyons. Without severe cold as well as heavy precipitation, ice could not possibly have gained so great an ascendancy. And this was no local phenomenon—it was simultaneously prevalent over widely separated tracts of the earth's surface.—Edinburgh Review.

An Ornament to the Profession.

The political orator was just warming up to his subject.

"Gentlemen," he said impressively, "the great party of freedom—the party that has upheld the dignity of the American eagle and strengthened it so that it is now able to flap its wings in the face of the British lion, or any other animal on the European continent—made no mistake when it nominated that able and representative citizen, William Montgomery Blinks, for alderman from this ward. A young man of sterling integrity and progressive ideas, he entered upon the study of law soon after graduating from one of the free schools with which this glorious country is blessed, and upon being admitted to the bar he at once became an ornament to his profession—I beg your pardon, sir, did you say anything?"

"I did," replied the tall, angular man in the back of the hall.

"May I ask you to repeat the remark? I didn't quite catch it."

"I said you were right"——

"Certainly, sir. I am glad you"——

"He's been an ornament to the profession, I suppose, but that's all. He never has been any use to it. And, gentlemen, are we looking for ornaments to put on the ticket?"—Detroit Free Press.

An Architect's Clean Shirt Front.

George Meikle Kemp's indifference to dress is amusingly illustrated by an incident which occurred when he was called upon to attend a committee meeting, in order to discuss the restoration of Glasgow cathedral. He performed the journey from Edinburgh to Glasgow on foot, and on arriving at his destination it occurred to him that a fresh shirt front would freshen his toilet to a sufficient degree.

He bought the article, put it on, and quite satisfied with his immaculate appearance waited on the committee, and then, business dispatched, called upon a relative.

"Why, George," cried that "plain spoken" person, "what have you been doing to your shirt collar? Just look in the glass and see what a fright you are!"

Kemp looked in the mirror and then burst into hearty laughter.

"It does not matter now," he said, "for, fright and all as I am, I hae been among the great folks."

He had forgotten to remove his travel stained collar, and there it appeared, rising majestically above the new and spotless one.—Youth's Companion.

The Tailor Made Suit.

In fitting a cloth suit the modes of fitting peculiar to the tailor are many in number, but good in result. The measurements are numerous; the first fitting is an ordinary cotton lining; the second one a silk lining; the third one the silk and the material; the fourth one the almost finished bodice, which usually needs then only a few mistakes rectified, and there is the finished bodice for the head tailor to see in its entirety. No critic is so severe as is the master of the establishment, and a slight wrinkle will cause him to order the taking apart of the bodice and the making it so that it fits like the proverbial glove. The same care is shown in fitting a skirt, and at the really good tailor's a long train cloth skirt, unless it were for evening or house wear, is not even considered. — Mrs. Mallon in Ladies' Home Journal.

Happiness and the Blues.

I wonder why a girl isn't happy unless she can have the blues once in awhile? Once in a long time one finds an angelic being whose spirits never pass low water mark, and who lives through day after day in a state of the most exasperating cheerfulness till one longs to do something desperate to break the awful calm.

But we never love them as we do the dear, harum scarum people who are blue sky and thunder shower half a dozen times a day. It is such a satisfaction to find out that other people are just real faulty, human creatures like ourselves. —Chicago Inter Ocean.

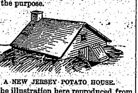
A Timely Protest.

Sarah K. Bolton, through an article in The Independent, utters a timely protest against the wedding present nuisance and extortion. She says—what every sensible person knows and concedes—that wedding presents have come to be a burden, and to a considerable extent simply a matter of pride.

SWEET POTATOES.

Storing and Keeping—A New Jersey Potato House Illustrated.

In Virginia and farther south sweet potatoes are usually kept over winter in pits covered with earth. In states farther north better protection than is afforded by these earth covered pits is required, and therefore, where large crops of sweet potatoes are to be stored, cellars and sweet potato houses are used for the purpose.



A NEW JERSEY POTATO HOUSE.

The illustration here reproduced from the Philadelphia Farm Journal shows a style of sweet potato house in common use in New Jersey. A dry, well drained spot is selected, and a cellar about three feet deep is excavated and a wall of rough stone about six feet high is built. On this a roof is put and the earth banked up to the top of the wall. The roof and ends should be double to keep out the cold. It is better also to have double doors, as indicated in cut. The house should front the southeast and the chimney be put at the cold end. The size of the house will of course depend on the crop to be stored.

Bins are made to hold 20, 50 or 100 barrels. Rough boards and a layer of straw are generally placed in the bottom and against the wall before putting the potatoes in the bin. A small cast iron cylinder coal burning stove is the kind in common use for heating. The fire should be started a few days in advance of storing to dry out the house, and a little be kept burning for a week afterward to dry off the potatoes, as they invariably go through a sweating process. During this time ventilation should be freely given. Afterward just enough fire should be maintained to keep the temperature between 60 and 70 degs. Sweet potatoes to keep well must be stored before heavy frosts kill the vines.

Tile Draining.

In tile draining a good main or outlet is essential to success. Here is an illustrated plan from Ohio Farmer, with a description by one who has tested its efficacy. He says:

I use either five or six inch tile, according to the amount of water to be carried. Lay the main with the natural flow, if practicable, and a foot deeper than the laterals, so as to make the connection on top of the main, giving a free flow. Make the connections perfect, so there will be no earth working through. The accompanying cut shows the arrangement—A is the main, B the connecting arm and C the lateral. A flat stone will close the top of the arm all right. I place laterals about two feet deep, more or less, according to soil, etc., and place them three to seven rods apart, and, if possible, across the natural flow, thereby cutting off surface water more quickly.

OUTLET FOR TILE DRAIN.

In the Poultry Yard.

In reply to the oft repeated query, "How to obtain winter eggs?" the agricultural editor of the New York World says: "Secure pullets hatched in February and March. Keep them in a warm place. Feed with plenty of animal food, green stuff, sound grain, not too much soft food and do not change their surroundings." The Poultry World advises as follows: "Put the pullets that are to produce the eggs during the winter season in the quarters you intend them to occupy, so that they will become accustomed to the buildings and surroundings before winter. Give them the best of care and feed, so that by Nov. 1 they will be in condition to commence laying in dead earnest. Give them free range if possible, and they will pick up the kind of food their systems require much easier than you could supply it for them. The numerous insects that make their appearance this month will prove a luxury for the birds, and will be very beneficial. Give them a good grain diet also each morning and evening; feed oats, wheat, buckwheat and a little corn, varied occasionally by a mash composed of boiled vegetables mixed with bran or shorts."

As the cold weather approaches all growing flocks ought to be culled. It will not pay to feed chickens that do not promise to make well marked pullets and cockerels. The sooner such are disposed of the better the profit will be, says The Fanciers' Journal, which gives this advice: "It is well to keep all growing chickens on unlimited range as long as snow is off the ground, and even the quarters at night should be roomy and well supplied with pure air. A tight shed open only to the south is about as good a place for chickens as we know of, but care should be taken to prevent the depredations of skunks and other vermin."

News and Notes.

Colonel James Wood, of Mount Kisco, N. Y., ex-president of the New York State Agricultural society, will serve as director of the agricultural exhibit of the state of New York at the coming Columbian exposition at Chicago.

The British board of agriculture has issued an order to the effect that in future sheep from the United States will be allowed to land without being subject to slaughter or to quarantine.

Discouraging accounts are made of the results of the harvest in Great Britain.

Dr. Styles, of the bureau of animal industry, describes a new cattle parasite which lives in the follicles of the roots of the hair, and produces disease in the skin of the animal affected.

We are rapidly coming to the conclusion that bees need more ventilation in the cellar than many suppose.

"WORTH A GUINEA A BOX."
BEECHAM'S PILLS
CURE SICK HEADACHE,
Disordered Liver, etc.
They Act Like Magic on the Vital Organs, Regulating the Secretions, restoring long lost Complexion, bringing back the Keen Edge of Appetite, and arousing with the ROSEBUD OF HEALTH the whole physical energy of the human frame. These facts are admitted by thousands, in all classes of society. Largest Sale in the World.
Covered with a Tasteless & Soluble Coating.
Of all druggists. Price 25 cents a box.
New York Depot, 365 Canal St.

FOREIGN.

Charlotte Edgen, Swedish authoress, and wife of Cajanello, died in Naples Monday.

The Irish evicted tenants' commission will begin investigating the first week in November.

There were two fresh cases of cholera and two deaths at Hamburg Friday. It snowed all the afternoon.

Four persons were killed by the collapse of a granary on a farm at Greatford, Lincolnshire, England.

There were thirteen fresh cases of cholera in Hamburg Sunday and three deaths. The hospitals are treating 497 patients.

The Berlin Vossiche Zeitung says that the efforts of Russia to place a four per cent. loan of 400,000,000 francs in Paris has finally collapsed.

The Paris municipal council has devoted 2,000,000 francs to advance wages of street sweepers, sewer men and other municipal employes whose wages are under 5 francs a day.

The weather in the northern and part of eastern England is cold and stormy. In Norfolk the ground is white with snow and snow and hail are falling in the vicinity of the Tyne.

A dispatch from Colonel Dodds, in command of the French force invading Dahomey, states that he has destroyed one-half of King Benhanzin's army, and the remainder are demoralized. About 1,500 Dahomeyans have been killed by the French force in the various encounters.

Thief River Falls Press:—Peter Newman is building a residence and barn on 1st street north.—Evenson Bros. have purchased a new hay press and will busy themselves baling and shipping hay during the winter.—C. Kretzschmar is putting a steam appliance into the Roller Mill O. K. and in addition to steaming the grain before grinding will furnish heat for the institution.—Mrs. A. W. Stebbins and daughter Cornelia arrived in the city yesterday from St. Charles, Minn., and will make their future home among us. Mr. Stebbins' new building is about completed and his family will be settled therein in a few days.—The contract has been let and a greater part of the work done in ditching and grading the swamp road west of this city known as the Tweet road. A few more days work will make this mire hole one of the best graded roads in the country at all times of year and thus give our neighbors on the west an opportunity to reap the benefits of the fine market and bargains offered in this city.—Carl Kretzschmar has succeeded in proving to the people that it takes a German to make a good garden and especially raise a german vegetable. He exhibits, at the post office, an enormous Kohlrabi. The main head or plant is larger than a man's head with 35 smaller heads attached, varying in size from 1 to 5 inches in diameter. The entire head is estimated to weigh 25 pounds. Mr. K. would like to learn of a larger one.—L. J. Columbus, manager of the Grand Opera house, Crookston, was in the city yesterday and arranged for the appearance of a first class company of players to give three performances here on the 21st and 22nd inst. Let our citizens turn out and while being handsomely entertained will encourage other attractions in coming this way.

About Silver.

The most generally diffused metal in the world is silver. The waters of the ocean hold it, in bulk not at all to be compared with that of the sea, and yet in those waters are ten thousand million tons of silver. Since the discovery of the New World, the two Americas have yielded seven billion dollars worth of the metal. A peculiarity of silver is that it is not found in a free state, but always in combination with other metals. A striking example of this is the yield of the famous Comstock lode, of Nevada, three hundred and fifty millions, nearly one-half of which was gold found in the silver ore. "Standard" silver, as used in the arts, is understood to have 925 parts of pure silver to 75 parts of alloy. As a silver producing state, Colorado claims the palm, and the way to reach it (as well as all other of the great Western States) is via the Burlington Route. From North, East or South, this is the line to Lincoln, Denver, Cheyenne, Deadwood, St. Paul or Minneapolis. Ask your home agent to ticket you by this route, or write to W. J. C. Kenyon, Gen. Pass. Agent, St. Paul, Minn.

THE
Crookston Plumbing Co.
Carry the Largest and Most Complete Stock of WOOD and IRON
PUMPS
AND Iron Pipe
IN THE CITY.
PRICES AS LOW AS THE LOWEST

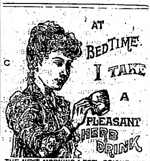
FITS STOPPED FREE
Marvelous success.
Insane Persons Restored
Dr. KLINE'S GREAT
NERVE RESTORER
for all BRAIN & NERVE DISEASES. Only sure cure for Nerve Affections, Fits, Epilepsy, etc. INFALLIBLE if taken as directed. No Fits after first day's use. Treatise and $2 trial bottle free to Fit patients, they paying express charges on box when received. Send names, P. O. and express address of afflicted to DR. KLINE, 931 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa. See Druggists. BEWARE OF IMITATING FRAUDS.

E. D. SCHREADER,
Veterinary Surgeon.

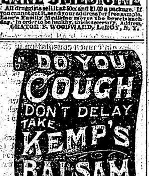
Horse Dentistry a Specialty.
All Calls receive Prompt Attention. Satisfaction guaranteed in all cases. Office: 319 North Main Street, in connection with Livery house.
CROOKSTON, MINN.

WANTED SALESMEN.
Local and Traveling
To represent our well known house. You need no capital to represent a firm that warrants nursery stock first-class and true to name. WORK ALL THE YEAR. $100 per month to the right man. Apply quick, stating age.
L. L. MAY & CO.,
Nurserymen, Glorists and Seedsmen,
(This house is responsible.) St. Paul, Minn.

NEW BARBER SHOP.
On Main St. C. E. MISNER, Prop
Invites your patronage. Everything in the very latest style of the art.
RAZORS HONED. If you desire your Razor Honed and cannot bring it, send it to me with 30 cents and your name and address and I will hone and return it.
Yours Respectfully,
C. E. MISNER.



THE NEXT MORNING I FEEL BRIGHT AND NEW AND MY COMPLEXION IS BETTER.
My doctor says it acts gently on the stomach, liver and kidneys, and is a pleasant laxative. This drink is made from herbs, and is prepared for use as easily as tea. It is called
LANE'S MEDICINE
All druggists sell it at 50c and $1.00 a package. If you cannot get it, send your address for free sample. Lane's Family Medicine moves the bowels each day. In order to be healthy, this is necessary. Address,
ORATOR F. WOODWARD, LEROY, N. Y.



It Cures Colds, Coughs, Sore Throat, Croup, Influenza, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis and Asthma. A certain cure for Consumption in first stages, and a sure relief in advanced stages. Use at once. You will see the excellent effect after taking the first dose. Sold by dealers everywhere. Large bottles 50 cents and $1.00.

H. STEENERSON
ATTORNEY AT LAW
CROOKSTON. - MINNESOTA

MARTIN O'BRIEN,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
{I. O. O. F. BUILDING.} Crookston. Minn.

A. A. JUST, M. D.,
Homoeopathic Physician and Surgeon
OFFICE IN
McKinnon Block, Crookston

L. E. GOSSMAN,
Attorney-at-Law,
No. 2 Fournet Block } CROOKSTON, MINN.

MILLER & FOOTE,
ATTY'S-AT-LAW,
McKinnon Block. - Crookston. Minn.

W. A. ROBERTSON
D. D. S.
Graduate of Dental Department of the University of Maryland.
OPERATIVE AND MECHANICAL
DENTIST.
N. B. Nitrous Oxide Gas, (Laughing Gas) administered for the painless extraction of teeth.
OFFICE. IN McKINNON BLOCK.

G. G. HENAULT
Practical Dentist,
SECOND STREET,
CROOKSTON. - - MINN
OFFICE IN DOBSON'S BLOCK,
☞ All work in my line skilfully and promptly performed. Give me a call.
G. G. HENAULT.

JOHN CROMB,
Attorney-at-Law,
SECOND STREET. CROOKSTON

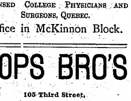
M. LeGUEE.
Veterinary Surgeon.
Residence and office on Jerome's Addition.
CROOKSTON. - - - MINN.

P. J. RUSSELL,
Attorney-at-Law
CROOKSTON, MINN.
Next to Merchants' Bank.

FRANK IVES, Notary Public and U S. Coms'r. D. E. HATLESTAD, District Court Commissioner
IVES & HATLESTAD,
Attorneys and Counselors at Law,
CROOKSTON, - - - - MINN.
Will practice in all the courts and before the U. S. Land Office at Crookston and Washington. Pensions and Soldiers' Claims and Patents carefully and promptly adjusted.
We loan money on improved farms and city property and have facilities for placing large loans at low rate of interest. We give special attention to collection and all commercial business pertaining to our profession.

A. H. DUNLAP, M. D.
Graduate McGill University, Montreal.
LICENSED COLLEGE PHYSICIANS AND SURGEONS, QUEBEC.
Office in McKinnon Block.

KOPS BRO'S
105 Third Street,
GRAND FORKS, N. DAKOTA



WEBER, HAINES BROS., KURTZMANN, MATHUSHEK, McCAMMON PIANOS, Estey and Chicago Cottage Organs. New Upright Pianos from $250 to $1,000, on terms of $10 to $25 per month. New Organs from $60 to $250 on terms of $5 to $10 per month. Satisfaction guanteed. Write for catalogue and prices. KOPS BROS.
Grand Forks, N. D.

THE PIONEER
HARNESS SHOP,
M. RAUENBUEHLR, Proprietor.
A full supply of everything kept by the trade.
Cor of Broadway and Third Sts,
CROOKSTON, - - MINN

Polk County Journal.

BY COOKE & HAMMOND.

Devoted to the Welfare of Polk County.

OFFICIAL PAPER, CITY OF CROOKSTON.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES
One Dollar and Fifty Cents. if paid in advance to any address inside of Polk County. If outside of Polk County 15 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum to any address.

WHERE is Donnelly at?

KNUTE NELSON is elected governor of Minnesota by a good safe majority.

HALVOR STEENERSON made a gallant fight and went down with his friends.

M. E. KIRSCH was re-elected county commissioner from the third district by a large majority.

Thursday, November 24th, has been designated by President Harrison as Thanksgiving Day.

ANTOM LINDEM, the people's party candidate for county commissioner in the second district is elected.

THE returns thus far brought in, would indicate the re-election of Commissioner Rhinehart in the fifth district.

JOHN E. OPPEGAARD has been chosen by the people of the first district to represent them on the county board.

THE Australian ballot system requires a great deal of time but it may work better when people get more used to it.

Now that the chance to lie about republican candidates is gone one wonders what the St. Paul Globe will find to write about.

THE county board will probably be composed of the following gentlemen: Oppegaard, Lindem, Kirsch, Demers and Rhinehart—three democrats and two people's party.

But we got Nelson and the republican state ticket and kept Minnesota in line despite the mendacious course of the St. Paul Globe and other democratic papers.

NEVER in the history of the politics of this state has a man been pursued with more bitter hatred than has Knute Nelson by the democrats in this campaign. But it availed not. The right triumphed.

ONE of Lawler's pet sayings was that "he would rather stay at home and play with the babies than ride into the state house on the cow-catcher of a locomotive." Well, Dan will have plenty of time to play with the babies now.

D. P. R. Strong has succeeded in starting a daily in East Grand Forks. It made its first appearance last week, is a six column folio and is what we should call a Decidedly Pretty Remarkably Strong newspaper for that burg.

THE four fusion electors in Minnesota are elected. Before election they were people's party men, and now the democrats claim them as Cleveland electors. Wonder if the people's party will ever tumble to the fact that the democrats are just using them as catspaws?

THE Hon. Knute Nelson closed one of the busiest and hardest fought campaigns ever waged in Minnesota by making three speeches in three different halls in Minneapolis on Monday night. He has been on the stump day and night for the past six weeks doing more and better work than any man in the state. He deserves the victory, that he has won and has shown the people of Minnesota that they have a govenor who is not afraid of hard work. When he was in congress he won the name of being the hardest worker in that body and it would not be Knute Nelson if he did not work hard in any capacity. The people of Minnesota are to be congratulated upon their governor.

The threshing machine has demonstrated the fact that the past year has not been very favorable for wheat and that the yield will not be up to the average by a good deal. It is estimated that nearly all of the wheat has been marketed. This is a year that the all wheat farmer is growling, but the man who has had oats and barley to sell, the man who has had butter to sell during the season, the man who has had a few veal calves to turn off in season, who has a few head of steers or dry cows to turn off as beef who has had sheep and hogs and poultry to supply the market is not complaining to a remarkable degree; because he is not now obliged to dispose of his wheat unless he wants to and nobody wants to sell No. 1 hard wheat on the present market. It is good property to keep. The moral is plain. "Diversify your husbandry."

FOR district judge, Mills and Ives are running very close, and the result is uncertain.

ON the national ticket the people's party cut no figure at all. In the south the movement fell flat.

IT is now beyond question that the democrats have carried the country and Grover Cleveland will be our next president.

The returns are extremely slow about coming in this year, and it will be impossible to form a correct opinion all around for this issue.

So far as heard from, John McKinnon polled a good vote in the county, but the three people's party electors will probably be elected.

IT is possible that we might not have won with Blaine and reciprocity but it looks now as though that was the only chance we did have.

NEW YORK went democratic by about 40,000, and Illinois is also in the democratic column. Indiana is so close it will take the official count to determine, and Wisconsin has gone to the dems.

THE bitter cold weather which set in last Sunday evening and continued till after election, made the vote lighter than it otherwise would have been—especially the republican vote. Democrats always vote, but it is hard to get the full republican vote out under any circumstances and doubly so when the weather is inclement.

THE JOURNAL is unable to secure full and complete returns before going to press and it looks now as though full and complete returns would not afford us much consolation. It looks as though the other fellow would be doing the crowing this fall—but hold on a minute, seems as though we did elect Palmer. 'Rah for Palmer!

TO THE intelligent voter the Australian system of voting is all well enough in many respects, but to a foreigner—a man who through no fault of his own does not understand the English language, it is liable to prove a delusion and a snare. In such cases it also causes a waste of time and calls for at least one more judge of election at the polls—so that a full board can be on deck all the time. As it now is, when one judge is called into a booth to assist some one in marking his ticket, the balance of the board must await his return, which causes a waste of valuable time, quite an item where there are a large number to vote. But of course the method, although it might prove the proper one in the long run, must necessarily prove quite awkward at first.

DURING the last week of the campaign, Mrs. Lease was to speak at a grand rally of democrats and populists at Topeka, Kansas. Now, Mrs. Lease is not in favor of fusion, and the fusion managers decided it would not do to allow her to speak, as she would probably denounce the fusion scheme and urge the people to vote the straight people's party ticket. So when the audience called for Mrs. Lease, the democratic chairman—Jones—said that Mrs. Lease had taken the train for another place. Immediately the great female agitator of the populists—who had been standing in the flies—marched out on the stage and gave the lie to the chairman, and then proceeded to roast the fusion scheme and the leaders of the movement, declaring it was simply a scheme on the part of the democrats to hoodwink the people's party and use them for tools. After the meeting Mrs. Lease cancelled all her dates and cleared her skirts of the whole iniquitous scheme.

Where Are We At?

TO A MAN up the tree it looks as though the answer to that conundrum is "in the soup!" It looks as though all there was left for the republicans to do is to skirmish round and console themselves trying to figure out how it all happened—and there ain't much consolation in that.

George Holland, for many years superintendent of the public schools of Chicago and prominent in the educational world, is dead.

Rev. Francis Springer, known as Chaplain Springer in G. A. R. circles, is dead. He was 82 years old. He lived at Springfield, Ills.

A Wells Fargo train was wrecked at Leiters, Ind., on the Chicago and Erie road. Engineer Frederick and Fireman Metz were fatally injured. The wreck was caused by an open switch.

At Nashville Tuesday the 3-year-old trotting record was lowered by Directum to 2:11 1-4, a cut of two seconds. Hal Pointer paced a mile in 2:04 1-2, lowering his record three-quarters of a second.

Ex-President Cleveland's Buzzard's Bay residence, known as Gray Gables, is for sale. It is stated that Mr. Cleveland will again make his summer home at Marion, Mass.

STATE TICKETS.

OFFICIALS VOTED FOR IN THE DIFFERENT STATES.

In Some of Them Full State Tickets Were Elected, While in Others Only Legislatures Were Voted for—Others Voted On National Issues Alone.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—The following summary shows the state officers voted for at the election Tuesday. There were in nearly all the states three tickets, and in some of them four:

ALABAMA elected a governor in August. Jones (Dem.) was re-elected over Kolb, the candidate of the Alliance Democrats. Only federal electors were voted for Tuesday.

ARKANSAS elected a Democratic governor by a large majority on Sept. 5.

CALIFORNIA elected a legislature. The legislature will elect a successor to United States Senator Felton (Rep.).

COLORADO elected a governor and other state officers.

CONNECTICUT elected governor, state officers and legislature. The legislature will choose a successor to United States Senator Hawley.

DELAWARE elected a legislature. The legislature will chose a United States senator to succeed Gray (Dem.).

FLORIDA elected a legislature. The legislature will elect a successor to United States Senator Pasco (Dem.). The state elected a Democratic governor Oct. 4.

GEORGIA elected the Democratic state ticket on Oct. 5 by 70,000 majority.

IDAHO elected a governor and a state legislature.

ILLINOIS voted for a governor and legislature.

INDIANA elected a governor, legislature and other state officers. The legislature will elect a successor to United States Senator Turpie (Dem.).

KANSAS voted for state officers, including governor and legislature. The legislature will elect a successor to United States Senator Perkins (Rep.).

KENTUCKY had no state election.

LOUISIANA had no state election.

MAINE elected a Republican governor Sept. 12. It voted for a legislature Tuesday. The legislature will elect a successor to United States Senator Hale

MARYLAND voted only for electors and congressmen.

MASSACHUSETTS voted for state officials, including governor and legislature. The latter will choose successor to United States Senator Dawes (Rep.)

MICHIGAN elected state officials, including governor and legislature. The latter elects a successor to United States Senator Stockbridge (Rep.)

MINNESOTA voted for state officials, including governor and a legislature. The latter will choose a successor to United States Senator Davis (Rep.)

MISSISSIPPI elected a state legislature, which will choose a successor to United States Senator George (Dem.)

MISSOURI voted for state legislature and state officers, including governor. The legislature will choose a successor to United States Senator Cockrell

MONTANA voted for state officers. In addition to these the location of the state capital was voted on.

NEBRASKA elected state officers. The legislature will elect a successor to United States senator Paddock (Rep.).

NEVADA elected a legislature, and the legislature will choose a successor to United States Senator Stewart (Rep.).

NEW HAMPSHIRE elected a governor.

NEW JERSEY elected a governor and other state officers, and a legislature which will elect a successor to United States Senator Blodgett (Dem.).

NEW YORK elected a judge of the court of appeals and a legislature. The legislature will chose a successor to to United States Senator Hiscock (Rep.).

NORTH DAKOTA elected a governor and a legislature, and the legislature, will choose a successor to United States Senator Casey (Rep.).

NORTH CAROLINA elected a governor and state officers.

OHIO elected several state officials below the governor.

OREGON had no state election.

PENNSYLVANIA elected a supreme court justice and legislature. The legislature elects a senator to succeed Quay

RHODE ISLAND elected a Republican governor and legislature in May. United States Senator Aldrich (Rep.) has been re-elected.

SOUTH CAROLINA elected a governor, and a legislature which will choose a successor to United States Senator Butler (Dem.).

SOUTH DAKOTA elected a governor and a legislature, the latter to chose a successor to United States Senator Pettigrew (Rep.).

TENNESSEE elected a legislature and state officers. The legislature will choose a successor to United States Senator Bate (Dem.).

TEXAS elected state officers and legislature. The legislature will choose a successor to United States Senator Mills

VERMONT recently elected a Republican governor. Tuesday it elected a legislature. The legislature will choose successor to United States Senator Proctor (Rep.).

VIRGINIA elects a legislature. The legislature will choose a successor to United States Senator Daniel (Dem.).

WASHINGTON elected a legislature which will choose a successor to United States Senator Allen (Rep.).

WEST VIRGINIA voted for governor and legislature. The legislature will elect a successor to United States Senator Faulkner (Dem.).

WISCONSIN voted for governor and legislature. The legislature will choose a successor to United States Senator Sawyer (Rep.).

WYOMING voted for a legislature, and the legislature will elect a successor to United States Senator Warren (Rep.).

MINNESOTA NEWS.

The Republican State Ticket Comes Out Victorious.

ST. PAUL, Nov. 9.—At the Republican state headquarters a large number of dispatches were received during the day, and while no official figures were given, the news was sufficient to justify Chairman Jamison in asserting that fusion in Minnesota had been defeated. All returns show that the fusion electors are not running even with the straight electoral candidates.

From dispatches received during the afternoon the Republican state central committee make the following claims:

Nelson's plurality in the state will not fall below 20,000. The balance of the state ticket will run ahead of Nelson.

Tawney is elected to congress in the First district.

McCleary in the Second.

The Third district is doubtful, but chances seem to favor Hall.

Kiefer has carried the Fourth district by at least 1,500 plurality.

In the Fifth Fletcher is a sure winner, and Judge Searle is elected in the Sixth.

The Seventh district is doubtful and the result will not be known for a day or two. The Republicans claim the lower house of the legislature by a majority of 12. Gains are reported in Fillmore, Waseca, Dodge and several of the northern counties.

WISCONSIN.

Democrats Claim the Election of the Entire State Ticket.

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 9.—There is no outlook. Wisconsin is certainly Democratic for Cleveland and Peck by from 10,000 to 15,000. Republicans concede state legislature, which will return a Democratic senator in place of Sawyer. Majority of congressmen are Democrats.

An extra of the Journal issued at 8 a. m. contains the following:

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 9, 1892.

Hon. Grover Cleveland, New York—Wisconsin assures you her twelve electoral votes and congratulates you and the country on the magnificent victory.

(Signed) E. C. WALL.

About 8 o'clock a. m. Chairman Wall, of the Democratic state committee, sent the foregoing dispatch. At that hour all doubt that Wisconsin is a Democratic state had been removed. Returns from one-fourth of the towns in the state showed that Cleveland and Peck (governor) had carried the state by a plurality of from 10,000 to 15,000. Both branches of the legislature are Democratic and a majority of the congressional delegation.

Payne Concedes Defeat.

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 9.—Henry C C. Payne, ex-chairman of the Republican state central committee, practically concedes Wisconsin to the Democrats. In an interview he said that while the returns were not complete that if the same average of Democratic gain is maintained in the northern counties of the state not yet heard from, Mr. Spooner will unquestionably be defeated, together with the entire state ticket. He admitted the victory for Cleveland in the national contest and stated that if the policy outlined in the Democratic platform were adhered to, in his opinion, it would be disastrous to the country.

IOWA.

Harrison Electors Chosen but the State Ticket in Doubt.

DES MOINES, Nov. 9.—The indications are that the Republicans have carried the state on electors and the state ticket is doubtful. Indications are that the Republicans have elected congressmen in the First, Third, Seventh, Eighth, Ninth and Tenth districts and the Democrats in the Second, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth and Eleventh districts.

Chairman Blythe, of the Republican committee, claims the state by 2,000 and the election of Republican congressmen in all but the Second district and possibly the First. The Democratic chairman practically concedes the state, but states that the few precincts heard from are too meagre to base an estimate.

Harrison's Majority Increasing.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Nov. 9.—Returns now coming in rapidly increase Harrison's plurality to 20,000. Anti-Prohibition-Republicans have returned to the party in platoons, showing enormous Democratic losses everywhere.

Coming in Slowly.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Nov. 9.—Only very meager returns, owing to count still progressing in many precincts. Iowa appears to have gone 10,000 or 12,000 Republican. First, Third, Fifth, Ninth and Eleventh congressional districts, doubtful; Second, Democratic; all others, Republican; Weaver's vote probably 25,000, Bidwell, 8,000. Lacey, Republican, has carried the Sixth district by 1,500 plurality over White, Democrat.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Small Majority for the Republican Candidates—Republican Legislature.

BISMARCK, Nov. 9.—North Dakota for the first time voted under the Australian system, and it has made returns exceedingly slow to get in. Returns from counties so far indicate that the Harrison electors have at least 1,000 majority. Johnson, Rep., is returned to congress, and on joint ballot the Republicans will have the legislature. The Republican state ticket has carried by a small majority.

Two Farmers Killed.

LA CROSSE, Wis., Oct. 25.—Two German farmers were killed during the evening while going home from town. Fred F. Zimmerman, an old man, his son, aged 20, and Lorenz Stretwalter, 83 years old, tried to cross the track in front of a Burlington train and all being somewhat intoxicated miscalculated the distance. When the engine struck the wagon young Zimmerman rolled out behind and escaped injury, but the others were tossed in the air and fell dead. The younger of the two was badly mangled. The crossing there is the full width of the road with a clear track for a mile.

Fatal Boiler Explosion.

ABERDEEN, S. D., Oct. 25.—A boiler explosion at Putney instantly killed L. W. Horton, who was acting as engineer. He was blown several paces, striking the separator and breaking the feed board. Another man, name unknown, was blown forty-five paces in another direction and a third man was blown thirty-five paces, both of whom were fatally injured. A fourth man was seriously injured but may recover. The regular engineer was absent.

According to the estimates given by Postmaster Sexton and his superintendent of mails, Captain Montgomery, about a quarter of a million of Chicago's citizens sent newspapers with full accounts of the dedicatory fete to their distant friends.

John Corbett was found dead in the woods near Deer Lake, Mich. He was employed in the Lake Superior mine and spent the day hunting in Deer Lake woods. Examination showed he was shot through the heart. Corbett was 40 years old, and leaves a wife and six children.

SPECIAL SALE of DRESS GOODS

on Friday, Nov. 11.
Everything in this line at a
Big Discount.

45-inch All-wool Henriettas, in All Colors, Regular Price $1.25, for 99c.

All-wool Storm Serges, 46 inches wide, regular price $1.25, for 99c.

On Saturday, Nov. 12, we will make a Specialty of Shawls,
Blankets,
Flannels
of All Kinds.
Ladies' Hosiery,
Furnishing Goods, Etc.

A. CHABOT.

Cor. Broadway and Robert Sts., - Crookston.

CLOTHING
SWEEPING SALE

of WINTER CLOTHING is now going on at Mossefin & Lindell's. This is a windy time of year so that a sail quickens business. We've struck a breeze, too, and are making such quick sales that the thing has become a sweep. Don't wait till the wind has gone down, the goods are all sold and there's nothing left but the dust raised by the commotion. Strike the excitement at its height and come now and see the biggest sale of the best clothing that has ever occurred in this part of the state. November is the month in which to prepare for winter and when you've bought a suit from our stock, you won't feel like hugging the stove every time you venture out of doors.

SPECIAL SALE
—IN—
Cloaks,
Shawls
AND Blankets
For a short time, at
GERVAIS & GERVAIS,
Robert St., - Crookston, Minn.

THAT RALLY!

The Last Republican Rally of the Campaign.

The republican rally on Saturday evening, was one of the biggest of its kind ever attempted in Crookston, and the opera house was crowded to its utmost capacity, while many were obliged to go away not being able to find standing room even. Long before the big parade was finished the seats in the opera house were all taken and thousands of people were on the streets watching the parade which was the finest one that has occurred during this campaign. It is estimated over three hundred actual voters were in line, each with a torch and plenty of sky-rockets and they did make Rome howl in great shape. The serpentine march on Main street was said to be the finest feature of the parade though the flambeau club came in for many compliments. At 8:30, A. D. Stephens, as chairman called the magnificient audience to order and announced that the Crookston Glee Club would favor us with a campaign song and "Protection's Come to Stay" was rendered in their best style while Johnny Carter stood behind them waving "Old Glory" back and forth in perfect time. The chairman then introduced Assistant Atty. Gen. H. W. Childs, who delivered a patriotic address which was listened to throughout with wrapt attention. He urged all republicans to do their whole duty on election day and if they would do that we should roll up the grandest victory in the history of the party—the grandest because won in the face of greater opposition than ever before since the war. He was followed by the Hon. Knute Nelson who was so hoarse with much speaking during the campaign that he could hardly articulate but he managed to give us one of the best talks on the tariff that we have had during the campaign. He was preceded by the Crookston string band in two or three patriotic pieces and at the close of his speech, as soon as the deafening applause had subsided the chairman called Prof. Johnson to the front who sang a patriotic song that was well received. When the Prof. had finished his song, somebody called for the Hon. Halvor Steenerson and then the demand became universal from all parts of the house. Although wholly unprepared and although it was then growing very late Mr. Steenerson good-naturedly responded, and gave a rattling good talk of 15 or 20 minutes duration and then the great audience filed slowly out of the house agreeing that it was the biggest event of the season in Crookston and it was freely said that many votes were made for the cause of protection.

The Fertile Meeting.

Last Friday evening the people of Fertile witnessed the biggest political demonstration ever witnessed in that village, the occasion being a republican meeting addressed by Hon. Knute Nelson. A large number of republicans from Crookston, including the Queen City band, the republican flambeau club and a delegation from the "Knute" club went down. Such a crowd was never seen in Fertile before, and farmers drove for twenty miles, and some of them walked in for 6 and 7 miles to see and hear Mr. Nelson, An immense procession headed by the Fertile and Queen City band, marched around the village, and when the opera hall was reached, standing room was at a premium. Mr. Nelson made a telling speech, dealing with the questions which the people's party like to discuss viz; the elevator system, the sub-treasury scheme, and free coinage of silver. He showed the fallacies of the arguments of the people's party orators, and showed it so plainly that many of the farmers said after the meeting that they saw where they were mistaken and that they would not vote the people's party ticket this fall, and the result of the vote last Tuesday shows that Mr. Nelson's speech changed a good many votes.

Misner's Hens.

There seems to be no end to the ambition of Charlie Misner. At first it was a new house that he wanted and he did not rest easy until he got it and a nice one it was to. Then, after he has secured an elegant residence on the avenue and, (figuratively speaking) had sat down 'neath his own vine and fig tree his ambitious soul was not yet satisfied but sought for other achievements—other worlds to conquer, and as he gazed upon his worldly possessions the thought occurred to him that the one thing needful now was a fine hen-house, filled with busy, bustling cackling hens, the fruit of whose industry should produce the gay and festive egg-nog in due season, and as he thought the vision grew more roseate, until by day and night naught but plans for hen-houses ran through his head and he, read every hen-paper in the land and every bit of board he could find, was carefully carried home to enter into the plan. At last it stood resplendent—a thing of beauty and (to be) a jaw for ever (when filled with hens.) Of course his plans were no secret and so it was that soon after the building was complete his neighbor, Silver, said to him one morning: "Charlie, I have just received 38 fine young hens and two roosters which I will sell you cheap. They are at the market; come up and look at them." So during the day Charlie went to look at the hens took a fancy to them and ordered them sent over to his house; which was done and for several weeks, Charlie watched his stock with great pride going home every night to supper fondly dreaming of fresh eggs, boiled eggs, omelettes and everything that can be eggspressly constructed of hen fruit but in vain, and Charlie couldn't think what was the matter with his hens until one day a neighbor's wife meeting him said: "Mr. Misner, whatever be you goin' to do with all them roosters!" "Roosters" said Charlie in amaze, "those are hens—38 hens and two roosters!" "But they are not," replied the lady "there may be one or two pullets in the lot but that's all." And sure enough, so it proved and Charlie's folks have been eating "hens" until they are tired trying to reduce the surplus to a reasonable number and if you want to see Charlie "hot in the collar" all you have to do is to ask ask him what eggs are worth a dozen.

Donnelly and the Butcher.

They tell a pretty good joke on Donnelly that is good even though he was defeated for governor. It is said that at Fertile the chairman who introduced Mr. Donnelly was a butcher, and in introducing him paid the sage a very high compliment saying, that he was every way worthy of confidence and urged the audience to believe everything that Mr. Donnelly should tell them as Mr. Donnelly was an honest man and could not lie on political topics or any other. After having lauded Mr. Donnelly to the skies he sat down and Mr. Donnelly commenced. After an hour or so Mr. Donnelly saw a farmer in the crowd who had a parcel under his arm that looked as though it might be meat. "What have you in that parcel my farmer friend" blandly inquired Mr. Donnelly. "I have some meat sir" replied the farmer. "Where did you get it" next asked Mr. Donnelly, "I bought it at the meat market in Fertile" replied the farmer. "Aha," cried Mr. Donnelly; "and right here is where you are skinned alive again my farmer friends. Right here is a living example of a man who brings his beef cattle to your butcher and sells them at a price that does not pay the cost of raising and then he buys the meat back at cutthroat rates" and then in his own peculiar style the sage proceeded to literally flay his butcher friend, the chairman, alive while he sat there as red as a boiled lobster and meekly took his medicine, the sage all the while unconscious of what he was doing but the audience, who were on to the combination were in high glee and laughed and cheered to see the poor butcher sweat and blush. When Mr. Nelson came to Fertile to speak—the butcher came to him and said he guessed that he had had enough of the people's party and that he should vote for Mr. Nelson and the entire republican ticket.

The Truth Worked.

One of the members of the regiment told a story of "Honest Captain Wood." The incident occurred in very cold weather, and at an important crisis.

"At nighttime," said the narrator, "when we pickets arrived at the outposts Captain Wood said, 'It is too severe for the men to face this storm all night.' There was a small house close by, and the captain directed that we should build a fire in it and shelter ourselves as best we might.

"We did so, and weary with marching and lulled by the warmth we all fell fast asleep. When the officer of the grand rounds came our way he found a regular Sleepy Hollow.

"Of course we were reported, and in the morning we were summoned to headquarters. Naturally we were terribly frightened, for sleeping on picket is a serious offense.

"We were ushered into General Wilson's tent. He sternly repeated the charge. Had we been guilty of sleeping on our posts? We had. It would have been useless to attempt any explanation, but Captain Wood, who was present, anticipated any, that we might have attempted.

"'General,' he said, 'the blame does not rest upon these men. I am responsible for it all. I gave them orders to take shelter in that house and build a fire there, and I am to blame. They would not have been asleep but for me.'

"'How long have you been in the service, sir?' asked the general sternly.

"'A few months, general.'

"'I thought so. If you had been here longer you would have come up here full of excuses and ready to shift the blame upon any one at hand. You can go. Your honesty has saved you.'"—Lewiston Journal.

The telegraphers' strike on the Denver and Rio Rrande has been declared off, and the trouble will be settled by arbitration. The threatened trouble on the Missouri Pacific has been averted.

THE LOWER HOUSE.

Present Indications Are That Democrats Have Lost Forty-six Seats.

STILL MAINTAINING A MAJORITY OF 92.

The Latest Returns Give 224 Democrats, 123 Republicans, 7 Fusionists and Alliance.

NEW YORK, Nov. 9.—Returns received at this writing indicate that the house of representatives in the 53rd congress will contain as the result of yesterday's election 224 Democrats, 123 Republicans and 7 Fusionists, Farmers' Alliance. Rhode Island failed to elect either candidate for representative, but the probabilities favor the choice of the two Republicans. This would make the total opposition vote in the house 132, and the Democratic majority 92. In the present house, with all the districts represented, the Democratic majority is 138, a loss of 46.

HARRISON GAVE IT UP.

When Illinois Went Democratic That Settled It With Him.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 9.—The president gave up the election when he heard from Illinois, remarking, "If Illinois has gone Democratic that settles it.," and he requested that no further returns be sent to him. Mr. Tibbott, his stenographer, at 10 o'clock a. m. was still figuring upon some possible combination which might snatch victory from defeat, but with very indifferent success even in his own mind.

The president rose at his usual hour, glanced over some of the latest returns which had been prepared for him, and then calmly devoted himself to executive business, saying nothing.

Attorney-General Miller and Secretary J. W. Foster, of the state departments, are the only two members of the cabinet in the city, though Secretary Charles Foster, of the treasury, will probably be at the department soon, ready to take good humoredly the badinage certain to await him over his confident prediction that Harrison would carry every Northern state except Nevada.

Attorney General Miller was somewhat prepared for defeat by the foretaste of doubt which he brought back with him from his hasty visit to Indiana, but he was far from anticipating so complete a "slump." Secretary of State Foster is not an active politician. He was paired with Colonel Dick Bright, of Indiana.

Ex-Secretary Blaine declines to be interviewed on the result and he has had the telephone removed from his residence in Lafayette Summit so as to avoid the annoyance of perpetual calls.

The feeling of depression and unrest which pervades all the departments cannot be exaggerated. Those clerks who refrained from going home to vote congratulate themselves on their forbearance, while the friends of those who actively participated in the election hope that "this thing may not be charged against them." A goodly number of department clerks, sheltered under the civil service rules, survived four years of Democratic domination under Mr. Cleveland, trust, by a strict attention to business, to merit a continuance of the favors previously bestowed. But the heads of divisions recognize that after the fourth of next March their positions which do not fall under the civil service rules, will probably be required for officials in political harmony with the new chiefs of the executive departments.

FROM SOUTHERN STATES.

South Carolina's Majority Small.

CHARLESTON, Nov. 9.—With the possible exception of the Seventh district South Carolina returns a solid Democratic delegation to congress and chooses nine Cleveland electors.

The Seventh district has a very large colored majority. It is represented in the present congress by William Elliot, Dem., who received 8,700 votes against 4,700 cast for two Republican contestants. It is quite possible that General Moise may secure the election thus making the delegation solid as now. Cleveland's majority does not exceed 20,000.

Missouri Is Democratic.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 9.—The entire Democratic state ticket in Missouri has been elected by a plurality of 17,000. The returns from congressional districts are not all in, but enough have been received to show that the Democrats have carried thirteen out of the fifteen districts. In the Tenth district Richard Bartholdt (Rep.) defeated Jedeh (Dem.) by 962 majority. In the Eleventh district Joy (Rep.) defeated O'Neill (Dem.) by twelve votes. Both these districts are in this city. In the remaining districts Democratic congressmen are elected.

Democrats Claim West Virginia.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Nov. 9.—Democrats confidently claim election of all four congressmen from this state. Cleveland will undoubtedly be given the electoral vote of West Virginia and the election of the entire state ticket is generally conceded.

KANSAS.

Both Sides Claim the Victory—Returns Are Very Slow.

TOPEKA, Kan., Nov. 9.—The result of the election in Kansas is still in doubt, returns coming in very slowly. Both committees are claiming a victory, neither conceding anything to the other. The Republican committee alone has made arrangements for receiving definite returns. At 11 o'clock, 880 out of 2,100 precincts had been heard from showing a total of 71,727 votes out which the Republican state and electoral ticket have a majority of 5,291. This vote has been compared with the Republican poll of the state which shows a total vote of 305,000. If the returns continue to come in showing the same relative Republican gains the Republican majority will be about 15,000. Republicans still claim the election of seven of the eight congressmen certain, and a majority of the legislature. According to Republican figures, Jerry Simpson is certainly beaten in the Seventh district.

NEBRASKA.

Weaver Will Probably Carry the State by a Small Majority.

OMAHA, Nov. 9.—At midnight returns from Nebraska are still fragmentary owing to the new election law and poor method of counting. Figures so far received indicate that Weaver will carry the state by a few thousands. On governor the result is very doubtful. Crounse, Rep., will not get as large a vote in Omaha as expected and Morton, Dem., develops unexpected strength. Van Wyck, Ind., not so strong among the laboring classes in Omaha as expected. By returns so far received each of the three candidates for governor will poll about 70,000 votes, same as two years ago. For congress Bryan, Dem., of the First district is re-elected. The legislature will be about 40 per cent. Republican, 40 per cent. Independent and 20 per cent. Democratic.

Nevada for Weaver.

RENO, Nov. 9.—It is conceded by all parties that Weaver carries Nevada by 1,500. Results as to legislature not yet received. Silver party candidate elected to congress. It is generally believed that the silver party have a majority in the legislature, which will insure the election of Stewart to the United States senate.

Oregon Very Close.

PORTLAND, Or., Nov. 9.—The vote of Oregon has been comparatively light. Very few returns have as yet been received. It is impossible at this moment to guage an opinion of the result. It is thought that Pierce, one of the Weaver electors, has been elected.

Harrison Gets Wyoming.

CHEYENNE, Nov. 9.—Estimates from returns received show Harrison to have carried the state by a very small majority. The Democrats will undoubtedly elect the whole state ticket. The legislature is yet in doubt.

Rhode Island Republican.

PROVIDENCE, Nov. 9.—The total vote of the state, lacking 20 districts, gives Harrison 18,484, Cleveland 15,552. This state goes for Harrison.

In Georgia.

AUGUSTA, Nov. 9.—Richmond county will give Black, Dem., nearly 9,000 over Tom Watson. Returns from other districts indicate that the Democrats will carry every district and that Georgia will send a solid Democratic delegation to the next congress. The third party candidates were run in every district, but were snowed under. Speaker Crisp is re-elected by an increased majority.

COLORADO.

Indications That the State Will Be Very Close.

DENVER, Col., Nov. 9.—The indications are that the contest in this state will be very close. Returns from 146 towns outside of Arapahoe county give Harrison 5,693 and Weaver 10,213. Weaver and the Populist state ticket are ahead in Lake and El Paso counties, and Harrison and and the People's state ticket are running ahead in Pueblo county. These three counties cast more votes than any others outside of Arapahoe. At 10 a. m. it was generally believed that Waite, the Populist caedidate for governor, is elected.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Returns Very Slow, But They Have a Weaverish Look.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., Nov. 9.—Returns are unprecedentedly slow. The outlook is that Weaver has carried the state by 1,000 majority. Sheldon, Republican, is probably elected governor.

Cleveland Carries Connecticut.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 9.—Cleveland has a plurality in Connecticut of 5,830 and Morris' majority is 1,469 over all and he is elected governor by popular vote. Three Democratic congressmen are elected and there are ties in five towns. The house will be Republican but the senate will have a Democratic majority.

MASSACHUSETTS.

The Republican Plurality Not as Large as Four Years Ago.

BOSTON, Nov. 9.—Returns from nearly three hundred towns and cities, including Boston, show a decrease in the Republican plurality as compared with four years ago of about 3,000 votes. The state ticket is in doubt.

QUEEN MARY'S HOUSE

AN HISTORIC OLD MANSION IN THE ANCIENT TOWN OF JEDBURG.

In This Old Fashioned Building the Queen of the Scots Held Court and for Three Weeks Lay Sick of a Fever—Her Near Approach to Death.

There is one house in Jedburg to which, above all others, strangers who visit the ancient town are sure to find their way, and that is the old and antique mansion known as Queen Mary's house. Many will therefore be pleased to learn that steps are about to be taken for the better preservation of this historic edifice, and for the improvement of its surroundings. On Oct. 8, 1856, Mary left Holyrood to hold assizes at Jedburg, the magistrates having been previously instructed to "prepare meat, drink and lodgings for men and horses," and she arrived next day. The queen was accompanied by her ministers of state, her law officers and by many of her nobles, among whom were the Earls of Moray, Huntly, Argyll, Rothes and Caithness, and the Lords Livingstone, Seton, Yester, Borthwick, Arbroath, Hume and Somerville, besides a number of barons and bishops. What a stir there must have been in the old border burg on that occasion, and what anxiety it would cost the worthy provost and magistrates to keep up the good name of their town in the presence of so many great personages, and even royalty itself!

The assizes continued for six successive days, and terminated without a single execution. Mary presided at a privy council held on the 10th, and at another held on the following day. On the 16th, after the pressure of business was over, she rode to Hermitage castle to see Bothwell, who had been wounded by "Little Jock Elliott," of the park, a noted freebooter, and after conferring with her wounded lieutenant for two hours in presence of several of her nobles who accompanied her on the journey she returned to Jedburg the same evening, having ridden more than forty-eight miles. Next day Mary was attacked with an intermittent fever, which kept her prostrate for over a fortnight. On the same day she took ill the sum of six shillings was paid to "ane boy passing from Jedburg with ane mass of writings of our sovereign to the Earl of Bothwell."

The room in which Queen Mary lay during her serious illness is, according to tradition, a small two windowed apartment in the turret, but Miss Strickland, in her "Lives of the Queens of Scotland," says in reference to this point that "the spacious suite of apartments on the opposite side of the staircase, one of which still bears the name of the guardroom, is more likely to have been occupied by royalty as anteroom, privy chamber and bedroom." It is, however, the small back apartment that is pointed out to visitors as Queen Mary's bedroom, and it was there, if we are to credit tradition, where she lay nigh unto death, attended by her French physician—Charles Nau.

On the 26th she "lay for dead" three hours—her limbs cold and rigid, her eyes closed, her mouth compressed, her feet and arms stiff, every one supposing that the vital spark had fled. Master Nau, who was "a perfect man of his craft," would not, however, give the matter up, but resorted to friction and manipulation, which he continued for some hours, until the queen recovered again her sight and speech and got a great sweating. When her illness had assumed a mortal tendency she expressed her willingness to resign her spirit to God. She wished to impress on her nobles the necessity of living in unity, and that they should do all in their power to protect the infant prince—her only tie to life. To Du Croix, the French embassador, she made a request that he would ask his royal master to protect her dear son, and she also recommended his protection to Queen Elizabeth, as her nearest kinswoman.

On the 28th Darnley arrived in Jedburg, but left again the next day, and it is not certain that he was ever allowed to see Mary. When she was recovering the wearisome hours were beguiled by one John Hume playing to her on the lute and John Heron playing on the pipe and "quhisil," the former receiving forty shillings for his services, the latter four pounds for his. As a thank offering to God for her recovery she caused twenty pounds to be given to the poor of the burg, and the same day she wrote a letter ordering materials for a new dress, which letter was to be sent to Edinburgh "in all possible haste."

What a curious Old World picture! But the scene again changes. On Nov. 9—exactly a month after her arrival—Queen Mary left Jedburg, accompanied by her nobles, among whom was Bothwell, and with an escort of a thousand horsemen. She arrived on the 20th at Craigmillar castle, with sorrow, suffering and captivity in the near future, and in the distance the bloody scaffold of Fotheringay. "Four months after her departure from our ancient burg," says a local chronicler, "her husband, Lord Darnley, was murdered; three months more and she was the wife of Bothwell; yet twelve months, and she was lodged as a prisoner in the Castle of Carlisle. As time rolled on and the clouds of misfortune were rolling dark and thick around her, she was often heard to exclaim, in the anguish of a wounded spirit, 'Would that I had died in Jedburg!'"—Scotsman.

Mr. Curtis' First Speech.

Young and diffident orators will take fresh heart when they learn, if they do not know it already, that so accomplished and self possesed a speaker as George William Curtis suffered greatly from stage fright on the occasion of his first lecture, and began by saying, "Ladies and gentlemen, the pitomless bott," with a solemnity which was changed to confusion when he perceived his error. Of course he had meant to make an allusion to the bottomless pit.—Boston Transcript.

MINNESOTA NEWS.

Freeborn county has nineteen creameries.

Slayton will build a new school house at a cost of $12,000.

Rev. Magnus Koefod, a Lutheran minister, died last week at Glenwood.

A state good roads convention has been called to meet in St. Paul Jan. 25 and 26.

Charles A. Ruffer has been appointed Indian agent at the White Earth agency.

The Nordstern, a German weekly published at St. Cloud has been sold to a syndicate.

The First National bank of Princeton has been authorized to begin business with a capital of $50,000.

Mrs. Mary Gear died at Minneapolis last week, aged 85. She had been a resident of the state for fifty-three years.

The Masonic block at Fergus Falls was burned Sunday morning. It was owned by W. P. Book, whose loss is $10,000.

Jacob Guenther, one of the principals in the first marriage ever celebrated in Blue Earth county, died last week at Mankato.

Burglars entered the office of W. W. Beers, agent of the McCormick Harvester company, at Rushford, and relieved the safe of $175.

H. Bervig, of Yacatan, was killed about five miles from Caledonia Sunday. His buggy went over a steep bank, killing him and his two horses.

Percy Gould, of Fairmount, a member of Company D, Second regiment, M. N. G., died at Chicago Friday of heart disease while attending the dedication exercises.

Grace Emery, of Appleton, who has been advertised throughout the state in nearly every leading weekly as lost, was found drowned in the Pomma de Terre river, eight miles above Appleton.

Lester Stevens was probably fatally injured, at Lake Crystal by sliding from a wheat stack and striking on a broken fork handle which penetrated into his back eight inches, inflicting a terrible wound.

The cost of grading the Great Northern through the city of Red Lake Falls will be $200,000. This sum is merely for that portion within the municipality. There are cuts fifty-two feet deep in the solid clay.

The man found murdered in a grain car at Montevideo last week has been identified as L. H. Walker, of Mankato. He worked for a farmer near Montevideo in harvest and went afterwards to South Dakota.

The bank statements of business at the close of September show deposits in the two state and one national bank of Red Wing amounting to $1,007,610.19, of which about three-quarters is in the shape of time deposits.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Boston has won the National League championship.

Nancy Hanks went a mile in 2:05 at Nashville Wednesday.

A telephone line between Chicago and New York was tested with satisfactory results.

The United States army is to be equipped with magazine guns and smokeless powder.

A. G. GALLASCH, Pres. A. F. GEORGE, Sec.
C. O. CHRISTIANSON, Vice Pres.
O. H. LUCKEN, Treas.

FARM LOANS.

Red River Valley
Loan & Investment Co.

A HOME COMPANY.

Loans Money on Farms and Improved Business Property on Three and Five Years Time, at Low Rates,

Money always on hand. You do not have to wait. We can make you a loan on the same day you make application. Principal and interest payable at our office. We buy school and town bonds and orders, If you wish to borrow money, buy or sell land, write us. But if you can, come and have a talk with us. Always glad to see you.

OFFICE IN OPERA HOUSE BLOCK.

Valley Roller Mills.

CROOKSTON, MINN.

Manufacturers of

FINE FLOURS

MADE FROM SELECTED RED RIVER HARD WHEAT.

BRANDS:
Patent: Lee & Herrick's Best.
Straight: North Star
Bakers': Fife.
Low Grade: Skip Jack.

BRAN, SHORTS AND SCREENINGS,
Always on hand at reasonable prices.

FARM AND GARDEN

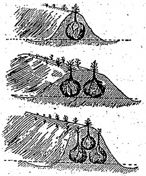
WINTERING CABBAGES.

A Number of Methods Which Have Proved Satisfactory to Gardeners and Farmers.

There are numerous ways in which cabbages can be kept successfully for home use or for the often good market during the latter part of winter or early spring. In a chapter on this subject in his book, "How to Make the Garden Pay," Greiner gives a general rule applicable to all methods. It is this: To pull the crop on a dry day and pack it only when perfectly dry. Also put off the final covering or storing in buildings, cellars, etc., as long in the fall as it can be safely done.

One of the most common methods is to wrap the outer leaves of each plant firmly about the head, and stand root side up closely together, either in single line or in a double row, with or without another layer on top, then plow a furrow from each side to the ridge of cabbages thus formed, and finish covering up with soil, using shovel or spade, leaving only the extremities of the roots sticking out. The first illustration represents a cross section of each of the three arrangements.

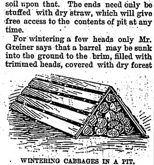
Another good way to store cabbages is to put them into pits, like root crops. The excavation is made six or eight inches deep, four feet wide and as long as needed to make room for the quantity of cabbages desired to store. Here the heads are packed in a conical heap, roots inward, and covered with eight or ten inches of soil, packed firmly. In case it is desired to use all or part of them during the winter it will be a good precaution to cover the south side of the pit with straw or other dry litter deep enough to keep the soil from freezing, and thus secure easy access to the cabbages whenever wanted.



CROSS SECTIONS OF THREE ARRANGEMENTS.

An improvement on this method has been suggested by Rural New Yorker. Boards or slabs are placed on the bottom of the pit. The cabbages, well trimmed and dry, are packed in, as illustrated in the second cut. Triangular frames of 2 by 4 scantling are then set upright into the pit, one at each end only if pit is less than 8 or 9 feet long, one additional in the center for a pit of from 9 to 15 feet in length. Common fence boards are nailed to them, thus forming something like a large three cornered crate around the cabbages. This is lightly covered with straw, and four to six inches of soil upon that. The ends need only be stuffed with dry straw, which will give free access to the contents of pit at any time.

For wintering a few heads only Mr. Greiner says that a barrel may be sunk into the ground to the brim, filled with trimmed heads, covered with dry forest leaves, chaff, etc., and a simple roof to exclude rain and snow. The cellar under the dwelling house is, for sanitary reasons, hardly a place for storing cabbages, but a very few after removal of the coarse outside leaves may each be wrapped in several thicknesses of common newspaper, so that only the roots are showing outside, and hung up in a convenient place in the cellar. Farmers might put a load of cabbages in some corner of the barn, on the floor, haymow, etc., and keep them lightly covered with loose straw, and thus have them ready for use at any time.



WINTERING CABBAGES IN A PIT.

Salt as a Fertilizer.

Conflicting statements of the agricultural value of salt when applied to the soil appear so frequently that the average farmer may well be excused for neglecting it for this purpose altogether. Some farmers have found it valuable, while others have received little or no benefit from it or regard it as hurtful, so that it is seldom used as a practical fertilizer.

So far as it is beneficial to plants it appears to be by indirection. Thus in some cases it has the effect of dissolving matters already existing in the soil and making them available as plant food, when if they were sufficiently soluble without it its application would be useless. If applied in quantities sufficiently large to kill insects in the soil it will be injurious to vegetation. Some plants, however, resist its injurious effects far better than others. With many people salt was once thought indispensable for a good asparagus bed, but it is now more commonly believed that its beneficial effect consists chiefly in killing the weeds. There are soils, however, whose fertility seems increased by moderate applications.

Things That Are Told.

California is to be honored by having a section of one of her famous big trees made a prominent feature in the Government building at the Columbian exposition.

An invention that attracted attention at a state fair was a transplanting machine for setting tobacco, cabbage and other plants and firming the earth around them; also automatically watering the roots of the plants.

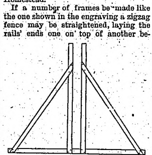
Times are changing. Two or three years ago self spacing frames were not considered practical, and the reversing features of the latest honey extractors were regarded as just so much surplus machinery. But beekeepers are thinking differently now. Honey is being produced on larger scales, and better and more rapidly operated appliances are demanded, and these things come of necessity.

RAIL FENCES.

Helpful Hints for Repairing Old Fences at a Small Cost.

In sections where old rail fences are only a temptation and not a hindrance to stock, some system by which they may be made good at slight expense will be welcome. We therefore present a plan suggested and described by a Connecticut farmer in The New England Homestead.

If a number of frames be made like the one shown in the engraving a zigzag fence may be straightened, laying the rails' ends one on top of another between the uprights, and the material will be sufficient usually to more than fence the whole line. One will also reap the advantage of being able to clear up the weeds and brush along the old fence row and crop the land more closely. A slab or plank 3½ feet long, averaging 2 by 6 inches, will do for the bottom piece; strips 2 by 3 inches for the uprights and others: 1 by 3 or 4 for the side braces.



SUPPORT FOR STRAIGHT RAIL FENCE.

Waste strips, that may be bought by the cord for almost nothing frequently, will serve admirably, and may be sawed and nailed together in the barn or shop when storms prevent outdoor labors. The uprights and braces are nailed to the bottom piece and to each other one foot from the top of the uprights, a space of not over five inches being left between uprights. No fence is better for sheep. Unless the nails are clinched wire nails should not be used, as they draw out so easily, enduring but little strain and rendering the fence weak. Light poles can be laid up between these braces if desired instead of rails.

Clearing Poultry Houses of Insect Pests.

The poultry house should be thoroughly cleaned out before extreme cold weather, and every louse and mite in the walls, nest boxes and perches destroyed with kerosene. Care should be taken to see that there is no grain in the straw used for nests, for if a hen finds a single one she is almost certain to tear the nest to pieces seeking for more. When the nests in the poultry house are clean, free from vermin and nicely lined with soft material the pullets will naturally go to them when they begin laying. When they are foul or hard or infested with vermin the pullets drop their eggs in the corners of the yard, off the perches and almost anywhere. Some of them are broken, the hens get a taste of egg and the trials of the poultry keeper have just begun, writes an Illinois correspondent in The American Agriculturist. For destroying insects he advises kerosene as the best article. It is abundant, cheap and sure death to lice, mites and every other insect that it touches. First thoroughly clean out the house and then spray it with the kerosene. A good spraying apparatus with cyclone nozzle is best for doing this work, but it can also be very effectively done with a common garden syringe fitted with a fine rose spray. Draw slowly when drawing in the liquid, but force it out as hard as you can. This will make a fine spray, which will penetrate every crack and crevice, however small it may be.

Grades of Hay.

The different grades of hay, as generally understood by the trade, are as follows: Choice timothy, to be timothy, and not more than one-eighth of other tame grasses mixed; good color, well cured and free from must. Strictly prime, to be timothy, and not more than one fifth of other tame grasses mixed; good color, well cured and free from must. Prime, to be sound, well cured, good color and free from must, and may contain three-fourths of tame grasses and one-fourth timothy. Mixed hay, to consist of tame grasses, mixed; good color, well cured and free from must. All kinds of hay badly cured, stained, or in any way out of condition, are regarded as no grade.

Weevils in Corn.

A Texas correspondent in Insect Life gives the following as a successful plan for keeping weevils out of corn: "In putting up his corn in the fall he placed two open bottles containing bisulphide of carbon about four feet apart on the floor of the bin. The mouths of the bottles were covered with a single layer of cheese cloth, and each bottle was covered with an old broken box. The bin was then filled with corn to its utmost capacity, and the result of the experiment was highly successful. What live weevils were admitted from the field were destroyed and none further appeared. It is also claimed to have kept mice and rats out of the bin."

Seven persons were killed and fifteen injured in an accident on the Philadelphia and Reading railway.

FAST OYSTER OPENERS.

Workmen in New York City Who Take Oysters Out of Their Shells.

The crack oyster openers of New York can easily hold their own against the rest of the world as "lightning operators," as they are called.

One of the veterans is Dick Balmer, who has opened 9,000 oysters in a day of twelve hours, and he can now average 7,500 in a day of twelve or thirteen hours' work.

Mike Foley, who may well be termed a lightning operator, and is now in his fifties, has opened as many as 9,500 oysters in one day, and on ordinary days, if he pushes himself, he can easily get away with 8,000 oysters. Of course the oysters opened are large and small, just as they come, as if they were all small and round the opening could be done much more rapidly.

John Lahey is good for an average of 8,000 a day, and so is an opener known among the oystermen as "Deaf George." In a trial of speed in opening 500 oysters John Lahey probably cannot be beaten.

To open oysters rapidly of course requires a great deal of experience in handling them, but there also seems to be a knack about it that every oysterman cannot acquire. Some men, for instance, can only open 4,000 oysters a day and they will not go much above that after years of work in this line.

The twenty-seven men employed by Alex Frazer on the North river will average 5,000 oysters a day, which is a much higher average than is reached by the majority of the crews around New York. These men also can turn out, when required, 150,000 oysters a day in all, which is 15,000 oysters above the average of 5,000 a man. There are very few oyster scows in the market can equal this average from week to week. It must also be considered that on some days work begins at 5 o'clock in the morning and on others at 6 or 8 o'clock.

There was an oyster opening match about a year ago between Mike Foley and Jack Gillon. The match was to decide which man was the quicker at opening 1,000 oysters. Gillon won in 57 minutes, beating his opponent by only seven oysters. Foley has opened 11,200 oysters at one sitting.

Dick Balmer has appeared in sixteen oyster opening matches and lost only two of them. Most of the contests were over the opening of 100 oysters. At one time Balmer opened 100 oysters in 4 minutes and 22 seconds, which is now the best "straight knife" record. Balmer has also opened 1,000 oysters in 55 minutes. The two matches in which he was defeated he lost to John Gillon. The first match was best two out of three records in opening 100 oysters, but owing to a dispute Balmer retired from the contest, leaving the match to Gillon. At the second match Balmer was beaten by eight oysters.

Among the lightning operators on William Foster's scow the most conspicuous undoubtedly is "Black Frank," as Frank Barrett, who is as white a man as any other white man in this country, is dubbed by his associates. Mr. Barrett has spent a good many years in the south, and from his association there in a business way with the darkies he came to be called "Black Frank."—New York News.

Discarded India Rubber Utilized.

It is a matter of common knowledge that india rubber goods even of the highest quality are perishable. Although not subject to any great wear and tear the time comes when the rubber loses its elasticity and becomes soft and rotten. Hitherto such perished rubber has represented a waste material for which no use could be found, but by a process recently invented the perished rubber can be made, it is said, once more serviceable.

By incorporating the waste rubber with certain hydrocarbons and with a proportion of Trinidad asphalt, by adding to the mixture certain vegetable oils and submitting the product to heat, there is produced a substance to which the name of "blandyte" has been given. It can be made hard and dense or soft and pliable by modifying certain parts of the process, and it seems to be applicable to most of the various purposes for which pure rubber is used.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The Cutaway Coat.

The cutaway frock coat may be worn at any time during the day, and is really the most useful all around garment in the vocabulary. The man in the black cutaway of dull finish cloth is dressed for any emergency that may arise during the hours of the day. It is suitable for the afternoon tea and for the morning stroll. It has been worn with excellent effect with the top hat at the noon wedding—indeed its efficacy and becomingness is so apparent that many of the more conservative swells have been deterred through their fealty to this garment of semidress from pinning allegiance to the more distinguished but trying lines of the long tailed double breasted frock.—Clothier and Furnisher.

A Valuable Clock.

There is no further need for the noisy little alarm clock, for a Swiss has just invented a clock that talks. It is much pleasanter than the grating br-r-r-r of the bell that always rings ten times as loud as necessary, to have a clock that will stand at the head of the bed and remark: "There are eggs, and a nice juicy steak, and a cold melon and milk and toast and fried potatoes and coffee down stairs for you, John Henry, and this is the day when Archimedes McGonigle promised you the twenty dollars he has been owing you so long. Besides day after tomorrow is Sunday, and you can finish your sleep then." That's the sort of a clock to have in the family.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Information Wanted.

"Do birds think?" asks a writer in opening an article. If they do, we should like to know what a canary thinks of a woman who stands up on a chair and talks baby through the bars of the cage.—New York Recorder.

Notice of Mortgage Foreclosure Sale.

[First publication Sept. 29th, 1892.]
[Last publication Nov. 10th, 1892.]

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE payment of nine dollars ($9.00) which became due on the first day of October, A. D. 1889, upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Daniel Bernard and Fannie Jane Bernard, his wife, to John Milton Oliver, bearing date the 3d day of October, A. D. 1888, which mortgage together with the power of sale therein contained, was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the county of Polk and state of Minnesota, on the 29th day of October, A. D. 1888, at 8 o'clock and 10 minutes a. m., in book 40 of mortgages, on pages 273, 274 and 275.

It is provided in said mortgage that if said mortgagors shall fail to pay any part of the sum of money thereby secured at the time and in the manner specified in said mortgage, then upon such default, the whole sum of money secured by said mortgage, may at the option of the mortgagee be declared due and payable; and the said John Milton Oliver, mortgagee, who is now the legal holder of said mortgage and of the notes thereby secured, has elected and does hereby elect and declare the whole sum secured by said mortgage to be due; and there is claimed to be due upon said mortgage at the date of this notice the sum of forty-eight and 13-100 dollars, ($48.13), and no action or proceeding has been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof,

Wherefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz:

